JCNA Research Services

Since our last update in June we completed the 23/24 financial year with 266 queries dealt with for the period July 2023-June 2024. We have continued to receive a steady amount of queries from the first quarter of 2024 (July-end of September 2024) and dealt with 74.

Advocacy & Outreach:

The Archives have been starting up our outreach activities and have been busy planning and engaging in the following events:

- J&ACMT History Project 2025
  We have started working with the schools as they prepare to start the 2025 cohort on the J&ACMT History Projects. Staff from the Archives and a member of the J&ACM Trust attended a FICS teaching session to introduce the students to the projects and sharing the guidance document. This will be supported in the forthcoming month with visits to the JCNA, and Museum, to show the students what resources are available.

- Launch of Archives Newsletter (September 2024)
  The JCNA launched its second issue of its newsletter for 2024, providing readers with an update on the service between January and June 2024 and featuring a range of research articles and content for the 'Falklands on Record' section. We have also taken the opportunity to highlight upcoming events and showcase some of the photographs from the FIC Ltd Collection which were made available on our website in June.
  You can access this on:
  https://www.nationalarchives.gov.fk/jdownloads/Newsletters/Archives%20Newsletter%2012%2020242.pdf

- FIMA Friends Lecture Series (see attached poster)
  The Archives will be giving the first lecture as part of a new initiative run by the Friends of the Falkland Islands Museum and Archives. We will be talking about physical and online access to the collections and our plans to increase community engagement.

  Please join us if you can to learn more about the National Archives in the Falkland Islands and ask any questions about our service. You can view our Facebook page for quick access to the link on the day.
  Date: Thursday 10 October 2024

Time: 15:00 FI time / 19:00 UK time (30-40 min presentation with Q&A after)

JCNA Features & Projects

- Website Redevelopment
  The JCNA website is still in the process of being developed, with work behind the scenes to prepare new pages and content. Users will have noticed that the website has been refreshed already and when the new site launches, it will hopefully support researchers further, including condensing the menu options. In the meantime, before the new site is complete, the menu option for 'Online Collections' has been moved slightly to avoid content being lost from view off the screens if viewing from a laptop. Staff have also been pleased to see users submitting queries through the form on the 'Contact Us' section.

Website Uploads - since June 2024:

The JCNA have worked hard to make as much information available as possible through our website. Recently digitised files have sought to fill current gaps in existing material already on the website – including the series on Kelp, Stamps and Defence. To support an upcoming Falkland Islands Journal Article by Robin Isherwood on the Gazetteer – listing the locations of various place-names across the Islands – data sheets and full 2024 Gazetteer has been made available. Over the past six months Diana Aldridge has been working to digitise more of our photograph albums and these will be made available with the refreshed website and a new, more prominent dedicated page for our Photographic Collections. The additional albums will be a great visual addition to our website and be of most interest to the local community.
