MENTAL HEALTH

Mental Health (Approved Practitioners) Order 2016

S. R. & O. No. 1 of 2016

Made: 4 February 2016

Published: 29 February 2016

Coming into force: 2 February 2016

I make this order under section 91 of the Mental Health Ordinance (No 7 of 2010) —

(a) after consulting the Chief Medical Officer on the appropriate qualifications, training and experience required by different classes of professionals for initial inclusion on the list of approved practitioners, as required by section 91(4); and

(b) without consulting Executive Council because, in my judgement, the urgency of the matter requires me to act before I can consult Executive Council.

PART 1 INTRODUCTION

1. Title

This order is the Mental Health (Approved Practitioners) Order 2016.

2. Commencement

This order is deemed to have come into force on 2 February 2016.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(not forming part of the order)

Section 91(1) of the Mental Health Ordinance (No. 7 of 2010) provides that the Governor may, by Order, approve doctors as medical practitioner for the purposes of the Ordinance. Schedule 1 contains a list of medical practitioners approved as doctors. According to section 3, they are also approved practitioners.

Section 91(2) provides that the Governor may, by Order, approve a nurse, social worker or other professional as an approved professional for the purposes of the Ordinance. Schedule 2 contains a list of nurses, social workers and other professionals approved by the Governor as approved professionals. Again under section 3, they too are also approved practitioners.

As required by section 91(4), before making the list of approved doctors and approved professionals, the Governor consulted the Chief Medical Officer on the appropriate qualifications, training and experience required by different classes of professionals for initial inclusion on the list.

Clause 4 revokes the 2014 orders as they are replaced by this new updated list.

FISHERIES

Fisheries (Individual Transferable Quota Fees) Regulations 2016

S. R. & O. No. 7 of 2016

Made: 5 April 2016

Published: 29 April 2016

Coming into force: see regulation 2

I make the following regulations under section 35 of the Fisheries (Conservation and Management) Ordinance (No. 14 of 2005) on the advice of Executive Council.

1. Title

These regulations are the Fisheries (Individual Transferable Quota Fees) Regulations 2016.

2. Commencement

These regulations are deemed to have come into force on 1 January 2016 and cease to have effect on 31 December 2016.

3. Interpretation

In these regulations —

“Director” means the Director of Fisheries; and “ITQ” means Individual Transferable Quota.

4. Fees and Payment Schedule

(1) The fees set out under Schedule 1 are the total fees payable in respect of the entire Individual Transferable Quota granted to any company for the specified fisheries.

(2) The fees payable by each company holding ITQ in an established fishery are calculated by reference to the proportion of the total ITQ held by that company.

(3) A company holding ITQ in an established fishery must pay the applicable fees annually in respect of the calendar year for which ITQ has been granted to that company.

(4) The fees must be paid on or before the dates specified under Schedule 2.

Toothfish – Longline	L	Monthly (beginning of each month)
Squid (Winter)	X	17 December

Made 5th April 2016

C. Roberts C.V.O.,
Governor.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

These Regulations are made under section 35 of the Fisheries (Conservation and Management) Ordinance (No. 14 of 2005) which requires that sums (payable to the Crown) be prescribed for different companies in relation to the amount of ITQs held by those companies.

The fees for 2016 are set out under Schedule 1 and Schedule 2 (the payment Schedule) indicates dates when payments are due in respect of all the different fishery licences.

Regulation 2 provides for the period within which these fees remain valid – which is from 1 January to 31 December 2016, as the fees are set annually.

Regulation 4 sets out the fees and how they are calculated as well as the dates or times when those fees are payable. These are specified under Schedules 1 and 2.

Illex* Fishing Licences (Applications, Fees and Refunds) Regulations 2016

S. R. & O. No. 8 of 2016

Made: 5 April 2016

Published: 29 April 2016

Coming into force: see regulation 2

I make the following regulations under section 41, section 223(2)(b) and (p) of the Fisheries (Conservation and Management) Ordinance (No. 14 of 2005) on the advice of Executive Council.

1. Title

These regulations are the Illex Fishing Licences (Applications, Fees and Refunds) Regulations, 2016.

2. Commencement

Except where it is specifically provided for a particular provision to come into force at a later, specified date, these regulations are deemed to have come into force on 1 January 2016 and cease to have effect on 31 December 2016.

3. Interpretation

In these regulations —

“Director” means the Director of Fisheries;

“exploratory or scientific purposes” means purposes related to the assessment of the commercial or practical viability of fishing for fish generally or for a particular species of fish or to the assessment or quantification of stocks of any species of fish or fish of any age, stage of maturity or size of a species of fish or the location in which they or any species of fish or fish of any age, stage of maturity or size may be found;

“FIPASS” means the Falkland Interim Port and Storage System as defined under the Falkland Interim Port and Storage System Ordinance (Title 57.1);

“Illex fishing season” means the period between 15 February to 15 June in any given year;

“fishing waters” has the same meaning under the Ordinance;

“Licence Allocation Policy” means the policy relating to Illex fishing licences set by Executive Council from time to time;

“refund policy” means the policy approved by Executive Council from time to time as set out under Schedule 2; and

“the Ordinance” means the Fisheries (Conservation and Management) Ordinance.

4. Illex fishing licences – applications and fees

(1) All applications for fishing licences must be made to the Director so as to reach the Director before 18 December or such earlier date as may be set by the Director and the Director is not bound to receive any application received after this date.

(2) The fees payable for an Illex fishing licence is determined by the formula set out under Part A of Schedule 1.

(3) The percentage of the fees and the period within which the fees are payable is specified under Part B of Schedule 1.

(4) When issuing fishing licences under these regulations the Director must take into account the Licence Allocation Policy.

5. Refund policy

(1) The Director in consultation with the Financial Secretary may, in any fishing season, implement the refund policy as set from time to time by Executive Council.

(2) In any assessment for a refund the Director may take into account the following —

- (a) the average catch in any fishing season;
- (b) the average catch value in any fishing season;
- (c) the full season catch taken by all licensed vessels;
- (d) the full high seas catches taken by all licensed vessels; or
- (e) any other factors as may be relevant.

(3) The refund policy for the 2016 fishing season is set out under Schedule 2.

6. Exploratory licences

(1) The Director may issue such number of exploratory licences as may be appropriate to verify the presence of Illex in any fishing waters.

(2) The Director must specify the expiry date for each exploratory licence issued.

(3) The Director must set the fees payable for exploratory licences.

7. Transhipment and export fees

(1) No transhipment fees are payable —

- (a) for any fishing vessel with a valid fishing license;
- (b) for any Falkland Islands fishing vessel; and
- (c) for any vessel transhipping at FIPASS where cargo is crossing the dock.

(2) The following must pay a transhipment fee of £1500 for the period January to December 2016 —

- (a) subject to subsection (1)(b), any fishing vessel that is transhipping outside the period of validity of the fishing licence;
- (b) a reefer vessel; or
- (c) any unlicensed vessel.

SCHEDULE 1 FISHERY FEES (regulation 4)

PART A Fee Formula

Jigging Vessels:

$$\text{Fee (£)} = \mathbf{£0.401 * (GT * (S + 1.5D)) + 107250}$$

GT = Gross Tonnage

S = Number of Single Jigging Machines

D = Number of Double Jigging Machines

Trawling Vessels:

$$\text{Fee (£)} = \mathbf{(4.064 * GT) + 116640}$$

GT = Gross Tonnage

PART B
Payment Periods and Proportion of Fee Payable

Payment Period	Proportion of Fee %
15 February – 15 March	5%
16 March – 15 May	80%
16 May – 15 June	15%
Total	100%

Explanatory Notes (for guidance only)

A minimum time period of 80% must be purchased.

A 10% deposit must be paid before the 29 January 2016

Outstanding payments for each period must be paid (received by FIG's bank) at least 15 days in advance of the relevant fishing period.

Payments will be eligible for the ^early payment discounts set out below, providing the payment is made on time by the relevant date (for example in order to receive a 6% early payment discount on the full fee (100%), the entire fee would have to be received by FIG by 31 January 2016.

Letters of Credit must have an expiry date of the 31 August 2016 no other date will be accepted.

^early payment discounts are as follows:

6% for payment by 31 January 2016

5% for payment by 31 May 2016 *

4% for payment by 30 June 2016 *

*Payments can be held until these dates but must be guaranteed by an Irrevocable Letter of Credit or equivalent.

Vessel History Discount:

A discount of 1% per year is available for any season fished by the vessel in the last 10 years.
The maximum discount which may be claimed is 10%.

PAYMENT SCHEDULE
(regulation 5(3))

2016 REFUND POLICY

(a) Licence Fee Refund Policy

In the event of a poor season the Falkland Islands government will take account of the average catch in assessing refunds. The refund policy will be based on catch as follows:

Catch (MT)	Column A Percentage Refund based on catch volume only. For use where average catch \geq 1000 tonnes	Column B Percentage Refund using catch volume and value. For use where average catch $<$ 1000 tonnes
> 1500	No refund	0%
1500 – 1250	No refund	10%
1249 – 1000	No refund	25%
999 – 750	40%	40%
749 – 500	50%	50%
499 – 250	70%	70%
< 250	90%	90%

Explanatory Notes (for guidance only)

Referring to the above table if the average catch is 1000 tonnes or exceeds that level there will not be any refund as set out in column A.

If the average catch is less than 1000 tonnes and taking account of catch value results in an ‘adjusted catch’ less than 1500 tonnes the refund levels set out in column B will apply.

An example of the adjusted catch value is set out in below –

(b) Licence Fee Refund Policy – Catch Value

The refund policy is intended to be linked to catch and catch value. The base price used to calculate the figures in the table at (a) above is $ 936 per tonne (whole Illex). If the 2016 Illex price is higher than the current base rate this will be factored into the refund calculation. In any case where the average Illex price is above $ 936 the calculation will be:

For example if the 2016 Illex price is $ 3000 and the average catch is 400 tonnes the calculation will be:

*Average catch (400 tonnes) * 3.2 = 1280 tonnes (This is the adjusted catch figure used for the refund calculation in column B of the table above).*

The adjustment will only be made if the price is above $ 936. Price information will be collected from available sources.

(c) Refund Policy to take account of Full Season equivalent catch

The catch total used in the refund policy will take account of full season catches (15 February – 15 June). If the average catch of vessels fishing for 100% of the season exceeds 1000 tonnes there will be no refund for any vessels; including those which have fished for 80% of the season only and whose catches may be less than 1000 tonnes.

(d) Refund Policy to take account of High Seas Catches

The calculation of catch rates and totals in relation to the refund policy will take account of high seas catches taken by licensed vessels during 15 February – 15 June. Owners/operators of licensed vessels wishing to access the refund policy set out here in section 6 must provide catch reports for any days spent fishing on the high seas during the period of validity of their Falkland Islands fishing licence.

Owner/operators electing not to report high seas catches in accordance with the above may still be eligible for a refund but it is likely to be at a reduced rate compared to the refund policy calculation set out here (to be determined according to the relevant circumstances).

(e) Monitoring of Catch Levels

FIG will be the ultimate arbiter of catch levels and reserves the right to weight the assessment in favour of verified information. In order for this to work vessels may need to undergo additional inspections and give adequate notice of departure from the fishing zone etc.

This will be calculated on the basis of average vessel catch and not on an individual vessel basis.

The refund policy set out here in regulation 5 will only apply to vessels which comply with the requirements of catch monitoring. A number of these are covered by mandatory requirements which in any case are covered by the Fisheries Ordinance and regulations, such as:

- Full and reliable catch reporting
- Other fishery monitoring reports (Fishcom/end etc)
- Embarkation of an observer if required
- Sufficient notice of intention to leave fishing zones to allow for inspection

Additionally, the refund policy set out above will only apply to fishing vessels which report high seas catches during the fishing season (15 February – 15 June) and conduct transshipment operations in Falkland Island ports and harbours. Vessels not satisfying the criteria set out above will not ordinarily be eligible for a refund. If, in exceptional circumstances, it is determined that a vessel which has not complied should still receive a refund, that refund will be at a reduced rate (to be determined according to the relevant circumstances).

Made 5th April 2016

C. Roberts C.V.O.,
Governor.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(not part of these regulations)

These regulations are made under sections 41 and 223 of the Fisheries (Conservation and Management) Ordinance (No. 14 of 2005).

Section 41(1) provides for applications and fees for a fishing licence. Regulations 1 and 2 provide for introductory matters while regulation 3 provides for interpretation of different words and phrases used within the regulations.

Regulation 4 provides for the application process including dates for making applications. It further provides for the fees and the formula; and this is set out under Schedule 1;

Section 223(2)(b) of the Ordinance provides that the Governor may make regulations for the refund of fees, charges or levies payable under any provision of the Ordinance. Regulation 5 provides for the manner of making refunds and this is set out under Schedule 2 and it is based on a refund policy approved by Executive Council.

Regulation 6 provides for exploratory licences which give effect to section 42 of the Ordinance which deals with licences that may be issued for research purposes.

Regulation 7 provides for transshipment and export fees and under subsection (2) sets the fee at £1500 for any unlicensed fishing vessel, any fishing vessel (not being a Falkland Island vessel) that transships outside the validity of a licence as well as any reefer vessel. A Falkland Islands fishing vessel is exempted from paying any transshipment fees as well as any vessel with a valid fishing licence. Fishing vessels transshipping through FIPASS are also excluded from paying any transshipment fees.

PLANNING AND BUILDING

Tussac Cutters' Hut, Kidney Island Designation Order 2016

S. R. & O. No: 9 of 2016

Made: 26 April 2016

Published: 29 April 2016

Coming into force: upon publication

I make the following order under section 65(1) of the Planning Ordinance (Title 55.3) —

(a) on the advice of Executive Council; and

(b) on the recommendation of the Historic Buildings Committee (composed as required by section 63(2)), as required by section 65(2)(b).

1. Title

This Order is the Tussac Cutters' Hut, Kidney Island Designation Order 2016.

2. Commencement

This Order comes into force upon publication in the Gazette.

3. Designation of Tussac Cutters' Hut, Kidney Island

(1) Subject to subparagraph (2), the building on Kidney Island known as the Tussac Cutters' Hut is designated as a building of special architectural and historic interest.

(2) The designation relates to the building in respect of both its external appearance and internal features.

Made 26th April 2016

C. Roberts C.V.O.,
Governor.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the order)

This Order designates the Tussac Cutters' Hut on Kidney Island (the only building on Kidney Island) as a building of special architectural and historic interest.

This designation includes both the external appearance and the internal features of the building. Planning permission or consent is required for its demolition, alteration or extension.

SUBSIDIARY LEGISLATION

COURTS AND LEGAL SERVICES

Administration of Justice (Payments to Jurors and Witnesses) Rules 2016

S. R. & O. No. 10 of 2016

Made: 26 April 2016

Published: 29 April 2016

Coming into force: upon publication

In exercise of the power conferred upon me by section 60 of the Administration of Justice Ordinance (Title 22.1), and in accordance with section 25 of the Jury Ordinance (Title 22.5), I make these rules on the advice of Executive Council —

1. Title

These rules are the Administration of Justice (Payments to Jurors and Witnesses) Rules 2016.

2. Commencement

These rules will come into force on publication in the Gazette.

3. Interpretation

In these rules, unless the context requires otherwise —

“appropriate officer” means the Attorney General, any member of the Attorney General’s staff or any member of the Court Service staff as may be designated by the Attorney General for any of the purposes of these rules;

“Constitution” means the Schedule to the Falkland Islands Constitution Order 2008 (S. I. No. 2008/2846);

“interpreter” must be construed in accordance with the qualification imposed by rule 4(1)(c);

“juror” must be construed in accordance with the qualification imposed by rule 4(1)(b);

“professional witness” means a witness practising as a member of the legal or medical profession or as an accountant, dentist or veterinary surgeon otherwise than in the service of the Crown;

“service of the Crown” any person employed by the Crown (which expression includes the Falkland Islands Government) or a person contracted by the Crown to provide interpreter services in relation to the relevant proceedings; and “relevant amount” must be construed in accordance with rule 5.

4. Scope of the rules and general provisions

(1) Without prejudice to the power of the Governor in Council to allow for more than the entitlements provided for under these rules where the Governor in Council sees fit to do so, these rules provide for the entitlements to costs and expenses of —

(a) a witness who attends court or elsewhere to give evidence at the instance of the Attorney General, whether the witness gives evidence or not;

(b) a person who attends court having been called or selected for service as a member of a jury; and

(c) any other person who is not in the service of the Crown, in the opinion of the appropriate officer, necessarily attends court or elsewhere for the purpose of the prosecution's case otherwise than to give evidence (including an interpreter, but only if the interpreter is required because a person attending to give evidence at the instance of the Attorney General is unable to speak or comprehend English adequately), in any proceedings conducted by the Attorney General in the discharge of the Attorney General's functions under section 72 of the Constitution.

(2) A person is not entitled to any of the costs or expenses under these rules if the person is a witness and, when called, refuses to give evidence.

(3) Such entitlements are the same for a person whether the person's attendance on any occasion is for the purpose of one case or more than one case.

(4) Where a person claims an entitlement under these rules, the appropriate officer must satisfy himself or herself of the person's entitlement before authorising the payment of a claim for costs or expenses.

5. Determination of scales or rates of allowances

(1) The scales or rates of the costs and expenses for which entitlements are provided for under these rules must be determined by the Attorney General with the consent of the Financial Secretary; and in these rules a reference to an allowance of or not exceeding the relevant amount is a reference to an allowance of or not exceeding an amount calculated in accordance with the scales or rates so determined.

(2) All costs and expenses arising out of the requirements of these rules must be paid out of moneys authorised to be deducted from the Consolidated Fund by the Legislative Assembly and held and administered by the Court Service.

(3) The Attorney General must arrange for the scales or rates referred to under sub-rule (1) to be published in the Gazette.

6. Allowances to professional witnesses for attendance

(1) A professional witness is entitled to receive a professional witness allowance for attending to give professional evidence on any day, which may be either —

(a) where the witness has necessarily incurred expenditure in providing a substitute professional person to take care of the witness's practice during that day, a locum allowance of an amount equal to actual expenditure incurred not exceeding the relevant amount; or

(b) where no claim is made under paragraph (a), a compensatory allowance of the relevant amount.

(2) This rule does not apply to an expert witness attending to give expert evidence.

7. Overnight subsistence allowances to professional or expert witnesses and to interpreters

(1) Any of the persons mentioned in sub-rule (2) whose attendance causes the person to be necessarily absent from the person's place of residence overnight is entitled to receive an overnight subsistence allowance of the relevant amount in respect of each night of absence.

(2) The persons referred to in sub-rule (1) are —

(a) a juror;

(b) a witness who receives an allowance under rule 6 above;

(c) an expert witness who attends to give expert evidence; and

(d) an interpreter.

8. Allowances to jurors and witnesses, other than professional or expert, and to others for attendance

(1) Any of the persons mentioned in sub-rule (2) whose attendance causes the person —

(a) to incur any expenditure (other than on travelling, lodging or subsistence) to which the person would not otherwise be subject; or

(b) to suffer any loss of earnings, which the person would otherwise have received, is entitled to receive a financial loss allowance of an amount equal to the actual expenditure incurred or loss suffered not exceeding any relevant amount in respect of that expense or loss.

(2) The persons referred to in sub-rule (1) are —

(a) a juror;

(b) a witness who attends to give evidence (other than professional or expert evidence); and

(c) any other person who, in the opinion of the appropriate officer, necessarily attends for the purpose of the prosecution's case otherwise than to give evidence (excluding an interpreter).

9. Subsistence allowances to jurors, witnesses, other than professional or expert, and to others

(1) Any of the persons mentioned in sub-rule (3) who attends court or elsewhere is entitled to a daily subsistence allowance of the relevant amount or, if the person's attendance makes it necessary for the person to stay overnight away from home, to an overnight subsistence allowance of the relevant amount for each night of absence.

(2) An overnight subsistence allowance under sub-rule (1) must be in respect of a period of 24 hours and a witness who receives such an allowance is entitled to a further allowance in respect of any period in excess of 24 hours which is not covered by such an allowance at the rate appropriate to a day subsistence allowance under that sub-rule.

(3) The persons referred to under sub-rule (1) are —

(a) a juror;

(b) a witness who attends to give evidence (other than professional or expert evidence); and

(c) any other person who, in the opinion of the appropriate officer, necessarily attends for the purpose of the prosecution's case otherwise than to give evidence (excluding an interpreter).

10. Reimbursement of travelling expenses incurred by jurors, witnesses and others

(1) Where a person who is entitled to an allowance under any of rules 6 to 9 travels to or from the place of the person's attendance by public transport (including by air) the person is, subject to sub-rule (2) and (3), entitled to be reimbursed the fare actually paid.

(2) Unless the appropriate officer for special reason authorises otherwise, only the standard economy class fare will be reimbursed under sub-rule (1) for travel by air or other means.

(3) Where the person travels to or from such place by air, the person's entitlement under sub-rule (1) to be reimbursed the fare actually paid arises only if, in the opinion of the appropriate officer there was no reasonable alternative to travel by air and the class of fare paid was reasonable in all the circumstances.

(4) Where the person travels to or from such place by a private hire vehicle, the person is entitled to be reimbursed in respect of that travel the amount of the fare paid by the person.

(5) Where such person travels to or from such place by a private motor vehicle, other than one in respect of which reimbursement under this sub-rule is claimed by another person in respect of the same journey, the person is entitled to be reimbursed in respect of that journey —

(a) in a case to which sub-rule (6) applies by payment of mileage at the "standard rate" determined under rule 5 and of any parking fee actually and reasonably incurred; and

(b) in any other case, by payment of mileage at the rate determined in accordance with rule 5.

(6) This sub-rule applies where a journey to or from such place is necessarily undertaken by private motor vehicle or where the use of the vehicle is more economical in the circumstances or is otherwise reasonable.

11. Certain persons not to be entitled to allowances or travelling expenses

There is no entitlement to any allowance or reimbursement for any of the travelling expenses provided for under these rules for —

(a) a member of, or special constable appointed or person employed for the purposes of, a police force, attending in the member's capacity as such;

(b) a prison officer employed on a full-time basis, attending in the prison officer's capacity as such;

(c) an inmate of such an institution in respect of any occasion on which the inmate is conveyed to attend at any place in custody.

Made 26th April 2016

Colin Roberts, C.V.O.,
Governor.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(not forming part of the order)

These rules are made under section 60 of the Administration of Justice Ordinance (Title 22.1) and section 25 of the Jury Ordinance (Title 22.5).

Clauses 1 to 3 provide for introductory matters.

Clause 1 provides for the title of the rules and clause 2 provides for the rules to come into force on publication.

Clause 2 defines various terms used in the rules. "Appropriate officer" is defined to include staff from both the AG's office and the Courts Service to potentially allow the separate administration of witness and juror's expenses in the future.

Clause 4 provides for the scope of the rules, to set the rate of entitlements to costs and expenses for witnesses as described under sub-rule (1)(a); persons attending service as jurors and other persons as described under sub-rule (1)(a). Sub-rule (2) provides that no costs or expenses will be paid where a person called to give evidence refuses to do so.

Clause 5 provides for the Attorney General, with the consent of the Financial Secretary, to determine and set scales or rates for the costs and expenses payable under these rules. It further provides for the Attorney General to publish the rates in the Gazette. The budget for the payment of the allowances and expenses payable under these rules are to be administered by the Courts Service.

Clause 6 sets out the allowances payable to professional witnesses.

Clause 7 sets out the overnight subsistence allowance payable to professional or expert witnesses as well as to interpreters.

Clause 8 sets out the allowance payable to jurors and witnesses (other than professional or expert witnesses) for attendance as well as any financial loss suffered or any expenditure incurred as a reason of their attendance.

Clause 9 sets out the subsistence allowance for jurors and witnesses (other than professional or expert witnesses), this includes a daily subsistence allowance as well as an overnight subsistence allowance where the juror or the witness is required to stay overnight for purposes of the attendance.

Clause 10 provides for the reimbursement of any travelling expenses incurred by jurors, witnesses or other persons described under rules 6 to 9. The rule provides that only the standard fare paid on public transport will be reimbursed unless there are special reasons which an appropriate officer must authorise. The rule also provides for the determination of reimbursements for travel by air, private hire vehicle and private vehicle.

Clause 11 provides that members of the police force or prison service are not entitled to any of the allowances or reimbursement for travelling expenses as set out in the rules.

(published: 2016)

for

AN ORDINANCE

To amend the Taxes Ordinance (No. 14 of 1997) to provide for various tax reliefs for businesses in Camp.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Falkland Islands —

1. Title

This Ordinance is the Taxes (Amendment) Ordinance 2016.

2. Commencement

This Ordinance is deemed to have come into force on 1 January 2016.

3. Amendment of Taxes Ordinance

This Ordinance amends the Taxes Ordinance (No. 14 of 1997).

4. Section 2 amended — Interpretation

Section 2 is amended by inserting the following definition in its correct alphabetical order —

““Camp” means any area that is more than 10km from the Christ Church Cathedral excluding—

(i) the Mount Pleasant Complex;

(ii) the Camber (Port William) site,

but includes any agricultural enterprises located within the 10km radius from the Christ Church Cathedral where livestock farming is the primary activity, and the enterprise has an annual turnover exceeding £10,000 or stock numbers exceeding 2,000 Dry Sheep Equivalent;”;

5. Section 23 amended — the charge to corporation tax and exclusion of income tax

Section 23 is amended by adding the following new subsections after subsection (5) —

“(6) Subject to subsection (7) the provisions of this Ordinance relating to the charge of corporation tax shall not apply to income of the new business activity of a company resident in Camp where that company —

(a) operates a business that is new in Camp; or

(b) operates a business that is new to the Falkland Islands.

(7) Corporation tax is not chargeable to a company on the new business activity under subsection (6) for a period of —

(a) three years from the date of operation by that company of a business that is new in Camp; and

(b) six years from the date of operation by that company of a business that is new in the Falkland Islands.

(8) For purposes of subsection (6) —

(a) a company operates a business that is “new in Camp” if the company —

(i) operates or undertakes any activity which is not currently undertaken in Camp; or

(ii) offers any services which are not currently offered in Camp; and

(b) a company operates a business that is “new in the Falkland Islands” if the company—

(i) operates or undertakes any activity which is not currently undertaken in the Falkland Islands; or

(ii) offers any services which are not currently offered in the Falkland Islands.”.

6. Section 28 amended — Corporation tax rates

Section 28 is amended as follows —

(a) by deleting subsection (3) and replacing it with the following —

“(3) In subsection (1)(a) above the reference to a company’s chargeable income for any period is a reference to the amount of that income less the amount of —

(a) any ring fence income of the company for that period;

(b) any franked investment income of the company for that period; or

(c) any applicable new employment income or investment income for renewable resources due to a company in Camp for that period.”; and

(b) by inserting the following new subsection immediately after subsection (3) —

“(3A) For purposes of subsection (3)(c) a company in Camp is eligible for a tax credit for—

(a) the creation of any new employment in Camp at the amount set out under subsection (3B); or

(b) any investments the company makes in acquiring renewable energy technology or any of its system components in Camp at an annual rate of 150 per cent for up to £20,000 of the total cost of that renewable energy technology or its system components.

(3B) The tax credit referred to under subsection (3A)(a) for any new employment income is £3000 in each year and it applies —

(a) for three years from the date the full-time employment is created provided the employment is for more than 12 months; or

(b) on a pro-rated basis if the full-time employment is for 6 to 12 months.

(3C) The full-time employment must —

(a) be new (being a net additional job created but excluding any change in name of an existing role);

(b) be valid for a period of at least six months;

(c) provide as a minimum for a 40 hours work week;

(d) require that a minimum of 75 per cent working hours be carried out in Camp; and

(e) be carried out by a person resident in Camp; and

(3D) “Renewable energy technology” has the same meaning given under section 106(4).”

7. Section 106 amended — Interpretation for purposes of Chapter II

Section 106(4) is amended as follows —

(a) in the definition of “building” by inserting the words “or farmhouses” immediately after the word “land”;

(b) in the definition of “expenditure” by adding after paragraph (b), the following new paragraph—

“(c) any renewable energy technology including its system components.”; and

(c) inserting the following definitions in their correct alphabetical order —

““farmhouse” means the principal residence of the farm owner, manager or any person in control of the operation of the farm (that is used for residential purposes);

“renewable energy technology” means any technology that generates electricity or heat directly from natural resources or through the use of plant material that can be naturally replenished;”

8. Section 116 amended — Initial allowances and writing-down allowances for capital expenditure

Section 116 is amended as follows —

(a) in subsection (1) by adding the following new paragraphs immediately after paragraph (e)—

“(f) any renewable energy technology (including its system components).”.

(b) by inserting immediately after subsection (1A), the following new subsection —

“(1B) The disposal value of any renewable energy technology or any of its system components must be determined in accordance with section 113.”

(c) by deleting subsection (6A) and replacing it with the following —

“(6A) In the case of —

(a) machinery in Camp, the writing-down allowance is 60 per cent; and

(b) plant, machinery (other than machinery in Camp) or vehicle (including aircraft), writing-down allowances must be made under section 117.”.

(d) by deleting subsection (9) and replacing it with the following —

“(9) Unless subsection (10) applies —

(a) the writing-down allowance for a building (other than a building in Camp) is 10 per cent of the expenditure incurred in acquiring the building; and

(b) the writing-down allowance for a building in Camp (other than farmhouses) is 25 per cent of the expenditure incurred in acquiring the building.”

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill amends the Taxes Ordinance (No. 14 of 1997).

Clauses 1 and 2 provide for introductory matters and provides for a retrospective commencement of 1 January 2016;

Clause 3 provides for the amendment of the Taxes Ordinance;

Clause 4 provides for the amendment of section 2 by adding a new definition for “Camp”;

Clause 5 amends section 23 as follows —

- by adding the following new subsections after subsection (5):
 - (a) subsection (6) which provides that a company is excluded from paying corporation tax for any income generated by that company from a business that is new in Camp or new in the Falkland Islands;
 - (b) subsection (7) which provides the time frames within which the exemption from paying corporation tax applies, that is 3 years for a company offering a business new to Camp and 6 years for a company offering a new business to the Falkland Islands; and
 - (c) subsection (8) which defines what it means to offer a business new in Camp or in the Falkland Islands;

Clause 6 amends section 28 of the Ordinance as follows —

- by replacing subsection (3) with a new subsection which expands the current subsection to include new employment income and investment income derived from renewable resources to other income already covered there;
- by adding the following new subsections after subsection (3):
 - (a) subsection (3A) which provides for instances where a company resident in Camp is eligible for a tax credit, that is on the creation of any new employment in Camp by that company or on the creation of any investments made from acquiring renewable energy technologies by that company;
 - (b) subsection (3B) sets down the amount of income that the new employment must amount to in order to qualify for the tax relief provided by subsection (3A) and the time limit within which the tax credit is applicable;
 - (c) subsection (3C) lays down the requirements that must be met for employment to qualify as ‘full-time’ employment; and
 - (d) subsection (3D) provides for the meaning of ‘renewable energy technology’ by cross-referencing to section 106(4);

Clause 7 amends section 106(4) of the Ordinance to add some new definitions as a consequence of all the new amendments – these are definitions for farmhouses (which are not included from initial writing down allowances;

Clause 8 amends section 116 of the Ordinance as follows —

- in subsection (1) by adding a new paragraph for renewable energy technology;
- by adding a new subsection (1B) which provides for the disposal value of renewable energy technology;
- by replacing subsection (6A) with a new subsection that provides for the writing-down allowance for machinery in Camp at 60%; and
- by replacing subsection (9) with a new subsection which provides for the writing-down allowance for buildings in camp (excluding farmhouses) at 25%.

for

AN ORDINANCE

To amend the Highways (Weight Limits) Ordinance (No. 8 of 2004) and the Highways (Weight Limits on Bridges) Order (S. R. & O. No. 11 of 2012) to make amendments relating to the power to grant exemptions for prescribed weights and to specify the new weight limits for Boxer Bridge, Malo Bridge and San Carlos Bridge.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Falkland Islands —

1. Title

This Ordinance is the Highways (Weight Limits) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016.

2. Commencement

This Ordinance comes into force on publication in the Gazette.

3. Amendment of Highways (Weight Limits) Ordinance

The Highways (Weight Limits) Ordinance is amended as follows —

(a) in section 6(3) by inserting the following new paragraph immediately after paragraph (a)—

“(ab) prohibit without exception, the use of any motor vehicle, trailer or vehicle combination the laden weight of which exceeds the weight specified in such Order on any publicly maintainable highway or length of publicly maintainable highway therein specified;”

(b) in section 8 by inserting the following new subsection immediately after subsection (2) —

“(2A) Where the Governor has made an Order under section 6(3)(ab) the Competent Authority may not grant any exemptions in relation to the weight limits specified in such Order.”

4. Amendment of Highways (Weight Limits on Bridges) Order

The Highways (Weight Limits on Bridges) Order is amended as follows —

(a) under article 3 by adding the following new definitions —

“(c) “Malo Bridge” means the structure known as Malo Bridge that crosses the Malo River on the road from Estancia Farm to Teal Inlet;

(d) “San Carlos Bridge” means the structure known as San Carlos Bridge that crosses the San Carlos River on the road between Greenfield Farm and the North camp track.”.

(b) by deleting article 4 and replacing it with the following —

“4. 18 tonne weight limit on Boxer Bridge

The use of a motor vehicle, trailer or vehicle combination on the length of road across Boxer Bridge is prohibited if its laden weight exceeds 18 tonnes and no exemption may be granted by the Competent Authority in relation to this weight.”;

(c) by adding the following new articles after article 4 —

“5A. 38 tonne weight limit on Malo Bridge

The use of a motor vehicle, trailer or vehicle combination on the length of road across Malo Bridge is prohibited if its laden weight exceeds 38 tonnes and no exemption may be granted by the Competent Authority in relation to this weight.;

5B. 38 tonne weight limit on San Carlos Bridge

The use of a motor vehicle, trailer or vehicle combination on the length of road across San Carlos Bridge is prohibited if its laden weight exceeds 38 tonnes and no exemption may be granted by the Competent Authority in relation to this weight.”; and

(d) by deleting article 5 and replacing it with the following —

“5. 32 tonne weight limit on Chartres Bridge

The use of a motor vehicle, trailer or vehicle combination on the length of road across Chartres Bridge is prohibited if its laden weight exceeds 32 tonnes and no exemption may be granted by the Competent Authority in relation to this weight.”;

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill amends the Highways (Weight Limits) Ordinance (No. 8 of 2004).

Clauses 1 and 2 provide for introductory matters.

Clause 3 amends section 6(3) by inserting a new paragraph which gives the Governor the power to make an Order prescribing a weight limit for any publicly maintainable highway or length of publicly maintainable highway to which no exemption may be made to exceed that prescribed weight limit. This is in addition to the Governor’s power under paragraph (a) to do the same but subject to the Competent Authority being able to grant exceptions for the weight to be exceeded.

It also amends section 8 to add a new paragraph to the effect that the Competent Authority may not grant any exemption where an Order is made under section 6(3)(ab).

Clause 4 amends the Highways (Weight Limits on Bridges) Order by replacing article 4 with a new article to provide for a new weight limit of 18 tonnes for Boxer Bridge. It also specifies that the specified weight is one which no exemption can be granted. It also provides the weight limits for Malo Bridge and San Carlos Bridge. It also amends article 5 to provide that no exemption may be made in relation to Chartres Bridge.

C. ROBERTS C.V.O.,
Governor.

Note: Section 57A of the Taxes Ordinance provides for deductions from income for tax purposes of donations of £50 or more made to registered charities in any calendar year. Written evidence from the charity of the total amount of donations made to the charity in the calendar year must be provided to the Commissioner of Taxes. Approved charities are:- (a) bodies which are registered as a charity under the Charities Act 1960 as it applies to the Falkland Islands; and (b) any body of persons or trust which appears on the approved list of charities. The bodies "on the approved list" are charities established overseas which are not registered under the Charities Act 1960 in the Falkland Islands. They have been approved for tax deduction purposes.

Administration of Justice (Payments to Jurors and Witnesses) Rules 2016
rule 5

Rates for expenses for witnesses and jurors

The Attorney General sets the following rates in accordance with rule 5 of the Administration of Justice Ordinance (Payments to Jurors and Witnesses) Rules 2016:

(1) Travel:

Public transport including air travel (standard/economy class travel only at cost).

Motorcycle or car 40 pence per mile (where more than one person travels together only the driver may claim).

Taxis (may only be claimed with the prior permission of the court). If permission is given the actual fare without gratuity will be paid. A receipt must be produced.

(2) Food and drink:

Daily rate - up to 5 hours - £5

Daily rate - over 5 hours - £15

(3) Loss of Earnings:

For loss of earnings, you must show that you have suffered a financial loss eg your employer did not pay you because you are a casual worker or if self-employed someone was actually employed to substitute whilst you were away. These are not the only examples and any loss you have actually suffered will be considered by the Court but you should provide evidence to support your claim. Your actual costs will be reimbursed up to the maximums set out below.

The court will require you to provide a certificate of loss of earnings which must be signed by your employer.

Claims:

During the first ten days attendance:

(a) of up to four hours £40

(b) over four hours £80

Day eleven onwards:

(a) of up to four hours £60

(b) over four hours £120

(4) Carer allowance:

You may also claim this if you are the primary carer for a child or dependent adult and you have to pay for alternative care because of your attendance at court.

(5) Accommodation:

If overnight accommodation is required by the court this will be arranged and paid for by the court.

Normally overnight accommodation is not allowed. If however you live beyond a reasonable commuting distance of where the court hearing will take place overnight accommodation may be paid for. However, if you want to make a claim you must get the permission of the court first. Basic bed and breakfast rate will be paid.

If staying with friends or family a claim of £31 per night can be claimed.

SUBSIDIARY LEGISLATION

PLANNING AND BUILDING

Restrictions on Permitted Development (Stanley) Direction 2016

S. R. & O. No: 11 of 2016

Given: 2 June 2016

Published: 24 June 2016

Coming into force: on publication

IN EXERCISE of my powers under paragraph 5 of the General Development Order 1991 (Title 55.3.1), I give the following Direction.

1. Title

This Direction may be cited as the Restrictions on Permitted Development (Stanley) Direction 2016.

2. Commencement

This Direction comes into force upon publication in the Gazette.

3. Requirement to obtain planning permission

The planning permission granted by paragraph 4 of the General Development Order does not apply to the developments on land of the descriptions set out in the Schedule to this Direction within the area of Stanley shown edged black on the attached plan.

Schedule

Developments of classes A and D of Part 1 of Schedule 2 of the General Development Order affecting:

- (1) All existing development with an internal area of less than 400 square metres, or
- (2) All plots of land occupied by a message or dwelling house which occupies 25% or more of its existing plot; or
- (3) All those parts or parcels of land known as:
 - (i) south end of garden at 9 Pioneer Row, Stanley, consisting of approximately 320 square metres of land;

(ii) north end of garden at 27 Fitzroy Road, Stanley, consisting of approximately 275 square metres;

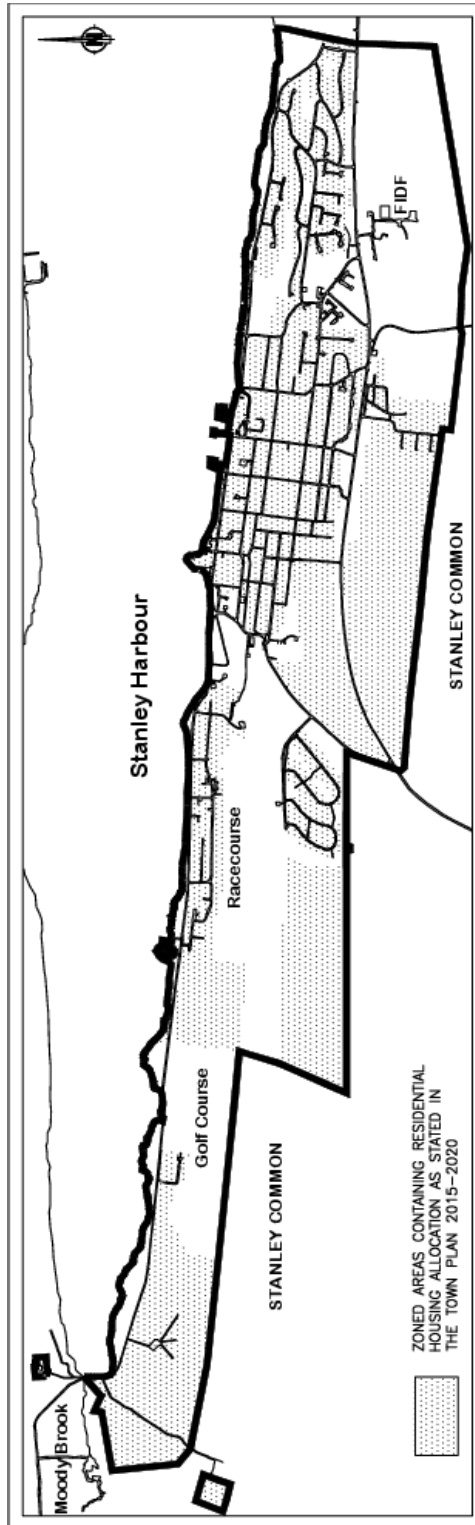

(iii) north end of garden at 10 Fitzroy Road, Stanley, consisting of 350 square metres of land;

(iv) 58 John Street, Stanley, consisting of 250 square metres of land;

(v) land to the east of Harbour View Knott, Eliza Cove Road, Stanley consisting of 295 square metres of land; and

(vi) north part of garden at 1 Felton Court, Stanley, comprising of 343 square metres.

Plan

Given 2nd June 2016

Colin Roberts C.V.O.,
Governor.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(not part of the direction)

The Governor of the Falkland Islands (being the appropriate planning authority within the meaning of Paragraph 4 of the General Development Order) acting on the recommendation of the Planning and Building Committee is satisfied that it is expedient that development of the descriptions set out in the Schedule to this Direction should not be carried out in the land in Stanley shown edged black on the attached plan unless planning permission is granted on an application made under the Planning Ordinance 1991.

The reason for this is to align the General Development Order with the Falkland Islands Development Plan (adopted August 2015) and to require residents of prescribed areas of Stanley to require planning permission before commencing ‘in fill’ developments.

It being impracticable to effect individual service on each affected owner and occupier the Planning Officer will publish this Direction on the Environmental Planning Department’s website and place a copy in the department for free public inspection during all reasonable hours.

FISHERIES

Fishery Products (Designations) (Amendment) Order 2016

S. R. & O. No. 12 of 2016

Made: 2 June 2016

Published: 24 June 2016

Coming into force: on publication

I make this order under section 35 of the Fishery Products Ordinance (No 21 of 2006) on the advice of Executive Council.

PART 1
INTRODUCTION

1. Title

This order is the Fishery Products (Designations) (Amendment) Order 2016.

2. Commencement

This order comes into force on publication in the Gazette.

3. Fishery Products (Designations) Order amended

The Fishery Products (Designations) Order 2014 (SR&O No 10 of 2014) is amended by adding the following new article after article 5 and the corresponding Schedule —

“6. Designation as processing plant

The establishment listed in Schedule 4 is designated as a processing plant.

PROCESSING PLANT

Establishment name	Approval number	(article 6)
Falkland Islands Fish Company Limited	FK 02”

Made 2nd June 2016

Colin Roberts C.V.O.,
Governor.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(not part of the regulations)

Section 35 of the Fishery Products Ordinance (No 21 of 2006) allows the Governor to designate vessels, establishments and installations of prescribed descriptions. Seven defined categories have been prescribed by the Fishery Products (Designation of Vessels, Establishments and Installations) Regulations (SR&O No. 9 of 2014):

- cold stores
- factory vessels
- fresh fishery products plant;
- freezer vessel;
- mechanically separated fishery products plant;
- processing plant;
- re-wrapping establishment

Based on this the Fishery Products (Designations) Order 2014 designates factory vessels and a cold store.

This order amends the 2014 Order to add to that list a processing plant.

It designates, under Schedule 4, the Falkland Islands Fish Company Limited as a processing plant.

COURTS AND LEGAL SERVICES

Administration of Justice (Payments to Jurors and Witnesses) Rules 2016 (Correction) Order 2016

S. R. & O. No: 13 of 2016

Made:10 June 2016

Published:24 June 2016

Coming into force: see article 2

IN EXERCISE of my powers under section 93 of the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance (Title 67.2) I make the following order —

1. Title

This order is the Administration of Justice (Payments to Jurors and Witnesses) Rules 2016 (Correction) Order 2016.

2. Commencement

This order is deemed to have come into force on 29 April 2016.

3. Correction of Administration of Justice (Payments to Jurors and Witnesses) Rules 2016

The Administration of Justice (Payments to Jurors and Witnesses) Rules 2016 (SR&O No 10 of 2016) is amended —

(a) in rule 3 —

(i) in the definition of “appropriate officer” by replacing it with the following definition—

““appropriate officer” means the Attorney General, or any member of the Attorney General’s or Court Service’s staff as may be designated by the Attorney General for any of the purposes of these rules;”

(ii) in the definition of “service of the Crown” by inserting the word “means” after the words ““service of the Crown””;

(b) in rule 4(1)(c) by inserting the word “who” after the words “the Crown”; and

(c) in rule 11(c) by deleting the words “such an institution” and replacing with the words “a prison”.

Made 10th June 2016

C. P. Judge M.B.E.,
Attorney General.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(not forming part of the order)

This order corrects a typographical error.

TAXES (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE 2016

(No: 6 of 2016)

(assented to: 16 June 2016)
(commencement: in accordance with section 2)
(published: 24 June 2016)

AN ORDINANCE

To amend the Taxes Ordinance (No. 14 of 1997) to provide for various tax reliefs for businesses in Camp.

ENACTED by the Legislature of the Falkland Islands —

1. Title

This Ordinance is the Taxes (Amendment) Ordinance 2016.

2. Commencement

This Ordinance is deemed to have come into force on 1 January 2016.

3. Amendment of Taxes Ordinance

This Ordinance amends the Taxes Ordinance (No. 14 of 1997).

4. Section 2 amended — Interpretation

Section 2 is amended by inserting the following definition in its correct alphabetical order —

““Camp” means any area that is more than 10km from the Christ Church Cathedral excluding—

- (i) the Mount Pleasant Complex;
- (ii) the Camber (Port William) site,

but includes any agricultural enterprises located within the 10km radius from the Christ Church Cathedral where livestock farming is the primary activity, and the enterprise has an annual turnover exceeding £10,000 or stock numbers exceeding 2,000 Dry Sheep Equivalent;”;

5. Section 23 amended — the charge to corporation tax and exclusion of income tax

Section 23 is amended by adding the following new subsections after subsection (5) —

“(6) Subject to subsection (7) the provisions of this Ordinance relating to the charge of corporation tax shall not apply to income of the new business activity of a company resident in Camp where that company —

- (a) operates a business that is new in Camp; or
- (b) operates a business that is new to the Falkland Islands.

(7) Corporation tax is not chargeable to a company on the new business activity under subsection (6) for a period of —

- (a) three years from the date of operation by that company of a business that is new in Camp; and
- (b) six years from the date of operation by that company of a business that is new in the Falkland Islands.

(8) For purposes of subsection (6) —

- (a) a company operates a business that is “new in Camp” if the company —
 - (i) operates or undertakes any activity which is not currently undertaken in Camp; or
 - (ii) offers any services which are not currently offered in Camp; and
- (b) a company operates a business that is “new in the Falkland Islands” if the company—
 - (i) operates or undertakes any activity which is not currently undertaken in the Falkland Islands; or
 - (ii) offers any services which are not currently offered in the Falkland Islands.”.

6. Section 28 amended — Corporation tax rates

Section 28 is amended as follows —

(a) by deleting subsection (3) and replacing it with the following —

“(3) In subsection (1)(a) above the reference to a company’s chargeable income for any period is a reference to the amount of that income less the amount of —

- (a) any ring fence income of the company for that period;
- (b) any franked investment income of the company for that period; or
- (c) any applicable new employment income or investment income for renewable resources due to a company in Camp for that period.”; and

(b) by inserting the following new subsection immediately after subsection (3) —

“(3A) For purposes of subsection (3)(c) a company in Camp is eligible for a tax credit for—

- (a) the creation of any new employment in Camp at the amount set out under subsection (3B); or
- (b) any investments the company makes in acquiring renewable energy technology or any of its system components in Camp at an annual rate of 150 per cent for up to £20,000 of the total cost of that renewable energy technology or its system components.

(3B) The tax credit referred to under subsection (3A)(a) for any new employment income is £3000 in each year and it applies —

- (a) for three years from the date the full-time employment is created provided the employment is for more than 12 months; or
- (b) on a pro-rated basis if the full-time employment is for 6 to 12 months.

(3C) The full-time employment must —

- (a) be new (being a net additional job created but excluding any change in name of an existing role);
- (b) be valid for a period of at least six months;
- (c) provide as a minimum for a 40 hours work week;
- (d) require that a minimum of 75 per cent working hours be carried out in Camp; and
- (e) be carried out by a person resident in Camp; and

(3D) “Renewable energy technology” has the same meaning given under section 106(4).”

7. Section 106 amended — Interpretation for purposes of Chapter II

Section 106(4) is amended as follows —

(a) in the definition of “building” by inserting the words “or farmhouses” immediately after the word “land”;

(b) in the definition of “expenditure” by adding after paragraph (b), the following new paragraph—

“(c) any renewable energy technology including its system components.”; and

(c) inserting the following definitions in their correct alphabetical order —

““farmhouse” means the principal residence of the farm owner, manager or any person in control of the operation of the farm (that is used for residential purposes);

“renewable energy technology” means any technology that generates electricity or heat directly from natural resources or through the use of plant material that can be naturally replenished;”

8. Section 116 amended — Initial allowances and writing-down allowances for capital expenditure

Section 116 is amended as follows —

(a) in subsection (1) by adding the following new paragraphs immediately after paragraph (e)—

“(f) any renewable energy technology (including its system components).”.

(b) by inserting immediately after subsection (1A), the following new subsection —

“(1B) The disposal value of any renewable energy technology or any of its system components must be determined in accordance with section 113.”

(c) by deleting subsection (6A) and replacing it with the following —

“(6A) In the case of —

(a) machinery in Camp, the writing-down allowance is 60 per cent; and

(b) plant, machinery (other than machinery in Camp) or vehicle (including aircraft), writing-down allowances must be made under section 117.”.

(d) by deleting subsection (9) and replacing it with the following —

“(9) Unless subsection (10) applies —

(a) the writing-down allowance for a building (other than a building in Camp) is 10 per cent of the expenditure incurred in acquiring the building; and

(b) the writing-down allowance for a building in Camp (other than farmhouses) is 25 per cent of the expenditure incurred in acquiring the building.”

for

AN ORDINANCE

To amend the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance (No. 14 of 2010) to provide for a new definition for ‘designated abattoirs’ and to revoke the Sand Bay Abattoir (Designation) Order; and for connected purposes.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Falkland Islands —

PART 1 INTRODUCTION

1. Title

This Ordinance is the Livestock and Meat Products (Amendment) Ordinance 2016.

2. Commencement

This Ordinance comes into force on publication in the Gazette.

PART 2 AMENDMENT OF LIVESTOCK AND MEAT PRODUCTS ORDINANCE

3. Amendment of Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance

This Part amends the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance (No. 14 of 2010).

4. Section 3 amended – Interpretation

Section 3(3) is amended by omitting the definition of “designated abattoir” and replacing it with the following —

““designated abattoir” means an abattoir designated by Notice for the purpose of producing and processing meat for placing on the market for human consumption and the Notice must specify the meat which the designated abattoir produces for placing on the market for human consumption;”.

REVOCATION OF SAND BAY ABATTOIR (DESIGNATION) ORDER

5. Revocation of Sand Bay Abattoir (Designation) Order

The Sand Bay Abattoir (Designation) Order (S.R. & O. No. 27 of 2001) is revoked.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill amends the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance and revokes the Sand Bay Abattoir (Designation) Order.

Part 1 provides for introductory matters.

Part 2 amends the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance.

Clause 4 amends section 3(3) by replacing the definition of ‘designated abattoir’ to expand the definition to include details which must be included in the designation Notice

Part 3 revokes the Sand Bay Abattoir (Designation) Order (S.R. & O. No. 27 of 2001). Section 3 of the Abattoirs Ordinance provided for the designation of abattoirs by Order. The Governor made an Order to designate the Sand Bay Abattoir as a designated abattoir.

The Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance (LMPO) also provides for the designation of abattoirs by Notice. Since this is the legislation that deals with production of meat for human consumption and in particular for the export of meat to the EU and has specific requirements in regulations dealing with this the designation of Sand Bay Abattoir must be done under the LMPO.

In 2015 the LMPO repealed the Abattoirs Ordinance and made a specific provision saving any subsidiary legislation made under the Abattoirs Ordinance. Since all the necessary regulations required under the LMPO have been done there is no longer any need to save the Sand Bay Abattoir (Designation) Order and therefore clause 5 provides for its revocation.

A Notice to designate the Sand Bay Abattoir will be made under the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance which will be published at the same time with this amendment when it comes into force.

for

AN ORDINANCE

To amend the Committees (Public Access) Ordinance (No. 10 of 2012) to narrow down and specify committees of Executive Council to which rights of access to meetings and documents do not apply.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Falkland Islands —

1. Title

This Ordinance is the Committees (Public Access) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016.

2. Commencement

This Ordinance comes into force on publication.

3. Schedule 1 amended — Committees to which the rights of access to meetings and documents do not apply

Schedule 1 to the Committees (Public Access) Ordinance is amended by omitting paragraph (b) and replacing it as follows —

“(b) committees or sub-committees of Executive Council exclusively made up of some members of Executive Council to discharge an Executive Council function in accordance with section 57(3) of the Constitution;”.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill amends the Committees (Public Access) Ordinance (No. 10 of 2012) to provide that there are no rights of access to meetings and documents of a committee or sub-committee of Executive Council which is exclusively made up of some of the members of Executive Council specifically to discharge Executive Council functions under section 57(3) of the Constitution.

The current paragraph (b) of Schedule 1 to the Committees (Public Access) Ordinance provides that all committees of Executive Council are committees to which the rights of access to meetings and documents do not apply.

Coming into force: on publication

I make this order under section 9(1) of the Committees (Public Access) Ordinance (No. 10 of 2012) —

- (a) after consulting with the bodies to be designated as public bodies, as required by section 9(3); and
- (b) on the advice of the Executive Council.

1. Title

This order is the Committees (Public Access) (Designation as Public Bodies) Order 2016.

2. Commencement

This order comes into force on publication in the Gazette.

3. Designation as public bodies

The following statutory corporations are designated as public bodies for purposes of the Committees (Public Access) Ordinance —

- (a) Falkland Islands Tourist Board; and
- (b) Falklands Landholdings Corporation.

Made 18th July 2016

June Sandra Tyler-Haywood,
Acting Governor.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(not part of the order)

Section 9(1) of the Committees (Public Access) Ordinance (No. 10 of 2012) gives the Governor the power to designate statutory corporations as public bodies for purposes of the Ordinance.

The Ordinance gives members of the public rights of access to the meetings and documents of certain committees. These include boards or managing committees of public bodies.

This order designates the Falkland Islands Tourist Board and the Falklands Landholdings Corporation Ordinance as public bodies for purposes of the Ordinance. This means that members of the public have rights of access to meetings and documents of their boards or managing committees.

CIVIL AVIATION

Civil Aviation (Investigations of Air Accidents and Incidents) Regulations 2016

S. R. & O. No. 19 of 2016

Made: 21 July 2016

Published: 27 July 2016

Coming into force: on publication

IN EXERCISE of the powers conferred by section 75 of the Civil Aviation Act 1982 as extended to the Falkland Islands by Article 4 of the Civil Aviation Act 1982 (Overseas Territories) Order 2001 and in accordance with Schedule 1 to that Order I make the following Regulations —

1. Citation and commencement

These Regulations may be cited as the Civil Aviation (Investigation of Air Accidents and Incidents) Regulations 2016 and come into force on publication in the Gazette.

2. Interpretation

(1) In these Regulations, unless the context otherwise requires —

“accident” means an occurrence associated with the operation of an aircraft which, in the case of a manned aircraft takes place between the time a person boards the aircraft with the intention of flight until such time as all such persons have disembarked, or in the case of an unmanned aircraft takes place between the time the aircraft is ready to move with the purpose of flight until such time as it comes to rest at the end of the flight and the primary propulsion system is shut down, in which —

(a) a person is fatally or seriously injured as a result of being in the aircraft, or in direct contact with any part of the aircraft including parts which have become detached from the aircraft, or direct exposure to jet blast, except when the injuries are from natural causes, self-inflicted or were inflicted by other persons, or when the injuries are to stowaways hiding outside the areas normally available to the passengers and crew; or

(b) the aircraft sustains damage or structural failure which —

(i) adversely affects the structural strength, performance or flight characteristics of the aircraft; and

(ii) would normally require major repair or replacement of the affected component, except for engine failure or damage when damage is limited to a single engine (including its cowlings or accessories), to propellers, wing tips, antennas, probes, tyres, brakes, wheels, fairings, panels, landing gear doors, windscreens, the aircraft skin (such as small dents or puncture holes) or for minor damages to main rotor blades, tail rotor blades, landing gear, and those resulting from hail or bird strike (including holes in the radome); or

(c) the aircraft is missing or is completely inaccessible;

“accredited representative” means a person designated by a State, on the basis of his or her qualifications, for the purpose of participating in an investigation conducted by another State;

“adviser” means a person appointed by a State, on the basis of his or her qualifications, for the purpose of assisting its accredited representative in an investigation;

“aerodrome authority” means, in relation to an aerodrome, the person by whom the aerodrome is managed;

“aircraft” means any machine that can derive support in the atmosphere from the reactions of the air other than the reactions of the air against the earth's surface;

“cause” means an act, omission, condition or circumstance which if eliminated or avoided would have prevented the occurrence or would have mitigated the resulting injuries or damage;

“contributing factors” means actions, omissions, events, conditions, or a combination thereof, which, if eliminated, avoided or absent, would have reduced the probability of the accident or incident occurring, or mitigated the severity of the consequences of the accident or incident;

“crew” includes every person employed or engaged by the operator in an aircraft in flight in relation to the operation of the aircraft including, where the operator and the pilot in command are the same person, the pilot in command;

“expert” means a person appointed by a State which has a special interest in an accident by virtue of fatalities or serious injuries to its citizens;

“fatal injury” means an injury which is sustained by a person in an accident and which results in his or her death within 30 days of the date of the accident;

“flight recorder” means any type of recorder installed in an aircraft for the purpose of complementing accident or incident investigation including a flight data recorder, cockpit voice recorder and image recorder;

“incident” means an occurrence, other than an accident, associated with the operation of an aircraft which affects or could affect the safety of operation;

“investigation” means a process conducted by a Safety Investigation Authority for the purpose of accident prevention which includes the gathering and analysis of information, the drawing of conclusions, including the determination of causes and/or contributing factors and, when appropriate, the making of safety recommendations;

“Investigator” means a person appointed as an Air Accident Investigator under regulation 8;

“Investigator-in-Charge” means a person charged, on the basis of his or her qualifications, with responsibility for the organisation, conduct and control of an investigation conducted pursuant to these Regulations;

“maximum mass” means certificated maximum take-off mass of an aircraft;

“operator” means a person, organisation or enterprise engaged in, or offering to engage in the operation of an aircraft, whether for valuable consideration or otherwise ;

“owner” means, where an aircraft is registered, the registered owner;

“pilot in command” means the pilot designated by the operator as being in command of an aircraft and charged with the safe conduct of its flight or, if no such designation has been made, the person who for the time being is in charge of piloting the aircraft without being under the direction of any other pilot in the aircraft;

“preliminary report” means the communication used for the prompt dissemination of data obtained during the early stages of the investigation;

“safety recommendation” means a proposal of an accident investigation authority, based on information derived from an investigation, made with the intention of preventing accidents or incidents and which in no case has the purpose of creating a presumption of blame or liability for an accident or incident;

“serious incident” means an incident involving circumstances indicating that there was a high probability of an accident and is associated with the operation of an aircraft; and

“serious injury” means an injury which is sustained by a person in an accident and which —

- (a) requires hospitalisation for more than 48 hours, commencing within seven days from the date the injury was received;
- (b) results in a fracture of a bone, excluding simple fractures of fingers, toes, or nose;
- (c) involves lacerations which cause severe haemorrhage, nerve, muscle or tendon damage;
- (d) involves injury to an internal organ;

(e) involves second or third degree burns, or any burns affecting more than 5 per cent of the body surface; or

(f) involves verified exposure to infectious substances or harmful radiation; and references to “seriously injured” in these Regulations is to be construed accordingly;

“State of Design” means the State having jurisdiction over the organisation responsible for the type design of an aircraft or aircraft engine;

“State of Manufacture” means the State having jurisdiction over the organisation responsible for the final assembly of an aircraft, aircraft engine, or major components of the aircraft;

“State of Occurrence” means the State in the territory of which an accident or serious incident occurs;

“State of the Operator” means the State in which the operator’s principal place of business is located or, if there is no such place of business, the operator’s permanent residence; and

“State of Registry” means the State on whose register an aircraft is entered.

(2) A notice or other document required or authorised by a provision of these Regulations to be served on or given to a person may be served or given by —

(a) delivery to the person;

(b) leaving it at the person's usual or last-known residence or place of business, whether in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere;

(c) sending it to the person at the address referred to in paragraph (b) by post, telex, facsimile transmission, or other similar means which produce a document containing a text of the communication, where the document will be treated as served when it is received.

3. Application

These Regulations apply only to accidents and incidents involving aircraft engaged in civil aviation.

4. Purpose of the investigation of accidents and incidents

The sole objective of the investigation of an accident or incident under these Regulations is the prevention of accidents and incidents and it is not the purpose of this activity to apportion blame or liability.

5. Duty to furnish information relating to accidents and serious incidents

(1) Where an accident or a serious incident occurs the relevant person and, in case of an accident or a serious incident occurring on or adjacent to an aerodrome, the aerodrome authority must —

(a) give notice of the accident or incident to the Governor, the Chief Investigator and to the designated authority for civil aviation regulation in the Falkland Islands by the quickest means of communication available; and

(b) where an accident occurs in or over the Falkland Islands, notify forthwith the local police authorities of the accident and of the place where it occurred.

(2) The notice to the Chief Investigator referred to in paragraph (1) must contain, to the extent it is available —

(a) in the case of an accident, the identifying abbreviation 'ACCID' or, in the case of a serious incident 'INCID';

(b) the manufacturer, model, nationality and registration marks, and serial number of the aircraft;

(c) the name of the owner, operator and hirer or lessee, if any, of the aircraft;

(d) the qualifications of the pilot in command, and the nationality of the crew and passengers;

(e) the date and time (local time or UTC) of the accident or serious incident;

(f) the last point of departure and the point of intended landing of the aircraft;

(g) the position of the aircraft with reference to some easily defined geographical point and latitude and longitude;

(h) the number of —

(i) crew on board the aircraft at the time of the accident or serious incident and, in the case of an accident, the number of crew killed or seriously injured as a result of the accident;

(ii) passengers on board the aircraft at the time of the accident or serious incident and, in the case of an accident, the number of passengers killed or seriously injured as a result of the accident; and

(iii) in the case of an accident, other persons killed or seriously injured as a result of the accident;

(i) a description of the accident or serious incident and the extent of the damage to the aircraft as far as is known as well as an indication of access difficulties or special requirements to reach the site; and

(j) the presence and description of any dangerous goods on board the aircraft.

(3) The Chief Investigator must forward a notification of an accident or serious incident in the ICAO ADREP format with the minimum of delay and by the most suitable and quickest means available to —

(a) the State of Registry;

(b) the State of the Operator;

(c) the State of Design;

(d) the State of Manufacture; and

(e) ICAO, when the aircraft involved is of a maximum mass of over 2,250kg or is a turbo-jet powered aircraft.

(4) The owner, operator, pilot in command or hirer of the aircraft must, if so required by notice in writing given to him or her by the Chief Investigator, send to the Chief Investigator such information as is in his or her possession or control, in such form and at such times as may be specified in the notice.

(5) Upon receipt of notification of an accident or a serious incident occurring outside the Falkland Islands involving an aircraft registered in the Falkland Islands or of which the Falkland Islands is the State of the operator, the operator of the aircraft must, as soon as possible, provide the authorities of the State conducting the investigation with any relevant information available regarding the aircraft and flight crew involved in the accident or serious incident, and a copy of the passenger manifest and any dangerous cargo.

(6) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (6), the Chief Investigator must inform the authorities of the State conducting the investigation whether the Falkland Islands intends to appoint an accredited representative.

(7) In this regulation “relevant person” means —

(a) in the case of an accident or serious incident occurring in or over the Falkland Islands, or occurring elsewhere to an aircraft registered in the Falkland Islands, the pilot in command of the aircraft involved at the time of the accident or serious incident or, if the pilot in command is killed or incapacitated, the operator of the aircraft; and

(b) in the case of a serious incident occurring in or over a country or territory other than a Contracting State to an aircraft registered elsewhere than in the Falkland Islands but operated by an undertaking established in the Falkland Islands, the undertaking.

6. Preliminary report on accident or incident to be published

Subject to regulations 11(2) and 18, the Chief Investigator may at any time publish, or cause to be published, a preliminary report or information relating to an accident or serious incident.

7. Protection and removal of damaged aircraft

(1) Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3) and regulation 9, where an accident or serious incident occurs in or over the Falkland Islands —

(a) no person other than an authorised person must have access to the aircraft involved in the accident or serious incident;

(b) neither the aircraft nor its contents must except under the authority of the Chief Investigator or the Investigator-in-Charge, be removed or otherwise interfered with;

(c) the Chief Investigator, the Investigator-in-Charge, or persons authorised on his or her behalf, must take all reasonable measures to protect the evidence and to maintain safe custody of the aircraft and its contents for such a period as may be necessary for the purposes of an investigation; and

(d) the Chief Investigator, the Investigator-in-Charge or person authorised on his or her behalf, must take all necessary steps to ensure that the aircraft, its contents, and any other evidence remain undisturbed pending inspection by an accredited representative, pursuant to a request from the State of Registry, State of Design, State of Manufacture or State of the Operator, so far as this is reasonably practicable and compatible with the proper conduct of the investigation and provided that it does not result in undue delay in returning the aircraft to service where this is practicable.

(2) Notwithstanding paragraph (1) —

(a) the aircraft may be accessed, moved or interfered with to the extent necessary to—

(i) extricate persons, animals, mail and valuables;

(ii) prevent destruction by fire or other causes;

(iii) eliminate any danger or obstruction to air navigation, to other transport or to the public; or

(iv) remove other property from the aircraft under the supervision of an Investigator or with the agreement of an Investigator or a police officer; and

(b) where an aircraft is in water, the aircraft or any of its contents may be removed to such extent as may be necessary for bringing the aircraft or the contents to a place of safety.

(3) The Chief Investigator or the Investigator-in-Charge must release custody of the aircraft, its contents or any parts of the aircraft as soon as they are no longer required in the investigation, to any person or persons duly designated by the State of Registry or the State of the Operator, as applicable.

(4) In this regulation “authorised person” means —

- (a) a person authorised by the Governor either generally or specially to have access to an aircraft involved in an accident or serious incident;
- (b) the Chief Investigator, the Investigator-in-Charge or a person authorised by him;
- (c) a police officer; or
- (d) an officer of the Customs and Excise Department.

8. Air Accident Investigators

(1) For the purpose of carrying out investigations into accidents and incidents to which these Regulations apply, the Governor must appoint a Chief Investigator who will appoint persons as air accident investigators, one of whom must be appointed as the Investigator in Charge.

(2) Subject to paragraphs (4) and (5), the Chief Investigator must carry out, or cause an Investigator to carry out, an investigation into —

(a) accidents and serious incidents which occur in or over the Falkland Islands;

(b) accidents and serious incidents which occur to aircraft registered in the Falkland Islands in or over a country or territory which is not a Contracting State or where the location of the accident or serious incident cannot definitely be established as being in the territory of any State;

(c) accidents and serious incidents which occur in or over a country or territory which is not a Contracting State to aircraft which are registered elsewhere than in the Falkland Islands but which are operated by an undertaking established in the Falkland Islands when such an investigation is not carried out by another State.

(3) Subject to paragraphs (4) and (5), the Chief Investigator may, where he expects to draw air safety lessons from it, carry out, or cause an Investigator to carry out, an investigation into an incident, other than a serious incident, which occurs—

(a) in or over the Falkland Islands; or

(b) otherwise than in or over the Falkland Islands to an aircraft registered in the Falkland Islands.

(4) The Chief Investigator may delegate the whole or any part of an investigation into an accident or incident to another State or a regional accident investigation organisation by mutual arrangement and consent.

(5) Where the Chief Investigator delegates the task of carrying out an investigation pursuant to paragraph (4), the Chief Investigator must to the extent possible facilitate inquiries by the Investigator-in-Charge appointed by the relevant State.

(6) Without prejudice to the power of an Investigator to seek such advice or assistance as the Investigator thinks fit in making an investigation, the Chief Investigator may appoint suitably qualified persons to assist an Investigator in a particular investigation.

(7) The Chief Investigator may invite the aviation authorities and suitably qualified persons or organisations from the Falkland Islands and other Contracting States to assist in the conduct of the investigation, so far as this is compatible with the proper conduct of the investigation.

(8) The Chief Investigator must designate a person as the Investigator-in-Charge of an investigation except where the investigation has been delegated under paragraph (4).

(9) If, in the course of an investigation, it becomes known, or it is suspected, that an act of unlawful interference to the aircraft was involved in the cause of the accident or serious incident the Investigator-in-Charge must immediately initiate action to ensure that the aviation security authorities of the Falkland Islands are informed.

9. Powers and duties of Investigators

(1) An Investigator is authorised, for the purpose of enabling him or her to carry out an investigation into an accident or incident in the most efficient way and within the shortest time, in co-operation with the authorities responsible for any judicial inquiry where appropriate, to—

(a) have unrestricted and unhampered access to and control over the site of the accident or incident, the aircraft, its contents or its wreckage, and all relevant material or evidence including the protection of the aircraft, debris or components for examination or analysis purposes;

(b) ensure an immediate listing of evidence and controlled removal of debris, or components, for examination or analysis purposes;

(c) have immediate access to and use of the contents of the flight recorders and any other recordings;

(d) arrange for the read out of the flight recorders without delay;

(e) arrange for an expeditious autopsy or medical examination of the crew, passengers and other persons and have immediate access to the results of examination of the bodies of victims or of tests made on samples taken from the bodies of victims;

(f) have immediate access to the results of examinations of the people involved in the operation of the aircraft or of tests made on samples taken from such people;

(g) call and examine witnesses and to require them to produce information or evidence relevant to the investigation; and

(h) have free access to any relevant information or records held by the owner, the operator or the manufacturer of the aircraft, by the authorities responsible for civil aviation, air navigation services or airport operations.

(2) For the purposes of paragraph (1), an Investigator has power —

(a) by summons under the Investigator's hand, to call before him or her and examine all persons as the Investigator thinks fit, require persons to answer questions or furnish information or produce books, papers, documents and articles which the Investigator may consider relevant, and to retain any such books, papers, documents and articles until the completion of the investigation;

(b) to take statements from all persons as the Investigator thinks fit and to require any person to make and sign a declaration of the truth of the statement made by him or her;

(c) on production of the Investigator's credentials, where these are required, to enter and inspect any place, building or aircraft the entry or inspection whereof appears to the Investigator to be requisite for the purposes of the investigation;

(d) on production of the Investigator's credentials, where these are required, to remove, test, take measures for the preservation of or otherwise deal with any aircraft, other than an aircraft involved in the accident or incident, where it appears to the investigating Investigator requisite for the purposes of the investigation; and

(e) to take such measures for the preservation of evidence as the Investigator considers appropriate.

(3) A person summoned by an Investigator under paragraph (2)(a) is allowed such expenses as the Governor may determine.

10. Form and conduct of investigations

The extent of investigations and the procedure to be followed in carrying out investigations required or authorised under these Regulations must be—

(a) wholly independent of, and separate from, any judicial or administrative proceedings to apportion blame or liability;

(b) coordinated with any investigation conducted by the judicial authorities;

(c) determined by the Chief Investigator taking account of the purpose described in regulation 4 and the lessons the Chief Investigator expects to draw from the accident or incident for the improvement of aviation safety.

11. Investigation report

(1) On completion of an investigation into an accident or incident, the Investigator-in-Charge must prepare a Final Report of the investigation in a form, prescribed in the Appendix to Annex 13 of the Convention, appropriate to the type and seriousness of the accident or incident.

(2) On completion of an investigation, the Chief Investigator must send a copy of the draft final report to the following States, inviting their significant and substantiated comments on the report as soon as possible —

- (a) the State of Registry;
- (b) the State of the Operator;
- (c) the State of Design;
- (d) the State of Manufacture; and
- (e) any other State that participated in the investigation, and must take account of such comments received within 60 days on technical aspects of the report and either amend the report to include the substance of the comments or, at the request of the State that provided the comments, append the comments upon which no agreement could be reached, to the Final Report.

(3) Where it appears to the Investigator-in-Charge that the investigation of an accident or incident —

- (a) involving a collision between a civil aircraft and a military aircraft, or
- (b) occurring while a civil aircraft was on, or in the course of taking off from or landing on, an aerodrome controlled by a naval, military or air force or by the naval, military or air forces of any country, has been completed, except for the investigation of matters affecting the discipline or internal administration of naval, military or air forces which are more appropriate for the investigation by some other person or body —

- (i) the investigation may be treated for the purpose of paragraph (1) as if it had been completed without such matters being investigated under these regulations; and
- (ii) where sub-paragraph (i) applies, the report of the investigation into the accident or incident must state the matters to which the investigation, by reason of this paragraph, has not extended.

(4) The report of an investigation into an accident or incident must state the sole objective of the investigation as described in regulation 4 and, where appropriate, contain a list of findings, causes, causal factors or contributing factors and safety recommendations.

(5) The Chief Investigator must submit a copy of every report prepared pursuant to paragraph (1) to the Governor without delay.

12. Notice of investigation report and representations

(1) Where, in the Chief Investigator's opinion, publication of a report required by regulation 13 to be published is likely to adversely affect the reputation of a person, the Chief Investigator must not submit the Final Report to the Governor for publication until the Chief Investigator has—

(a) where it appears to him or her practicable to do so, served a notice on the person or, where the person is deceased, on the person who appears to him or her to best represent the interest of the deceased at the time he or she proposes to serve the notice; and

(b) made such changes to the report as he or she thinks fit following consideration of representations made to him or her in accordance with paragraph (3) by or on behalf of the person served with the notice under sub-paragraph (a).

(2) The notice referred to in paragraph (1)(a) must include particulars of any proposed analysis of facts and conclusions as to the cause or causes of the accident or incident which may affect the person on whom or in respect of whom the notice is served.

(3) Subject to paragraph (5), representations made pursuant to paragraph (1)(b) must be in writing and served on the Chief Investigator within 28 days of service of the notice or such longer period as the Chief Investigator may allow.

(4) A person must not disclose or permit to be disclosed any information contained in a notice or report served on such person pursuant to paragraphs (1) or (4) to any other person without the prior consent in writing of the Chief Investigator.

(5) The Chief Investigator may, notwithstanding that the period has expired, extend the period of 28 days referred to in paragraph (3).

(6) A person who contravenes or fails to comply with paragraph (4) commits an offence.

(7) A person must not circulate, publish or give access to a draft report or any part of a report, or any documents obtained during an investigation of an accident or incident conducted by another State without the consent of that State, unless the reports or documents have been released by that State.

13. Publication of reports

The Governor must cause the Final Report of an investigation into an accident or incident to be made public —

(a) in the shortest time possible;

(b) where possible, within 12 months of the date of the accident or incident; and

(c) in such a manner as the Governor thinks fit.

14. Safety recommendations

(1) The Chief Investigator must cause the report referred to in regulation 13, and the safety recommendations contained in it, to be communicated to ICAO and to all of the relevant undertakings or aviation authorities concerned in the States referred to in regulation 11(2).

(2) A safety recommendation must in no case create a presumption of blame or liability for an accident or incident.

(3) Without prejudice to the investigation or publication of the Final Report, at any stage of an investigation of an accident or incident, the Chief Investigator may recommend in a dated transmittal communication to the appropriate authorities, including those in other States and where appropriate ICAO, any preventative action that he considers necessary to be taken promptly to enhance aviation safety.

(4) An undertaking or authority to which a safety recommendation is communicated pursuant to paragraph (1) must, without delay —

(a) consider the safety recommendation and, where it considers it to be appropriate, act upon it; and

(i) full details of the measures, if any, it has taken or proposes to take to implement the recommendation without delay and, where it proposes to implement measures, the timetable for securing that implementation; or

(ii) a full explanation as to why the recommendation is not to be the subject of measures to be taken to implement it; and

(c) give written notice to the Chief Investigator where at any time information provided to him or her pursuant to sub-paragraph (b)(i), concerning the measures it proposes to take or the timetable for securing their implementation, is rendered inaccurate by any change of circumstances.

15. Reopening of investigation

(1) If, after an investigation has been closed, new and significant evidence becomes available, the Chief Investigator may cause the investigation of an accident or incident to be reopened.

(2) An investigation that is reopened must be subject to and conducted in accordance with these Regulations.

16. Accredited representatives, advisers and experts

(1) Where an investigation of an accident or serious incident is being carried out by an Investigator pursuant to regulation 8, accredited representatives may be appointed by—

(a) the State of Registry;

(b) the State of Design;

(c) the State of Manufacture;

(d) the State of the Operator; and

(e) a Contracting State which has, on request, furnished information, facilities or experts to the Investigator in connection with the accident or serious incident.

(2) Where an investigation of an accident or serious incident is being carried out by an Investigator pursuant to regulation 8, an 'expert' may be appointed by a State which has a special interest in the accident by virtue of fatalities or serious injuries to its citizens.

(3) Accredited representatives may participate in the investigation and are permitted to —

(a) visit the scene of the accident;

(b) examine the wreckage;

(c) obtain witness information and suggest areas of questioning;

(d) receive copies of all pertinent documents, saving all just exceptions; have full access to all relevant evidence as soon as possible;

(e) participate in read outs of recorded media;

(f) participate in off-scene investigative activities such as component examinations, technical briefings, tests and simulations;

(g) participate in investigation progress meetings, including deliberations related to analysis, findings, causes and safety recommendations;

(h) make submissions in respect of the various elements of the investigation; and

(i) be accompanied by such advisers as may be considered necessary by the authorities of the State by which the accredited representative is appointed.

(4) An 'expert' representative may participate in the investigation and be permitted to —

(a) visit the scene of the accident;

(b) have access to the relevant factual information which is approved for public release by the State conducting the investigation, and information on the progress of the investigation; and

(c) receive a copy of the Final Report;

(d) assist in the identification of victims and in meetings with survivors from their State.

17. Obstruction of investigation

(1) A person must not obstruct or impede an Investigator or any person acting under the authority of the Chief Investigator in the exercise of any powers or duties under these Regulations.

(2) A person must not without reasonable excuse fail, after having had the expenses, if any, to which he or she is entitled under these Regulations tendered to him or her, to comply with any summons of an Investigator holding an investigation.

18. Disclosure of relevant records

In this regulation —

“judicial proceedings” includes any proceedings before a court, tribunal or person having by law power to hear, receive and examine evidence on oath;

“Governor” includes any Investigator or officer appointed by the Governor;

“relevant court” in the case of judicial proceedings or an application for disclosure means the Magistrate’s Court; and

“relevant record” means cockpit voice and flight data recordings and airborne image recordings and any transcripts from such recordings and any other records in the possession, custody or power of the Chief Investigator which includes —

- (a) all statements taken from persons by an Investigator or supplied to an Investigator in the course of his investigation, together with any notes or voice recordings of interviews;
- (b) all communications between persons having been involved in the operation of the aircraft;
- (c) medical or private information regarding persons involved in the accident or incident;
- (d) recordings and transcriptions of recordings from air traffic control units;
- (e) analysis of and opinions expressed about information, including flight recorder information, made in the investigation in relation to the accident or incident; and
- (f) the draft final report, except as mentioned in regulation 11(1).

(2) Subject to paragraphs (3), (4), (5) and (6), no relevant record must be made available by the Chief Investigator or the Governor to any person for purposes other than an accident or incident investigation conducted under these Regulations.

(3) The records listed in paragraph (1) must be included in the Final Report or its appendices only when pertinent to the analysis of the accident or incident and parts of the records not relevant to the analysis must not be disclosed.

(4) The names of persons involved in an accident or incident must not be disclosed to the public by an Investigator.

(5) Nothing in paragraph (2) precludes the Governor or the Chief Investigator from making a relevant record available to any other person where —

(a) in a case where the other person is a party to or otherwise entitled to appear at judicial proceedings, the relevant court has ordered that the relevant record must be made available to that person for the purpose of those proceedings; or

(b) in any other circumstances, the relevant court has ordered that the relevant record must be made available to that person for any other purpose.

(6) Subject to paragraph (2), no order must be made under paragraph (5) unless the relevant court is satisfied that the interests of justice in the circumstances in question outweigh any adverse domestic and international impact which disclosure may have on the investigation into the accident or incident to which the record relates or on any future accident or incident investigation undertaken in the Falkland Islands.

(7) A relevant record or part of the record must not be treated as having been made available contrary to paragraph (2) in any case where that record or part is included in the Final Report or the appendices to the Final Report, of the accident or incident included in a notice served under regulation 12.

(8) The provisions of this regulation apply without prejudice to any rule of law, which authorises or requires the withholding of any relevant record or any part of the record on the ground that the disclosure of it would be injurious to the public interest.

19. Revocation

(1) The Civil Aviation (Investigation of Air Accidents and Incidents) Regulations 1997 (S. R. & O. No. 8 of 1997) are revoked.

(2) Any investigation commenced under the Regulations revoked by paragraph (1), which has not been completed, will continue as if it had been commenced under these Regulations.

Made 21 July 2016

June Sandra Tyler-Haywood,
Acting Governor.

EXPLANATORY NOTE (not part of the regulations)

These Regulations replace the Civil Aviation (Investigation of Air Accidents) Regulations 1997 which were modelled on the UK Civil Aviation (Investigation of Air Accidents and Incidents) Regulations 1996.

SUBSIDIARY LEGISLATION

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

Criminal Justice (Police Codes of Practice) (Amendment) Order 2016

S. R. & O. No. 20 of 2016

Made: 27 July 2016
Published: 27 July 2016
Coming into force: on publication

I make this Order under section 206 of the Criminal Justice Ordinance (Title 24.1) on the advice of Executive Council.

1. Title

This order is the Criminal Justice (Police Codes of Practice) (Amendment) Order 2016.

2. Commencement

This order comes into force on publication in the Gazette.

3. Police Codes of Practice amended — Code of Practice E

The Criminal Justice (Police Codes of Practice) Order 2014 (S.R. & O. No. 6 of 2014) is amended by repealing Code of Practice E and replacing it with the following —

“CODE OF PRACTICE E THE TAPE OR DIGITAL RECORDING OF INTERVIEWS

1 General

1.1 This code of practice must be readily available for consultation by police officers, detained persons and members of the public at every police station.

1.2 The notes for guidance included are not provisions of this code. They form guidance to police officers and others about its application and interpretation.

1.3 Nothing in this code shall be taken as detracting in any way from the requirements of the Code of Practice for the Detention, Treatment and Questioning of Persons by Police Officers (Code C). [See Notes 1A and 1B.]

1.4 In this code:

“digital recording” means a recording made using recording media;

“recorder” means a tape or recording media; and “recording media” means any removable, physical audio recording medium (such as magnetic tape, optical disc or solid state memory) which can be played and copied.

Notes for Guidance

1A. Reserved.

1B. As in Code C, references to responsible officers include those carrying out the functions of a responsible officer.

2 Recording and the sealing of master tapes or digital recordings

2.1 Tape or digital recording of interviews shall be carried out openly to instil confidence in its reliability as an impartial and accurate record of the interview.

[See Note 2A]

2.2 One tape or digital recording, referred to in this code as the master tape or digital recording, will be sealed before it leaves the presence of the suspect. A second tape or digital recording will be used as a working copy. The master tape or digital recording is either one of the two tapes or digital recordings used in a twin deck/drive machine or the only tape or digital recording used in a single deck/drive machine. The working copy is either the second tape or digital recording used in a twin deck/drive machine or a copy of the master tape or digital recording made by a single deck/drive machine.

[See Notes 2B and 2C]

2A. Police Officers will wish to arrange that, as far as possible, tape or digital recording arrangements are unobtrusive. It must be clear to the suspect, however, that there is no opportunity to interfere with the tape or digital recording equipment or the tapes or digital recordings.

2B. The purpose of sealing the master tape or digital recording before it leaves the presence of the suspect is to establish his confidence that the integrity of the tape or digital recording is preserved. Where a single deck machine is used the working copy of the master tape or digital recording must be made in the presence of the suspect and without the master tape or digital recording having left his sight. The working copy shall be used for making further copies where the need arises. The recorder will normally be capable of recording voices and have a time coding or other security device.

2C. Throughout this code any reference to "tapes" shall be construed as "tape", as appropriate, where a single deck machine is used.

3 Reserved

4 The interview

Commencement of interviews

4.1 When the suspect is brought into the interview room the police officer shall without delay, but in the sight of the suspect, load the recorder with previously unused tapes or recording media and set it to record. The tapes or recording media must be unwrapped or otherwise opened in the presence of the suspect.

[See Note 4A.]

4.2 The police officer shall then tell the suspect formally about the tape or digital recording. He shall say:

- a. that the interview is being tape or digitally recorded;
- b. his name and rank and the name and rank of any other police officer present;
- c. the name of the suspect and any other party present (eg a solicitor);
- d. the date, time of commencement and place of the interview; and
- e. that the suspect will be given a notice about what will happen to the tapes or recording media.

[See Note 4B.]

4.3 The police officer shall then caution the suspect in the following terms:

"You do not have to say anything unless you wish to do so, but what you say may be given in evidence."

Minor deviations do not constitute a breach of this requirement provided that the sense of the caution is preserved.

[See Notes 4C and 4D.]

Interviews with the deaf

4.4 If the suspect is deaf or there is doubt about his hearing ability, the police officer shall take a contemporaneous note of the interview in accordance with the requirements of Code C, as well as tape or digitally record it in accordance with the provisions of this code.

[See Notes 4E and 4F.]

Objections and complaints by the suspect

4.5 If the suspect raises objections to the interview being tape or digitally recorded either at the outset or during the interview or during a break in the interview, the police officer shall explain the fact that the interview is being tape or digitally recorded and that the provisions of this code require that the suspect's objections should be recorded on tape or recording media. When any objections have been recorded on tape or recording media or the suspect has refused to have his objections recorded, the police officer may turn off the recorder. In this eventuality he shall say that he is turning off the recorder and give his reasons for doing so and then turn it off. The police officer shall then make a written record of the interview in accordance with section 11 of Code C. If, however, the police officer reasonably considers that he may proceed to put questions to the suspect with the recorder still on, he may do so.

[See Note 4G]

4.6 If in the course of an interview a complaint is made by the person being questioned, or on his behalf, concerning the provisions of this code or of Code C, then the officer shall act in accordance with paragraph 12.8 of Code C.

[See Notes 4H and 4J]

4.7 If the suspect indicates that he wishes to tell the police officer about matters not directly connected with the offence of which he is suspected and that he is unwilling for these matters to be recorded on tape or recording media, he shall be given the opportunity to tell the police officer about these matters after the conclusion of the formal interview.

Changing tapes or digital recordings

4.8 When the recorder indicates that the tape or recording media has only a short time left to run, the police officer shall tell the suspect that the tapes or recording media are coming to an end and round off that part of the interview. If the police officer wishes to continue the interview but does not already have a second set of tapes or recording media, he shall obtain a set. The suspect shall not be left unattended in the interview room. The police officer will remove the tapes or recording media from the recorder and insert the new tapes or recording media which shall be unwrapped or otherwise opened in the suspect's presence. The recorder shall then be set to record on the new tapes or recording media. Care must be taken, particularly when a number of sets of tapes or recording media have been used, to ensure that there is no confusion between the tapes or recording media. This may be done by marking the tapes or recording media with an identification number immediately they are removed from the recorder.

4.9 When a break is to be taken during the course of an interview and the interview room is to be vacated by the suspect, the fact that a break is to be taken, the reason for it and the time shall be recorded on tape or recording media. The tapes or recording media shall then be removed from the recorder and the procedures for the conclusion of an interview set out in paragraph 4.15 below followed.

4.10 When a break is to be short one and both the suspect and a police officer are to remain in the interview room the fact that a break is to be taken, the reasons for it and the time shall be recorded on tape or recording media. The recorder may be turned off; there is, however, no need to remove the tapes or recording media and when the interview is recommenced the tape or recording media recording shall be continued on the same tapes or recording media. The time at which the interview recommences shall be recorded on tape or recording media.

4.11 When there is a break in questioning under caution the interviewing officer must ensure that the person being questioned is aware that he remains under caution. If there is any doubt the caution must be given again in full when the interview resumes.

Failure of recording equipment

4.12 If there is a failure of equipment which can be rectified quickly, for example by inserting new tapes or recording media, the appropriate procedures set out in paragraph 4.8 shall be followed, and when the recording is resumed the officer shall explain what has happened and record the time the interview recommences. If, however, it will not be possible to continue recording on that particular recorder and no replacement recorder or recorder in another interview room is readily available, the interview may continue without being tape or digitally recorded. In such circumstances the procedures in paragraph 3.3 above for seeking the authority of the custody officer will be followed.

[See note 4M.]

Removing tapes or digital recordings from the recorder

4.13 Where tapes or recording media are removed from the recorder in the course of an interview, they shall be retained and the procedures set out in paragraph 4.15 below followed.

Conclusion of interview

4.14 At the conclusion of the interview, the suspect shall be offered the opportunity to clarify anything he has said and to add anything he may wish.

4.15 At the conclusion of the interview, including the taking and reading back of any written statement, the time shall be recorded and the tape recorder or recording media switched off. The master tape or digital recording shall be sealed with a master tape or digital recording label and treated as an exhibit in accordance with the force standing orders. The police officer shall sign the label and ask the suspect and any third party present to sign it also. If the suspect or third party refuses to sign the label, an officer of at least the rank of sergeant, or if one is not available the responsible officer, shall be called in to the interview room and asked to sign it.

4.16 The suspect shall be handed a notice which explains the use which will be made of the tape or digital recording and the arrangements for access to it.

Notes for Guidance

4A. The police officer should attempt to estimate the likely length of the interview and ensure that the appropriate number of unused tapes or recording media and labels with which to seal the master copies are available in the interview room.

4B. It will be helpful for the purpose of voice identification if the officer asks the suspect and any other persons present to identify themselves.

4C. If it appears that a person does not understand what the caution means, the officer who has given it should go on to explain it in his own words.

4D. In case anyone who is given a caution is unclear about its significance, the officer concerned should explain that the caution is given in pursuance of the general principle of English law that a person need not answer any question or provide any information which might tend to incriminate him, and that no adverse inferences from this silence may be drawn at any trial that takes place. The person should not, however, be left with a false impression that non co-operation will have no effect on his immediate treatment as, for example, his refusal to provide his name and address may render him liable to detention.

4E. This provision is intended to give the deaf equivalent rights of first hand access to the full interview record as other suspects.

4F. The provisions of paragraphs 14.1, 14.4 and 14.7 of code C on interpreters for the deaf or for interviews with suspects who have difficulty in understanding English continue to apply. In a tape or digitally recorded interview there is no requirement on the interviewing officer to ensure that the interpreter makes a separate note of interview as prescribed in section 14 of Code C.

4G. The officer should bear in mind that a decision to continue recording against the wishes of the suspect may be the subject of comment in court.

4H. Where the responsible officer is called immediately to deal with the complaint, wherever possible the tape or digital recorder should be left to run until he has entered the interview room and spoken to the person being interviewed. Continuation or termination of the interview should be at the discretion of the interviewing officer pending action by an inspector under paragraph 9.1 of Code C.

4J. Where the complaint is about a matter not connected with this code of practice or Code C, the decision to continue with the interview is at the discretion of the interviewing officer. Where the interviewing officer decides to continue with the interview the person being interviewed shall be told that the complaint will be brought to the attention of the responsible officer at the conclusion of the interview. When the interview is concluded the interviewing officer must, as soon as practicable, inform the responsible officer of the existence and nature of the complaint made.

4K. In considering whether to caution again after a break, the officer should bear in mind that the may have to satisfy a court that the person understood that he was still under caution when the interview resumed.

4L. The officer should bear in mind that it may be necessary to show to the court that nothing occurred during a break in an interview or between interviews which influenced the suspect's recorded evidence. The officer should consider, therefore, after a break in an interview or at the beginning of subsequent interview summarising on tape or recording media the reason for the break and confirming this with the suspect.

4M. If one of the tapes or recording media breaks during the interview it should be sealed as a master tape or digital recording in the presence of the suspect and the interview resumed where it left off. The unbroken tape or digital recording should be copied and the original sealed as a master tape or digital recording in the suspect's presence, if necessary after the interview. If equipment for copying the unbroken tape or digital recording is not readily available, both tapes or digital recording should be sealed in the suspect's presence and the interview begun again. If the tape or digital recording breaks when a single deck/drive machine is being used and the machine is one where a broken tape or digital recording cannot be copied on available equipment, the tape or digital recording should be sealed as a master tape or digital recording in the suspect's presence and the interview begun again.

5 After the interview

5.1 The police officer shall make a note in his notebook of the fact that the interview has taken place and has been recorded on tape or recording media, its time, duration and date and the identification number of the master tape or digital recording.

5.2 Where no proceedings following respect of the person whose interview was recorded the tapes or digital recording must nevertheless be kept securely in accordance with paragraph 6.1 and Note 6.4.

5.3 Where such proceedings do follow the officer shall prepare a written record of the interview which will be signed by the officer. The interview record shall be exhibited to any written statement prepared by the officer.

[See Notes 5A and 5B]

5.4 Where the police officer's evidence of the interview is accepted by the defence the evidence shall refer to the fact that the interview was tape or digitally recorded and may be presented to the court in the form of the interview record. Where the police officer's evidence of the interview is not accepted by the defence the police officer shall refer to the fact that the interview was tape or digitally recorded and shall produce the master tape or digital recording as an exhibit. The officer shall inform the court of any transcription which has been made of which he is aware.

[See Note 5C.]

Notes for Guidance

5A. Prior to preparing the record of the interview, the officer may refresh his memory by listening to the working copy of, the tape or digital recording. The purpose of using the tape or digital recording will be to act as a check on the accuracy of the interview record.

5B. The interview record shall be prepared on the basis that it shall be used first to enable the prosecutor to make informed decisions about the case on the basis of what was said at the interview; secondly, to be exhibited to the officer's witness statement and used pursuant to section 9 the Criminal Justice Act 1967 and section 102 of The Magistrates Courts Act 1980; thirdly, to enable the prosecutor to comply with the rules of advance disclosure; and fourthly, where the record is accepted by the defence, to be used for the conduct of the case by the prosecution, the defence, and the court. The record shall, therefore comprise a balanced account of the interview including points in mitigation and/or defence made by the suspect. Where an admission is made the question as well as the answer containing the admission shall be recorded verbatim in the record. Care should be taken to bring to the attention of the prosecutor, by means of a covering report, any material on the tape or digital recording which might be regarded by a court as prejudicial or inadmissible.

5C. Production of the tape or digital recording as an exhibit will have the effect in court proceedings of producing the content of the whole interview (subject to any decision on editing carried out on the direction of the crown prosecutor).

6 Tape or digital recording security

6.1 The Chief Police Officer shall make arrangements for master tapes or digital recordings to be kept securely and their movements accounted for on the same basis as other material which may be used for evidential purposes, in accordance with force standing orders.

[See Note 6A.]

6.2 A police officer has no authority to break the seal on a master tape or digital recording which is required for criminal proceedings. If it is necessary to gain access to the master tape or digital recording, the police officer shall arrange for its seal to be broken in the presence of a representative of the Attorney General. The defendant or his legal adviser shall be informed and given a reasonable opportunity to be present. If the defendant or his legal representative is present he shall be invited to re-seal and sign the master tape or digital recording. If either refuses or neither is present this shall be done by the representative of the Attorney General.

[See Notes 6B and 6C.]

6.3 Where no criminal proceedings result it is the responsibility of the Chief Police Officer to establish arrangements for the breaking of the seal on the master tape or digital recording, where this becomes necessary.

Notes for Guidance

6A. This section is concerned with the security of the master tape or digital recording which will have been sealed at the conclusion of the interview. Care should, however, be taken of working copies of tapes or digital recordings since their loss or destruction may lead unnecessarily to the need to have access to master tapes or digital recordings.

6B. If the tape or digital recording has been delivered to the court for their keeping after committal for trial the crown prosecutor will apply to the court for the release of the tape or digital recording for unsealing by the crown prosecutor.

6C. Reserved.”.

Made 27 July 2016

J. S. Tyler-Haywood,
Acting Governor.

(not part of the order)

This order amends the Criminal Justice (Police Codes of Practice) Order 2014 (S.R. & O. No. 6 of 2014) by replacing Code of Practice E with a new code to provide for the recording of interviews to be done by other digital means and not just through tape.

Land Ordinance (Title 45.2) section 11A

Notice of Application for Vesting Deed

Notice is given that Peter Thomas King of 10 Jeremy Moore Avenue, Stanley, Falkland Islands and Robert John King of 22/24 Davis Street, Stanley, Falkland Islands have made a joint application in accordance with section 11A of the Land Ordinance to have executed in their favour a Vesting Deed of land in Stanley, Falkland Islands measuring approximately 894 square metres forming part of Crown Grant 28 bounded on the south by the road or alley known as Philomel Place, on the west by the properties known as 35 and 35A Fitzroy Road, on the north by the property known as 39 Fitzroy Road, and on the east by the properties known as 41 Fitzroy Road and 7 Philomel Street.

The applicant's statutory declaration may be inspected by any person at the Registrar General's Office, Town Hall, Stanley during normal working hours for 30 days following the date of publication of this notice.

Notice is given that any person objecting to the vesting of title to the land in the application may, within 30 days following publication of this notice, lodge a notice in writing, specifying the grounds for objection, delivered to the Registrar General.

Notice is hereby given that unless any objection has been received within 30 days following the publication of this notice the Registrar General under the terms of section 11A of the Land Ordinance will execute in favour of Peter Thomas King and Robert John King a Vesting Deed of the said land.

Tax - Extra Statutory Concession 19 Foster Care Payments

Under the Taxes Ordinance, there is no provision for a specific allowance against tax for foster care payments which are therefore treated as self-employment income, with expenses that are wholly and exclusively incurred for the purpose of providing foster care being offset against the payments to work out the taxable income.

It is recognised it can be difficult for Falkland Islands Government approved foster carers to evidence the expenses wholly and exclusively incurred for foster caring. From 2011, the Commissioner was prepared to accept an amount per year as expenses automatically with Falkland Islands Government approved foster carers able to claim additional relief if they show they incur expenses above the amount set.

Executive Council has signalled their intention to change the policy for all foster care payments (including remuneration elements) to be exempted from tax in due course. The change in policy when confirmed would be put under the statutory footing when an appropriate legislative vehicle is available.

In the interim, the Commissioner of Taxation can treat all Falkland Islands Government approved foster care payments as expenses, this concession gives taxpayers a reduction in tax liability to which they would not be entitled under the strict letter of the law. The concession is to be applied retrospectively from tax year 2014 onwards.

Supplement

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY

Vol. 27

7 October 2016

No. 8

The following is published in this Supplement –

Statistics (Census) Order 2016 (SR&O No 21 of 2016)

SUBSIDIARY LEGISLATION

CONSTITUTIONAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE

Statistics (Census) Order 2016

S. R. & O. No: 21 of 2016

Made: 7 October 2016

Published: 7 October 2016

Coming into force: on publication

I make this order under sections 13(2), 13(4), 13(5) and 32 of the Statistics Ordinance (No 10 of 2010) on the advice of Executive Council.

1. Title

This order is the Statistics (Census) Order 2016.

2. Commencement

This order comes into force on publication in the Gazette.

3. Interpretation

In this order —

“2016 Census” means the census to be carried out in 2016;

“census date” means 9 October 2016;

“communal establishment” —

(a) means a place that is not a dwelling but where one or more persons live or stay; and

(b) includes each of the following —

(i) a hotel, guest house or similar establishment;

(ii) the King Edward VII Memorial Hospital;

(iii) a religious or charitable community;

(iv) the area of Stanley Police Station declared to be a prison by article 3(1) of the Prison (Declaration) Order 2009 (SR&O No 10 of 2009) and known as HMP Stanley (including the parts of that area declared to be a young offender institution by article 4(1) of the same order); and

(v) accommodation for civilian employees of contractors at the Mount Pleasant Complex;

“eCensus” means a system by which information is submitted electronically via a secure website; and

“temporary visitor to the Falkland Islands” means a person who is present in the Falkland Islands on the census date but who —

(a) usually lives outside the Falkland Islands; and

(b) on the census date, is only visiting the Islands temporarily (on holiday or for other reasons), for a period of less than 3 months.

4. Census to be carried out in 2016

The census is to be carried out in October 2016.

5. eCensus and paper forms

(1) The primary method by which the 2016 Census is to be carried out is by means of an eCensus.

(2) The Statistician must ensure that adequate arrangements are made for those who wish to complete a paper form for the 2016 Census instead of participating in an eCensus.

6. Questions to be asked in census

The questions to be asked in the 2016 Census are those set out in the Schedule.

7. Questions to be asked in census: supplementary

(1) Additional instructions and explanation (including examples) may be added to the questions.

(2) The questions may be expressed with minor variations appropriate to the method by which the information is being collected.

8. Provision of assistance, etc.

(1) The Statistician must ensure (as far as reasonably practicable) that adequate arrangements are made to provide assistance to those required to submit information for the 2016 Census (either via the eCensus or by completing a paper form).

(2) The Statistician may arrange for information and other assistance to be provided in languages other than English but need not arrange for information to be submitted in a language other than English.

(3) The Statistician may enter into arrangements for those participating in the eCensus to receive compensation for their usage of telecommunications services.

9. Communal establishments and vessels

(1) The Statistician must make arrangements to ensure (as far as reasonably practicable) that information for the 2016 Census is collected in respect of every person who, on the night of the census date —

(a) is living or staying in a communal establishment; and

(b) is on board a vessel moored in Stanley Harbour.

(2) The Statistician need not (but may) make arrangements to collect information in respect of anyone who spends the night of the census date on board a vessel that is not moored in Stanley Harbour.

(3) The Statistician may make different arrangements for different establishments and different vessels.

10. Exemption for members of UK Armed Forces

The following persons are exempt from participation in the 2016 Census (and information need not be provided by them or about them) —

(a) members of the United Kingdom Armed Forces who are serving in the Falkland Islands on the census date; and

(b) their dependents.

11. Use of information from other sources

The Statistician may use information from sources other than the eCensus and paper forms for the following purposes —

(a) to check information submitted via the eCensus and on paper forms;

(b) to supplement the information submitted in those ways; and

(c) to substitute for information that it has not been possible to collect in either of those ways.

(not part of the order)

Under section 13(1) of the Statistics Ordinance, one of the functions of the Statistical Service of the Falkland Islands Government is to organise and carry out a census every five years. The last census was to be carried out in 2011 but was postponed to 2012 in terms of section 13(3)(b).

Section 13(2) requires that the month in which a census is to be held is fixed by order and section 13(4) requires that the questions to be asked in a census are to be prescribed by order. Section 13(5) allows for the method by which the census is to be undertaken to be prescribed by order.

Section 32 is a general provision about subsidiary legislation for the purposes of the Statistics Ordinance.

Article 3 defines terms used in the order.

Article 4 fixes October 2016 as the month in which the 2016 census is to be held.

Article 5 prescribes that the primary method by which the 2016 census is to be carried out is an eCensus (which is defined as a system in which information is submitted electronically via a secure website). However, it also provides that arrangements must be made for those who do not want to take part in the eCensus to complete a paper form instead.

Article 6 deals with the questions to be asked for the 2016 census which are set out under the Schedule.

Article 7 contains supplementary provisions about the questions.

Under article 8, the Statistician will have to arrange for assistance to be provided. Assistance can be provided in languages other than English but the Statistician will not be required to allow information to be submitted in languages other than English.

Article 9 requires the Statistician to make alternative arrangements for communal establishments (defined in article 3) and vessels moored in Stanley Harbour. However, it gives the Statistician discretion about whether or how to collect information from vessels that are not moored in Stanley Harbour.

Under article 10, members of the UK armed forces serving in the Falkland Islands (and their dependents) will be exempt from taking part in the 2016 census.

Article 11 allows the Statistician to make use of other sources of information to check or complete the census information.

ANIMALS (WELFARE AND PROTECTION) BILL 2016

(No: of 2016)

(assented to: 2016)
(commencement: in accordance with section 2)
(published: 2016)

for

AN ORDINANCE

To provide for the welfare and protection of animals and for connected matters.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Falkland Islands —

PART 1 - PRELIMINARY

1. Title and commencement

(1) This Ordinance may be cited as the Animals (Welfare and Protection) Ordinance 2016.

(2) This Ordinance comes into operation on a day or days appointed by the Governor by notice in the Gazette.

(3) Different dates may be appointed under subsection (2) for different provisions and for different purposes.

2. Interpretation

(1) In this Ordinance, unless otherwise stated or the context otherwise requires —

“animal” has the meaning given to that term by section 4(1);

“bull” includes any cow, bullock, heifer, calf, steer or ox;

“cat” includes a kitten;

“damage” includes the death of, or injury to, any person;

“Director” means the person performing the functions of Director of Natural Resources;

“dog” includes any bitch or puppy;

“domestic animal” has the meaning given that term by section 5(3);

“exhibit” means exhibit at any entertainment to which the public are admitted, whether on payment of money or otherwise; and “exhibitor” has the corresponding meaning;

“fowl” includes any cock, hen, chicken, capon, turkey, goose, gander, duck, drake, guinea-fowl, peacock, peahen, swan, or pigeon;

“goat” includes a kid;

“horse” includes any mare, gelding, pony, foal, colt, filly, or stallion;

“humanely destroy”, in relation to an animal, means —

(a) to put to death by means of the administration of a lethal injection in such a way as not to be likely to cause unnecessary pain or suffering to the animal; or

(b) otherwise to put to death in a way not likely to cause unnecessary pain or suffering to the animal;

“inspector” includes a veterinary officer or any person appointed by the Governor to be an inspector for the purposes of this Ordinance;

“keeper” has the meaning given that term by section 3(3);

“licence” means a licence issued under regulations made under section 54;

“non-native animal” has the meaning given that term by section 31;

“owner”, in relation to an animal, means the person to whom the animal lawfully belongs and includes an agent of the owner;

“pig” includes any boar, hog, sow or piglet;

“post-conviction powers” means the powers in any of sections 40 to 47;

“premises” includes —

(a) any place;

(b) any vehicle, vessel, aircraft or hovercraft;

(c) any tent or movable structure;

“Senior Veterinary Officer” means the person performing the duties of the senior veterinary officer of the Government;

“sheep” includes any lamb, ewe, or ram;

“suffering” means physical or mental suffering and related expressions are to be construed accordingly;

“train” means train for the purpose of exhibiting; and “trainer” has the corresponding meaning;

“unsuitable animal” means an animal specified as such by an order made under section 31;

“veterinary surgeon” means a person qualified in veterinary medicine and surgery and registered with a body established or recognised for that purpose under the laws of a country or territory.

(2) In this Ordinance —

(a) references to the occupier of premises, in relation to any vehicle, vessel, aircraft or hovercraft, are to the person who appears to be in charge of the vehicle, vessel, aircraft or hovercraft, and “unoccupied premises” are to be construed accordingly;

(b) references to a part of premises which is used as a private dwelling include any yard, garden, garage or outhouse which is used for purposes in connection with it;

(c) references to responsibility, in relation to an animal, are to be read in accordance with section 3;

(d) references to the needs of an animal are to be read in accordance with section 7(2).

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.3; Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976 s.7]

3. Responsibility for animals

(1) In this Ordinance —

(a) references to a person responsible for an animal are to a person responsible for an animal whether on a permanent or temporary basis;

(b) references to being responsible for an animal include being in charge of it.

(2) For the purposes of this Ordinance —

(a) the owner of an animal is to be regarded as responsible for it;

(b) a person (‘A’) is to be regarded as responsible for any animal for which a person under the age of 16 years of whom A has actual care and control is responsible.

(3) In this Ordinance —

(a) “keeper”, in relation to an animal, means a person, not being the owner of that animal, by whom that animal is for the time being ordinarily kept;

(b) a person is a keeper of an animal if the person has it in the person’s possession;

(c) if at any time an animal ceases to be in the possession of a person, any person who immediately before that time was a keeper of the animal by virtue of paragraph (a) or (b) continues to be a keeper of the animal until another person becomes its keeper by virtue of those provisions;

(d) if an animal is in the possession of any person only so that the person can —

- (i) prevent it from causing damage;
- (ii) restore it to its owner;
- (iii) arrange for it to undergo veterinary treatment; or
- (iv) transport it on behalf of another person, the person is not because of that possession to be treated for the purposes of this Ordinance as a keeper of the animal;

(e) expressions cognate with “keeper” must be construed in accordance with this subsection.

4. Meaning of “animal”

(1) In this Ordinance, except subsections (4) and (5) of this section, “animal” means a vertebrate other than a human.

(2) Nothing in this Ordinance applies to an animal while it is in its foetal or embryonic form.

(3) The Governor may by order for all or any of the purposes of this Ordinance —

- (a) extend the definition of “animal” so as to include invertebrates of any description;
- (b) make provision in place of subsection (2) as respects any invertebrates included in the definition of “animal”; and
- (c) amend subsection (2) to extend the application of this Ordinance to an animal from an earlier stage of its development specified in the regulations.

(4) The power under subsection (3)(a) or (c) may only be exercised if the Governor is satisfied, on the basis of scientific evidence, that animals of the kind concerned are capable of experiencing pain or suffering.

(5) In this section, “vertebrate” means any animal of the Sub-phylum Vertebrata of the Phylum Chordata and “invertebrate” means any animal not of that Sub-phylum.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 ss.1 and 59]

5. Application of the Ordinance

(1) This Ordinance applies to all animals, including animals of a kind that are commonly kept for slaughter, except that —

(a) provisions that are stated to apply to domestic animals apply only to the animals specified in subsection (3);

(b) if there is any conflict between the requirements of or under this Ordinance and the requirements of or under the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance in relation to animals kept for slaughter, the latter requirements prevail.

(2) This Ordinance —

(a) does not apply in relation to anything which occurs in the normal course of fishing;

(b) does not displace or affect any of the written laws relating to fishing and fisheries;

(c) does not displace or affect any enactment relating to animals except as provided in Schedule 2.

(3) An animal is a “domestic animal” for the purposes of this Ordinance if it is —

(a) a horse, ass, mule, bull, sheep, pig, goat, dog, cat, or fowl;

(b) an animal of any other kind or species, whether a quadruped or not, which is tame or which has been or is being sufficiently tamed to serve some purpose for the use of man;

(c) under the control of man whether on a permanent or temporary basis; or

(d) not living in a wild state.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.2 adapted]

PART 2 – ANIMAL WELFARE

Unnecessary suffering - domestic animals

6. Unnecessary suffering

(1) A person (‘A’) commits an offence if —

(a) an act of A, or a failure of A to act, causes an animal to suffer;

(b) A knew, or ought reasonably to have known, that the act, or failure to act, would have that effect or be likely to do so;

(c) the animal is a domestic animal; and

(d) the suffering is unnecessary.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(2) A person ('A') commits an offence if—

(a) A is responsible for an animal;

(b) an act, or failure to act, of another person ('B') causes the animal to suffer;

(c) A permitted that to happen or failed to take such steps (whether by way of supervising B or otherwise) as were reasonable in all the circumstances to prevent that happening; and

(d) the suffering is unnecessary.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(3) For the purposes of this Ordinance, any pain or suffering is unnecessary if, in all the circumstances of the case, it is reasonably avoidable or preventable.

(4) The considerations to which it is relevant to have regard when determining for the purposes of this section whether suffering is unnecessary include whether—

(a) the suffering could reasonably have been avoided or reduced;

(b) the conduct which caused the suffering was in compliance with this Ordinance, or any provisions of a licence or code of practice issued under this Ordinance;

(c) the conduct which caused the suffering was for a legitimate purpose, such as—

(i) the purpose of benefiting the animal; or

(ii) the purpose of protecting a person, property or another animal;

(d) the suffering was proportionate to the purpose of the conduct concerned;

(e) the conduct concerned was in all the circumstances that of a reasonably competent and humane person.

(5) Nothing in this section applies to the destruction of an animal in an appropriate and humane manner.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.4]

Promotion of welfare

7. Duty of person responsible for animal to ensure welfare

(1) A person who is responsible for any animal commits an offence if the person does not take such steps as are reasonable in all the circumstances to ensure that the needs of the animal are met to the extent required by good practice.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 6 on the standard scale, or both.

(2) For the purposes of this Part, an animal's needs are to be taken to include—

- (a) its need for a suitable environment;
- (b) its need for a suitable diet;
- (c) its need to be able to show normal behaviour patterns;
- (d) any need it has to be housed with, or apart from, other animals; and
- (e) its need to be protected from pain, suffering, injury and disease.

(3) The circumstances to which it is relevant to have regard when applying subsection (1) include, in particular —

- (a) any lawful purpose for which the animal is kept; and
- (b) any lawful activity undertaken in relation to the animal.

(4) Nothing in this section applies to the destruction of an animal in an appropriate and humane manner.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.9]

8. Improvement notices

(1) If an inspector is of the opinion that a person is failing to comply with section 7(1), the inspector may serve on the person a notice which —

- (a) states that the inspector is of that opinion;
- (b) specifies the respects in which he or she considers the person is failing to comply with that provision;
- (c) specifies the steps he or she considers need to be taken in order to comply with the provision;
- (d) specifies a period for the taking of those steps (“the compliance period”); and
- (e) explains the effect of subsections (3) and (4).

(2) An improvement notice may —

- (a) be in the form of a letter;
- (b) specify a compliance period according to the severity of the harm and the nature of the conditions.

(3) If a notice under subsection (1) (“an improvement notice”) is served, no proceedings for an offence under section 7(1) may be instituted before the end of the compliance period in respect of —

- (a) the non-compliance which gave rise to the notice; or
- (b) any continuation of that non-compliance.

(4) If the steps specified in an improvement notice are taken at any time before the end of the compliance period, no proceedings for an offence under section 7(1) may be instituted in respect of —

- (a) the non-compliance which gave rise to the notice; or
- (b) any continuation of that non-compliance prior to the taking of the steps specified in the notice.

(5) An inspector may extend, or further extend, the compliance period specified in an improvement notice.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.10]

9. Transfer of animals by way of sale or prize to persons under 16

(1) A person who sells an animal to a person under the age of 16 years commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 4 on the standard scale, or both.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), selling an animal includes transferring, or agreeing to transfer, ownership of the animal in consideration of entry by the transferee into another transaction.

(3) Subject to subsections (4) to (6), a person ('A') who enters into an arrangement with a person ('B') under which B has the chance to win an animal as a prize commits an offence if B is under the age of 16 years.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 4 on the standard scale, or both.

(4) A does not commit an offence under subsection (3) if —

- (a) A enters into the arrangement in the presence of the person with whom the arrangement is made; and
- (b) A has reasonable cause to believe that the person with whom the arrangement is made is accompanied by a person who is not under the age of 16 years.

(5) A does not commit an offence under subsection (3) if —

- (a) A enters into the arrangement otherwise than in the presence of the person with whom the arrangement is made; and
- (a) A has reasonable cause to believe that a person who has actual care and control of the person with whom the arrangement is made has consented to the arrangement.

(6) A does not commit an offence under subsection (3) if A enters into the arrangement with A's own child or grandchild (including by adoption), cousin, nephew, niece or sibling.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.11 expanded]

10. Regulations to promote welfare

(1) The Governor may by regulations under section 54 make any provision the Governor thinks fit for the purpose of promoting the welfare of animals for which a person is responsible, or the offspring of such animals.

(2) Without limiting subsection (1), regulations made for the purpose mentioned in that subsection may include provision —

(a) imposing specific requirements for the purpose of securing that the needs of animals are met;

(b) to facilitate or improve co-ordination in relation to the carrying out by different persons of functions relating to the welfare of animals;

(c) either —

(i) conferring on a department of the government functions relating to advice about the welfare of animals; or

(ii) for the establishment of a statutory body with those functions.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.12]

11. Licensing of activities involving animals

(1) A person must not carry on an activity to which this section applies except under the authority of a licence issued under regulations made under section 54.

(2) Subsection (1) applies to an activity which —

(a) involves animals for which a person is responsible; and

(b) is specified for the purposes of the subsection by regulations.

(3) A person who contravenes subsection (1) commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.13]

Domestic animals in distress

12. Powers in relation to animals in distress

(1) If —

(a) an inspector or a police officer (within Stanley) reasonably believes that a domestic animal is suffering; or

(b) any person outside of Stanley reasonably believes that a domestic animal is suffering, the inspector, officer or the person may take, or arrange for the taking of, such steps as appear to him or her to be immediately necessary to alleviate the animal's suffering.

(2) Subsection (1)(a) does not authorise destruction of an animal but a person under subsection (1)(b) may destroy an animal where the animal is under severe distress and the person is able to carry out the destruction.

(3) If the Senior Veterinary Officer certifies that the condition of a domestic animal is such that it should in its own interests be destroyed, an inspector or a police officer may —

(a) destroy the animal where it is or take it to another place and destroy it there; or

(b) arrange for the doing of any of the things mentioned in paragraph (a).

(4) An inspector or a police officer may act under subsection (3) without the certificate of the Senior Veterinary Officer if it appears to the inspector or officer that —

(a) the condition of the animal is such that there is no reasonable alternative to destroying it; and

(b) the need for action is such that it is not reasonably practicable to wait for the Senior Veterinary Officer.

(5) An inspector or a police officer may take a domestic animal into possession if the Senior Veterinary Officer certifies that it is —

(a) suffering; or

(b) likely to suffer if its circumstances do not change.

(6) An inspector or a police officer may act under subsection (5) without the certificate of the Senior Veterinary Officer if it appears to the inspector or officer that —

(a) the animal is suffering or that it is likely to do so if its circumstances do not change; and

(b) the need for action is such that it is not reasonably practicable to wait for the Senior Veterinary Officer.

(7) The power conferred by subsection (5) includes power to take into possession dependent offspring of an animal taken into possession under that subsection.

(8) If an animal is taken into possession under subsection (5), an inspector or a police officer may —

(a) remove it, or arrange for it to be removed, to a place of safety;

(b) care for it, or arrange for it to be cared for —

(i) on the premises where it was being kept when the decision was made that it should be taken into possession; or

(ii) at any other place the inspector or officer thinks fit;

(c) mark it, or arrange for it to be marked, for identification purposes.

(9) A person acting under subsection (8)(b)(i), or under an arrangement under that provision, may make use of any equipment on the premises.

(10) The Senior Veterinary Officer may examine and take samples from an animal for the purpose of determining whether to issue a certificate under subsection (3) or (5) with respect to the animal.

(11) If a person ('A') exercises a power under this section otherwise than with the knowledge of a person ('B') who is responsible for the animal concerned, A must, as soon as reasonably practicable after exercising the power, take such steps as are reasonable in the circumstances to bring the exercise of the power to the notice of B.

(12) A person who intentionally obstructs another person in the exercise of a power conferred by this section commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 4 on the standard scale, or both.

(13) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may, on application by a person who incurs expenses in acting under this section, order that the person be reimbursed by such other person as the court thinks fit.

(14) A person affected by a decision under subsection (13) may appeal against the decision to the Supreme Court.

13. Power of entry for section 12 purposes

(1) An inspector or a police officer may enter premises for the purpose of searching for a domestic animal and of exercising any power under section 12 in relation to it if the inspector or officer reasonably believes that —

(a) there is a domestic animal on the premises; and

(b) the animal is suffering or, if the circumstances of the animal do not change, it is likely to suffer.

(2) Subsection (1) does not authorise entry to any part of premises which is used as a private dwelling.

(3) An inspector or a police officer may enter any premises for the purpose of this section with the consent of the owner or occupier or on the authority of a warrant issued under section 38.

(4) An inspector or a police officer may (if necessary) use reasonable force in exercising the power conferred by subsection (1), if it appears to the inspector or officer that entry is being refused and is required before a warrant under section 38 can be obtained and executed.

14. Orders in relation to animals taken under section 12(5)

(1) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may order in relation to an animal taken into possession under section 12(5) that —

- (a) specified treatment be administered to the animal;
- (b) possession of the animal be given up to a specified person;
- (c) the animal be sold;
- (d) the animal be disposed of otherwise than by way of sale; or
- (e) the animal be destroyed.

(2) If an animal is taken into possession under section 12(5) when it is pregnant, the power conferred by subsection (1) is also exercisable in relation to any offspring that results from the pregnancy.

(3) The power conferred by subsection (1) is exercisable on application by —

- (a) the owner of the animal; or
- (b) any other person appearing to the court to have a sufficient interest in the animal.

(4) A court must not make an order under subsection (1) unless it —

- (a) has given the owner of the animal an opportunity to be heard; or
- (b) is satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to communicate with the owner.

(5) If a court makes an order under subsection (1), it may —

- (a) appoint a person to carry out, or arrange for the carrying out, of the order;
- (b) give directions with respect to the carrying out of the order;
- (c) confer additional powers (including power to enter premises where the animal is being kept) for the purpose of, or in connection with, the carrying out of the order;

(d) order a person to reimburse the expenses of carrying out the order.

(6) In determining how to exercise its powers under this section, the court must have regard, amongst other things, to the desirability of protecting the animal's value and avoiding increasing any expenses which a person might be ordered to reimburse.

(7) A person who intentionally obstructs a person in the exercise of any power conferred by virtue of this section commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 4 on the standard scale, or both.

(8) If the owner of the animal is subject to a liability by virtue of section 12(13) or subsection (5)(d) above, any amount to which the owner is entitled as a result of sale of the animal may be reduced by an amount equal to that liability.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.20]

15. Orders under section 14: Appeals

(1) If a court makes an order under section 14(1), the owner of the animal to which the order relates may appeal against the order to the Supreme Court.

(2) Nothing may be done under an order under section 14(1) unless —

(a) the period for giving notice of appeal against the order has expired; and

(b) if the order is the subject of an appeal, the appeal has been determined or withdrawn.

(3) If the effect of an order is suspended under subsection (2) —

(a) no directions given in connection with the order have effect; but

(b) the court may give directions about how any animal to which the order applies is to be dealt with during the suspension.

(4) Directions under subsection (3)(b) may, in particular —

(a) appoint a person to carry out, or arrange for the carrying out, of the directions;

(b) require any person who has possession of the animal to deliver it up for the purposes of the directions;

(c) confer additional powers (including power to enter premises where the animal is being kept) for the purpose of, or in connection with, the carrying out of the directions;

(d) provide for the recovery of any expenses which are reasonably incurred in carrying out the directions.

(5) If a court decides on an application under section 14(3) not to exercise the power conferred by subsection (1) of that section, the applicant may appeal against the decision to the Supreme Court.

(6) If a court makes an order under section 14(5)(d), the person against whom the order is made may appeal against the order to the Supreme Court.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.21]

PART 3 - PROTECTION OF ANIMALS

Poison, etc.

16. Poisoning, etc. of domestic animals

(1) A person who, without lawful authority or reasonable excuse —

(a) administers any poisonous or injurious drug or substance to a domestic animal, knowing it to be poisonous or injurious; or

(b) causes any poisonous or injurious drug or substance to be taken by a domestic animal, knowing it to be poisonous or injurious, commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(2) A person ('A') commits an offence if —

(a) A is responsible for an animal;

(b) without lawful authority or reasonable excuse, another person ('B') administers a poisonous or injurious drug or substance to the animal or causes the animal to take such a drug or substance; and

(c) A permitted that to happen or, knowing the drug or substance to be poisonous or injurious, failed to take such steps (whether by way of supervising B or otherwise) as were reasonable in all the circumstances to prevent that happening.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(3) In this section, references to a poisonous or injurious drug or substance include a drug or substance which, by virtue of the quantity or manner in which it is administered or taken, has the effect of a poisonous or injurious drug or substance.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.7]

17. Other offences in connection with poisons

(1) A person who —

(a) sells, or offers or exposes for sale, or gives away;

(b) causes or procures any person to sell or offer or expose for sale or give away; or

(c) knowingly is a party to the sale or offering or exposing for sale or giving away, of any grain or seed which has been rendered poisonous, except for genuine use in agriculture, commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 4 on the standard scale.

(2) A person who —

(a) knowingly puts or places;

(b) causes or procures any person to put or place; or

(c) knowingly is a party to the putting or placing,

in or upon any land or building, of any poison, or any fluid or edible matter (not being sown seed or grain) which has been rendered poisonous, commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 4 on the standard scale.

(3) In any proceedings under subsection (2), it is a defence that the poison was placed by the defendant for the purpose of destroying insects and other invertebrates, rats, mice, or other small ground vermin, if that is reasonably necessary —

(a) in the interests of public health, agriculture, or the preservation of other animals, domestic or wild and that the defendant took all reasonable precautions to prevent injury from the poison or other matter to dogs, cats, fowls, or other domestic animals and wild birds; or

(b) for the purpose of conservation or restoration of habitats as provided for under guidance issued by the Environmental and Planning Department.

(4) Subject to section 18, a person is not guilty of an offence under this section by reason only that the person uses poisonous gas in a rabbit hole, or places in a rabbit hole a substance which, by evaporation or in contact with moisture generates poisonous gas.

[UK Protection of Animals Act 1911 s.8; Prevention of Damage by Rabbits Act 1939 ss.1 and 5]

18. Prohibited or restricted use of poisons

(1) If the use of any poison for the purpose of destroying any animal has been prohibited or restricted by regulations under section 54, the fact that the poison was used as mentioned in section 17(4) is not a defence in proceedings under that section if the poison was used in contravention of the regulations.

(2) If the use of any poison for the purpose of destroying any animal has been prohibited or restricted by regulations made under section 54, any person convicted in such proceedings of an offence committed by or in connection with the use of the poison in contravention of the regulations commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 3 months or a fine at level 1 on the standard scale.

[UK Animals (Cruel Poisons) Act 1962 ss.1 and 2]

Traps

19. Inspection of traps

(1) Any person who sets, or causes or procures to be set, any spring trap for the purpose of catching any animal, or which is so placed as to be likely to catch any animal, must inspect, or cause some competent person to inspect, the trap at reasonable intervals of time and at least once every day between sunrise and sunset.

(2) A person as mentioned in subsection (1) who fails to comply with that subsection commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 1 on the standard scale.

[UK Protection of Animals Act 1911 s.10]

20. Restriction on type of trap

(1) Subject to this section, a person who —

(a) for the purpose of killing or taking animals, uses, or knowingly permits the use of, any trap other than a humane spring cage trap;

(b) sells, or exposes or offers for sale, any trap other than a humane spring cage trap;
or

(c) has any in possession any animal trap other than a humane spring cage trap,

commits an offence.

Penalty: (i) A fine at level 3 on the standard scale: or

(ii) for a second or subsequent offence under this section or section 21, a fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to traps of any description adapted solely for the destruction of rats, mice or other small ground vermin.

[UK Pests Act 1954 s.8 adapted]

21. Open trapping of hares and rabbits

Subject to this section, a person who, for the purpose of killing or taking hares or rabbits, uses, or knowingly permits the use of, a spring trap elsewhere than in a hare form or rabbit hole, commits an offence.

Penalty: (i) A fine at level 3 on the standard scale: or

(ii) for a second or subsequent offence under this section or section 20, a fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

[UK Pests Act 1954 s.9]

Performing animals

22. Prohibition of exhibiting and training performing animals

(1) No person may exhibit or train any performing animal in the Falkland Islands.

(2) Any inspector and any police officer may enter at all reasonable times and inspect any premises in which the inspector or police officer reasonably suspects that animals are being trained or exhibited, or kept for training or exhibition, and any such animals found on the premises.

(3) A person who —

(a) exhibits or trains any performing animal;

(b) obstructs or wilfully delays any inspector or police officer in the execution of powers under subsection (2) as to entry or inspection;

(c) conceals any animal with a view to avoiding such inspection,

commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 3 on the standard scale.

(4) This section does not apply to the training of animals for genuine military, police, agricultural or sporting purposes, or the exhibition of any animals so trained.

[UK Performing Animals (Regulation) Act 1925 ss.3 to 5]

Films

23. Prohibition of films involving cruelty to domestic animals

(1) It is an offence for a person ('A') to exhibit to the public, or supply to any other person for public exhibition (whether by A or by another person), any cinematograph film (whether produced in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere) if in connection with the production of the film any scene represented in the film was organised or directed in such a way as to involve—

(a) the cruel infliction of pain or terror on any domestic animal; or

(b) the cruel goading of any such animal to fury.

(2) In any proceedings under this section in respect of any film —

(a) the court may (without prejudice to any other mode of proof) infer from the film as exhibited to the public or supplied for public exhibition, as the case may be, that a scene represented in the film as so exhibited or supplied was organised or directed in such a way as to involve the cruel infliction of pain or terror on an animal or the cruel goading of an animal to fury; but

(b) (whether the court draws such an inference or not) it is a defence for A to prove that A believed, and had reasonable cause to believe, that no scene so represented was so organised or directed.

(3) A person who contravenes this section commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 3 months or a fine at level 3 on the standard scale, or both.

24. Section 23: Supplementary

(1) In section 23, “film” means any medium on which moving images are recorded so that they can be replayed.

(2) For the purposes of section 23, a cinematograph film is deemed to be exhibited to the public when, it is exhibited in a place to which for the time being members of the general public as such have access, whether on payment of money or otherwise, and the expression “public exhibition” is to be construed accordingly.

(3) Nothing in section 23 applies to a film of a steer-riding competition in the Falkland Islands.
[UK Cinematograph Films (Animals) Act 1937 s.1]

Mutilation of domestic animals

25. Mutilation

(1) Subject to subsection (3), a person other than a veterinary surgeon who —

(a) carries out a surgical procedure on a domestic animal; or

(b) causes such a procedure to be carried out on a domestic animal,

commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(2) Subject to subsection (3), a person (‘A’) commits an offence if —

(a) A is responsible for a domestic animal;

(b) another person (‘B’), not being a veterinary surgeon, carries out a surgical procedure on the animal; and

(c) A permitted that to happen or failed to take such steps (whether by way of supervising B or otherwise) as were reasonable in all the circumstances to prevent that happening.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(3) If —

(a) the animal is livestock; and

(b) the surgical procedure is carried out in conformity with a relevant code of practice, the procedure may be carried out by a person other than a veterinary surgeon.

(4) A veterinary surgeon may carry out a surgical procedure on an animal other than in conformity with a relevant code of practice if the procedure is —

- (a) necessary for the purpose of the medical treatment of the animal; and
- (b) carried out under appropriate anaesthesia.

(5) For the purpose of this section —

(a) a “surgical procedure” on an animal is a procedure which involves interference with the sensitive tissues or bone structure of the animal;

(b) a “relevant code of practice” is a code of practice for the welfare of livestock issued under section 55, or under the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 ss.5 and 6 (part) adapted]

26. Docking of dogs’ tails

(1) A veterinary surgeon may only remove the whole or part of a dog’s tail under appropriate anaesthesia.

(2) Contravention of subsection (1) is an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(3) A person commits an offence if the person –

(a) shows a dog at an event to which members of the public are admitted on payment of a fee;

(b) the dog’s tail has been wholly or partly removed (in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere) in contravention of this section; and

(c) removal took place on or after the commencement of this section.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.6 (part) adapted]

Animals fighting

27. Fighting, etc.

(1) It is an offence for a person to —

(a) cause an animal fight to take place, or attempt to do so;

(b) knowingly receive money for admission to an animal fight;

(c) knowingly publicise a proposed animal fight;

(d) provide information about an animal fight to another with the intention of enabling or encouraging attendance at the fight;

(e) make or accept a bet on the outcome of an animal fight or on the likelihood of anything occurring or not occurring in the course of an animal fight;

(f) take part in an animal fight;

(g) have in the possession of the person anything designed or adapted for use in connection with an animal fight with the intention of its being so used;

(h) keep or train an animal for use for or in connection with an animal fight; or keep any premises for use for an animal fight.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(2) A person who, without lawful authority or reasonable excuse, is present at an animal fight commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(3) A person who, without lawful authority or reasonable excuse —

(a) knowingly supplies a digital recording of an animal fight;

(b) knowingly publishes a digital recording of an animal fight;

(c) knowingly shows a digital recording of an animal fight to another; or

(d) possesses a digital recording of an animal fight, knowing it to be such a recording, with the intention of supplying it, commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(4) Subsection (3) does not apply if the digital recording is of an animal fight that took place —

(a) outside the Falkland Islands; or

(b) before the commencement of this section.

(5) Subsection (3) does not apply —

(a) in the case of paragraph (a), to the supply of a digital recording for inclusion in a programme service;

(b) in the case of paragraph (b) or (c), to the publication or showing of a video recording by means of its inclusion in a programme service;

(c) in the case of paragraph (d), by virtue of intention to supply for inclusion in a programme service.

(6) In this section —

“animal fight” means an occasion on which a domestic animal is placed with an animal, or with a human, for the purpose of fighting, wrestling or baiting;

“programme service” has the same meaning as in the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Ordinance 2014;

“digital recording” means a recording, in any form, from which a moving image may by any means be reproduced and includes data stored on a computer disc or by other electronic means which is capable of conversion into a moving image.

(7) In this section —

(a) references to supplying or publishing a digital recording are to supplying or publishing a digital recording in any manner, including, in relation to a digital recording in the form of data stored electronically, by means of transmitting such data;

(b) references to showing a digital recording are to showing a moving image reproduced from any device capable of digital recording.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.8]

28. Seizure of animals involved in fighting offences

(1) An inspector or a police officer may seize an animal if it appears to the inspector or officer that it is one in relation to which an offence under section 27(1) or (2) has been committed.

(2) An inspector or a police officer may enter and search premises for the purpose of exercising the power under subsection (1) if the inspector or officer reasonably believes that—

(a) there is an animal on the premises; and

(b) the animal is one in relation to which the power under subsection (1) is exercisable.

(3) Subsection (2) does not authorise entry to any part of premises which is used as a private dwelling.

(4) An inspector or a police officer may enter any premises for the purpose of this section with the consent of the owner or occupier or on the authority of a warrant issued under section 38.

(5) In this section, references to an animal in relation to which an offence under section 31(1) or (2) has been committed include an animal which took part in an animal fight in relation to which such an offence was committed.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.22]

29. Reimbursement of expenses relating to animals involved in fighting offences

(1) The court by or before which a person is convicted of an offence under section 27(1) or (2) may order the offender or another person to reimburse any expenses incurred by the Crown in connection with the keeping of an animal in relation to which the offence was committed.

(2) In subsection (1), the reference to an animal in relation to which the offence was committed includes an animal which took part in a fight in relation to which the offence was committed.

(3) If an order is made under this section for reimbursement of expenses incurred by the Crown—

(a) the expenses are recoverable summarily as a civil debt;

(b) the person against whom the order is made may appeal against the order to the Supreme Court.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.39]

30. Destruction of animals involved in fighting offences

(1) The court by or before which a person is convicted of an offence under section 27(1) or (2) may order the destruction of an animal in relation to which the offence was committed on grounds other than the interests of the animal.

(2) A court may not make an order under subsection (1) unless —

(a) it has given the owner of the animal an opportunity to be heard; or

(b) it is satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to communicate with the owner.

(3) If a court makes an order under subsection (1), it may —

(a) appoint a person to carry out, or arrange for the carrying out of, the order;

(b) require a person who has possession of the animal to deliver it up to enable the order to be carried out;

(c) give directions with respect to the carrying out of the order (including directions about how the animal is to be dealt with until it is destroyed);

(d) confer additional powers (including power to enter premises where the animal is being kept) for the purpose of, or in connection with, the carrying out of the order;

(e) order the offender or another person to reimburse the expenses of carrying out the order.

(4) If a court makes an order under subsection (1) in relation to an animal which is owned by a person other than the offender, that person may appeal against the order to the Supreme Court.

(5) In subsection (1), the reference to an animal in relation to which the offence was committed includes an animal which took part in an animal fight in relation to which the offence was committed.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.38]

Non-native and unsuitable animals

31. Prohibition of importing or keeping unsuitable animals

(1) It is an offence for a person to import, for the purpose of keeping, selling or transferring any non-native or unsuitable animal without a licence from the Department of Natural Resources.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 6 months or a fine at level 6 on the standard scale.

[UK Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976 s.1 adapted]

(2) In this section —

(a) “non-native animal” means any animal which is not indigenous or native to the Falkland Islands;

(b) “unsuitable animal” means an animal prescribed by the Director by order as unsuitable for keeping in the Falkland Islands.

(3) The Director may include in an order under subsection (2)(b) any animal of a species that is invasive and could become predatory in the Falkland Islands, and any animal of any other species that could represent a danger to wildlife or people.

32. Inspection of premises

(1) An inspector or a police officer may inspect any premises where the inspector or officer reasonably suspects that an unsuitable animal is held.

(2) An inspector or a police officer may enter and search premises for the purpose of exercising the power under subsection (1) if the inspector or officer reasonably believes that—

(a) there is an animal on the premises; and

(b) the animal is one in relation to which the power under subsection (1) is exercisable.

(3) Subsection (2) does not authorise entry to any part of premises which is used as a private dwelling.

(4) An inspector or a police officer may enter premises with the consent of the owner or occupier or on the authority of a warrant issued under section 38.

(5) A person who wilfully obstructs or delays any person in the exercise of a power of entry or inspection under this section commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.
[UK Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976 s.3]

33. Power to seize and to dispose of animals without compensation

(1) If an unsuitable animal is being kept in any place, an inspector or a police officer may seize the animal and deal with it in any manner the Governor directs, including the destruction of the animal, and neither the Crown, the Governor nor any public officer is, subject to the provisions of the Constitution, liable to pay any compensation to any person in respect of the exercise of powers under this subsection.

(2) Any expenditure incurred in the exercise of powers under subsection (1) is recoverable by the Crown as a civil debt from the person who was at the time of the seizure a keeper of the animal concerned.

[UK Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976 s.4 adapted]

Dogs and cats

34. Identification of dogs and cats

(1) The Governor may by order require any or any specified class or breed of dog or cat to have implanted in it an approved identification device.

(2) A veterinary surgeon may, at the request of the owner or keeper of a dog or cat, whether for compliance with an order under subsection (1) or otherwise, implant in the dog or cat an approved identification device and may for that service charge a fee approved by the Director.

(3) The Director must maintain a register and enter in it particulars —

(a) of every dog and cat in which an approved identification device has been implanted under subsection (1) or (2), whether before or after the commencement of this section;

(b) of the owner and keeper (if any) of the animal; and

(c) of any changes in the owner or keeper of the animal notified to the Director.

(4) The register may, if the Director so determines, be kept in electronic form.

(5) In this section, “approved identification device” means —

(a) a microchip, enabling the animal in which it is implanted to be identified by being electronically scanned by a suitable scanning device; and

(b) any other device, approved by the Director, implanted in an animal, whereby the animal may readily be identified by the use of suitable equipment.

[Animals (Amendment) Ordinance ss.2 (part) and 3]

35. Seizure and destruction of stray dogs and cats

(1) The Director and any inspector or police officer may seize any dog or cat which is a stray, that is to say, and dog or cat —

(a) that is found by any person wandering abroad and not apparently under the control of any other person; and

(b) that the Director or inspector or police officer reasonably believes to have been abandoned or neglected by its owner or keeper or to be feral, i.e. existing in a wild state, and take it to a place authorised by the Director for its detention.

(2) A stray may be detained in an authorised place until —

(a) it is claimed by a person who shows himself or herself to be the animal's owner or keeper; or

(b) it is —

(i) allocated to a new keeper; or

(ii) humanely destroyed in accordance with subsection (8), (9) or (10).

(3) As soon as possible after it has been seized, a stray must be examined by the person seizing it to ascertain whether its owner or keeper can be identified, whether by means of an approved identification device, collar or tag that it bears or otherwise.

(4) If as a result of the examination of a stray in accordance with subsection (3) the owner or keeper of the stray is identified, the person examining the stray must notify, or ensure that some other public officer notifies, the owner or keeper of the detention of the stray.

(5) Notification under subsection (4) must be done by the quickest means which is both practicable and reasonable at any place in the Falkland Islands where the owner or keeper of the stray is known to be likely to be found and otherwise at that person's last known address in the Falkland Islands.

(6) If the stray is a dog the owner or keeper of which is not identified on examination under subsection (3), the person examining the dog must cause, or ensure that some other public officer causes, notification of the seizure of the dog to be made through any appropriate media.

(7) A notification under subsection (6) must include —

(a) a description of the dog;

(b) a statement of the place where and time at which it was seized; and

(c) a statement as to where and how, and the time within which, the dog may be claimed.

(8) A dog may be —

(a) allocated a new keeper; or

(b) humanely destroyed by a veterinary surgeon or by a person authorised by a veterinary surgeon, if its owner or keeper does not claim it within 72 hours of the notification under subsection (4) or (6), whichever in the circumstances of the case is appropriate.

(9) A cat —

(a) the owner or keeper of which is not identified on examination of the cat in accordance with subsection (3); or

(b) which is not claimed by its owner or keeper or his or her agent within 72 hours of notification under subsection (4), may be humanely destroyed by a veterinary surgeon or by a person authorised by a veterinary surgeon.

(10) Notwithstanding the previous subsections, a stray may be humanely destroyed at once by or on the authority of a veterinary surgeon if the veterinary surgeon reasonably believes that the stray is, or may be, suffering from —

(a) rabies; or

(b) any other disease that is —

(i) communicable to human beings;

(ii) if so communicated, may be fatal; and

(iii) has been specified for the purposes of this subsection by an order under subsection (11).

(11) The Governor may, by order under this section, extend the application of subsection (10) so that the power to humanely destroy a stray at once in circumstances specified in that subsection in relation to rabies extends also to any disease specified in the order; but an order under this section may only specify a disease which the Governor believes may be fatal to a human being if communicated to him or her.

(12) A person claiming a dog or cat which has been seized as a stray may be required by the Director to pay to the Crown a sum that represents the reasonable cost of seizure of the animal and of detaining it and the sum so required is recoverable by the Crown as a civil debt due to the Crown.

[Animals (Amendment) Ordinance ss.4 and 6]

36. Dogs and cats: Inspection powers

(1) An inspector may at any reasonable time on 48 hours' notice to the occupier of any premises in which the inspector reasonably believes that any dog or cat is in need of treatment or is being caused unnecessary suffering —

- (a) enter and inspect the premises;
- (b) cause any dog or cat kept on the premises to be produced to the inspector;
- (c) on the premises treat any such animal if the inspector considers it to be in need of treatment;
- (d) take away any such animal if the inspector considers that, in the circumstances of the case, it ought sensibly to be treated elsewhere; and
- (e) humanely destroy any such animal on those premises which the inspector reasonably believes has any disease or affliction which —
 - (i) cannot practicably be treated; and
 - (ii) is causing the animal substantial pain or suffering.

(2) An inspector may enter premises with the consent of the owner or occupier or on the authority of a warrant issued under section 38.

[Animals (Amendment) Ordinance s.5 adapted]

PART 4 – ENFORCEMENT POWERS

Inspection

37. Inspection powers generally

(1) An inspector may require the holder of a licence issued under this Ordinance to produce for inspection any records which the holder is required to keep as a condition of the licence.

(2) If records which a person is required to keep are stored in electronic form, the power under subsection (1) includes power to require the records to be made available for inspection in —

- (a) a visible and legible form; or
- (b) a form from which they can readily be produced in a visible and legible form.

(3) An inspector may inspect and take copies of any records produced for inspection pursuant to a requirement under this section.

(4) An inspector may carry out an inspection in order to check compliance with —

- (a) the conditions subject to which a licence is granted;
 - (b) provision made by or under this Ordinance which is relevant to the carrying on of an activity to which a licence relates.
- (5) An inspector may, for the purpose of carrying out an inspection under subsection (4), enter —
- (a) premises specified in a licence as premises on which the carrying on of an activity is authorised;
 - (b) premises on which the inspector reasonably believes an activity to which a licence relates is being carried on.
- (6) Subsection (5) does not authorise entry to any part of premises which is used as a private dwelling unless 24 hours' notice of the intended entry is given to the occupier.
- (7) An inspector may carry out an inspection in order to —
- (a) check compliance with regulations which relate to animals bred or kept for farming purposes;
 - (b) ascertain whether any offence under or by virtue of this Ordinance has been or is being committed in relation to such animals.
- (8) An inspector may enter premises which he or she reasonably believes to be premises on which animals are bred or kept for farming purposes in order to carry out an inspection under subsection (7).
- (9) Subsection (8) does not authorise entry to any part of premises which is used as a private dwelling.
- (10) An inspector or police officer may enter any premises for the purpose of this section with the consent of the owner or occupier or on the authority of a warrant issued under section 38.
[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 ss.25, 26 and 28]

38. Entry and search under warrant in connection with offences

- (1) Subject to subsection (2), a justice of the peace may, on the application of an inspector or a police officer, issue a warrant authorising an inspector or a police officer to enter premises, at any reasonable hour, accompanied by any person or persons authorised by the warrant, and if necessary using reasonable force, in order to search for evidence of the commission of an offence under this Ordinance.
- (2) The power to issue a warrant under subsection (1) is exercisable only if the justice of the peace is satisfied that —
- (a) there are reasonable grounds for believing that —

- (i) an offence under this Ordinance has been committed on the premises; or
- (ii) evidence of the commission of an offence under this Ordinance is to be found on the premises; and

(b) section 39 is satisfied in relation to the premises.

(3) Section 22 of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Ordinance 2014 (power of police officer to enter and search premises for purpose of arresting a person) applies to an offence under this Ordinance as if this Ordinance were expressly added to the list of provisions in that section.

(4) A person who wilfully hinders or obstructs the lawful execution of a warrant issued under subsection (1) by an inspector or police officer or any person authorised by that warrant to accompany the inspector or police officer, commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 6 months or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 ss.23 and 24 adapted]

39. Conditions for issue of warrant

(1) This section is satisfied in relation to premises if any of the following 4 conditions is met.

(2) The first condition is that the whole of the premises is used as a private dwelling and the occupier has been informed of the decision to apply for a warrant.

(3) The second condition is that any part of the premises is not used as a private dwelling and that the occupier of the premises has —

- (a) been informed of the decision to seek entry to the premises and of the reasons for that decision;

- (b) failed to allow entry to the premises on being requested to do so by an inspector or a police officer; and

- (c) been informed of the decision to apply for a warrant.

(4) The third condition is that —

- (a) the premises are unoccupied or the occupier is absent; and

- (b) notice of intention to apply for a warrant has been left in a conspicuous place on the premises.

(5) The fourth condition is that it is inappropriate to inform the occupier of the decision to apply for a warrant because —

- (a) it would defeat the object of entering the premises; or

- (b) entry is required as a matter of urgency.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.52]

Disqualification and deprivation

40. Orders with respect to licences

(1) If a person is convicted of an offence under this Ordinance, the court by or before which the person is convicted may, instead of or in addition to dealing with the person in any other way, make an order —

- (a) cancelling any licence held by the person;
- (b) disqualifying the person, for a period it thinks fit, from holding a licence.

(2) The court by which an order under subsection (1)(b) is made may —

- (a) specify a period during which the offender may not make an application under section 42(1) for termination of the order;
- (b) suspend the operation of the order pending an appeal.

41. Disqualification generally

(1) If a person is convicted of an offence under this Ordinance, the court by or before which the person is convicted may, instead of or in addition to dealing with the person in any other way, make an order disqualifying the person for a period the court thinks fit.

(2) Disqualification may be imposed on a person from taking part in one or more, or all, of the following (as specified in the order) —

- (a) owning animals;
- (b) keeping animals;
- (c) participating in the keeping of animals;
- (d) being party to an arrangement under which the person is entitled to control or influence the way in which animals are kept;
- (e) dealing in animals;
- (f) transporting animals; or
- (g) arranging for the transport of animals.

(3) Disqualification under subsection (1) may be imposed in relation to animals generally, or in relation to animals of one or more kinds.

(4) The court by which an order under subsection (1) is made may specify a period during which the offender may not make an application under section 42 (1) for termination of the order.

(5) The court by which an order under subsection (1) is made may —

(a) suspend the operation of the order pending an appeal; or

(b) if it appears to the court that the offender owns or keeps an animal to which the order applies - suspend the operation of the order for such period as it thinks necessary for enabling alternative arrangements to be made in respect of the animal.

(6) If a court decides not to make an order under subsection (1) in relation to an offender, it must—

(a) give its reasons for the decision in open court; and

(b) cause them to be entered in the register of its proceedings.

(7) A person who breaches a disqualification imposed by an order under subsection (1) commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 12 months or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.34 adapted]

42. Termination of disqualification under section 40 or 41

(1) A person who is disqualified by virtue of an order under section 40 or 41 may apply to the appropriate court for the termination of the order.

(2) No application under subsection (1) may be made —

(a) within a year of the order being made;

(b) if a previous application under that subsection has been made in relation to the same order - within a year of the previous application being decided.

(c) before the end of any period specified under subsection (5) in relation to the order.

(3) On an application under subsection (1), the court may —

(a) terminate the disqualification;

(b) vary the disqualification so as to make it less onerous; or

(c) refuse the application.

(4) When deciding an application under subsection (1), the court must have regard to the character of the applicant, the applicant's conduct since the imposition of the disqualification and any other circumstances of the case.

(5) If the court refuses an application under subsection (1), it may specify a period during which the applicant may not make a further application under that subsection in relation to the order concerned.

(6) The court may order an applicant under subsection (1) to pay all or part of the costs of the application.

(7) In subsection (1), the reference to the appropriate court is to —

(a) the court which made the order under section 40 or 41; or

(b) in the case of an order made by the Magistrate's Court – that court or the Summary Court.
[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.43 adapted]

43. Seizure of animals in connection with disqualification

(1) If —

(a) a court makes an order under section 41(1); and

(b) it appears to the court that the person to whom the order applies owns or keeps any animal contrary to the disqualification imposed by the order, the court may order that all animals the person owns or keeps contrary to the disqualification be taken into possession.

(2) If a person is convicted of an offence under section 41(7) because of owning or keeping an animal in breach of disqualification under section 41(1), the court by or before which the person is convicted may order that all animals the person owns or keeps in breach of the disqualification be taken into possession.

(3) An order under subsection (1) or (2), so far as relating to any animal owned by the person subject to disqualification, has effect as an order for the disposal of the animal.

(4) Any animal taken into possession pursuant to an order under subsection (1) or (2) that is not owned by the person subject to disqualification must be dealt with in the manner the appropriate court may order.

(5) A court may not make an order for disposal under subsection (4) unless it —

(a) has given the owner of the animal an opportunity to be heard; or

(b) is satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to communicate with the owner.

(6) If a court makes an order under subsection (4) for the disposal of an animal, the owner may appeal against the order to the Supreme Court.

(7) In subsection (4), the reference to the appropriate court is to —

- (a) the court which made the order under subsection (1) or (2); or
- (b) in the case of an order made by the Magistrate's Court – that court or the Summary Court.

(8) In this section, references to disposing of an animal include destroying it.

44. Deprivation orders

(1) If the person convicted of an offence under this Ordinance is the owner of an animal in relation to which the offence was committed, the court by or before which the person is convicted may, instead of or in addition to dealing with the person in any other way, make an order depriving the person of ownership of the animal and for its disposal.

(2) If the animal in respect of which an order under subsection (1) is made has any dependent offspring, the order may include provision depriving the person to whom it relates of ownership of the offspring and for its disposal.

(3) If a court makes an order under subsection (1) or (2), it may —

- (a) appoint a person to carry out, or arrange for the carrying out of, the order;
- (b) require any person who has possession of an animal to which the order applies to deliver it up to enable the order to be carried out;
- (c) give directions with respect to the carrying out of the order;
- (d) confer additional powers (including power to enter premises where an animal to which the order applies is being kept) for the purpose of, or in connection with, the carrying out of the order;
- (e) order the offender to reimburse the expenses of carrying out the order.

(4) Directions under subsection (3)(c) may —

- (a) specify the manner in which an animal is to be disposed of; or
- (b) delegate the decision about the manner in which an animal is to be disposed of to a person appointed under subsection (3)(a).

(5) If a court decides not to make an order under subsection (1) or (2) in relation to an offender, it must —

- (a) give its reasons for the decision in open court; and
- (b) cause them to be entered in the register of its proceedings.

(6) In subsection (1), the reference to an animal in relation to which an offence was committed includes, in the case of an offence under section 27, an animal which took part in an animal fight in relation to which the offence was committed.

(7) In this section, references to disposing of an animal include destroying it.

45. Destruction in the interests of the animal

(1) The court by or before which a person is convicted of any offence under this Ordinance may order the destruction of an animal in relation to which the offence was committed if it is satisfied, on the basis of evidence given by the Senior Veterinary Officer, that it is appropriate to do so in the interests of the animal.

(2) A court may not make an order under subsection (1) unless it —

- (a) has given the owner of the animal an opportunity to be heard; or
- (b) is satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to communicate with the owner.

(3) If a court makes an order under subsection (1), it may —

- (a) appoint a person to carry out, or arrange for the carrying out of, the order;
- (b) require a person who has possession of the animal to deliver it up to enable the order to be carried out;
- (c) give directions with respect to the carrying out of the order (including directions about how the animal is to be dealt with until it is destroyed);
- (d) confer additional powers (including power to enter premises where the animal is being kept) for the purpose of, or in connection with, the carrying out of the order;
- (e) order the offender or another person to reimburse the expenses of carrying out the order.

(4) If a court makes an order under subsection (1), the offender and, if different, the owner of the animal may appeal against the order to the Supreme Court;

(5) Subsection (4) does not apply if the court by which the order is made directs that it is appropriate in the interests of the animal that the carrying out of the order should not be delayed.

(6) In subsection (1), the reference to an animal in relation to which an offence was committed includes, in the case of an offence under section 27(1) or (2) (fighting), an animal which took part in an animal fight in relation to which the offence was committed.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.37]

46. Sections 43 to 45: Supplementary provisions

(1) The court by which an order under any of sections 43 to 45 is made may —

- (a) appoint a person to carry out, or arrange for the carrying out of, the order;
- (b) require any person who has possession of an animal to which the order applies to deliver it up to enable the order to be carried out;
- (c) give directions with respect to the carrying out of the order;
- (d) confer additional powers (including power to enter premises where an animal to which the order applies is being kept) for the purpose of, or in connection with, the carrying out of the order;
- (e) order the person subject to disqualification, or another person, to reimburse the expenses of carrying out the order.

(2) Directions under subsection (1)(c) may —

- (a) specify the manner in which an animal is to be disposed of; or
- (b) delegate the decision about the manner in which an animal is to be disposed of to a person appointed under subsection (1)(a).

(3) In deciding how to exercise its powers under sections 43 to 45 and this section, the court must have regard, amongst other things, to —

- (a) the desirability of protecting the value of any animal to which the order applies; and
- (b) the desirability of avoiding increasing any expenses which a person may be ordered to reimburse.

(4) In deciding how to exercise a power delegated under subsection (2)(b), a person must have regard, amongst other things, to the things mentioned in subsection (3)(a) and (b).

(5) If the owner of an animal ordered to be disposed of under section 43, 44 or 45 is subject to a liability by virtue of subsection (1)(e), any amount to which the person is entitled as a result of sale of the animal may be reduced by an amount equal to that liability.

47. Forfeiture of equipment used in offences

(1) If a person is convicted of an offence under this Ordinance, the court by or before which the person is convicted may order any qualifying item which is shown to the satisfaction of the court to relate to the offence to be —

- (a) forfeited; and
- (b) destroyed or dealt with in a manner specified in the order.

(2) The reference in subsection (1) to a qualifying item is —

(a) in the case of a conviction for an offence under section 6 - to anything designed or adapted for causing suffering to an animal;

(b) in the case of a conviction for an offence under any of sections 16 to 18 - to anything designed or adapted for administering any poison or drug or substance to an animal;

(c) in the case of a conviction for an offence under section 25 - to anything designed or adapted for carrying out a surgical procedure on an animal;

(d) in the case of a conviction for an offence under section 26 in relation to a dog's tail - to anything designed or adapted for removing the whole or any part of a dog's tail;

(e) in the case of a conviction for an offence under section 27(1) or (2) - to anything designed or adapted for use in connection with an animal fight;

(f) in the case of a conviction for an offence under section 27(3) - to a video recording of an animal fight, including anything on or in which the recording is kept.

(3) The court must not order anything to be forfeited under subsection (1) if a person claiming to be the owner of it or otherwise interested in it applies to be heard by the court, unless the person has been given an opportunity to show cause why the order should not be made.

(4) An expression used in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of subsection (2) has the same meaning as in the provision referred to in that paragraph.

(5) This section does not limit the power of a court to make a deprivation order under section 44 of this Ordinance or under section 617 of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Ordinance 2014. [UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.40]

48. Orders under sections 43 to 47: Pending appeals

(1) Nothing may be done under an order under any of sections 43 to 47 with respect to an animal, unless —

(a) any period for giving notice of appeal against the order has expired;

(b) the period for giving notice of appeal against the conviction on which the order was made has expired; and

(c) if the order or conviction is the subject of an appeal - the appeal has been determined or withdrawn.

(2) If the effect of an order is suspended under subsection (1) —

(a) no requirement imposed or directions given in connection with the order has effect; but

(b) the court may give directions about how any animal to which the order applies is to be dealt with during the suspension.

(3) Directions under subsection (3)(b) may, in particular —

- (a) authorise the animal to be taken into possession;
- (b) authorise the removal of the animal to a place of safety;
- (c) authorise the animal to be cared for either on the premises where it was being kept when it was taken into possession or at some other place;
- (d) appoint a person to carry out, or arrange for the carrying out, of the directions;
- (e) require any person who has possession of the animal to deliver it up for the purposes of the directions;
- (f) confer additional powers (including power to enter premises where the animal is being kept) for the purpose of, or in connection with, the carrying out of the directions;
- (g) provide for the recovery of any expenses in relation to removal or care of the animal which are incurred in carrying out the directions.

(5) Any expenses a person is directed to pay under subsection (4)(g) are recoverable summarily as a civil debt.

(6) If the effect of an order under section 44 (Deprivation) is suspended under subsection (1) the person to whom the order relates may not sell or part with any animal to which the order applies.

(7) A person who fails to comply with subsection (6) commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 6 months or a fine at level 4 on the standard scale.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.41]

Enforcement generally

49. Time limits for prosecutions

A prosecution for an offence under this Ordinance must be brought —

- (a) within 3 years after the commission of the offence; and
- (b) within 6 months after the date on which evidence which the prosecution thinks is sufficient to justify the proceedings comes to the knowledge of the prosecution.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.31; Game Act 1831 s.41]

50. Power to stop and detain vehicles

(1) A police officer in uniform or, if accompanied by such a police officer, an inspector may stop and detain a vehicle for the purpose of entering and searching it in the exercise of a power conferred in relation to premises —

- (a) by section 13(1); or

(b) by a warrant under section 48.

(2) A police officer in uniform may stop and detain a vehicle for the purpose of entering and searching it in the exercise of a power conferred by —

(a) section 28(1); or

(b) a warrant under section 38.

(3) If accompanied by a police officer in uniform, an inspector may stop and detain a vehicle for the purpose of entering it and carrying out an inspection in the exercise of a power conferred by—

(a) section 37; or

(b) a warrant under section 38.

(4) A vehicle may be detained for as long as is reasonably required to permit a search or inspection to be carried out (including the exercise of any related power under this Ordinance either at the place where the vehicle was first detained or nearby.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.54]

51. Power to detain vessels and aircraft

(1) If an inspector or a police officer certifies in writing that he or she is satisfied that an offence under this Ordinance is being or has been committed on board a vessel in port or a landed aircraft, the vessel or aircraft may be detained.

(2) A certificate under subsection (1) must —

(a) specify each offence to which it relates; and

(b) set out the inspector's or officer's reasons for being satisfied that each offence to which it relates is being or has been committed.

(3) An officer who detains a vessel or aircraft in reliance on a certificate under subsection (1) must as soon as reasonably practicable give a copy of it to the master or person in charge of the vessel or aircraft.

(4) A vessel or aircraft may be detained under subsection (1) until the Governor otherwise directs.

(5) The Governor may by regulations make such other provision for the detention of vessels or aircraft in relation to offences under or by virtue of this Ordinance as the Governor thinks fit.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.55 adapted]

52. Obtaining of documents in connection with carrying out orders, etc.

(1) If —

(a) an order is made or directions are given under this Ordinance for the deprivation, taking into possession, seizure or destruction of an animal is in effect; and

(b) documents which are relevant to the carrying out of the order or directions are in the possession or under the control of the owner of the animal, the owner must, if so required by a person authorised to carry out the order, deliver the documents to that person as soon as practicable and in any event within 10 days after the owner is notified of the requirement.

(2) A person who fails without reasonable excuse to comply with subsection (1) commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 6 months or a fine at level 4 on the standard scale.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.56 adapted]

PART 5 – MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

53. Service of documents

(1) Any notice or other document required or authorised by this Ordinance to be served on any person may be served by —

(a) delivering it to the person;

(b) leaving it at the person's usual or last known address (whether residential or otherwise);

(c) sending it to the person by post at that address; or

(d) sending it to the person by electronic means, if the person has facilities to receive such communications.

(2) Any notice or other document so required or authorised to be served on a corporate body is duly served on it if served on the secretary or clerk of the body.

(3) For the purposes of this section, the proper address of any person is, in the case of the secretary or clerk of a body corporate, that of the registered or principal office of that body, and in any other case the last address of the person to be served which is known to the Governor.

(4) This section does not affect section 9 of the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance relating to service by post.

54. Regulations

(1) The Governor may by regulations make further provision about any matter provided for in this Ordinance.

(2) The regulations may include, but are not limited to, provisions regulating —

- (a) the functions and powers of inspectors;
- (b) the use of poisons to destroy animals;
- (c) the need for and issuing of licences for prescribed purposes.

(3) If the regulations include provisions relating to licences, they may include provisions —

- (a) to require persons to hold a licence for specified activities in relation to animals;
- (b) to prescribe —
 - (i) the form of an application for a licence;
 - (ii) the particulars to be provided in an application for a licence;
 - (iii) the fees payable for the issue of licences; or
 - (iv) the conditions that may be attached to a licence; or
- (c) that breach of a condition of a licence or of the regulations is an offence.

(4) Power to make regulations under this section includes power —

- (a) to provide that breach of a regulation is an offence carrying a maximum penalty of 6 months imprisonment or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both;
- (b) to apply relevant post-conviction powers in relation to convictions for an offence under the regulations;
- (c) to make provision for fees or other charges in relation to the carrying out of functions under the regulations;
- (d) to make different provision for different cases or areas;
- (e) to provide for exemptions from a provision of the regulations, either subject to specified conditions or without conditions;
- (f) to provide for any other matter needed to give effect to this Ordinance;
- (g) to make incidental, supplementary, consequential or transitional provision or savings.

(5) Before making regulations under this section, the Governor must publish a draft of the regulations for public consultation.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 ss.6 and 12 (part)]

55. Codes of practice

(1) The Director may issue, and from time to time revise, one or more codes of practice for the purpose of providing practical guidance in respect of any provision made by this Ordinance or by regulations made under it.

(2) The Director must —

- (a) keep the codes of practice under review; and
- (b) issue new or revised codes when necessary.

(3) If the Director proposes to issue (or revise) a code of practice, the Director must publish a draft of the code for public consultation, specifying —

- (a) whether it is a new code or a replacement for an existing one; and
- (b) the date on which the code comes into force.

(4) If after consulting as required by subsection (3) the Director decides to proceed with a draft (either in its original form or with any modifications as the Director thinks fit), the Governor must lay a copy of it before the Legislative Assembly.

(5) A code (or revised code) —

- (a) comes into force on a day the Director by order appoints; and
- (b) may be published in any manner the Director considers appropriate.

(6) A person's failure to comply with a provision of a code of practice issued under this section does not of itself render the person liable to proceedings of any kind, but in any proceedings against a person for an offence under this Ordinance —

- (a) failure to comply with a relevant provision of a code of practice issued under this section may be relied upon as tending to establish liability; and
- (b) compliance with a relevant provision of such a code of practice may be relied upon as tending to negative liability.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.14 and reg. 4 of the Livestock & Meat Products (Welfare of Livestock) Regulations]

56. Amendment of Schedule

(1) The Governor may by order amend the Schedule to this Ordinance.

(2) An order under subsection (1) —

- (a) may make such transitional and consequential provision as appears to the Governor to be necessary or expedient; and

(b) requires the approval of the Legislative Assembly.
[UK Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976 s.8]

57. Repeal of laws

The Animals (Amendment) Ordinance (“the repealed Ordinance”) is repealed.

58. Savings

(1) Subject to subsection (4), all items of subsidiary legislation made under the repealed Ordinance continue in force as if made under the corresponding provision of this Ordinance until amended or replaced under this Ordinance.

(2) If there is no corresponding provision of this Ordinance under which an item of subsidiary legislation referred to in subsection (1) could be made or the item is repealed, as the case may be, except that it continues to have effect in relation to proceedings that had commenced before the repeal provided by section 59.

(3) Any legislative instrument made by a person under the repealed Ordinance which could be made or issued by an equivalent person under this Ordinance continues to have effect as if made or issued by that person under this Ordinance until varied or revoked under this Ordinance.

(4) Any delegation, direction, exemption, notice or other non-legislative instrument made or issued by any person under the repealed Ordinance which could be made or issued by an equivalent person under this Ordinance continues to have effect as if made or issued by that person under this Ordinance until varied or revoked under this Ordinance.

59. Transitional provisions

(1) A disqualification of a person convicted of cruelty to animals imposed under the Protection of Animals Act 1911 as amended, and as applied to the Falkland Islands before the commencement of this Part, is deemed to be a disqualification imposed under section 41 of this Ordinance and section 42 applies to such a disqualification.

(2) Any criminal or civil proceedings under the repealed Ordinance that were in progress at the date of commencement of this Part must continue as if this Part had not been enacted.

(3) The Governor may by order make such other transitional provision or savings as the Governor considers necessary or expedient in connection with the coming into force of any provision of this Ordinance.

(4) The power under subsection (1) includes power to make different provision for different cases.

[UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 s.58 adapted]

60. Consequential amendments – Schedule

(1) The Ordinance listed in column 1 of the Schedule is amended in the manner set out in column 2 of the Schedule.

(2) A reference in any other enactment to the repealed Ordinance is, to the extent possible, to be read as a reference to the corresponding provision of this Ordinance.

61. Crown application

(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, this Ordinance binds the Crown.

(2) No contravention by the Crown of any provision of or under this Ordinance makes the Crown criminally liable; but the Supreme Court may declare unlawful any act or omission of the Crown which constitutes such a contravention.

(3) Notwithstanding subsection (1), the provisions of this Ordinance apply to persons in the service of the Crown as they apply to other persons.

(4) If the Governor certifies that it appears to him or her appropriate in the interests of national security that powers of entry conferred by or under this Ordinance should not be exercisable in relation to premises held or used by or on behalf of the Crown and specified in the certificate, those powers are not exercisable in relation to those premises.

(5) In this section, “national security” has the meaning given to that term in section 2 of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Ordinance 2014;

SCHEDULE (section 60)

CONSEQUENTIAL AMENDMENTS

Conservation and Wildlife Ordinance
section 10(4)

Delete “section 8(b) of the Protection of Animals Act 1911 (which restricts the placing on land of poison and poisonous substances) in its application to the Falkland Islands” and substitute “section 16(1) of this Ordinance (Poisoning, etc. of domestic animals)”.

OBJECTS AND REASONS

Introduction

This Bill makes new provision about the welfare and protection of animals. It replaces some of the UK laws about animals that at present apply to the Falkland Islands by virtue of Schedule 1 to the Crimes Ordinance. That Schedule will cease to apply when the Crimes Ordinance 2014 comes into force, as it repeals the existing Crimes Ordinance (including Schedule 1 which contains a list of UK laws on animals).

The Bill's provisions about the welfare of animals are derived from the UK Animal Welfare Act 2006. Most of the UK animal protection laws have been consolidated in that Act and this Bill is in effect a local version of that Act. The 2006 Act does not apply to the Falkland Islands, but its provisions complement the UK laws about animals that do apply in the Falkland Islands. It repeals or amends some of those laws and creates a new concept of a duty to avoid unnecessary suffering to animals and to promote their welfare.

Part 2 of the Bill is derived from the Animal Welfare Act 2006, while Part 3 localises the UK laws on animals that apply to the Falkland Islands. It seeks to protect animals from exploitation and various types of cruel treatment. Part 4 on enforcement is derived from the Animal Welfare Act 2006, and Part 5 contains miscellaneous provisions to complete the legislative scheme.

Some UK enactments that were applied to the Falkland Islands have since been repealed in the UK and are no longer applicable. The present Bill therefore modernises provisions about animal welfare generally, and introduces new provisions about fighting by animals (especially dogs), mutilation of animals, and distressed animals generally. It provides extensive powers of search and seizure.

The Bill also includes the provisions of the Animals (Amendment) Ordinance which is about identification of cats and dogs and seizure of strays – see clauses 34 to 36.

To avoid a lacuna in the laws about animals, it will be necessary to ensure that the Crimes Ordinance 2014 will not come into operation until this Bill has been enacted. It would be appropriate for the commencement dates of the two Ordinances to be synchronised.

Other FI animals laws

This Bill must be read in conjunction with other FI legislation dealing with animals, including the Animal Health Ordinance (which applies to FI the UK Animal Health Act of 1981), and the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance, which implements various EU directives governing the slaughtering of animals for export.

The Livestock and Meat Products (Welfare of Livestock) Regulations have been made under the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance, and Codes of Practice have been issued under them. However, these regulations and codes apply only to livestock, whereas this Bill applies principles of welfare to all animals.

Other Falkland Islands laws on animals include –

- Conservation of Wildlife and Nature Ordinance which protects wild animals from being killed or stolen;
- Dogs Ordinance which is about licensing of dogs and liability for damage by dogs;
- Livestock Ordinance which is about the marking of sheep of cattle and infected livestock;
- Animals and Food (Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance which govern the transport and export of fresh meat;
- the Slaughtering and Inspection Ordinance which is about the inspection of slaughterhouses etc. which has been repealed as this is covered under the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance.

UK statutes

The UK laws on unlawful taking of wild animals, birds and fish (in England referred to as ‘game’) and trespassing for the purpose of killing wild animals, etc. (commonly called ‘poaching’) are not included in the Bill, as there are adequate provisions about unlawful killing of wildlife in the Conservation of Wildlife and Nature Ordinance. The UK laws concerned are –

- Night Poaching Acts 1828 and 1844
- Poaching Prevention Act 1862
- Game Act 1831
- Ground Game Act 1880
- Game Law (Amendment) Act 1960.

The UK laws that have been included in the Bill in whole or part are –

- Protection of Animals Act 1911
- Performing Animals (Regulation) Act 1925
- Cinematograph Films (Animals) Act 1937
- Docking and Nicking of Horses Act 1949
- Animals (Cruel Poisons) Act 1962
- Prevention of Damage by Rabbits Act 1939
- Pests Act 1954
- Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976

There are other laws about animals in the UK – kennels, riding establishments, breeding, etc. but they have not been applied to the Falkland Islands and are not specifically required at this time in the Falklands.

The Bill shows at the foot of each clause the UK derivation.

Notes on clauses

Clause 1 confers a short title and empowers the Governor to specify a commencement date. The commencement will need to be synchronised with that of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 to avoid a lacuna in the animals laws.

Clause 2 defines various terms used in the Bill that are not defined in the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance. It provides that Inspectors for the purposes of the Ordinance will be appointed by the Governor, as is the case under other animals laws. They will normally be veterinary officers.

Clause 3 states who is responsible for the welfare of animals, who might be the owner, the person in possession, the keeper etc.

Clause 4 explains the meaning of “animal” for the purposes of the Bill as being any vertebrate other than a human (not ‘man’ to avoid any gender-specific connotations.) The Governor can extend the definition to non-vertebrates if satisfied that they can experience pain and suffering.

Clause 5 explains the scope of the Bill, as applying to all animals, including livestock. Some provisions apply only to domestic animals, as defined in sub-clause (3). Sub-clause (2) makes it clear that other animals laws are not affected – see the notes above. The term ‘enactment’ includes UK laws that apply to the Falkland Islands. The UK Act specifically excludes scientific research activities from these regulations as the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 exists. This Bill does not exempt scientific research procedures as there is not specific legislation to cover in detail such activities. The term ‘protected’ is used for all animals protected by the UK 2006 act but this was not upheld in the FI Bill as it may have caused confusion with animals that are protected under Conservation laws. Instead all animals are covered in the FI Bill and types of animals (eg domestic versus wild) are specified where relevant.

Clauses 6 to 15 are derived from the UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 and are new to Falkland Islands law but are clauses that are up to date and deliver what is now expected from people and society in the area of animal welfare and preventing cruelty.

Clause 6 prohibits people responsible for domestic animals from causing them unnecessary pain or suffering and defines those terms. This clause is a modernised version of what would have existed in the 1911 Protection of Animals Act that was applied to the Falkland Islands.

Clauses 7 to 11 create positive obligation to promote the welfare of all animals.

Clause 7 makes it an offence for a person responsible for any animal to fail to take steps reasonable in the circumstances to ensure that the needs of the animal are met to the extent required by good practice. In clause 7(2)(c) the word ‘exhibit’ in the UK Act is replaced by ‘show’.

Clause 8 empowers an inspector to issue an improvement notice on any person who appears to be in breach of the obligation in clause 7. The notice must specify how the person is failing to comply, what steps should be taken to comply, and a period within which that must be done. There is a similar power in the Livestock and Meat Products (Welfare of Livestock) Regulations, but limited to livestock.

Clause 9 prohibits the transfer of animals by way of sale or prize to a person under 16. There are exceptions, including giving an animal as a prize or gift to a close relative. In the UK Act the term ‘family context’ is used, but sub-clause (6) spells out the relationship, similar to that in section 228 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014. This is a new legislative clause for the Falkland Islands but as it is part of the UK 2006 Act it was included in the FI Bill as it prevents selling or gifting animals to minors that are not under the direct care or supervision of the adult doing the selling or giving. This clause will ensure that an adult family member that does give or sell an animal to a minor is still responsible for that animal’s welfare.

Clause 10 enables the Governor to make regulations to promote welfare. The power to make regulations is in clause 54, but this clause relates the power to this Part of the Bill.

Clause 11 contemplates that regulations under clause 54 will include the power to issue licences for specified activities under this Part. They would include, for example, scientific research or applying anaesthesia etc. The Governor can rule (presumably under advice from the Veterinary Service) that some activities involving animals may require that the persons carrying out the activities are licensed to do so. The clause does not specify what sort of activities may require a licence. The UK 2006 act also specifies registration but it was felt that such activities requiring licensing or registration are few in the Falklands and that simplifying the requirements to just licensing would be sufficient.

Clauses 12 to 15 relate to domestic animals in distress.

Under clause 12, an inspector or a police officer who reasonably believes that a domestic animal is suffering may take steps to alleviate the suffering, including taking the animal into possession, or having it destroyed. The power to take into possession extends to offspring of the animal. The person responsible for the animal must be notified, and might be ordered to repay the costs of action taken under the clause. This clause is included as if a person does not obey an improvement notice, or the animal(s) is/are suffering to the extent that the time taken to issue and await response to an improvement notice would further detrimentally affect the animal(s), someone must have the power to relieve this suffering as soon as possible. Clause 12 also allows any person outside of Stanley to destroy an animal in severe distress or take steps to alleviate the animal's suffering.

Clauses 13 to 15 make ancillary provisions about action taken under clause 12, including powers of entry and rights of appeal.

Clauses 16 to 26 replace the UK laws that apply to the Falkland Islands as noted above and that are still extant in the UK.

Clauses 16 to 18 regulate the use of poisons for controlling animals. Clause 16 is derived from the UK Animal Welfare Act 2006, while clause 17 and 18 replace existing laws. As these clauses replace section 8(b) of the Protection of Animals Act 1911, the reference to that Act in section 10(4) of the Conservation of Wildlife and Nature Ordinance can be deleted, and that is done by Schedule 2.

Clauses 19 to 21 regulate the use of traps for catching animals. Clause 20 specifies the type of trap that is approved as being a humane spring trap. This section has been simplified and generalised as old legislation gave quite some detail regarding trapping hares and rabbits which is not a frequent habit in the Falklands. It is more likely that cats will be trapped to then be humanely destroyed. These clauses thus refer to the trapping of any animal and ensure that only the spring cage traps are used which can then lead to humane destruction. Snares and other traps that may cause an animal to be trapped by an extremity are prohibited (apart from trapping rodents and other small vermin but these traps must still be inspected and any catch dealt with daily). These clauses are not part of the UK 2006 Act but rather the older Pests Acts and amendments but fit rather well with the FI Welfare Bill so are included.

Clause 22 prohibits the exhibiting and training performing animals. There are exceptions for agricultural or sporting purposes, which would include e.g. sheep dog trials and cattle shows, racing horses and for military or police purposes. This clause is much simplified for the FI Bill as there is not a culture of circuses or animal acts.

Clauses 23 and 24 prohibit the showing or supplying of films involving cruelty to domestic animals.

Clauses 25 and 26 regulate the mutilation of animals except by a veterinary surgeon, or in accordance with a code of practice in respect of livestock (which could be issued under clause 55 if not already issued under the Livestock and Meat Products Ordinance.) The surgical procedures/mutilations that can be carried out by people other than vets on animals of specific ages have not been changed. Any tail docking of dogs is prohibited unless by a vet under suitable anaesthesia.

In the UK there are exemptions for working dogs but this was felt unnecessary for the Falklands as there are no brambles or undergrowth that dogs work in that would cause the issues that led to the exemption in UK. Tail docking of collie pups (as opposed to working spaniels in UK) is not a recognised practice and does not occur in the Falklands. The section regarding prohibition of docking horses tails and banning the import of docked horses was deleted as docking of horses tails does not occur in the Falklands and if it did it would fall under the ‘mutilations’ and ‘unnecessary suffering’ clauses to allow prosecution. If we wished to prohibit docked horses being imported (to reduce the incidence of this occurring elsewhere) this could be incorporated into import protocols.

Clauses 27 to 30 prohibit the promotion of animal fighting. They are derived from the UK Animal Welfare Act 2006. There is power to destroy animals that have been involved in fighting, and a power to order reimbursement of the costs by the offender.

Clauses 31 to 33 are derived from the UK Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976. They use the term ‘unsuitable’ rather than ‘dangerous’ as not all the animals to be imported will be dangerous per se but some might be unsuitable for importing into or keeping in the Falkland Islands because they have specific and specialised husbandry and veterinary needs which may not be able to be met. Therefore it is better to not allow them to be imported and kept here than deal with illness or welfare issues because specialised food or equipment is not available. The clauses are not limited to wild animals, as in the UK Act. The Director is given the power to make a list of unsuitable animals by Order under clause 31.

Clause 32 confers a power to inspect premises, and clause 33 confers a power to seize and dispose of animals without compensation.

Clauses 34 to 36 replace the provisions of the Animals (Amendment) Ordinance which is repealed. These are regulations regarding seizure, re-homing and destruction of stray animals and are not part of the UK Welfare 2006 act but were existing rules in the Falklands and were thought to be relevant enough to be included in this legislation.

Clause 34 relates to the identification of dogs and cats and empowers the Governor to require an identification device to be attached to any specified class or breed of dog or cat. The power is not limited to the purposes of hydatid control as in the Hydatid Control (Dogs) Order. The fees that can be charged are as approved by the Director of Natural Resources. Currently any microchipping is voluntary done by the owner or keeper of animals but this clause will allow an order to be made for compulsory chipping if it is ever felt necessary for welfare or disease control reasons.

Clause 35 empowers an inspector or police officer to seize and destroy stray dogs and cats. The section also allows for a stray to be allocated a new keeper where this is appropriate.

Clause 36 confers on inspectors powers of entry and inspection of premises if they suspect any dog or cat on the premises is in need of treatment or is being caused unnecessary suffering.

Clauses 37 to 52 provide enforcement powers for inspectors and police officers derived from the UK Animal Welfare Act 2006. There are powers of entry, search, seizure and arrest in the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Ordinance 2014, based on the UK Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 ('PACE Act'). However, some of those are limited to imprisonable offences, and not all offences under this Bill are imprisonable, which is why the UK Act 2006 includes these powers. These clauses also replace various enforcement powers contained in individual UK Acts that at present apply in the Falkland Islands, as explained above.

Clauses 37 to 39 confer powers of inspection, including powers of entry under a warrant issued by a justice of the peace if there is a suspected offence. The UK Act specifies inspection and entry onto farms separately but farms can be counted as 'premises' in the FI Welfare Bill and various regulations made under the LMPO allow inspection and entry onto farms.

Clauses 40 to 48 confer powers of disqualification and deprivation on a court which convicts a person of an offence under this Bill. The disqualification may be in respect of a licence, or more generally in respect of the right to keep an animal etc. Animals may be seized if kept in breach of a disqualification, and convicted people can be deprived of property used in connection with an offence.

Clauses 49 to 52 are additional provisions about enforcement generally.

Clause 49 sets an overall time limit of 3 years after the offence for bringing a prosecution; but a limit of only 6 months after evidence of an offence comes to light.

Clause 50 confers power to stop and detain vehicles as if they are premises if there would be a right to enter premises under clause 13 or 48.

Clause 51 confers power to detain vessels and aircraft (but not hovercraft) if an inspector or police officer is satisfied that an offence under the Ordinance is being or has been committed on board a vessel in port or a landed aircraft. This provision would allow for application of UK merchant shipping and civil aviation law.

Clause 52 requires a person who has documents relevant to an offence under the Ordinance to deliver them up.

Clauses 53 to 61 are miscellaneous and final provisions common to many Bills.

Clause 53 specifies how documents are to be served, in addition to the provisions in the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance.

Clause 54 enables the Governor to make regulations to implement the Ordinance. They would be made after consulting the Executive Council (as required by the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance) and would then be laid on the table of the Legislative Assembly but be subject only to a negative resolution.

Clause 55 enables the Director of Natural Resources to issue Codes of Practice as guidelines to owners etc. of animals. There are existing Codes of Practice issued under the Livestock and Meat Products (Welfare of Livestock) Regulations. These will run in parallel with any codes issued under this Bill in relation to other animals.

Clause 56 enables the Governor to amend the Schedule by order. Unlike regulations under clause 54, an order amending the Schedule requires the positive approval of the Legislative Assembly.

Clause 57 repeals the Animals (Amendment) Ordinance.

Clauses 58 and 59 make savings and transitional provisions about things done under the repealed laws or that need to be done under the new law. They are standard provisions in a Bill that replaces existing laws.

Clause 60 provides that items in the Schedule are amended as a consequence of the enacting of the Bill.

Clause 61 makes it clear that the Crown is bound by the provisions of the Ordinance. This avoids any suggestion that the public service is not covered by the legislation in view of section 66 of the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance.

The Schedule 1 lists consequential amendments as provided by clause 60. There is only one item. If other consequential changes come to light, they can be added by the Governor using the power in clause 56.

(published: 2016)

for

AN ORDINANCE

To provide for the licensing of activities related to communication services; to provide for the establishment of a regulator responsible for the development, operation and regulation of communication services and to provide for connected matters.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the Falkland Islands —

PART 1 PRELIMINARY

1. Title

This Ordinance is the Communications Ordinance 2016.

2. Commencement

- (1) This Ordinance comes into force on a day specified by the Governor by notice published in the Gazette.
- (2) Different dates may be specified for different purposes.

3. Overview

This Ordinance deals with the following matters —

- (a) Part 2 sets objectives and principles for the exercise of functions under this Ordinance;
- (b) Part 3 establishes, and makes general provision about, the Communications Regulator (“the Regulator”);
- (c) Part 4 requires, and makes provision about, electronic communications licences;
- (d) Part 5 requires, and makes provision about, broadcasting station licences;
- (e) Part 6 makes provision about radio spectrum management (including provision about licensing);

(f) Part 7 makes provision about the grant of an exclusive licence for the provision of telecommunications services;

(g) Part 8 makes general provision about fees;

(h) Part 9 makes provision about consumer standards and protection in relation to services provided in accordance with this Ordinance;

(i) Part 10 makes provision about the public control of electronic communications services;

(j) Part 11 creates offences in connection with provisions of this Ordinance, and makes general provision about offences created by other Parts;

(k) Part 12 makes provision about the use of land in connection with electronic communications services;

(l) Part 13 makes provision about public interest retention and interception of data and surveillance;

(m) Part 14 establishes, and makes provision about the functions of, the Telecommunications Appeals Panel.

4. Interpretation

In this Ordinance —

“apparatus” includes any equipment, machinery or device (including, in particular, wire and cable and the casing or coating of wire or cable);

“audio-visual media service” means a service for the communication of material to be displayed as a combination of sounds and pictures;

“broadcasting station” means an installation for making broadcasts;

“carriage service” means a service consisting wholly or partly of transmitting signals by means of a network and the expression —

(a) does not include a content service, and

(b) does include the provision of services ancillary to the conveyance of signals and conditional access or other services to enable customers to access a content service;

“class licence” means the licence referred to in section 39;

“content service” means a service either for the provision of material with a view to its being comprised in signals conveyed by means of a network or that is an audio-visual media service;

“domain name” has the meaning given by section 88(3);

“electronic communications objectives” means the objectives set out in section 5;

“electronic communications” means the conveyance of signals by the use of electrical, magnetic or electromagnetic energy;

“electronic communications data” means data relating to electronic communications;

“electronic communications equipment” means equipment designed or intended to be used in connection with electronic communications;

“electronic communications network” means a network of electronic communications services;

“electronic communications services” includes the provision of a carriage service or a content service, including both public and private, mobile and fixed (unless otherwise stated) voice telephony, data and internet services;

“individual licence” has the meaning given by section 35;

“interfere”, in relation to a communication, includes fail to deliver, delay delivery, intercept, divert, monitor, and make personal use of the communication;

“the licence requirement” has the meaning given by section 21(2);

“licensee” includes any subsidiary undertaking included within the scope of a licence in accordance with section 38(1);

“message” means any communication, whether oral, written, printed or displayed or conveyed by any means;

“network” means a system used or designed to be used to send signals of any kind, including anything (including data) required to make the system operate;

“numbering plan” means the plan made by the Regulator under section 87;

“programme” means a set of moving images with or without sound constituting an individual item within a schedule or a catalogue established by an audio-visual media service provider and whose form and content is comparable to the form and content of television broadcasting;

“radio” means the transmission or reception over any distance without connecting wires of images and other visual matter and of sounds, signs or signals by electrical means;

“the Regulator” means the Communications Regulator appointed under section 7;

“the regulatory principles” means the principles specified in section 6;

“signal” includes —

(a) anything comprising speech, music, sounds, visual images or communications or data of any description; and

(b) signals serving for the communication of anything between persons, between a person and a thing or between things, or for the actuation or control of any apparatus;

“radio spectrum licence” means a licence issued under the terms of section 56;

“spectrum plan” means the spectrum plan published pursuant to section 55;

“state assets” means any radio spectrum, national telephone numbers and domain names;

“television broadcast” means an audio-visual media service provided by an audio-visual media service provider for simultaneous viewing of programmes on the basis of a programme schedule;

“universal service” means those services specified pursuant to section 65; and

“wireless telegraphy” means the emission or receipt of signals over a path of electromagnetic energy of a frequency not exceeding 3000 gigahertz where that path —

(a) serves for the conveyance of messages, sound or visual images (whether or not the messages, sound or images are actually received by anyone), or for operating or controlling machinery or apparatus; or

(b) is used in connection with determining position, bearing or distance, or for gaining information as to the presence, absence, position or motion of an object or of a class of object; and

“with lawful authority” means in accordance with a provision of this Ordinance or any other enactment, in accordance with a provision of a licence issued under this Ordinance, in connection with or in the course of activities licensed under this Ordinance, in accordance with a warrant, notice or requirement issued under this Ordinance, or in accordance with an order of a court.

PART 2 OBJECTIVES AND PRINCIPLES

5. Electronic communications objectives

The electronic communications objectives for the purposes of this Ordinance are —

(a) to promote the public interest generally in relation to electronic communications;

(b) to facilitate effective communication between the people of the Falkland Islands and the rest of the world;

(c) to ensure effective regulation of the supply and operation of electronic communications services;

- (d) to enhance the efficiency of the Falkland Islands' commercial electronic communications sector;
- (e) to support the growth and development of the Falkland Islands' economy;
- (f) to promote investment and innovation in electronic communications networks and services;
- (g) to promote optimal use of radio spectrum;
- (h) to provide affordable access to high quality networks and carriage services in all regions of the Falkland Islands so far as reasonably practicable;
- (i) to maintain public safety and security;
- (j) to contribute to the protection of personal privacy;
- (k) to avoid public nuisance through electronic communications so far as reasonably practicable;
- (l) to limit adverse impact of networks and carriage services on the environment so far as reasonably practicable;
- (m) to ensure access to all key electronic communications services;
- (n) to encourage infrastructure investment into the Falkland Islands;
- (o) to provide continued growth in international capacity to support increasing usage levels, so far as economically feasible;
- (p) to support the delivery of public sector services (including education and healthcare);
- (q) to strengthen the regulatory environment that supports development of the Falkland Islands' electronic communications sector; and
- (r) to promote innovative services to support the needs of the people of the Falkland Islands.

6. Regulatory principles

The regulatory principles for the purposes of this Ordinance are —

- (a) that public policy in relation to electronic communications should aim to pursue the electronic communications objectives;
- (b) that the needs of the people of the Falkland Islands are the paramount consideration in operating the licensing regimes under this Ordinance;
- (c) that additional regulatory or administrative measures should be introduced only —

- (i) where the Regulator is satisfied that the existing licensing regimes are insufficient for the efficient and effective pursuit of the electronic communications objectives;
- (ii) having regard to the costs and impact of those measures on affected parties (including consumers, licensees and other undertakings);
- (iii) if the Regulator is satisfied that the measures are proportionate, transparent, accountable, fair and non-discriminatory.

PART 3

THE COMMUNICATIONS REGULATOR

Nature and status

7. Appointment

- (1) The Governor must appoint a person as the Communications Regulator (“the Regulator”) to perform functions conferred by this Ordinance and any other enactment.
- (2) The Regulator may be an individual or a body corporate.

8. Independence

- (1) No public authority may give general or specific directions to the Regulator.
- (2) Subsection (1) is subject to section 54(2).

9. Supplemental

The Governor may by regulations make provision for —

- (a) the appointment of staff of the Regulator;
- (b) remuneration and allowances; and
- (c) the conduct of the Regulator’s proceedings (which may include provision for delegation).

Functions

10. General duties

- (1) In carrying out its functions the Regulator must —
 - (a) aim to pursue the electronic communications objectives,
 - (b) have regard to the regulatory principles; and
 - (c) have regard to any other principles which appear to the Regulator to represent best practice (having regard to all the circumstances of the Falkland Islands).

(2) Where two or more electronic communications objectives or other principles conflict in relation to a matter or class of matters, the Regulator must aim to strike an appropriate balance.

(3) In introducing or developing a regulatory or administrative measure the Regulator must publish a document —

(a) specifying the electronic communications objectives that are advanced by the measure; and

(b) demonstrating how the regulatory principles have been complied with.

11. Specific duties

The Regulator has the following functions —

(a) to regulate the electronic communications sector by exercising powers under this Ordinance (in particular, to issue licences and exemption determinations);

(b) to manage state assets in accordance with this Ordinance;

(c) to administer the licence fee system under this Ordinance;

(d) if requested by the Governor or the Government, to represent the Falkland Islands in relation to international organisations or obligations connected with electronic communications;

(e) to exercise functions conferred on it by this Ordinance or any other enactment; and

(f) to undertake other functions connected with electronic communications at the request of the Government (but this paragraph is subject to section 8(1)).

12. General powers

(1) The Regulator may do anything it considers necessary or desirable for the purpose of pursuing the electronic communications objectives in accordance with the regulatory principles.

(2) In particular, the Regulator may —

(a) exercise the powers given to it under this Ordinance;

(b) issue or approve codes of practice, directions, decisions, statements, instructions, notifications and technical rules and standards;

(c) publish and maintain registers or lists;

(d) institute civil or criminal proceedings;

(e) conduct inquiries, investigations under section 13 and hearings;

- (f) conduct market investigations and reviews;
- (g) require the provision of documents and information;
- (h) publish the results of action taken under paragraph (e) or documents or information provided under paragraph (f); and
- (i) make awards of compensation (in accordance with any relevant law) in respect of loss or damage suffered by consumers, and make provision for the enforcement of awards.

(3) Failure to have regard to or comply with codes of practice, directions, decisions, statements, instructions, notifications and technical rules and standards issued or approved by the Regulator does not of itself give rise to civil or criminal liability; but —

(a) a court or tribunal (including an arbitral tribunal) may have regard to any of those instruments issued or approved by the Regulator that appears to the court or tribunal to be relevant to a matter before it; and

(b) licences and other instruments under this Ordinance may require parties to have regard to, or comply with, a specified instrument or class of instrument issued or approved by the Regulator (which may include instruments issued or approved after the grant of the licence).

(4) Failure to comply with a requirement of the Regulator under subsection (2) does not give of itself give rise to civil or criminal liability; but —

(a) a court or tribunal (including an arbitral tribunal) may have regard to a failure that appears relevant to a matter before it; and

(b) licences and other instruments under this Ordinance may require parties to comply with requirements of the Regulator.

(5) The Regulator may delegate a function under this Ordinance to a public body.

(6) Subsection (5) does not apply to a power to issue licences.

Enforcement powers

13. Compliance investigations

(1) The Regulator may investigate an actual, alleged or suspected contravention of —

(a) a provision made by or by virtue of this Ordinance, or

(b) a licence issued under this Ordinance.

(2) For the purposes of an investigation the Regulator may —

(a) require the provision of information or documents; or

(b) enter premises and inspect, copy and retain documents, in accordance with a warrant issued under section 100.

(3) The Regulator may, with the approval of the Governor, appoint an agent —

(a) to conduct an investigation, and

(b) to exercise the Regulator's powers under this section in respect of that investigation.

(4) The Governor may not approve the appointment of an agent under subsection (3) unless satisfied that —

(a) the agent has appropriate qualifications, experience and competence, and

(b) all necessary safeguards and mechanisms for transparency and accountability are in place.

14. Enforcement orders

(1) This section applies where the Regulator thinks that a person (whether a licensee or not) has failed to comply with a provision of —

(a) this Ordinance, or

(b) a licence or other instrument issued under this Ordinance.

(2) The Regulator may by order in writing require the person to —

(a) take action specified in the order, or

(b) refrain from taking any action specified in the order.

(3) The Regulator may by order in writing require the person to pay a penalty.

(4) The Governor must make regulations for penalties under this section; and the regulations must, in particular, make provision —

(a) for notice to be given of intent to impose a penalty;

(b) for an opportunity to make representations to be given before the imposition of a penalty;

(c) for the form and content of orders;

(d) setting a maximum penalty (or different maximums for different classes of cases);

(e) for the calculation of the amount of penalty to be paid (which may include provision for the exercise of a discretion by reference to criteria specified in regulations, and may include provision for calculation by reference to a percentage of a business' turnover or in any other manner specified in the regulations);

(f) requiring notice of orders to be given to persons specified in the order;

(g) for the publication of orders.

(5) An order is enforceable as if it were an order of the Supreme Court.

(6) If an order is made under this section otherwise than as a result of an investigation under section 13 —

(a) it must be made only if the Regulator considers it necessary by reason of urgency;

(b) it must be expressed to last only until an investigation has been concluded; and

(c) as soon as reasonably practicable the Regulator must commence an investigation.

(7) Failure to comply with an order under this section —

(a) is an offence; and

(b) may result in revocation of a licence in accordance with section 45.

15. Determinations of licence and other obligations

(1) The Regulator may make a determination about —

(a) the nature and extent of an obligation imposed on a person by or by virtue of a provision of this Ordinance or of a licence or other instrument under this Ordinance;

(b) the effect of any other provision of or by virtue of this Ordinance or of a licence or other instrument under this Ordinance.

(2) A determination may be made —

(a) on an application by a person who appears to the Regulator to have a sufficient interest in the matter to be determined, or

(b) on the Regulator's own motion.

(3) Before making a determination in respect of an obligation imposed on a person, the Regulator must consult that person and any other person who appears to the Regulator to have a legitimate interest.

(4) Before making any other determination the Regulator must consult such persons as appear to the Regulator to have a legitimate interest.

- (5) The Regulator must issue a determination in writing giving its reasons.
- (6) The Regulator must publish a determination on its website (unless the Regulator is satisfied that public interest in publication is outweighed by commercial or other reasons for confidentiality).
- (7) Where the matter is urgent, the Regulator may issue an interim determination on such terms as it considers appropriate.
- (8) The Governor may make regulations about the procedure to be followed in relation to the making of determinations.
- (9) A determination shall be conclusive for all purposes as to the matters stated in it (subject to appeal under Part 14).

General procedure

16. Consultation

- (1) Before taking regulatory or administrative action under this Ordinance the Regulator must consult any person directly affected by the action and any other person who appears to the Regulator to have a legitimate interest.
- (2) This section is without prejudice to any specific procedures provided by or under a provision of this Ordinance.
- (3) This section —
 - (a) does not apply in relation to determinations under section 15; and
 - (b) is subject to section 18.

17. Publication

- (1) The Regulator must make arrangements for the publication of regulatory or other action taken under this Ordinance if the Regulator believes that —
 - (a) the action is of public significance, and
 - (b) publication is in accordance with the regulatory principles.
- (2) In particular, the Regulator must —
 - (a) publish regulatory and other action on its website as soon as reasonably practicable;
 - (b) provide arrangements for persons to register through the website to receive notice of new action;
 - (c) maintain its website; and

(d) ensure that copies of documents are made available at its principal office for inspection by the public on request during normal business hours without charge.

(3) The Regulator must also consider whether to publish notice of action taken or to be taken in a newspaper.

(4) This section is subject to section 18.

(5) Action is of public significance for the purposes of this section if it is likely —

(a) to have a significant impact on the public;

(b) to have a significant impact on persons or activities in respect of which the Regulator exercises functions; or

(c) to result in a significant change in the Regulator's activities.

18. Confidentiality

(1) The Regulator must not publish or disclose information acquired in the course of the exercise of the Regulator's functions which it considers —

(a) is commercially confidential, or

(b) is or includes personal data.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to publication or disclosure to, or in accordance with an order of, a court.

(3) Information which is provided to the Regulator on the express understanding that it is to be treated as commercially confidential or as being or including personal data, must be treated by the Regulator accordingly for the purposes of subsection (1).

(4) Subsection (1) is subject to the preceding provisions of this Part; but the Regulator may not make a disclosure to which subsection (1) applies in accordance with a provision of this Part unless the Regulator is satisfied that the provision cannot be properly complied with unless the disclosure is made.

19. Alternative Dispute Resolution

(1) The Regulator may —

(a) establish one or more alternative dispute resolution schemes ("ADR schemes") for resolving disputes between licensees, and between licensees and consumers, or

(b) approve one or more ADR schemes proposed by licensees.

(2) Before establishing an ADR scheme the Regulator must consult licensees.

- (3) An ADR scheme may involve —
- (a) mediation (which may be conducted by the Regulator, a person appointed by the Regulator or a person appointed by the parties to a dispute or by a third party);
 - (b) arbitration of specified matters by an expert appointed by the Regulator, the parties or a third party;
 - (c) any other method of alternative dispute resolution which the Regulator is satisfied conforms to best practice in dispute resolution.
- (4) The Regulator may approve an ADR scheme proposed by licensees only if satisfied that it is —
- (a) fair (including non-discriminatory) and transparent;
 - (b) to be administered by persons who are independent of any licensee to which it will apply;
 - (c) to be administered in accordance with the electronic communications objectives; and
 - (d) designed to ensure that individuals exercising functions under the scheme have appropriate qualifications and experience.
- (5) Where the Regulator approves an ADR scheme —
- (a) the Regulator must require persons responsible for the management of the scheme to report to the Regulator at specified intervals (of not more than a year) about its operation; and
 - (b) if the Regulator is not satisfied that the scheme satisfies the conditions in subsection (4) it must withdraw its approval; and a withdrawal may include incidental and transitional provision.
- (6) An ADR scheme established or approved under this section —
- (a) may provide for decisions (including interim and ancillary decisions) to be binding on the parties; and
 - (b) must specify whether participation in the scheme prejudices rights under any other provision of this Ordinance or any other enactment or law.

20. Procedural regulations

- (1) The Governor may make regulations on the procedure to be followed by the Regulator in connection with the performance of its functions.
- (2) The regulations may, in particular, make provision for —
- (a) the preparation and promulgation of instruments under section 12(2)(b);

- (b) the preparation of lists under section 12(2)(c);
 - (c) the conduct of inquiries, investigations, hearings and reviews under section 12(2)(e) and (f);
 - (d) the calculation and payment of compensation under section 12(2)(i).
- (3) Before making regulations under this section the Governor must consult —
- (a) any licensee affected, and
 - (b) such other persons as the Governor thinks appropriate.

PART 4 ELECTRONIC COMMUNICATIONS LICENCES

Requirement for licence

21. Activities requiring licence

- (1) The following activities require a licence under this Part —
- (a) owning an electronic communications network;
 - (b) operating an electronic communications network;
 - (c) providing electronic communications services;
 - (d) importing electronic communications apparatus.
- (2) In this Ordinance “the licence requirement” means the requirement under subsection (1).

Exemptions

22. Exclusive licence

The licence requirement does not apply to anything —

- (a) done in reliance on and in accordance with an exclusive telecommunications licence granted under Part 7, or
- (b) exempted from a requirement for a licence under that Part.

23. Broadcasting

The licence requirement does not apply to anything —

- (a) done in reliance on and in accordance with a broadcasting station licence granted under Part 5, or

(b) exempted from a requirement for a licence under that Part.

24. Crown and Government

(1) The licence requirement does not apply to anything done by or on behalf of —

(a) the Government, or

(b) any other public body.

(2) The licence requirement does not apply to anything done by or on behalf of —

(a) Her Majesty's Government;

(b) Her Majesty's armed forces for operational purposes;

(c) the providers of the British Forces Broadcasting Services;

(d) the British Antarctic Survey.

(3) An exemption under this section does not apply to the provision of electronic communications services to the public at a time when services of that kind are provided by a licensee.

25. Private facilities

(1) Private electronic communications facilities are excluded from the licence requirement (but not from a radio spectrum requirement by virtue of section 56(1)(a)).

(2) For the purposes of this section “private electronic communications facilities” means electronic communications services which —

(a) are provided by a person by means of local land-based network facilities or local transport-based network facilities;

(b) are accessible only on that person's property;

(c) are operated independently (in every sense) of electronic communications networks operated by any other person; and

(d) are not operated in the course of an electronic communications service business or otherwise for commercial gain (except as an indirect and incidental part of a person's business that does not involve the provision of electronic communications services).

(3) In subsection (2)(a) —

(a) “local land-based network facilities” means network facilities which are situated on, and operated in, a single area of land in the Falkland Islands occupied by the person who is providing the electronic communications services; and

(b) “local transport-based network facilities” means network facilities which are situated on and operated in one or more vehicles, vessels, aircraft or hovercraft.

26. Transmission stations

Networks are exempt from the licence requirement if they are used to receive sounds or visual images transmitted by wireless telegraphy —

(a) from a transmitting station for general reception direct from that station, or

(b) through the medium of a relay service licensed under this Ordinance.

27. Foreign transport

(1) Networks and carriage services are exempt from the licence requirement if they are operated on a foreign vessel or aircraft —

(a) passing through Falkland Islands territorial waters or skies, or

(b) berthing or landing in a Falkland Islands port or airport.

(2) Subsection (1) does not permit the making of a broadcast while in Falkland Islands territorial waters or skies or while at a Falkland Islands port or airport.

(3) In subsection (1) “foreign” means not registered in the Falkland Islands.

28. Emergency services

(1) The licence requirement does not apply to network facilities which are designed and used only for the provision of any of the following services in accordance with an enactment —

(a) police services;

(b) ambulance services;

(c) fire and rescue services;

(d) other emergency services; and

(e) helplines designated by the Governor by Order.

(2) Before making an Order under subsection (1)(e) the Governor must consult —

(a) any licensee affected, and

(b) such other persons as the Governor thinks appropriate.

29. Radio spectrum use

- (1) The licence requirement does not apply to anything —
 - (a) done in reliance on and in accordance with Part 6, or
 - (b) exempted from a requirement for a licence under that Part.
- (2) The use of radio spectrum is also exempt from the licence requirement if the Regulator notifies the user in writing that the Regulator is satisfied that —
 - (a) the equipment used does not, and is not likely to, cause significant interference to networks or carriage services operated or provided by a licensee;
 - (b) the risk of harm or inconvenience to other users is outweighed by the benefits to the public from permitting usage on an unlicensed basis; and
 - (c) the exemption is compatible with any relevant international recommendations and standards.
- (3) A notice —
 - (a) must be published by the Regulator;
 - (b) must specify the period for which it applies;
 - (c) may be varied or revoked by the Regulator.

30. Maritime and aviation satellite systems

- (1) The licence requirement does not apply to anything done in the territorial sea in accordance with the provisions of any international convention or agreement relating to maritime satellite communications.
- (2) The licence requirement does not apply to anything done on an aircraft in accordance with an enactment of the State in which it is registered relating to aviation satellite communications.

31. Broadcasting licensees

The licence requirement does not apply to anything done —

- (a) by a person licensed to provide services under the Wireless Telegraphy Ordinance 1994 or the Broadcasting Ordinance 2004, and
- (b) in accordance with that licence.

32. Power to confer additional exemptions

- (1) The Governor may by regulations confer exemptions from the licence requirement.

- (2) Regulations may confer exemption —
- (a) on a specified person or class of persons;
 - (b) in relation to specified activities or classes of activity;
 - (c) in relation to specified equipment or classes of equipment.
- (3) Before conferring an exemption in accordance with this section the Governor must give the Regulator an opportunity to make representations.
- (4) Before making representations the Regulator must consult as the Regulator thinks appropriate.

Grant of licences

33. Power to grant licences

- (1) The Regulator may grant licences permitting persons to —
- (a) own an electronic communications network;
 - (b) operate an electronic communications network;
 - (c) provide electronic communications services;
 - (d) import electronic communications apparatus.
- (2) A licence may —
- (a) apply in relation to all or any specified part of Falkland Islands territory;
 - (b) be exclusive or non-exclusive; and
 - (c) be granted on terms and conditions.
- (3) The Regulator may vary the conditions attached to a licence.
- (4) In attaching or varying conditions the Regulator must have regard to the electronic communications objectives.
- (5) A licence may be granted under this section only in so far as it is compatible with an exclusive licence granted under Part 7.

34. Individual and class licences

A licence issued under section 33 must state that it is either —

- (a) an individual licence, or

- (b) a class licence.

Individual licences

35. Nature of individual licence

- (1) An individual licence is issued to a specified licensee.
- (2) An individual licence comes into force in accordance with its terms.

36. Conditions

- (1) The Regulator may attach conditions to an individual licence.
- (2) The Regulator may add to, remove or vary conditions attached to an individual licence.
- (3) When attaching, adding, removing or varying a condition the Regulator must—
 - (a) have regard to the electronic communications objectives,
 - (b) have regard to the regulatory principles, and
 - (c) in particular, ensure that conditions do not unfairly discriminate between licensees in respect of the same or similar networks or services.
- (4) Before attaching, adding, removing or varying a condition the Regulator must —
 - (a) consult the licensee, and
 - (b) allow a period of at least 28 days for the licensee to respond to the consultation.

37. Licensee's installations

- (1) Each individual licence contains an implied provision requiring the licensee to permit any person authorised by the Regulator to enter any premises occupied or controlled by the licensee to inspect any apparatus used by the licensee in the carrying on of activities in reliance on the licence.
- (2) A person acquiring information in the course of an inspection under this section may not disclose the information without the consent of the licensee.
- (3) If the Regulator thinks that apparatus used by the licensee in the carrying on of activities in reliance on the licence is causing interference with any other apparatus, the Regulator may by notice require the licensee to take steps to prevent the interference.
- (4) Each individual licence includes implied provision requiring the licensee to comply with a requirement under subsection (3) as soon as is reasonably practicable.

38. Subsidiary undertakings

- (1) The licensee under an individual licence is —

- (a) the person who applies for the licence (“the principal licensee”), and
 - (b) any subsidiary undertaking of the applicant listed in the application.
- (2) The principal licensee may apply in writing to the Regulator —
- (a) to add a subsidiary undertaking to the licence, or
 - (b) to remove a subsidiary undertaking from the licence.
- (3) The Regulator must as soon as is reasonably practicable —
- (a) determine an application under subsection (2);
 - (b) notify the principal licensee of the Regulator’s determination; and
 - (c) take any action necessary as a result.
- (4) The Regulator may remove a subsidiary undertaking from an individual licence without an application under subsection (2) if the subsidiary undertaking applies for an individual licence.

Class licences

39. Nature of class licence

- (1) A class licence is issued by means of a determination of the Regulator.
- (2) The determination must specify —
- (a) the terms and conditions of the licence, and
 - (b) any qualification criteria required to be satisfied by a person relying on the licence.
- (3) A class licence may be relied upon by any person who —
- (a) satisfies the qualification criteria (if any), and
 - (b) complies with the specified terms and conditions.
- (4) A class licence comes into force with respect to a person at whichever is the later of —
- (a) the time when the person registers in accordance with section 40 (if registration is required),
 - (b) the time when the person satisfies any terms or conditions specified as requiring to be satisfied before reliance on the licence, and

(c) any commencement time specified in the licence.

40. Registration

(1) When issuing a class licence the Regulator must specify whether —

(a) it requires persons to register for it (a “registration licence”), or

(b) it does not require persons to register for it (a “non-registration licence”).

(2) A person who satisfies the specified qualification criteria for a non-registration licence may rely on the licence to provide the services specified in it, in accordance with its specified terms and conditions.

(3) The Regulator must publish —

(a) a standard registration form for registration licences, and

(b) guidance on registration and deregistration for registration licences.

(4) A person (“the registration applicant”) who satisfies the specified qualification criteria for a registration licence may send to the Regulator —

(a) a completed registration form, and

(b) any prescribed registration fee.

(5) A registration applicant becomes a registered person in respect of the registration licence at the end of the period of 45 days beginning with the date on which the Regulator receives the registration form (subject to subsection (6)).

(6) But a registration applicant does not become a registered person if during the period specified in subsection (5) the Regulator notifies the registration applicant in writing that —

(a) the person does not satisfy relevant qualification criteria,

(b) the registration form is incomplete, incorrect or unsigned, or

(c) the prescribed fee has not been paid.

(7) The Regulator may not restrict the number of persons that may register for a class licence.

(8) A registered person remains registered for a registration licence unless and until the Regulator notifies the person in writing that —

(a) the person has ceased to satisfy the specified qualification criteria, or

- (b) any prescribed requirements for annual or other fees have not been complied with.

Implied condition

41. Licensee's installations

- (1) A class licence is subject to an implied provision requiring each person relying on it ("the licensee") to permit any person authorised by the Regulator to enter any premises occupied or controlled by the licensee to inspect any apparatus used by the licensee in the carrying on of activities in reliance on the licence.
- (2) A person acquiring information in the course of an inspection under this section may not disclose the information without the consent of the licensee.
- (3) If the Regulator thinks that apparatus used by the licensee in the carrying on of activities in reliance on the licence is causing interference with any other apparatus, the Regulator may by notice require the licensee to take steps to prevent the interference.
- (4) A class licence includes implied provision requiring the licensee to comply with a requirement under subsection (3) as soon as is reasonably practicable.

Duration

42. Duration of licence

An individual or class licence may be expressed —

- (a) to continue in force unless and until the Regulator gives at least 2 years' written notice of its termination;
- (b) to continue in force for a specified period of not more than 10 years; or
- (c) to continue in force for a specified period of not more than 20 years and to continue after that unless and until the Regulator gives at last 2 years' written notice of its termination (and the notice cannot be given during the initial fixed term).

Procedure

43. Licensing procedure

The Regulator may by regulations —

- (a) prescribe procedures to be followed in relation to applications for individual licences;
- (b) prescribe information to be provided in connection with applications for individual licences;
- (c) prescribe procedures to be followed in relation to registration for class licences;
- (d) prescribe information to be provided in connection with registration for class licences;

- (e) specify factors to be considered in determining whether a person satisfies specified qualification criteria;
- (f) in particular, specify factors to be considered in determining whether a person is fit and proper where that is a specified qualification criterion; and
- (g) prescribe periods within which the Regulator must aim to determine applications in connection with individual or class licences.

Remedies for non-compliance

44. Administrative penalty

- (1) This section applies where a licensee fails to comply with the terms and conditions of the licence.
- (2) The Regulator may require the licensee to pay a penalty.
- (3) In the case of an individual the amount of the penalty may not exceed an amount equivalent to level 10 on the standard scale.
- (4) In any other case the amount of the penalty may not exceed 10% of the licensee's annual turnover and annual turnover is calculated as the licensee's annual turnover —
 - (a) for the year preceding that in which the penalty is imposed, and
 - (b) in respect of the licensee's business carried on in reliance on the licence.
- (5) The Regulator must publish criteria to be applied in determining the amount of a penalty.
- (6) Before imposing a requirement under this section the Regulator must —
 - (a) give the licensee written notice that the Regulator is considering imposing a requirement (including reasons), and
 - (b) give the licensee an opportunity to make representations.
- (7) Before imposing a requirement under this section the Regulator must give the licensee an opportunity to avoid the imposition of a requirement by remedying the failure to comply with the terms and conditions of the licence (subject to subsection (8)).
- (8) The Regulator may impose a requirement without complying with subsection (7) if —
 - (a) the Regulator gave notice to the licensee of intention to impose a requirement under this section in respect of one or more previous failures to comply with the terms and conditions of the licence, and

(b) the Regulator is satisfied that the licensee should not be given an opportunity to avoid the imposition of a requirement, having regard to the previous failure or failures.

(9) A requirement under this section must —

(a) be imposed in writing;

(b) specify the failure of compliance in respect of which it is imposed;

(c) give the Regulator's reasons for imposing the requirement;

(d) give details of the application of the criteria for determination of the level of penalty;

(e) be published on the Regulator's website (unless the Regulator is satisfied that public interest in publication is outweighed by commercial or other reasons for confidentiality).

(10) A penalty imposed under this section —

(a) is enforceable as a debt due to the Regulator, and

(b) carries interest at such rate as the Governor may specify by notice in the Gazette.

45. Variation or revocation of licence

(1) This section applies where a licensee fails to comply with the terms and conditions of the licence.

(2) The Regulator may —

(a) vary the terms or conditions of the licence (which may include adding or removing a term or condition);

(b) suspend the licence for a specified period; or

(c) revoke the licence.

(3) Before taking action under this section the Regulator must —

(a) give the licensee written notice that the Regulator is considering taking action, and

(b) give the licensee an opportunity to make representations (including a period of at least 28 days for the making of written representations).

(4) Before taking action under this section the Regulator must give the licensee an opportunity to avoid action under this section by remedying the failure to comply with the terms and conditions of the licence (subject to subsection (5)).

(5) The Regulator may take action under this section without complying with subsection (4) if —

(a) the Regulator gave notice to the licensee of intention to take action under this section in respect of one or more previous failures to comply with the terms and conditions of the licence, and

(b) the Regulator is satisfied that the licensee should not be given an opportunity to avoid action under this section, having regard to the previous failure or failures.

(6) Action under this section must —

(a) be taken by giving notice in writing to the licensee (at the address specified in the licence, if any);

(b) specify the failure of compliance in respect of which it is imposed;

(c) specify the date on which the action takes effect (which the regulator shall set having regard to all the circumstances, including the seriousness and urgency of the results of the failure to comply with the terms and conditions of the licence);

(d) give the Regulator's reasons for imposing the requirement; and

(e) be published on the Regulator's website (unless the Regulator is satisfied that public interest in publication is outweighed by commercial or other reasons for confidentiality).

(7) The application of this section to an exclusive licence under Part 7 is subject to the provisions of section 74.

PART 5 BROADCASTING STATION LICENCES

Licences

46. Requirement for licence

It is unlawful to operate a broadcasting station except in accordance with a licence granted under—

(a) this Part;

(b) the Wireless Telegraphy Ordinance 1994; or

(c) the Broadcasting Ordinance 2004.

47. Grant of licence

(1) The Governor may grant a broadcasting station licence to a person.

- (2) A licence may be granted on conditions.
- (3) The provisions of Part 4 apply to broadcasting station licences as they apply to licences under that Part —
 - (a) subject to any provision of this Part, and
 - (b) with any necessary modifications.

Exemptions

48. Crown and Government

Section 24 applies in relation to section 46 as in relation to section 21.

49. Amateurs

- (1) Section 46 does not apply to anything done by an amateur.
- (2) In this section “amateur” means a person who has no commercial or financial interest or motive.

Implied condition

50. Licensee’s installations

- (1) Each broadcasting station licence contains an implied provision requiring the licensee to permit any person authorised by the Regulator to enter any premises occupied or controlled by the licensee to inspect any apparatus used by the licensee in the carrying on of activities in reliance on the licence.
- (2) A person acquiring information in the course of an inspection under this section may not disclose the information without the consent of the licensee.
- (3) If the Regulator thinks that apparatus used by the licensee in the carrying on of activities in reliance on the licence is causing interference with any other apparatus, the Regulator may by notice require the licensee to take steps to prevent the interference.
- (4) Each broadcasting station licence includes implied provision requiring the licensee to comply with a requirement under subsection (3) as soon as is reasonably practicable.

Enforcement

51. Offence

- (1) It is an offence to carry on an activity which requires a licence in accordance with section 44 otherwise than in accordance with a licence.
- (2) A person who is guilty of an offence under subsection (1) is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding level 8 on the standard scale.

52. Forfeiture

- (1) Where a person is convicted of an offence under section 51 the court may order the forfeiture of any equipment which appears to the court likely to have been used in connection with the commission of the offence.
- (2) A forfeiture order may include provision about the treatment and disposal of the equipment forfeited.

53. Penalties for non-compliance with licence

Sections 44 and 45 apply in relation to a licence under this Part as they apply in relation to a licence under Part 4.

PART 6 RADIO SPECTRUM MANAGEMENT

54. Management of the radio spectrum

- (1) The Regulator must —
 - (a) have general responsibility for the management of the radio spectrum in the Falkland Islands, and
 - (b) in particular, be responsible for allocation of frequencies in the radio spectrum in the Falkland Islands by way of licence under this Part.
- (2) The Regulator must carry out functions under this section in accordance with any general or specific directions given to it by the Governor.

55. Spectrum plan

- (1) The Regulator must publish a plan for the use of the radio spectrum within the Falkland Islands (“the spectrum plan”).
- (2) The first spectrum plan must be published during the period of 2 years beginning with the date of the commencement of this section.
- (3) In preparing and maintaining the spectrum plan the Regulator must aim —
 - (a) to ensure consistency with any applicable international obligations or standards (including those of the International Telecommunications Union), and
 - (b) to take into account any relevant international recommendations.
- (4) The spectrum plan must —
 - (a) specify frequency bands that are premium spectrum bands; and
 - (b) specify the consequences, for licensees and others, of specification as a premium band.

- (5) The Regulator must revise and re-publish the spectrum plan —
- (a) before the end of the period of 3 years beginning with the date of publication of the initial plan; and
 - (b) before the end of the period of 3 years beginning with the date of each re-publication.

56. Radio spectrum licence

- (1) The Regulator may —
- (a) impose a requirement for a licence for the use of frequencies on the spectrum;
 - (b) assign a specified frequency to a person by granting a licence to that person to use that frequency.
- (2) A licence may be granted on conditions.
- (3) Conditions may relate, in particular, to authorisation of and standards or specifications for radio equipment.
- (4) A licence must require a licensee to comply with directions given by the Regulator in relation to use of the frequency.
- (5) A direction under subsection (4) may, in particular, be designed to avoid or reduce interference.
- (6) The Regulator must have regard to the spectrum plan before determining an application for a licence under this section.
- (7) The Governor may by regulations provide for the procedures to be followed in connection with licences and applications for licences.

57. Licensee's installations

- (1) Each radio spectrum licence contains an implied provision requiring the licensee to permit any person authorised by the Regulator to enter any premises occupied or controlled by the licensee to inspect any apparatus used by the licensee in the carrying on of activities in reliance on the licence.
- (2) A person acquiring information in the course of an inspection under this section may not disclose the information without the consent of the licensee.
- (3) If the Regulator thinks that apparatus used by the licensee in the carrying on of activities in reliance on the licence is causing interference with any other apparatus, the Regulator may by notice require the licensee to take steps to prevent the interference.
- (4) Each radio spectrum licence includes implied provision requiring the licensee to comply with a requirement under subsection (3) as soon as is reasonably practicable.

58. Exemptions

The Governor may by regulations provide for exemptions from the requirement for a licence under this Part.

59. Vacation of radio spectrum

(1) If the Regulator is satisfied that a radio spectrum that has been assigned by licence to a person under section 56 should be un-assigned, the Regulator may —

- (a) declare the spectrum vacant;
- (b) pay such compensation (if any) as it thinks should be paid to the previous licensee, or any other person who is affected by the declaration;
- (c) make any other arrangements it thinks necessary or desirable.

(2) In taking action under subsection (1), or determining whether to take action, the Regulator must have regard to the electronic communications objectives.

(3) A declaration under subsection (1)(a) must specify that the Regulator believes the radio spectrum should no longer be assigned to the previous licensee either —

- (a) because the previous licensee has made insufficient use of the radio spectrum, or
- (b) for another specified reason.

60. Spectrum trading

(1) The Governor may make regulations for the transfer of radio spectrum rights by a licensee to another person.

(2) The regulations may make provision for permanent or temporary transfers (or both).

(3) Subject to regulations under this section, a licensee may not assign the use of the licensed radio spectrum to another person (and any purported assignment is of no effect).

61. Saving for existing licences

(1) In this section “pre-commencement licence” means a licence for the operation of radio spectrum issued before the commencement of this section by —

- (a) the Falkland Islands Maritime Authority, or
- (b) the Civil Aviation Department.

(2) A pre-commencement licence continues to have effect until it —

- (a) is cancelled by the authority that issued it, or
- (b) lapses or expires in accordance with its terms.

(3) Nothing in this Ordinance renders unlawful activity that was carried on in reliance on and in accordance with a pre-commencement licence.

Enforcement

62. Penalties for non-compliance with licence

Sections 44 and 45 (penalty, variation and revocation) apply in relation to a licence under this Part as they apply in relation to a licence under Part 4.

PART 7
EXCLUSIVE TELECOMMUNICATIONS LICENCE

Nature of licence

63. Grant of exclusive licence

(1) The Governor may grant an exclusive licence to a telecommunications operator (“the exclusive licensee”) to —

- (a) operate an electronic communications network in the Falkland Islands,
- (b) provide electronic communications services in the Falkland Islands, and
- (c) do anything else for which a licence is required under section 21(1).

(2) The Governor may enter into an agreement in writing with the exclusive licensee providing obligations to be observed by it in connection with the provision of telecommunications services and the provisions of an agreement under this subsection (whenever concluded) shall be treated as terms of the exclusive licence.

(3) No more than one licence under this section may have effect at any time and a reference in this Part to the exclusive licence is to a licence granted under this section.

(4) Section 74 makes provision for revocation of the exclusive license, and other remedies, for non-compliance.

(5) Before taking action under this section the Governor must have regard to the electronic communications objectives and the regulatory principles.

(6) A licence under this section —

- (a) may provide for specified activities to be capable of being licensed under other provisions of this Ordinance, subject to any conditions or modifications specified in the licence;
- (b) may be combined with one or more licences under this Ordinance (and provisions of this Ordinance referring to the exclusive licence do not refer to the non-exclusive components of the licence).

64. Terms and conditions

- (1) The exclusive licence must include terms and conditions —
 - (a) requiring the submission of accounts in accordance with subsection (2);
 - (b) for the duration of the licence;
 - (c) providing for cost recovery by the exclusive licensee;
 - (d) imposing, or providing for the imposition of, price controls;
 - (e) imposing universal service obligations in accordance with section 65;
 - (f) for the transfer of data on termination of the licence.
- (2) The accounts specified in subsection (1)(a) are the following in respect of the licensed activities —
 - (a) a profit and loss statement;
 - (b) a revenue breakdown for principal lines of business (including, for domestic services, line access, fixed international, mobile, broadband, enterprise data and other matters);
 - (c) a balance sheet showing the book value of capital assets used in the delivery of the licensed activities and the level of depreciation applied.
- (3) The exclusive licence may include terms and conditions —
 - (a) requiring or allowing the licensee to share infrastructure, facilities and networks for the provision of electronic communications services on specified terms or conditions;
 - (b) specifying criteria for technical compatibility of and access to conditional access networks used in the provision of content;
 - (c) dealing with any other matters that the Governor thinks necessary or desirable.
- (4) Before setting the terms and conditions of the exclusive licence the Governor must —
 - (a) review the market in which the licensee operates or proposes to operate;
 - (b) consider the electronic communications objectives; and
 - (c) consider the regulatory principles.
- (5) In particular, the Governor —

(a) must ensure that any cost recovery mechanism or pricing methodology imposed by way of terms or conditions is designed to promote efficiency and to maximise consumer benefits;

(b) must take account of the investment made by the licensee and aim to allow the licensee a reasonable rate of return on capital efficiently employed, having regard to the risks involved and to the desirability of sharing the benefits of efficiency;

(c) must ensure that, where implementation of a cost accounting system is required by terms or conditions in order to support price controls, a determination of the cost accounting system is published, showing at least the main categories under which costs are grouped and, where appropriate having regard to the scale of services provided, the rules used for the allocation of costs; and

(d) may take account of prices available in comparable markets where the Governor is satisfied, having consulted the prospective exclusive licensee, that comparison is relevant.

(6) The exclusive licence must include provision requiring the exclusive licensee —

(a) not to discriminate against any person or classes of person in the provision of or in connection with electronic communications services offered by the licensee;

(b) to provide technical specifications or other technical information on request by a person who reasonably requires the information for the purpose of the lawful provision of electronic communications and who cannot reasonably easily obtain the information from other sources; and

(c) to ensure that the technical specifications of any network operated by the licensee is not incompatible with networks operated by other persons licensed under, or operating in accordance with the provisions of, this Ordinance.

(7) The provisions of the exclusive licence relating to price control (whether by price cap or otherwise) —

(a) may include provision allowing the Regulator to direct the exclusive licensee to employ specific cost accounting methods, or to apply the Regulator's preferred cost accounting methods;

(b) must include provision allowing the Regulator to require the exclusive licensee to provide justification for its prices in accordance with criteria specified by the Regulator (but where the price control provisions take the form of a price cap, the justification for prices required in accordance with this paragraph is limited to demonstrating compliance with the cap);

(c) may include provision allowing the Regulator to direct a price adjustment for the purpose of compliance with the price control provisions of the licence, at such times and intervals as may be specified in the exclusive licence;

(d) may operate by imposing a ceiling on the average change in prices for regulated services over a specified period of time;

(e) may include provision for a review of the operation of any price cap from time to time, with the results of the review determining the continuing operation of the price control by reference to specified criteria; and

(f) may include provision limiting a weighted average of the changes in retail prices for services to which any price cap applies by reference to a specified controlling percentage.

(8) In determining the provisions of the exclusive licence about price control the Governor must aim (without prejudice to the generality of subsection (4)) —

(a) to protect consumers from monopoly excess;

(b) to encourage the exclusive licensee to invest in services that benefit consumers;

(c) to allow the exclusive licensee a reasonable rate of return on capital efficiently employed, having regard to the risks involved; and

(d) to share the benefits of innovation and efficiency.

Performance

65. Universal service obligation

(1) The exclusive licence must include provision requiring the exclusive licensee to comply with any obligations under regulations made by the Governor under this section (“Universal Service Regulations”).

(2) Universal Service Regulations must —

(a) specify services which are to be provided;

(b) specify the classes of user by whom the services must be accessible (and classes may be specified by reference to geographical area, possession of equipment, or otherwise).

(3) The Regulator must —

(a) publish on its website a description of services to be provided under Universal Service Regulations;

(b) monitor the provision of services in accordance with the Universal Service Regulations; and

(c) publish information on its website about the results of monitoring under paragraph (b).

(4) In making and amending Universal Service Regulations the Governor must have regard to —

- (a) the electronic communications objectives;
- (b) the regulatory principles;
- (c) any representations made by a person who is, or may become, an exclusive licensee.

66. Obligations to subscribers

(1) The exclusive licence must include provision setting out the obligations of the licensee to persons who use or wish to use the services provided in accordance with the licence.

(2) In particular, the licence must —

- (a) provide for applications for the provision of a service under the licence;
- (b) permit the licensee to require the provision of information and undertakings in connection with the provision of a service under the licence;
- (c) prohibit the licensee from refusing to provide a service except in specified circumstances or on specified grounds;
- (d) provide for the payment of specified costs by persons applying for the provision of a service;
- (e) impose obligations on the licensee in respect of service provision;
- (f) impose obligations on the licensee in respect of the maintenance of equipment;
- (g) provide for liability of the licensee to persons in respect of loss or damage incurred in connection with the provision of services under the licence or otherwise (which may include provision dealing with failures in service, and provision limiting liability or permitting the licensee to limit its liability);
- (h) require the licensee to offer equipment for sale, hire or use;
- (i) require the licensee to permit service-users to use specified classes of equipment provided by the service-users in specified circumstances or subject to specified conditions;
- (j) allow the licensee to require service-users to provide power and other installations and facilities;
- (k) allow the licensee to impose obligations on service users in respect of the protection or use of equipment or otherwise;

- (l) allow the licensee to discontinue, or impose conditions on, the provision of services in specified circumstances;
- (m) provide for notice periods for discontinuance of service at the option of the service-user;
- (n) provide for assignment or transfer of service contracts;
- (o) allow the licensee to require service-users to accept liability for use made irrespective of the identity of the user, or in other specified circumstances;
- (p) allow the licensee to require or permit service-users to pay deposits, to pay charges in instalments, to make payments in advance or on account, and to accept the installation of metering or charging apparatus;
- (q) provide for access to service-users' premises;
- (r) provide for user directories; and
- (s) exclude liability in cases of force majeure (as defined by the licence).

67. Key performance indicators

(1) The exclusive licence must require the exclusive licensee to monitor its performance in the provision of services in accordance with the licence against —

- (a) any key performance indicators specified in the licence, and
- (b) any key performance indicators specified by the Regulator.

(2) The exclusive licence must include provision requiring the exclusive licensee to comply with any request by the Regulator to —

- (a) publish its performance against any of the key performance indicators referred to in subsection (1) in the manner required by the Regulator;
- (b) provide details of its performance against those key performance indicators in the manner required by the Regulator.

68. Complaint handling and dispute resolution

(1) The exclusive licence must include provision requiring the licensee to —

- (a) establish and maintain a Code of Practice about complaint handling and dispute resolution;
- (b) obtain the Regulator's approval of the form and content of the Code (and if necessary vary the Code until the Regulator approves); and

(c) include in all contracts for the provision of services in accordance with the licence a provision requiring customers to follow any applicable procedures set out in the Code before taking legal proceedings.

(2) A court must enforce subsection (1)(c) by staying or dismissing proceedings, except if and in so far as the court thinks that the proceedings should not be stayed or dismissed having regard to special circumstances of the case.

69. Interception and data retention capability

(1) The exclusive licensee must maintain capability to retain subscriber details and call and data records (including records for mobile services and fixed line services, broadband user authentication records and mobile short message content).

(2) The Governor may by Order amend subsection (1) to require the exclusive licensee to maintain specified capability to intercept, retain or otherwise interfere with electronic communications data.

(3) Before making an Order under subsection (2) the Governor must consult the exclusive licensee.

(4) Anything done in reliance on capability maintained in accordance with subsection (1) is done with lawful authority for the purposes of this Ordinance.

(5) A requirement imposed under this Ordinance (by warrant, notice or otherwise) to do anything in reliance on the capability mentioned in subsection (1) is subject to agreement between the exclusive licensee and the Governor as to —

(a) costs, and

(b) timing.

(6) Any question arising in relation to the effect of subsections (1), (4) or (5) may be referred by the Governor or the exclusive licensee to the Magistrates' Court, whose decision shall be final; and the Regulator has no jurisdiction to determine a question to which this subsection applies.

(7) The exclusive licence must include provision requiring the licensee to take all reasonable steps to ensure that its staff are aware of the rules of secrecy relating to telecommunications set out in the International Convention of Nairobi 1982 and any later Convention amending or replacing the same to which the United Kingdom or the Falkland Islands is a party (including any General and Administrative Regulations from time to time in force under the Convention that extend to the Falkland Islands).

(8) Nothing done under Part 13 may (explicitly or impliedly) require the exclusive licensee to maintain a capability not required by this section.

Information and inspections

70. Regulator's requests for information

(1) The exclusive licence must include provision requiring the exclusive licensee to comply with any request of the Regulator for the provision of information or documents reasonably required by the Regulator in connection with the performance of its functions, subject to any exemptions or qualifications specified in the licence.

(2) A request under this section must specify —

- (a) the information or documents required;
- (b) that the request is made in accordance with this section;
- (c) the purpose for which the information or documents are required;
- (d) the time by which the information or documents are to be provided;
- (e) the consequences of failure to comply with the request.

(3) If the exclusive licensee considers that the burden of complying with a request in accordance with this section would be disproportionate to the public benefit of compliance —

- (a) the licensee may, within 20 working days from the date of receipt of the request, send a notice to the Regulator explaining the reasons for, and extent of, the licensee's wish not to comply with the request;
- (b) the Regulator must respond to the notice within 20 working days from the date of receipt of the licensee's request;
- (c) the request is suspended until the Regulator responds;
- (d) the Regulator must modify the request if and to the extent that the Regulator accepts the licensee's representations, in which case the Regulator must issue a new request under this section (and subsections (1) and (2) apply).

71. Failure to provide information

(1) This section applies if an exclusive licensee fails without reasonable excuse to comply with the condition required by section 70.

(2) The Regulator may —

- (a) require the licensee to pay a penalty not exceeding an amount equivalent to level 10 on the standard scale;
- (b) revoke the exclusive licence in accordance with section 74; or

- (c) take action under both paragraph (a) and paragraph (b).
- (3) Before taking action under subsection (2) the Regulator must —
 - (a) serve a warning notice on the licensee; and
 - (b) give the licensee a reasonable opportunity to make representations.
- (4) A penalty under this section may be enforced as a debt due to the Regulator.
- (5) The licensee may appeal to the Supreme Court against a requirement imposed by the Regulator to pay a penalty under this section and the Supreme Court may make any order it thinks appropriate (including increasing the amount of a penalty and making ancillary provision as to costs or otherwise).

72. Licensee's installations

- (1) The exclusive licence must include provision requiring the exclusive licensee to permit any person authorised by the Regulator to enter any premises occupied or controlled by the licensee to inspect any apparatus used by the licensee in the provision of services in accordance with the licence.
- (2) A person acquiring information in the course of an inspection under this section may not disclose the information without the consent of the licensee.
- (3) If the Regulator thinks that apparatus used by the licensee in the provision of services in accordance with the licence is causing interference with any other apparatus, the Regulator may by notice require the licensee to take steps to prevent the interference.
- (4) The exclusive licence must include provision requiring the exclusive licensee to comply with a requirement under subsection (3) as soon as is reasonably practicable.

Change of control of licensee

73. Approval for change of control

- (1) The exclusive licence must include provision requiring the exclusive licensee to comply with the provisions of this section.
- (2) A change of control may not be implemented without prior written approval of the Governor.
- (3) The Governor may by regulations make provision about procedure in connection with applications for approval for change of control; and the regulations may include, in particular —
 - (a) information to be provided;
 - (b) timing;

- (c) the conduct of an investigation into a proposed change of control.
- (4) The Governor must be notified in writing before the end of the period of 7 days beginning with —
 - (a) the licensee’s entering into an agreement that would result in a change of control, or
 - (b) the announcement of a public bid for control of the licensee.
- (5) Any request made by the Governor for information about an event specified in subsection (3) or any other event likely to result in a change of control must be complied with —
 - (a) in the manner specified by the Governor, and
 - (b) in accordance with any requirements as to timing specified by the Governor.
- (6) For the purposes of this section a reference to change in control includes a reference to any person —
 - (a) acquiring control over the affairs of the licensee;
 - (b) acquiring control of more than 30% of the voting shares in the licensee; or
 - (c) taking other action of a kind specified by the Governor by regulations.

Enforcement

74. Penalties for non-compliance with licence

- (1) Sections 44 and 45 apply in relation to an exclusive licence under this Part as they apply in relation to a licence under Part 4 subject to subsection (2).
- (2) An exclusive licence under this Part may not be revoked unless the Regulator has obtained the leave of the Supreme Court to revoke the licence.
- (3) Before applying to the Supreme Court for permission the Regulator must give at least 6 weeks’ notice of the intention to apply for permission.
- (4) The decision of the Supreme Court on an application for permission is final.

PART 8
FEES

General fees

75. Fees Regulations

- (1) The Governor may by regulations (“Fees Regulations”) —

(a) require the payment of fees in respect of the application for, or the issue, renewal or maintenance of, or otherwise in connection with, a licence under this Ordinance;

(b) specify the amount of a fee;

(c) make provision about timing, manner of payment and other ancillary matters in connection with fees.

(2) Fees Regulations must, in particular, make provision —

(a) for fees to be charged for or in connection with licences under Parts 4 to 6;

(b) for fees to be charged in respect of the performance of the Governor's functions in relation to change of control of an exclusive licensee under Part 7.

(3) Fees Regulations may —

(a) make provision for exemptions, waivers and reductions;

(b) confer a discretion on the Governor, the Regulator or another specified person;

(c) make provision that applies generally or only for specified purposes;

(d) make different provision for different purposes.

(4) This section does not apply to anything in respect of which a fee is chargeable under a later provision of this Part.

Specific fees

76. Exclusive licence fee

The Schedule makes provision about fees to be paid for and in connection with an exclusive licence under Part 7.

77. Services by Regulator

(1) The Regulator may charge fees for or in connection with —

(a) the performance of a function under this Ordinance or under a licence issued under this Ordinance;

(b) the performance of any service offered by the Regulator (including the supply of information or documents).

(2) This section is subject to any express provision of a licence under this Ordinance.

(3) A fee charged under this section may be expressed to be calculated —

- (a) as an annual amount,
 - (b) as a proportion of a business' turnover in respect of activities provided in accordance with a licence, or
 - (c) in any other specified way (which may involve conferring a function on a specified person).
- (4) In determining and charging fees under this section the Regulator —
- (a) must have regard to the regulatory principles; and
 - (b) in particular, must ensure transparency, objectivity, proportionality and non-discrimination.
- (5) In setting the amounts of fees under this section the Regulator must apply an estimated cost-recovery approach so that —
- (a) they are designed to cover the annual costs of performance by the Regulator of its functions in relation to the regulation of the electronic communications sector;
 - (b) deficits from one year are recovered over one or more years as appears to the Regulator to be appropriate having regard to the impact on the electronic communications sector;
 - (c) surpluses from one year are returned over one or more years as appears to Regulator to be appropriate; and
 - (d) each licensee or other fee-payer is contributing a proportionate share of the Regulator's costs having regard to all the circumstances (including the nature of the relevant function, the benefits to the fee-payer and the resources and other circumstances of the fee-payer).
- (6) Fees to be charged by the Regulator, together with any criteria for determining their amounts and any rules as to timing of payment, must be published —
- (a) on the Regulator's website, and
 - (b) in other ways that the Regulator considers appropriate.

Enforcement and administration

78. Collection and destination

Fees under this Part must —

- (a) be collected and administered by the Regulator, and
- (b) be paid into the Consolidated Fund.

79. Recovery

A fee under this Part which is due and unpaid is recoverable as a debt due to the Regulator.

80. Interest

- (1) Interest accrues on overdue fees and is to be calculated by the Regulator on a daily basis.
- (2) Interest is recoverable in the same manner as the principal.
- (3) The rate of interest is the Bank of England base rate from time to time plus 2%.

81. Offences

- (1) It is an offence to do anything in respect of which a fee is payable under this Ordinance without paying the fee.
- (2) The offence in subsection (1) may be charged in addition to any other offence committed by the same activity.
- (3) A person who takes any action for the purpose of evading all or part of a fee under this Part, or who assists another for that purpose, commits an offence.
- (4) A person who is guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction —
 - (a) to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months,
 - (b) to a fine not exceeding level 10 on the standard scale, or
 - (c) to both.

PART 9 CONSUMER STANDARDS AND PROTECTION

Consumer protection

82. Regulator to enforce consumer protection provisions

The Regulator must monitor compliance with any provision of a licence under this Ordinance —

- (a) which is described in the licence as a consumer protection provision, or
- (b) which in the Regulator's opinion is designed (wholly or partly) to protect interests of the users or potential users of electronic communications services.

83. Consumer Protection Regulations

- (1) The Governor may make regulations for the purposes of protecting users and potential users of electronic communications services ("Consumer Protection Regulations").
- (2) Consumer Protection Regulations may include provision about, in particular —

- (a) standards of service;
- (b) quality of service;
- (c) safety;
- (d) handling of complaints;
- (e) the use of a network or service to make unsolicited communications;
- (f) confidentiality of user information;
- (g) telephone directories and similar publications (which may include provision requiring the publication of directories, and provision about the disclosure or use of information for the purpose of directories).

(3) A licence under this Ordinance may make provision by reference to Consumer Protection Regulations, including references to those Regulations as they may have effect from time to time.

(4) Consumer Protection Regulations may not, except in accordance with subsection (3) —

- (a) impose obligations on licensees, or
- (b) change the effect of a provision of a licence.

(5) Before making Consumer Protection Regulations the Governor must consult —

- (a) all relevant licensees, and
- (b) such other persons as the Governor thinks appropriate.

84. Programme content

(1) The Regulator may issue codes of practice about the content of media services under the control of licensees under this Ordinance.

(2) A code may, in particular, include provision designed —

- (a) to protect young persons from exposure to harmful material;
- (b) to protect users from offensive material;
- (c) to promote accuracy and impartiality in news and current affairs material;
- (d) to avoid misleading or alarming service users.

(3) Provision made in pursuance of subsection (2)(a) or (b) may, in particular, include provision about material which includes —

- (a) physical or psychological violence;
- (b) sexual activity or nudity;
- (c) the use of alcohol, tobacco and drugs;
- (d) anything likely to incite hatred or discrimination on grounds of race, religion, disability, age, gender or sexual orientation;
- (e) offensive language;
- (f) anything of an indecent, obscene, offensive or defamatory nature.

(4) A code may include provision about procedure to be followed in making, handling and determining complaints about matters in subsection (2) and (3).

(5) A code relating to broadcasting services may, in particular, include provision about —

- (a) the amount of time devoted to advertising;
- (b) the presentation of advertising material;
- (c) sponsorship announcements;
- (d) the use of captions and sub-titles;
- (e) teletext and other ancillary services;
- (f) party political broadcasts;
- (g) broadcasting of sporting and national events;
- (h) broadcasting in relation to national emergencies; and
- (i) public service announcements.

(6) A licence under this Ordinance may make provision by reference to codes under this section, including references to those codes as they may have effect from time to time.

(7) A code of practice may not, except in accordance with subsection (6) —

- (a) impose obligations on licensees, or
- (b) change the effect of a provision of a licence.

(8) Nothing in this Ordinance or in a licence under this Ordinance obliges a licensee to accept for transmission material of a kind described in subsection (3)(d) to (f).

Equipment on service users' premises

85. Service users' premises

(1) A licence under this Ordinance must include provision that applies where the licensee has sited equipment on property belonging to a user or prospective user of the licensee's services.

(2) The licence must include provision requiring the licensee to maintain the equipment (subject to subsection (4)).

(3) The licence must (subject to subsection (4)) include provision allowing the licensee to authorise persons to enter the property for the purpose of monitoring or maintaining the equipment —

- (a) at reasonable times,
- (b) after giving reasonable notice, and
- (c) on presentation of appropriate identification.

(4) Subsections (2) and (3) may be varied by any specific provision of —

- (a) the licence;
- (b) any agreement between the licensee and the owner of the property.

(5) A licensee who is refused access under a provision specified in subsection (3) or (4)(a) or (b) may apply to a court for a warrant authorising access and the court may grant a warrant on such terms and conditions as it thinks appropriate.

(6) A licence under this Ordinance must include provision enabling the licensee, so far as reasonable, to make the provision of any service under the licence conditional on the provision of power, in such form and to such specifications as the licence may specify, by an actual or prospective user of the service.

86. Equipment standards

(1) The Regulator may publish —

- (a) standards for equipment to be used for the purposes of electronic communications;
- (b) conditions to be satisfied in using equipment for the purposes of electronic communications;
- (c) conditions or standards for the manufacture or import of equipment designed to be used for the purposes of electronic communications.

- (2) The Regulator may require its approval to be obtained for equipment before it is used for the purposes of electronic communications; and —
- (a) a requirement must be published in a manner designed to ensure that it comes to the attention of persons using equipment for those purposes, and
 - (b) a licence under this Ordinance may identify a class of equipment in respect of which a requirement under this subsection may or may not be imposed on or in respect of the licensee.
- (3) The Regulator may set standards and conditions, and impose requirements, under this section only if satisfied that they are necessary or desirable for the purposes of —
- (a) preventing or limiting damage to networks or services provided in accordance with this Ordinance;
 - (b) protecting public health and safety;
 - (c) protecting the environment.
- (4) Conditions under this section may include provision as to testing of equipment.
- (5) In setting standards or conditions under this section the Regulator may make provision by reference to standards or conditions having effect outside the Falkland Islands (including such standards and conditions as they may have effect from time to time).
- (6) A licence under this Ordinance must include provision requiring the licensee to comply with any standards, conditions and requirements under this section.
- (7) It is an offence to —
- (a) use equipment which does not comply with any relevant standards under this section;
 - (b) use equipment without complying with any relevant conditions under this section;
 - (c) manufacture equipment which does not comply with any relevant standards or conditions under this section;
 - (d) import equipment which does not comply with any relevant standards or conditions under this section;
 - (e) use equipment without obtaining approval required under this section.
- (8) A person who is guilty of an offence under subsection (7) is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding level 7 on the standard scale.
- (9) Before issuing standards or conditions under this section the Regulator must consult —

- (a) any relevant licensee, and
- (b) such other persons as the Regulator thinks appropriate.

Telephone numbers and domain names

87. Numbering plan

- (1) The Regulator must publish a numbering plan for telephone numbers or other similar designations.
- (2) The numbering plan must set out rules for the —
 - (a) allocation of numbers or series of numbers to licensee;
 - (b) assignment of numbers to service users.
- (3) A licence under this Ordinance must include a requirement to comply with any relevant requirements of the numbering plan.
- (4) In preparing the numbering plan the Regulator shall aim —
 - (a) to comply with any relevant international standards;
 - (b) to ensure a sufficient supply of numbers for expected usage; and
 - (c) to promote the efficient use of numbering.
- (5) The numbering plan may require licensees to provide specified kinds of number for emergency purposes.

88. Domain names

- (1) It is the responsibility of the Regulator to manage, allocate and assign domain names.
- (2) A licence under this Ordinance must include provision requiring the licensee to comply with any rules or direction made or given by the Regulator in respect of the use of domain names.
- (3) In this Ordinance “domain name” —
 - (a) means a name allocated under the global name system assigned to the Falkland Islands according to the two-letter code in the International Standard ISO 3166-1 (Codes for Representation of Names of Countries and their Subdivision), and
 - (b) includes any second or subsequent level domain name.

89. Access by public bodies

Nothing in this Ordinance, Consumer Protection Regulations or a licence under this Ordinance affects any right of a public body to access information.

PART 10
PUBLIC CONTROL OF SERVICES

90. Interception

(1) A licence under this Ordinance must include provision requiring the licensee to maintain the capability required by section 69 (to be used in accordance with an authorisation issued by the Governor under Part 13).

(2) The Governor may issue a written exemption from the requirements of subsection (1) to a specified licensee in respect of a specified network, subject to any specified terms and conditions.

(3) Before issuing an exemption the Governor must consult —

(a) the Attorney General, and

(b) the Chief Police Officer.

91. War and emergencies

(1) If the Governor considers it necessary in the interests of defence, public safety or public order, the Governor may —

(a) take any steps the Governor considers appropriate to assume control over any network or services provided under or in accordance with this Ordinance (by licence or otherwise);

(b) issue directions to a licensee or any other person who controls a network or services for the provision of electronic communications for the purposes of steps under paragraph (a);

(c) appoint staff to act for the purposes of paragraph (a).

(2) The Governor may pay compensation in respect of action taken under subsection (1).

92. Other public service acquisition of control

(1) This section applies where —

(a) an exclusive licence under Part 7 has been revoked and another exclusive licence for the same services has not yet been granted;

(b) an exclusive licensee ceases to operate or in the opinion of the Governor is about to cease to operate; or

(c) for any other reason the Governor considers that it is necessary in the public interest to acquire control of the provision of telecommunications services.

(2) The Governor may —

(a) take any steps the Governor considers appropriate to assume control over any network or services provided under or in accordance with this Ordinance (by licence or otherwise);

(b) by order provide for specified assets to vest in the Governor for the purposes of use in pursuance of paragraph (a);

(c) appoint staff to act for the purposes of paragraph (a).

(3) Compensation is payable in respect of assets to which an order under subsection (2)(b) applies and the Governor must make regulations about the determination of compensation under this subsection.

(4) Regulations under subsection (3) must be made in accordance with the advice of the Regulator.

(5) Compensation due and payable under this section must be charged on the Consolidated Fund.

PART 11 OFFENCES

Specific offences

93. False statements

(1) A person who makes a statement or provides information or documents to the Regulator or any other public body in pursuance of a provision of this Ordinance commits an offence if —

(a) the person knows that the statement, information or documents are false in a material respect;

(b) is reckless as to whether the statement, information or documents are false in a material respect.

(2) A person who is guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding level 12 on the standard scale.

94. Obstructing Regulator

(1) It is an offence to obstruct the Regulator or a person authorised by the Regulator in the exercise of a function under this Ordinance or under a licence issued under this Ordinance.

(2) A person who is guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding level 7 on the standard scale.

95. Misleading messages

- (1) It is an offence to use electronic communications to send or attempt to send a message which is false or misleading and is likely to threaten the efficiency or safety of any person, vehicle, vessel or aircraft (whether by issuing a false distress call or otherwise).
- (2) A person who is guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding level 10 on the standard scale.

96. Other improper communications

- (1) It is an offence to use electronic communications to send or attempt to send material that is —
 - (a) grossly offensive,
 - (b) indecent or obscene,
 - (c) threatening, or
 - (d) designed to cause distress or inconvenience without reasonable excuse.
- (2) A person providing electronic communications in accordance with a licence under this Ordinance may —
 - (a) refuse to transmit a message containing material of a kind described in subsection (1);
 - (b) terminate provision of services to a person on the grounds of habitual use to send or attempt to send messages containing material of a kind described in subsection (1).
- (3) A person who is guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction to —
 - (a) imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months,
 - (b) a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale, or
 - (c) both.

97. Interfering with communications

- (1) It is an offence to —
 - (a) do anything designed to obtain from the operator of a network information about the content, sender or addressee of an electronic communication, or
 - (b) disclose that information.
- (2) It is an offence for the operator of a network, or a person employed by or otherwise working for the operator of a network, to —

(a) interfere with an electronic communication; or

(b) disclose the existence, nature or content (including sender or addressee) of an electronic communication.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) do not apply to anything done —

(a) with the consent of the persons sending and receiving the communication; or

(b) with lawful authority.

(4) A person who is guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction to —

(a) imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years,

(b) a fine not exceeding level 12 on the standard scale, or

(c) both.

(5) Where the Falkland Islands is party to an international agreement relating to the provision of mutual assistance in relation to interference with electronic communications, a request for assistance may not be made by any person in or on behalf of the Falkland Islands except with the authority of the Attorney General.

98. Deliberate interference

(1) A person who uses any apparatus for the purpose of interfering with electronic communications commits an offence.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to anything done —

(a) with the consent of the persons sending and receiving the communication; or

(b) with lawful authority.

(3) A person who is guilty of an offence under subsection (1) is liable on conviction to —

(a) imprisonment for a term not exceeding 3 months,

(b) a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale, or

(c) both.

99. Damage to infrastructure

(1) A person who damages any part of the infrastructure of an electronic communications network must report the damage to a police officer as soon as is reasonably practicable.

(2) Failure to comply with subsection (1) is an offence.

(3) A person who is guilty of an offence under subsection (2) is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale.

Enforcement powers

100. Power of entry

(1) If a court is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds to suspect that evidence of the commission of an offence under this Ordinance is to be found on premises, the court may issue a warrant authorising a person authorised by the Regulator —

(a) to enter the premises;

(b) to require the provision of a copy of any information or documents stored on the premises (including information stored electronically);

(c) to test equipment;

(d) to remove any article that may be or provide evidence of the commission of the offence.

(2) Subsection (1) applies to a vehicle, vessel or aircraft as it applies to premises.

(3) It is an offence —

(a) to obstruct a person exercising powers under a warrant under this section, or

(b) to fail to provide reasonable assistance on request to a person exercising powers under a warrant under this section.

(4) A person who is guilty of an offence under subsection (3) is liable on conviction to —

(a) imprisonment for a term not exceeding 3 months,

(b) a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale, or

(c) both.

Supplementary

101. Jurisdiction

The Magistrates' Court has jurisdiction for the purposes of this Ordinance (subject to any provision to the contrary).

102. Maritime and Aviation

(1) This section applies where an offence under this Ordinance is committed —

(a) by, using or in relation to equipment on board a ship or aircraft, or

(b) by anything done on a ship or aircraft.

(2) The captain or other person for the time being in charge of the ship or aircraft is guilty of the offence (whether or not anyone else is also guilty of the offence).

(3) Subsection (2) does not apply where the captain or other person in charge can show that the offence was committed only by reason of action —

(a) which was taken by a passenger, and

(b) which the captain or other person in charge could not reasonably have been expected to take action to prevent.

PART 12 LAND

103. Compulsory purchase

For the purposes of any law relating to compulsory acquisition of land for public purposes —

(a) the functions of an exclusive licensee under the licence are public purposes; and

(b) the licensee or the Governor may exercise powers under that law for a purpose in connection with the performance of those functions.

104. Entering land for construction and operational purposes

(1) A person authorised by an exclusive licensee may enter land for the purposes of constructing, installing, operating, monitoring or removing apparatus required in connection with functions under the licence.

(2) The Governor must by regulations make provision —

(a) prescribing procedure to be followed in the exercise of the power under subsection (1);

(b) specifying conditions to be satisfied in relation to the exercise of the power under subsection (1);

(c) imposing limitations on the exercise of the power under subsection (1).

(3) The regulations may, in particular —

(a) make different provision in respect of land owned and occupied by a public body and land owned or occupied by a private person;

(b) require the service of notices;

(c) require consultation;

- (d) make provision for the payment of compensation;
 - (e) require the approval of a specified public body in specified circumstances;
 - (f) confer a discretion on a specified person;
 - (g) make exercise of a power under subsection (1) dependent on obtaining a court order in specified circumstances;
 - (h) make provision for ancillary activities that may be carried out in the exercise of the power under subsection (1) (including, in particular, cutting down trees and similar activity);
 - (i) make provision for the laying of equipment underneath streets or other places;
 - (j) make provision for obtaining or creating a licence or easement in specified circumstances and for specified purposes in relation to maintenance of equipment or otherwise;
 - (k) make provision for varying or overriding a licence or easement in specified circumstances and for specified purposes;
 - (l) impose duties designed to protect the property or safety of persons, or to protect the environment;
 - (m) provide for a right of challenge or appeal to a court in specified circumstances.
- (4) The regulations must make separate provision in respect of works carried out on the shore or seabed.

PART 13 DATA

Interpretation

105. Public interest grounds

For the purposes of this Part the “public interest grounds” are —

- (a) the interests of national security;
- (b) prevention or detection of crime;
- (c) prevention of disorder;
- (d) national security in relation to economic well-being;
- (e) public safety;
- (f) public health;

- (g) collection or administration of taxes and other money payable to the Government;
- (h) preventing or reducing deaths or injuries as a result of a public emergency;
- (i) any other matter specified for the purposes of this section by the Governor by regulations.

Retention of data

106. Retention notices

- (1) The Governor in discretion may by notice (a “retention notice”) require the exclusive licensee under an exclusive licence issued under Part 7 to retain electronic communications data.
- (2) The Governor in discretion may give a retention notice if satisfied that —
 - (a) it is necessary on public interest grounds, and
 - (b) it is proportionate to the purpose for which it is required.
- (3) A retention notice —
 - (a) must specify the classes of data to be retained;
 - (b) must specify the period for which data is to be retained;
 - (c) may specify the form in which it is to be retained;
 - (d) may include other provision as to the retention of the data;
 - (e) may make provision for data whether or not in existence at the time when the notice is given;
 - (f) may make provision which applies generally or only for specified purposes;
 - (g) may make different provision for different purposes.
- (4) The Governor may by regulations make further provision for the retention of electronic communications data and the regulations may, in particular, make provision for—
 - (a) the process to be followed before giving a retention notice;
 - (b) the maximum period for which data is to be retained under a retention notice;
 - (c) the content, giving, commencement, review, variation and revocation of a retention notice;
 - (d) the storage of data in accordance with a retention notice;

- (e) access to and disclosure of data retained in accordance with a retention notice;
 - (f) destruction of data retained in accordance with a retention notice;
 - (g) monitoring and enforcement of compliance with a retention notice;
 - (h) payments by the Governor in discretion in respect of expenses of complying with a retention notice.
- (5) A retention notice may not require data to be retained for more than 24 months.
- (6) The exclusive licensee may disclose data retained in accordance with a retention notice only —
- (a) in accordance with regulations under this section,
 - (b) in accordance with a provision of this Ordinance, or
 - (c) pursuant to, or in accordance with an order of, a court.
- (7) When an exclusive licence comes to an end (for whatever reason) —
- (a) a retention notice issued to the licensee continues to have effect in accordance with its terms; but
 - (b) if provision is made for the transfer of data to a new exclusive licensee, the Governor in discretion may vary or revoke the retention notice.

Disclosure

107. Disclosure requirements

- (1) The Governor in discretion or a court may grant an authorisation allowing a specified person or class of person to require the exclusive licensee to disclose electronic communications data.
- (2) The Governor in discretion or a court may require the exclusive licensee —
- (a) to obtain electronic communications data;
 - (b) to disclose electronic communications data.
- (3) The Governor or a court may grant an authorisation under subsection (1) or impose a requirement under subsection (2) only if satisfied that —
- (a) it is necessary on public interest grounds, and
 - (b) it is proportionate to the purpose for which it is required.

(4) The exclusive licensee must comply with a requirement imposed under or by virtue of this section.

(5) A requirement imposed under or by virtue of this section is enforceable as if it were an order of the Supreme Court.

(6) The Governor may make regulations for authorisations and requirements under this section and the regulations may, in particular, make provision for —

- (a) form;
- (b) content;
- (c) procedure;
- (d) conditions and limitations;
- (e) timing;
- (f) variation and revocation;
- (g) appeal; and
- (h) other ancillary matters.

Interception and surveillance

108. Interception warrants

(1) The Governor in discretion or a court may issue a warrant authorising or requiring a person to take specified steps to —

- (a) intercept an electronic communication or class of communications;
- (b) disclose the intercepted material.

(2) The Governor in discretion or a court may grant a warrant only if satisfied that —

- (a) it is necessary on public interest grounds, and
- (b) it is proportionate to the purpose for which it is required.

(3) The Governor may make regulations for —

- (a) the form and content of warrants;
- (b) procedure for application for and issue of warrants;

- (c) procedure to be followed in implementing a warrant;
 - (d) terms and conditions;
 - (e) duration, renewal, variation and revocation;
 - (f) any other ancillary matters.
- (4) A warrant under this section is enforceable as if it were an order of the Supreme Court.
- (5) It is an offence for a person to fail without reasonable excuse to comply with a provision of a warrant under this section.
- (6) A person who is guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction to —
- (a) imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years,
 - (b) a fine not exceeding level 12 on the standard scale, or
 - (c) both.

109. Directed surveillance

- (1) In this section “directed surveillance” means electronic surveillance which —
- (a) is covert and non-intrusive, and
 - (b) is intended to support an investigation by obtaining private information about a person (whether or not one specifically identified for the purposes of the investigation or operation).
- (2) The Governor in discretion or a court may grant a warrant for directed surveillance.
- (3) The Governor in discretion or a court may grant a warrant only if satisfied that —
- (a) it is necessary on public interest grounds, and
 - (b) it is proportionate to the purpose for which it is required.
- (4) The Governor may make regulations for —
- (a) the form and content of warrants;
 - (b) procedure for application for and issue of warrants;
 - (c) procedure to be followed in implementing a warrant;
 - (d) terms and conditions;

(e) duration, renewal, variation and revocation; and

(f) any other ancillary matters.

(5) A warrant under this section is enforceable as if it were an order of the Supreme Court.

(6) It is an offence for a person to fail without reasonable excuse to comply with a provision of a warrant under this section.

(7) A person who is guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction to —

(a) imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years,

(b) a fine not exceeding level 12 on the standard scale, or

(c) both.

110. Intrusive surveillance

(1) For the purposes of this section “intrusive surveillance” means covert electronic surveillance of activity on residential premises or in a private vehicle (and does not include the use of devices to provide information only about the location of a vehicle).

(2) The Governor in discretion or a court may grant a warrant for intrusive surveillance.

(3) The Governor in discretion or a court may grant a warrant only if satisfied that —

(a) it is necessary on public interest grounds, and

(b) it is proportionate to the purpose for which it is required.

(4) The Governor may make regulations for —

(a) the form and content of warrants;

(b) procedure for application for and issue of warrants;

(c) procedure to be followed in implementing a warrant;

(d) terms and conditions;

(e) duration, renewal, variation and revocation; and

(f) any other ancillary matters.

(5) A warrant under this section is enforceable as if it were an order of the Supreme Court.

(6) It is an offence for a person to fail without reasonable excuse to comply with a provision of a warrant under this section.

(7) A person who is guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction to —

(a) imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years,

(b) a fine not exceeding level 12 on the standard scale, or

(c) both.

(8) In this section a reference to a vehicle includes a reference to a vessel, hovercraft or aircraft.

Encrypted data

111. Requirement to disclose

(1) This section applies where encrypted electronic data has come into the possession of a public body —

(a) in the exercise of a function under this Ordinance, or

(b) in the exercise of a function under another enactment.

(2) A public body who believes that a person is likely to possess the key to the encryption may require that person to disclose the key to the public body.

(3) A requirement may be imposed only if the public body is satisfied that —

(a) it is necessary on public interest grounds, and

(b) it is proportionate to the purpose for which it is imposed.

(4) The Governor may make regulations for —

(a) the form and content of requirements;

(b) procedure for application for and issue of requirements;

(c) terms and conditions; and

(d) any other ancillary matters.

(5) A requirement under this section is enforceable as if it were an order of the Supreme Court.

(6) A requirement under this section may not require the disclosure of a key which is designed to be used, and has been used, only for generating electronic signatures.

(7) A requirement under this section may include a provision prohibiting any person from communicating the fact or nature of the requirement to any other person (except for the purposes of complying with the requirement).

(8) It is an offence for a person to fail without reasonable excuse to comply with a requirement under this section.

(9) A person who is guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction to —

(a) imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years,

(b) a fine not exceeding level 12 on the standard scale, or

(c) both.

112. General

(1) Nothing in this Part, or done under this Part, requires the exclusive licensee under Part 7 or any other person to do anything that is not practicable for the licensee or other person, having regard to all the circumstances.

(2) Where a person on whom a warrant, notice or requirement under this Part is served or proposed to be served is of the opinion that the warrant, notice or requirement requires the person to do something that is not practicable —

(a) the person may refer the question to the Magistrates' Court,

(b) the decision of the Magistrates' Court shall be final to determine the question, and

(c) the Magistrates' Court may make any ancillary order it thinks fit (including modifying or imposing a condition to or limitation on the warrant, notice or requirement).

(3) In the case of a warrant, notice or requirement served on a person by the Governor —

(a) the person may not refer the question to the Magistrates' Court without giving the Governor such notice as is reasonably practicable, and

(b) the warrant, notice or requirement has no effect until the question has been determined by (or withdrawn from) the Magistrates' Court (and then has effect subject to the determination).

(4) Nothing in this Ordinance prohibits the doing of anything in accordance with lawful authority.

(5) Where a warrant, notice or requirement under this Part is served on a person —

- (a) the person may comply with the warrant, notice or requirement wholly or partly by arranging for another person to take the required action; and
- (b) the person may disclose the warrant, notice or requirement for that purpose.

(i) if the payment has been so provided for, the payment must instead be made out of the funds set aside pursuant to the Appropriation Ordinance; but

(ii) if —

(aa) the payment has not been so provided for; or

(bb) the payment has been so provided for, but there is insufficient remainder of the funds set aside pursuant to the Appropriation Ordinance to make the payment at all or in full,

the payment must be made directly out of the Consolidated Fund as required; and

(c) a statement of aggregate payments made in each financial year in the circumstances set out in paragraph (b)(ii) must be included in the statement required by section 55(1) of the Finance and Audit Ordinance (Title 19.3).

[UK YJCE Act 1999 s.53]

3. Criminal proceedings

(1) In this Ordinance, “criminal proceedings” include —

- (a) proceedings for an offence consisting of a trial or other hearing at which evidence falls to be given;
- (b) proceedings commenced in relation to a breach of law in respect of which the person proceeded against, if the breach is proved, is liable to be punished (other than by an award of punitive or exemplary damages) in some manner provided for by law;
- (c) so far as the context admits, proceedings by way of appeal from any decision of a court in proceedings which are criminal proceedings; and
- (d) proceedings for enforcement of payment of a fine imposed by way of sentence on any person in criminal proceedings, but do not include proceedings, other than in the course of a prosecution, for an order that a person be bound over or made the subject of an order under section 76 of the Licensing Ordinance, or proceedings in relation to contempt of court.

(2) Criminal proceedings for an offence are started by —

- (a) arrest without warrant;
- (b) the issue of a warrant for arrest;
- (c) the issue of a summons to appear;
- (d) the service of an indictment or other document specifying the charge; or
- (e) an oral charge,

in respect of the offence.

(3) If more than one time is found under subsection (2) in relation to proceedings they are started at the earliest of them.

(4) If the defendant is acquitted on all counts in proceedings for an offence, the proceedings are concluded when the defendant is acquitted.

4. Offences under two or more laws

If an act or omission constitutes an offence under two or more Ordinances, or both under an Ordinance and under any other law, the offender —

- (a) may, unless the contrary intention appears, be prosecuted and punished under either or any of those Ordinances or under such other law; but
- (b) may not be punished twice for the same offence.

5. Application of English procedure

(1) If and to the extent that this Ordinance or any other written law or criminal procedure rules made under this Ordinance do not make provision for any topic, the powers of the courts in their criminal jurisdiction are to be exercised in conformity with the law and practice for the time being observed in England and Wales as follows —

- (a) by the Summary Court and the Magistrate's Court - the law and practice of magistrates' courts;
- (b) by the Supreme Court in its original jurisdiction and its criminal appellate jurisdiction - the law and practice in the Crown Court;
- (c) by the Court of Appeal in its criminal jurisdiction - the law and practice in the Criminal Division of the Court of Appeal, but modified as required by the circumstances of the Falkland Islands.

(2) Without limiting subsection (1) as to the circumstances of the Falkland Islands, a reference in any rule of practice in England and Wales to an Act of the United Kingdom Parliament is, if there is a corresponding Falkland Islands Ordinance, to be read as a reference to that Ordinance.

CHAPTER 2 – POLICE POWERS

PART 2 – POWERS TO STOP AND SEARCH OR ENTER AND SEARCH

Powers to stop and search

6. Power of police officers to stop and search persons, vehicles, etc.

(1) A police officer may exercise any power conferred by this section —

- (a) in any place to which at the time when the officer proposes to exercise the power the public or any section of the public has access, on payment or otherwise, as of right or by virtue of express or implied permission; or
- (b) in any other place to which people have ready access at the time when the officer proposes to exercise the power but which is not a dwelling.

(2) Subject to subsections (3) to (5), a police officer may —

- (a) search —

- (i) any person or vehicle;
- (ii) anything which is in or on a vehicle, for stolen or prohibited articles or any article to which subsection (9) applies; and

(b) detain a person or vehicle for the purpose of such a search.

(3) This section does not give a police officer power to search a person or vehicle or anything in or on a vehicle unless the officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting that he or she will find stolen or prohibited articles, or any article to which subsection (9) applies.

(4) If a person is in a garden or yard occupied by and used for the purposes of a dwelling or on other land so occupied and used, a police officer may not search the person in the exercise of the power conferred by this section unless the police officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the person —

(a) does not reside in the dwelling; and

(b) is not in the place in question with the express or implied permission of a person who resides in the dwelling.

(5) If a vehicle is in a garden or yard occupied with and used for the purposes of a dwelling or on other land so occupied and used, a police officer may not search the vehicle or anything in or on it in the exercise of the power conferred by this section unless the officer has reasonable grounds for believing —

(a) that the person in charge of the vehicle does not reside in the dwelling; and

(b) that the vehicle is not in the place in question with the express or implied permission of a person who resides in the dwelling.

(6) If in the course of such a search a police officer discovers an article which the officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting to be a stolen or prohibited article, or an article to which subsection (9) applies, the officer may seize it.

(7) For the purposes of this Part, an article is prohibited if it is —

(a) an offensive weapon;

(b) a dangerous instrument; or

(c) an article —

(i) made or adapted for the use in the course of or in connection with an offence to which this sub-paragraph applies; or

(ii) intended by the person having it with the person for such use by that person or by some other person.

(8) The offences to which subsection (7)(c)(i) applies are —

(a) burglary;

(b) theft;

(c) an offence under section 30 of the Road Traffic Ordinance (Taking motor vehicles, etc. without authority);

(d) an offence under section 369 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Offence of fraud); and

(e) an offence under section 195 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Destroying or damaging property).

(9) This subsection applies to every article in relation to which a person has committed, or is committing or is going to commit an offence under section 169 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (having an article with a blade or point in a public place).

7. Provisions relating to search under section 6

(1) A police officer who detains a person or vehicle in the exercise of —

(a) the power conferred by section 6; or

(b) any other power —

(i) to search a person without first arresting the person; or

(ii) to search a vehicle without making an arrest, need not conduct a search if it appears subsequently to the officer that no search is required, or that a search is impracticable.

(2) A police officer who contemplates a search, other than a search of an unattended vehicle, in the exercise of the powers mentioned in subsection (1) must, subject to subsection (5), take reasonable steps before he or she commences the search to bring to the attention of the appropriate person the matters specified in subsection (4) and must not commence the search until he or she has performed that duty.

(3) If the police officer is not in uniform he or she must also produce to the appropriate person documentary evidence that he or she is a police officer.

(4) The matters referred to in subsection (2) are —

- (a) the police officer's name;
- (b) the object of the proposed search;
- (c) the officer's grounds for proposing to make it; and
- (d) the effect of section 8(8) or (9), as appropriate.

(5) A police officer need not bring the effect of section 8(8) or (9) to the attention of the appropriate person if it appears to the officer that it will not be practicable to make the record as provided by section 10(1).

(6) In this section "the appropriate person" means —

- (a) if the police officer proposes to search a person - that person; and
- (b) if the officer proposes to search a vehicle, or anything in or on a vehicle - the person in charge of the vehicle.

(7) On completing a search of an unattended vehicle or anything in or on such a vehicle in the exercise of any such power as is mentioned in subsection (1) a police officer must leave a notice stating —

- (a) that the officer has searched it;
- (b) the officer's name and rank;
- (c) that an application for compensation for any damage caused by the search may be made in writing to the Chief Police Officer; and
- (d) the effect of section 10(8).

(8) The police officer must leave the notice referred to in subsection (7) inside the vehicle unless it is not reasonably practicable to do so without damaging the vehicle.

(9) The time for which a person or vehicle may be detained for the purposes of such a search is the time reasonably required to permit a search to be carried out either at the place where the person or vehicle was first detained or nearby.

(10) Neither the power conferred by section 6 nor any other power to detain and search a person without first arresting the person, or to detain and search a vehicle without making an arrest, authorises a police officer —

- (a) to require a person to remove any of the person's clothing in public other than an outer coat, jacket or gloves; or

(b) if not in uniform, to stop a vehicle.
[CJ Ord. s.169; UK PACE Act 1984 s.2]

8. Power to stop and search in anticipation of, or after, violence

(1) If a police officer of the rank of inspector or above reasonably believes that —

(a) incidents involving serious violence are likely to take place in any locality in the Falkland Islands; and

(b) it is necessary and expedient to give an authorisation under this section to prevent their occurrence, the officer may give an authorisation that the powers conferred by this section are exercisable in that locality for a specified period not exceeding 24 hours.

(2) If a police officer of the rank of inspector or above reasonably believes that —

(a) an incident involving serious violence has taken place in any locality in the Falkland Islands;

(b) a dangerous instrument or offensive weapon used in the incident is being carried by a person in that locality; and

(c) it is necessary and expedient to give an authorisation under this section to find the instrument or weapon,

the officer may give an authorisation that the powers conferred by this section are exercisable in that locality for a specified period not exceeding 24 hours.

(3) If a police officer of the rank of inspector or above reasonably believes that persons are carrying dangerous instruments or offensive weapons in any locality in the Falkland Islands without good reason, the officer may give an authorisation that the powers conferred by this section are exercisable in that locality for a specified period not exceeding 24 hours.

(4) If it appears to an officer above the rank of inspector to be necessary and expedient, having regard to offences which have, or are reasonably suspected to have, been committed in connection with any activity falling within the authorisation, the officer may direct that the authorisation continues in force for a further 24 hours.

(5) If a police officer gives an authorisation under subsection (1) he or she must, as soon as practicable, cause an officer above the rank of inspector to be informed.

(6) This section confers on any police officer in uniform power to —

(a) stop any pedestrian and search the pedestrian or anything carried by him or her for offensive weapons or dangerous instruments;

(b) stop any vehicle and search the vehicle, its driver and any passenger for offensive weapons or dangerous instruments.

(c) require any person to remove any item which the officer reasonably believes that person is wearing wholly or mainly for the purpose of concealing the person's identity;

(d) seize any item which the officer reasonably believes any person intends to wear wholly or mainly for that purpose.

(7) A police officer may, in the exercise of the powers conferred by subsection (6), stop any person or vehicle and make any search the officer thinks fit, whether or not the officer has any grounds for suspecting that the person or vehicle is carrying weapons or articles of that kind.

(8) If in the course of a search under this section a police officer discovers a dangerous instrument or an article which the officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting to be an offensive weapon, the officer may seize it.

(9) A person who fails —

(a) to stop, or to stop a vehicle; or

(b) to remove an item worn by the person, when required to do so by a police officer under this section commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 1 month, or a fine at level 3 on the standard scale, or both.

[UK CJPO Act 1994 s.60 (part) and s.60AA]

9. Provisions supplementary to section 8

(1) Subject to subsection (2), an authorisation or direction under section 8 must —

(a) be in writing signed by the officer giving it; and

(b) specify the grounds on which it is given and the locality in which and the period during which the powers conferred by this section are exercisable.

(2) An authorisation under subsection (2) of section 8 need not be given in writing if it is not practicable to do so but any oral authorisation must state the matters which would otherwise have to be specified under subsection (1) of this section and must be recorded in writing as soon as is practicable.

(3) The driver of a vehicle that is stopped by a police officer under this section is entitled to obtain a written statement that the vehicle was stopped under the powers conferred by this section, if he or she applies for such a statement within 3 months after the day on which the vehicle was stopped.

(4) A person who is searched by a police officer under this section is entitled to obtain a written statement that he or she was searched under the powers conferred by this section, if the person applies for such a statement within 12 months after the day on which he or she was searched.

(5) For the purposes of section 8, a person carries a dangerous instrument or an offensive weapon if the person has it in his or her possession.

(6) The powers conferred by section 8 are in addition to and do not derogate from any power otherwise conferred by this Ordinance.

[UK CJPO Act 1994 s.60 (part)]

10. Duty to make records concerning searches

(1) When a police officer has carried out a search pursuant to the provisions of this Part, other than a search under section 13, a record of the search must be made in writing unless it is not practicable to do so.

(2) The record of a search of a person must include a note of the person's name, if the police officer knows it, but an officer must not detain a person to find out the name of the person.

(3) If a police officer does not know the name of a person searched, the record of the search must include a note describing that person.

(4) The record of a search of a vehicle must include a note describing the vehicle, and stating the registration number of the vehicle if displayed upon the vehicle.

(5) When a record of a search is required by subsection (1) to be made —

(a) if the search results in a person being arrested and taken to a place of lawful custody, the officer must ensure that the record is made as part of the person's custody record;

(b) in any other case, the officer must make the record at the time, or, if that is not practicable, as soon as practicable after the completion of the search.

(6) The record of a search of a person or a vehicle must —

(a) state —

(i) the object of the search;

(ii) the grounds for making it;

(iii) the date and time when it was made;

(iv) the place where it was made;

(v) whether anything, and if so what, was found;

(vi) whether any, and if so what, injury to a person or damage to property appears to the police officer to have resulted from the search; and

(b) identify the police officer who made the search.

(7) If a record of a search of a person has been made under this section, the person who was searched is entitled to a copy of the record if he or she asks for one within 12 months of the search being made.

(8) If —

(a) a record of the search of a vehicle has been made under this section; and

(b) the owner of the vehicle or the person who was in charge of the vehicle at the time when it was searched asks for a copy of the record of the search within 12 months of the search being made, the person who made the request is entitled to a copy.

[CJ Ord. s.170; UK PACE Act 1984 s.3]

11. Road checks

(1) This section governs the conduct of road checks by police officers for the purpose of ascertaining whether a vehicle is carrying a person who —

(a) has committed an offence other than a road traffic offence;

(b) is a witness to such an offence;

(c) intends to commit such an offence; or

(d) is unlawfully at large.

(2) For the purposes of this section a road check consists of the exercise in a place of the power to stop traffic conferred by section 45(1) of the Road Traffic Ordinance so as to stop all vehicles, or all vehicles of a particular type, during the period for which the power is exercised in that place.

(3) Subject to subsection (5), there may only be a road check if a police officer of the rank of inspector or above authorises it in writing.

(4) An officer may only authorise a road check under subsection (3) —

(a) for the purpose specified in subsection (1)(a) - if the officer has reasonable grounds —

(i) for believing that the offence is an imprisonable offence; and

- (ii) for suspecting that the person is, or is about to be, in the place in which vehicles would be stopped if the road check were authorised;
 - (b) for the purpose specified in subsection (1)(b) - if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the offence is an imprisonable offence;
 - (c) for the purpose specified in subsection (1)(c) - if the officer has reasonable grounds —
 - (i) for believing that the offence would be an imprisonable offence; and
 - (ii) for suspecting that the person is, or is about to be, in the place in which vehicles would be stopped if the road check were authorised;
 - (d) for the purpose specified in subsection (1)(d) - if the officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting that the person is, or is about to be, in that place.
- (5) An officer below the rank of inspector may authorise a road check if it appears to the officer that it is required as a matter of urgency for one of the purposes specified in subsection (1).
- (6) If an authorisation is given under subsection (5), the officer who gives it must —
- (a) make a written record of the time at which he or she gives it; and
 - (b) inform an officer of the rank of inspector or above that it has been given.
- (7) The duties imposed by subsection (6) must be performed as soon as is practicable after the giving of the authorisation.
- (8) An officer to whom a report is made under subsection (6) may, in writing, authorise the road check to continue.
- (9) If the officer to whom the report is made considers that the road check should not continue, he or she must record in writing —
- (a) the fact that it took place; and
 - (b) the purpose for which it took place.
- (10) An officer giving an authorisation under this section must specify the place in which vehicles are to be stopped.
- (11) An officer giving an authorisation under this section, other than an authorisation under subsection (5) —
- (a) must specify a period, not exceeding 7 days, during which the road check may continue; and

(b) may direct that the road check is to be —

(i) continuous; or

(ii) conducted at specified times,

during that period.

(12) If it appears to a police officer of the rank of inspector or above that a road check ought to continue beyond the period for which it has been authorised, the officer may, from time to time, in writing specify a further period, not exceeding 7 days, during which it may continue.

(13) An authorisation under this section must specify —

(a) the name of the officer giving it;

(b) the purpose of the road check; and

(c) the place in which vehicles are to be stopped.

(14) The duties to specify the purposes of a road check imposed by subsections (9) and (13) include duties to specify any relevant imprisonable offence.

(15) If a vehicle is stopped in a road check, the person in charge of the vehicle at the time when it stopped is entitled to obtain a written statement of the purpose of the road check if he or she applies for such a statement within 12 months from the day on which the vehicle was stopped.

(16) Nothing in this section affects the exercise by police officers of any power to stop vehicles for purposes other than those specified in subsection (1).

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.4]

12. Reports of searches and road checks

(1) The Chief Police Officer must publish an annual report that contains information for the period to which it relates relating to —

(a) searches carried out pursuant to the provisions of this Part during that period; and

(b) road checks authorised under section 11 during that period.

(2) The information about searches does not need to include information about specific searches but must include —

(a) the total numbers of searches in each month during the period to which the report relates—

(i) for stolen articles; and

(ii) for prohibited articles, as defined in section 6(7).

(b) the total number of persons arrested in each such month in consequence of searches of each of the descriptions specified in paragraph (a)(i) to (iii).

(3) The information about road checks must include information —

(a) about the reason for authorising each road check; and

(b) about the result of each of them.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.5]

Powers to enter and search

13. Power to authorise entry and search of premises

(1) If, on application made by a police officer, the Senior Magistrate is, or 2 justices of the peace are, satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that —

(a) an imprisonable offence has been committed;

(b) there is material on premises specified in the application which is likely to be of substantial value (whether by itself or together with other material) to the investigation of the offence;

(c) the material is likely to be relevant evidence;

(d) it does not consist of or include items subject to legal privilege, excluded material or special procedure material; and

(e) any of the conditions specified in subsection (3) applies, the Senior Magistrate or justices of the peace may issue a warrant authorising a police officer to enter and search the premises.

(2) The premises referred to in subsection (1)(b) are —

(a) one or more sets of premises specified in the application (in which case the application is for a “specific premises warrant”); or

(b) any premises occupied or controlled by a person specified in the application, including any premises specified as in paragraph (a) (in which case the application is for an “all premises warrant”)

(3) A police officer may seize and retain anything for which a search has been authorised under subsection (1).

(4) The conditions mentioned in subsection (1)(e) are that —

(a) it is not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to grant entry to the premises;

(b) it is practicable to communicate with a person entitled to grant entry to the premises but it is not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to grant access to the evidence;

(c) entry to the premises will not be granted unless a warrant is produced;

(d) the purpose of a search may be frustrated or seriously prejudiced unless a police officer arriving at the premises can secure immediate entry to them.

(5) The power to issue a warrant conferred by this section is in addition to any such power conferred by any other law.

(6) In this section a reference to 2 justices of the peace means 2 such justices sitting together (whether in open court or otherwise) and concurring in the decision.

[CJ Ord. ss.179]

14. Special provisions as to access – Schedule 1

A police officer of the rank of sergeant or above may obtain access to excluded material or special procedure material for the purposes of a criminal investigation by making an application under Schedule 1 (Access to special procedure material or excluded material) and in accordance with that Schedule.

[CJ Ord. ss.180]

15. Meaning of “items subject to legal privilege”

(1) Subject to subsection (2), in this Part “items subject to legal privilege” means —

(a) communications between a legal practitioner and the practitioner’s client or any person representing the client made in connection with the giving of legal advice to the client;

(b) communications between a legal practitioner and the practitioner’s client or any person representing the client or between such a representative and any other person made in connection with or in contemplation of legal proceedings and for the purposes of such proceedings; and

(c) items enclosed with or referred to in such communications and made —

(i) in connection with the giving of legal advice; or

(ii) in connection with or in contemplation of legal proceedings and for the purposes of such proceedings, when they are in the possession of a person who is entitled to possession of them.

(2) Items held with the intention of furthering a criminal purpose are not items subject to legal privilege.

[CJ Ord. ss.181]

16. Meaning of “excluded material”

(1) Subject to the following provisions of this section, in this Part “excluded material” means —

(a) personal records which a person has acquired or created in the course of any trade, business, profession or other occupation or for the purposes of any paid or unpaid office and which the person holds in confidence;

(b) human tissue or tissue fluid which has been taken for the purposes of diagnosis or medical treatment and which a person holds in confidence;

(c) journalistic material which a person holds in confidence and which consists of —

(i) documents; or

(ii) records other than documents.

(2) A person holds material other than journalistic material in confidence for the purposes of this section if the person holds it subject to —

(a) an express or implied undertaking to hold it in confidence; or

(b) a restriction on disclosure or an obligation of secrecy contained in any enactment including an enactment that comes into force after this Part comes into force, unless the later enactment limits the obligation under this section.

(3) A person holds journalistic material in confidence for the purposes of this section if —

(a) the person holds it subject to such an undertaking, restriction or obligation; and

(b) it has been continuously held (by one or more persons) subject to such an undertaking, restriction or obligation since it was first acquired or created for the purposes of journalism.

[CJ Ord. ss.182]

17. Meaning of “personal records”

In this Part “personal records” means documentary and other records concerning an individual (whether living or dead) who can be identified from them and relating to —

(a) the individual’s physical or mental health;

(b) spiritual counselling or assistance given or to be given to the individual; or

(c) counseling or assistance given or to be given to the individual, for the purposes of the individual's personal welfare, by any voluntary organisation or by any other individual who—

(i) by reason of his or her office or occupation has responsibilities for the individuals personal welfare; or

(ii) by reason of an order of a court has responsibilities for the individual's supervision.

[CJ Ord. ss.183]

18. Meaning of “journalistic material”

(1) Subject to subsection (2), in this Part “journalistic material” means material acquired or created for the purposes of journalism.

(2) Material is only journalistic material for the purposes of this Part if it is in the possession of a person who acquired or created it for the purposes of journalism.

(3) A person who receives material from someone who intends that the recipient will use it for the purposes of journalism is to be taken to have acquired it for those purposes.

[CJ Ord. ss.184]

19. Meaning of “special procedure material”

(1) In this Part, “special procedure material” means —

(a) material to which subsection (2) applies; and

(b) journalistic material that is not excluded material.

(2) Subject to the following subsections, this subsection applies to material, other than items subject to legal privilege and excluded material, in the possession of a person who —

(a) acquired or created it in the course of any trade, business, profession or other occupation or for the purpose of any paid or unpaid office; and

(b) holds it subject —

(i) to an express or implied undertaking to hold it in confidence; or

(ii) to a restriction or obligation such as is mentioned in section 16(2)(b).

(3) If material is acquired —

(a) by an employee from his or her employer and in the course of his or her employment; or

(b) by a company from an associated company, it is only special procedure material if it was special procedure material immediately before the acquisition.

(4) If material is created by an employee in the course of his or her employment, it is only special procedure material if it would have been special procedure material if his or her employer had created it.

(5) If material is created by a company on behalf of an associated company, it is only special procedure material if it would have been special procedure material had the associated company created it.

(6) A company is to be treated as another's associated company for the purposes of this section at a given time if, at that time or at any time within one year previously —

(a) one of the 2 companies has control of the other; or

(b) both are under the control of the same person or persons.

[CJ Ord. ss.185]

20. Search warrants: Safeguards

(1) This section and section 21 have effect in relation to the issue to a police officer under any enactment (including an enactment that comes into force after this Part comes into force unless the later enactment limits the obligation in this section) of a warrant to enter and search premises (a “search warrant”).

(2) An entry on or search of premises under a search warrant is unlawful unless it complies with this section and section 21.

(3) A police officer who applies for a search warrant must —

(a) state —

(i) the ground on which he or she makes the application; and

(ii) the enactment under which the warrant would be issued;

(b) specify the premises which it is desired to enter and search; and

(c) identify, so far as is practicable, the articles or persons to be sought.

(4) An application for a search warrant must be made without notice and supported by an information in writing.

(5) A police officer applying for a search warrant must answer on oath any question asked by the Senior Magistrate or justices of the peace hearing the application.

(6) A search warrant must —

(a) authorise an entry on one occasion only, unless it specifies that it authorises multiple entries;

(b) if it specifies that it authorises multiple entries - specify whether the number of entries authorised is unlimited, or limited to a specified maximum;

(c) specify —

(i) the name of the person who applies for it;

(ii) the date on which it was issued;

(iii) the enactment under which it is issued;

(iv) each set of premises to be searched or, in the case of an all premises warrant, the person who is in occupation or control of the premises to be searched and any premises under the occupation or control of that person that can be specified and are to be searched; and

(d) identify, so far as practicable, the articles or persons to be sought.

(7) Two copies must be made of a warrant, each clearly certified by the person issuing the warrant as copies.

[CJ Ord. ss.186]

21. Execution of search warrants

(1) A search warrant may —

(a) be executed by any police officer; and

(b) authorise persons to accompany the officer who is executing it.

(2) A person authorised under subsection (1)(b) —

(a) has the same powers as the police officer whom the person accompanies in respect of —

(i) the execution of the warrant; and

(ii) the seizure of anything to which the warrant relates; but.

(b) may exercise those powers only in the company, and under the supervision, of the police officer.

(3) Entry and search under a search warrant must be —

(a) within one month from the date of its issue;

(b) at a reasonable hour unless it appears to the police officer executing it that the purpose of a search may be frustrated by entry at a reasonable hour.

(4) If the occupier of premises which are to be entered and searched is present at the time when a police officer seeks to execute a search warrant in respect of them, the officer must —

(a) identify himself or herself to the occupier and, if not in uniform, produce to the occupier documentary evidence that he or she is a police officer;

(b) produce the warrant to the occupier; and

(c) supply the occupier with a copy of it, certified as required by section 20(7).

(5) If —

(a) the occupier of the premises is not present at the time when a police officer seeks to execute a search warrant; but

(b) some other person who appears to the police officer to be in charge of the premises is present, subsection (4) has effect as if a reference to the occupier were a reference to that other person.

(6) If there is no person present who appears to the police officer to be in charge of the premises, the officer must leave a copy of the warrant in a prominent place on the premises.

(7) A search under a warrant may only be a search to the extent required for the purpose for which the warrant was issued.

(8) A police officer executing a search warrant must make an endorsement on it stating whether—

(a) the articles or persons sought were found; and

(b) any articles were seized, other than articles which were sought.

(9) A search warrant which —

(a) has been executed; or

(b) has not been executed within the time authorised for its execution, must be returned to the office of the court out of which it was issued.

(10) A warrant which is returned to a court under subsection (9) must be retained for 12 months from its return by the court officer to whom it was returned.

(11) If during the period for which a warrant is to be retained the occupier of the premises to which it relates asks to inspect it, the occupier must be allowed to do so.
[CJ Ord. ss.187]

Entry and search without a search warrant

22. Entry for purpose of arrest, etc.

(1) Subject to the following provisions of this section, and without affecting any other enactment, a police officer may enter and search any premises for the purpose of —

(a) executing —

(i) a warrant of arrest issued in connection with or arising out of criminal proceedings; or

(ii) a warrant of commitment issued by a court under any enactment;

(b) arresting a person for an imprisonable offence;

(c) arresting a person for an offence under —

(i) any of sections 568 to 572 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (trespassing on premises);

(ii) section 45(2) of the Road Traffic Ordinance (failure to stop when required to do so by police officer in uniform);

(d) arresting any youth who has been remanded or detained under this Ordinance;

(e) recapturing a person who is, or is deemed for any purpose to be, unlawfully at large while liable to be detained in a prison or other place of detention;

(f) recapturing a person who is unlawfully at large and whom the officer is pursuing; or

(g) preventing death or serious personal injury or serious damage to property.

(2) Except for the purpose specified in subsection (1)(g), the powers of entry and search conferred by this section —

(a) are only exercisable if the police officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the person whom he or she is seeking is on the premises; and

(b) are limited, in relation to premises consisting of 2 or more separate dwellings, to powers to enter and search —

(i) any parts of the premises which the occupiers of any dwelling comprised in the premises use in common with the occupiers of any other such dwelling; and

(ii) any such dwelling in which the police officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the person whom he or she is seeking may be.

(3) The powers of entry and search conferred by this section, if exercised for the purpose specified in subsection (1)(c)(ii), must be exercised by a police officer in uniform.

(4) The power of search conferred by this section is only a power to search to the extent reasonably required for the purpose for which the power of entry is exercised.

(5) Nothing in this section affects any power of entry to deal with or prevent a breach of the peace.

[CJ Ord. ss.188]

23. Entry and search after arrest

(1) Subject to this section, a police officer may enter and search any premises occupied or controlled by a person who is under arrest for an imprisonable offence, if the officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting that there is on the premises evidence, other than items subject to legal privilege, that relates —

(a) to that offence; or

(b) to some other imprisonable offence which is connected with or similar to that offence.

(2) A police officer may seize and retain anything for which he or she may search under subsection (1).

(3) The power to search conferred by subsection (1) is only a power to search to the extent that is reasonably required for the purpose of discovering evidence of the kind mentioned in that subsection.

(4) Subject to subsection (5), the powers conferred by this section may not be exercised unless an officer of the rank of inspector or above has authorised them in writing.

(5) A police officer may conduct a search under subsection (1) —

(a) before the person is taken to a place of lawful custody or released on bail; and

(b) without obtaining an authorisation under subsection (4), if the presence of the person at a place (other than the place of lawful custody) is necessary for the effective investigation of the offence.

(6) If a police officer conducts a search by virtue of subsection (5), the officer must as soon as practicable after making the search inform an officer of the rank of inspector or above that he or she has made it.

(7) An officer who —

- (a) authorises a search; or
- (b) is informed of a search under subsection (6), must make a record in writing —

- (i) of the grounds for the search; and
- (ii) of the nature of the evidence that was sought.

(8) If the person who was in occupation or control of the premises at the time of the search is in police detention at the time the search record is to be made, the officer must, as soon as reasonably practicable, add the search record as part of the person's custody record.

[CJ Ord. ss.189]

Police powers at airports

24. Exercise of police functions at airports

(1) A police officer, when acting in the performance of duties as a police officer, is entitled to enter any part of any airport.

(2) A police officer may in any airport —

- (a) stop, and without warrant search and arrest, any airport employee whom the officer has reasonable grounds to suspect of having in the employee's possession, or of conveying in any manner, anything stolen or unlawfully obtained at the airport;
- (b) if the officer has reasonable grounds to suspect that anything stolen or unlawfully obtained at the airport may be found in or on any vehicle carrying an airport employee at the airport or in or on any aircraft, stop, board and, without warrant, search and detain the vehicle or aircraft.

(3) A police officer may —

- (a) stop any person who is leaving a cargo area in an airport and inspect any goods carried by the person;
- (b) stop and search any vehicle or aircraft which is leaving any such area and inspect the vehicle or aircraft and any goods carried on or in it; and

(c) detain in the area —

(i) any such goods for which there is not produced a document authorising their removal from the area signed by a person authorised in that behalf by the manager of the airport; and

(ii) any such vehicle or aircraft for so long as there are on or in it goods liable to detention under this paragraph.

(4) Nothing in subsection (3) is to be construed as a power to search any person.

(5) The powers conferred by this section on police officers do not limit or affect any other powers under this or any other written law or enactment exercisable by a police officer at an airport.

(6) In this section —

“airport” means Mount Pleasant Airport, Stanley Airport, and any other airport designated by the Governor by order for the purposes of this section;

“airport employee” means any person working at an airport under a contract requiring the person to work at the airport;

“cargo area” means any area which is used wholly or mainly for the storage or handling of cargo in an airport.

[UK PACE Act 1984 ss.8 to 18]

PART 3 – POWERS OF SEIZURE, ETC.

25. General interpretation of Part

(1) In this Part —

“excluded material” has the meaning given to that term by section 16;

“item subject to legal privilege” has the meaning given to it by section 15;

“return”, in relation to seized property, is to be construed in accordance with section 39, and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly;

“seize”, and cognate expressions, are to be construed in accordance with section 26(1);

“seized property”, in relation to any exercise of a power of seizure, means anything seized in exercise of that power;

“special procedure material” has the meaning given to it by section 19.

(2) In this Part, in relation to a time when seized property is in any person's possession in consequence of a seizure (“the relevant time”), a reference to a thing for which the person making the seizure had power to search is to be construed —

(a) if the seizure was made on the occasion of a search carried out on the authority of a warrant - as including anything of the description of things the presence or suspected presence of which provided grounds for the issue of the warrant;

(b) if the property was seized in the course of a search on the occasion of which it would have been lawful for the person carrying out the search to seize anything which on that occasion was believed by the person to be, or appeared to the person to be, of a particular description - as including —

(i) anything which at the relevant time is believed by the person in possession of the seized property, or (as the case may be) appears to the person, to be of that description; and

(ii) anything which is in fact of that description;

(c) if the property was seized in the course of a search on the occasion of which it would have been lawful for the person carrying out the search to seize anything which there were on that occasion reasonable grounds for believing was of a particular description - as including—

(i) anything which there are at the relevant time reasonable grounds for believing is of that description; and

(ii) anything which is in fact of that description;

(d) if the property was seized in the course of a search to which neither paragraph (b) nor paragraph (c) applies - as including anything which is of a description of things which, on the occasion of the search, it would have been lawful for the person carrying it out to seize otherwise than under section 31 or 32.

(3) In this Part, “judicial officer” means the Senior Magistrate, except that —

(a) if the Senior Magistrate is not available, owing to absence or indisposition, “judicial officer” means a judge in chambers;

(b) if neither the Senior Magistrate nor a judge is available, “judicial officer” means 3 justices of the peace, sitting together (whether in open court or otherwise).

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.66]

26. Copies

(1) Subject to subsection (3) —

(a) in this Part, “seize” includes “take a copy of”, and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly;

(b) this Part applies as if any copy taken under any power to which any provision of this Part applies were the original of that of which it is a copy; and

(c) for the purposes of this Part, except sections 31 and 32, the powers mentioned in subsection (2) (which are powers to obtain hard copies etc. of information which is stored in electronic form) are to be treated as powers of seizure, and references to seizure and to seized property are to be construed accordingly.

(2) The powers mentioned in subsection (1)(c) are any powers conferred by section 27(4) or 28.

(3) Subsection (1) does not apply to section 37.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.63]

General power of seizure, etc.

27. General power of seizure, etc.

(1) The powers conferred by subsections (2), (3) and (4) are exercisable by a police officer who is lawfully on any premises.

(2) The police officer may seize anything which is on the premises if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing —

(a) that it has been obtained in consequence of the commission of an offence; and

(b) that it is necessary to seize it in order to prevent it being concealed, lost, damaged, altered or destroyed.

(3) The police officer may seize anything which is on the premises if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing —

(a) that it is evidence in relation to an offence which the officer is investigating or any other offence; and

(b) that it is necessary to seize it in order to prevent the evidence being concealed, lost, damaged, altered or destroyed.

(4) The police officer may require any information which is stored in any electronic form and is accessible from the premises to be produced in a form —

(a) in which it can be taken away and in which it is visible and legible; or

(b) from which it can readily be produced in a visible and legible form, if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that —

(c) the information —

(i) is evidence in relation to an offence which he or she is investigating, or any other offence; or

(ii) has been obtained in consequence of the commission of an offence; and

(d) it is necessary to do so in order to prevent it being concealed, lost, tampered with or destroyed.

(5) The powers of seizure conferred by this section are in addition to any similar power conferred by any enactment.

(6) No power of seizure conferred on a police officer under any enactment (including an enactment that comes into force after this Part comes into force unless the later enactment limits the power in this section) authorises the seizure of an item which the police officer exercising the power has reasonable grounds for believing to be subject to legal privilege.

[CJ Ord. s.190; UK PACE Act 1984 s.19]

28. Extension of powers of seizure to computerised information

(1) Every power of seizure conferred by an enactment to which this section applies on a police officer who has entered premises in the exercise of a power conferred by an enactment includes a power to require any information stored in any electronic form and accessible from the premises to be produced in a form —

(a) in which it can be taken away and in which it is visible and legible; or

(b) from which it can readily be produced in a visible and legible form.

(2) This section applies —

(a) to any enactment in force when this Part came into force;

(b) to sections 13 and 23;

(c) to paragraph 13 of Schedule 1 (Access to special procedure material and excluded material); and

(d) to any enactment that comes into force after this Part comes into force, unless the later enactment limits the power in this section.

[CJ Ord. s.191; UK PACE Act 1984 s.20]

29. Access and copying

(1) A police officer who seizes anything in the exercise of a power conferred by any enactment (including an enactment that comes into force after this Part comes into force, unless the later enactment limits the power in this section) must, if so requested by a person showing himself or herself —

- (a) to be the occupier of premises on which it was seized; or
- (b) to have had custody or control of it immediately before the seizure, provide that person with a record of what the officer seized.

(2) The officer must provide the record within a reasonable time from the making of the request for it.

(3) Subject to subsection (7), if a request for permission to be granted access to anything which—

- (a) has been seized by a police officer; and
- (b) is retained by the police for the purpose of investigating an offence, is made to the officer in charge of the investigation by a person who had custody or control of the thing immediately before it was so seized, or by someone acting on behalf of such a person, the officer must allow the person who made the request access to it under the supervision of a police officer.

(4) Subject to subsection (7), if a request for a photograph or copy of any such thing is made to the officer in charge of the investigation by a person who had custody or control of the thing immediately before it was so seized, or by someone acting on behalf of such a person, the officer must —

- (a) allow the person who made the request access to it under the supervision of a police officer for the purpose of photographing or copying it; or
- (b) photograph or copy it, or cause it to be photographed or copied.

(5) A police officer may also photograph or copy, or have photographed or copied, anything which the officer has power to seize, without a request being made under subsection (4).

(6) If anything is photographed or copied under subsection (4)(b), the photograph or copy must be supplied to the person who made the request within a reasonable time after the making of the request.

(7) There is no duty under this section to grant access to, or to supply a photograph or copy of, anything if the officer in charge of the investigation for the purposes of which it was seized has reasonable grounds for believing that to do so would prejudice —

(a) that investigation;

(b) the investigating of an offence other than the offence for the purposes of investigating which the thing was seized; or

(c) any criminal proceedings which might be brought as a result of —

(i) the investigation of which the officer is in charge; or

(ii) any such investigation as is mentioned in paragraph (b).

(8) The references to a police officer in subsections (1), (2), (3)(a) and (5) include a person authorised under section 21(1) to accompany a police officer executing a warrant.

[CJ Ord. s.192; UK PACE Act 1984 s.21]

30. Retention

(1) Subject to subsection (4), anything which has been seized by a police officer or taken away by a police officer following a requirement made by virtue of section 27 or 28 may be retained for as long as is necessary in all the circumstances.

(2) Without limiting subsection (1) —

(a) anything seized for the purposes of a criminal investigation may be retained, except as provided by subsection (4) —

(i) for use as evidence at a trial for an offence; or

(ii) for forensic examination or for investigation in connection with an offence; and

(b) anything may be retained in order to establish its lawful owner, if there are reasonable grounds for believing that it has been obtained in consequence of the commission of an offence.

(3) Nothing seized on the ground that it may be used —

(a) to cause physical injury to any person;

(b) to damage property;

(c) to interfere with evidence; or

(d) to assist in escape from police detention or lawful custody, may be retained when the person from whom it was seized —

(i) is no longer in police detention or the custody of a court; or

(ii) is in the custody of a court but has been released on bail.

(4) Nothing may be retained for either of the purposes mentioned in subsection (2)(a) if a photograph or copy would be sufficient for that purpose.

(5) The reference in subsection (1) to anything seized by a police officer includes anything seized by a person authorised under section 21(1) to accompany a police officer executing a warrant.

(6) Nothing in this section affects any power of a court to make an order under section 51 of the Police Ordinance 2000 (Disposal of property).

[CJ Ord. s.193; UK PACE Act 1984 s.22]

Additional powers of seizure

31. Additional powers of seizure from premises

(1) If —

(a) a person who is lawfully on any premises finds anything on those premises that the person has reasonable grounds for believing may be or contain something for which the person is authorised to search on those premises;

(b) a power of seizure to which this section applies, or the power conferred by subsection (2), would entitle the person, if he or she found it, to seize whatever it is that the person has grounds for believing that thing to be or to contain; and

(c) in all the circumstances, it is not reasonably practicable for it to be determined, on those premises —

(i) whether what the person has found is something that he or she is entitled to seize; or

(ii) the extent to which what the person has found contains something that he or she is entitled to seize,

that person's powers of seizure include power under this section to seize so much of what the person has found as it is necessary to remove from the premises to enable that to be determined.

(2) If —

(a) a person who is lawfully on any premises finds anything on those premises (“the seizable property”) which the person would be entitled to seize but for its being comprised in something else that the person has (apart from this subsection) no power to seize;

(b) the power under which that person would have power to seize the seizable property is a power to which this section applies; and

(c) in all the circumstances it is not reasonably practicable for the seizable property to be separated, on those premises, from that in which it is comprised,

that person's powers of seizure include power under this section to seize both the seizable property and that from which it is not reasonably practicable to separate it.

(3) The factors to be taken into account in considering, for the purposes of this section, whether or not it is reasonably practicable on particular premises for something to be determined, or for something to be separated from something else, are confined to —

(a) how long it would take to carry out the determination or separation on those premises;

(b) the number of persons that would be required to carry out that determination or separation on those premises within a reasonable period;

(c) whether the determination or separation would (or would if carried out on those premises) involve damage to property;

(d) the apparatus or equipment that it would be necessary or appropriate to use for the carrying out of the determination or separation; and

(e) in the case of separation - whether the separation —

(i) would be likely; or

(ii) if carried out by the only means that are reasonably practicable on those premises would be likely,

to prejudice the use of some or all of the separated seizable property for a purpose for which something seized under the power in question is capable of being used.

(4) Section 27(6) (powers of seizure not to include anything legally privileged) does not apply to the power of seizure conferred by subsection (2).

(5) This section applies to every power of seizure contained in an enactment in force when this Part comes into force, or coming into force after this Part comes into force, unless the later enactment limits the power in this section.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.50]

32. Additional powers of seizure from the person

(1) If —

(a) a person carrying out a lawful search of any person finds something that the person has reasonable grounds for believing may be or may contain something for which the person is authorised to search;

(b) a power of seizure to which this section applies or the power conferred by subsection (2) would entitle the person, if he or she found it, to seize whatever it is that the person has grounds for believing that thing to be or to contain; and

(c) in all the circumstances it is not reasonably practicable for it to be determined, at the time and place of the search —

(i) whether what the person has found is something that he or she is entitled to seize; or

(ii) the extent to which what the person has found contains something that he or she is entitled to seize,

that person's powers of seizure include power under this section to seize so much of what he or she has found as it is necessary to remove from that place to enable that to be determined.

(2) If —

(a) a person carrying out a lawful search of any person finds something ("the seizable property") which the person would be entitled to seize but for its being comprised in something else that the person has (apart from this subsection) no power to seize;

(b) the power under which that person would have power to seize the seizable property is a power to which this section applies; and

(c) in all the circumstances it is not reasonably practicable for the seizable property to be separated, at the time and place of the search, from that in which it is comprised,

that person's powers of seizure include power under this section to seize both the seizable property and that from which it is not reasonably practicable to separate it.

(3) The factors to be taken into account in considering, for the purposes of this section, whether or not it is reasonably practicable, at the time and place of a search, for something to be determined, or for something to be separated from something else, are confined to —

(a) how long it would take to carry out the determination or separation at that time and place;

(b) the number of persons that would be required to carry out that determination or separation at that time and place within a reasonable period;

(c) whether the determination or separation would (or would if carried out at that time and place) involve damage to property;

(d) the apparatus or equipment that it would be necessary or appropriate to use for the carrying out of the determination or separation; and

(e) in the case of separation - whether the separation —

(i) would be likely; or

(ii) if carried out by the only means that are reasonably practicable at that time and place would be likely,

to prejudice the use of some or all of the separated seizable property for a purpose for which something seized under the power in question is capable of being used.

(4) Section 27(6) (powers of seizure not to include anything that a person has reasonable grounds for believing is legally privileged) does not apply to the power of seizure conferred by subsection (2).

(5) This section applies to every power of seizure contained in an enactment in force when this Part comes into force, or coming into force after this Part comes into force, unless the later enactment limits the power in this section.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.51]

33. Notice of exercise of power under section 31 or 32

(1) When a person exercises a power of seizure conferred by section 31, the person must (subject to subsections (2) and (3)) give to the occupier of the premises a written notice —

(a) specifying what has been seized in reliance on the powers conferred by that section;

(b) specifying the grounds on which those powers have been exercised;

(c) setting out the effect of sections 40 to 42 about applying for the return of seized items;

(d) specifying the name and address of the person to whom notice of an application under section 40(2) in respect of any of the seized property must be given; and

(e) specifying the name and address of the person to whom an application may be made to be allowed to attend the initial examination required by any arrangements made for the purposes of section 34(2).

(2) If it appears to the person exercising on any premises a power of seizure conferred by section 31 that —

(a) the occupier of the premises is not present on the premises at the time of the exercise of the power; but

(b) there is some other person present on the premises who is in charge of the premises, subsection (1) of this section has effect as if it required the notice under that subsection to be given to that other person.

(3) If it appears to the person exercising a power of seizure conferred by section 31 that there is no one present on the premises to whom the person may give a notice for the purposes of complying with subsection (1) of this section, he or she must, before leaving the premises, instead of complying with that subsection, attach a notice such as is mentioned in that subsection in a prominent place to the premises.

(4) A person who exercises a power of seizure conferred by section 32 must give a written notice to the person from whom the seizure is made —

(a) specifying what has been seized in reliance on the powers conferred by that section;

(b) specifying the grounds on which those powers have been exercised;

(c) setting out the effect of sections 40 to 42;

(d) specifying the name and address of the person to whom notice of any application under section 40(1) in respect of any of the seized property must be given; and

(e) specifying the name and address of the person to whom an application may be made to be allowed to attend the initial examination required by any arrangements made for the purposes of section 34(2).

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.52]

Return or retention of seized property

34. Examination and return of property seized under section 31 or 32

(1) This section applies when anything has been seized under a power conferred by section 31 or 32.

(2) The person for the time being in possession of the seized property in consequence of the exercise of that power must ensure that arrangements are in place so that (subject to section 42)—

(a) an initial examination of the property is carried out as soon as reasonably practicable after the seizure;

(b) the examination is confined to whatever is necessary for determining how much of the property falls within subsection (3);

(c) anything which is found, on that examination, not to fall within subsection (3) is separated from the rest of the seized property and is returned as soon as reasonably practicable after the examination of all the seized property has been completed; and

(d) until the initial examination of all the seized property has been completed and anything which does not fall within subsection (3) has been returned, the seized property is kept separate from anything seized under any other power.

(3) The seized property falls within this subsection only to the extent that it is —

(a) property for which the person seizing it had power to search when he or she made the seizure but is not property the return of which is required by section 35;

(b) property the retention of which is authorised by section 37; or

(c) something which, in all the circumstances, it will not be reasonably practicable, following the examination, to separate from property falling within paragraph (a) or (b).

(4) In determining for the purposes of this section the earliest practicable time for the carrying out of an initial examination of the seized property, due regard must be had to the desirability of allowing the person from whom it was seized, or a person with an interest in that property, an opportunity of being present or (if he or she chooses) of being represented at the examination.

(5) In this section, references to whether or not it is reasonably practicable to separate part of the seized property from the rest of it are references to whether or not it is reasonably practicable to do so without prejudicing the use of the rest of that property, or a part of it, for purposes for which (disregarding the part to be separated) the use of the whole or of a part of the rest of the property, if retained, would be lawful.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.53]

35. Obligation to return items subject to legal privilege

(1) If, at any time after a seizure of anything has been made in exercise of a power of seizure to which this section applies —

(a) it appears to the person who for the time being has possession of the seized property in consequence of the seizure that the property —

(i) is an item subject to legal privilege; or

(ii) has such an item comprised in it; and

(b) if the item is comprised in something else which has been lawfully seized, it is not comprised in property falling within subsection (2), the person must ensure that the item is returned as soon as reasonably practicable after the seizure.

(2) Property in which an item subject to legal privilege is comprised falls within this subsection if —

(a) the whole or a part of the rest of the property is property falling within subsection (3) or property the retention of which is authorised by section 37; and

(b) in all the circumstances, it is not reasonably practicable for that item to be separated from the rest of that property (or, as the case may be, from that part of it) without prejudicing the use of the rest of that property, or that part of it, for purposes for which (disregarding that item) its use, if retained, would be lawful.

(3) Property falls within this subsection to the extent that it is property for which the person seizing it had power to search when he or she made the seizure, but is not property which is required to be returned under this section or section 36.

(4) This section applies —

(a) to the powers of seizure conferred by sections 31 and 32; and

(b) to any power of seizure (not falling within paragraph (a)) conferred on a police officer by or under any enactment, including an enactment that comes into force after this Part comes into force, unless the later enactment limits the power in this section.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.54]

36. Obligation to return excluded and special procedure material

(1) If, at any time after a seizure of anything has been made in exercise of a power to which this section applies —

(a) it appears to the person for the time being having possession of the seized property in consequence of the seizure that the property —

(i) is excluded material or special procedure material; or

(ii) has any excluded material or any special procedure material comprised in it;

(b) its retention is not authorised by section 37; and

(c) in a case in which the material is comprised in something else which has been lawfully seized - it is not comprised in property falling within subsection (2) or (3),

the person must ensure that the item is returned as soon as reasonably practicable after the seizure.

(2) Property in which any excluded material or special procedure material is comprised falls within this subsection if —

(a) the whole or a part of the rest of the property is property for which the person seizing it had power to search when he or she made the seizure but is not property the return of which is required by this section or section 35; and

(b) in all the circumstances, it is not reasonably practicable for that material to be separated from the rest of that property (or, as the case may be, from that part of it) without prejudicing the use of the rest of that property, or that part of it, for purposes for which (disregarding that material) its use, if retained, would be lawful.

(3) Property in which any excluded material or special procedure material is comprised falls within this subsection if —

(a) the whole or a part of the rest of the property is property the retention of which is authorised by section 37; and

(b) in all the circumstances, it is not reasonably practicable for that material to be separated from the rest of that property (or, as the case may be, from that part of it) without prejudicing the use of the rest of that property, or that part of it, for purposes for which (disregarding that material) its use, if retained, would be lawful.

(4) This section applies to every power of seizure contained in an enactment in force when this Part comes into force, or coming into force after this Part comes into force, unless the later enactment limits the power in this section.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.55]

37. Retention of seized property

(1) The retention of —

(a) property seized on any premises by a police officer who was lawfully on the premises; or

(b) property seized by a police officer carrying out a lawful search of any person, is authorised by this section if the property falls within subsection (2) or (3).

(2) Property falls within this subsection to the extent that there are reasonable grounds for believing that —

(a) it is property obtained in consequence of the commission of an offence; and

(b) it is necessary for it to be retained in order to prevent its being concealed, lost, damaged, altered or destroyed.

(3) Property falls within this subsection to the extent that there are reasonable grounds for believing that —

(a) it is evidence in relation to any offence; and

(b) it is necessary for it to be retained in order to prevent its being concealed, lost, damaged, altered or destroyed.

(4) Nothing in this section authorises the retention (except pursuant to section 35(2)) of anything the return of which is required by section 35.

(5) Subsection (1)(a) includes property seized on any premises by a person authorised under section 21(1) to accompany a police officer executing a warrant.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.56]

38. Retention of property seized under section 31 or 32

(1) This section has effect in relation to the following provisions (the “relevant provisions”) —

(a) section 30; and

(b) any power to seize property conferred by a written law or any enactment in force in the Falkland Islands.

(2) The relevant provisions apply in relation to any property seized in exercise of a power conferred by section 31 or 32 as if the property had been seized under the power of seizure by reference to which the power under that section was exercised in relation to that property.

(3) Nothing in any of sections 34 to 37 authorises the retention of any property at any time when its retention would not (other than as provided for in this Part) be authorised by the relevant provisions.

(4) Nothing in any of the relevant provisions authorises the retention of anything after an obligation to return it has arisen under this Part.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.57]

39. Person to whom seized property is to be returned

(1) If —

(a) anything has been seized in exercise of any power of seizure; and

(b) there is an obligation under this Part for the whole or any part of the seized property to be returned, the obligation to return it is (subject to the following provisions of this section) an obligation to return it to the person from whom it was seized.

(2) If —

(a) any person (‘A’) is obliged under this Part to return anything that has been seized to the person (‘B’) from whom it was seized; and

(b) A is satisfied that some other person has a better right to that thing than B,

A must instead return it to that other person or, as the case may be, to the person appearing to A to have the best right to the thing in question.

(3) If different persons claim to be entitled to the return of anything that is required to be returned under this Part, the thing may be retained for as long as is reasonably necessary for the determination, in accordance with subsection (2), of the person to whom it must be returned.

(4) References in this Part to the person from whom something has been seized, in relation to a case in which the power of seizure was exercisable by reason of that thing's having been found on any premises, are references to the occupier of the premises at the time of the seizure.

(5) References in this section to the occupier of any premises at the time of a seizure, in relation to a case in which —

(a) a notice in connection with the entry or search of the premises in question, or with the seizure, was given to a person appearing in the occupier's absence to be in charge of the premises; and

(b) it is practicable, for the purpose of returning something that has been seized, to identify that person but not to identify the occupier of the premises, are references to that person.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.58]

Remedies and safeguards

40. Application for return of property

(1) When anything has been seized in exercise, or purported exercise, of a relevant power of seizure, any person with a relevant interest in the seized property may apply to the judicial officer, on one or more of the grounds mentioned in subsection (2), for the return of the whole or a part of the seized property.

(2) The grounds for an application under subsection (1) are that —

(a) there was no power to make the seizure;

(b) the seized property is or contains an item subject to legal privilege that is not comprised in property falling within section 35(2);

(c) the seized property is or contains any excluded material or special procedure material which —

(i) has been seized under a power to which section 36 applies;

(ii) is not comprised in property falling within section 36(2) or (3); and

(iii) is not property the retention of which is authorised by section 37;

(d) the seized property is or contains something seized under section 31 or 32 which does not fall within section 34(3);

(3) Subject to subsection (5), the judicial officer, on an application under subsection (1), must —

(a) if satisfied as to any of the matters mentioned in subsection (2) - order the return of so much of the seized property as is property in relation to which the judicial officer is so satisfied; and

(b) to the extent that the officer is not so satisfied - dismiss the application.

(4) The judicial officer, on an application under subsection (1) —

(a) made by the person for the time being having possession of anything in consequence of its seizure under a relevant power of seizure; or

(b) made —

(i) by a person with a relevant interest in anything seized under section 31 or 32; and

(ii) on the grounds that the requirements of section 34(2) have not been or are not being complied with,

may give such directions as the officer thinks fit as to the examination, retention, separation or return of the whole or any part of the seized property.

(5) On an application under this section, the judicial officer may, if satisfied that the retention of the property is justified on grounds stated in subsection (7), authorise the retention of any property which —

(a) has been seized in exercise, or purported exercise, of a relevant power of seizure; and

(b) would otherwise fall to be returned.

(6) The grounds referred to in subsection (5) are that if the property were returned it would immediately become appropriate —

(a) to issue, on the application of the person who is in possession of the property at the time of the application, a warrant under which it would be lawful to seize the property; or

(b) to make an order under paragraph 4 of Schedule 1 (Access to special procedure material and excluded material) under which the property would fall to be delivered up or produced to the person mentioned in paragraph (a).

(7) If any property which has been seized in exercise, or purported exercise, of a relevant power of seizure has parts (“part A” and “part B”) comprised in it such that —

(a) it would be inappropriate, if the property were returned, to take any action such as is mentioned in subsection (6) in relation to part A;

(b) it would (or would but for the facts mentioned in paragraph (a)) be appropriate, if the property were returned, to take such action in relation to part B; and

(c) in all the circumstances, it is not reasonably practicable to separate part A from part B without prejudicing the use of part B for purposes for which it is lawful to use property seized under the power in question, the facts mentioned in paragraph (a) must not be taken into account by the judicial officer in deciding whether the retention of the property is justified on grounds falling within subsection (6).

(8) A person who fails to comply with an order or direction of the judicial officer in exercise of the jurisdiction under this section commits a contempt of court.

(9) The relevant powers of seizure for the purposes of this section are —

(a) the powers of seizure conferred by sections 31 and 32;

(b) any power of seizure (not falling within paragraph (a)) conferred on a police officer by or under any enactment (including an enactment that comes into force after this Part comes into force, unless the later enactment limits the power in this section).

(10) In this section, “person with a relevant interest in seized property” means —

(a) the person from whom the property was seized;

(b) any person with an interest in the property; or

(c) any person, not falling within paragraph (a) or (b), who had custody or control of the property immediately before the seizure.

(11) For the purposes of subsection (10)(b), the persons who have an interest in seized property include, in the case of property which is or contains an item subject to legal privilege, the person in whose favour that privilege is conferred.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.59]

41. Cases in which duty to secure arises

(1) When property has been seized in exercise, or purported exercise, of any power of seizure conferred by this Part or Part 1 (Powers to Stop and Search), a duty to secure arises under section 42 in relation to the seized property if —

- (a) a person entitled to do so applies under section 40 for the return of the property;
- (b) at least one of the conditions set out in subsections (2) and (3) is satisfied; and
- (c) notice of the application is given to a relevant person.

(2) The first condition is that the application is made on the grounds that the seized property is or contains an item subject to legal privilege that is not comprised in property falling within section 35(2).

(3) The second condition is that —

(a) the seized property was seized by a person who had, or purported to have, power to seize it by virtue only of a power conferred by this Part or Part 1 (Powers to Stop and Search) (other than section 13(2)); and

(b) the application —

(i) is made on the ground that the seized property is or contains something which does not fall within section 34(3); and

(ii) states that the seized property is or contains special procedure material or excluded material.

(4) In relation to property seized by a person who had, or purported to have, power under this Part or Part 1 to seize it by virtue only of the power of seizure conferred by section 54 of the Drug Trafficking Ordinance 1997, the second condition is satisfied only if the application states that the seized property is or contains excluded material.

(5) In this section “relevant person” means —

(a) the person who made the seizure;

(b) the person for the time being having possession, in consequence of the seizure, of the seized property; or

(c) the person named for the purposes of subsection (1)(d) or (4)(d) of in any notice given under that section with respect to the seizure.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.60]

42. The duty to secure

(1) The duty to secure that arises under this section is a duty of the person for the time being having possession, in consequence of the seizure, of the seized property to ensure that arrangements are in place so that the seized property (without being returned) is not, at any time after the giving of the notice of the application under section 41(1) —

(a) examined;

(b) copied; or

(c) put to any use to which its seizure would, apart from this subsection, entitle it to be put, except with the consent of the applicant or in accordance with the directions of the judicial officer.

(2) Subsection (1) does not have effect in relation to any time after the withdrawal of the application to which the notice relates.

(3) Subsection (8) of section 40 (contempt of court) applies in relation to any jurisdiction conferred on the judicial officer by this section as it applies in relation to the jurisdiction conferred by that section.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.61]

43. Use of inextricably linked property

(1) This section applies to property, other than property which is for the time being required to be secured pursuant to section 42, if —

(a) it has been seized under any power conferred by this Part or Part 1 (Powers to Stop and Search); and

(b) it is inextricably linked property.

(2) Subject to subsection (3), the person for the time being having possession, in consequence of the seizure, of the inextricably linked property must ensure that arrangements are in place so that the seized property (without being returned) is not at any time, except with the consent of the person from whom it was seized —

(a) examined;

(b) copied; or

(c) put to any other use.

(3) Subsection (2) does not require that arrangements under that subsection should prevent inextricably linked property from being put to any use which is necessary for facilitating the use, in any investigation or proceedings, of property in which the inextricably linked property is comprised.

(4) Property is inextricably linked property for the purposes of this section if it falls within any of subsections (5) to (7).

(5) Property falls within this subsection if —

(a) it has been seized under a power conferred by section 31 or 32; and

(b) but for subsection (3)(c) of section 34, arrangements under subsection (2) of that section in relation to the property would be required to ensure the return of the property as mentioned in subsection (2)(c) of that section.

(6) Property falls within this subsection if —

(a) it has been seized under a power to which section 35 applies; and

(b) but for subsection (1)(b) of that section, the person for the time being having possession of the property would be under a duty to ensure its return as mentioned in that subsection.

(7) Property falls within this subsection if —

(a) it has been seized under a power of seizure to which section 36 applies; and

(b) but for subsection (1)(c) of that section, the person for the time being having possession of the property would be under a duty to ensure its return as mentioned in that subsection.

[UK CJP Act 2001 s.62]

PART 4 – POWERS OF ARREST WITHOUT WARRANT

44. Arrest without warrant: Police officers

(1) A police officer may arrest without a warrant anyone —

(a) who is about to commit an offence;

(b) who is in the act of committing an offence;

(c) whom the officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting to be about to commit an offence;

(d) whom the officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting to be committing an offence.

(2) If a police officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting that an offence has been committed, the officer may arrest without a warrant anyone whom he or she has reasonable grounds to suspect of being guilty of it.

(3) If an offence has been committed, a police officer may arrest without a warrant anyone —

(a) who is guilty of the offence;

(b) whom the officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting to be guilty of it.

(4) The power of arrest without warrant of a person conferred by subsection (1), (2) or (3) is exercisable only if the police officer has reasonable grounds for believing that for any of the reasons mentioned in subsection (5) it is necessary to arrest the person.

(5) The reasons are —

(a) to enable the name of the person to be ascertained (if the police officer does not know, and cannot readily ascertain, the person's name, or has reasonable grounds for doubting whether a name given by the person as his or her name is the person's real name);

(b) correspondingly as regards the person's address;

(c) to prevent the person —

(i) causing physical injury to himself or herself or any other person;

(ii) suffering physical injury;

(iii) causing loss of or damage to property;

(iv) committing an offence against public decency (subject to subsection (6)); or

(v) causing an unlawful obstruction of the highway;

(d) to protect a child or other vulnerable person from the person;

(e) to allow the prompt and effective investigation of the offence or of the conduct of the person;

(f) to prevent any prosecution for the offence from being hindered by the disappearance or other action of the person.

(6) Subsection (5)(c)(iv) applies only in a situation in which members of the public going about their normal business cannot reasonably be expected to avoid the person in question.

[CJ Ord. ss.198 & 199; UK PACE Act 1984 s.24]

45. Arrest without warrant: Other persons

(1) A person other than a police officer may arrest without a warrant anyone —

(a) who is in the act of committing an imprisonable offence;

(b) whom the person has reasonable grounds for suspecting to be committing an imprisonable offence.

(2) If an imprisonable offence has been committed, a person other than a police officer may arrest without a warrant anyone —

(a) who is guilty of the offence;

(b) whom the person has reasonable grounds for suspecting to be guilty of it.

(3) The power of arrest without warrant of a person conferred by subsection (1) or (2) is exercisable only if —

(a) the person making the arrest has reasonable grounds for believing that for any of the reasons mentioned in subsection (4) it is necessary to arrest the person; and

(b) it appears to the person making the arrest that it is not reasonably practicable for a police officer to make it instead.

(4) The reasons are to prevent the person arrested —

(a) causing physical injury to himself or herself or any other person;

(b) suffering physical injury;

(c) causing loss of or damage to property; or

(d) making off before a police officer can assume responsibility for the person.

(5) This section does not apply in relation to an offence under any of sections 536 to 547 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Hate crimes).

(6) A person who makes an arrest pursuant to this section must as soon as reasonably practicable—

(a) notify a police officer that the arrest has been made; and

(b) hand the arrested person over to a police officer.

(7) When a person arrested under this section is handed over to a police officer, the person is deemed to have been arrested by the police officer and the provisions of this and subsequent Parts apply as if the person had been arrested by the police officer.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.24A; common law]

46. Saving of other powers of arrest

(1) Any written law in force when this Part comes into force that enables a police officer or any other person —

- (a) to arrest a person for an offence without a warrant; or
- (b) to arrest a person with a warrant or an order of the court, continues to have effect, but subject to the provisions of this Ordinance.

(2) Nothing in this Part affects any power —

- (a) at common law to arrest a person without a warrant for a breach of the peace; or
- (b) of arrest for enforcement of any civil process.

[CJ Ord. s.201; UK PACE Act 1984 s.26 adapted]

47. Fingerprinting of certain offenders – Schedule 2

Schedule 2 has effect in relation to the power of police officers to require a person to attend a place of lawful custody or other convenient place for the purpose of taking fingerprints or samples from the person.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.27]

48. Information to be given on arrest

(1) Subject to subsection (5), when a person is arrested otherwise than by being informed that he or she is under arrest, the arrest is not lawful unless the person arrested is informed that he or she is under arrest as soon as practicable after the arrest.

(2) If a person is arrested by a police officer, subsection (1) applies regardless of whether the fact of the arrest is obvious.

(3) Subject to subsection (5), no arrest is lawful unless the person arrested is informed of the ground for the arrest at the time of, or as soon as practicable after, the arrest.

(4) If a person is arrested by a police officer, subsection (3) applies regardless of whether the ground for the arrest is obvious.

(5) Nothing in this section requires a person to be informed —

- (a) that he or she is under arrest; or
- (b) of the ground for the arrest,

if it was not reasonably practicable for the person to be so informed because the person has escaped from arrest before the information could be given.

[CJ Ord. s.202; UK PACE Act 1984 s.28]

49. Voluntary attendance at place of lawful custody, etc.

If for the purpose of assisting with an investigation a person attends voluntarily at a place of lawful custody or at any other place where a police officer is present, or accompanies a police officer to a place of lawful custody or any such other place without having been arrested, the person —

(a) is entitled to leave at will unless he or she is placed under arrest; and

(b) must be informed at once that he or she is under arrest if a decision is taken by a police officer to prevent the person from leaving at will.

[CJ Ord. s.203; UK PACE Act 1984 s.29]

50. Arrest elsewhere than at a place of lawful custody

(1) If a person is, at any place other than a place of lawful custody —

(a) arrested by a police officer for an offence; or

(b) taken into custody by a police officer after being arrested for an offence by a person other than a police officer, the person must be taken by a police officer to a place of lawful custody as soon as practicable after the arrest.

(2) Subsection (1) has effect subject to subsection (3) and section 51.

(3) A person arrested by a police officer at a place other than a place of lawful custody must be released without bail if, at any time before the person arrested reaches the place of lawful custody, a police officer is satisfied that there are no grounds for keeping the person under arrest or releasing the person on bail under section 51.

(4) Nothing in subsection (1) or in section 51 prevents a police officer delaying taking a person to a place of lawful custody or releasing the person on bail if the presence of the person at a place other than a place of lawful custody is necessary in order to carry out investigations that it is reasonable to carry out immediately.

(5) If there is delay as mentioned in subsection (4), the reasons for the delay must be recorded when the person first arrives at the place of lawful custody or (as the case may be) is released on bail.

(6) This section does not affect the powers of arrest and detention in the Immigration Ordinance.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.30]

51. Bail elsewhere than at a place of lawful custody

(1) A police officer may release on bail a person who is arrested or taken into custody in the circumstances mentioned in section 50(1).

(2) A person may be released on bail under subsection (1) at any time before he or she arrives at a place of lawful custody.

(3) A person released on bail under subsection (1) must be required to attend a place of lawful custody.

(4) If a police officer releases a person on bail under subsection (1) —

(a) no recognisance for the person's surrender to custody may be taken from the person;

(b) no security for the person's surrender to custody may be taken from the person or from anyone else on the person's behalf;

(c) the person must not be required to provide a surety or sureties for his or her surrender to custody.

(5) Subject to subsection (4), a police officer who releases a person on bail under subsection (1) may impose as conditions of the bail any requirement that appears to the officer to be necessary—

(a) to secure that the person surrenders to custody;

(b) to secure that the person does not commit an offence while on bail;

(c) to secure that the person does not interfere with witnesses or otherwise obstruct the course of justice, whether in relation to that person or any other person;

(d) for the person's own protection, or, if the person is under the age of 18, for the person's own welfare or in the person's interests.

(6) The conditions that may be imposed on a person under subsection (5) include the surrender of the person's passport (as described in section 143(2)) and electronic monitoring in accordance with section 144.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s 30A ins. by Criminal Justice Act 2003 as am. by Police & Justice Act 2006]

52. Bail under section 51: Notices

(1) A police officer who grants bail to a person under section 51 must give the person a notice in writing before the person is released, stating —

(a) the offence for which the person was arrested; and

(b) the ground for the arrest.

(2) The notice must —

(a) inform the person that he or she is required to attend a place of lawful custody specified in the notice; and

(b) specify the time when the person is required to attend.

(3) If the person is granted bail subject to conditions under section 51(5), the notice must also —

(a) specify the requirements imposed by those conditions; and

(b) explain the opportunities under sections 54 and 55 for variation of those conditions.

(4) If the notice does not include the information mentioned in subsection (2), the person must subsequently be given a further notice in writing which contains that information.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.30B inserted by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

53. Bail under section 51: Supplementary

(1) A person who has been required to attend a place of lawful custody is not required to do so if the person is given notice that his or her attendance is no longer required.

(2) Nothing in Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings) applies in relation to bail under section 51.

(3) Nothing in section 51 or 52 or this section prevents the re-arrest without a warrant of a person released on bail under section 51 if new evidence justifying a further arrest has come to light since the person's release.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.30C inserted by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

54. Variation of bail conditions by custody officer

(1) If a person released on bail under section 51(1) is on bail subject to conditions, the custody officer at the place of lawful custody at which the person is required to attend may, at the request of the person but subject to subsection (2), vary the conditions.

(2) On any subsequent request made in respect of the same grant of bail, subsection (1) confers power to vary the conditions of the bail only if the request is based on information that, in the case of the previous request or each previous request, was not available to the custody officer considering that previous request at the time.

(3) If conditions of bail granted to a person under section 51(1) are varied under subsection (1)—

(a) paragraphs (a) to (d) of section 51(5) apply;

(b) requirements imposed by the conditions as so varied must be requirements that appear to the custody officer to be necessary for one or more of the purposes mentioned in those paragraphs; and

(c) the custody officer who varies the conditions must give the person notice in writing of the variation.

(4) Section 59 applies as to the identity and functions of the custody officer under this section.
[UK PACE Act 1984 s.30CA ins. by Police & Justice Act 2006 and Policing & Crime Act 2009]

55. Variation of bail conditions by court

(1) If a person released on bail under section 51(1) is on bail subject to conditions, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may, on an application by or on behalf of the person, vary the conditions if —

(a) the conditions have been varied under section 54(1) since being imposed under section 51(5);

(b) a request for variation under section 54(1) of the conditions has been made and refused; or

(c) a request for variation under section 54(1) of the conditions has been made and the period of 48 hours beginning with the day when the request was made has expired without the request having been withdrawn or the conditions having been varied in response to the request.

(2) In proceedings on an application for a variation under subsection (1), a ground may not be relied upon unless —

(a) in a case falling within subsection (1)(a), the ground was relied upon in the request in response to which the conditions were varied under section 54(1); or

(b) in a case falling within paragraph (b) or (c) of subsection (1), the ground was relied upon in the request mentioned in that paragraph, but this does not prevent the court, when deciding the application, from considering different grounds arising out of a change in circumstances that has occurred since the making of the application.

(3) If conditions of bail granted to a person under section 54(1) are varied under subsection (1)—

(a) paragraphs (a) to (d) of section 51(5) apply;

(b) requirements imposed by the conditions as so varied must be requirements that appear to the court varying the conditions to be necessary for any of the purposes mentioned in paragraphs (a) to (d) of section 51(5); and

(c) that bail does not lapse but continues subject to the conditions as so varied.

(4) Power under subsection (1) to vary conditions is, subject to subsection (3)(a) and (b), power—

(a) to vary or rescind any of the conditions; and

(b) to impose further conditions.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.30CB ins. by Police & Justice Act 2006]

56. Arrest for failure to answer to bail under section 51

(1) A police officer may arrest without a warrant a person who —

(a) has been released on bail under section 51 subject to a requirement to attend the place of lawful custody; and

(b) fails to attend the place of lawful custody at the specified time.

(2) A person arrested under subsection (1) must be taken to the place of lawful custody as soon as practicable after the arrest.

(3) For the purposes of —

(a) section 50 (subject to the obligation in subsection (3)); and

(b) section 57,

an arrest under this section is to be treated as an arrest for an offence.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.30D inserted by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

57. Arrest for further offence

If —

(a) a person —

(i) has been arrested for an offence; and

(ii) is at a place of lawful custody in consequence of that arrest; and

(b) it appears to a police officer that, if the person were released from that arrest, the person would be liable to arrest for some other offence, the person must be arrested for that other offence before being released.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.204; UK PACE Act 1984 s.31]

58. Search upon arrest

(1) If —

(a) a person has been arrested at a place other than a place of lawful custody; and

(b) a police officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the person may present a danger to himself or herself or others, the police officer may search the person.

(2) If a person has been arrested at a place other than a place of lawful custody a police officer may, subject to subsections (3) to (5) —

(a) search the arrested person for anything which —

(i) the person might use to assist the person to escape from lawful custody; or

(ii) might be evidence relating to an offence; and

(b) if the offence for which the arrested person has been arrested is an imprisonable offence - enter and search any premises in which the person was when arrested or immediately before the person was arrested for evidence relating to that offence.

(3) The power to search conferred by subsection (2) is only a power to search to the extent that it is reasonably required for the purpose of discovering any thing or any evidence as mentioned in subsection (2)(a).

(4) The powers conferred by this section to search a person —

(a) do not authorise a police officer to require a person to remove any of the person's clothing in public other than an outer coat, jacket or gloves;

(b) do authorise a search of a person's mouth.

(5) A police officer may not search a person in the exercise of the power conferred by subsection (2)(a) unless the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the person to be searched may have concealed on him or her anything for which a search is permitted under that paragraph.

(6) A police officer may not search premises in the exercise of the power conferred by subsection (2)(b) unless the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that there is evidence for which a search is permitted under that paragraph on premises.

(7) In so far as the power of search conferred by subsection (2)(b) relates to premises consisting of 2 or more separated dwellings, it is limited to a power to search —

(a) a dwelling in which the arrest took place or in which the person arrested was immediately before his or her arrest; and

(b) parts of the premises which the occupier of the dwelling uses in common with the occupiers of any other dwellings comprised in the premises.

(8) A police officer searching a person in exercise of the power conferred by subsection (1) may seize and retain anything the officer finds, if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the person searched might use it to cause physical injury to himself or herself or to any other person.

(9) A police officer searching a person in the exercise of the power conferred by subsection (2)(a) may seize and retain anything the officer finds, other than an item subject to legal privilege, if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing —

(a) that the person might use it to assist the person to escape from lawful custody; or

(b) that it is evidence of an offence or has been obtained in consequence of the commission of an offence.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.205; UK PACE Act 1984 s.32]

PART 5 – POLICE DETENTION

Police detention – conditions and duration

59. Custody officers and reviewing officers

(1) There is to be a custody officer at each place of lawful custody, who is responsible for making and keeping the custody record at that place and making initial decisions about police detention.

(2) In this Ordinance, “custody record” means the record of particulars relating to the custody of a person who is arrested and brought to a place of lawful custody and detained in accordance with this Part.

(3) The “custody officer” at a place of lawful custody is each police officer who is successively on desk duty when an arrested person is brought to that place and when decisions about the person’s detention fall to be made and recorded under this Ordinance.

(4) The “reviewing officer” for a place of lawful custody means an officer of the rank of sergeant or above who is on call for that place when decisions as mentioned in subsection (3) fall to be reviewed under section 67.

(5) Subject to subsections (6) and (7) and section 66(2), the functions of a custody officer or reviewing officer in relation to a person must so far as practicable not be performed by an officer who at the time when the function is to be performed is involved in the investigation of an offence for which the person is in police detention at the time.

(6) Subsection (5) does not prevent a custody officer or reviewing officer, if no other officer is available, from —

(a) performing any function assigned to such officers by —

(i) this Ordinance; or

(ii) a code of practice issued under this Ordinance;

(b) doing anything in connection with the identification of a suspect; or

(c) taking action under sections 23 and 24 of the Road Traffic Ordinance.

(7) If an arrested person is taken to a place other than a place of lawful custody, or answers to bail at such a place, the functions in relation to the person which at a place of lawful custody would be the function of the custody officer or reviewing officer, or the officer who granted bail, must be performed —

(a) by an officer who is not involved in the investigation of the offence for which the person is being detained, if such an officer is readily available; or

(b) if no such officer is readily available, by the officer who took the person to that place or any other officer.

(8) If the offence is one in respect of which a person has been given a conditional caution, subsection (5) is to be read as if the reference to being involved in the investigation of an offence for which the person is in police detention were a reference to being involved —

(a) in the investigation of the offence in respect of which the person was given the conditional caution; or

(b) in investigating whether the person has failed, without reasonable excuse, to comply with any of the conditions attached to the conditional caution.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.151; UK PACE Act 1984 s.36 adapted; Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.24B]

60. Limitations on police detention

(1) A person arrested for an offence must not be kept in police detention except in accordance with this Part.

(2) Subject to subsection (3), if at any time a custody officer —

(a) becomes aware, in relation to any person in police detention, that the grounds for the detention of that person have ceased to apply; and

(b) is not aware of any other grounds on which the continued detention of that person could be justified under this Part, the officer must, subject to subsection (4), order the person's immediate release from custody.

(3) A person in police detention must not be released except on the authority of a custody officer.

(4) A person who appears to the custody officer to have been unlawfully at large when arrested must not be released under subsection (2).

(5) A person whose release is ordered under subsection (2) must be released without bail unless it appears to the custody officer that —

(a) there is need for further investigation of any matter in connection with which the person was detained at any time during the period of his or her detention; or

(b) in respect of any such matter, proceedings may be taken against the person, in which case the person must be released on bail.

(6) For the purposes of this Part, a person arrested under section 23(5) of the Road Traffic Ordinance is arrested for an offence.

(7) For the purpose of this Part, a person who —

(a) goes to a place of lawful custody to answer to bail granted under section 51 or this Part; or

(b) is arrested under section 56 or section 75, is to be treated as arrested for an offence and that offence is the offence in connection with which the person was granted bail.

(8) Subsection (7) does not apply in relation to a person who is granted bail subject to the duty mentioned in section 76(2)(b) and who either —

(a) attends a place of lawful custody to answer to such bail; or

(b) is arrested under section 75 for failing to do so.

(9) For the purposes of this Part, a person is not unlawfully at large only because he or she is in breach of the conditions of a licence granted under Part 26 (Custodial Sentences) or under the Prison Regulations.

(10) Subject to section 77, Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings) applies to —

(a) the making of a bail decision by a police officer at a place of lawful custody; and

(b) the conditions that may be attached to bail granted by a police officer at a place of lawful custody, including the surrender of a passport.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.150; UK PACE Act 1984 s.34 adapted]

61. Duties of custody officer before charge

(1) If a person is arrested for an offence —

(a) without a warrant; or

(b) under a warrant not endorsed for bail,

the custody officer at the place of lawful custody when the person is detained after arrest —

(i) must decide whether there is sufficient evidence to charge the person with the offence for which the person was arrested; and

(ii) may detain the person at the place of lawful custody for the period necessary to enable the officer to make that decision.

(2) If the custody officer decides that there is not sufficient evidence, the person arrested must be released either on bail or without bail, unless the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the person's detention without being charged is necessary —

(a) to secure or preserve evidence relating to an offence for which the person is under arrest; or

(b) to obtain such evidence by questioning the person.

(3) If the custody officer has reasonable grounds for believing as mentioned in subsection (2), the officer may authorise the person arrested to be kept in police detention.

(4) If a custody officer authorises a person who has not been charged to be kept in police detention, the officer must as soon as practicable make a written record of the grounds for the detention.

(5) Subject to subsection (6), the written record must be made in the presence of the person arrested who must at that time be informed by the custody officer of the grounds for the detention.

(6) Subsection (5) does not apply if the person arrested is, at the time when the written record is made —

(a) incapable of understanding what is said to him or her;

(b) violent or likely to become violent; or

(c) in urgent need of medical attention.

(7) Subject to section 69(5), if the custody officer decides that there is sufficient evidence to charge the person arrested with the offence for which he or she was arrested, the officer must decide whether to —

(a) detain the person for the purpose of obtaining a decision of the Attorney General under section 62;

- (b) release the person on bail for that purpose;
- (c) release the person without charge and on bail, but not for that purpose; or
- (d) release the person without charge and without bail; or
- (e) charge the person,

and must act accordingly.

(8) If a person is —

- (a) detained under subsection (7)(a); or
- (b) released on bail under subsection (7)(b), for the purpose of obtaining the advice of the Attorney General, the custody officer must so inform the person.

(9) If —

- (a) a person is released under subsection (7)(c) or (d); and
- (b) at the time of the release a decision whether the person should be prosecuted for the offence for which the person was arrested has not been taken, the custody officer must so inform the person.

(10) Subsection (11) applies if the offence for which the person is arrested is one in relation to which a sample could be taken under section 96 (Testing for Class A or Class B drugs) and the custody officer —

- (a) is required by subsection (2) to release the person arrested and decides to release the person on bail; or
- (b) decides under subsection (7)(c) to release the person without charge on bail.

(11) The detention of a person may be continued to enable a sample to be taken under section 96, but this subsection does not permit a person to be detained for more than 24 hours after the relevant time (as defined in section 69(2)).

(12) If the person arrested is not in a fit state to be dealt with under subsection (7), the person may, notwithstanding section 69(5), be kept in police detention until he or she is in a fit state.

(13) The duty imposed on the custody officer under subsection (1) must be performed as soon as practicable after the person arrested arrives at the place of lawful custody or, in the case of a person arrested at the place of lawful custody, as soon as practicable after the arrest.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.152; UK PACE Act 1984 s.37]

62. Role of Attorney General

(1) If a person is detained under section 61(7)(a) or released on bail under section 61(2) or (7)(b), the officer in charge of the investigation of the case must as soon as practicable send to the Attorney General information in writing about the case to enable the Attorney General to decide whether there is sufficient evidence to charge the person with an offence.

(2) On receipt of the information under subsection (1), the Attorney General must decide whether the person should be charged with an offence, and if so, what offence, or whether the person should be cautioned for the offence.

(3) Notice of the Attorney General's decision must be given to the officer in charge of the investigation. The notice must be in writing, but may be given orally in the first instance and confirmed in writing subsequently.

(4) If the decision is that there is not sufficient evidence to charge the person with any offence, or that there is sufficient evidence but that the person should not be charged, or given a caution, the custody officer must give the person a written notice to that effect and must release the person from custody unless the person is in custody for any other reason.

(5) If the decision is that the person should be charged with an offence, or given a caution in respect of an offence, the person must be charged or cautioned accordingly.

(6) If the decision is that the person should be given a caution for an offence, but it proves not possible to administer such a caution, the person must be charged with the offence.

(7) For the purpose of this section, a person must be charged with an offence either —

(a) while the person is in police detention after answering to bail or otherwise; or

(b) by summons on an information laid before a justice of the peace.

(8) In the preceding provisions of this section —

“caution” includes a conditional caution or a reprimand given under the authority of any written law;

“Attorney General” includes any person to whom the Attorney General has delegated the power under this section to make decisions under this section.

(9) The Attorney General may from time to time issue to the Chief Police Officer written guidelines as to the information that custody officers must provide to enable a decision to be made for purposes of this section.

[UK PACE Act 1984 ss.37A and 37B inserted by CJA 2003]

63. Breach of bail following release

(1) Subsection (3) applies if —

(a) a person released on bail under section 61(2) or (7)(b) or subsection (3)(b) of this section is arrested under section 75 in respect of that bail; and

(b) at the time of the person's detention following the arrest no notice of the Attorney General's decision has been given under section 62(3).

(2) Subsection (3) also applies if a person released on bail under section 61(7)(c) or subsection (3)(b) of this section —

(a) is arrested under section 75 in respect of that bail; and

(b) is being detained at a place of lawful custody.

(3) The person arrested must be —

(a) charged; or

(b) released without charge, either on bail or without bail.

(4) The decision as to how a person is to be dealt with under subsection (3) must be made by the custody officer.

(5) A person released on bail under subsection (3)(b) must be released on bail subject to any conditions which applied immediately before the person's arrest.

[UK PACE Act 1984 ss.37C and 37CA inserted by Criminal Justice Act 2003 and Police & Justice Act 2006]

64. Release on bail under sections 61 and 62: Further provision

(1) When a person is released on bail under section 61 or 62, the custody officer may appoint a different time, or an additional time, at which the person is to attend at a place of lawful custody.

(2) The custody officer must give the person notice in writing of the exercise of the power under subsection (1).

(3) The exercise of the power under subsection (1) does not affect any other conditions to which bail is subject.

(4) If a person released on bail under section 61(2) or (7) or 63(3) returns to a place of lawful custody to answer bail or is otherwise in police detention at such a place, the person may be kept in police detention to enable him or her to be dealt with in accordance with section 62 or 63 as the case may be, or to enable the power under subsection (1) above to be exercised.

(5) If the person mentioned in subsection (4) is not in a fit state to enable him or her to be dealt with as mentioned in that subsection or to enable the power under subsection (1) to be exercised, the person may, notwithstanding section 69(5), be kept in police detention until he or she is in a fit state.

(6) If a person is kept in police detention by virtue of subsection (4) or (5) of this section, section 61(1) to (3) and (7) (and section 67(8) so far as it relates to section 61(1) to (3)) do not apply to the offence in connection with which the person was released on bail under section 61(2) or (7) or 63(3).

65. Duties of custody officer after charge

(1) Subsection (2) applies when a person arrested for an offence otherwise than under a warrant endorsed for bail is charged with an offence.

(2) The custody officer must order the person's release from police detention, either on bail or without bail, unless —

(a) in the case of an adult —

(i) the person's name or address cannot be ascertained or the custody officer has reasonable grounds for doubting whether a name or address given by the person as his or her name or address is his or her real name or address;

(ii) the custody officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the person arrested will fail to appear in court to answer bail;

(iii) the person was arrested for an imprisonable offence and the custody officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the detention of the person arrested is necessary to prevent the person from committing an offence;

(iv) a sample may be taken from the person under section 95 (speculative searches) and the custody officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the detention of the person is necessary to enable a sample to be taken from the person;

(v) the person was arrested for an offence which is not an imprisonable offence and the custody officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the detention of the person arrested is necessary to prevent the person from causing physical injury to any other person or from causing loss of or damage to property;

(vi) the custody officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the detention of the person arrested is necessary to prevent the person from interfering with the administration of justice or with the investigation of offences or of a particular offence;

(vii) the custody officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the detention of the person arrested is for the person's own protection;

(b) in the case of a youth —

(i) any of the requirements of paragraph (a) is satisfied but, if paragraph (a)(iv) applies, only if the youth has attained the minimum age; or

(ii) the custody officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the youth ought to be detained in his or her own interests.

(3) If the release of a person arrested is not required by subsection (1), the custody officer —

(a) may authorise the person to be kept in police detention; but

(b) may not authorise the person to be kept in police detention by virtue of subsection (1)(a)(iv) for more than 6 hours after the person was charged with the offence.

(4) The custody officer, in making the decisions required by subsection (1)(a) or (b) (except (a)(i) and (vii) and (b)(ii)), must have regard to the same considerations as those which a court is required to have regard to in making the corresponding decisions.

(5) If a custody officer authorises a person who has been charged to be kept in police detention, the officer must as soon as practicable make an entry in the custody record of the grounds for detention.

(6) Subject to subsection (7), the entry in the custody record must be made in the presence of the person charged, who must at that time be informed by the custody officer of the grounds for the detention.

(7) Subsection (6) does not apply if the person charged is, at the time when the entry in the custody record is made —

(a) incapable of understanding what is said to him or her;

(b) violent or likely to become violent; or

(c) in urgent need of medical attention.

(8) If a custody officer authorises an arrested youth to be kept in police detention under subsection (2), the officer must ensure that the youth is moved to segregated accommodation.

(9) In this section —

“minimum age” means the age specified in section 96 (Testing for presence of Class A or Class B drugs);

“segregated accommodation” means a separate cell, without contact with other detained persons, in the place of lawful custody or prison.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.153; UK PACE Act 1984 s.38 adapted]

66. Responsibilities in relation to persons detained

(1) Subject to subsections (2) and (4), the custody officer at a place of lawful custody must ensure that —

(a) all persons in police detention at that place are treated in accordance with this Ordinance and any code of practice relating to the treatment of persons in police detention; and

(b) all matters relating to such persons which are required by this Ordinance or any such code of practice to be recorded are recorded in the custody records relating to such persons.

(2) If the custody officer, in accordance with any relevant code of practice, transfers or permits the transfer of a person in police detention to the custody —

(a) of a police officer investigating an offence for which that person is in police detention; or

(b) of an officer who has charge of that person outside the place of lawful custody, the custody officer no longer has the duty imposed on him or her by subsection (1)(a), but the officer to whom the transfer is made must ensure that the person is treated in accordance with this Ordinance and any code of practice relating to the treatment of persons in police detention.

(3) If the person detained is subsequently returned to the custody of the custody officer, the officer investigating the offence must report to the custody officer as to the manner in which this section and any code of practice have been complied with while that person was in the investigating officer’s custody.

(4) If —

(a) an officer of higher rank than the custody officer gives directions relating to a person in police detention; and

(b) the directions are at variance with —

(i) any decision made or action taken by the custody officer, in the performance of a duty imposed on him or her by this Part; or

(ii) any decision or action which would but for the directions have been made or taken by the custody officer in the performance of such a duty, the custody officer must at once refer the matter to the person performing the functions of the Chief Police Officer.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.154; UK PACE Act 1984 s.39]

67. Review of police detention

(1) A review of the detention of each person in police detention in connection with the investigation of an offence must be carried out periodically by a reviewing officer.

(2) Subject to subsection (4) —

(a) the first review must be not later than 6 hours after the detention was first authorised;

(b) the second review must be not later than 9 hours after the first;

(c) subsequent reviews must be at intervals of not more than 9 hours.

(3) A review may be postponed —

(a) if, having regard to the circumstances prevailing at the latest time specified for it in subsection (2), it is not practicable to carry out the review at that time;

(b) (without limiting paragraph (a)), if at that time —

(i) the person in detention is being questioned by a police officer and the reviewing officer is satisfied that an interruption of the questioning for the purpose of carrying out the review would prejudice the investigation in connection with which the person is being questioned; or

(ii) no reviewing officer is readily available.

(4) If a review is postponed under subsection (3) it must be carried out as soon as practicable after the latest time specified for it in subsection (2).

(5) If a review is carried out after postponement under subsection (3), the fact that it was carried out does not affect any requirement of this section as to the time at which any subsequent review is to be carried out.

(6) The reviewing officer must record the reasons for any postponement of a review in the custody record.

(7) Subject to subsection (8), if the person whose detention is under review has not been charged before the time of the review, section 61(1) to (6) have effect in relation to the person, but with the following modifications —

(a) replace references to the person arrested by references to the person whose detention is under review;

(b) replace references to the custody officer by references to the reviewing officer;

(c) in subsection (6) insert after paragraph (a) —

“(aa) asleep;”.

(8) If a person has been kept in police detention by virtue of section 61(12) or 64(5), section 61(1) to (6) do not have effect in relation to the person but the reviewing officer must decide whether the person is yet in a fit state.

(9) If the person whose detention is under review has been charged before the time of the review, section 65(1) to (7) have effect in relation to the person, but with the following modifications —

(a) replace references to the person arrested or to the person charged by references to the person whose detention is under review;

(b) in subsection (7), insert after paragraph (a) —

“(aa) asleep;”.

(10) If —

(a) an officer of higher rank than the reviewing officer gives directions relating to a person in police detention; and

(b) the directions are at variance with —

(i) any decision made or action taken by the reviewing officer in the performance of a duty imposed on him or her by this Part; or

(ii) any decision or action which would but for the directions have been made or taken by the reviewing officer in the performance of such a duty, the reviewing officer must at once refer the matter to the person performing the functions of the Chief Police Officer.

(11) Before deciding whether to authorise a person’s continued detention the reviewing officer must give —

(a) the person (unless he or she is asleep); or

(b) any legal practitioner representing the person who is available at the time of the review, an opportunity to make representations to the reviewing officer about the detention.

(12) Subject to subsection (13), the person whose detention is under review or his or her legal practitioner may make representations under subsection (11) either orally or in writing.

(13) The reviewing officer may refuse to hear oral representations from the person whose detention is under review if the officer considers that the person is unfit to make such representations by reason of his or her condition or behaviour.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.40]

68. Use of telephone for review under section 67

(1) A review under section 67 may be carried out by means of a discussion, conducted by telephone, with one or more persons at the place of lawful custody where the arrested person is held.

(2) If a review is carried out under this section by an officer who is not present at the place where the arrested person is held —

(a) an obligation on that officer to make a record in connection with the carrying out of the review is an obligation to cause another officer to make the record;

(b) a requirement for the record to be made in the presence of the arrested person applies to the making of that record by that other officer; and

(c) the requirements of section 67(11) and (12), for the arrested person or a legal practitioner representing the person to be given an opportunity to make representations (whether in writing or orally) to that officer, are requirements for the person or legal practitioner to be given an opportunity to make representations in a manner authorised by subsection (3).

(3) Representations are made in a manner authorised by this subsection if —

(a) where facilities exist for the immediate transmission of written representations to the officer carrying out the review - they are made either —

(i) orally by telephone to that officer; or

(ii) in writing to that officer by means of those facilities;

(b) in any other case - they are made orally by telephone to that officer.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.40A inserted by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

69. Limits on period of detention without charge

(1) Subject to this section and sections 70 and 71, a person must not be kept in police detention for more than 24 hours without being charged.

(2) The time from which the period of detention of a person is to be calculated (in this Part referred to as the “relevant time”) is the time at which the person arrested arrives at the place of lawful custody, except that –

(a) in the case of a person arrested outside the Falkland Islands, the relevant time is —

(i) the time at which the person arrives at a place of lawful custody; or

(ii) the time 24 hours after the time of the person’s entry into the Falkland Islands,

whichever is the earlier;

(b) in the case of a person who —

(i) attends voluntarily at a place of lawful custody; or

(ii) accompanies a police officer to a place of lawful custody without having been arrested, and is arrested at the place of lawful custody, the relevant time is the time of the person’s arrest.

(3) Subsection (2) has effect in relation to a person arrested under section 57 as if every reference in it to the person’s arrest or being arrested were a reference to the person’s arrest or being arrested for the offence for which the person was originally arrested.

(4) If a person who is in a police detention is removed to hospital because the person is in need of medical treatment —

(a) any time during which the person is being questioned in hospital or on the way there or back by a police officer for the purpose of obtaining evidence relating to an offence is included in any period which falls to be calculated for the purposes of this Part; but

(b) any other time while the person is in hospital or on the way there or back is not so included.

(5) Subject to subsection (6), a person who at the expiry of 24 hours after the relevant time is in police detention and has not been charged must be released at that time either on bail or without bail.

(6) Subsection (5) does not apply to a person whose detention for more than 24 hours after the relevant time has been authorised or is otherwise permitted in accordance with section 70 or 71.

(7) A person released under subsection (5) must not be re-arrested without a warrant for the offence for which the person was previously arrested unless new evidence justifying a further arrest has come to light since the person's release; but this subsection does not prevent an arrest under section 75.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.41]

70. Authorisation of continued detention

(1) If a police officer of the rank of inspector or above (who has not been involved in the investigation of the case) is satisfied that —

(a) the detention of the person without charge is necessary to secure or preserve evidence relating to an offence for which the person is under arrest or to obtain such evidence by questioning the person;

(b) an offence for which the person is under arrest is an imprisonable offence; and

(c) the investigation is being conducted diligently and expeditiously, the officer may authorise the keeping of the person in police detention for a period expiring at or before 36 hours after the relevant time.

(2) An authorisation under subsection (1) may be given by telephone after a discussion with the custody officer.

(3) If an officer such as is mentioned in subsection (1) has authorised the keeping of a person in police detention for a period expiring less than 36 hours after the relevant time, the officer may authorise the keeping of the person in police detention for a further period expiring not more than 36 hours after the relevant time if the conditions specified in subsection (1) are still satisfied when the officer gives the authorisation.

(4) An authorisation under subsection (1) must not be given in respect of a person —

(a) more than 24 hours after the relevant time; or

(b) before the second review of the person's detention under section 67 has been carried out.

(5) If an officer authorises the keeping of a person in police detention under subsection (1), the officer must —

(a) inform the person of the grounds of the continued detention; and

(b) record the grounds in the person's custody record.

(6) Before deciding whether to authorise the keeping of a person in detention under subsection (1) or (3), an officer must give —

(a) the person; or

(b) any legal practitioner representing the person who is available at the time when the officer has to decide whether to give the authorisation, an opportunity to make representations to the officer about the detention.

(7) Subject to subsection (8), section 68(3) applies to representations under this section.

(8) The officer who has to decide whether to give the authorisation may refuse to hear oral representations from the person in detention if the officer considers that the person is unfit to make such representations by reason of his or her condition or behaviour.

(9) If —

- (a) an officer authorises the keeping of a person in detention under subsection (1); and
- (b) at the time of the authorisation the person has not yet exercised a right conferred on the person by section 88 (Right to have someone informed when arrested) or section 90 (Access to legal advice), the officer must —

- (i) inform the person of the right;
- (ii) decide whether the person should be permitted to exercise it;
- (iii) record the decision in the person's custody record; and
- (iv) if the decision is to refuse to permit the exercise of the right - also record the grounds for that decision in the record.

(10) If an officer has authorised the keeping of a person who has not been charged in detention under subsection (1) or (3), the person must be released from detention, either on bail or without bail, not later than 36 hours after the relevant time, unless —

- (a) the person has been charged with an offence; or
- (b) the continued detention is authorised or otherwise permitted in accordance with section 71.

(11) A person released under subsection (9) must not be re-arrested without a warrant for the offence for which the person was previously arrested unless new evidence justifying a further arrest has come to light since the release; but this subsection does not prevent an arrest under section 75.

71. Warrants of further detention

(1) If on an application on oath made by a police officer and supported by an information, either the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the further detention of the person to whom the application relates (the "detainee") is justified, the court may issue a warrant of further detention authorising the keeping of that person in police detention.

(2) A court must not hear an application for a warrant of further detention unless the detainee has been —

(a) provided with a copy of the information; and

(b) brought before the court for the hearing.

(3) If a detainee wishes to be legally represented at the hearing —

(a) the detainee may be legally represented at the detainee's own expense;

(b) a legal practitioner may participate in the hearing (or resumed hearing) in person or by telephone.

(4) If the detainee is not legally represented, and states a wish to be so represented —

(a) the court must adjourn the hearing for up to 24 hours to enable the person to obtain legal representation;

(b) legal representation includes taking advice by telephone from a legal practitioner;

(c) the period of the adjournment does not count towards the 96 hours mentioned in section 72(3)(b);

(d) the person may be kept in police detention during the adjournment, but must not be questioned by a police officer during the period of the adjournment.

(5) If the detainee is a youth or vulnerable adult, the court may also hear on the person's behalf from (in the case of a youth) a person with parental responsibility; or (in the case of a vulnerable adult) a person, such as a relative, carer or social worker, who need to be consulted in conformity with the relevant code of practice.

(6) A person's further detention is only justified for the purposes of this section or section 72 if the court is satisfied that —

(a) detention without charge is necessary —

(i) to secure or preserve evidence relating to an offence for which the person is under arrest; or

(ii) to obtain such evidence by questioning the person;

(b) an offence for which the person is under arrest is an imprisonable offence; and

(c) the investigation is being conducted diligently and expeditiously.

(7) Subject to subsection (9), an application for a warrant of further detention may be made —

(a) at any time before the expiry of 36 hours after the relevant time; or

(b) if —

(i) it is not practicable for either the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court to sit at the expiry of 36 hours after the relevant time; but

(ii) one of those courts will sit during the 6 hours following the end of that period, at any time before the expiry of that 6 hours.

(8) If subsection (7)(b) applies —

(a) the person to whom the application relates may be kept in police detention until the application is heard; and

(b) the custody officer must make an entry in the person's custody record of —

(i) the fact that the person was kept in police detention for more than 36 hours after the relevant time; and

(ii) the reason why the person was so kept.

(9) If —

(a) an application for a warrant of further detention is made after the expiry of 36 hours after the relevant time; and

(b) it appears to the court that it would have been reasonable for the police to make it before the expiry of that period, the court must dismiss the application.

(10) If on an application for a warrant of further detention the court is not satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the further detention of the detainee is justified, the court must —

(a) refuse the application; or

(b) adjourn the hearing of it until a time not later than 36 hours after the relevant time.

(11) If the hearing of an application is adjourned under subsection (10)(b), the detainee may be kept in police detention during the adjournment.

(12) A warrant of further detention must —

(a) state the time at which it is issued; and

(b) authorise the keeping in police detention of the person to whom it relates for the period stated in it.

(13) The period stated in a warrant of further detention must be —

(a) a period the court thinks fit, having regard to the evidence before it; but

(b) no longer than 36 hours.

(14) An information submitted in support of an application under this section must state —

(a) the nature of the offence for which the detainee has been arrested;

(b) the general nature of the evidence on which the person was arrested;

(c) what inquiries relating to the offence have been made by the police and what further inquiries are proposed by them;

(d) the reasons for believing the continued detention of the person to be necessary for the purposes of such further inquiries.

(15) If an application under this section is refused, the detainee must forthwith be charged or, subject to subsection (16), released, either on bail or without bail.

(16) A person need not be released under subsection (15) —

(a) before the expiry of 24 hours after the relevant time; or

(b) before the expiry of any longer period for which the person's continued detention is or has been authorised under section 70.

(17) If an application under this section is refused, no further application may be made under this section in respect of the person to whom the refusal relates, unless supported by evidence which has come to light since the refusal.

(18) If a warrant of further detention is issued, the detainee must be released from police detention, either on bail or without bail, upon or before the expiry of the warrant, unless the person is charged.

(19) A person released under subsection (18) must not be re-arrested without a warrant for the offence for which the person was previously arrested unless new evidence justifying a further arrest has come to light since the person's release; but this subsection does not prevent an arrest under section 75.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.158; UK PACE Act 1984 s.43]

72. Extension of warrants of further detention

(1) On an application on oath made by a police officer and supported by an information, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may extend a warrant of further detention issued under section 71 if satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the further detention of the person to whom the application relates is justified.

(2) The court that considers an application for a warrant of further extension should so far as practicable be the same court (and in the case of the Summary Court, comprise the same justices) as the court that heard the application for the warrant of extension.

(3) The period for which a warrant of further detention may be extended is such as the court thinks fit, having regard to the evidence before it but must not —

(a) be longer than 36 hours; nor

(b) end later than 96 hours after the relevant time.

(4) If a warrant of further detention has been extended under subsection (1) for a period ending before 96 hours after the relevant time, on an application as mentioned in that subsection the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may further extend the warrant if satisfied as there mentioned; and subsections (2) and (3) apply to such further extensions.

(5) A warrant of further detention must, if extended or further extended under this section, be endorsed with a note of the period of the extension.

(6) Subsections (2) to (5) and (14) of section 71 apply to an application made under this section as they apply to an application made under that section.

(7) If an application under this section is refused, the person to whom the application relates must forthwith be charged or, subject to subsection (8), released, either on bail or without bail.

(8) A person need not be released under subsection (7) before the expiry of any period for which a warrant of further detention issued in relation to the person has been extended or further extended on an earlier application made under this section.

73. Detention before charge: Supplementary

(1) A police officer may apply for a warrant under section 71(1) or for an extension of a warrant under section 72(1) only on the authority of an officer of the rank of inspector or above, who must enter in the custody record the fact that the authority has been given, and the reasons for giving it.

(2) In sections 71 and 72 “Magistrate’s Court” means the Senior Magistrate sitting otherwise than in open court and “Summary Court” means 2 or more justices of the peace sitting otherwise than in open court.

(3) For purpose of hearing applications under section 71 or 72, the Magistrate’s Court and the Summary Court can both be required to sit at weekends and on public holidays.

(4) A reference in this Part to a period of time or a time of day is to be treated as approximate only, and includes weekends and public holidays.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.160; UK PACE Act 1984 s.45]

Police detention - Miscellaneous

74. Detention after charge

(1) If a person —

(a) is charged with an offence; and

(b) after being charged —

(i) is kept in police detention; or

(ii) is in segregated accommodation pursuant to section 65(8),

the person must be brought before either the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court as soon as practicable and in any event within 72 hours of being charged with the offence.

(2) If neither the Magistrate’s Court nor the Summary Court is due to sit either on the day on which a person is charged or on the next day, the custody officer must inform the Clerk of the court that there is a person to whom subsection (1) applies and the Clerk must arrange for a court to sit within 72 hours of the person being charged.

(3) Nothing in this section requires a person who is in hospital to be brought before a court if the person is not well enough.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.161; UK PACE Act 1984 s.46]

75. Power of arrest for failure to answer to police bail

(1) A police officer may arrest without a warrant any person who, having been released on bail under this Part subject to a duty to attend at a place of lawful custody, fails to attend at the time appointed.

(2) A person who has been released on bail under section 61 or 63 may be arrested without warrant by a police officer if the police officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting that the person has broken any of the conditions of bail.

(3) A person arrested under this section must be taken to the place of lawful custody that is most appropriate in the circumstances of the arrest, as soon as practicable after the arrest.

(4) For the purpose of —

(a) section 50 (Arrest elsewhere than at a place of lawful custody); and

(b) section 57 (Arrest for further offence),

an arrest under this section is to be treated as an arrest for an offence.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.46A inserted by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

76. Bail after arrest

(1) Except as otherwise provided in this Part, and subject to this section —

(a) a release of a person on bail under this Part must be in accordance with Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings) as that Part applies to bail granted by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court;

(b) the powers of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court under Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings) to impose conditions of bail are available to a custody officer who releases a person on bail under this Part.

(2) References in this Part to "bail" are references to bail subject to a duty —

(a) to appear before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court at a time and place that the custody officer appoints; or

(b) to attend at a place of lawful custody at a time the custody officer appoints.

(3) If a custody officer intends to grant bail to a person subject to a duty to appear before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court —

(a) the officer must notify the Clerk of the court, who must in turn notify the officer of the first date that is convenient to all parties on which the appropriate court can sit;

(b) the officer must set that date as the date for the person's appearance in the relevant court, and grant bail accordingly.

(4) If custody officer has granted bail to a person subject to a duty to appear at a place of lawful custody, the officer may give notice in writing to the person that the person's attendance at the place of lawful custody is not required.

(5) If a person who has been granted bail under this Part and has either attended at a place of lawful custody in accordance with the grant of bail or been arrested under section 75 is detained at a place of lawful custody —

(a) any time during which the person was in police detention prior to being granted bail is to be included as part of any period which falls to be calculated under this Part;

(b) any time during which the person was on bail is not to be included.

(6) The court before which a person appears on bail under this section may vary the conditions of the bail on an application by or on behalf of the person, as provided by section 148.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.162 as amended; UK PACE Act 1984 s.47(1) and (3) to (6)]

77. Conditions of police bail

(1) Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings) applies to bail granted by a police officer under this Part, subject to section 148 (Variation of police bail) and the following provisions of this section.

(2) If a police officer grants bail to a person, no conditions may be imposed under paragraphs (a) to (d) of section 143(1) (Conditions of bail) unless it appears to the officer that it is necessary to do so for the purpose of preventing the person from —

(a) failing to surrender to custody;

(b) committing an offence while on bail; or

(c) interfering with witnesses or otherwise obstructing the course of justice, whether in relation to that person or any other person.

(3) If a custody officer has granted bail in relation to criminal proceedings, that officer or another custody officer may, at the request of the person to whom it was granted, vary the conditions of bail; and in doing so may impose conditions, which may be more onerous conditions.

(4) Subsection (2) applies on any request to a custody officer under subsection (3) to vary the conditions of bail.

(5) If a custody officer, in relation to any person —

(a) imposes conditions when granting bail in relation to criminal proceedings; or

(b) varies any conditions of bail or imposes new conditions in respect of bail in criminal proceedings, the officer must, with a view to enabling that person to consider requesting that or another custody officer, or making an application to the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, to vary the conditions, give reasons for imposing or varying the conditions.

(6) A custody officer who is by virtue of subsection (5) required to give reasons for a decision must include a note of those reasons in the custody record and give a copy of the note to the person in relation to whom the decision was taken.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.142 varied; UK Bail Act 1976 ss.3A and 5A as am. and adapted]

78. Re-arrest of persons on bail

(1) Nothing in this Part or Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings) prevents the re-arrest without warrant of a person released on bail subject to a duty to attend at a place of lawful custody if new evidence justifying a further arrest has come to light since the person's release.

(2) If a person who was released on bail under this Part subject to a duty to attend at a place of lawful custody is re-arrested, the provisions of this Part apply to the person as they apply to a person arrested for the first time.

(3) Subsection (2) does not apply to a person —

(a) who is arrested under section 75; or

(b) who has attended at a place of lawful custody in accordance with the grant of bail (and who accordingly is to be treated under section 60(7) as having been arrested for an offence).

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.47(2) and (7)]

79. Records of detention

(1) The Chief Police Officer must keep written records showing on an annual basis —

(a) the number of persons kept in police detention for more than 24 hours and subsequently released without charge;

(b) the number of applications for warrants of further detention and the results of the applications; and

(c) in relation to each warrant of further detention —

(i) the period of further detention authorised by it;

(ii) the period which the person named in it spent in police detention on its authority; and

(iii) whether the person was charged or released without charge.

(2) The Chief Police Officer must publish an annual report containing information about the matters mentioned in subsection (1) in respect of the period to which the report relates.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.50]

80. Saving for habeas corpus and immigration law

Nothing in this Part affects —

(a) any right of a person in police detention to apply for a writ of habeas corpus or other prerogative remedy;

(b) any power conferred by or under the Immigration Ordinance on any police officer or immigration officer to detain any person for purposes connected with the control of immigration.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.163; UK PACE Act 1984 s.51]

81. Detention of youths

(1) Whenever a youth is arrested and taken to a place of lawful custody, the custody officer must, in addition to any other functions in relation to an arrested person imposed by this Part, perform the functions specified in subsections (2) to (4).

(2) The custody officer must take such steps as are practicable to ascertain the identity of a person responsible for the welfare of the arrested youth, and if —

(a) the officer ascertains the identity of any such person; and

(b) it is practicable to notify that person that the youth has been arrested and is in police detention, the officer must give that person the information as soon as it is practicable to do so.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1) the persons who may be responsible for the welfare of an arrested youth are —

(a) the youth's parent or guardian or person having parental responsibility for the youth; and

(b) any other person who has for the time being assumed responsibility for the welfare of the youth.

(4) If it appears to the custody officer that a supervision order is in force in respect of the arrested youth under the Children Ordinance 2014, the officer must also give the information to the person responsible for the arrested youth's supervision, as soon reasonably practicable.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.152(11) to (14)]

PART 6 - QUESTIONING AND TREATMENT OF PERSONS BY POLICE

Questioning and search of persons

82. Interpretation of Part

(1) In this Part —

“analysis”, in relation to a skin impression, includes comparison and matching;

“appropriate consent” means —

(a) in relation to a person who has attained the age of 18 years - the consent of that person;

(b) in relation to a person who has not attained that age but has attained the age of 14 years - the consent of that person and his or her parent or guardian; and

(c) in relation to a person who has not attained the age of 14 years - the consent of his or her parent or guardian;

“appropriate criminal intent” means an intent to commit an offence under —

(a) section 5(2) of the Misuse of Drugs Ordinance (possession of controlled drug with intent to supply to another); or

(b) section 59 or 60 of the Customs Ordinance 2003 (offences in relation to the exportation of goods);

“appropriate officer”, in relation to a person whose fingerprints are to be taken, means the officer investigating the offence for which the person was arrested or charged or informed that he or she would be reported, as the case may be;

“approved place” for the taking of an intimate sample means any of the places specified in section 86(9);

“Class A drug” and “Class B drug” have the same meaning as in the Misuse of Drugs Ordinance;

“DNA profile” means any information derived from a DNA sample;

“DNA sample” means any material that has come from a human body and consists of or includes human cells;

“drug offence search” means an intimate search for a Class A drug or Class B drug which an officer has authorised by virtue of section 86(1)(b);

“excluded offence”, in relation to a person, means an imprisonable offence which —

(a) is not a qualifying offence;

(b) is the only imprisonable offence of which the person has been convicted; and

(c) was committed when the person was aged under 18, and for which the person was not given a custodial sentence of 5 years or more;

“extradition arrest power” means a power of arrest under an enactment with a view to the extradition of the person arrested;

“fingerprints”, in relation to any person, means a record (in any form and produced by any method) of the skin pattern and other physical characteristics or features of —

(a) any of the person’s fingers; or

(b) either of the person’s palms;

“health care professional” means —

(a) a person who is registered in the register of medical practitioners kept under the Medical Practitioners, Midwives and Dentists Ordinance; or

(b) a person who is registered in the register kept by the United Kingdom Central Council for Nursing, Midwifery and Health Visiting by virtue of qualifications in nursing;

“intimate sample” means —

(a) a sample of blood, semen or any other tissue, fluid, urine or pubic hair;

(b) a dental impression; or

(c) a swab taken from any part of a person’s genitals (including pubic hair) or from a person’s body orifice other than the mouth;

“intimate search” means a search which consists of the physical examination of a person’s body orifices other than the mouth;

“non-intimate sample” means —

(a) a sample of hair other than pubic hair;

(b) a sample taken from a nail or from under a nail;

(c) a swab taken from any part of a person’s body other than a part from which a swab taken would be an intimate sample;

(d) saliva; or

(e) a skin impression;

“qualifying offence” means a sexual offence or an offence of violence;

“registered dentist” means a person registered as a dentist under the Medical Practitioners, Midwives and Dentists Ordinance;

“relevant material” means fingerprints or DNA profiles to which section 98 applies;

“relevant time” has the meaning given to it by section 69(2);

“skin impression”, in relation to any person, means any record (other than a fingerprint) which is a record (in any form and produced by any method) of the skin pattern and other physical characteristics or features of the whole or any part of the person’s foot or of any other part of the person’s body;

“speculative search”, in relation to a person’s fingerprints or samples, means a check against other fingerprints or samples or against information derived from other samples such as is referred to in section 95(1);

“sufficient” and “insufficient”, in relation to a sample, means (subject to subsection (2)) sufficient or insufficient (in point of quantity or quality) for the purpose of enabling information to be produced by the means of analysis used or to be used in relation to the sample.

(2) References in this Part to a sample proving insufficient include references to cases in which, as a consequence of —

(a) the loss, destruction or contamination of the whole or any part of the sample;

(b) any damage to the whole or a part of the sample; or

(c) the use of the whole or a part of the sample for an analysis which produced no results or which produced results some or all of which must be regarded, in the circumstances, as unreliable, the sample has become unavailable or insufficient for the purpose of enabling information, or information of a particular description, to be obtained by means of analysis of the sample.

(3) In subsection (2), the reference to the destruction of a sample does not include a reference to the destruction of a sample under section 111 (requirement to destroy samples).

(4) Any reference in sections 100, 102, 109 or 114 to a person being charged with an offence includes a reference to a person being informed that he or she will be reported for an offence.

(5) For the purposes of this Part, any reference to a person who is convicted of an offence includes a reference to —

(a) a person who has been given a caution in respect of the offence which, at the time of the caution, the person has admitted;

(b) a person who has been found not guilty of the offence by reason of insanity, or who has been found to be under a disability and to have done the act charged in respect of the offence.

(6) This Part, so far as it relates to persons convicted of an offence, has effect despite anything in Part 29 (Rehabilitation of Offenders), but subject to any provision of this Ordinance empowering the Governor to disregard certain convictions and cautions.

(7) If a person is convicted of more than one offence arising out of a single course of action, those convictions are to be treated as a single conviction for the purposes of calculating under section 102 or 107 whether the person has been convicted of only one offence.

83. Abolition of certain powers of police officers to search persons

(1) Any enactment in force before this Part comes into force ceases to have effect to the extent that it authorises —

- (a) a search by a police officer of a person in police detention at a place of lawful custody; or
- (b) an intimate search of a person by a police officer.

(2) Any rule of common law which authorises a search such as is mentioned in subsection (1) that was abolished by section 165 of the Criminal Justice Ordinance remains abolished.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.165; UK PACE Act 1984 s.53]

84. Searches of detained person

(1) The custody officer at a place of lawful custody must ascertain and record or cause to be recorded everything that a person has with him or her when the person is —

- (a) brought to the station after being arrested elsewhere or after being committed to custody by an order or sentence of a court; or
- (b) arrested at the station, or detained there as a person falling within section 59(7).

(2) In the case of an arrested person, a record under subsection (1) must be made as part of the person's custody record.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), a custody officer may seize and retain anything as mentioned in subsection (1) or cause it to be seized and retained.

(4) Clothes and personal effects may only be seized if the custody officer —

- (a) believes that the person from whom they are seized may use them to —
 - (i) cause physical injury to himself or herself or any other person;
 - (ii) damage property;
 - (iii) interfere with evidence; or
 - (iv) assist the person to escape; or

(b) has reasonable grounds for believing that they may be evidence relating to an offence.

(5) If anything is seized, the person from whom it is seized must be told the reason for the seizure unless the person is —

(a) violent or likely to become violent; or

(b) incapable of understanding what is said to him or her.

(6) Subject to subsection (10), a person may be searched —

(a) if the custody officer considers it necessary to enable the officer to carry out his or her duty under subsection (1); and

(b) to the extent the custody officer considers necessary for that purpose.

(7) A person who is in custody at a place of lawful custody or is in police detention otherwise than at such a place may at any time be searched in order to ascertain whether the person has with him or her anything which the person could use for any of the purposes specified in subsection (4)(a).

(8) Subject to subsection (9), a police officer may seize and retain, or cause to be seized and retained, anything found on a search authorised by this section.

(9) A police officer may only seize clothes and personal effects in the circumstances specified in subsection (4).

(10) An intimate search may not be conducted under this section.

(11) A search under this section must be carried out only by a police officer.

(12) The police officer carrying out a search under this section must whenever practicable be of the same gender as the person searched.

(13) This section applies in the case of a person who is arrested under section 133(3) for failing to comply with the conditions of a conditional caution and is detained in a place of lawful custody under that section as it applies in the case of a person who falls within section 60(7) and is detained at a place of lawful custody under section 61.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.166; UK PACE Act 1984 s.54]

85. Searches and examinations to ascertain identity

(1) If an officer of the rank of sergeant or above so authorises, a person who is detained in a place of lawful custody as a person involved in the commission of an offence, or as having failed to comply with any of the conditions attached to a conditional caution, may be searched or examined, or both —

(a) for the purpose of ascertaining whether the person has any mark that would tend to identify him or her as a person involved in the commission of an offence; or

(b) for the purpose of facilitating the ascertainment of the person's identity.

(2) An officer may only give an authorisation under subsection (1) for the purpose mentioned in paragraph (a) of that subsection if —

(a) the appropriate consent to a search or examination that would reveal whether the mark in question exists has been withheld; or

(b) it is not practicable to obtain such consent.

(3) An officer may only give an authorisation under subsection (1) for the purpose mentioned in paragraph (b) of that subsection if —

(a) the person in question has refused to identify himself or herself; or

(b) the officer has reasonable grounds for suspecting that that person is not who he or she claims to be.

(4) An officer may give an authorisation under subsection (1) orally or in writing but, if the officer gives it orally, he or she must confirm it in writing as soon as practicable.

(5) Any identifying mark found on a search or examination under this section may be photographed —

(a) with the appropriate consent; or

(b) if the appropriate consent is withheld or it is not practicable to obtain it - without it.

(6) A search or examination carried out, or a photograph taken, under this section may only be carried out or taken by a police officer.

(7) To the extent practicable, a person may not under this section carry out a search or examination of a person of the opposite gender or take a photograph of any part of the body of a person of the opposite gender.

(8) An intimate search may not be carried out under this section.

(9) A photograph taken under this section —

(a) may be used by, or disclosed to, any person for any purpose related to the prevention or detection of crime, the investigation of an offence, the investigation of whether the person in question has failed to comply with any of the conditions attached to a conditional caution, or the conduct of a prosecution; and

(b) after being so used or disclosed, may be retained but may not be used or disclosed except for a purpose so related.

(10) In subsection (9) —

(a) the reference to crime includes a reference to any conduct which —

(i) constitutes one or more criminal offences (whether under the law of the Falkland Islands or of a place outside the Falkland Islands); and

(ii) is, or corresponds to, any conduct which, if it took place in the Falkland Islands, would constitute one or more criminal offences;

(b) the references to an investigation and to a prosecution include references, respectively, to any investigation outside the Falkland Islands of any crime or suspected crime and to a prosecution brought in respect of any crime in a place outside the Falkland Islands.

(11) In this section —

(a) references to ascertaining a person's identity include references to showing that the person is not a particular person; and

(b) references to taking a photograph include references to using any process by means of which a visual image may be produced, and references to photographing a person are to be construed accordingly.

(12) In this section “mark” includes features and injuries; and a mark is an identifying mark for the purposes of this section if its existence in any person's case facilitates the ascertainment of the person's identity or the identification of the person as a person involved in the commission of an offence.

(13) Nothing in this section applies to a person arrested under an extradition arrest power.

86. Intimate searches

(1) Subject to this section, if an officer of the rank of inspector or above has reasonable grounds for believing —

(a) that a person who has been arrested and is in police detention may have concealed on him or her anything which he or she —

(i) could use to cause physical injury to himself or herself or any other person; and

(ii) might so use while he or she is in police detention or in the custody of a court; or

(b) that such a person —

(i) may have a Class A drug or Class B drug concealed on him or her; and

(ii) was in possession of it with the appropriate criminal intent before the arrest, the officer may authorise an intimate search of the person.

(2) An officer may not authorise an intimate search of a person for anything unless the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that it cannot be found without the person being intimately searched.

(3) An officer may give an authorisation under subsection (1) orally or in writing but, if the officer gives it orally, he or she must confirm it in writing as soon as practicable.

(4) A drug offence search must not be carried out unless the appropriate consent has been given in writing.

(5) If it is proposed that a drug offence search be carried out, an appropriate officer must inform the person to be searched —

(a) of the giving of the authorisation; and

(b) of the grounds for giving the authorisation.

(6) An intimate search which is only a drug offence search must be by way of examination by a health care professional.

(7) An intimate search other than a drug offence search must be by way of examination by a health care professional unless an officer of the rank of inspector or above considers that this is not practicable, in which case it must be carried out by a police officer.

(8) A police officer may not carry out an intimate search of a person of the opposite gender.

(9) An intimate search must not be carried out except —

(a) at a police station;

(b) at the prison;

(c) at a hospital;

(d) at a registered medical practitioner's surgery; or

(e) at some other place used for medical purposes.

(10) If an intimate search of a person is carried out, the custody record relating to the person must state —

- (a) which parts of the person's body were searched; and
- (b) why they were searched.

(11) If the intimate search of a person is a drug offence search, the custody record relating to the person must also state —

- (a) the authorisation by virtue of which the search was carried out;
- (b) the grounds for giving the authorisation; and
- (c) the fact that the appropriate consent was given.

(12) The information required to be recorded by subsections (10) and (11) must be recorded as soon as practicable after the completion of the search.

(13) The custody officer at the place of lawful custody may seize and retain anything which is found on an intimate search of a person, or cause any such thing to be seized and retained —

- (a) if the officer believes that the person from whom it is seized may use it —
 - (i) to cause physical injury to himself or herself or any other person;
 - (ii) to damage property;
 - (iii) to interfere with evidence; or
 - (iv) to assist the person to escape; or
- (b) if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that it may be evidence relating to an offence.

(14) If anything is seized under this section, the person from whom it is seized must be told the reason for the seizure unless the person is —

- (a) violent or likely to become violent; or
- (b) incapable of understanding what is said to him or her.

(15) If the appropriate consent to a drug offence search of any person was refused without good cause, in any proceedings against that person for an offence the court may draw such inferences from the refusal as appear proper.

(16) The Chief Police Officer must publish an annual report containing information about searches under this section which have been carried out during the period to which it relates, including —

- (a) the total number of searches;
- (b) the number of searches conducted by way of examination by a suitably qualified person;
- (c) the number of searches not so conducted but conducted in the presence of such a person;
and
- (d) the result of the searches carried out;

and, as separate items —

- (e) the total number of drug offence searches; and
- (f) the result of those searches.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.167; UK PACE Act 1984 s.55]

87. X-rays and ultrasound scans

(1) If a police officer of the rank of inspector or above has reasonable grounds for believing that a person who has been arrested for an offence and is in police detention —

- (a) may have swallowed a Class A or Class B drug; and
- (b) was in possession of it with the appropriate criminal intent before his or her arrest, the officer may authorise that an X-ray be taken of the person or an ultrasound scan be carried out on the person, or both.

(2) An X-ray must not be taken of a person and an ultrasound scan must not be carried out on the person unless the appropriate consent has been given in writing.

(3) If it is proposed that an X-ray be taken or an ultrasound scan be carried out, an appropriate officer must inform the person who is to be subject to it —

- (a) of the giving of the authorisation for it; and
- (b) of the grounds for giving the authorisation.

(4) An X-ray may only be taken by a radiographer and an ultrasound scan may only be carried out by a radiographer or a health care professional. Either procedure may only be performed at—

- (a) a hospital;
- (b) a registered medical practitioner's surgery; or
- (c) some other place used for medical purposes.

(5) When an X-ray of a person is taken or an ultrasound scan on a person is carried out, the custody record of the person must also state —

- (a) the authorisation by virtue of which the X-ray was taken or the ultrasound scan was carried out;
- (b) the grounds for giving the authorisation; and
- (c) the fact that the appropriate consent was given.

(6) The information required to be recorded by subsection (5) must be recorded as soon as practicable after the X-ray has been taken or ultrasound scan carried out, as the case may be.

(7) If the appropriate consent to an X-ray or ultrasound scan of any person is refused without good cause, in any proceedings against that person for an offence, the court may draw such inferences from the refusal as appear proper.

(8) The Chief Police Officer must publish an annual report containing information about X-rays which have been taken and ultrasound scans which have been carried out under this section during the period to which it relates, including —

- (a) the total number of X-rays;
- (b) the total number of ultrasound scans;
- (c) the results of the X-rays;
- (d) the results of the ultrasound scans.

88. Right to have someone informed when arrested

(1) A person who has been arrested and is being held in custody in a place of lawful custody or other premises is entitled, if he or she so requests, to have one named friend or relative or other person who is known to the person or who is likely to take an interest in the person's welfare told that the person has been arrested and is being detained there.

(2) Delay in telling a named person under subsection (1) is only permitted if —

- (a) the detained person is detained for an imprisonable offence; and
- (b) an officer of the rank of inspector or above authorises a delay.

(3) Whether or not subsection (2) applies, the detained person must be permitted to exercise the right conferred by subsection (1) within 36 hours after the relevant time.

(4) An officer may give an authorisation under subsection (2) orally or in writing but, if the officer gives it orally, he or she must confirm it in writing as soon as is practicable.

(5) Subject to subsection (6), an officer may only authorise delay in telling a named person of an arrest if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the telling will —

- (a) lead to interference with or harm to evidence connected with an imprisonable offence;
- (b) lead to interference with or physical injury to other persons;
- (c) lead to the alerting of other persons suspected of having committed such an offence but not yet arrested for it; or
- (d) hinder the recovery of any property obtained as a result of such an offence.

(6) An officer may also authorise delay in telling a named person if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that —

- (a) the person detained for the imprisonable offence has benefited from his or her criminal conduct; and
- (b) the recovery of the value of the property constituting the benefit will be hindered by telling the named person of the arrest.

(7) For the purposes of subsection (6) the question whether a person has benefited from the person's criminal conduct is to be decided in accordance with the Proceeds of Crime Ordinance.

(8) If a delay in telling a named person is authorised —

- (a) the detained person must as soon as practicable be told the reason for the delay; and
- (b) the reason must as soon as practicable be noted on the person's custody record.

(9) The rights conferred by this section on a person in a place of lawful custody or other premises are exercisable whenever the person is transferred from one place to another, and this section applies to each subsequent occasion on which they are exercisable as it applies to the first such occasion.

(10) If delay in telling a named person has been authorised, there must be no further delay in permitting the exercise of the right conferred by subsection (1) once the reason for authorising delay ceases to subsist.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.171; UK PACE Act 1984 s.56]

89. Additional rights of youths who are arrested

(1) If a youth is in police detention, all practicable steps must be taken to ascertain the identity of a person responsible for the youth's welfare.

(2) If the identity of a person responsible for the welfare of the youth can be ascertained, the person must be informed, unless it is not practicable to do so —

- (a) that the youth has been arrested;
- (b) why he or she has been arrested; and
- (c) where he or she is being detained.

(3) If information is to be given under subsection (2), it must be given as soon as practicable.

(4) For the purposes of this section the persons responsible for the welfare of a youth are —

- (a) the youth's parent or guardian; or
- (b) any other person who has for the time being assumed responsibility for the youth's welfare.

(5) If information is to be given to a person responsible for the welfare of the youth in accordance with subsection (2), it must be given to the person as soon as is reasonably practicable.

(6) If it appears at the time of the youth's arrest that a supervision order is in force in respect of the youth under the Children Ordinance 2014, the person responsible for the supervision of the youth must also be informed as described in subsection (2) as soon as reasonably practicable.

(7) The reference to a parent or guardian in subsection (4) is, in the case of a youth in the care of the Crown, a reference to the Crown officer with responsibility for the youth.

(8) The rights conferred on a youth by subsections (1) to (6) are in addition to the rights under section 88.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.57 and Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.34]

90. Access to legal advice

(1) A person arrested and held in custody in a place of lawful custody or other premises is entitled, if the person so requests, to consult a legal practitioner at any time.

(2) Consultation with a legal practitioner —

- (a) is private; and
- (b) may be conducted by telephone.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), a request under subsection (1), and the time of its making, must when it is made be recorded in the custody record unless it is made by a person while he or she is at a court after being charged with an offence.

(4) If a person makes such a request, the person must be permitted to consult a legal practitioner as soon as practicable, except to the extent that delay is permitted by this section, and in any case within 36 hours after the relevant time.

(5) Delay in compliance with a request to consult a legal practitioner is only permitted —

- (a) in the case of a person who is in police detention for an imprisonable offence; and
- (b) if a police officer of the rank of inspector or above authorises it.

(6) An officer may give an authorisation under subsection (5) orally or in writing but, if the officer gives it orally, he or she must confirm it in writing as soon as practicable.

(7) Subject to subsection (6), a police officer may only authorise delay in complying with a request if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that complying with the request at the time when the person in police detention makes it will —

- (a) lead to interference with or physical injury to other persons;
- (b) lead to interference with or harm to evidence connected with an imprisonable offence;
- (c) lead to the alerting of other persons suspected of having committed such an offence but not yet arrested for it; or
- (d) hinder the recovery of any property obtained as a result of such an offence.

(8) An officer may also authorise delay in complying with a request if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that —

- (a) the person detained for the imprisonable offence has benefited from the person's criminal conduct; and
- (b) the recovery of the value of the property constituting the benefit will be hindered by the exercise of the rights in subsection (1).

(9) For the purposes of subsection (7), the question whether a person has benefited from the person's criminal conduct is to be decided in accordance with the Proceeds of Crime Ordinance.

(10) If delay in complying with a request is authorised by this section —

- (a) the detained person must as soon as practicable be told the reason for it;
- (b) the reason must as soon as practicable be noted on the person's custody record;
- (c) there must be no further delay once the reason for authorising delay ceases to subsist.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.172; UK PACE Act 1984 s.58]

Fingerprints, samples, etc.

91. Fingerprinting

(1) Except as provided by this section, no person's fingerprints may be taken without the appropriate consent.

(2) If consent is given when a person is at a place of lawful custody, it must be in writing.

(3) The fingerprints of a person who has answered to bail at a court or place of lawful custody may be taken without the appropriate consent at the court or place if —

(a) the court, or

(b) a police officer of the rank of sergeant or above, authorises them to be taken.

(4) A court or police officer may only give an authorisation under subsection (3) if —

(a) the person who has answered to bail has answered to it for a person whose fingerprints were taken on a previous occasion and there are reasonable grounds for believing that he or she is not the same person; or

(b) the person who has answered to bail claims to be a different person from a person whose fingerprints were taken on a previous occasion.

(5) A police officer may take a person's fingerprints without the appropriate consent if the officer reasonably suspects that the person is committing or attempting to commit an imprisonable offence, or has committed or attempted to commit an offence, and if —

(a) the name of the person is unknown to, and cannot be readily ascertained by, the officer; or

(b) the officer has reasonable grounds for doubting whether a name given by the person as his or her name is his or her real name.

(6) The taking of fingerprints by virtue of subsection (5) does not count for any of the purposes of this Ordinance as taking them in the course of the investigation of an offence by the police.

(7) The fingerprints of a person detained at a place of lawful custody may be taken without the appropriate consent if the person —

(a) is detained in consequence of his or her arrest for an imprisonable offence; or

(b) has been charged with an imprisonable offence or informed that he or she will be reported for such an offence;

and if —

(c) the person has not had his or her fingerprints taken in the course of the investigation of the offence by the police; or

(d) the person has had his or her fingerprints taken in the course of the investigation, but subsection (12)(a) or (b) applies.

(8) The fingerprints of a person not detained at a place of lawful custody may be taken without the appropriate consent if the person has been charged with an imprisonable offence or informed that he or she will be reported for such an offence and —

(a) the person has not had his or her fingerprints taken in the course of the investigation of the offence by the police; or

(b) the person has had his or her fingerprints taken in the course of that investigation but subsection (12)(a) or (b) applies or subsection (21) applies.

(9) Any person's fingerprints may be taken without the appropriate consent if the person has been convicted of an imprisonable offence or given a caution in respect of an imprisonable offence which, at the time of the caution, the person has admitted, and —

(a) the person has not had his or her fingerprints taken since he or she was convicted or cautioned; or

(b) the person has had his or her fingerprints taken since then but subsection (12)(a) or (b) applies.

(10) The fingerprints of a person may be taken without the appropriate consent if the person has been arrested for an imprisonable offence and released and —

(a) in the case of a person who is on bail – the person has not had his or her fingerprints taken in the course of the investigation of the offence by the police; or

(b) in any case – the person has had his or her fingerprints taken in the course of that investigation but subsection (12)(a) or (b) or subsection (21) applies.

(11) The fingerprints of a person may be taken without the appropriate consent if —

(a) under the law in force in a country or territory outside the Falkland Islands the person has been convicted of an offence under that law, whether or not he or she has been punished for it; and

(b) the act constituting the offence would constitute a qualifying offence if done in the Falkland Islands,

and if —

(c) the person has not had his or her fingerprints taken on a previous occasion under this subsection; or

(d) the person has had his or her fingerprints taken on a previous occasion under this subsection but subsection (12)(a) or (b) applies.

(12) If a person detained at a place of lawful custody has already had his or her fingerprints taken in the course of the investigation of the offence by the police, that fact is to be disregarded for the purposes of subsections (7) to (11) if —

(a) the fingerprints taken on a previous occasion do not constitute a complete set of the person's fingerprints; or

(b) some or all of the fingerprints taken on a previous occasion are not of sufficient quality to allow satisfactory analysis, comparison or matching (whether in the case in question or generally).

(13) If a person's fingerprints are taken without the appropriate consent pursuant to this section—

(a) before the fingerprints are taken, the person must be informed of —

(i) the reason for taking the fingerprints;

(ii) the power by virtue of which they are taken; and

(iii) if the authorisation of the court or a police officer is required for the exercise of the power - the fact that the authorisation has been given; and

(b) those matters must be recorded in writing as soon as practicable after the fingerprints are taken.

(14) If a person's fingerprints are taken pursuant to this section, whether with or without the appropriate consent —

(a) before the fingerprints are taken, a police officer must inform the person that they might be the subject of a speculative search; and

(b) the fact that the person has been informed of this possibility must be recorded as soon as practicable after the fingerprints have been taken, and if the person is detained at a place of lawful custody, included on the person's custody record.

(15) If a person is detained at a place of lawful custody when his or her fingerprints are taken, the matters referred to in subsection (13)(a) and the fact referred to in subsection (14)(b), must be recorded on the person's custody record.

(16) If a person's fingerprints are taken electronically, they must be taken only in a manner, and using devices, that the Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, has by order approved for the purposes of electronic fingerprinting.

(17) Fingerprints may only be taken as specified in subsections (5), (7), (8), (9), (10), or (11) with the authorisation of an officer of the rank of sergeant or above, who must be satisfied that taking the fingerprints is necessary to assist in the prevention or detection of crime.

(18) A police officer may give an authorisation under subsection (17) orally or in writing but, if it is given orally, the officer must confirm it in writing as soon as practicable.

(19) The power to take the fingerprints of a person detained at a place of lawful custody without the appropriate consent may be exercised by any police officer, once any requisite authorisation has been given.

(20) Nothing in this section applies to a person arrested under an extradition arrest power.

(21) This subsection applies if —

(a) the investigation was discontinued but subsequently resumed; and

(b) before the resumption of the investigation the fingerprints were destroyed pursuant to section 98(3).

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.173; UK PACE Act 1984 s.61; Anti-social Behaviour, Crime and Policing Act 2014 s.144(1)]

92. Impressions of footwear

(1) Except as provided by this section, no impression of a person's footwear may be taken without the appropriate consent.

(2) If consent is given when a person is at a place of lawful custody, it must be in writing.

(3) If a person is detained at a place of lawful custody, an impression of his or her footwear may be taken without the appropriate consent if the person —

(a) is detained in consequence of his or her arrest for an imprisonable offence; and

(b) has not had an impression taken of his or her footwear in the course of the investigation of the offence by the police.

(4) If a person detained at a place of lawful custody has already had an impression taken of his or her footwear in the course of the investigation of the offence by the police, that fact is to be disregarded for the purposes of subsection (3) if the impression of his or her footwear taken previously is —

(a) incomplete; or

(b) not of sufficient quality to allow satisfactory analysis, comparison or matching (whether in the case in question or generally).

(5) If under subsection (3), an impression of a person's footwear is taken without the appropriate consent —

(a) the person must be told the reason before it is taken; and

(b) the reason must be recorded on the person's custody record as soon as practicable after the impression is taken.

(6) If an impression of a person's footwear is taken under this section, whether with or without the appropriate consent —

(a) before it is taken, a police officer must inform the person that it might be the subject of a speculative search; and

(b) the fact that the person has been informed of this possibility must be recorded as soon as practicable after the impression has been taken, and if the person is detained at a place of lawful custody, included on the person's custody record.

(7) An impression of a person's footwear may be taken may only with the authorisation of an officer of the rank of sergeant or above, who must be satisfied that taking the impression is necessary to assist in the prevention or detection of crime.

(8) A police officer may give an authorisation under subsection (7) orally or in writing but, if it is given orally, the officer must confirm it in writing as soon as practicable.

(9) The power to take an impression of the footwear of a person detained at a place of lawful custody without the appropriate consent may be exercised by any police officer, once the requisite authorisation has been given.

(10) Nothing in this section applies to a person arrested under an extradition arrest power.
[UK PACE Act 1984 s.61A added by Serious Organised Crime & Police Act 2005]

93. Intimate samples

(1) Without affecting section 96, an intimate sample may be taken from a person in police detention only if —

(a) a police officer of the rank of inspector or above authorises it to be taken; and

(b) the appropriate consent is given.

(2) An intimate sample may be taken from a person who is not in police detention but from whom, in the course of the investigation of an offence, 2 or more non-intimate samples suitable for the same means of analysis have been taken which have proved insufficient, if —

(a) a police officer of the rank of inspector or above authorises it to be taken; and

(b) the appropriate consent is given.

(3) A police officer may only give an authorisation under subsection (1) or (2) if the officer has reasonable grounds for —

(a) suspecting the involvement of the person from whom the sample is to be taken is an imprisonable offence; and

(b) believing that the sample will tend to confirm or disprove the person's involvement in that offence.

(4) An intimate sample may be taken from a person if —

(a) two or more non-intimate samples suitable for the same means of analysis have been taken from the person under section 94(10) (persons convicted of offences outside the Falkland Islands) but have proved insufficient;

(b) a police officer of the rank of inspector or above authorises it to be taken; and

(c) the appropriate consent is given.

(5) An officer may only give an authorisation under subsection (4) if the officer is satisfied that taking the sample is necessary to assist in the prevention or detection of crime.

(6) An officer may give an authorisation under subsection (1), (2) or (4) orally or in writing but, if it is given orally, the officer must confirm it in writing as soon as practicable.

(7) If consent is given, it must be in writing.

(8) An intimate sample can only be taken from a person at an approved place.

(9) Before an intimate sample is taken from a person, a police officer must inform the person of—

(a) the reason for taking the sample;

(b) the fact that authorisation has been given and the provision of this section under which it has been given; and

(c) the fact that the sample may be the subject of a speculative search.

(10) The reason referred to in subsection (9)(a) must include, unless the sample is taken under subsection (4), a statement of the nature of the offence in which it is suspected that the person has been involved.

(11) After an intimate sample has been taken from a person, the following must be recorded as soon as practicable, and if the person is detained at a place of lawful custody, included on the person's custody record —

(a) the matters referred to in subsection (9)(a) and (b);

(b) the fact that the person has been informed as specified in subsection (9)(c); and

(c) the fact that the appropriate consent was given.

(12) In the case of an intimate sample which is a dental impression, the sample may be taken from a person only by a registered dentist.

(13) In the case of any other form of intimate sample, except in the case of a sample of urine, the sample may be taken from a person only by a health care professional.

(14) If a person refuses to submit to the taking of an intimate sample without good cause, in proceedings against that person for an offence —

(a) the court, in deciding whether there is a case to answer; and

(b) the court or jury, in deciding whether the person is guilty of the offence charged, may draw such inferences from the refusal as appear proper, and the refusal may, on the basis of such inferences, be treated as, or as capable of amounting to, corroboration of any evidence against a person in relation to which the refusal is material.

(15) Nothing in this section applies to the taking of a specimen for the purposes of section 23 or 24 of the Road Traffic Ordinance.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.174; UK PACE Act 1984 s.62]

94. Non-intimate samples

(1) Except as provided by this section, a non-intimate sample may not be taken from a person without the appropriate consent.

(2) If consent is given, it must be in writing.

(3) A non-intimate sample may be taken from a person without the appropriate consent if —

(a) the person is in police detention in consequence of being arrested for an imprisonable offence;

(b) the person —

(i) has not had a non-intimate sample of the same type and from the same part of the body taken in the course of the investigation of the offence by the police; or

(ii) has had such a sample taken but it proved insufficient; and

(c) a police officer of the rank of inspector or above authorises it to be taken without the appropriate consent.

(4) A non-intimate sample may be taken from a person without the appropriate consent if —

(a) the person is held in custody for an imprisonable offence by the police on the authority of a court; and

(b) a police officer of the rank of inspector or above authorises it to be taken without the appropriate consent.

(5) A police officer may only give an authorisation under subsection (3) or (4) if the officer has reasonable grounds —

(a) to suspect that the person from whom the sample is to be taken has been involved in an imprisonable offence; and

(b) to believe that the sample will tend to confirm or disprove the person's involvement in that offence.

(6) A non-intimate sample may be taken from a person without the appropriate consent if the person has been arrested for an imprisonable offence and released and —

(a) in the case of a person who is on bail – the person has not had a non-intimate sample of the same type and from the same part of the body taken from him or her in the course of the investigation of the offence by the police; or

(b) in any case – the person has had a non-intimate sample taken from him or her in the course of that investigation but —

(i) it was not suitable for the same means of analysis;

(ii) it proved insufficient; or

(iii) subsection (20) applies.

(7) A non-intimate sample may be taken from a person without the appropriate consent if the person has been charged with an imprisonable offence, or informed that he or she will be charged with such an offence, and the person —

(a) has not had a non-intimate sample taken in the course of the investigation of the offence by the police;

(b) has had a non-intimate sample taken in the course of that investigation but —

(i) it was not suitable for the same means of analysis;

(ii) it proved insufficient; or

(iii) subsection (20) applies.

(c) has had a non-intimate sample taken in the course of that investigation, but —

(i) the sample has been destroyed pursuant to this Part or some other enactment; and

(ii) it is disputed, in relation to any proceedings relating to the offence, whether a DNA profile relevant to the proceedings was derived from the sample.

(8) A non-intimate sample may be taken from a person without the appropriate consent if —

(a) the person has been convicted of an imprisonable offence; or

(b) the person has been given a caution in respect of an imprisonable offence which, at the time of the caution, he or she has admitted,

and if —

(c) a non-intimate sample has not been taken from the person since he or she was convicted or cautioned; or

(d) such a sample has been taken from the person since then but —

(i) it was not suitable for the same means of analysis; or

(ii) it proved insufficient.

(9) A non-intimate sample may be taken without the appropriate consent from a person detained in a hospital following acquittal on the grounds of insanity or a finding of unfitness to plead under Part 34 (Mentally Disordered Offenders).

(10) A non-intimate sample may be taken from a person without the appropriate consent if —

(a) under the law in force in a country or territory outside the Falkland Islands the person has been convicted of an offence under that law (whether or not the person has been punished for it); and

(b) the act constituting the offence would constitute a qualifying offence if done in the Falkland Islands,

and if —

(c) the person has not had a non-intimate sample taken from him or her on a previous occasion under this subsection; or

(d) the person has had such a sample taken from him or her on a previous occasion under this subsection but —

(i) the sample was not suitable for the same means of analysis; or

(ii) it proved insufficient.

(11) If a non-intimate sample is taken from a person without the appropriate consent pursuant to this section —

(a) before the sample is taken, a police officer must inform the person of —

(i) the reason for taking the sample;

(ii) the power by virtue of which it is taken; and

(iii) in a case where the authorisation of an officer is required for the exercise of the power - the fact that the authorisation has been given; and

(b) those matters must be recorded as soon as practicable after the sample is taken.

(12) The reason referred to in subsection (11)(a)(i) must include, except in a case where the non-intimate sample is taken under subsection (8) or (9), a statement of the nature of the offence in which it is suspected that the person has been involved.

(13) If a non-intimate sample is taken from a person under this section, whether with or without the appropriate consent —

(a) before the sample is taken, a police officer must inform the person that it might be the subject of a speculative search; and

(b) the fact that the person has been informed of this possibility must be recorded as soon as practicable after the sample has been taken, and if the person is detained at a place of lawful custody, included on the person's custody record.

(14) A non-intimate sample may only be taken as specified in any of subsections (6) to (10) with the authorisation of an officer of the rank of inspector or above, who must be satisfied that taking the sample is necessary to assist in the prevention or detection of crime.

(15) An officer must not give an authorisation under this section for the taking of a non-intimate sample consisting of a skin impression if a skin impression of the same part of the body has already been taken from the person in the course of the investigation of the offence, unless that skin impression has proved insufficient.

(16) An officer may give an authorisation under this section orally or in writing, but if it is given orally, the officer must confirm it in writing as soon as practicable.

(17) The power to take a non-intimate sample from a person without the appropriate consent may be exercised by any police officer, once any requisite authorisation has been given.

(18) If a non-intimate sample consisting of a skin impression is taken electronically from a person, it must be taken only in a manner, and using a device, that the Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, has by order approved for the purpose of the electronic taking of such an impression.

(19) Nothing in this section applies to a person arrested under an extradition arrest power.

(20) This subsection applies if the investigation was discontinued but subsequently resumed, and before the resumption of the investigation —

(a) any DNA profile derived from the sample was destroyed pursuant to section 98(3); and

(b) the sample itself was destroyed pursuant to section 112(4), (5) or (12).

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.175; UK PACE Act 1984 s.63; Anti-social Behaviour, Crime and Policing Act 2014 s.144(2)]

95. Fingerprints and samples: Speculative searches, etc. – Schedule 2

(1) If a person has been —

(a) arrested on suspicion of being involved in an imprisonable offence;

(b) charged with such an offence; or

(c) informed that he or she will be reported for such an offence, fingerprints, impressions of footwear or samples or the information derived from samples taken under any power conferred by this Part from the person may be checked against —

(d) other fingerprints or samples to which the person seeking to check has access and which are held by or on behalf of a relevant law-enforcement authority or in connection with or as a result of an investigation of an offence; and

(e) information derived from other samples if the information is contained in records to which the person seeking to check has access and which are held as mentioned in paragraph (d).

(2) Fingerprints taken by virtue of section 91(5) may be checked against other fingerprints to which the person seeking to check has access and which are held by or on behalf of a relevant law-enforcement authority or in connection with or as a result of an investigation of an offence.

(3) If fingerprints or samples have been taken from any person under section 91(11), 93(4) or 94(10) (persons convicted of offences outside the Falkland Islands) the fingerprints or samples, or information derived from the samples, may be checked against any of the fingerprints, samples or information mentioned in subsection (1)(d) or (e) of this section.

(4) If samples have been taken from any person under section 91(9) or 94(8) (persons convicted, etc.), the samples, or information derived from the samples, may be checked against any of the samples or information mentioned in subsection (1)(d) or (e) of this section.

(5) In subsection (1) and (2) “relevant law-enforcement authority” means —

(a) the Royal Falkland Islands Police Force;

(b) any other public authority in the Falkland Islands whose functions include the investigation of crimes or the charging of offenders;

(c) any person with functions in any country or territory outside the Falkland Islands which—

(i) correspond to those of a police force; or

(ii) otherwise consist of or include the investigation of conduct contrary to the law of that place, or the apprehension of persons guilty of such conduct;

(d) any person with functions under any international agreement which consist of or include the investigation of conduct which is —

(i) unlawful under the law of one or more places;

(ii) prohibited by such an agreement; or

(iii) contrary to international law, or the apprehension of persons guilty of such conduct.

(6) If —

(a) fingerprints, impressions of footwear or samples have been taken from any person in connection with the investigation of an offence but not in circumstances to which subsection (1) applies; and

(b) the person has given his or her consent in writing to the use in a speculative search of the fingerprints, impressions of footwear or of the samples and of information derived from them, the fingerprints, impressions of footwear or, as the case may be, those samples and that information may be checked against any of the fingerprints, impressions of footwear, samples or information mentioned in paragraph (d) or (e) of subsection (1).

(7) A consent given for the purposes of subsection (5) cannot be withdrawn.

(8) If a sample of hair other than pubic hair is to be taken, the sample may be taken either by cutting hairs or by plucking hairs by their roots, so long as no more are plucked than the person taking the sample reasonably considers necessary for a sufficient sample.

(9) If there is power to take a sample in relation to any person, the sample may be taken in a prison.

(10) If —

(a) the power to take a non-intimate sample under section 94(8) is exercisable in relation to a person detained under Part 3 of the Mental Health Ordinance 2010; or

(b) the power to take a non-intimate sample under section 94(9) is exercisable in relation to any person, the sample must be taken in the hospital in which the person is detained.

(11) Schedule 2 (Fingerprinting and samples: Attendance at a place of lawful custody) has effect for the purposes of this Part.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63A ins. by Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994]

96. Testing for presence of Class A drugs or Class B drugs

(1) A sample of urine or a non-intimate sample may be taken from a person in police detention for the purpose of ascertaining whether the person has any Class A drug or Class B drug in his or her body if —

(a) either the arrest condition or the charge condition is met; and

(b) both the age condition and the request condition are met.

(2) The arrest condition is that the person concerned has been arrested for an imprisonable offence but has not been charged with that offence and either —

(a) the offence is an offence under the Misuse of Drugs Ordinance; or

(b) a police officer of the rank of inspector or above has reasonable grounds for suspecting that the misuse by the person of a Class A drug or Class B drug caused or contributed to the offence and has authorised the sample to be taken.

(3) The charge condition is that the person concerned —

(a) has been charged with an imprisonable offence under the Misuse of Drugs Ordinance; or

(b) has been charged with any imprisonable offence and a police officer of the rank of inspector or above, who has reasonable grounds for suspecting that the misuse by the person of any Class A drug or Class B drug caused or contributed to the offence, has authorised the sample to be taken.

(4) The age condition is —

(a) if the arrest condition is met - that the person concerned has attained the age of 18;

(b) if the charge condition is met - that the person has attained the age of 14.

(5) The request condition is that a police officer has requested the person concerned to give the sample.

(6) Before requesting the person concerned to give a sample, an officer must —

(a) warn the person that if, when requested to give a sample, he or she fails to do so without good cause he or she may be prosecuted; and

(b) in a case within subsection (2)(b) or (3)(b) - inform the person of the giving of the authorisation and of the grounds in question.

(7) In the case of a person who has not attained the age of 18 —

(a) the making of the request under subsection (5);

(b) the giving of the warning and (where applicable) the information under subsection (6); and

(c) the taking of the sample, may not take place except in the presence of an appropriate adult.

(8) If a sample is taken under this section from a person in respect of whom the arrest condition is met, no other sample may be taken from the person under this section during the same continuous period of detention, but —

(a) if the charge condition is also met in respect of the person at any time during that period, the sample must be treated as a sample taken because the charge condition is met;

(b) the fact that the sample is to be so treated must be recorded in the person's custody record.

(9) Despite subsection (1)(a) (which requires certain conditions to be met for a sample to be taken from a person), a sample may be taken from a person under this section if —

(a) the person was arrested for an offence (the first offence);

(b) the arrest condition is met but the charge condition is not met;

(c) before a sample is taken by virtue of subsection (1) the person would (but for his or her arrest for an offence as mentioned in paragraph (d)) be required to be released from police detention;

(d) the person continues to be in police detention by virtue of having been arrested for an offence not falling within subsection (2); and

(e) the sample is taken no later than 24 hours after the person's detention by virtue of his or her arrest for the first offence began.

(10) A sample must not be taken from a person under this section if the person is detained in a place of lawful custody unless he or she has been brought before the custody officer.

(11) A sample, other than a urine sample, may be taken under this section only by a health care professional.

(12) Information obtained from a sample taken under this section may be disclosed —

(a) for the purpose of informing any decision about granting bail in criminal proceedings to the person concerned;

(b) if the person concerned is in police detention or remanded in or committed to custody by an order of a court, or has been granted bail - for the purpose of informing any decision about the person's supervision;

(c) if the person concerned is convicted of an offence - for the purpose of informing any decision about the appropriate sentence to be passed by a court and any decision about the person's supervision or release;

(d) for the purpose of ensuring that appropriate advice and treatment is made available to the person concerned; and

(e) for any other purpose prescribed by law.

97. Testing for presence of Class A drugs or Class B drugs: Supplementary

(1) A person who fails without good cause to give any sample which can lawfully be taken from the person under section 96 commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 3 months or a fine at level 4 on the standard scale, or both.

(2) A police officer may give an authorisation under section 96 orally or in writing but, if the officer gives it orally, he or she must confirm it in writing as soon as practicable.

(3) If a sample is taken under section 96 by virtue of an authorisation, the authorisation and the grounds for the suspicion must be recorded as soon as practicable after the sample is taken.

(4) If the sample is taken from a person detained in a place of lawful custody, the matters required to be recorded by subsection (3) must be recorded in the person's custody record.

(5) Nothing in section 96 applies to the taking of a specimen for the purposes of section 23 or 24 of the Road Traffic Ordinance.

(6) Section 96 does not limit sections 93 and 94 as to the taking of samples for other purposes.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63C inserted by Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994]

Retention and destruction of samples, etc.

98. Destruction of fingerprints and DNA profiles

(1) This section applies to —

(a) fingerprints taken from a person under any power conferred by this Part, or taken by the police, with the consent of the person from whom they were taken, in connection with the investigation of an offence by the police; and

(b) a DNA profile derived from a DNA sample taken as mentioned in paragraph (a).

(2) Fingerprints and DNA profiles to which this section applies (in this Part called "relevant material") must be destroyed if it appears to the Chief Police Officer that —

(a) the taking of the fingerprint (or, in the case of a DNA profile, the taking of the sample from which the DNA profile was derived) was unlawful; or

(b) the fingerprint was taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, was derived from a sample taken) from a person in connection with that person's arrest and the arrest. was unlawful or based on mistaken identity.

(3) In any other case, relevant material must be destroyed unless it is retained under any power conferred by sections 99 to 108 (including those sections as applied by section 109.)

(4) Relevant material which ceases to be retained under a power mentioned in subsection (3) may continue to be retained under any other such power which applies to it.

(5) Nothing in this section prevents a speculative search, in relation to relevant material, from being carried out within such time as may reasonably be required for the search if the Chief Police Officer considers the search to be desirable.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63D inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

99. Retention of relevant material pending investigation or proceedings

(1) This section applies to relevant material taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, derived from a sample taken) in connection with the investigation of an offence in which it is suspected that the person to whom the material relates has been involved.

(2) The material may be retained until the conclusion of the investigation of the offence or, if the investigation gives rise to proceedings against the person for the offence, until the conclusion of those proceedings.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63E inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

100. Retention of material: Persons arrested for or charged with a qualifying offence

(1) This section applies to relevant material which —

(a) relates to a person who is arrested for, or charged with, a qualifying offence but is not convicted of that offence; and

(b) was taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, derived from a sample taken) in connection with the investigation of the offence.

(2) If the person has previously been convicted of an imprisonable offence which is not an excluded offence, or is so convicted before the material is required to be destroyed by virtue of this section, the material may be retained indefinitely.

(3) Otherwise, material falling within subsection (4) or (5) may be retained until the end of the retention period specified in subsection (6).

(4) Material falls within this subsection if it —

(a) relates to a person who is charged with a qualifying offence but is not convicted of that offence; and

(b) was taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, derived from a sample taken) in connection with the investigation of the offence.

(5) Material falls within this subsection if —

(a) it relates to a person who is arrested for a qualifying offence but is not charged with that offence;

(b) it was taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, derived from a sample taken) in connection with the investigation of the offence; and

(c) the Governor has in writing consented under section 101 to the retention of the material.

(6) The retention period is —

(a) in the case of samples, the period of 3 years beginning with the date on which the fingerprints were taken; and

(b) in the case of a DNA profile, the period of 3 years beginning with the date on which the DNA sample from which the profile was derived was taken (or, if the profile was derived from more than one DNA sample, the date on which the first of those samples was taken).

(7) The Chief Police Officer may apply to the Magistrate's Court for an order extending the retention period.

(8) An application for an order under subsection (7) must be made within the period of 3 months ending on the last day of the retention period.

(9) An order under subsection (7) may extend the retention period by a period which —

(a) begins with the end of the retention period; and

(b) ends with the end of the period of 2 years beginning with the end of the retention period.

(10) The following persons may appeal to the Supreme Court against an order under subsection (7), or a refusal to make such an order —

(a) the Chief Police Officer;

(b) the person from whom the material was taken.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63F inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

101. Retention of material by virtue of section 100(5): Consent of Governor

(1) The Chief Police Officer may apply under subsection (2) or (3) to the Governor (acting in his or her discretion in consideration of any such application) for consent to the retention of relevant material which falls within section 100(5)(a) and (b).

(2) The Chief Police Officer may make an application under this subsection if he or she considers that the material was taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, derived from a sample taken) in connection with the investigation of an offence where any alleged victim (or alleged intended victim) of the offence was, at the time of the offence —

(a) under the age of 18;

(b) a vulnerable adult; or

(c) associated with the person to whom the material relates.

(3) The Chief Police Officer may make an application under this subsection if he or she considers that —

(a) the material is not material to which subsection (2) relates; but

(b) the retention of the material is necessary to assist in the prevention or detection of crime.

(4) An application under this section must be in writing.

(5) The Governor in his or her discretion may, on an application under this section, consent to the retention of material to which the application relates if the Governor considers that it is appropriate to retain the material.

(6) But where notice is given under subsection (7) in relation to the application, the Governor must, before deciding whether or not to give consent, consider any representations by the person to whom the material relates which are made within the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which the notice is given.

(7) The Chief Police Officer must give to the person to whom the material relates notice of —

(a) an application under this section; and

(b) the right to make representations, unless the whereabouts of the person to whom the material relates is not known and cannot, after reasonable inquiry, be ascertained.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63G inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

102. Retention of material: Persons arrested for or charged with a minor offence

(1) This section applies to relevant material which —

(a) relates to a person who —

(i) is arrested for or charged with an imprisonable offence other than a qualifying offence;

(ii) if arrested for or charged with more than one offence arising out of a single course of action, is not also arrested for or charged with a qualifying offence; and

(iii) is not convicted of the offence or offences in respect of which the person is arrested or charged; and

(b) was taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, derived from a sample taken) in connection with the investigation of the offence or offences in respect of which the person is arrested or charged.

(2) If the person has previously been convicted of an imprisonable offence which is not an excluded offence, the material may be retained indefinitely.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63H inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

103. Retention of material: Persons convicted of an imprisonable offence

(1) This section applies, subject to subsection (3), to —

(a) relevant material which —

(i) relates to a person who is convicted of an imprisonable offence; and

(ii) was taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, derived from a sample taken) in connection with the investigation of the offence; or

(b) material taken under section 91(10) or 94(8) which relates to a person who is convicted of an imprisonable offence.

(2) The material may be retained indefinitely.

(3) This section does not apply to relevant material to which section 105 applies.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63I inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

104. Retention of material: Persons convicted of an offence outside the Falkland Islands

(1) This section applies to material falling within subsection (2) relating to a person who is convicted of an offence under the law of any country or territory outside the Falkland Islands.

(2) Material falls within this subsection if it is —

(a) fingerprints taken from the person under section 91(12) (power to take fingerprints without consent in relation to offences outside the Falkland Islands); or

(b) a DNA profile derived from a DNA sample taken from the person under section 93(4) or 94(10) (persons convicted of offences outside the Falkland Islands).

(3) The material may be retained indefinitely.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63J inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

105. Retention of material: Exception for persons under 18 convicted of first minor offence

(1) This section applies to relevant material which —

(a) relates to a person who —

- (i) is convicted of an imprisonable offence other than a qualifying offence;
- (ii) has not previously been convicted of an imprisonable offence; and
- (iii) is aged under 18 at the time of the offence, and

(b) was taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, derived from a sample taken) in connection with the investigation of the offence.

(2) If the person is given a custodial sentence of less than 5 years in respect of the offence, the material may be retained until the end of the period consisting of the term of the sentence plus 5 years.

(3) If the person is given a relevant custodial sentence of 5 years or more in respect of the offence, the material may be retained indefinitely.

(4) If the person is given a sentence other than a relevant custodial sentence in respect of the offence, the material may be retained until —

(a) in the case of fingerprints, the end of the period of 5 years beginning with the date on which the fingerprints were taken; and

(b) in the case of a DNA profile, the end of the period of 5 years beginning with —

(i) the date on which the DNA sample from which the profile was derived was taken; or

(ii) if the profile was derived from more than one DNA sample - the date on which the first of those samples was taken.

(5) But if, before the end of the period within which material may be retained by virtue of this section, the person is again convicted of an imprisonable offence, the material may be retained indefinitely.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63K inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

106. Retention of material for purposes of national security

(1) Relevant material may be retained for as long as a national security determination made by the Governor has effect in relation to it.

(2) A national security determination is made if the Governor determines that it is necessary for any relevant material to be retained for the purposes of national security.

(3) A national security determination —

(a) must be made in writing;

(b) has effect for a maximum of 2 years beginning with the date on which it is made; and

(c) may be renewed.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63M inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

107. Retention of material given voluntarily

(1) This section applies to the following relevant material —

(a) fingerprints taken with the consent of the person from whom they were taken; and

(b) a DNA profile derived from a DNA sample taken with the consent of the person from whom the sample was taken.

(2) Material to which this section applies may be retained until it has fulfilled the purpose for which it was taken or derived.

(3) Material to which this section applies which relates to —

(a) a person who is convicted of an imprisonable offence; or

(b) a person who has previously been convicted of an imprisonable offence (other than a person who has only one excluded conviction), may be retained indefinitely.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63N inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

108. Retention of material with consent

(1) This section applies to the following material —

(a) fingerprints (other than fingerprints taken under section 91(5)) to which section 98 applies; and

(b) a DNA profile to which section 98 applies.

(2) If the person to whom the material relates consents to material to which this section applies being retained, the material may be retained for as long as that person consents to it being retained.

(3) Consent given under this section —

(a) must be in writing; and

(b) can be withdrawn at any time.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63O inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

109. Material obtained for one purpose and used for another

(1) Subsection (2) applies if —

(a) relevant material is taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, derived from a sample taken) from a person in connection with the investigation of an offence; and

(b) the person is subsequently arrested for or charged with a different offence, or convicted of or given a penalty notice for a different offence.

(2) Sections 99 to 108 and sections 110 and 113 have effect in relation to the material as if the material were also taken (or, in the case of a DNA profile, derived from a sample taken) —

(a) in connection with the investigation of the offence mentioned in subsection (1)(b);

(b) on the date on which the person was arrested for that offence (or charged with it or given a penalty notice for it, if the person was not arrested).

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63P inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 and replaced by Anti-social Behaviour, Crime & Policing Act 2014 s.145]

110. Destruction of copies of relevant material

(1) If fingerprints are required by section 98 to be destroyed, any copies of the fingerprints held by the police must also be destroyed.

(2) If a DNA profile is required by that section to be destroyed, no copy may be retained by the police except in a form which does not include information which identifies the person to whom the DNA profile relates.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63Q inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

111. Destruction of samples

(1) This section applies to samples —

(a) taken from a person under any power conferred by this Part; or

(b) taken by the police, with the consent of the person from whom they were taken, in connection with the investigation of an offence by the police.

(2) Samples to which this section applies must be destroyed if it appears to the Chief Police Officer that —

(a) the taking of the samples was unlawful; or

(b) the samples were taken from a person in connection with that person's arrest and the arrest was unlawful or based on mistaken identity.

(3) Subject to this, the rule in subsection (4) or (as the case may be) (5) applies.

(4) A DNA sample to which this section applies must be destroyed —

(a) as soon as a DNA profile has been derived from the sample; or

(b) if sooner, before the end of the period of 6 months beginning with the date on which the sample was taken.

(5) Any other sample to which this section applies must be destroyed before the end of the period of 6 months beginning with the date on which it was taken.

(6) The Chief Police Officer may apply to the Senior Magistrate for an order to retain a sample to which this section applies beyond the date on which the sample would otherwise be required to be destroyed by virtue of subsection (4) or (5) if —

(a) the sample was taken from a person in connection with the investigation of a qualifying offence; and

(b) the Chief Police Officer considers that the condition in subsection (7) is met.

(7) The condition is that, having regard to the nature and complexity of other material that is evidence in relation to the offence, the sample is likely to be needed in any proceedings for the offence for the purposes of —

(a) disclosure to, or use by, a defendant; or

(b) responding to any challenge by a defendant in respect of the admissibility of material that is evidence on which the prosecution proposes to rely.

(8) An application under subsection (6) must be made before the date on which the sample would otherwise be required to be destroyed by virtue of subsection (4) or (5).

(9) If, on an application made by the Chief Police Officer under subsection (6), the Senior Magistrate is satisfied that the condition in subsection (7) is met, the Senior Magistrate may make an order under this subsection which —

(a) allows the sample to be retained for a period of 12 months beginning with the date on which the sample would otherwise be required to be destroyed by virtue of subsection (4) or (5); and

(b) may be renewed (on one or more occasions) for a further period of not more than 12 months from the end of the period when the order would otherwise cease to have effect.

(10) An application for an order under subsection (9) (other than an application for renewal)—

(a) may be made without notice of the application having been given to the person from whom the sample was taken; and

(b) may be heard and determined in private in the absence of that person.

(11) A sample retained by virtue of an order under subsection (9) must not be used other than for the purposes of any proceedings for the offence in connection with which the sample was taken.

(12) A sample that ceases to be retained by virtue of an order under subsection (9) must be destroyed.

(13) Nothing in this section prevents a speculative search, in relation to samples to which this section applies, from being carried out within such time as may reasonably be required for the search if the Chief Police Officer considers the search to be desirable.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63R inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

112. Destruction of impressions of footwear

(1) This section applies to impressions of footwear —

(a) taken from a person under any power conferred by this Part; or

(b) taken by the police, with the consent of the person from whom they were taken, in connection with the investigation of an offence by the police.

(2) Impressions of footwear to which this section applies must be destroyed unless they are retained under subsection (3).

(3) Impressions of footwear may be retained for as long as is necessary for purposes related to the prevention or detection of crime, the investigation of an offence or the conduct of a prosecution.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63S inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

113. Use of retained material

(1) Any material to which any of sections 98, 111 or 112 applies must not be used other than —

(a) in the interests of national security;

(b) for purposes related to the prevention or detection of crime, the investigation of an offence or the conduct of a prosecution; or

(c) for purposes related to the identification of a deceased person or of the person to whom the material relates.

(2) Material which is required by any of sections 98, 111 or 112 to be destroyed must not at any time after it is required to be destroyed be used —

(a) in evidence against the person to whom the material relates; or

(b) for the purposes of the investigation of any offence.

(3) In this section —

(a) the reference to using material includes a reference to allowing any check to be made against it and to disclosing it to any person;

(b) the reference to crime includes a reference to any conduct which —

(i) constitutes one or more criminal offences (whether under the law of the Falkland Islands or of any country or territory outside the Falkland Islands); and

(ii) is, or corresponds to, any conduct which, if it all took place in the Falkland Islands, would constitute one or more criminal offences; and

(c) the references to an investigation and to a prosecution include references, respectively, to any investigation outside the Falkland Islands of any crime or suspected crime and to a prosecution brought in respect of any crime in a country or territory outside the Falkland Islands.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63T inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012]

114. Transitional and exclusionary provisions

(1) If relevant material was taken or derived before the commencement of this Part —

(a) in the case of material taken or derived 3 years or more before the commencement day from a person who —

(i) was arrested for, or charged with, an offence; and

(ii) has not been convicted of the offence,

the material must be destroyed on or before the commencement day if the offence was a qualifying offence;

(b) in the case of material taken or derived less than 3 years before the commencement day from a person who —

(i) was arrested for, or charged with, the offence; and

(ii) has not been convicted of the offence,

the material must be destroyed within the period of 3 years beginning with the day on which the material was taken or derived if the offence was a qualifying offence; and

(c) in the case of material taken or derived before the commencement day from a person who—

(i) was arrested for, or charged with, the offence; and

(ii) has not been convicted of the offence,

the material must be destroyed on or before the commencement day if the offence was not a qualifying offence.

[UK Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 s.25]

(2) Sections 98 to 113 do not apply to material which —

(a) is taken from a person; but

(b) relates to another person.

(3) Sections 98 to 113 do not apply to material which is, or may become, disclosable under Part 14 (Disclosure of Material) or under any code of practice published under this Ordinance and relating to disclosure of material in a criminal trial.

(4) A sample that —

(a) falls within subsection (3); and

(b) but for that subsection would be required to be destroyed under section 111, must not be used other than for the purposes of any proceedings for the offence in connection with which the sample was taken.

(5) A sample that once fell within subsection (3) but no longer does, and so becomes a sample to which section 111 applies, must be destroyed immediately if the time specified for its destruction under that section has already passed.

(6) Nothing in sections 98 to 113 affects any power conferred by the Immigration Ordinance to take reasonable steps to identify a person detained, or to disclose police information to the Governor for use for immigration purposes.

(7) Sections 98 to 113 do not apply to material which under any enactment that applies to the Falkland Islands is required to be destroyed.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.63U inserted by Part 1 of Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 and am. by Anti-social Behaviour, Crime & Policing Act 2014 s.145]

Miscellaneous provisions

115. Photographing of suspects, etc.

(2) Codes must in particular include provisions in connection with the exercise of police officers of powers in relation to testing for drugs, as in section 96.

(3) Codes A to D and Code G in Schedule 3 have effect as codes of practice under this section.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.66]

119. Codes of practice on recording of interviews

(1) There are to be one or more codes of practice —

(a) governing the audio recording of interviews conducted by police officers at the place of lawful custody of persons suspected of committing offences; and

(b) governing the visual recording of interviews conducted by police officers at the place of lawful custody of persons suspected of committing offences; and

(2) In this section, references to a visual recording include a visual recording which includes an audio recording.

(3) A code of practice under this section may relate to specified cases or specified places, or both.

(4) Code E and F in Schedule 3 have effect as codes of practice under this section.

[UK PACE Act 1984 ss.60 & 60A]

120. Codes of practice on criminal investigations

(1) There are to be one or more codes of practice designed to ensure that —

(a) when a criminal investigation is conducted all reasonable steps are taken for the purposes of the investigation and all reasonable lines of inquiry are pursued;

(b) information obtained in the course of a criminal investigation that may be relevant to the investigation is recorded;

(c) any record of such information is retained;

(d) any other material obtained in the course of a criminal investigation that may be relevant to the investigation is retained;

(e) information and material as described in paragraphs (b) and (d) are revealed to specified persons involved in the prosecution of criminal proceedings arising out of or relating to the investigation; and

(f) such information and material are disclosed to defendants at the request of those persons and defendants are allowed to inspect it or are given copies of them unless that is not practicable or desirable.

(2) The code or codes may include provision that —

(a) specified police officers are to carry out specified activities, including ensuring the carrying out by other persons (whether or not police officers) of the specified activities;

(b) duties are to be discharged by different people in succession in specified circumstances (as where a person dies or retires);

(c) specified persons are given written statements that specified activities have been carried out.

(3) The code or codes may include provision about the form in which information is to be recorded.

(4) The code or codes may include provision about the manner in which and the period for which —

(a) a record of information is to be retained; and

(b) any other material is to be retained, and if a person is charged with an offence the period may extend beyond a conviction or an acquittal.

(5) The code or codes may provide that if the person required to reveal material has possession of material which the person believes is sensitive, he or she must give a document which —

(a) indicates the nature of that material; and

(b) states that the person so believes.

(6) The code or codes may provide that if the person required to reveal material has possession of material which is of a specified description and which the person does not believe is sensitive, he or she must give a document which —

- (a) indicates the nature of that material; and
- (b) states that the person does not so believe.

(7) The code or codes may provide that if —

- (a) a document is given pursuant to a provision contained in a code by virtue of this section; and
- (b) a person identified in a specified way asks for any of the material, the person giving the document must give a copy of the material asked for to the person asking for it or allow the person to inspect it.

(8) The code or codes may provide that if a person is entitled to material of a specified description, the person who has the document must give a copy of the material to that person or allow the person to inspect it.

(9) The code or codes may provide that if the person required to reveal material has possession of material which is of such a sensitive nature that it should not be copied or shown to a person who would otherwise be entitled to receive it, the person must notify a specified person and allow that person to inspect the material.

(10) For the purposes of this section material is sensitive to the extent that its disclosure under this Part would be contrary to the public interest.

(11) The ‘Disclosure Code’ in Schedule 3 has effect as a code of practice under this section.
[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. ss.25 and 26; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 ss.23 and 24]

121. Code of practice on police interviews of witnesses notified by defendant

(1) There is to be a code of practice which gives guidance to police officers, and other persons charged with the duty of investigating offences, in relation to arranging and conducting interviews of persons —

- (a) particulars of whom are given in a defence statement in accordance with section 219(2); or
- (b) who are included as proposed witnesses in a notice given under section 221.

(2) The code must include (in particular) guidance in relation to —

- (a) information that should be provided to the interviewee and the defendant in relation to such an interview;
- (b) the notification of the defendant’s legal practitioner of such an interview;

- (c) the attendance of the interviewee's legal practitioner at such an interview;
- (d) the attendance of the defendant's legal practitioner at such an interview;
- (e) the attendance of any other appropriate person at such an interview, taking into account the interviewee's age or any disability of the interviewee.

(3) Any police officer or other person charged with the duty of investigating offences who arranges or conducts such an interview must have regard to the code.

(4) The 'Defence Witnesses Code' in Schedule 3 has effect as a code of practice under this section.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.21A added by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

122. Amendment of codes of practice

(1) The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order amend or replace or add to any of the codes of practice set out in Schedule 3, but only in a manner consistent with the requirements for such codes set out in this Part.

(2) An order under subsection (1) may amend a code of practice so that it has effect only for a specified period, or in relation to specified offences or descriptions of offences.

(3) An order made under subsection (1) must be laid before the Legislative Assembly and if the Assembly has not passed a motion disapproving the code within 30 days of the order being so laid, it will be deemed to be approved by the Legislative Assembly.

(4) Before laying an order before the Legislative Assembly, the Governor —

- (a) must publish it in the form of a draft;
- (b) must consider any representations made about the draft; and
- (c) may modify the draft accordingly.

(5) If not disapproved by the Legislative Assembly as provided in subsection (3), an order amending a code —

- (a) must be published in the Gazette;
- (b) does not come into operation until the Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, by further order so provides.

(6) An order bringing an amendment of a code into operation may include transitional or saving provisions.

(7) A code may be amended so as to —

(a) apply only in relation to one or more specified areas of the Falkland Islands;

(b) have effect only for a specified period;

(c) apply only in relation to specified offences or descriptions of offender.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.27; UK PACE Act 1984 s.67; Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s. 25]

123. Effect and status of codes of practice

(1) In all criminal and civil proceedings —

(a) a code of practice set out in Schedule 3 or amended under section 122 is admissible in evidence;

(b) if any provision of a code appears to the court or tribunal conducting the proceedings to be relevant to any question arising in the proceedings, it is to be taken into account in deciding that question.

(2) Persons other than police officers who have a duty to investigate offences or charge offenders must in the discharge of that duty have regard to any relevant provision of a code of practice that would apply if the investigation were conducted by police officers.

(3) A failure —

(a) by a police officer to comply with any provision of a code of practice; or

(b) by any person to comply with a provision of a code as mentioned in section 120; or

(c) by any person to whom a code of practice applies to have regard to any provision of the code, does not invalidate any action taken by the police officer or other person or in itself render the officer or other person liable to any criminal or civil proceedings.

(4) If it appears to a court or tribunal conducting criminal or civil proceedings that —

(a) any provision of a code of practice set out in Schedule 3 or amended under section 122;
or

(b) any failure mentioned in subsection (3),

is relevant to any question arising in the proceedings, the provision or failure may be taken into account in deciding the question.

(5) A police officer is liable to disciplinary proceedings for a failure to comply with any provision of a code of practice.

(6) Any Code of Practice purporting to have been issued under the Criminal Justice Ordinance 1989 and the Code of Practice set out in the Code of Practice in Relation to Disclosure Order 2003 cease to have effect upon the commencement of this Part.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.28; UK PACE Act 1984 s.67; Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s. 26]

124. Publication of Codes of Practice

(1) Without affecting any other requirement about publication of written laws, every Code of Practice, and any amendment of a Code of Practice, must be —

(a) published on one or more official websites of the Government; and

(b) available for reading by members of the public in such civic locations as the Governor directs by order or, in the absence of such direction, as the Chief Police Officer considers appropriate.

(2) Every Code of Practice must be available for reading by persons arrested and members of the public, at —

(a) every police station; and

(b) every place designated as a place of lawful custody, for as long as the place is so designated.

CHAPTER 3 – CAUTIONING

PART 8 – SIMPLE AND CONDITIONAL CAUTIONS

125. Interpretation

In this Part —

“caution” means —

(a) a simple or conditional caution given under this Part;

(b) anything corresponding to a simple or conditional caution, given to a person in respect of an offence under the law of a country outside the Falkland Islands;

“conditional caution” means a caution which is given in respect of an offence committed by the offender and which has conditions attached to it with which the offender must comply, in accordance with this Part;

“simple caution” means a caution given in accordance with section 127;

“police detention” has the same meaning as in Part 5.

126. Cautions generally

(1) For purposes of this Part, a caution is a form of disposal of a case without a prosecution when a person arrested for or suspected of an offence admits the offence. It may be either a simple caution or a conditional caution.

(2) A caution may be given —

- (a) to an individual;
- (b) by a police officer in uniform;
- (c) in respect of an offence triable summarily.

(3) A caution may only be given if —

- (a) there is —
 - (i) evidence that the offender has committed an offence; and
 - (ii) a realistic prospect of a conviction on the evidence;
- (b) there has been a clear and reliable admission of the offence by the offender; and
- (c) the offender agrees to accept a caution.

(4) The decision on whether to administer a caution, and whether it should be a simple caution or a conditional caution —

- (a) is for the Attorney General, or a representative of the Attorney General to make;
- (b) must be based on a report of the circumstances of the arrest of the person made as soon as practicable after the arrest by the arresting officer; and
- (c) must be communicated to the custody officer at the place of lawful custody to which the arrested person is taken.

(5) Even if the conditions in subsection (3) are satisfied, the Attorney General may in any particular case decide not to authorise a caution if he or she considers that it is in the public interest to prosecute the offender or not to proceed with the case rather than to authorise a caution.

(6) A signed caution, whether a simple or conditional caution —

- (a) becomes part of the police records in respect of the person who signed it; and
- (b) may be produced in any proceedings as rebuttable evidence of its contents until spent.

(7) This Part does not affect the operation of sections 639 to 645 as to disregarding of cautions for certain offences.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.22 and 23 (part) adapted]

Simple cautions

127. Simple cautions

(1) A simple caution may be given to an adult or youth and is a warning that the criminal conduct will be recorded for possible reference in future criminal proceedings or relevant security checks.

(2) A simple caution may be given in a case in which attaching conditions to a caution would not be appropriate, such as (but not limited to) a case in which the offender is about to leave the Falkland Islands.

(3) A person to whom a simple caution is given must be asked to sign a form which sets out details of the offence and which makes clear the implications of accepting a caution.

Conditional cautions

128. Conditional cautions

(1) The Attorney General may authorise a police officer to give a conditional caution to a person aged 10 or over (“the offender”) if the Attorney General is satisfied of each of the matters set out in section 126(3) and (4) as justifying the giving of a caution, and that it is appropriate to attach conditions to a caution.

(2) In addition to being satisfied as required by subsection (1), the Attorney General must, before deciding whether to authorise a conditional caution of an offence in the case of a youth, take into consideration a report from the probation officer on the offender and his or her personal circumstances

(3) Before a conditional caution is given to a person, a police officer or the probation officer must explain to the person the effect of the conditional caution and warns the person that failure to comply with any of the conditions attached to the caution may result in the person being prosecuted for the offence.

(4) If the offender is under 18, the warning must be given in the presence of the person’s parent or guardian or an appropriate adult.

(5) When a conditional caution is given to a person, the person must sign a document (the ‘notice of caution’) which contains —

(a) details of the offence;

(b) an admission by the person that the person committed the offence;

- (c) the person's consent to being given the conditional caution;
- (d) the conditions attached to the caution.

(6) The notice of caution must also specify a date by which any conditions must be complied with, being a date —

(a) determined by the prosecutor; and

(b) not later than 6 months after the date of the notice.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.22 and 23 (part) adapted]

129. Attaching of conditions

(1) The conditions to be attached to a conditional caution in any particular case are to be decided by the Attorney General, after consultation with the probation officer and the Chief Police Officer (or his or her representative appointed for the particular case.)

(2) If the offender is a youth, the probation officer must, if practicable, consult the parent or guardian of the youth before advising the Attorney General on the conditions to be imposed.

(3) The conditions which may be attached to a conditional caution may not be conditions intended to punish the offender, but may only be conditions that have as their object —

(a) facilitating the rehabilitation of the offender; or

(b) ensuring that the offender makes reparation for the offence, or both. They must be appropriate, proportionate and achievable.

(4) The conditions which may be attached include (but are not limited to) —

(a) a condition that the offender attend at a place and at times specified in the caution for purposes of rehabilitation under the guidance of the probation officer;

(b) a condition that the offender make physical reparation either to the victim of the offence or to the community generally;

(c) (subject to section 130) a condition that the offender pay financial reparation.

(5) A condition attached by virtue of subsection (4)(a) may not require the offender to attend a specified place for more than 20 hours in total.

(6) A condition attached by virtue of subsection (4)(b) may include unpaid labour to the extent that this is required to make reparation to the victim or the community, such as (but not limited to) work to repair damaged property.

(7) Any conditions attached to a conditional caution must be complied with by the date specified in the notice of caution under section 128(6).

130. Financial reparation

(1) A condition that the offender pay financial reparation must be limited to meeting the quantified cost of any proven damage or loss occasioned by the offence.

(2) The amount of financial reparation that may be included as a condition in respect of any offence must not exceed a sum equal to a fine at level 1 on the standard scale.

(3) If a financial reparation condition is attached to a conditional caution, the caution must also specify —

(a) the amount of the reparation;

(b) the person to whom the reparation is to be paid;

(c) how and when it is to be paid.

(4) To comply with the condition, the offender must pay the penalty in accordance with the matters specified under subsection (3).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.23A adapted]

131. Variation of conditions

The Attorney General, with the consent of the offender, and after consultation as mentioned in section 129(1) and (2), may vary the conditions attached to a conditional caution by —

(a) modifying or omitting any of the conditions;

(b) adding a condition.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.23B adapted]

132. Failure to comply with conditions

(1) If an offender who has been given a conditional caution fails, without reasonable excuse, to comply with any of the conditions attached to the caution, criminal proceedings may be commenced against the person for the offence in question, as provided in subsection (2).

(2) In the circumstances mentioned in subsection (1), prosecution must follow, unless the Attorney General or a representative of the Attorney General, after consulting the probation officer, is satisfied that there is good reason for non-compliance.

(3) The document mentioned in section 128(5) is admissible in such proceedings.

(4) If such proceedings are commenced, the conditional caution ceases to have effect.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.24]

133. Consequences of failure to comply

(1) If the Attorney General directs a prosecution under section 132(1), a police officer may arrest the offender without warrant.

(2) A person arrested under this section must be —

(a) charged with the offence in question;

(b) released without charge and on bail to enable a decision to be made as to whether the person should be charged with the offence; or

(c) released without charge and without bail (with or without any variation in the conditions attached to the caution).

(3) Subsection (2) also applies in the case of —

(a) a person who, having been released on bail under subsection (2)(b), returns to a place of lawful custody to answer bail or is otherwise in police detention at a place of lawful custody;

(b) a person who, having been released on bail under section 51 (Bail elsewhere than at a place of lawful custody) as modified by section 134, attends at a place of lawful custody to answer bail or is otherwise in police detention at a place of lawful custody;

(c) a person who is arrested under section 56 (Arrest for failure to answer to police bail).

(4) If a person is released under subsection (2)(b), the custody officer must inform the person that he or she is being released to enable a decision to be made as to whether the person should be charged with the offence in question.

(5) A person arrested under this section, or any other person in whose case subsection (1) applies, may be kept in police detention —

(a) to enable the person to be dealt with in accordance with that subsection; or

(b) if applicable, to enable the power under section 64(1) (power of custody officer to vary time for answering to police bail), to be exercised.

If the person is not in a fit state to be so dealt with, or for that power to be exercised, the person may be kept in police detention until he or she is in a fit state.

(6) The power under subsection (5)(a) includes power to keep the person in police detention if it is necessary to do so for the purpose of investigating whether the person has failed, without reasonable excuse, to comply with any of the conditions attached to the conditional caution.

(7) Subsection (2) must be complied with as soon as practicable after the person arrested arrives at a place of lawful custody or, in the case of a person arrested at a place of lawful custody, as soon as practicable after the arrest.

(8) Subsection (2) does not require a person who —

(a) falls within subsection (3)(a) or (b); and

(b) is in police detention in relation to a matter other than the conditional caution, to be released if the person is liable to be kept in detention in relation to that other matter.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.24A ins. By Police & Justice Act 2006]

134. Application of other provisions of this Ordinance

(1) If a person is arrested under section 133 for failure to comply with the conditions attached to a conditional caution, the provisions of this Ordinance relating to the powers of police officers on and after making an arrest and the treatment of arrested persons apply, with the modifications mentioned in the following subsections and any other necessary modifications.

(2) The modifications are —

(a) in section 50(1)(a) and (b) by adding after the words “for an offence” the words “, or for failure to comply with the conditions of a conditional caution”;

(b) in section 65(2)(a)(iii) and (v), after “arrested for” insert “failure to comply with conditions attached to a conditional caution given in respect of”;

(c) in section 66(2) and (3), for references to an offence substitute references to a failure to comply with conditions attached to a conditional caution.

(3) Section 67 (Review of police detention) applies to a person in police detention by virtue of section 131 as it applies to a person in police detention in connection with the investigation of an offence, but with the following modifications —

(a) omit subsection (7);

(b) delete subsection (8) and substitute —

“(8) If a person who has been arrested for failure to comply with the conditions of a conditional caution is not in a fit state to be dealt with under section 46(1) to(6), the person may be kept in police detention until he or she is in a fit state.”

(4) The following provisions of this Ordinance apply to a person released on bail under section 133(3)(b) as they apply to a person released on bail under section 61(7) —

(a) section 64(1) to (3) (power of custody officer to appoint a different or additional time for answering to police bail);

(b) section 75 (Power of arrest for failure to answer to police bail);

(c) section 76 (Bail after arrest).

135. Guidelines

(1) The Governor, after consulting the Attorney General and the Chief Police Officer, must prepare and publish guidelines in relation to conditional cautions.

(2) Without limiting subsection (1), the guidelines may include provision, consistent with this Part, as to —

(a) the circumstances in which conditional cautions may be given;

(b) consultation as appropriate with the victim or victims of the offence in question;

(c) the procedure to be followed in connection with the giving of such cautions;

(d) the conditions which may be attached to such cautions;

(e) the category of police officer by whom such cautions may be given;

(f) the form that such cautions are to take and the manner in which they are to be given and recorded;

(g) the places where such cautions may be given;

(h) the monitoring of compliance with conditions attached to such cautions.

(i) the exercise of the power of arrest conferred by section 133(2);

(j) who is to decide how a person should be dealt with under section 133(3);

(k) the circumstances in which a caution may be given more than once to the same person.

(3) Guidelines prepared under this section come into force when included in an order made by the Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, and may be amended in the same manner.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.25 modified]

Spent cautions

136. Spent cautions

(1) For the purposes of this Part a caution becomes spent —

- (a) in the case of a simple caution - when the caution is given;
- (b) in the case of a conditional caution - 3 months after the caution was given, unless subsection (2) applies.

(2) If the person concerned is subsequently prosecuted and convicted of the offence in respect of which a conditional caution was given —

- (a) the caution becomes spent at the end of the rehabilitation period for the offence, as specified in Schedule 10; and
- (b) if the conviction occurs after the end of the period of 3 months, the caution is to be treated for the purposes of this Part as not having become spent in relation to any period before the end of the rehabilitation period for the offence as so specified.

(3) A person who is given a caution for an offence must, from the time the caution is spent, be treated for all purposes in law as a person who has not committed, been charged with or prosecuted for, or been given a caution for the offence; and —

- (a) no evidence is admissible in any proceedings before a judicial authority in the Falkland Islands to prove that any such person has committed, been charged with or prosecuted for, or been given a caution for the offence; and
- (b) a person must not, in any such proceedings, be asked and, if asked, must not be required to answer, any question relating to his or her past which cannot be answered without acknowledging or referring to a spent caution.

(4) If a question seeking information with respect to a person's previous cautions, offences, conduct or circumstances is put to that person or to any other person otherwise than in proceedings before a judicial authority —

- (a) the question must be treated as not relating to spent cautions, and the answer may be framed accordingly; and
- (b) the person questioned must not be subjected to any liability or otherwise prejudiced in law by reason of any failure to acknowledge or disclose a spent caution in answer to the question.

(5) Any obligation imposed on any person by any rule of law or by the provisions of any agreement or arrangement to disclose any matters to any other person does not extend to requiring the person to disclose a spent caution (whether of that person or another person.)

(6) A caution which has become spent, or any failure to disclose such a caution, is not a proper ground for dismissing or excluding a person from any office, profession, occupation or employment, or for prejudicing the person in any way in any occupation or employment.

(7) The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order —

(a) exclude or modify the application of either or both of paragraphs (a) and (b) of subsection (4) in relation to questions put in specified circumstances;

(b) provide for exceptions from subsections (5) and (6) in specified cases or classes of case, and in relation to cautions of a specified description.

(8) Subsection (3) does not affect —

(a) the operation of the caution in question;

(b) the operation of any enactment by virtue of which, in consequence of any caution, a person is subject to any disqualification, disability, prohibition or other restriction or effect after the caution becomes spent;

(c) section 637 with regard to court proceedings; or

(d) section 638 with regard to including of spent cautions in character reports;

(e) section 372 with regard to evidence of bad character.

[UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.8A ins. by CJI Act 2008 s.49 and Schedule 10 (part adapted)]

137. Unauthorised disclosure of spent cautions

(1) In this section —

(a) “official record” means a record which —

(i) contains caution information; and

(ii) is kept for the purposes of its functions by any court, police force, Government department or other public authority in the Falkland Islands;

(b) “caution information” means information imputing that a named or otherwise identifiable living person (“the named person”) has committed, been charged with or prosecuted or cautioned for any offence which is the subject of a spent caution; and

(c) “relevant person” means any person who, in the course of his or her official duties has or at any time has had custody of or access to any official record or the information contained in it.

(2) Subject to an order under subsection (5), a relevant person commits an offence if, knowing or having reasonable cause to suspect that any caution information he or she has obtained in the course of official duties is caution information, the person discloses it, otherwise than in the course of those duties, to another person.

Penalty: A fine at level 4 on the standard scale.

(3) In any proceedings for an offence under subsection (2) it is a defence to show that the disclosure was made —

(a) to the named person or to another person at the express request of the named person;

(b) to a person whom the defendant reasonably believed to be the named person or to another person at the express request of a person whom the defendant reasonably believed to be the named person.

(4) A person who obtains any caution information from any official record by means of fraud, dishonesty or a bribe commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 6 months or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both.

(5) The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order make provision for excepting the disclosure of caution information derived from an official record from the provisions of subsection (2) in specified cases or classes of case.

(6) Proceedings for an offence under subsection (2) or (4) may not be commenced except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney General.

[UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.9A ins. by CJI Act 2008 s.49 and Schedule 10 (part) adapted]

CHAPTER 4 – BAIL

PART 9 – BAIL IN CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS

138. Interpretation and application of Part

(1) In this Part “bail in criminal proceedings” means —

(a) bail granted in or in connection with proceedings for an offence to a person who is accused or convicted of the offence; or

(b) bail granted in connection with an offence to a person who is under arrest for the offence or for whose arrest for the offence a warrant (endorsed for bail) has been issued, whether under an enactment or at common law.

(2) In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires —

“answer to bail” means to attend a specified place of lawful custody or a specified court at the time and place specified in the grant of bail;

“conviction” includes —

- (a) a finding that a person is not guilty by reason of mental disorder;
- (b) a finding under section 764 that the person in question did the act or made the omission charged; and
- (c) a conviction of an offence for which an order is made discharging him or her absolutely or conditionally, and “convicted” is to be construed accordingly;

“court officer” means the appropriate officer of the court;

“judicial authority” means a judge, the Senior Magistrate, or 2 justices of the peace sitting together;

“offence” includes an alleged offence;

“security” means an asset other than cash which is promised by a person who is granted bail, or by the person’s surety, and which will be forfeited if the person fails to answer to bail or breaches any condition of bail, and giving of security means promising the asset;

“serious crime” means —

- (a) treason, murder, or rape;
- (b) attempted murder, manslaughter or attempted rape;
- (c) conspiracy to commit treason, murder or rape;
- (d) encouraging, or aiding and abetting, any of those offences;

“surety” means a person who provides a recognisance or security for a person who is granted bail that will be forfeited if the person fails to answer to bail;

“surrender to custody” means, in relation to a person released on bail, surrendering into the custody of the court or of the police officer (according to the conditions of the grant of bail) at the time and place for the time being appointed for the person to do so;

“vary”, in relation to bail, means imposing further conditions after bail is granted, or varying or rescinding conditions.

(3) In this Part —

(a) a “recognisance” means an undertaking given by a person who is granted bail, or by a surety of such a person, to pay a cash sum if the person fails to answer to bail or breaches any condition of bail;

(b) a recognisance is “entered” when a signed undertaking is given by the person to pay the recognisance when called on to do so;

(c) a recognisance is “taken” by a police officer or appropriate officer of the court accepting a signed undertaking by a person to pay a recognisance when called on to do so;

(d) if the time for answering to bail is deferred, the recognisance may be “enlarged” (i.e. varied) accordingly.

(4) In reckoning for the purposes of this Part any period of days or hours, Saturdays, Sundays and public holidays are to be excluded.

(5) Unless otherwise expressly stated, this Part, including provisions as to conditions that may be imposed when bail is granted, applies to bail granted by a police officer at a place of lawful custody as it applies to bail granted by a court. Bail granted by a police officer elsewhere than at a place of lawful custody is governed by section 51.

(6) This Part applies —

(a) whether the offence was committed in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere; and

(b) whether it is an offence under the law of the Falkland Islands, or of some other country or territory.

(7) This Part does not apply to bail —

(a) in or in connection with proceedings outside the Falkland Islands; or

(b) granted before the coming into force of this Part.

[Criminal Justice Ord. ss.139 and 140; UK Bail Act 1976 ss.1 and 2 & Schedule am. by Coroners & Justice Act 2009]

Principles for bail decisions

139. General provisions

(1) A person granted bail in criminal proceedings is under a duty to surrender to custody, and that duty is enforceable in accordance with section 157 and 158.

(2) The decision whether to grant bail in criminal proceedings or to remand or commit a person in custody, and if bail is granted, whether it should be unconditional or with conditions, must be made in accordance with this Part.

(3) No recognisance for the surrender to custody of a person granted bail may be taken from the person.

(4) A person granted bail may be required, before release on bail, to provide a surety or sureties, or to give security, to secure his or her surrender to custody.

(5) If security is required under subsection (4), it may be given by the person or on his or her behalf.

(6) If there is no judge present in the Falkland Islands when a bail decision falls to be made by the Supreme Court or by a judge —

(a) the application for the decision may be made in writing by or on behalf of the party making the application, with a copy to the other party;

(b) the decision may be made by a judge on a reading of the relevant documents, including any written submission by or on behalf of the Attorney General and by or on behalf of the defendant;

(c) the decision must be communicated in writing to the parties and to the Registrar and to the Chief Police Officer.

(7) Subsection (6) applies with necessary modifications to bail decisions that fall to be made by the Court of Appeal.

140. Remand in custody or on bail

(1) If a court has power to remand any person, then, subject to any enactment modifying that power, the court may —

(a) remand the person in custody to be brought before the court at the end of the period of remand or at any earlier time the court may require; or

(b) remand the person on bail, with or without security, conditioned as provided in subsection (3).

(2) If the Summary Court commits a person to the Magistrate's Court for sentence, or if either the Summary Court or Magistrate's Court sends a person to the Supreme Court for trial, the Summary Court or Magistrate's Court may commit or send the person on bail, conditioned as provided in subsection (3).

(3) A person's bail may be conditioned —

(a) for the person's appearance before the Supreme Court, either for trial or for directions, at the end of the period of remand; or

(b) for the person's appearance at every time and place to which during the course of the proceedings the hearing is from time to time adjourned.

(4) If the bail is conditioned as provided in subsection (3)(b), the fixing at any time of the time for the next appearance is deemed to be a remand, but nothing in this subsection deprives the court of power at any subsequent hearing to remand a person afresh.

(5) If a court is satisfied that any person who has been remanded is unable by reason of illness or accident to appear or be brought before the court at the expiration of the period for which the person was remanded, the court may, in the person's absence, remand the person for a further period.

(6) The power of the court under subsection (5) to remand a person on bail for a further time may be exercised by varying the conditions of bail and enlarging the recognisance of the person's sureties, if any, to a later time.

(7) If a person remanded on bail is bound to appear before a court at any time, and the court has no power to further remand the person under subsection (5), the court may in the person's absence appoint a later time as the time at which the person is to appear and may enlarge the recognisances of any sureties for the person to that time.

[UK Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 ss.128 and 129 adapted]

141. Right to bail

(1) A person to whom this section applies must be granted bail except as provided in this Part.

(2) This section applies to a person who is accused of an offence when the person —

(a) appears or is brought before a court in the course of or in connection with proceedings for the offence; or

(b) applies to a court for bail or for a variation of the conditions of bail in connection with the proceedings.

(3) Subsection (2) does not apply in relation to —

(a) proceedings on or after a person's conviction of the offence; or

(b) proceedings against a person whose extradition or rendition to a country or territory outside the Falkland Islands is sought by the judicial authorities of that country.

(4) This section also applies to a person who —

(a) having been convicted of an offence, appears or is brought before a court to be dealt with for breach of a community sentence; or

(b) has been convicted of an offence and whose case is adjourned by the court for the purpose of enabling inquiries or a report to be made to assist the court in dealing with the person for the offence.

(5) This section is subject to sections 161 and 162.

(6) In taking any decision required by this Part, the court must have regard, among other considerations, and so far as is relevant, to any misuse by the defendant of controlled drugs, and for the purpose of this section “misuse” has the same meaning as in the Misuse of Drugs Ordinance.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.143; UK Bail Act 1976 s.4]

142. Reasons for not granting bail

(1) Section 141 does not require the court to remand or commit a person on bail if the person fails to provide sufficient and satisfactory sureties if required to do so.

(2) The defendant need not be granted bail if the court is satisfied that there are substantial grounds for believing that the defendant, if released on bail (whether subject to conditions or not) would —

(a) fail to surrender to custody;

(b) commit an offence while on bail; or

(c) interfere with witnesses or otherwise obstruct the course of justice, whether in relation to himself or herself or any other person.

(3) Without limiting subsection (2)(a), the defendant need not be granted bail if —

(a) it appears to the court that, having been previously granted bail in criminal proceedings, he or she has failed to surrender to custody in accordance with his or her obligations under the grant of bail; and

(b) the court believes, in view of that failure, that the defendant, if released on bail (whether subject to conditions or not) would fail to surrender to custody.

(4) Without limiting subsection (2), the defendant need not be granted bail if —

(a) if the court is satisfied that the defendant should be kept in custody for his or her own protection or, if the person is a youth, for his or her own welfare;

(b) the defendant is in custody pursuant to the sentence of a court;

(c) the court is satisfied that it has not been practicable to obtain sufficient information for the purpose of taking the decisions required by this Part because of lack of time since the institution of the proceedings against the defendant;

(d) the defendant, having been released on bail in or in connection with the proceedings for the offence, has been arrested pursuant to section 158;

(e) the act or any of the acts constituting the offence with which the person is charged consisted of an assault on or threat of violence to another person, or of having or possessing a firearm, an imitation firearm, an explosive or an offensive weapon, or of indecent conduct with or toward a person under the age of 16.

(5) If the case is adjourned for inquiries or a report, the defendant need not be granted bail if it appears to the court that it would be impracticable to complete the inquiries or make the report without keeping the defendant in custody.

[UK Bail Act 1976 s.4 & Schedule]

143. Conditions of bail

(1) A person granted bail may be required to comply, before release on bail or later, with any conditions that the court considers necessary to ensure that the person —

(a) surrenders to custody;

(b) does not commit an offence while on bail;

(c) does not interfere with witnesses or otherwise obstruct the course of justice whether in relation to himself or herself or any other person; and

(d) makes himself or herself available for the purpose of enabling inquiries or a report to be made to assist the court in dealing with the person for the offence.

(2) If a person is remanded or released on bail by a court, it may be made a condition of bail that the person's passport or other travel document is to be deposited with the court until the conclusion of the proceedings against the person, unless sooner required by the person for emergency reasons.

(3) Other conditions that may be imposed include, but are not limited to —

(a) requiring the person to live at a specified place, or to live away from a specified place;

(b) requiring the provision of sureties or the giving of a security;

(c) imposing a curfew condition;

(d) directing that the person not have contact with another specified person;

(e) directing that the person not enter specified premises.

(4) A court or a police officer of the rank of sergeant or above may require a person as a condition of bail to comply with a requirement imposed in accordance with section 144 for the purpose of securing the electronic monitoring of the person's compliance with any other requirement imposed on the person as a condition of bail.

(5) If a court when granting, or directing the granting of, bail to any person imposes a condition under subsection (1) or (2), it may not require the person to find sureties in respect of that condition.

(6) Subsection (1) applies on any application to the court to vary the conditions of bail or to impose conditions in respect of bail which has been granted unconditionally.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.141(part) modified; UK Bail Act 1976 ss.3(6) and 3(6ZAA) and Schedule adapted]

144. Electronic monitoring of compliance

(1) A court or police officer must not impose on a person a requirement under section 143(4) (an "electronic monitoring requirement") unless each of the following conditions is satisfied.

(2) The first condition is that the person has attained the age of 12 years.

(3) The second condition is that the person —

(a) is charged with or has been convicted of a violent or sexual offence, or an offence punishable in the case of an adult with imprisonment for a term of 14 years or more; or

(b) is charged with or has been convicted of one or more imprisonable offences which, together with any other imprisonable offences of which the person has been convicted in any proceedings —

(i) amount; or

(ii) would, if the person were convicted of the offences with which he or she is charged, amount, to a recent history of repeatedly committing imprisonable offences while remanded on bail.

(4) The third condition is that the court is satisfied that the requisite equipment is available in the Falkland Islands at the date of the imposing of the requirement.

(5) The fourth condition is that in the case of a youth the probation officer has informed the court that in his or her opinion the imposition of such a requirement will be suitable in the case of that youth.

(6) If a court imposes an electronic monitoring requirement, the requirement must include provision for making the Chief Police Officer, the probation officer or some other public officer responsible for the monitoring in any particular case.

[UK Bail Act 1976 s.3AA]

145. Basis for bail decisions

(1) In taking a decision required by section 142 or 143, the court must have regard to any of the following considerations that appear to it to be relevant —

- (a) the nature and seriousness of the offence or default (and the probable method of dealing with the defendant for it);
- (b) the character, antecedents, associations and community ties of the defendant;
- (c) the defendant's record as respects the fulfilment of his or her obligations under previous grants of bail in criminal proceedings;
- (d) except in the case of a defendant whose case is adjourned for inquiries or a report, the strength of the evidence of his or her having committed the offence or having defaulted, as well as to any other considerations which appear to the court to be relevant.

(2) If the court is considering remanding the defendant in custody for more than 8 clear days, under powers conferred by Part 16 (Summary Procedure), it must have regard to the total length of time which the defendant would spend in custody if it were to exercise the power to refuse bail.

(3) In taking any decision required by section 142 or 143, the court must have regard, among other considerations, and so far as is relevant, to any misuse by the defendant of controlled drugs, and for the purpose of this section "misuse" has the same meaning as in the Misuse of Drugs Ordinance.

[UK Bail Act 1976 Schedule simplified]

146. Record of reasons for bail decisions

(1) Subsection (2) applies if —

- (a) a court or police officer grants bail in criminal proceedings;
- (b) a court refuses bail in criminal proceedings from a person pursuant to section 142;
- (c) a court, court officer or police officer appoints a time or place, or a court or court officer appoints a different time or place for a person granted bail in criminal proceedings to surrender to custody; or
- (d) a court or police officer varies any conditions of bail or imposes conditions in respect of bail in criminal proceedings.

(2) If this subsection applies, the court, court officer or police officer must —

(a) make a written record of the decision;

(b) give the person to whom the decision relates (or, if the person is legally represented, the person's legal practitioner) a copy of the record of the decision as soon as practicable after the record is made.

(3) If bail in criminal proceedings is granted by endorsing a warrant of arrest for bail, the police officer who releases on bail the person arrested must make the record required by subsection (2).

(4) If a court grants bail in criminal proceedings to a person to whom section 142 applies after hearing representations from the prosecutor in favour of refusing bail, the court must give reasons for granting bail.

(5) A court on giving reasons for a decision pursuant to subsection (4) must include a note of the reasons in the record of its decision and must give to the defendant or to the defendant's legal practitioner and to the prosecutor a copy of the record of the decision as soon as practicable after the record is made.

(6) If a court, pursuant to sections 142 and 143 —

(a) refuses bail in criminal proceedings;

(b) imposes conditions in granting bail in criminal proceedings; or

(c) varies any conditions of bail or imposes conditions in respect of bail in criminal proceedings, the court must, with a view to enabling the person to consider making an application in the matter to another court, give reasons for the decision.

(7) A court on giving reasons for a decision as required by subsection (6) must include a note of the reasons in the record of its decision and must give a copy of the note to the person in relation to whom the decision was taken, or to the person's legal practitioner, if any, and to the prosecutor.

(8) Without affecting subsection (7), if the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court remands a person in custody under any powers in that behalf after hearing full argument on an application for bail from the person, and the court —

(a) has not previously heard such argument on an application for bail from the person in those proceedings; or

(b) has previously heard full argument from the person on such an application but is satisfied that there has been a change in the person's circumstances or that new considerations have been placed before the court, the court must issue a certificate that it heard full argument on the application for bail before it refused the application, and give a copy to the person to whom it refuses bail, or to the person's legal practitioner, if any, and to the prosecutor.

(9) If a court issues a certificate under subsection (8) in a case to which paragraph (b) of that subsection applies, it must state in the certificate the nature of the change of circumstances or the new considerations which caused it to hear a further fully argued bail application.

(10) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court refuses bail in criminal proceedings from a person who is not represented by a legal practitioner the court must inform the person of the right to apply to the Supreme Court to be granted bail.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.144 (part); UK Bail Act 1976 s.5 (part)]

147. Bail when youth charged

(1) If a youth is charged before a court with an offence then, if the court adjourns the trial and remands the youth, it may remand the youth on bail, with or without sureties, on conditions that will, in the opinion of the court, secure the attendance of the youth upon the hearing of the charge.

(2) The court must release a youth on bail unless —

(a) the charge is for an offence of treason, murder or some other serious crime (in which case section 161 or 162 applies);

(b) it is necessary in the interest of the youth to remove him or her from association with persons with recorded convictions for such an offence; or

(c) the court has reason to believe that releasing the youth would defeat the ends of justice, whether by reference to the matters set out in section 143(1) or otherwise.

(3) If a parent or guardian of a youth consents to be surety for the youth for the purposes of this section, the parent or guardian may be required to ensure that the youth complies with any condition of bail imposed on him or her by virtue of section 143(1) but —

(a) no condition may be imposed on the parent or guardian of a youth by virtue of this subsection if it appears that the youth will attain the age of 18 before the time to be appointed for the youth to surrender to custody; and

(b) the parent or guardian must not be required to ensure compliance with any condition to which his or her consent does not extend.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.141(1) to (7); UK Bail Act s.3(7)]

Variation of bail, etc.

148. Variation of police bail

(1) If a person has been granted bail at a place of lawful custody under Part 5 (Police Detention) to appear before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, the court before which the person is to appear may —

- (a) appoint a later time as the time at which the person is to appear;
- (b) enlarge the recognisances of any surety for the person to that time;
- (c) vary the conditions of bail, and in doing so may impose more onerous conditions.

(2) If a police officer has granted bail in connection with any offence, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, on an application by or on behalf of the Attorney General for the decision to be reconsidered, may —

- (a) refuse bail;
- (b) vary the conditions of bail; or
- (c) impose conditions in respect of bail which has been granted unconditionally.

(3) If a police officer has refused bail in connection with any offence, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may, on an application by the defendant for the decision to be reconsidered, grant bail on any terms on which the police officer could have granted bail.

(4) There is no right to a further review by a court after a review under subsection (2) or (3) unless circumstances have changed since the previous review, or the person has still not been charged 28 days after the previous review.

(5) This section does not apply to bail granted by a police officer elsewhere than at a place of lawful custody (as to which see sections 50 to 53).

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.141(8); UK Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 ss.43 and 43B modified]

149. Variation of court bail

(1) If a court decides at a hearing not to grant the defendant bail, the court must consider, at each subsequent hearing, whether the defendant ought to be granted bail.

(2) If a court has granted bail in criminal proceedings, the court may, on application by or on behalf of the Attorney General for the decision to be reconsidered, refuse bail.

(3) If a court has refused bail in connection with any offence, the court may, on an application by the defendant for the decision to be reconsidered, grant bail on any terms on which the court could originally have granted bail.

(4) If a court has granted bail in criminal proceedings, the court may on application —

(a) by or on behalf of the person to whom bail was granted; or

(b) by or on behalf of the Attorney General, for the decision to be reconsidered, vary the conditions of bail or impose conditions in respect of bail which has been granted unconditionally.

(5) No application for the reconsideration of a decision under this section may be made unless it is based on information which was not available to the court when the decision was taken.

(6) If the Summary Court commits a person to the Magistrate's Court for sentence, the Magistrate's Court may grant bail, if the committal was in custody, or may vary the conditions of bail as provided by subsection (4), if the committal was on bail.

(7) If the Summary Court or the Magistrate's Court sends a person for trial to the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court may grant bail, if the sending was in custody, or may vary the conditions of bail as provided by subsection (3), if the sending was on bail.

[UK Bail Act 1976 ss.3(8) and 5B (part)]

150. Variation of bail: Supplementary

(1) If a defendant is remanded or committed in custody, at any hearing after the one at which bail was refused, the defendant may apply for bail and may support the application with any argument as to fact or law that he or she desires (whether or not the defendant has advanced that argument previously).

(2) Any variation of bail by a court under subsection (1) or section 148 or 149 —

(a) must be done in a manner consistent with this Part; but

(b) may include conditions not requested by either party.

(3) If the decision of the court on a reconsideration under section 148 or 149 is to refuse bail to a person to whom it was originally granted the court must remand the person in custody, or (if the person is not before the court) order the person to surrender forthwith into the custody of the court.

(4) If a person surrenders into the custody of the court in compliance with an order under subsection (3), the court must remand the person in custody.

(5) A person who has been ordered to surrender to custody under subsection (3) may be arrested without warrant by a police officer if he or she fails without reasonable cause to surrender to custody within 48 hours of receiving the order.

(6) A person arrested pursuant to subsection (5) must be brought as soon as practicable, and in any event within 24 hours after arrest before a judicial authority, who must remand the person in custody.

(7) When an application is made for variation of bail under subsection (1) or section 148 or 149, the court must give notice of the application and of the grounds for it to the other party and must include notice of the powers available to the court on the application.

(8) Any representations made by the defendant or by or on behalf of the Attorney General (whether in writing or orally) must be considered by the court before making its decision.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.145; UK Bail Act 1976 ss.3(8) and 5B (part)]

151. Appeal from Summary Court to Magistrate's Court on bail decisions

(1) If the defendant or the Attorney General is dissatisfied with a bail decision made by the Summary Court, the defendant or the Attorney General may appeal to the Magistrate's Court against the bail decision in accordance with this section.

(2) A defendant who wishes to exercise the right of appeal set out in subsection (1) must serve written notice of appeal on the Magistrate's Court and on the Summary Court within 14 days of the bail decision.

(3) The Attorney General can only exercise the right of appeal set out in subsection (1) if —

(a) the prosecutor made representations that bail should not be granted;

(b) the representations were made before bail was granted;

(c) oral notice of appeal was given by the prosecutor to the court which granted bail at the conclusion of the proceedings in which bail was granted and before the release from custody of the defendant; and

(d) written notice of appeal was served on the court which granted bail and on the defendant within 2 hours of the conclusion of those proceedings.

(4) If the prosecutor gives oral notice of appeal as provided in subsection (3)(c), the court which granted bail must remand the defendant in custody until the appeal is determined or otherwise disposed of.

(5) The hearing of an appeal under subsection (1) against a bail decision of the Summary Court must be commenced within 2 days after the time at which notice of appeal is received by the Clerk of the court pursuant to subsection (2).

(6) An appeal under this section is by way of rehearing and the Senior Magistrate may remand the person concerned in custody or may grant bail subject to such conditions, if any, as the Senior Magistrate thinks fit, but subject to the provisions of this Part as to the making of bail decisions.

(7) In relation to a youth, the reference in subsection (6) to remand in custody is to be read subject to the provisions of this Ordinance in respect of the detention of youths.

[UK Bail (Amendment) Act 1993 s.1 adapted]

152. Defence appeal against refusal of bail or conditions of bail

(1) If in connection with any criminal proceedings the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court has power to grant bail to any person, but either refuses to do so, or does so or offers to do so on terms unacceptable to the person, the Supreme Court may, on an application by or on behalf of the person —

(a) grant the person bail or direct that the person be granted bail; or

(b) if the person has been granted bail - vary any conditions on which bail was granted or reduce the amount in which any surety is bound or discharge any of the sureties.

(2) The conditions as to the time and place of appearance of a person who has been granted bail under this section which must be made a condition of the grant of bail are the same conditions that the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court had power to impose.

(3) On an application under this section, the Supreme Court may grant bail, with or without conditions, or vary the conditions of bail, in a manner consistent with this Part, but subject to subsection (2).

(4) The powers conferred on the Supreme Court by this section do not affect any other powers of the Supreme Court to grant bail or direct the granting of bail to persons.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1948 s.37; Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.16; Senior Courts Act 1981 s.81 (part)]

153. Bail on an appeal

(1) If a person has given notice of appeal to the Supreme Court against a decision of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court in any proceedings, including by way of a case stated for the opinion of the Supreme Court, then, if the person is in custody, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, may release the person, with or without sureties, conditioned for his or her appearance at the hearing of the appeal.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to a person who has been committed to the Magistrate's Court for sentence, but section 140(2)] applies in such a case.

(3) The Court of Appeal, in making a bail decision under section 7 of the Court of Appeal Ordinance must be guided by the principles for the grant of bail set out in this Part.

(4) There is no right of appeal to the Court of Appeal on a bail decision.

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.113]

154. Bail by the Supreme Court

(1) The Supreme Court may grant bail to any person who —

(a) has been sent in custody to the Supreme Court for trial under Part 12 (Sending for Trial);

(b) is in custody pursuant to a sentence imposed by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, and who has appealed to the Supreme Court against conviction or sentence;

(c) is in custody pending the disposal of his or her case by the Supreme Court;

(d) is in custody pursuant to a sentence imposed by the Supreme Court, wishes to appeal to the Court of Appeal against conviction or sentence, or both, and has been granted leave to do so by the Supreme Court under section 4(2) of the Court of Appeal Ordinance; or

(e) has been remanded in custody by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court on adjourning a case under any provision of this Ordinance.

(2) The power conferred by subsection (1)(c) does not extend to a case to which section 762 (Finding of unfitness to be tried) or 762 (Finding that the defendant did the act or made the omission charged) applies.

(3) The power to grant bail under subsection (1)(d) must be exercised within 28 days from the date of the conviction appealed against, or in the case of appeal against sentence, from the date on which sentence was passed or, in the case of an order made or treated as made on conviction, from the date of the making of the order.

(4) The power under subsection (1)(d) may not be exercised if the appellant has made an application to the Court of Appeal for bail in respect of the offence or offences to which the appeal relates.

(5) If the Supreme Court grants a person bail under subsection (1)(e) it may direct the person to appear at a time and place which the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, could have directed and the recognisance of any surety must be conditioned accordingly.

(6) The Supreme Court may only grant bail to a person under subsection (1)(e) if the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, has stated in its reasons for refusing bail that it heard full argument on the application for bail before it refused the application.

(7) A person in custody pursuant to a warrant issued by the Supreme Court with a view to the person's appearance before that court must be brought forthwith before either the Supreme Court or the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court.

[UK Senior Courts Act 1981 s.81 (part)]

Sureties and recognisances

155. Bail with sureties

(1) This section applies if a person is granted bail in criminal proceedings on condition that the person provides one or more sureties for the purpose of securing that he or she surrenders to custody.

(2) In considering the suitability for that purpose of a proposed surety, regard may be had (amongst other things) to —

(a) the surety's financial resources;

(b) the character and any previous convictions of the surety; and

(c) the proximity (whether in point of kinship, place of residence or otherwise) of the surety to the person for whom he or she is to be surety.

(3) If a court grants a person bail in criminal proceedings on a condition referred to in subsection (1) but is unable to release the person because no surety or no suitable surety is available, the court must fix the amount in which the surety is to be bound and the following subsections apply for the purpose of enabling the recognisance of the surety to be entered into subsequently.

(4) The recognisance of the surety may be entered into before any of the following persons —

(a) if the decision was by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court - before a justice of the peace, the Clerk of the Court or a police officer of the rank of sergeant or above;

(b) if the decision was by the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeal - before any of the persons specified in paragraph (a) or the Registrar.

(5) If a court has power to take a recognisance from a surety, the court may, instead of taking it, fix the amount of the recognisance, after which it may be taken by any person mentioned in subsection (4).

(6) If, pursuant to subsection (5), a recognisance is taken by a person other than the court that fixed the amount, the same consequences follow as if it had been entered into before that court.

(7) If a surety ('A') seeks to enter into a recognisance before any person ('B') in accordance with subsection (4) but B declines to take A's recognisance because B is not satisfied of A's suitability, A may apply to the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court to take A's recognisance and that court must, if satisfied of A's suitability, take his or her recognisance.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.148; UK Bail Act 1976 s.8; Magistrates' Courts Act s.119]

156. Forfeiture of security or recognisance

(1) If a defendant or other person has given security or entered into a recognisance pursuant to this Part and a court is satisfied that the defendant failed to surrender to custody then, unless it appears that the defendant had reasonable cause for the failure, the court may order the forfeiture of the security or the recognisance, or of any lesser amount the court thinks fit.

(2) An order under subsection (1), unless revoked, takes effect after 21 days.

(3) A court that has ordered the forfeiture of a security or recognisance under subsection (1) may, if satisfied on an application made by or on behalf of the person who gave it that the defendant had reasonable cause for the failure to surrender to custody, remit the forfeiture or any part of it.

(4) An application under subsection (3) may be made before or after the order for forfeiture has taken effect, but must not be entertained unless the court is satisfied that the prosecution was given reasonable notice of the applicant's intention to make it.

(5) A security that has been ordered to be forfeited by a court under subsection (1) must, to the extent of the forfeiture —

(a) if it consists of money - be accounted for and paid in the same manner as a fine imposed by that court;

(b) if it does not consist of money - be enforced by the Magistrate's Court as a civil debt.

(6) If an order is made under subsection (3) after forfeiture of the security in question has occurred, any money which has been overpaid must be repaid.

(7) The provisions of Part 27 (Fines and Recognisances) as to enforcement of recognisances apply to recognisances forfeited under this section.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.144 (part); UK Bail Act 1976 s.5 as amended and adapted]

Bail offences

157. Offence of absconding

(1) A person granted bail under this Part or Part 5 (Police Detention) is under a duty to surrender to custody in accordance with the provisions of this Part.

(2) A person who —

(a) has been released on bail; and

(b) fails without reasonable cause to surrender to custody,

commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 3 years or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(3) A person who —

(a) has been released on bail;

(b) with reasonable cause has failed to surrender to custody; but

(c) fails to surrender to custody at the appointed place as soon after the appointed time as is reasonably practicable,

commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 3 years or a fine at level 7 on the standard scale, or both.

(4) It is for the defendant to prove that he or she had reasonable cause for failure to surrender to custody or, that having a reasonable cause for failure, he or she surrendered to custody as soon as reasonably practicable.

(5) A failure to give to a person granted bail in criminal proceedings a copy of the record of the decision is not a reasonable cause for that person's failure to surrender to custody.

(6) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, having convicted a person of an offence under subsection (2) or (3) —

(a) sends the person for trial to the Supreme Court for another offence; and

(b) considers that it would be appropriate for the person to be dealt with for the offence under subsection (2) or (3) by the Supreme Court, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, may commit the person in custody or on bail to the Supreme Court for sentence.

(7) In any proceedings for an offence under subsection (2) or (3) a document purporting to be a certified copy of the part of the written record which relates to the time and place appointed for the person specified in the record to surrender to custody is evidence of the time and place appointed for that person to surrender to custody.

(8) For the purposes of subsection (7) —

“certified”, in relation to a written record of a bail decision, means certified by the police officer who made the relevant decision, or any other police officer of the rank of sergeant or above;

“written record” means the record of the decision of the court, court officer or police officer made pursuant to section 145(1).

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.141(1) and 146; UK Bail Act 1976 ss.2 and 6 modified by UK PACE Act 1984]

158. Liability to arrest for absconding or breaking conditions of bail

(1) If a person who has been released on bail by a court and is under a duty to surrender into the custody of the court fails to surrender to custody at the place and time appointed for the person to do so, the court may issue a warrant for the person's arrest, unless he or she is absent in accordance with leave given to him or her by an officer of the court.

(2) If a person who has been released on bail by a court absents himself or herself from the court at any time after he or she has surrendered into the custody of the court and before the court is ready to begin or to resume hearing of those proceedings, the court may issue a warrant for the person's arrest, unless the person is absent in accordance with leave given to him or her by an officer of the court.

(3) A person who has been released on bail by a court and is under a duty to surrender into custody may be arrested without warrant by a police officer —

(a) if the police officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the person is not likely to surrender to custody;

(b) if the police officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the person is likely to break any of the conditions of his or her bail or has reasonable grounds to suspect that the person has broken any of those conditions; or

(c) if the person is released on bail with one or more sureties and a surety notifies the police officer in writing —

(i) the person is unlikely to surrender to custody; and

(ii) that for that reason the surety wishes to be relieved of his or her obligations as surety.

(4) A person arrested pursuant to subsection (3) must be brought before a judicial authority as soon as practicable, and in any event within 24 hours after the arrest.

(5) A judicial authority before whom a person is brought under subsection (4) may, if of the opinion that the person —

(a) is not likely to surrender to custody; or

(b) has broken or is likely to break any conditions of his or her bail, remand the person in custody or commit the person to custody as the case may require, or alternatively grant the person bail subject to the same or to different conditions, but, if not of that opinion, must grant the person bail subject to the same conditions, if any, as were originally imposed.

(6) If the person so brought before a judicial authority is a youth and bail is not then granted to that person, subsection (5) has effect subject to the provisions of this Ordinance as to custody of youths.

(7) Nothing in this section affects the liability to arrest of a person who is released from police detention on bail under Part 5 (Police Detention).

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.147; UK Bail Act 1976 s.7 as amended]

159. Offence of agreeing to indemnify sureties in criminal proceedings

(1) If a person ('A') agrees with another person ('B') to indemnify B against any liability which B may incur as a surety to ensure the surrender to custody of a person granted bail, A and B both commit an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for one year or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both.

(2) An offence under subsection (1) is committed —

- (a) whether the agreement is made before or after B becomes a surety;
- (b) whether or not B becomes a surety; and
- (c) whether the agreement contemplates compensation in money or money's worth.

(3) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court convicts a person for an offence under subsection (1), the court, if it —

- (a) sends the person for trial to the Supreme Court on another offence; and
- (b) considers that it would be appropriate for the person to be dealt with for the offence under subsection (1) by the Supreme Court, may commit the person in custody or on bail to the Supreme Court for sentence.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.149; UK Bail Act 1976 s.9 as amended]

Miscellaneous provisions

160. Calculating terms of imprisonment

(1) For the purpose of calculating a term of imprisonment —

- (a) time spent on remand in custody is to be deducted from the term, as provided by section 563;
- (b) subject to subsection (2), the time during which a person is granted bail under this Part does not count as part of any term of imprisonment under his or her sentence;
- (c) if a person is granted bail after a sentence of imprisonment has been imposed on him or her, the term is deemed to begin to run or to be resumed as from the day on which the person is received into prison under the sentence.

(2) Any day on bail during which a person is subject to curfew for at least 12 hours counts as part of a term of imprisonment under the person's sentence.

[UK Senior Courts Act 1981 s.81 (part); CPR Rule 68.8]

161. Bail in cases of treason or murder

(1) If a person is charged with treason or murder —

(a) bail may not be granted to the person except by order of a judge; and

(b) other provisions of this Part apply with necessary modifications.

(2) In this section a reference to a person charged with treason or murder includes a person charged with treason or murder and one or more other offences.

(3) If a person appears before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court charged with treason or murder —

(a) the court must commit the person in custody for a bail decision to be made by a judge;

(b) the judge must make a decision about bail in respect of the person as soon as reasonably practicable and, in any event, within 28 days of the person being committed to custody by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court.

(4) In the case of a person charged with treason or murder the judge considering granting bail must, unless he or she considers that satisfactory reports on his or her mental condition have already been obtained, impose as conditions of bail a requirement —

(a) that the defendant undergo examination by 2 medical practitioners for the purpose of enabling such reports to be prepared; and

(b) that for that purpose the defendant attend an institution or place that the judge directs and comply with any other directions given to the defendant for that purpose by either of those practitioners.

(5) A person charged with treason or murder must not be granted bail unless the judge is of the opinion that there is no significant risk of the defendant committing, while on bail, any further imprisonable offence.

(6) If bail is granted to a person in accordance with this section, the court must impose as a condition of bail a requirement that any passport or other travel document held by or for the person be deposited with the court until the conclusion of the proceedings against the person, unless sooner required by the person for emergency reasons.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.143; UK Bail Act 1976 s.3(6A) and (6B); Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.41; Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994 s.25 (part) modified; Coroners and Justice Act 2009 s.115]

162. Bail in cases of other serious crime

(1) If a person charged with or convicted of any serious crime other than treason or murder has been previously convicted by or before a court in the Falkland Islands, the United Kingdom, a British Overseas Territory or a Crown Dependency of any such crime and was then sentenced —

(a) to imprisonment (whether or not suspended); or

(b) if the person was then a youth, to detention under any relevant enactment, subsection (2) applies.

(2) In the circumstances mentioned in subsection (1), the person may be granted bail only if the court considering the grant of bail is satisfied that there are exceptional circumstances that justify it.

(3) If bail is granted to a person in accordance with this section, the court must impose as a condition of bail a requirement that any passport or other travel document held by or for the person be deposited with the court until the conclusion of the proceedings against the person, unless sooner required by the person for emergency reasons.

(4) This section applies whether or not an appeal is pending against the previous conviction mentioned in subsection (1).

[UK Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994 s.25 (part)]

163. Warrant of arrest may be endorsed for bail

Whenever a warrant is issued for the arrest of any person, the court or judicial authority issuing the warrant may (if in all the circumstances it appears just and reasonable so to do) incorporate in it a direction that the officer executing the warrant may, instead of bringing the person arrested before the court, release the person on bail to appear before the court at a time and place specified in the direction.

[UK Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s.117; Senior Courts Act 1981 s.81(4)]

164. Criminal procedure rules

The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision —

(a) directing that a recognisance must not be entered into or other security given by persons of a specified description;

(b) prescribing the persons who may take a recognisance;

(c) prescribing the manner in which a recognisance is to be entered into or other security given, and the persons by whom and the manner in which the recognisance or security may be enforced;

(d) varying or dispensing with requirements as to sureties;

(e) regulating the manner in which applications for reconsideration of bail conditions are to be made;

(f) regulating the manner in which prosecution appeals against the grant of bail or the conditions of bail are to be made;

(g) regulating the manner in which defence appeals against the refusal of bail or the conditions of bail are to be made;

(h) regulating the manner in which bail decisions are to be recorded; and

(i) generally, for the implementation of this Part.

[UK Bail Act 1976 passim; Criminal Procedure Rules 2012 Rule 19.]

CHAPTER 5 – JURISDICTION

PART 10 – CONTROL OF PROSECUTIONS

165. Power to appoint prosecuting counsel

(1) Without affecting section 72 of the Constitution, the Attorney General may appoint any person who has a right of audience in the courts of the Falkland Islands to be a prosecuting counsel for the purposes of any case.

(2) A prosecuting counsel may appear and plead without any written authority before any court in which any case of which he or she has charge is under inquiry, trial or appeal.

(3) Every prosecuting counsel is subject to the directions of the Attorney General in the conduct of the prosecution.

[Common law]

166. Public officers as prosecutors

(1) In any trial in the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, if the proceedings have been commenced by a police officer, or any public officer who has powers to commence proceedings, any police officer or other public officer may, with the consent of the Attorney General, appear and conduct the prosecution whether or not that officer is the officer who laid the information.

(2) A police officer or other public officer conducting a prosecution pursuant to subsection (1) is subject to the directions of the Attorney General in the conduct of the prosecution.

[Common law]

167. Private prosecutions

(1) Subject to any requirement of this or any other written law for the consent of the Attorney General to a prosecution, a private person may commence and conduct a prosecution for any criminal offence.

(2) As provided by the Constitution, the Attorney General may at any time discontinue or take over the conduct of a prosecution commenced by a private person.

(3) If a private person instructs counsel to prosecute in any case in any court, the counsel so instructed must act in the case under the directions of the Attorney General or a prosecuting counsel.

(4) Any private person conducting a prosecution may do so personally or by a legal practitioner.
[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.6 adapted]

168. Consents to prosecutions

(1) A requirement for the consent of any person to a prosecution —

(a) does not prevent the arrest without warrant, or the issue or execution of a warrant for the arrest, of a person for any offence, or the remand in custody or on bail of a person charged with any offence; and

(b) is subject to any enactment concerning the apprehension of children or young persons.

(2) Any document purporting to be the consent of the Attorney General to —

(a) the institution of any criminal proceedings; or

(b) the institution of criminal proceedings in any particular form, and to be signed by the Attorney General is admissible as prima facie evidence without further proof.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 ss.25 and 26]

Time limits for preliminary stages

169. Time limits for preliminary stages of criminal proceedings

(1) The periods set out in subsection (2) are the maximum periods for which a person (including a youth) can be held in custody after the person is charged with the offence or, as the case may be, an information is laid charging the person with the offence.

(2) The periods are —

(a) for a summary offence, between first appearance and the start of the trial - 70 days;

(b) for a summary offence which is a serious offence, between first appearance and the start of the trial – 182 days;

(c) for an indictment-only offence, between first appearance and the start of the trial - 182 days;

(d) for an indictment- only offence on a voluntary bill of indictment, from preferment of the bill to the start of the trial – 182 days.

(3) If a person is sent for trial on more than one indictment-only offence, the period specified in subsection (2)(c) applies separately in relation to each offence.

(4) If an indictment is preferred by direction of the Court of Appeal, following the ordering of a retrial under Part 32 (Retrials, References, etc.) the limit specified in subsection (1)(c) applies from the date of that preferment.

(5) For the purposes of this section —

(a) the start of a trial on indictment before a jury is when a jury is sworn to consider the issue of guilt or fitness to be tried or, if the court accepts a plea of guilty before the time when a jury is sworn, when that plea is accepted;

(b) the start of a summary trial, or of a trial on indictment without a jury, occurs —

(i) when the court begins to hear evidence for the prosecution at the trial or to consider whether to exercise its power to make a hospital order without convicting the defendant;
or

(ii) if the court accepts a plea of guilty without proceeding as mentioned above - when that plea is accepted.

(6) The Chief Justice may, by criminal procedure rules, make provision with respect to any specified preliminary stage of proceedings for an offence —

(a) disapplying the time limit prescribed by subsection (2) in relation to proceedings against persons of specified classes or descriptions;

(b) prescribing the procedure to be followed in criminal proceedings that the Chief Justice considers appropriate in consequence of this section and section 170;

(c) providing for an appeal to the Supreme Court against a refusal of an extension of time limit under section 170;

(d) providing for Part 5 (Police Detention) or Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings) to apply in relation to cases to which time limits apply (subject to specified modifications which the Chief Justice considers necessary in consequence of this section or section 170); and

(e) making transitional provisions in relation to proceedings commenced before the commencement of this section.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.22 (part) adapted; Prosecution of Offences (Custody Time-Limits) Regulations 1987 adapted]

170. Time limits: Supplementary provisions

(1) The court may, in any particular case, at any time before the expiry of the time limit prescribed by section 169(2), extend, or further extend, that limit if it is satisfied —

(a) that the need for the extension is due to —

- (i) the illness or absence of the defendant, a necessary witness, a judge or a justice of the peace;
- (ii) a postponement which is occasioned by the court ordering separate trials in the case of 2 or more defendants or 2 or more offences; or
- (iii) some other good and sufficient cause; and

(b) that the prosecution has acted with all due diligence and expedition.

(2) If, in relation to any proceedings for an offence, the time limit prescribed by section 169(2) or as varied by the court has expired before the completion of the stage of the proceedings to which the limit applies, the defendant must be released on bail, either with or without conditions, in accordance with Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings).

(3) If a person is convicted of an offence in any proceedings, the exercise, in relation to any preliminary stage of those proceedings, of the power conferred by subsection (2) may not be called into question in any appeal against that conviction.

(4) If —

(a) a person escapes from arrest; or

(b) a person who has been released on bail under Part 5 (Police Detention) fails to surrender to bail at the appointed time, and is accordingly unlawfully at large for any period, that period is to be disregarded, so far as the offence in question is concerned, for the purposes of a time limit prescribed in section 169.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.22 (part) adapted]

171. Additional time limits for youths

(1) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision —

(a) with respect to a person who is a youth at the time of his or her arrest in connection with an offence - as to the maximum period to be allowed for the completion of the stage beginning with the arrest and ending with the date fixed for the person's first appearance in court in connection with the offence ("the initial stage");

(b) with respect to a person convicted of an offence who was under that age at the time of his or her arrest for the offence or (if the person was not arrested for it) the laying of the information charging the person with it - as to the period within which the stage between the person's conviction and his or her being sentenced for the offence should be completed.

(2) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may, at any time before the expiry of the time limit imposed by rules made under subsection (1)(a) ("the initial stage time limit"), extend, or further extend, that limit; but must not do so unless satisfied —

(a) that the need for the extension is due to some good and sufficient cause; and

(b) that the investigation has been conducted, and (where applicable) the prosecution has acted, with all due diligence and expedition.

(3) If the initial stage time limit (whether as originally imposed or as extended or further extended under subsection (3)) expires before the person arrested is charged with the offence, the person must not be charged with it unless further evidence relating to it is obtained, and —

(a) if the person is then under arrest - he or she must be released;

(b) if the person is then on bail under Part 5 (Police Detention) - his or her bail (and any duty or conditions to which it is subject) must be discharged.

(4) If the initial stage time limit (whether as originally imposed or as extended or further extended under subsection (2)) expires after the person arrested is charged with the offence but before the date fixed for the person's first appearance in court in connection with it, the court must stay the proceedings.

(5) Subsections (2) to (4) of section 170 apply for the purposes of this section, at any time after the person arrested has been charged with the offence in question, as if any reference to a time limit were a reference to the initial stage time limit.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.22A ins. by Crime & Disorder Act 1988]

172. Re-institution of proceedings stayed under section 171

(1) If proceedings for an offence ("the original proceedings") are stayed by a court under section 171(4) and the Attorney General so directs, fresh proceedings for the offence may be commenced within 3 months (or any longer period the court allows) after the date on which the original proceedings were stayed by the court.

(2) Fresh proceedings are commenced —

(a) if the original proceedings were stayed by the Supreme Court - by preferring a bill of indictment;

(b) if the original proceedings were stayed by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court - by laying an information (regardless of any limit of time provided in any other enactment.)

(3) If fresh proceedings are commenced, anything done in relation to the original proceedings is to be treated as done in relation to the fresh proceedings if the court so directs or it was done by the prosecutor or the defendant in compliance or purported compliance with this Ordinance.

(4) If a person is convicted of an offence in fresh proceedings under this section, the institution of those proceedings may not be called into question in any appeal against that conviction.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.22B ins. by Crime & Disorder Act 1988]

Discontinuance of proceedings

173. Power of Attorney General to enter nolle prosequi

(1) In any trial on indictment, at any stage before the verdict, the Attorney General may enter a nolle prosequi, either by stating in court or by informing the court in writing that the Crown intends that the proceedings are not to continue.

(2) If the Attorney General enters a nolle prosequi —

(a) the defendant must be at once discharged in respect of the charge for which the nolle prosequi is entered;

(b) if the defendant has been committed to prison he or she must be released, or if on bail, his or her recognisances must be discharged;

(c) the discharge of the defendant does not operate as a bar to any subsequent proceedings against him or her on account of the same facts.

(3) If the defendant is not before the court when a nolle prosequi is entered, the Registrar or Clerk of the court must forthwith cause notice in writing of the entry of the nolle prosequi to be given —

(a) if the defendant is in prison - to the Chief Police Officer;

(b) if the defendant has been sent for trial - to the Supreme Court;

(c) if the trial is a summary one - to the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be.

(4) Upon the entry of a nolle prosequi the court must forthwith cause a notice of it to be given in writing to any witnesses bound over to give evidence and to their sureties, if any, and also to the defendant and his or her sureties if the defendant has been admitted to bail.

(5) Any document purporting to be the fiat, order, sanction, consent or nolle prosequi of the Attorney General and to be signed by the Attorney General is admissible as prima facie evidence without further proof.

(6) This section is in addition to and does not limit the powers of the Attorney General under the Constitution or any other law.

[Common law]

174. Discontinuance of proceedings at preliminary stage

(1) If the Attorney General has the conduct of proceedings in the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court for an offence, this section applies in relation to the preliminary stages of those proceedings.

(2) In this section, “preliminary stage” in relation to proceedings for an offence does not include any stage of the proceedings —

(a) after the court has begun to hear evidence for the prosecution at a summary trial of the offence; or

(b) after the defendant has been sent for trial for the offence.

(3) If, at any time during the preliminary stages of the proceedings, the Attorney General gives notice under this section to the court that the Crown does not wish the proceedings to continue, they must be discontinued with effect from the giving of that notice but may be revived by notice given by the defendant under subsection (7).

(4) If, in the case of a person charged with an offence after being taken into custody without a warrant, the Attorney General gives the person notice, before the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court has been informed of the charge, that the proceedings against the person are discontinued, they must be discontinued with effect from the giving of that notice.

(5) The Attorney General must, in any notice given under subsection (3), give reasons for not wishing the proceedings to continue.

(6) On giving notice under subsection (3) the Attorney General —

(a) must inform the defendant of the notice and of the defendant’s right to require the proceedings to be continued; but

(b) need not give the defendant any indication of the reasons for not wishing the proceedings to continue.

(7) If the Attorney General has given notice under subsection (3), the defendant must, if the defendant wishes the proceedings to continue, give notice to that effect to the court within 21 days; and if notice is so given the proceedings must continue as if no notice had been given by the Attorney General under subsection (3).

(8) The defendant must inform the Attorney General if the defendant has notified the court under subsection (7).

(9) The discontinuance of any proceedings by virtue of this section does not prevent the institution of fresh proceedings in respect of the same offence.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.23]

175. Discontinuance of proceedings after defendant has been sent for trial

(1) This section applies if —

(a) the Attorney General has the conduct of proceedings for an offence; and

(b) the defendant has been sent for trial to the Supreme Court for the offence.

(2) If, at any time before the indictment is preferred, the Attorney General gives notice under this section to the Supreme Court that the Crown does not wish the proceedings to continue, they must be discontinued with effect from the giving of that notice.

(3) The Attorney General must, in any notice given under subsection (2), give reasons for not wishing the proceedings to continue.

(4) On giving notice under subsection (2) the Attorney General —

(a) must inform the defendant of the notice; but

(b) need not give the defendant any indication of the reasons for not wishing the proceedings to continue.

(5) The discontinuance of any proceedings by virtue of this section does not prevent the institution of fresh proceedings in respect of the same offence.

(6) This section and sections 173 and 174 are in addition to and do not limit the powers of the Attorney General under section 72 of the Constitution or any other law to discontinue criminal proceedings in any court.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.23A ins. by Crime & Disorder Act 1988]

PART 11 – CRIMINAL JURISDICTION

Criminal jurisdiction generally

176. Criminal jurisdiction of the Supreme Court

(1) The Supreme Court has and may exercise —

(a) unlimited jurisdiction to hear and determine any criminal proceedings under any law;

(b) the jurisdiction and powers in criminal proceedings conferred upon it by section 19 and other provisions of the Constitution and by any other written law of the Falkland Islands or any enactment.

(2) Without limiting subsection (1), the Supreme Court has within the Falkland Islands all the power, jurisdiction and authority vested in the High Court of Justice and the Crown Court in England in respect of criminal proceedings.

(3) The Supreme Court may on convicting a person of that offence, subject to 483 (sentencing powers) and any other written law of the Falkland Islands —

(a) sentence the person in any manner provided for by law in respect of that offence; and

(b) make any other order which by law may be made in consequence of or otherwise upon the conviction of the offender.

(4) The practice and procedure of the Supreme Court in the exercise of its criminal appellate jurisdiction is to be as prescribed by Part 31 (Appeals to the Supreme Court) and by criminal procedure rules. Until such rules are in force, the practice and procedure, to the extent that it is not provided for by Part 31, is to be the same as that of the Court of Appeal in England with necessary modifications (including disregarding or modifying any provisions related to a multiplicity of judges).

(5) The practice and procedure of the Supreme Court on and related to a trial on indictment is to be as prescribed by Part 17 (Supreme Court Procedure) and other provisions of this Ordinance, and by criminal procedure rules. Until such rules are in force, the practice and procedure, to the extent that it is not provided for by Part 17 and other provisions of this Ordinance, is to be the same as that of the Crown Court in England, with necessary modifications.

(6) The power of the Supreme Court to deal with summary offences, other than an offence committed in the face of the court, is as prescribed in Part 17.

(7) The jurisdiction and authority conferred by this section are to be exercised subject to this Ordinance, any relevant criminal procedure rules or practice direction, and any other written law of the Falkland Islands.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. s.38 and s.48(2) and (3)]

177. Criminal jurisdiction of the Magistrate's Court

(1) The Magistrate's Court has jurisdiction to try and determine any summary offence under the law of the Falkland Islands.

(2) If the Magistrate's Court has jurisdiction to try an offence, it may on convicting a person of that offence, subject to section 480 (sentencing powers) and any other written law of the Falkland Islands —

(a) sentence the person in any manner provided for by law in respect of that offence; and

(b) make any other order which by law may be made in consequence of or otherwise upon the conviction of the offender.

(3) Without affecting section 184 as to observers, the jurisdiction of the Magistrate's Court under this section must be exercised by the Senior Magistrate sitting alone.

(4) The Senior Magistrate is by virtue of the office a justice of the peace and may exercise all the jurisdiction, powers and authority of a justice of the peace.

(5) The practice and procedure of the Magistrate's Court in criminal proceedings is to be as prescribed by Part 16 (Summary Proceedings), by other provisions of this Ordinance relating to summary offences, and by criminal procedure rules. Until such rules are in force, the practice and procedure is to be the same as that of a District Judge (Magistrate's Court) in England with necessary modifications.

(6) The jurisdiction and authority conferred by this section are to be exercised subject to this Ordinance, any criminal procedure rules or practice direction, and any other written law of the Falkland Islands.

(7) Until provisions equivalent to those in the UK Extradition Act 2003 are enacted in the Falkland Islands, the Senior Magistrate has the like powers and jurisdiction in relation to extradition as is possessed by a person holding appointment as a District Judge under sections 67 and 139 of that Act.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. ss.28 and 29]

178. Criminal jurisdiction of the Summary Court

(1) Subject to this Part, the Summary Court has a like jurisdiction in criminal proceedings to the jurisdiction that the Magistrate's Court has under section 177(1) and (2).

(2) If the Summary Court has jurisdiction to try an offence, it may on convicting a person of that offence, subject to subsections (3) and (4) and any other written law of the Falkland Islands —

(a) sentence the person in any manner provided for by law in respect of that offence; and

(b) make any other order which by law may be made in consequence of or otherwise upon the conviction of the offender.

(3) Except as otherwise provided by this or any other Ordinance, the Summary Court does not have power to impose imprisonment or any other custodial sentence for more than 6 months in respect of any one offence, even if the offence in question is one for which a person would otherwise be liable on conviction to imprisonment or other custodial sentence for more than 6 months.

(4) If the Summary Court imposes 2 or more terms of imprisonment to run consecutively, the aggregate of the terms must not exceed 6 months.

(5) The limitations in subsections (3) and (4) on the power to impose a term of imprisonment do not apply in respect of any power of the Summary Court to impose a term of imprisonment for non-payment of a fine, or for want of sufficient distress to satisfy a fine.

(6) The Summary Court may impose a fine up to the limits prescribed by section 589(3).

(7) The composition of the Summary Court when hearing criminal proceedings is as provided by Part 16 (Summary Procedure).

(8) The practice and procedure of the Summary Court in criminal proceedings is to be as prescribed by Part 16 (Summary Proceedings), by other provisions of this Ordinance relating to summary offences, and by relevant criminal procedure rules. Until such rules are in force, the practice and procedure is to be the same as that of the Magistrates' Courts in England with necessary modifications.

(9) The jurisdiction and authority conferred by this section are to be exercised subject to this Ordinance, any relevant criminal procedure rules or practice direction, and any other written law of the Falkland Islands.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. ss.11 and 12 and 48(5)]

179. Offshore activities

(1) This section applies to —

(a) the territorial sea of the Falkland Islands;

(b) any designated area of the continental shelf as defined in the Offshore Minerals Ordinance.

(2) Any act or omission which —

(a) takes place on, under or above an installation in waters to which this section applies or any waters within 500 metres of any such installation; and

(b) would, if it had taken place in the Falkland Islands, constitute an offence under the law of the Falkland Islands, is to be treated for the purposes of that law as if it had taken place in the Falkland Islands.

[Criminal Jurisdiction (Offshore Activities) Order 1998]

Trial of offences

180. Trial of offences

(1) All offences are triable summarily except offences which by virtue of section 181 or any other written law of the Falkland Islands are required to be tried on indictment.

(2) An offence which is triable summarily may be tried on indictment if it is a linked offence as defined in section 189.

(3) An offence may only be tried on indictment under subsection (1) or (2) if the defendant is sent to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of that offence by the Summary Court or the Magistrate's Court, in accordance with Part 12.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s4 as amended by s.14 of Admin of Justice (Am) Ord. 2013]

181. Indictment-only offences

(1) The following offences must be tried on indictment —

(a) an offence under the Crimes Ordinance 2014 specified as triable on indictment only;

- (b) an offence under this or any other Ordinance specified as triable on indictment only;
- (c) an offence which, by virtue of any law of the United Kingdom having effect in the Falkland Islands (other than by its application by or under a written law of the Falkland Islands), must be tried on indictment;
- (d) an attempt to commit any of the offences mentioned in paragraphs (a) to (c);
- (e) conspiracy to commit any of those offences;
- (f) encouraging, or aiding and abetting, any of those offences.

(2) All other offences are triable summarily.

182. Time for commencement of criminal proceedings

(1) This section prescribes the periods within which prosecutions for offences must be commenced and has effect despite any provision of an enactment which prescribes a shorter period in relation to an offence to which that provision relates.

(2) The periods prescribed in this section are subject to —

- (a) any provision of a written law of the Falkland Islands which, in relation to any particular offence or offences, prescribes a greater period;
- (b) any power of a court to dismiss a prosecution by reason of a delay in bringing it so great that a fair trial of the defendant cannot be held; and
- (c) any power of a court to dismiss a prosecution as an abuse of the process of the court.

(3) There is no limit on the time within which a prosecution may be commenced for an indictment-only offence or for a summary offence that carries a maximum penalty in excess of six months imprisonment.

(4) A prosecution for a summary offence that carries a maximum penalty of six months imprisonment or less or that is not an imprisonable offence must be commenced within 6 months of the date of commission of the offence.

(5) For the purposes of this section, a prosecution of a person is commenced when the complaint or information in relation to the offence in question is presented to the office of the Magistrate's Court or of the Summary Court, as the case may be.

183. Place of sittings of the courts

(1) For the hearing of criminal proceedings, no court may sit in any premises licensed for the sale of intoxicating liquor or in any building ordinarily used for religious purposes.

(2) All courts must sit in the Falkland Islands, except as provided by section 92(3) of the Constitution as regards the Court of Appeal.

(3) A judge may exercise judicial functions by electronic means or otherwise while outside the Falkland Islands if and to the extent that a provision of this Ordinance or of criminal procedure rules so provides, or in accordance with subsection (4) of this section.

(4) A judge may sit outside the Falkland Islands for the purpose of dealing by electronic means with any matter in criminal proceedings which does not require the judge to sit in open court, not limited to matters falling for decision under the provisions listed in subsection (3), if —

(a) the Head of Courts certifies that facilities are available for dealing with the matter by electronic means;

(b) the parties to the matter are given an opportunity to make representations to the Head of Courts as to whether the matter should be so dealt with; and

(c) the judge is satisfied that sitting outside the Falkland Islands is in the interests of justice.

(5) Before making a decision in a matter while outside the Falkland Islands, pursuant to subsection (3) or (4), the judge must give to all parties who are entitled to notice of the matter the opportunity to make representations about the matter by electronic means or otherwise.

(6) The requirement in subsection (5) does not apply in respect of a party to a matter if —

(a) it has not been possible (despite reasonable efforts in all of the circumstances) to contact the party; and

(b) the urgency of the matter is such that the power must be exercised outside the Falkland Islands without further delay in seeking to give the party the opportunity to make representations.

(7) The rules of evidence, practice and procedure do not have effect to restrict the powers of a judge by virtue of the place in which the judge sits and, in particular, a judge sitting outside the Falkland Islands —

(a) is to be treated as sitting in the Falkland Islands in order to preserve the judge's powers;

(b) may receive evidence or representations from outside the Falkland Islands.

(8) In this section —

(a) “electronic means” include telephone, fax, visual computer link and other electronic means of communication;

(b) “judge” includes the Senior Magistrate if and to the extent that jurisdiction is conferred on the Senior Magistrate in respect of any matter.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. s.41 am. by AOJ (Am)(No.2) Ord. 2013 modified]

184. Observers

(1) The Senior Magistrate may invite one or more justices of the peace to sit with the Senior Magistrate as observers when the Senior Magistrate is exercising the criminal jurisdiction of the Magistrate’s Court in any criminal proceedings.

(2) A justice of the peace invited to sit as an observer —

(a) attends for training purposes only and must not take part in the proceedings; but

(b) may join the Senior Magistrate when the Senior Magistrate retires to consider evidence given and submissions made in open court; and

(c) may remain when the court sits in private.

(3) In this Ordinance, any requirement for facilities to be made available to enable the judge and the jury, if any, to see a witness extends to a justice of the peace sitting as an observer under this section.

(4) Any observer invited under this section must be duly qualified as a justice of the peace and if he or she becomes disqualified must cease to be an observer.

185. Reasons for judgment to be given

(1) The person presiding over criminal proceedings in any court must keep a record of all judgments and rulings of the court, except the reasons for the verdict of a jury.

(2) If there are facilities for electronic recording of the proceedings, an electronic record may be kept instead of a written record.

(3) Every such judgment or ruling must —

(a) contain the point or points for determination, the decision on each point and the reasons for the decision; and

(b) be dated by the person presiding at the time of pronouncement.

Transfer of cases between courts

186. Transfer of cases between Summary Court and Magistrate’s Court

(1) This section applies to a case if it could have been brought in either the Summary Court or the Magistrate’s Court, and —

(a) proceedings have been commenced in one of those courts but have not yet come to trial in either of those courts; or

(b) proceedings (including sentencing in the event of a conviction) have been concluded in one of those courts but any sentence has not been enforced or monetary judgment.

(2) A case to which this section applies may (if the interests of justice require) be transferred —

(a) from the Summary Court to the Magistrate’s Court; or

(b) from the Magistrate’s Court to the Summary Court.

(3) A case may be transferred from one court to the other even if it has been transferred on one or more previous occasions.

(4) Either the Summary Court or the Magistrate’s Court may make an order for a case to be transferred from one court to the other.

(5) An order for a case to be transferred from one court to the other may be made —

(a) on an application from one or more of the parties to the case; or

(b) on the court’s own initiative.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. s.35A (part) expanded]

187. Transfer of cases: Orders and directions

(1) A judge may, if the interests of justice require —

(a) order that a case that is currently before the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court is to be transferred from that court to the other court;

(b) direct (in relation to a specific case) that an order of the Summary Court transferring it from the Magistrate’s Court to the Summary Court may only take effect if it is approved by a judge.

(2) A judge may direct (in relation to a category of cases) that an order of the Summary Court transferring a case in that category from the Magistrate’s Court to the Summary Court may only take effect if it is approved by a judge.

(3) In this section, “judge” includes the Senior Magistrate, even if —

(a) the Senior Magistrate has already dealt with the same case in the Magistrate’s Court; or

(b) the effect of an order or direction would be for the Senior Magistrate to hear that case.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. s.35A (part)]

188. Transfer of cases: Practice directions

(1) The Chief Justice may issue practice directions about —

(a) how the power for cases to be transferred from one court to another is to be exercised; and

(b) what procedures are to apply in cases that have been transferred from one court to another (which may be different from the procedures that would normally apply in the court to which the case has been transferred).

(2) When determining whether or not to transfer a case from one court to the other, the Magistrate’s Court and the Summary Court must each have proper regard to practice directions that have been issued about how the power to do that is to be exercised.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. s.35A (part)]

PART 12 – SENDING FOR TRIAL
Preliminary

189. Application and interpretation of Part

(1) This Part governs the procedure for sending persons to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of —

(a) indictment-only offences;

(b) offences that may be tried summarily but which are related to indictment-only offences that may have been committed by —

(i) persons charged with indictment-only offences; or

(ii) other persons charged jointly with them.

(2) This Part also governs the procedure after persons are sent to the Supreme Court for trial and before the trial commences.

(3) The powers of the Supreme Court to deal with summary offences that are related to indictment-only offences are contained in sections 309 to 311 in Part 17 (Supreme Court Procedure).

(4) In this Part —

“application for dismissal” means an application under section 199 for one or more charges against a person to be dismissed;

“judge” may include the Senior Magistrate if appointed to sit as an acting judge of the Supreme Court, even if the Senior Magistrate has already dealt with the same case in the Magistrate’s Court;

“linked offence” means an offence that may be tried summarily but which —

(a) is founded on the same facts or evidence as a count charging an indictment-only offence;
or

(b) is part of a series of offences of the same or similar character as an indictment-only offence which is also charged;

“relevant issues” means —

(a) the circumstances of the case;

(b) if written notice has been (or was) given of an intention to apply for dismissal orally - the matters stated in that notice; and

(c) the matters stated in the application for dismissal;

“sending proceedings” means proceedings pursuant to the power or requirement to send a person to the Supreme Court for trial.

190. Power to send adults to Supreme Court for trial

(1) The Magistrate’s Court and the Summary Court both have power to send a person for trial before the Supreme Court, in accordance with this Part.

(2) When an adult person appears before the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court (or is brought before either of them), for an offence, the court must send the person to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of the offence in accordance with this Part if the person —

(a) is before the court in relation to one or more indictment-only offences;

(b) has already been sent to the Supreme Court in relation to one or more offences that have not yet come to trial; or

(c) is charged jointly with someone else who has been, is being or could be sent to the Supreme Court in accordance with this Part.

(3) The Magistrate’s Court and the Summary Court may also send a person to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of an offence if —

(a) the offence can be tried summarily; but

(b) it appears to the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, that it is a linked offence.

(4) If a person who has been sent for trial under subsection (2) or (3) subsequently appears or is brought before the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court charged with another indictment-only offence or with a linked offence, the court may send the person forthwith to the Supreme Court for trial for that offence.

(5) If —

(a) the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court commits a person ('A') for trial under subsection (2) on an indictment-only offence; and

(b) another person ('B') appears or is brought before the court on the same or a subsequent occasion charged jointly with A with an indictment-only offence or a linked offence, the court must if it is the same occasion, and may if it is a subsequent occasion, send B forthwith to the Supreme Court for trial for that offence.

[UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 ss.51 & 51A]

191. Power to send youths to Supreme Court for trial

(1) When a youth appears before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court (or is brought before either of them) and one or more of the circumstances listed in paragraphs (a) to (c) of section 190(2) applies, the court must —

(a) deal with the youth in accordance with this Part; but

(b) adapt its procedure in whatever way the interests of justice require to take account of the youth's age and level of understanding.

[UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 s.51 replaced by CJ Act 2003 Sched.3]

(2) Subsection (3) applies if —

(a) a youth has been sent to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of one or more offences; and

(b) the youth —

(i) appears (or is brought) before the Supreme Court in connection with those offences; or

(ii) is being tried on indictment for those offences.

(3) When this subsection applies, the Supreme Court must adapt its procedure in whatever way the interests of justice require to take account of the youth's age and level of understanding.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. s.48A]

Procedure for sending persons to Supreme Court

192. Adjourning of summary trial

(1) If a person is sent to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of a summary offence, the trial in respect of that offence is to be treated as if it had been adjourned by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court without a date being fixed for its resumption.

(2) A date may be fixed for the resumption of the trial for a summary offence if the powers of the Supreme Court cease in respect of that offence under section 208(10).

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4]

193. Sending notice

(1) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court sends a person to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of one or more offences, it must issue a notice (a "sending notice") specifying the offence or offences for which the person is being sent to the Supreme Court for trial.

(2) Copies of the sending notice must as soon as practicable be —

(a) served on the person being sent to the Supreme Court for trial; and

(b) forwarded to the Supreme Court.

(3) Subsections (4) and (5) apply if the person is being sent to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of one or more summary offences, whether or not the person is also being sent to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of one or more indictment-only offences.

(4) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court must specify in the sending notice the indictment-only offence (or offences) in relation to which the summary offence appears to the court to be a linked offence.

(5) If the person is being sent to the Supreme Court in respect of more than one summary offence, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court must comply with subsection (4) in relation to each of the summary offences separately.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Criminal Justice Act 1987 s.5; Criminal Justice Act 1991 Sched.6 para.4; Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Sched. 3 para.1, etc.]

194. Sending may be in custody or on bail

(1) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may send a person to the Supreme Court for trial either —

(a) in custody, by committing the person to custody to be kept there safely until delivered in due course of law; or

(b) on bail to appear before the Supreme Court for trial.

(2) When deciding whether to send a person to the Supreme Court for trial in custody or on bail, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court must apply the bail provisions of Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings).

(3) If a person is granted bail on condition of providing one or more sureties, the court may remand the person in custody until that condition is satisfied.

(4) If the conditions specified in subsection (5) are satisfied, a court may exercise the powers conferred by subsection (1) in relation to a person charged without being brought before it in any case in which it would have power further to remand the person on an adjournment.

(5) The conditions mentioned in subsection (4) are that —

(a) the person has given written consent to the powers conferred by subsection (1) being exercised without his or her being brought before the court; and

(b) the court is satisfied that, when the person gave his or her consent, the person knew that a sending notice had been issued in relation to the person.

(6) If a sending notice is given after a person to whom it relates has been remanded on bail to appear before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court on an appointed day, the requirement that the person so appear ceases on the giving of the notice, unless the notice states that it is to continue.

(7) If the requirement that a person to whom the sending notice relates should appear before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court ceases by virtue of subsection (6), the person must appear before the Supreme Court at the time specified in the notice.

(8) If the notice states that the requirement mentioned in subsection (6) is to continue and the person to whom the notice relates appears before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, that court has —

(a) the powers and duties conferred on it under subsection (1); and

(b) power to enlarge, in the surety's absence, a recognisance conditioned so that the surety is bound to ensure that the person charged appears before the Supreme Court.

(9) The Magistrate's Court and the Summary Court have jurisdiction to hear and determine applications relating to the further remand (in custody or on bail) of a person who has been sent to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of one or more offences.

(10) If the defendant has not yet reached the age of 18, the court must adapt its procedure in relation to remand in whatever way the interests of justice require to take account of the person's age and level of understanding.

195. Documents containing evidence

(1) Whenever a person is sent to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of one or more offences, copies of the documents containing the evidence on which the charge or charges are based must be —

- (a) served on the person being sent to the Supreme Court for trial; and
- (b) forwarded to the Supreme Court, within 56 days.

(2) A judge may on an application under subsection (3) extend (and, if need be, further extend) the period specified in subsection (1).

(3) An application for an extension —

- (a) may be made and dealt with orally or in writing; and
- (b) if dealt with in writing, may be dealt with by the judge while outside the Falkland Islands.

(4) The following documents fall within subsection (1) —

- (a) a statement of a kind which is capable of being admitted in evidence under section 408 (Proof by written statement);
- (b) any document which by virtue of any enactment is evidence in proceedings before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court;
- (c) any document which by virtue of any enactment is admissible, or may be used, or is to be admitted or received, in or as evidence in such proceedings;
- (d) any document which by virtue of any enactment may be considered in such proceedings;
- (e) any document the production of which constitutes proof in such proceedings by virtue of any enactment;
- (f) any document by the production of which evidence may be given in such proceedings by virtue of any enactment.

(5) The Chief Justice may, by criminal procedure rules, make provision —

- (a) requiring the documents referred to in subsection (4) to be sent to other persons specified in the rules;
- (b) requiring additional material to be sent with a sending notice;

(c) regulating an application for the extension or further extension of a period under subsection (2); and

(d) making any further provision in relation to sending notices that the Chief Justice considers appropriate.

[Admin of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Criminal Justice Act 1987 s.5; Criminal Justice Act 1991 Sched.6 para.4; Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Sched. 3]

196. Public notice of outcome

(1) When the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court sends any person for trial, the Clerk of the court must, on the day on which the sending proceedings are concluded or the next day, cause to be displayed in a part of the court house to which the public have access a notice —

(a) in either case giving the person's name, address and age, if known; and

(b) stating the charge or charges on which the person is sent for trial.

(2) This section has effect subject to section 200 restricting the reporting of sending proceedings.

(3) A notice displayed pursuant to subsection (1) must not contain the name or address of any person under the age of 18 years unless the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court has stated that in its opinion the person should be mentioned in it for the purpose of avoiding injustice to the person.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.6 (part) adapted]

197. Avoidance of delay

(1) If a sending notice under section 193 has been given in relation to a person, the person must appear or be brought before the Supreme Court at the next session of the court after the notice has been given, unless the Chief Justice otherwise directs in the interests of justice and in accordance with any relevant criminal procedure rules.

(2) If a sending notice under section 193 has been given in relation to any case, the Supreme Court and the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, when exercising functions in relation to the case, must in exercising those functions, have regard to the desirability of avoiding prejudice to the welfare of any relevant child witness that may be occasioned by unnecessary delay in bringing the case to trial.

(3) In this section "relevant child witness" means a child who will be called as a witness at the trial and who is alleged —

(a) to be a person against whom an offence to which the notice of transfer relates was committed; or

(b) to have witnessed the commission of such an offence.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1991 Sched.6 para.7 adapted]

198. Filing of indictment and evidence

(1) Within 56 days (or any longer time a judge allows) of the order sending a defendant to the Supreme Court for trial, the Attorney General must —

- (a) draw up an indictment in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance;
- (b) cause the indictment to be filed (together with copies of the statements of evidence of the witnesses upon whose evidence the prosecution intends to rely) in the registry of the Supreme Court; and
- (c) cause a copy of it to be served on the defendant.

(2) In an indictment drawn up pursuant to this section, the Attorney General may charge the defendant with any offence which, in the opinion of the Attorney General, is disclosed by the documentary evidence, either in addition to, or in substitution for, the offence on which the defendant has been sent for trial.

(3) In subsection (2), “documentary evidence” includes documents sent to the Supreme Court pursuant to section 195, depositions taken pursuant to section 207 and any exhibit referred to in any such document or deposition.

(4) The defendant may, within 21 days of the service of the indictment and copy statements in accordance with subsection (1), file in the Supreme Court any representations which the defendant wishes the judge to consider in relation to the indictment or the admissibility of any of the statements.

(5) All indictments drawn up pursuant to this section must be in the name of and signed by the Attorney General and must be in a form prescribed by criminal procedure rules or, in the absence of such rules, as the Chief Justice approves.

(6) If the prosecution is brought by a private prosecutor, the references in this section to the Attorney General are to be read as references to the private prosecutor.
[SH Criminal Procedure Ordinance ss.171 and 177 and common law]

Applications for dismissal

199. Applications for dismissal

(1) A person who has been sent to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of one or more offences may apply to the Supreme Court for one or more of the charges in the case to be dismissed.

(2) An application for dismissal may only be made —

- (a) after the person is served with copies of the documents containing the evidence on which the charge or charges are based; but
- (b) before either —

- (i) the person has entered a plea to the charge or charges; or
 - (ii) a plea to the charge or charges has been entered for the person.
- (3) An application for dismissal may —
 - (a) be made and dealt with in writing (and, if so, may be dealt with by the judge while outside the Falkland Islands); or
 - (b) be made orally instead, but only if —
 - (i) the applicant has given written notice to the Supreme Court of an intention to make the application orally; and
 - (ii) a judge has decided (having had regard to the relevant issues) that the interests of justice require that the application should be made orally.
- (4) Oral evidence may only be given on an application for dismissal —
 - (a) with the leave of a judge; or
 - (b) in accordance with an order of a judge.
- (5) A judge may only give leave under subsection (4)(a) or make an order under subsection (4)(b) if it appears to the judge (having regard to the relevant issues) that the interests of justice require leave to be given or an order made.
- (6) Subsection (7) applies if —
 - (a) a judge —
 - (i) gives leave permitting a person to give oral evidence; or
 - (ii) makes an order requiring a person to give oral evidence; but
 - (b) the person does not give oral evidence.
- (7) If this subsection applies —
 - (a) the judge hearing or considering an application for dismissal may disregard a document indicating the evidence that the person might have given; or
 - (b) if there is more than one document indicating the evidence that the person might have given, the judge hearing or considering an application for dismissal may disregard —
 - (i) all of those documents; or

- (ii) one or more of them.
- (8) The judge hearing or considering an application for dismissal must dismiss a charge which is the subject of an application if it appears to the judge that the evidence against the applicant would not be sufficient for a jury properly to convict the applicant.
- (9) If one or more charges against an applicant are dismissed, then —
- (a) if the dismissed charge or charges relate only to one count in an indictment preferred against the applicant, the judge must quash that count;
 - (b) if the dismissed charge or charges relate to more than one count in one or more indictments, the judge must quash all of those counts;
 - (c) further proceedings may only be brought on the dismissed charge or charges by the preferment of a voluntary bill of indictment; and
 - (d) unless the applicant is in custody otherwise than on the dismissed charge or charges, the applicant must be discharged.
- (10) A judge may —
- (a) issue practice directions about the conduct of applications for dismissal generally; and
 - (b) make orders about the conduct of particular applications for dismissal.
- (11) Without limiting the power in subsection (10), practice directions issued and orders made pursuant to it may make provision about —
- (a) the time or stage in the proceedings at which things required (or allowed) to be done under this section are to be done (unless a judge grants leave to do one or more of those things at some other time or stage);
 - (b) the contents and form of notices or other documents;
 - (c) the manner in which evidence is to be submitted; and
 - (d) persons to be served with notices or other material.

[Admin. of justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Criminal Justice Act 1987 s.6; Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Sched. 3]

Reporting restrictions

200. Restriction on reporting sending proceedings

(1) Except as provided by this Part, no person may in the Falkland Islands make a report of a kind described in section 201(1)(a) to (d) of any sending proceedings.

(2) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may, with reference to any sending proceedings, on an application for the purpose made by the prosecutor or any of the defendants, order that subsection (1) does not apply to reports of those proceedings.

(3) If there is only one defendant and he or she objects to the making of an order under subsection (2), the court may make the order only if it is satisfied, after hearing the representations of the prosecutor and defendant, that it is in the interests of justice to do so.

(4) If in the case of 2 or more defendants one of them objects to the making of an order under subsection (2), the court may make the order only if it is satisfied, after hearing the representations of the prosecutor and all the defendants, that it is in the interests of justice to do so.

(5) An order under subsection (2) must not be made in respect of reports of proceedings under subsection (3) or (4), but any decision of the court to make or not to make such an order may be contained in reports published or included in a relevant programme before the time authorised by subsection (6).

(6) If at any time during the proceedings the court proceeds to try summarily the case of one or more of the defendants under Part 16 (Summary Procedure), while committing the other defendant or one or more of the other defendants for trial, it is not unlawful under this section to publish or include in a relevant programme, as part of a report of the summary trial after the court decides so to proceed, a report, containing matter that is not permitted by section 202, of the part of the sending proceedings that takes place before the decision.

201. Restriction on reporting applications for dismissal

(1) This section applies to reports of applications for dismissal and proceedings relating to them, including —

(a) every written report published (either by itself or as part of a newspaper or periodical) for distribution or circulation to the public (or a section of it) in the Falkland Islands;

(b) every report included in a programme service intended for reception within the Falkland Islands;

(c) every report included in an audio or video recording intended for distribution to the public (or a section of it) in the Falkland Islands; and

(d) every report —

(i) made in another way (including by e-mail, the internet and other messaging services); and

(ii) intended to be received by the public (or a section of it) within the Falkland Islands.

- (2) A person may only make a report to which this section applies to the extent that —
- (a) it is not prohibited or restricted by another provision in —
 - (i) a written law of the Falkland Islands; or
 - (ii) relevant United Kingdom legislation (as it applies in the Falkland Islands); and
 - (b) it is permitted under subsection (3).
- (3) A report to which this section applies is permitted under this subsection if —
- (a) it only contains unrestricted information; or
 - (b) it contains additional information, but —
 - (i) an order has been made under section 203 and the report complies with that order;
 - (ii) section 204(2) applies; or
 - (iii) section 205(2) applies.
- (4) This section is in addition to, and does not derogate from, the provisions of any other enactment with respect to the publication of reports of court proceedings.
[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Schedule 3]

202. Unrestricted information

For the purpose of sections 200 and 201 “unrestricted information” means the following information about sending proceedings, or proceedings relating to an application for dismissal —

- (a) the identity of the court and the name of the judge;
 - (b) the name, age and address of the defendant (or each of them, if there is more than one);
 - (c) the offence or offences (or a summary of them) with which the defendant is (or the defendants are) charged;
 - (d) the names of legal practitioners engaged in the proceedings;
 - (e) if the proceedings have been adjourned, the date to which they have been adjourned;
 - (f) the arrangements as to bail; and
 - (g) whether legal aid has been granted to the defendant (or one or more of them).
- [Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Schedule 3]*

203. Orders allowing additional information to be reported

(1) A judge dealing with an application for dismissal may make an order allowing additional information to be included in reports to which section 201 applies.

(2) An order allowing other information to be included in reports may —

- (a) specify what additional information may be reported (and what may not); and
- (b) contain conditions about how that information is reported.

(3) Subsection (4) applies if —

- (a) there are 2 or more defendants in the same case; and
- (b) one or more of them objects to an order being made allowing other information to be included in reports.

(4) If this subsection applies, the court or judge, as the case may be, may only make an order allowing other information to be included in reports —

- (a) after each of the defendants has been given the opportunity to make representations; and
- (b) if the court or judge is satisfied that it is in the interests of justice that the order be made in those terms.

(5) Proceedings about whether or not to make an order allowing other information in reports may not themselves be reported in reports to which this section applies (even if the order is made), but the decision about whether or not to make an order may be included in a report to which this section applies.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Schedule 3]

204. Lifting of reporting restrictions if application for dismissal successful

(1) In relation to reporting of an application for dismissal, subsection (2) applies —

- (a) if —
 - (i) there is only one defendant in a case;
 - (ii) the defendant applies for dismissal; and
 - (iii) the application is successful;
- (b) if —
 - (i) there is more than one defendant in a case; but

- (ii) only one defendant applies for dismissal; and
 - (iii) the application is successful; or
- (c) if —
- (i) there is more than one defendant in a case;
 - (ii) more than one of the defendants applies for dismissal; and
 - (iii) all of the applications are successful.

(2) If this subsection applies, reports of applications for dismissal to which section 201 applies may include additional information about the successful application (or applications) and the proceedings relating to that application (or those applications).

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Schedule 3]

205. Lifting of reporting restrictions at end of case

(1) Subsection (2) applies —

- (a) if —
 - (i) there is only one defendant in a case;
 - (ii) the defendant applies for dismissal; but
 - (iii) the application is unsuccessful;
- (b) if —
 - (i) there is more than one defendant in a case; and
 - (ii) only one of the defendants applies for dismissal; but
 - (iii) the application is unsuccessful; or
- (c) if —
 - (i) there is more than one defendant in a case; and
 - (ii) more than one of the defendants applies for dismissal; but
 - (iii) one or more of the applications is unsuccessful.

(2) If this subsection applies, information about the application (or applications) and the proceedings relating to that application (or those applications) may be included in reports to which section 201 applies —

(a) if there was only one defendant in the case - after the conclusion of the trial; or

(b) if there was more than one defendant in the same case - after the conclusion of the trial of the last of them to be tried.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Schedule 3]

206. Reporting restrictions: Offences and penalties

(1) If a report to which either section 200 or section 201 applies is made in contravention of the section, each of the following persons commits an offence —

(a) in the case of a publication of a written report as part of a newspaper or periodical – the proprietor, editor or publisher of the newspaper or periodical;

(b) in the case of a publication of a written report otherwise than as part of a newspaper or periodical - the person who publishes it;

(c) in the case of the inclusion of a report in a programme service —

(i) the provider of the service; and

(ii) the person or persons who have functions in relation to the service that correspond to those of the editor of a newspaper;

(d) in the case of the inclusion of a report in a recording —

(i) the publisher of the recording; and

(ii) the person or persons who have functions in relation to the recording that correspond to those of the editor of a newspaper;

(e) in the case of a report made in another way —

(i) the person making the report; and

(ii) if there is a person who has functions in relation to the report that correspond to those of the editor of a newspaper (or more than one person who has such functions) - that person (or those persons).

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

(2) Proceedings for an offence under subsection (1) may not be commenced except by or with the consent of the Attorney General.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 s.52B and Schedule 3]

Taking of depositions, etc.

207. Power of justices to take depositions, etc.

(1) If a person (“the defendant”) has been sent for trial to the Supreme Court for trial under this Part, and a justice of the peace is satisfied that —

(a) another person (“the witness”) is likely to be able to make on behalf of the prosecutor a written statement containing material evidence for the purposes of proceedings for an offence for which the defendant has been sent for trial; but

(b) the witness will not voluntarily make that statement, subsection (3) applies.

(2) Subsection (3) also applies if a justice of the peace is satisfied that —

(a) a person (“the witness”) is likely to be able to produce on behalf of the prosecutor one or more documents or other exhibits likely to be material evidence for the purposes of proceedings for an offence for which a person has been sent to the Supreme Court for trial; but

(b) the witness will not voluntarily produce them.

(3) If this subsection applies, the justice of the peace must issue a summons directed to the witness requiring the witness to —

(a) attend before a justice at the time and place appointed in the summons; and

(b) do either or both of the following —

(i) have the evidence taken as a deposition;

(ii) produce the documents or other exhibits.

(4) Subsection (5) applies if a justice of the peace is satisfied (by evidence on oath) that —

(a) the witness is likely to be able to —

(i) make on behalf of the prosecutor a written statement containing material evidence for the purposes of proceedings for an offence for which a person has been sent to the Supreme Court for trial;

(ii) produce on behalf of the prosecutor one or more documents or other exhibits likely to be material evidence for the purposes of proceedings for an offence for which a person has been sent to the Supreme Court for trial; or

- (iii) do both of those things;
 - (b) it is probable that a summons under subsection (3) would not procure the result required by it; and
 - (c) the person is within the Falkland Islands.
- (5) If this subsection applies, the justice of the peace may (instead of issuing a summons) issue a warrant to —
 - (a) arrest the witness; and
 - (b) bring the witness before a justice at the time and place specified in the warrant.
- (6) Subsection (7) applies if —
 - (a) a witness fails to attend before a justice of the peace in answer to a summons issued under subsection (3);
 - (b) the justice is satisfied (by evidence on oath) that the witness is likely to be able to —
 - (i) make on behalf of the prosecutor a written statement containing material evidence for the purposes of proceedings for an offence for which a person has been sent to the Supreme Court for trial;
 - (ii) produce on behalf of the prosecutor one or more documents or other exhibits likely to be material evidence for the purposes of proceedings for an offence for which a person has been sent to the Supreme Court for trial; or
 - (iii) do both of those things;
 - (c) the justice is satisfied (by evidence on oath or in some other way) that —
 - (i) the witness has been duly served with the summons; and
 - (ii) a reasonable sum has been paid or offered to the witness for costs and expenses; and
 - (d) it appears to the justice that there is no just excuse for the failure.
- (7) If this subsection applies, the justice of the peace may issue a warrant to —
 - (a) arrest the witness; and
 - (b) bring the witness before a justice at the time and place specified in the warrant.
- (8) Subsection (9) applies if —

(a) a summons is issued under subsection (3) or a warrant is issued under subsection (5) or (7); and

(b) the summons or warrant is issued with a view to securing that the evidence of the witness is taken as a deposition.

(9) If this subsection applies, the time appointed in the summons (or specified in the warrant) must be appointed (or specified) so that the evidence can be taken as a deposition before the time by which copies of evidence must be served and forwarded under section 195.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Sched. 3]

208. Taking of depositions: Supplementary

(1) Subsections (2) to (5) apply if a person attending (or brought) before a justice of the peace pursuant to section 207 refuses (without just excuse) to —

(a) have evidence taken as a deposition;

(b) produce the documents or other exhibits; or

(c) do either of those things.

(2) If this subsection applies, the justice of the peace may commit the witness to custody.

(3) A committal under subsection (2) must be ended once —

(a) if the witness had attended (or been brought) before a justice of the peace for evidence to be taken as a deposition - that evidence has been taken as a deposition;

(b) if the witness had attended (or been brought) before a justice to produce one or more documents or other exhibits, the documents or other exhibits have been produced;

(c) if the witness had attended (or been brought) before a justice to do both of those things, both of those things have been done.

(4) A committal under subsection (2) also comes to an end after the witness has been in custody on that committal for a period of one month.

(5) If this subsection applies —

(a) the justice of the peace may (instead of or as well as committing the witness to custody) impose on the witness a fine of up to level 5 on the standard scale;

(b) that fine is to be treated as a sum adjudged to be paid on a conviction.

(6) Subsection (7) applies to a person if either or both of the following things have been done —

- (a) the person has been committed to custody under subsection (2);
- (b) a fine has been imposed on the person under subsection (5).

(7) A person to whom this subsection applies may appeal to a judge against the committal or fine (or both of them).

(8) An appeal under subsection (7) —

- (a) may be made and dealt with orally or in writing; and
- (b) if dealt with in writing, may be dealt with by the judge while outside the Falkland Islands.

(9) If, pursuant to section 207, a person has evidence taken as a deposition, the justice of the peace before whom the deposition was taken must arrange for copies of the deposition to be sent (as soon as is reasonably practicable) to the prosecutor and the Supreme Court.

(10) If, pursuant to section 207, a person produces an exhibit which is a document, the justice of the peace to whom the document was produced must arrange for copies of the document to be sent (as soon as is reasonably practicable) to the prosecutor and the Supreme Court.

(11) If, pursuant to this section, a person produces an exhibit which is not a document, the justice of the peace to whom the exhibit was produced must arrange for the following information to be provided to the prosecutor and the Supreme Court as soon as is reasonably practicable —

- (a) the fact that the exhibit has been produced; and
- (b) the nature of the exhibit.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Sched. 3]

209. Use of depositions as evidence

(1) Unless subsection (2) applies, a deposition taken under section 207 may (without further proof) be read as evidence of the person from whom it was taken on the trial of a defendant for—

- (a) an offence for which the person was sent to the Supreme Court for trial; or
- (b) another offence arising out of the same transaction or set of circumstances.

(2) This subsection applies (and a deposition may not be read as evidence) if one or more of the following apply —

- (a) it is proved that the deposition was not signed by the justice of the peace by whom it purports to have been signed;

(b) the judge presiding over the trial orders that the deposition is not to be read as evidence;
or

(c) a party to the proceedings objects to the deposition being read as evidence, unless the judge presiding over the trial —

(i) considers that the interests of justice require that the objection should have no effect;
and

(ii) orders that the deposition may be read as evidence.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Sched. 3]

PART 13 – COMMITTAL FOR SENTENCE

210. Committal for sentence by Summary Court

(1) If, on the conviction of a person for an offence for which the maximum penalty prescribed by law exceeds the maximum penalty which the Summary Court can impose, it appears to the court, after obtaining information regarding the character and antecedents of the person, that a sentence should be imposed greater than that which it may lawfully impose, the court may commit the person to the Magistrate's Court for sentence.

(2) If the court commits a person under subsection (1), section 211 applies.

(3) A person may be committed under this section either in custody or on bail.

(4) Subsections (1) and (2) apply to corporations as they do to individuals.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.3]

211. Power to commit for other offences

(1) If under section 210 the Summary Court commits a person to the Magistrate's Court for sentence, the court may also commit the person, in custody or on bail as the case may require, to the Magistrate's Court to be dealt with in respect of —

(a) any other offence in respect of which the Summary Court has power to deal with the person and of which the person has been convicted by that Court;

(b) any suspended sentence in respect of which the Summary Court has power under section 569 to deal with the person;

(c) any offence which appears to the Summary Court to have been committed by the person while the subject of an order of conditional discharge.

(2) The other offence mentioned in subsection (1)(a) may be an offence in respect of which the Summary Court has a power or duty under the Road Traffic Ordinance to order the person to be disqualified from holding or obtaining a driving licence.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.6]

212. Duty of Magistrate’s Court on a committal for sentence

(1) If under section 210 the Summary Court commits a person to the Magistrate’s Court for sentence, the Magistrate’s Court —

- (a) must inquire into the circumstances of the case; and
- (b) may deal with the person in any way in which the Magistrate’s Court could have dealt with the person if the person had just been convicted of the offence before that court.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply if the Summary Court commits a person under section 211(1)(b) to be dealt with by the Magistrate’s Court in respect of a suspended sentence, but in such a case the powers under section 568 (Power of court on conviction for further offence) are exercisable by the Magistrate’s Court.

(3) Without affecting subsection (1) or (2), if the Summary Court commits a person to the Magistrate’s Court for sentence, any duty or power which, apart from this section, would fall to be discharged or exercised by the Summary Court must not be discharged or exercised by that court but must be discharged or may be exercised by the Magistrate’s Court.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss.5 and 7]

213. Committal of youths for sentence

If under section 210 the Summary Court commits a youth to the Magistrate’s Court for sentence, the Magistrate’s Court —

- (a) must constitute itself as a Youth Court;
- (b) must enquire into the circumstances of the case; and
- (c) may deal with the youth in any manner in which the Magistrate’s Court might have dealt with the youth if the youth had just been convicted by that court sitting as a Youth Court.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.58 modified]

214. Committal for sentence: Supplementary provisions

(1) If under section 210 the Summary Court commits a person to the Magistrate’s Court for sentence following a conviction by the Summary Court, the Clerk of the court must —

- (a) give notice to the prosecutor and the Chief Police Officer of the date on which the case will be dealt with by the Magistrate’s Court; and
- (b) send to the Magistrate’s Court a copy of the court record relating to the conviction, certified by the Clerk of the court.

(2) For purposes of the grant of legal aid committal for sentence may be regarded as an appeal against sentence.

CHAPTER 6 - TRIAL

PART 14 – DISCLOSURE OF MATERIAL

Preliminary

215. Application of Part

(1) This Part applies when —

- (a) a person is sent for trial on indictment to the Supreme Court; or
- (b) a person is charged with an imprisonable summary offence and pleads not guilty to the charge in court.

(2) This Part does not apply in relation to an alleged offence into which a criminal investigation began before the commencement of this Part, unless the suspect is charged after the commencement of this Part.

(3) If there is more than one defendant in any proceedings, this Part applies separately in relation to each defendant.

(4) Subsections (3) to (6) of section 216 and sections 237 and 238 (confidentiality) have effect subject to sections 229 to 234 (disclosure of protected material).

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. ss.2 and 3; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.1]

Duty of disclosure

216. Initial duty of prosecutor to disclose

(1) The prosecutor must —

- (a) disclose to the defendant any prosecution material which has not previously been disclosed to the defendant and which might reasonably be considered capable of undermining the case for the prosecution against the defendant or of assisting the case for the defendant; or
- (b) give to the defendant a written statement that there is no material of a description mentioned in paragraph (a).

(2) For the purposes of this section prosecution material is material which —

- (a) is in the prosecutor's possession, and came into his or her possession in connection with the case for the prosecution against the defendant; or
- (b) in compliance with this Ordinance and any relevant code of practice the prosecutor has inspected in connection with the case for the prosecution against the defendant.

(3) If material consists of information which has been recorded in any form, the prosecutor discloses it for the purposes of this section —

(a) by ensuring that a copy is made of it and that the copy is given to the defendant; or

(b) if in the prosecutor's opinion that is not practicable or not desirable - by allowing the defendant to inspect it at a reasonable time and a reasonable place or by taking steps to ensure that the defendant is allowed to do so.

(4) A copy may be in such form as the prosecutor thinks fit and need not be in the same form as that in which the information has already been recorded.

(5) If material consists of information which has not been recorded, the prosecutor discloses it for the purposes of this section by ensuring that it is recorded in such form as the prosecutor thinks fit and —

(a) by securing that a copy is made of it and that the copy is given to the defendant; or

(b) if in the prosecutor's opinion that is not practicable or not desirable - by allowing the defendant to inspect it at a reasonable time and a reasonable place or by taking steps to ensure that he or she is allowed to do so.

(6) If material does not consist of information, the prosecutor discloses it for the purposes of this section by allowing the defendant to inspect it at a reasonable time and a reasonable place or by taking steps to ensure that the defendant is allowed to do so.

(7) Material must not be disclosed under this section to the extent that the court, on an application by the prosecutor, concludes that it is not in the public interest to disclose it and orders accordingly.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.5; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.3]

217. Initial duty to disclose: Further provisions

(1) The prosecutor must act under section 216 —

(a) as soon as is reasonably practicable after the defendant is sent to the Supreme Court for trial, in the case of an indictment-only offence, or of a linked offence included in an indictment, as provided by Part 12 (Sending for Trial);

(b) as soon as is reasonably practicable after the defendant pleads not guilty, in the case of an imprisonable summary offence.

(2) In determining what is reasonably practicable —

(a) the court may take account of the nature or volume of the material concerned; and

(b) the nature of material may be defined by reference to the prosecutor's belief that the question of non-disclosure on grounds of public interest may arise.

(3) If —

(a) the prosecutor acts under section 216; and

(b) before so doing he or she is given a document of a kind described in section 216(1), the prosecutor must give the document to the defendant at the same time as the prosecutor acts under section 216.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.6; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 ss.4 and 13]

218. Compulsory disclosure by defendant

(1) If this Part applies by virtue of section 215(1)(a), this section does not apply unless the prosecutor has served on the defendant a copy of the indictment and a copy of the set of documents containing the evidence which is the basis of the indictment.

(2) If this Part applies by virtue of section 215(1)(b), this section does not apply unless the prosecutor has served on the defendant a copy of the set of documents containing the evidence which is the basis of the charge.

(3) If this section applies, and the prosecutor complies or purports to comply with section 216, the defendant must give a defence statement to the court and the prosecutor.

(4) If there are other defendants in the proceedings and the court so orders, the defendant must also give a defence statement to every other defendant specified by the court.

(5) The court may make an order under subsection (4) either on its own initiative or on the application of any party.

(6) A defence statement that has to be given to the court and the prosecutor under subsection (4) must be given during the period which, by virtue of section 228, is the relevant period for this section.

(7) A defence statement that has to be given to a co-defendant under subsection (6) must be given within the period the court specifies.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.7; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.5]

219. Contents of defence statement

(1) For the purposes of this Part a defence statement is a written statement —

(a) setting out the nature of the defendant's defence, including any particular defences on which the defendant intends to rely;

(b) indicating the matters of fact on which the defendant takes issue with the prosecution;

(c) setting out, in the case of each such matter, why the defendant takes issue with the prosecution;

(d) setting out particulars of the matters of fact on which the defendant intends to rely for the purpose of the defence; and

(e) indicating any point of law (including any point as to the admissibility of evidence or an abuse of process) which the defendant wishes to take, and any authority on which the defendant intends to rely for that purpose.

(2) A defence statement that discloses an alibi must give particulars of it, including —

(a) the name, address and date of birth of any witness the defendant believes is able to give evidence in support of the alibi, or as many of those details as are known to the defendant when the statement is given;

(b) any information in the defendant's possession which might be of material assistance in identifying or finding any such witness in whose case any of the details mentioned in paragraph (a) are not known to the defendant when the statement is given.

(3) For the purposes of this section, evidence in support of an alibi is evidence tending to show that by reason of the presence of the defendant at a particular place or in a particular locality at a particular time he or she was not, or was unlikely to have been, at the place where the offence is alleged to have been committed at the time of its alleged commission.

(4) Criminal procedure rules may make provision as to the matters that, by virtue of subsection (1), are to be included in defence statements.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.6A ins. by CJ Act 2003 and amended]

220. Updated disclosure by defendant

(1) If the defendant has, before the beginning of the relevant period for this section, given a defence statement under section 218, the defendant must during that period give to the court and the prosecutor either —

(a) a defence statement under this section (an “updated defence statement”); or

(b) a statement of the kind mentioned in subsection (4).

(2) The relevant period for this section is decided under section 228.

(3) An updated defence statement must comply with the requirements imposed by or under section 219 by reference to the state of affairs at the time when the statement is given.

(4) Instead of an updated defence statement, the defendant may give a written statement stating that the defendant has no changes to make to the defence statement which was given under section 218.

(5) If there are other defendants in the proceedings and the court so orders, the defendant must also give either an updated defence statement or a statement of the kind mentioned in subsection (4), within a period specified by the court, to every other defendant so specified.

(6) The court may make an order under subsection (5) either on its own initiative or on the application of any party.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.6B ins. by CJ Act 2003]

221. Notification of intention to call defence witnesses

(1) The defendant must give to the court and the prosecutor a notice indicating whether the defendant intends to call any persons (other than himself or herself, being an individual) as witnesses at the trial and, if so —

(a) giving the name, address and date of birth of each such proposed witness, or as many of those details as are known to the defendant when the notice is given;

(b) providing any information in the defendant's possession which might be of material assistance in identifying or finding any such proposed witness in whose case any of the details mentioned in paragraph (a) are not known to the defendant when the notice is given.

(2) Details do not have to be given under this section to the extent that they have already been given under section 219(2).

(3) The defendant must give a notice under this section during the period which, by virtue of section 228, is the relevant period for this section.

(4) If, following the giving of a notice under this section, the defendant —

(a) decides to call a person (other than himself or herself, being an individual) who is not included in the notice as a proposed witness, or decides not to call a person who is so included; or

(b) discovers any information which, under subsection (1), the defendant would have had to include in the notice if the defendant had been aware of it when giving the notice, the defendant must give an appropriately amended notice to the court and the prosecutor.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.6C ins. by CJ Act 2003]

222. Notification of names of experts instructed by defendant

(1) If the defendant instructs a person with a view to that person providing any expert opinion for possible use as evidence at the trial of the defendant, the defendant must give to the court and the prosecutor a notice specifying the person's name and address.

(2) A notice does not have to be given under this section specifying the name and address of a person whose name and address have already been given under section 221.

(3) A notice under this section must be given during the period which, by virtue of 228, is the relevant period for this section.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.6D ins. by CJ Act 2003]

223. Disclosure by defendant: Further provisions

(1) If a defendant's legal practitioner purports to give on behalf of the defendant —

(a) a defence statement under section 218 or 220; or

(b) a statement of the kind mentioned in section 220(4), the statement is, unless the contrary is proved, deemed to be given with the authority of the defendant.

(2) If it appears to the person presiding at a pre-trial hearing that a defendant has failed to comply fully with section 218, 220 or 221, so that there is a possibility of comment being made or inferences drawn under section 227(5), the person presiding must warn the defendant accordingly.

(3) The judge in a trial before a judge and jury —

(a) may direct that the jury be given a copy of any defence statement; and

(b) if he or she does so, may direct that it be edited so as not to include references to matters evidence of which would be inadmissible.

(4) A direction under subsection (3) —

(a) may be made either on the judge's own initiative or on the application of any party;

(b) may be made only if the judge is of the opinion that seeing a copy of the defence statement would help the jury to understand the case or to resolve any issue in the case.

(5) The reference in subsection (3) to a defence statement is a reference —

(a) if the defendant has given only an initial defence statement (that is, a defence statement given under section 218 - to that statement;

(b) if the defendant has given both an initial defence statement and an updated defence statement (that is, a defence statement given under section 220) - to the updated defence statement;

- (c) if the defendant has given both an initial defence statement and a statement of the kind mentioned in section 220(4) - to the initial defence statement.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.6E ins. by CJ Act 2003]

224. Continuing duty of prosecutor to disclose

(1) This section applies —

- (a) after the prosecutor has complied or purported to comply with section 216; and
- (b) before the defendant is acquitted or convicted or the prosecutor decides not to proceed with the case.

(2) The prosecutor must keep under review the question whether at any given time (and, in particular, following the giving of a defence statement) there is prosecution material which —

- (a) might reasonably be considered capable of undermining the case for the prosecution against the defendant or of assisting the case for the defendant; and
- (b) has not been disclosed to the defendant.

(3) If at any time there is any such material as is mentioned in subsection (2) the prosecutor must disclose it to the defendant as soon as is reasonably practicable (or within the period mentioned in subsection (5)(a), if that applies).

(4) In applying subsection (2) by reference to any given time, the state of affairs at that time (including the case for the prosecution as it stands at that time) must be taken into account.

(5) If the defendant has given a defence statement under section 218 or 220 —

- (a) if as a result of that statement the prosecutor is required by this section to make any disclosure, or further disclosure, he or she must do so as soon as is reasonably practicable after the defendant gives the statement;
- (b) if the prosecutor considers that he or she is not so required, the prosecutor must as soon as is reasonably practicable after the defendant gives the statement give the defendant a written statement to that effect.

(6) For the purposes of this section prosecution material is material —

- (a) which is in the prosecutor's possession and came into his or her possession in connection with the case for the prosecution against the defendant; or
- (b) which, in compliance with any relevant code of practice, the prosecutor has inspected in connection with the case for the prosecution against the defendant.

(7) Subsections (3) to (6) of section 216 apply for the purposes of this section as they apply for the purposes of that section.

(8) Material must not be disclosed under this section to the extent that the court, on an application by the prosecutor, concludes it is not in the public interest to disclose it and orders accordingly.

(9) Material must not be disclosed under this section to the extent that it is material the disclosure of which is prohibited by any other law.

(10) Section 217(2) applies for the purpose of determining whether action has been taken as soon as is reasonably practicable.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.7A ins. by CJ Act 2003]

225. Application by defendant for disclosure

(1) This section applies if the defendant has given a defence statement under section 218 or 220 and the prosecutor has complied or purported to comply with section 224(5) or has failed to comply with it.

(2) If the defendant has at any time reasonable cause to believe that there is prosecution material which is required by section 224 to be disclosed to the defendant and has not been, the defendant may apply to the court for an order requiring the prosecutor to disclose it to the defendant.

(3) For the purposes of this section prosecution material is material which —

(a) is in the prosecutor's possession and came into his or her possession in connection with the case for the prosecution against the defendant;

(b) in compliance with any relevant code of practice the prosecutor has inspected in connection with the case for the prosecution against the defendant; or

(c) falls within subsection (4) or (5).

(4) Material falls within this subsection if, in compliance with any relevant code of practice, the prosecutor must, if he or she asks for the material, be given a copy of it or be allowed to inspect it in connection with the case for the prosecution against the defendant.

(5) Material falls within this subsection if it is material of a kind described in section 216(1)(a) which the defendant reasonably believes is held by any department of the Government.

(6) The defendant cannot apply to the court for an order for the disclosure of material as mentioned in subsection (4) unless —

(a) the defendant has asked the prosecutor in writing for a copy of specified information that the defendant reasonably believes is held by a department of the Government; and

(b) the prosecutor has in writing refused the request.

(7) Material must not be disclosed under this section to the extent that the court, on an application by the prosecutor, concludes it is not in the public interest to disclose it and orders accordingly.

(8) Material must not be disclosed under this section to the extent that it is material the disclosure of which is prohibited by any other law.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.10; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.8]

226. Prosecutor's failure to observe time limits

(1) This section applies if the prosecutor —

(a) purports to act under section 216 but fails to act as soon as is reasonably practicable, as required by section 217(1); or

(b) purports to act under section 224(5) but fails to act as soon as is reasonably practicable as required by that section.

(2) A failure by the prosecution to act as soon as is reasonably practicable —

(a) does not on its own constitute grounds for staying the proceedings for abuse of process; but

(b) does constitute such grounds if it involves such delay by the prosecutor that the defendant is denied a fair trial.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.12; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.10 adapted]

227. Faults in disclosure by defendant

(1) This section applies in the 3 cases set out in subsections (2), (3) and (4).

(2) The first case is where section 218 applies and the defendant —

(a) fails to give an initial defence statement;

(b) gives an initial defence statement but does so after the end of the period which, by virtue of section 228, is the relevant period for section 218;

(c) is required by section 210 to give either an updated defence statement or a statement of the kind mentioned in subsection (4) of that section but fails to do so;

(d) gives an updated defence statement or a statement of the kind mentioned in section 210(4) but does so after the end of the period which, by virtue of section 228, is the relevant period for section 220;

(e) sets out inconsistent defences in the defence statement; or

(f) at the trial —

(i) puts forward a defence which was not mentioned in the defence statement or is different from any defence set out in that statement;

(ii) relies on a matter which, in breach of the requirements imposed by or under section 219, was not mentioned in the defence statement;

(iii) adduces evidence in support of an alibi without having given particulars of the alibi in the defence statement; or

(iv) calls a witness to give evidence in support of an alibi without having complied with section 219(2)(a) or (b) as regards the witness in the defence statement.

(3) The second case is where section 219 applies, the defendant gives an initial defence statement, and the defendant —

(a) gives the initial defence statement after the end of the period which, by virtue of section 228, is the relevant period for section 208; or

(b) does any of the things mentioned in paragraphs (c) to (f) of subsection (2).

(4) The third case is where the defendant —

(a) gives a witness notice but does so after the end of the period which, by virtue of section 228, is the relevant period for section 221; or

(b) at the trial calls a witness (other than himself or herself, being an individual) not included, or not adequately identified, in a witness notice.

(5) If this section applies —

(a) the court or any other party may make any comment that appears appropriate;

(b) the court or jury may draw inferences that appear proper in deciding whether the defendant is guilty of the offence concerned.

(6) If —

(a) this section applies by virtue of subsection (2)(f)(ii)(including that provision as it applies by virtue of subsection (3)(b)); and

(b) the matter which was not mentioned is a point of law (including any point as to the admissibility of evidence or an abuse of process) or an authority, comment by another party under subsection (5)(a) may be made only with the leave of the court.

(7) If this section applies by virtue of subsection (4), comment by another party under subsection (5)(a) may be made only with the leave of the court.

(8) If the defendant puts forward a defence which is different from any defence set out in the defence statement, in doing anything under subsection (5) or in deciding whether to do anything under it the court must have regard to —

(a) the extent of the differences in the defences; and

(b) whether there is any justification for it.

(9) If the defendant calls a witness whom the defendant has failed to include, or to identify adequately, in a witness notice, in doing anything under subsection (5) or in deciding whether to do anything under it the court must have regard to whether there is any justification for the failure.

(10) A person must not be convicted of an offence solely on an inference drawn under subsection (5).

(11) If the defendant has given a statement of the kind mentioned in section 221(4), then, for the purposes of subsection (2)(f)(ii) and (iv), the question as to whether there has been a breach of the requirements imposed by or under section 220 or a failure to comply with section 219(2)(a) or (b) is to be decided —

(a) by reference to the state of affairs at the time when that statement was given; and

(b) as if the defence statement was given at the same time as that statement.

(12) In this section —

(a) “initial defence statement” means a defence statement given under section 218;

“updated defence statement” means a defence statement given under section 220; and “witness notice” means a notice given under section 221;

(b) a reference simply to a defendant’s “defence statement” is a reference —

(i) if the defendant has given only an initial defence statement - to that statement;

(ii) if the defendant has given both an initial and an updated defence statement - to the updated defence statement;

(iii) if the defendant has given both an initial defence statement and a statement of the kind mentioned in section 220(4) - to the initial defence statement;

(c) a reference to evidence in support of an alibi is to be construed in accordance with section 219(3).

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.13; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.11]

228. Time limit for defence disclosure

(1) This section has effect for the purpose of determining the relevant period for action to be taken by a defendant under section 218 or any of sections 220 to 222.

(2) Subject to this section, the relevant period is a period beginning with the day on which the prosecutor complies, or purports to comply, with section 216 and ending —

(a) in the case of summary proceedings - at the end of 14 days after that day;

(b) in the case of proceedings on indictment – at the end of 28 days after that day.

(3) The period referred to in subsection (2) may by order, upon an application made by the defendant before the expiration of that period, be extended by the court at its discretion.

(4) An application under subsection (3) must —

(a) state that the defendant believes, on reasonable grounds, that it is not possible for the defendant to take action as required by any of the sections mentioned in subsection (1) during the period referred to in subsection (2);

(b) specify the grounds for so believing; and

(c) specify the number of days by which the defendant wishes that period to be extended.

(5) The court must not make an order under subsection (3) unless it is satisfied that the defendant cannot reasonably give or, as the case may be, could not reasonably have taken the required action during the period referred to in subsection (2).

(6) The court by order may further extend the relevant period on further application made by the defendant before the expiry of the extended period and subsections (4) and (5) apply for the purposes of an order under this subsection as they apply for the purposes of an order under subsection (3).

(7) There is no limit on the number of applications that may be made under subsection (3) as applied by subsection (6) and on a second or subsequent application the court has the same powers as on the first application.

(8) In the application of this section, the relevant period means that period as extended or further extended by an order of the court under subsection (3) or (6).

(9) If the relevant period would, apart from this subsection, expire on a Saturday, Sunday or public holiday, the period is to be treated as expiring on the next day which is not one of those days.

Sexual offences: Protected material

229. Meaning of “protected material”, etc.

(1) In this Part, “protected material”, in relation to proceedings for a sexual offence, means a copy (in whatever form) of any of the following material, namely —

- (a) a statement relating to that or any other sexual offence made by any victim of the offence (whether the statement is recorded in writing or in any other form);
- (b) a photograph or pseudo-photograph of any such victim; or
- (c) a report of a medical examination of the physical condition of any such victim, which is a copy given by the prosecutor to any person under this Part.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1) a person is, in relation to any proceedings for a sexual offence, a victim of that offence if —

- (a) the charge, summons or indictment by which the proceedings are commenced names that person as a person in relation to whom that offence was committed; or
- (b) that offence can, in the prosecutor’s opinion, be reasonably regarded as having been committed in relation to that person, and a person is, in relation to any such proceedings, a victim of any other sexual offence if that offence can, in the prosecutor's opinion, be reasonably regarded as having been committed in relation to that person.

(3) In this Part, where the context so permits, but subject to subsection (4) —

- (a) references to protected material include references to any part of such material; and
- (b) references to a copy of any protected material include references to any part of such a copy.

(4) Nothing in this Part —

- (a) so far as it refers to a defendant making any copy of —

- (i) any protected material; or
- (ii) a copy of any such material, applies to a manuscript copy which is not a word-for-word copy of the whole of that material or copy; or

(b) so far as it refers to a defendant having in his or her possession a copy of any protected material, applies to a manuscript copy made by the defendant which is not a verbatim copy of the whole of that material.

(5) In this Part —

“defendant”, in relation to any proceedings for a sexual offence, means any person charged with that offence (whether or not the person has been convicted);

“inform” means inform in writing;

“photograph” means any process by means of which an image may be produced and includes —

(a) the negative as well as the positive version; and

(b) data stored on a computer disc or by other electronic means which is capable of conversion into a photograph;

“pseudo-photograph” means an image, whether made by computer-graphics or otherwise howsoever, which appears to be a photograph;

“relevant proceedings” in relation to the disclosure of protected material means the proceedings for the purposes of which material has been disclosed or any further proceedings for the sexual offence in question.

[UK Sexual Offences (Protected Material) Act 1997 ss.1 & 2 am. by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

230. Disclosures by prosecutor

(1) If, in connection with any proceedings for a sexual offence, any statement or other material falling within any of paragraphs (a) to (c) of section 229 (1) would (apart from this section) fall to be disclosed by the prosecutor to the defendant —

(a) the prosecutor must not disclose that material to the defendant; and

(b) it must instead be disclosed under this Part in accordance with whichever of subsections (2) and (3) below is applicable.

(2) If —

(a) the defendant has a legal practitioner; and

(b) the defendant's legal practitioner gives the prosecutor the undertaking required by section 231, the prosecutor must disclose the material in question by giving a copy of it to the defendant's legal practitioner.

(3) If subsection (2) is not applicable, the prosecutor must disclose the material in question by giving a copy of it to the appropriate person for the purposes of section 232 in order for that person to show that copy to the defendant under that section.

(4) If under this Part a copy of any material falls to be given to any person by the prosecutor, the copy —

(a) may be in such form as the prosecutor thinks fit; and

(b) if the material consists of information which has been recorded in any form, need not be in the same form as that in which it has been recorded.

(5) Once a copy of any material is given to any person under this Part by the prosecutor, the copy is, in accordance with section 229(1), protected material for the purposes of this Part. [UK Sexual Offences (Protected Material) Act 1997 s.3 am. by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

231. Disclosure to defendant's legal practitioner

(1) For the purposes of this Part, the undertaking which a defendant's legal practitioner is required to give in relation to any protected material given to him or her under this Part is an undertaking to discharge the obligations set out in subsections (2) to (7) of this section.

(2) The legal practitioner must take reasonable steps to ensure that —

(a) the protected material, or any copy of it, is only shown to the defendant in circumstances where it is possible to exercise adequate supervision to prevent the defendant retaining possession of the material or copy or making a copy of it; and

(b) the protected material is not shown and no copy of it is given, and its contents are not otherwise revealed, to any person other than the defendant, except so far as it appears to the legal practitioner necessary to show the material or give a copy of it to any such person —

(i) in connection with any relevant proceedings; or

(ii) for the purposes of any assessment or treatment of the defendant (whether before or after conviction).

(3) The legal practitioner must inform the defendant that —

(a) the protected material is such material for the purposes of this Part;

(b) the defendant can only inspect that material, or any copy of it, in the circumstances described in subsection (2)(a); and

(c) it would be an offence for the defendant —

(i) to have the material, or any copy of it, in his or her possession except when inspecting it or the copy in such circumstances; or

(ii) to give the material or any copy of it, or otherwise reveal its contents, to any other person.

(4) The legal practitioner must, if the protected material or a copy of it has been shown or given in accordance with subsection (2)(b)(i) or (ii) to a person ('A') other than the defendant, inform A that he or she must not give any copy of the material, or otherwise reveal its contents —

(a) to any other person other than the defendant; or

(b) to the defendant except in the circumstances described in subsection (2)(a),

and that it would be an offence for A to do so.

(5) The legal practitioner must, if he or she ceases to act as the defendant's legal practitioner at a time when any relevant proceedings are current or in contemplation —

(a) inform the prosecutor of that fact; and

(b) if the legal practitioner is informed by the prosecutor that the defendant has a new legal practitioner who has given the prosecutor the undertaking required by this section, give the protected material, and any copies of it in his or her possession, to the defendant's new legal practitioner.

(6) The legal practitioner must, at the time of giving the protected material to the new legal practitioner under subsection (5), inform the new legal practitioner —

(a) that the material is protected material for the purposes of this Part; and

(b) of the extent to which —

(i) the material has been shown by the original legal practitioner; and

(ii) any copies of it have been given by that legal practitioner to any other person (including the defendant).

(7) The legal practitioner must —

(a) keep a record of every occasion on which the protected material was shown, or a copy of it was given, as mentioned in subsection (2)(b); and

(b) provide a copy of the record to the prosecutor upon written request.

(8) At the end of the proceedings, or if the legal practitioner ceases to act for the defendant if that is sooner (unless subsection (5)(b) above applies), the defendant's legal practitioner must return the protected material to the prosecutor, or arrange for its destruction to the prosecutor's satisfaction.

(9) For the purpose of subsection (8), proceedings come to an end when there is no further right of appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in respect of them.

[UK Sexual Offences (Protected Material) Act 1997 s.4 am. by Criminal Justice Act 2003 and modified]

232. Disclosure to unrepresented defendant

(1) This section applies if, in accordance with section 230(3), a copy of any material falls to be given by the prosecutor to the appropriate person for the purposes of this section in order for that person to show that copy to the defendant under this section.

(2) For the purpose of subsection (1), the "appropriate person" is —

(a) if the defendant is detained in prison - the Officer in Charge of the Prison.

(b) in other cases - a police officer of the rank of sergeant or above specifically authorised by the Chief Police Officer in each case to receive from the prosecutor a copy of the material.

(3) The appropriate person must take reasonable steps to ensure that —

(a) the copy of the protected material is only shown to the defendant in circumstances where it is possible to exercise adequate supervision to prevent the defendant retaining possession of the material or copy or making a copy of it;

(b) subject to paragraph (a), the defendant is given such access to that material, or a copy of it, as he or she reasonably requires in connection with any relevant proceedings; and

(c) the material is not shown and no copy of it is given, and its contents are not otherwise revealed, to any person other than the defendant.

(4) The prosecutor must, at the time of giving the protected material to the appropriate person, inform the person that —

(a) the material is protected material for the purposes of this Part; and

(b) the person must discharge the obligations set out in subsection (3) in relation to that material.

(5) The prosecutor must at that time also inform the defendant that —

- (a) the material is protected material for the purposes of this Part;
- (b) the defendant can only inspect the material, or any copy of it, in the circumstances described in subsection (3)(a); and
- (c) it would be an offence for the defendant —
 - (i) to have that material, or any copy of it, in his or her possession except when inspecting it or the copy in such circumstances; or
 - (ii) to give the material or any copy of it, or otherwise reveal its contents, to any other person, as well as informing the defendant of the effect of subsection (6).

(6) If the defendant requests the prosecutor in writing to give a further copy of the material mentioned in subsection (1) to some other person, and it appears to the prosecutor to be necessary to do so —

- (a) in connection with any relevant proceedings; or
- (b) for the purposes of any assessment or treatment of the defendant (whether before or after conviction), the prosecutor must give such a copy to that other person.

(7) The prosecutor may give such a copy to some other person although no request has been made under subsection (6) if it appears to the prosecutor that in the interests of the defendant it is necessary to do so as mentioned in paragraph (b) of that subsection.

(8) The prosecutor must, when giving a copy to a person under subsection (6) or (7), inform the person that —

- (a) the copy is protected material for the purposes of this Part;
- (b) that the person must not give any copy of the protected material or otherwise reveal its contents —
 - (i) to any person other than the defendant; or
 - (ii) to the defendant except in the circumstances described in subsection (3)(a); and
 - (iii) it would be an offence for the person to do so.

(9) If the prosecutor —

(a) receives a request from the defendant under subsection (6) to give a further copy of the material in question to another person; but

(b) does not consider it to be necessary to do so as mentioned in paragraph (b) of that subsection and accordingly refuses the request, the prosecutor must inform the defendant of the refusal.

[UK Sexual Offences (Protected Material) Act 1997 s.5 am. by Criminal Justice Act 2003 and modified]

233. Further disclosures by prosecutor

(1) If —

(a) any material has been disclosed in accordance with section 230(2) to the defendant's legal practitioner; and

(b) at a time when any relevant proceedings are current or in contemplation the legal practitioner either —

(i) ceases to act as the defendant's legal practitioner in circumstances where section 231(5)(b) does not apply; or

(ii) dies or becomes incapacitated, the material must be further disclosed under this Part in accordance with whichever of section 230(2) or (3) is for the time being applicable.

(2) If —

(a) any material has been disclosed in accordance with section 231(3); and

(b) at a time when any relevant proceedings are current or in contemplation the defendant acquires a legal practitioner who gives the prosecutor the undertaking required by section 231, the material must be further disclosed under this Part, in accordance with section 231(2), to the defendant's legal practitioner.

[UK Sexual Offences (Protected Material) Act 1997 s.6 am. by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

234. Offences

(1) If any material has been disclosed under this Part in connection with any proceedings for a sexual offence, it is an offence for the defendant —

(a) to have the protected material, or any copy of it, in his or her possession except when inspecting it or the copy in the circumstances described in section 231(2)(a) or 232(3)(a); or

(b) to give the material or any copy of it, or otherwise reveal its contents, to any other person.

(2) If any protected material, or any copy of any such material, has been shown or given to any person in accordance with section 231(2)(b)(i) or (ii) or section 232(6) or (7), it is an offence for the person to give any copy of the material or otherwise reveal its contents —

(a) to any person other than the defendant; or

(b) to the defendant except in the circumstances described in section 231(2)(a) or 232(3)(a).

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) apply whether or not any relevant proceedings are current or in contemplation (and references to the defendant are to be construed accordingly).

(4) A person who commits an offence under this section is liable on conviction to imprisonment for 2 years or the statutory maximum fine, or both.

(5) If a person is charged with an offence under this section relating to any protected material or copy of any such material, it is a defence to prove that, at the time of the alleged offence, the person was not aware, and neither suspected nor had reason to suspect, that the material or copy in question was protected material or (as the case may be) a copy of any such material.

(6) The court before which a person is tried for an offence under this section may (whether or not the person is convicted of the offence) make an order requiring the person to return to the prosecutor any protected material, or any copy of any such material, in the person's possession.

(7) Nothing in subsection (1) or (2) applies to—

(a) a disclosure made in the course of any proceedings before a court or in any report of any such proceedings; or

(b) any disclosure made or copy given by a person when returning any protected material, or a copy of any such material, to the prosecutor or the defendant's legal practitioner, and accordingly neither section 231 nor section 232 precludes the making of a disclosure or the giving of a copy in circumstances falling within paragraph (a) or (b) of this subsection.

[UK Sexual Offences (Protected Material) Act 1997 s.8 am. by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

Public interest review of disclosure decisions

235. Public interest review: Summary trials

(1) If this Part applies by virtue of section 215(1)(b), then at any time —

(a) after a court makes an order under section 216(7), 224(8) or 225(2); and

(b) before the defendant is acquitted or convicted or the prosecutor decides not to proceed with the case concerned, the defendant may apply to the court for a review of the question whether it is still not in the public interest to disclose material affected by its order.

(2) In such a case the court must review that question, and if it concludes that it is in the public interest to disclose material to any extent the court must —

(a) so order; and

(b) take reasonable steps to inform the prosecutor of its order.

(3) If the prosecutor is informed of an order made under subsection (2) he or she must act accordingly, having regard to the provisions of this Part (unless the prosecutor decides not to proceed with the case concerned).

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.16; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.14]

236. Public interest review: Trials on indictment

(1) If this Part applies by virtue of section 215(1)(a), the court must keep under review the question whether at any given time it is still not in the public interest to disclose material affected by its order.

(2) The question mentioned in subsection (1) must be kept under review at all times —

(a) after a court makes an order under section 216(7), 224(8) or 225(2); and

(b) before the defendant is acquitted or convicted or the prosecutor decides not to proceed with the case concerned.

(3) The court must keep the question mentioned in subsection (1) under review without the need for an application; but the defendant may apply to the court for a review of that question.

(4) If the court at any time concludes that it is in the public interest to disclose material to any extent it must so order, and must take reasonable steps to inform the prosecutor of its order.

(5) If the prosecutor is informed of an order made under subsection (4) he or she must act accordingly having regard to the provisions of this Part (unless the prosecutor decides not to proceed with the case concerned).

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.17; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.15]

Confidentiality of disclosed information

237. Confidentiality of disclosed information

(1) If the defendant is given or allowed to inspect a document or other object under this Part, then, subject to subsections (2) to (4), the defendant must not use or disclose it or any information recorded in it.

(2) The defendant may use or disclose the object or information —

(a) in connection with the proceedings for the purpose of which the defendant was given the object or allowed to inspect it;

(b) with a view to the taking of further criminal proceedings, such as by way of appeal, with regard to the matter giving rise to those proceedings; or

(c) in connection with any such further criminal proceedings, if they are taken.

(3) The defendant may use or disclose —

(a) the object to the extent that it has been displayed to the public in open court; or

(b) the information to the extent that it has been communicated to the public in open court; but the preceding provisions of this subsection do not apply if the object is displayed or the information is communicated in proceedings to deal with a contravention under section 238.

(4) If —

(a) the defendant applies to the court for an order granting permission to use or disclose the object or information; and

(b) the court makes such an order,

the defendant may use or disclose the object or information for the purpose and to the extent specified by the court.

(5) An application under subsection (4) may be made and dealt with at any time, and in particular after the defendant has been acquitted or convicted or the prosecutor has decided not to proceed with the case concerned.

(6) If —

(a) an application is made under subsection (4); and

(b) the prosecutor or a person claiming to have an interest in the object or information applies to be heard by the court, the court must not make an order granting permission unless the person applying under paragraph (b) has been given an opportunity to be heard.

(7) Nothing in this section affects any other restriction or prohibition on the use or disclosure of an object or information, whether the restriction or prohibition arises under an enactment (whenever passed) or otherwise.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.19; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.17]

238. Confidentiality: Contravention

(1) A person who knowingly uses or discloses an object or information recorded in it in contravention of section 237 commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 2 years, or the statutory maximum fine, or both.

(2) If —

(a) a person is convicted of an offence under this section; and

(b) the object concerned is in the person's possession, the court may order that the object be forfeited and dealt with as the court orders.

(3) The power of the court under subsection (2) includes power to order the object to be destroyed or given to the prosecutor or placed in his or her custody for a specified period.

(4) If —

(a) the court proposes to make an order under subsection (2); and

(b) the convicted person, or any other person claiming to have an interest in the object, applies to be heard by the court, the court must not make the order unless the applicant has been given an opportunity to be heard.

(5) If —

(a) a person is convicted of an offence under this section; and

(b) a copy of the object concerned is in the person's possession, the court may order that the copy be forfeited and dealt with as the court orders.

(6) Subsections (3) and (4) apply for the purposes of subsection (5) as they apply for the purposes of subsection (2), but as if references to the object were references to the copy.

(7) An object or information is inadmissible as evidence in civil proceedings if to adduce it would in the opinion of the court be likely to constitute an offence under this section; and for this purpose “the court” means the court before which the civil proceedings are being taken.

(8) The Supreme Court may act under this section on its own initiative.

(9) The Magistrate’s Court and the Summary Court may each act under this section either on its own initiative or by order on a complaint.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.20; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.18]

Supplementary

239. Procedure on applications – Schedule 4

(1) If —

(a) an application is made under section 216(7), 224(8), 225(2), 235(1) or 236(3) in respect of any material;

(b) a person claiming to have an interest in the material applies to be heard by the court; and

(c) the person shows that he or she was involved (whether alone or with others and whether directly or indirectly) in the prosecutor’s attention being brought to the material, the court must not make an order on the application mentioned in paragraph (a) unless the person applying under paragraph (b) has been given an opportunity to be heard.

(2) Schedule 4 regulates the procedure for making applications under this Part and the other matters mentioned in the Schedule.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.18; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.16 modified]

240. Criminal procedure rules

(1) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules provide for the practice and procedure to be followed in relation to —

(a) an application under any provision of this Part;

(b) the making of an order under any provision of this Part, in addition to the provisions on those matters contained in Schedule 4.

(2) The power to make criminal procedure rules includes power to make, with regard to any proceedings before a court which relate to an alleged offence, provision for —

(a) requiring any party to the proceedings to disclose to the other party or parties any expert evidence which the party proposes to adduce in the proceedings;

(b) prohibiting a party who fails to comply in respect of any evidence with any requirement imposed by virtue of paragraph (a) from adducing that evidence without the leave of the court.

(3) Rules made by virtue of subsection (2) may —

(a) specify the kinds of expert evidence to which they apply;

(b) exempt facts or matters of any description specified in the rules.

(4) Rules made by virtue of this section may make different provision for different cases or classes of case.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.21; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.19 adapted]

241. Saving for other duties of disclosure

(1) A duty of disclosure under any provision of this Part does not affect and is not affected by any duty arising under any other enactment with regard to material to be provided to or by the defendant or a person representing the defendant.

(2) If this Part applies as regards things falling to be done after the commencement of this Part in relation to an alleged offence, the rules of common law which —

(a) were effective immediately before the commencement of this Part; and

(b) relate to the disclosure of material by the prosecutor, do not apply as regards things falling to be done after that time in relation to the alleged offence, except as provided in subsection (3).

(3) Subsection (2) does not affect the rules of common law as to —

(a) the continuing duty of disclosure between a person being arrested or charged and being sent for trial on indictment or pleading not guilty on summary trial; or

(b) whether disclosure is in the public interest.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.22; UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 ss.20 and 21 and Sexual Offences (Protected Material) Act 1997 s.9]

242. Code of practice

(1) Section 120, requiring there to be a code of practice on the recording, retention and disclosure of material obtained in a criminal investigation, applies to the duty of disclosure under this Part as if it were here set out in full.

(2) The Code of Practice on the recording, retention and disclosure of material obtained in a criminal investigation ('Disclosure Code') set out in Schedule 3 is the code of practice required by section 120 as applied by subsection (1).

(3) The Disclosure Code sets out the manner in which police officers are to record, retain and reveal to the prosecutor material obtained in a criminal investigation and which may be relevant to the investigation, and related matters.

PART 15 – PRELIMINARY HEARINGS

243. Application and interpretation of Part

(1) This Part applies —

(a) in relation to an indictment-only offence if the defendant is sent for trial for the offence concerned;

(b) in relation to an imprisonable offence if the defendant enters a plea of not guilty of the offence concerned;

(c) in relation to a linked offence which is sent for trial to the Supreme Court.

(2) In this Part, unless otherwise expressly provided, "judge" or "trial judge" means —

(a) in relation to proceedings on indictment - a judge of the Supreme Court;

(b) in relation to an imprisonable offence —

(i) if proceedings are in the Magistrate's Court - the Senior Magistrate;

(ii) if proceedings are in the Summary Court - the justices of the peace comprising the court at the relevant time, deciding by a majority of them.

(3) Reference in this section to a judge trying a case without a jury include a reference to the Senior Magistrate trying a case in the Magistrate's Court or to justices of the peace trying a case in the Summary Court, as the case may be.

(4) In this Part —

"preliminary hearing" means a hearing ordered by a judge pursuant to section 244;

“publish”, in relation to a report, means publish the report, either by itself or as part of a newspaper or periodical, for distribution to the public, and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly;

“programme” means a programme included in a programme service intended for public reception in the Falkland Islands.

(5) For the purposes of this Part, the start of a summary trial is when a plea of guilty is accepted, or if there is no such plea, when the prosecution opens the case for the prosecution.

(6) Nothing in this Part affects any prohibition or restriction imposed by virtue of any other enactment on a publication or on matter included in a programme.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. ss.2, 30, 37, 38, 40 (definitions); UK CPI Act 1996 ss.28 and 37, 38, 39 (definitions)]; Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.11B am.]

Preliminary hearings

244. Power to order preliminary hearing

(1) If the judge in a case in which a person is charged with an indictment-only offence considers it desirable that there should be a hearing —

- (a) before the jury are sworn; and
- (b) for any of the purposes mentioned in subsection (3),

the judge may order such a hearing to be held.

(2) If the judge in a case in which a person is charged with an imprisonable offence considers it desirable that there should be a preliminary hearing for any of the purposes mentioned in subsection (3), the judge may order such a hearing to be held.

(3) The purposes are those of —

- (a) identifying issues which are likely to be material to the verdict of the jury or, in the case of a trial before a judge sitting without a jury, the decision of the court;
- (b) assisting the comprehension of the jury or the court of such issues;
- (c) expediting the proceedings before the jury or the court;
- (d) assisting the judge’s management of the trial.

(4) A judge may make an order under subsection (1) or (2) —

- (a) on the application of the prosecutor;

(b) on the application of the defendant, or, if there is more than one, any of them; or

(c) on the judge's own initiative.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.31; UK CPI Act 1996 s.29]

245. Timing, etc. of preliminary hearing

(1) A preliminary hearing may be held —

(a) in relation to an indictment-only offence - at any time after the defendant is sent for trial at the Supreme Court but before the jury are sworn;

(b) in relation to an imprisonable offence - at any time after the defendant has pleaded not guilty but before the start of the trial.

(2) A preliminary hearing may be ordered and conducted by a judge other than the trial judge.

(3) More than one preliminary hearing may be ordered and conducted in relation to the same offence.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.32; UK CPI Act 1996 s.30]

246. Preliminary hearing orders

(1) At the preliminary hearing, the judge may exercise any of the powers specified in this section and section 247.

(2) The judge may adjourn a preliminary hearing from time to time, and if it does so —

(a) section 313 applies in the case of the Supreme Court; or

(b) section 264 applies in the case of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court.

(3) The judge may order the prosecutor —

(a) to give the court and the defendant or, if there is more than one defendant, each of them, a written statement (a case statement) of the matters falling within subsection (4);

(b) to prepare the prosecution evidence and any explanatory material in such a form as appears to the judge to be likely to aid comprehension by the jury (if any);

(c) to give the court and the defendant or, if there is more than one, each of them, written notice of documents the truth of which ought in the prosecutor's view to be admitted and of any other matters which ought in the prosecutor's view to be agreed;

(d) to make any amendment of any case statement given pursuant to an order under paragraph (a) that appears to the judge to be appropriate, having regard to objections made by the defendant or, if there is more than one, by any of them.

(4) The matters referred to in subsection (3)(a) are —

- (a) the principal facts of the case for the prosecution;
- (b) the witnesses who will speak to those facts;
- (c) any exhibits relevant to those facts;
- (d) any propositions of law on which the prosecutor proposes to rely;
- (e) the consequences in relation to any of the counts in the indictment that appear to the prosecutor to flow from the matters falling within paragraphs (a) to (d).

(5) If a judge has ordered the prosecutor to give a case statement and the prosecutor has complied with the order, the judge may order the defendant or, if there is more than one, each of them —

- (a) to give to the court and to the prosecutor a written statement setting out in general terms the nature of the defence and indicating the principal matters on which the defendant takes issue with the prosecution;
- (b) to give to the court and to the prosecutor written notice of any objections that the defendant has to the case statement;
- (c) to give to the court and the prosecutor written notice of any point of law (including any point as to the admissibility of evidence) which the defendant wishes to take, and any authority on which the defendant intends to rely for that purpose.

(6) If a judge has ordered the prosecutor to give notice under subsection (3)(c) and the prosecutor has complied with the order, the judge may order the defendant or, if there is more than one, each of them, to give the court and the prosecutor a written notice stating —

- (a) the extent to which the defendant agrees with the prosecutor as to documents and other matters to which the notice under subsection (3)(c) relates; and
- (b) the reason for any disagreement.

(7) A judge making an order under subsection (5) or (6) must warn the defendant or, if there is more than one, each of them, of the possible consequence under section 247 of not complying with it.

(8) If it appears to a judge that reasons given pursuant to subsection (6) are inadequate, the judge must so inform the person giving them and may require the person to give further or better reasons.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.33 (part); UK CPI Act 1996 s.31]

247. Preliminary hearing orders: Supplementary

(1) An order under section 246 may specify the time within which any specified requirement contained in it is to be complied with.

(2) If a case is transferred from the Summary Court to the Magistrate's Court or from the Magistrate's Court to the Summary Court, as provided by section 186, any ruling made by the transferring court under this Part binds the receiving court, unless the powers in subsection (3) are exercised in relation to it.

(3) An order under section 246 or 249 has effect throughout the trial, unless it appears to the judge making the order or to the trial judge, on application made to either of them, that the interests of justice require that judge to vary or discharge the order.

(4) Unless otherwise provided by criminal procedure rules, anything required to be given by a defendant pursuant to an order under section 246 need not disclose the identity of the person or persons who will give evidence.

(5) Criminal procedure rules may prescribe the extent to which such disclosure is required in relation to expert evidence and such rules may vary any other provision in a written law of the Falkland Islands or of rules having effect in the Falkland Islands.

(6) Criminal procedure rules may make provision as to the minimum or maximum time that may be specified under subsection (1).

(7) Criminal procedure rules may prescribe the way in which the requirement of disclosure under Part 14 (Disclosure of Material) relates to the requirements of section 246.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. ss.33 (part) and 34; UK CPI Act 1996 s.33 adapted]

248. Later stages of trial

(1) Any party may depart from the case the party disclosed pursuant to a requirement imposed under section 246.

(2) If a party —

(a) departs from the case the party disclosed pursuant to a requirement imposed under section 246; or

(b) fails to comply with such a requirement, the judge or, with the leave of the judge, any other party, may make any comment that appears to the judge or the other party (as the case may be) to be appropriate and the jury (or the judge, in the case of a trial before a judge sitting without a jury) may draw any inference that appears proper.

(3) In deciding whether to give leave (or, as the case may be, to draw an inference) the judge must have regard to —

- (a) the extent of the departure or failure; and
- (b) whether there is any justification for it.

(4) Except as provided by this section, no part of —

- (a) a statement given under section 246(5)(a); or
- (b) any other information relating to the case for the defendant or, if there is more than one, the case for any of them, pursuant to a requirement imposed under section 246 or any criminal procedure rules made under section 247, may be disclosed at a stage in the trial after the jury have been sworn, except with the consent of the defendant concerned.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.35; UK CPI Act 1996 s.34]

Rulings on evidence and law

249. Rulings on evidence and law

(1) In any court the judge may at a preliminary hearing make a ruling on —

- (a) any question as to the admissibility of evidence;
- (b) any other question of law relating to the case.

(2) A ruling may be made under subsection (1) —

- (a) on an application by a party to the case; or
- (b) on the judge's own initiative.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), a ruling made under this section has binding effect from the time it is made until the case against the defendant or, if there is more than one, against each of them, is concluded, as defined in subsection (4).

(4) The case against a defendant is concluded if —

- (a) the defendant is acquitted or convicted; or
- (b) the prosecutor decides not to proceed with the case against the defendant.

(5) A judge (including a justice of the peace sitting as a Summary Court) may discharge (or further vary) a ruling made under this section if it appears to the judge that it is in the interests of justice to do so, on an application by a party to the case or on the judge's own initiative.

(6) No application may be made under subsection (5) unless there has been a substantial change of circumstances since the ruling was made or, if a previous application has been made, since the application (or last application) was made.

(7) The judge referred to in subsection (5) need not be the judge who made the ruling or, if it has been varied, the judge (or any of the judges) who varied it.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.41; UK CPI Act 1996 s.40]

250. Appeals against rulings

(1) A person may appeal —

(a) to the Court of Appeal from any ruling of a judge under section 249(1) in relation to a case proceeding in the Supreme Court, but only with the leave of the judge or of the Court of Appeal;

(b) to the Supreme Court from any ruling of a judge under section 249(1) in relation to a case proceeding in the Magistrate's Court, but only with the leave of the judge or the Supreme Court;

(c) to the Magistrate's Court from any ruling of a judge under section 249(1) in relation to a case proceeding in the Summary Court, but only with the leave of the judge or the Magistrate's Court.

(2) The judge may continue a preliminary hearing even if leave to appeal has been granted under subsection (1), but until the appeal has been determined or abandoned —

(a) no jury is to be sworn; and

(b) if —

(i) the defendant has elected to be tried before a judge sitting alone; or

(ii) the offence is an imprisonable offence, the judge must not proceed to try the case.

(3) If there is no judge present in the Falkland Islands when an appeal under this section falls to be made —

(a) the appeal may be made in writing by or on behalf of the party appealing, with a copy to every other party;

(b) the decision may be made by a judge on a reading of the relevant documents, including any written submission by or on behalf of the Attorney General and by or on behalf of the defendant;

(c) the decision must be communicated in writing to the parties and to the Registrar or to the Clerk of the respective court, as the case may be.

(4) On the termination of the hearing of an appeal, the Court of Appeal or Supreme Court or Magistrate's Court (as the case may be) may confirm, reverse or vary the decision appealed against.

(5) In this section, "judge" means one or more judges of the Court of Appeal, a Supreme Court judge or the Senior Magistrate, as the case may be, and "in writing" includes by electronic means.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.36; UK CPI Act 1996 s.35]

Restrictions on reporting

251. Restrictions on reporting

(1) Except as provided by this section —

(a) no written report of proceedings falling within subsection (2) may be published in the Falkland Islands;

(b) no report of proceedings falling within subsection (2) may be included in a programme.

(2) The following proceedings fall within this subsection —

(a) a preliminary hearing;

(b) any order made during a preliminary hearing;

(c) proceedings on an application for a ruling to be made under section 249;

(d) a ruling made under section 249;

(e) an application for a ruling under section 249 to be discharged or varied or further varied;

(f) an order that a ruling under section 249 be discharged or varied or further varied;

(g) an application for leave to appeal against a ruling;

(h) an appeal under section 250.

(3) The judge dealing with any matter falling within subsection (2), other than an appeal to the Court of Appeal under section 250 or an application to that court for leave to appeal under that section, may order that subsection (1) does not apply, or applies only to a specified extent, to a report of the matter, if satisfied that it is in the interests of justice to do so.

(4) The Court of Appeal may order that subsection (1) does not apply, or applies only to a specified extent, to a report of —

- (a) an appeal under section 250 in relation to a ruling at a preliminary hearing; or
- (b) an application to that court for leave to appeal under section 250, if satisfied that it is in the interests of justice to do so.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.37; UK CPI Act 1996 s.37]

252. Reporting restrictions: Exceptions

(1) In the circumstances mentioned in subsection (2), section 251(1) does not apply to —

- (a) the publication of a report of a preliminary hearing;
- (b) the publication of a report of an appeal against a ruling in a preliminary hearing or of an application for leave to appeal against such a ruling;
- (c) the inclusion in a programme of a kind referred to in subsection (1)(b) of a report of a preliminary hearing; or
- (d) the inclusion in such a programme of a report of an appeal against a ruling in a preliminary hearing or of an application for leave to appeal against such a ruling.

(2) The circumstances referred to in subsection (1) are that —

- (a) the defendant has elected under section 298 to be tried before a judge sitting without a jury;
- (b) the trial of the defendant or the last of the defendants to be tried has concluded; or
- (c) the defendant is charged with a serious summary offence.

(3) Section 251(1) does not apply to a report which contains only one or more of the following matters —

- (a) the identity of the court and the name of the judge;
- (b) the names, ages, home addresses and occupations of the defendant or defendants and witnesses;
- (c) the offence or offences, or a summary of them, with which the defendant is or the defendants are charged;
- (d) the names of legal practitioners in the proceedings;

- (e) if the proceedings are adjourned - the date and place to which they are adjourned;
- (f) any arrangements as to bail;
- (g) whether legal aid was granted to the defendant or (if there is more than one defendant) to any of them.

(4) The addresses that may under subsection (3) be published or included in a programme of a kind referred to in subsection (1)(b) are addresses —

- (a) at any relevant time; and
- (b) at the time of their publication or inclusion in such a programme, and “relevant time” here means a time when events giving rise to the charges to which the proceedings relate occurred.

(5) Section 251(1) does not apply to the publication of a report or the inclusion in a programme of a report of matters which otherwise must not be reported, at the conclusion of the trial of the defendant or of the last of the defendants to be tried, as defined in section 249(4).

(6) The reporting restrictions in this section are in addition to and do not affect the reporting restrictions in Part 12 (Sending for Trial) relating to proceedings for sending a defendant for trial. [Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. s.42; UK CPI Act 1996 s.41]

253. Offences in connection with reporting

(1) If a report is published or included in a programme in contravention of section 251, each of the following persons commits an offence —

- (a) in the case of a publication of a written report as part of a newspaper or periodical – any proprietor, editor or publisher of the newspaper or periodical;
- (b) in the case of a publication of a written report otherwise than as part of a newspaper or periodical - the person who publishes it;
- (c) in the case of the inclusion of a report in a programme —
 - (i) any corporate body which is engaged in providing the service in which the programme is included; and
 - (ii) any person having functions in relation to the programme corresponding to those of an editor of a newspaper.

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

(2) Proceedings for an offence under this section must not be commenced except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney General.

[Criminal Procedure & Investigations Ord. ss.38 and 43; UK CPI Act 1996 ss.38 and 43]

PART 16 – SUMMARY PROCEDURE
Preliminary

254. Application and interpretation of Part

(1) This Part applies to all criminal proceedings in the Magistrate’s Court and in the Summary Court, unless otherwise expressly stated or the context or some other provision of this Ordinance otherwise requires.

(2) In this Part —

(a) a reference to “the Magistrate’s Court” is to the Senior Magistrate sitting alone;

(b) a reference to “the Summary Court” is to justices of the peace sitting to hear a particular matter either individually (where the law so permits) or collectively;

(c) a reference to “the Clerk of the court” is to the person performing the duties of Clerk of the Magistrate’s Court or Clerk of the Summary Court, or both, as appropriate;

(d) a reference to a summary trial is to a trial in the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court;

(e) a reference to a Form is to a form of that number set out in Schedule 5.

255. Composition of the courts

(1) For the purpose of criminal proceedings —

(a) the Magistrate’s Court consists of the Senior Magistrate sitting alone;

(b) the Summary Court is composed of at least 2 justices of the peace, unless the hearing is one that by virtue of any enactment may take place before a single justice.

(2) The choice of justices for each case is a matter for the Head of Courts, subject to any criminal procedure rules in that regard.

(3) The justices sitting in any criminal proceedings that require more than one justice must appoint one of their number to be Chair of the justices for the duration of those proceedings, up to dismissal of the information or a conviction of the defendant and the passing of sentence in the case of a conviction.

(4) Subject to subsections (5) and (6), the justices of the peace composing a court before which any criminal proceedings take place must be present during the whole of the proceedings.

(5) If during the course of the proceedings any justice absents himself or herself, he or she must not act further in the proceedings and, if the remaining justices are enough to satisfy the requirements of this Ordinance, the proceedings may continue before a court composed of those justices.

(6) If the trial of an information is adjourned after the defendant has been convicted and before the defendant is sentenced or otherwise dealt with —

(a) the court which sentences or deals with the defendant need not be composed of the same justices as that which convicted the defendant; but

(b) if among the justices composing the court which sentences or deals with a defendant there are any who were not sitting when the defendant was convicted, the court which sentences or deals with the defendant must before doing so make such inquiry into the facts and circumstances of the case as will enable the justices who were not sitting when the defendant was convicted to be fully acquainted with those facts and circumstances.

[Administration of Justice Ord. ss.2 and 3 modified; UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.121 (part) adapted]

256. Sittings of the courts

(1) For the purpose of criminal proceedings —

(a) the Magistrate's Court and the Summary Court must sit at such places in the Falkland Islands as the Chief Justice directs;

(b) subject to any directions of the Chief Justice and to subsections (2) and (3), the Magistrate's Court and the Summary Court must sit at times that the Head of Courts directs in writing as being most expedient for the despatch of the business of the courts;

(c) unless expressly otherwise directed or empowered by or under a written law, the Magistrate's Court and the Summary Court must sit in open court.

(2) The sittings of a court under subsection (1)(b) must be timed to enable the court —

(a) to comply with any time limits under Part 10 (Control of Prosecutions) relating to persons in custody; and

(b) to deal as soon as reasonably practicable with a defendant who is on bail.

(3) The Clerk of the Summary Court, or a public officer to whom the Head of Courts has assigned the respective functions —

(a) must attend all sittings of the Summary Court in criminal matters as adviser to the justices of the peace comprising the court;

(b) must so far as practicable in the circumstances of the Falkland Islands be a person who is qualified to be, or is training to become, a legal practitioner.

(4) Subsection (1) does not affect section 183 as to the exercise of the powers of the Senior Magistrate while outside the Falkland Islands.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.121 (part) adapted]

Institution of proceedings

257. Manner of commencing proceedings

(1) All criminal proceedings must commence in the Summary Court and must be commenced by an information, resulting from —

- (a) laying an information before a justice of the peace;
- (b) bringing before the court a person who is in custody after having been arrested without a warrant; or
- (c) requiring a person who has been arrested without a warrant and released on bail to attend before the court.

(2) Any person who believes from reasonable and probable cause that an offence has been committed by any person may lay an information of it before a justice of the peace.

(3) This section has effect despite any other provision in the laws of the Falkland Islands about the institution of criminal proceedings, other than —

- (a) section 290(2) as regards bills of indictment;
- (b) any power to commence criminal proceedings by complaint; and
- (c) any later provision which expressly displaces this section.

[Common law]

258. Issue of summons or warrant for arrest

(1) Upon an information being laid before a justice of the peace that any person has, or is suspected of having, committed an offence, the justice may, in any of the events mentioned in subsection (3) —

- (a) issue a summons directed to that person requiring the person to appear before the Summary Court to answer to the information; or
- (b) issue a warrant to arrest that person and bring the person before the Summary Court.

(2) A justice must not issue a warrant of arrest unless the information is in writing.

(3) A justice may issue a summons or warrant under this section —

- (a) if the offence was committed or is suspected to have been committed in the Falkland Islands;
- (b) if under any law a court of the Falkland Islands has jurisdiction to try the offence although it was committed outside the Falkland Islands.

(4) If the offence charged is an indictment-only offence, a warrant under this section may be issued at any time even if a summons has previously been issued.

(5) No warrant may be issued under this section for the arrest of any person who has attained the age of 18 years unless —

(a) the offence is an imprisonable offence; or

(b) the person's address is not sufficiently established for a summons to be served on the person.

(6) A justice of the peace may issue a summons or warrant under this section upon an information being laid before the justice despite any law requiring the information to be laid before 2 or more justices.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.1 (part); Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.29, 30]

259. Proceedings invalid if defendant did not know of them

(1) If a summons has been issued under section 258 and the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court has begun to try the information to which it relates, then if —

(a) the defendant, at any time during or after the trial, makes a statutory declaration that the defendant did not know of the summons or the proceedings until a date specified in the declaration, being a date after the court has begun to try the information; and

(b) within 21 days of that date the declaration is served on the Clerk of the court, without affecting the validity of the information, the summons and all subsequent proceedings are void.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1) a statutory declaration is duly served on the Clerk of the court if it is delivered to the clerk, or left at the clerk's office, or is sent in a registered letter or by the recorded delivery service addressed to the clerk at the clerk's office.

(3) If on the application of the defendant it appears to the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court (which for this purpose may be composed of a single justice of the peace) that it was not reasonable to expect the defendant to serve a statutory declaration as mentioned in subsection (1) within the period allowed by that subsection —

(a) the court may accept service of such a declaration by the defendant after that period has expired; and

(b) a statutory declaration accepted under this subsection is deemed to have been served as required by that subsection.

(4) If any proceedings have become void by virtue of subsection (1), the information must not be tried again by any of the same justices.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.14]

260. Defect in process

(1) No objection will be allowed to any information, or to any summons or warrant to procure the presence of the defendant, for any defect in it in substance or in form, or for any variance between it and the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecutor at the hearing of the information.

(2) If it appears to the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court that any variance between a summons or warrant and the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecutor is such that the defendant has been misled by the variance, the court must, on the application of the defendant, adjourn the hearing.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.123]

261. Remaining in force of process

(1) A warrant or summons issued by a justice of the peace does not cease to have effect by reason of the death of the justice or the justice ceasing to be a justice.

(2) A warrant of arrest issued by a justice remains in force until it is executed or withdrawn or it ceases to have effect in accordance with this Ordinance.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 ss.124, 125]

262. Construction of references to "complaints"

In any law conferring power on the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court —

(a) to deal with an offence; or

(b) to issue a summons or warrant against a person suspected of an offence, on the complaint of any person, references to a complaint are to be read as references to an information.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.50]

263. Decision as to court for the trial

(1) On the first appearance of a defendant, whether in response to a summons or warrant or after arrest (other than on an application for an adjournment or remand) the court must, after hearing representations from the prosecution and the defence, decide the most appropriate court for the trial.

(2) If the information or charge relates to an indictment-only offence the case must proceed as a sending for trial of that offence and any linked offence to the Supreme Court in accordance with Part 12 (Sending for Trial).

(3) If the information or charge relates to a summary offence, the court must decide whether a case is more suitable for trial in the Summary Court or in the Magistrate's Court, on the basis of the criteria set out in subsection (6).

(4) Before the court makes a decision as required by subsection (3), the person presiding, or the Clerk of the court, must read the allegation of the offence to the defendant and explain, in terms the defendant can understand (with help, if necessary) —

(a) the allegation, unless it is self-explanatory;

(b) that the offence is one which can be tried either in the Summary Court or in the Magistrate's Court;

(c) that the court is about to ask whether the defendant intends to plead guilty;

(d) that if the answer is 'yes', then the court must treat that as a guilty plea and must sentence the defendant, or commit the defendant to the Magistrate's Court for sentence;

(e) that if the defendant does not answer, or the answer is 'no', the court will decide whether to allocate the case to the Summary Court or to the Magistrate's Court for trial, applying the criteria set out in subsection (5).

(5) If the information or charge relates to an offence within the jurisdiction of the Summary Court, the case can nonetheless be allocated to the Magistrate's Court for trial if the court considers that there are circumstances that justify that course, including, but not limited to —

(a) whether the defendant is already awaiting trial on other matters before the Magistrate's Court;

(b) whether a co-accused charged with the same offence is already awaiting trial before the Magistrate's Court;

(c) the value of any damage caused or compensation likely to be sought;

(d) whether complex points of evidence or law are likely to arise in the course of the trial;

(e) whether a sentence in excess of that which the Summary Court can impose is likely to be justified if the defendant is convicted;

(f) the extent to which a case concerns matters of public interest;

(g) any other consideration required by the interests of justice.

(6) If the defendant is sent for trial, a plea of not guilty indicated under subsection (4)(e) is not binding on the defendant at the trial.

(7) This section is in addition to and does not affect the provisions of —

(a) Part 11 (Criminal Jurisdiction) as to transfer of cases between the Summary Court and the Magistrate's Court;

(b) Part 13 (Committal for Sentence) as to committal for sentence to the Magistrate's Court.

(8) If the Summary Court cannot be convened to deal with a person who has been arrested and is in custody, within the time prescribed by this Ordinance, the Clerk of the court may perform the functions of the Summary Court under this section, with necessary modifications.

[UK Criminal Procedure Rules adapted]

264. Preliminary hearings: Adjournment

(1) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court when proceeding under section 144 (Power to order preliminary hearing) or the Magistrate's Court when proceeding under section 249 (Rulings on evidence and law) may adjourn the proceedings at any time, and on doing so on any occasion when the defendant is present may remand the defendant, and must remand the defendant if —

(a) on the occasion on which the defendant first appeared, or was brought, before the court to answer to the information the defendant was in custody or, having been released on bail, surrendered to the custody of the court; or

(b) the defendant has been remanded at any time in the course of proceedings on the information.

(2) If the court remands the defendant, the time fixed for the resumption of proceedings must be that at which the defendant is required to appear or be brought before the court pursuant to the remand.

(3) A remand under this section may be either in custody or on bail, in accordance with Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings).

(4) This section is in addition to and does not affect the provisions of Part 11 (Criminal Jurisdiction) as to transfer of cases from the Summary Court to the Magistrate's Court.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 ss.17C and 18 adapted]

Summary trial

265. Procedure at trial

(1) On the summary trial of an information, the court must, if the defendant appears, state to the defendant the substance of the information and ask the defendant whether the defendant pleads guilty or not guilty.

(2) The court, after hearing the evidence and the parties, must either convict the defendant or dismiss the information.

(3) If the defendant pleads guilty, the court may convict the defendant without hearing evidence.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.9]

266. Adjournment of trial

(1) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may adjourn a summary trial at any time, whether before or after beginning to try an information.

(2) The Summary Court may adjourn a summary trial when composed of a single justice of the peace.

(3) When adjourning a case the court may —

(a) fix the time and place at which the trial is to be resumed; or

(b) unless it remands the defendant, leave the time and place to be decided later by the court;

but the trial must not be resumed at that time and place unless the court is satisfied that the parties have had adequate notice of the time and place.

(4) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may, for the purpose of enabling inquiries to be made for determining the most suitable method of dealing with the case, exercise its power to adjourn after convicting the defendant and before sentencing or otherwise dealing with the defendant.

(5) On adjourning the trial of an information the court may remand the defendant in custody or on bail and, if the defendant is an adult, must do so if the offence is an imprisonable offence and—

(a) when the defendant first appeared, or was brought, before the court to answer to the information he or she was in custody or, having been released on bail, surrendered to the custody of the court; or

(b) the defendant has been remanded at any time in the course of proceedings on the information.

(6) An adjournment under subsection (3) —

(a) may be for 4 weeks at a time; but

(b) if the defendant is remanded in custody, can only be for 3 weeks at a time.

(7) If the court remands the defendant, the time fixed for the resumption of the trial must be that at which he or she is required to appear or be brought before the court pursuant to the remand.

(8) A Youth Court is not required to adjourn any proceedings for an offence at any stage by reason only of the fact that —

(a) the court sends the defendant for trial for another offence; or

(b) the defendant is charged with another offence.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.10]

267. Non-appearance of prosecutor

(1) If at the time and place appointed for the trial or adjourned trial of an information the defendant appears or is brought before the court and the prosecutor does not appear, the court may —

(a) dismiss the information; or

(b) if evidence has been received on a previous occasion - proceed in the absence of the prosecutor.

(2) If, instead of dismissing the information or proceeding in the absence of the prosecutor, the court adjourns the trial, it must not remand the defendant in custody unless he or she —

(a) has been brought from custody; or

(b) cannot be remanded on bail by reason of his or her failure to enter into a recognisance or to find sureties.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.15]

268. Non-appearance of defendant: General provisions

(1) If at the time and place appointed for the trial or adjourned trial of an information the prosecutor appears but the defendant does not, the court may, subject to this section proceed in the defendant's absence unless it appears to the court to be contrary to the interests of justice to do so.

(2) The court must not proceed in the absence of the defendant if it considers that there is an acceptable reason for the defendant's failure to appear.

(3) In proceedings commenced by an information, if a summons has been issued, the court must not begin to try the information in the absence of the defendant unless —

(a) it is proved to the satisfaction of the court, on oath that the summons was served on the defendant within what appears to the court to be a reasonable time before the trial or adjourned trial; or

(b) the defendant has appeared on a previous occasion to answer to the information.

(4) In such proceedings, the court must not in a person's absence —

(a) sentence the person to imprisonment or any other form of detention;

(b) order that a suspended sentence passed on the person is to take effect; or

(c) impose any disqualification on the person.

(5) Nothing in this section requires the court to enquire into the reasons for the defendant's failure to appear before deciding whether to proceed in the defendant's absence.

(6) The court must —

(a) state in open court its reasons for not proceeding under this section in the absence of an adult defendant; and

(b) enter the reasons in the register.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.11 as am. by Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 s.54]

269. Non-appearance of defendant: Issue of warrant

(1) Subject to this section, if the court, instead of proceeding in the absence of the defendant, adjourns or further adjourns the trial, the court may issue a warrant for the defendant's arrest.

(2) If a summons has been issued, the court must not issue a warrant under this section unless the condition in either subsection (3) or (4) is fulfilled.

(3) The condition in this subsection is that it is proved to the satisfaction of the court, on oath that the summons was served on the defendant within what appears to the court to be a reasonable time before the trial or adjourned trial.

(4) The condition in this subsection is that —

(a) the adjournment now being made is a second or subsequent adjournment of the trial;

(b) the defendant was present on the last (or only) occasion when the trial was adjourned; and

(c) on that occasion the court fixed the time for the hearing at which the adjournment is now being made.

(5) A warrant for the arrest of an adult must not be issued under this section unless —

(a) the offence to which the warrant relates is an imprisonable offence; or

(b) the court, having convicted the defendant, proposes to impose a disqualification on the defendant.

(6) A warrant for the arrest of a youth must not be issued under this section unless the court, having convicted the defendant, proposes to impose a disqualification on the youth.

(7) This section does not apply to an adjournment on the occasion of the defendant's conviction in his or her absence under section 271 or to an adjournment required by subsection (3) of that section.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.13 as am. by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

270. Non-appearance of both parties

(1) If at the time and place appointed for the trial or adjourned trial of an information neither the prosecutor nor the defendant appears, the court may —

- (a) dismiss the information; or
- (b) if evidence has been received on a previous occasion - proceed in their absence.

(2) This section is subject to the provisions of section 268.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.16]

271. Plea of guilty in absence of defendant – Schedule 5

(1) This section applies if a summons has been issued requiring a person to appear before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court to answer an information as described in subsection (2) and the Clerk of the respective court is satisfied that —

- (a) a notification substantially in Form 1 containing a statement of the effect of this section; and
- (b) a concise statement of the facts relating to the charge that will be placed before the court by or on behalf of the prosecutor if the defendant pleads guilty without appearing before the court, have been served upon the defendant with the summons.

(2) The information must be for an offence for which the maximum sentence is imprisonment for not more than 3 months or a fine at level 3 on the standard scale, or both.

(3) If the Clerk of the Magistrate's Court or of the Summary Court, as the case may be, receives within 28 days of the sending of Form 1 a written notice in Form 2 from the defendant or a legal practitioner acting for the defendant that the defendant wishes to plead guilty without appearing before the court —

- (a) the clerk must inform the prosecutor of the receipt of the notice; and
- (b) if at the time and place appointed for the trial or adjourned trial of the information the defendant does not appear and it is proved to the satisfaction of the court, on oath, that the notification and statement of facts referred to in subsection (1) have been served upon the defendant with the summons —
 - (i) the court may proceed to hear and dispose of the case in the absence of the defendant, whether or not the prosecutor is also absent, as if both parties had appeared and the defendant had pleaded guilty; or

(ii) if the court decides not to proceed as in paragraph (i), the court must adjourn or further adjourn the trial for the purpose of dealing with the information as if the notification had not been given.

(4) The defendant may when sending Form 2 under subsection (3) also send a written submission in Form 3 with a view to mitigation of sentence.

(5) Before accepting the plea of guilty and convicting the defendant in the defendant's absence under this section, the court must cause to be read out before the court —

(a) the statement of facts; and

(b) any submission received in Form 3.

(6) In deciding on sentence, the court must take into account any mitigating circumstances set out in Form 3 and any statement of means provided by the defendant in Form 5 (or, in the case of a corporation, the tax accounts for the previous 3 years as provided by the corporation.)

(7) If the court proceeds under this section to hear and dispose of the case in the absence of the defendant, the court —

(a) must not permit any statement to be made by or on behalf of the prosecutor with respect to any facts relating to the offence charged other than the statement of facts mentioned in subsection (1) except on a resumption of the trial after an adjournment under subsection (3); and

(b) must not without adjourning under subsection (3) sentence the defendant to any term of imprisonment or to any other form of detention, or order the defendant to be subject to any disqualification.

(8) If the offence to which a person pleads guilty in absence under this section is one for which under the Road Traffic Ordinance a driving licence must be endorsed and a person can be disqualified from driving, court must endorse any driving licence held by the person and, if appropriate, may disqualify the person from driving. For that purpose, the driving licence must be produced to the court and if it is not, the driving licence must be suspended until the licence is produced, unless the court is satisfied that there are good reasons for its not being produced, as shown on Form 4.

(9) If at any time before the hearing the Clerk of the Magistrate's Court or of the Summary Court, as the case may be, receives a written notice by or on behalf of the defendant that the defendant wishes to withdraw the plea of guilty, the clerk must inform the prosecutor and the court must deal with the information as if this section were not in force.

(10) Section 266(4) does not apply to an adjournment pursuant to subsection (3)(b) of this section or to an adjournment when the defendant is convicted in the defendant's absence under subsection (3), but, in relation to such an adjournment, the notice required by section 266(2) must include notice of the reason for the adjournment.

(11) The decision whether to use the procedure provided in this in section any particular case is for the Attorney General, but may be delegated in writing to the Clerk of the Magistrate's Court or of the Summary Court, as the case may be, for any case or class of cases, with or without directions as to how the discretion is to be exercised.

(12) The procedure provided in this section —

(a) may not be used if the defendant is not likely to remain in the Falkland Islands for at least 28 days after issue of the Form 1; but

(b) may be used with appropriate modifications when the defendant is a corporation.

(13) If a written plea of guilty is tendered under this section, the court may in addition to ordering the payment of a fine order the defendant to pay the costs of the prosecution in accordance with the relevant provisions of Part 30 (Costs in Criminal Cases). The amount requested must be shown on Form 1 and the defendant may make a statement about the costs in Form 3.

(14) This section does not apply to proceedings in the Youth Court.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.12 as am. by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

272. Application of section 271 if defendant appears

(1) If the Clerk of the Magistrate's Court or of the Summary Court, as the case may be, has received a written notice as mentioned in section 271(3) but the defendant nonetheless appears before the court at the time and place appointed for the trial or adjourned trial, the court may, if the defendant consents, proceed under that section as if he or she were absent.

(2) If the Clerk of the court has not received such a written notice and the defendant appears before the court at that time and place and informs the court that the defendant desires to plead guilty, the court may, if the defendant consents, proceed under section 271 as if the defendant were absent and the clerk had received such a notice.

(3) For the purposes of subsections (1) and (2) of this section, section 271 applies with the following modifications —

(a) before accepting the plea of guilty and convicting the defendant, the court must give the defendant an opportunity to make an oral submission with a view to mitigation of sentence; and

(b) if the defendant makes such a submission, subsection (7)(b) of that section does not apply.

(4) The further modifications for the purposes of subsection (2) of this section are that —

(a) section 271 applies as if any reference to the notification under subsection (1) of that section were a reference to the consent under subsection (2) of this section; and

(b) before accepting the plea of guilty and convicting the defendant under section 271, the court must give the defendant an opportunity to make an oral submission with a view to mitigation of sentence.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.12A inserted by Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994]

Remands by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court

273. Remand: General principles

(1) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court has power to remand any person, then, subject to Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings) and to any other enactment modifying that power, the court may —

(a) remand the person in custody, as provided by section 274, to be brought before the court at the end of the period of remand or at any earlier time the court requires;

(b) if it is conducting a preliminary hearing about or trying an offence alleged to have been committed by that person or has convicted the person of an offence —

(i) remand the person on bail in accordance with Part 9, by directing the person to appear as provided in section 275; or

(ii) remand the person on bail by taking from the person a recognisance (with or without sureties) conditioned as provided in that section.

(2) In a case falling within subsection (1)(b)(ii), the court may, instead of taking recognisances in accordance with that paragraph, fix the amount of the recognisances with a view to their being taken subsequently.

(3) Subject to the following sections, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court must not remand a person for a period exceeding 8 clear days, except that —

(a) if the court remands a person on bail, it may remand the person for a longer period if the person and the prosecutor consent;

(b) if the court adjourns a trial under this Part the court may remand the person for the period of the adjournment.

(4) If the court fixes the amount of a recognisance with a view to its being taken subsequently, the court must in the meantime commit the person so remanded to custody in accordance with subsection (1)(a).

(5) If a person is brought before the court after remand, the court may further remand the person.

(6) The provisions of this Part as to remand are in addition to and do not affect —

(a) section 493 as to remand for a pre-sentence report;

(b) the provisions in Part 34 (Mentally Disordered Offenders) as to remand of mentally disordered offenders;

(c) any other provision of this Ordinance or any other written law expressly empowering a court to remand a defendant in custody or on bail.

[UK Magistrate's Court 1980 s.128 as amended (part)]

274. Remand in custody

(1) A defendant may not be remanded in custody for more than 8 clear days, except as provided by this section and section 277.

(2) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may remand a defendant in custody for a period exceeding 8 clear days if —

(a) it has previously remanded the defendant in custody for the same offence; and

(b) the defendant is before the court, but only if, after affording the parties an opportunity to make representations, the court has set a date on which it expects that it will be possible for the next stage in the proceedings, other than a hearing relating to a further remand in custody or on bail, to take place, and only —

(i) for a period ending not later than that date; or

(ii) for a period of 28 days,

whichever is the less.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), if a defendant is remanded for a period exceeding 8 clear days, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may further remand the person on an adjournment under this Part without the person being brought before it if it is satisfied —

(a) that the person gave his or her consent to the hearing and decision in the person's absence of any application for his or her remand on an adjournment of the case under this Part;

(b) that the person has not by virtue of this subsection been remanded without being brought before the court on more than 2 such applications immediately preceding the application which the court is hearing; and

(c) that the person has not withdrawn his or her consent to the applications being so heard and decided.

(4) The court may not exercise the power conferred by subsection (3) if it appears to the court, on an application for a further remand being made to it, that the defendant has no legal practitioner in the case.

(5) If on adjourning a case under this Part the court proposes to remand or further remand a person in custody, the court must —

(a) explain the effect of subsections (3) and (4) to the person in ordinary language; and

(b) inform the person in ordinary language that, despite the procedure for a remand without the person being brought before the court, he or she will be brought before the court for the hearing and decision of at least every fourth application for remand, and of every application for remand if it appears to the court that the person has no legal practitioner acting for the person in the case.

(6) After explaining to the person as provided by subsection (5) the court must ask the person whether he or she consents to the hearing and decision of such applications in his or her absence.

(7) If —

(a) a person has been remanded in custody on an adjournment of a case under this Part;

(b) an application is subsequently made for the person's further remand on such an adjournment; and

(c) the court is not satisfied as mentioned in subsection (3), the court must adjourn the case and remand the person in custody for the period for which it stands adjourned.

(8) An adjournment under subsection (7) must be for the shortest period that appears to the court to make it possible for the defendant to be brought before it.

(9) If —

(a) on an adjournment of a case under this Part a person has been remanded in custody without being brought before the court; and

(b) it subsequently appears to the court that the person ought not to have been remanded in custody in his or her absence, the court must require the person to be brought before it at the earliest time that appears to the court to be possible.

(10) A defendant may be remanded for up to 3 clear days to a police station or other place of lawful detention, but only if there is a need for the person to be so detained for the purposes of inquiries into other offences.

(11) A person remanded under subsection (10) —

(a) must be brought back before the court which remanded the person as soon as that need ceases;

(b) must be treated as a person in police detention to whom the duties under section 66 (Responsibilities in relation to persons detained) relate;

(c) the detention is subject to periodic review as provided by section 67 (Review of police detention).

(12) Nothing in this section affects the right of the defendant to apply for bail during the period of the remand, other than a remand under subsection (10).

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.128 as amended (part) and s.128A]

275. Remand on bail

(1) If a person is remanded on bail under section 273(1) the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, may direct the person to appear, or direct that the person's recognisance be conditioned for his or her appearance —

(a) before the court at the end of the period of remand; or

(b) at every time and place to which during the course of the proceedings the hearing may be from time to time adjourned.

(2) If the court remands a person on bail conditionally on the person providing a surety during the trial of an offence alleged to have been committed by the person, it may direct that the recognisance of the surety be conditioned to ensure that the person so bailed appears —

(a) at every time to which during the course of the proceedings the hearing is from time to time adjourned; and

(b) before the Supreme Court if the person is sent for trial there.

(3) If a person is directed to appear or a recognisance is conditioned for a person's appearance in accordance with subsection (1) or (2), the fixing of the time for the person next to appear is a remand; but nothing in this subsection or those subsections deprives the court of power at any subsequent hearing to remand the person afresh.

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.128 as amended (part)]

276. Further remand

(1) If the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court is satisfied that a person who has been remanded is unable by reason of illness or accident to appear or be brought before the court at the expiration of the period for which the person was remanded, the court must make a decision in the person’s absence in accordance with section 273(1) and (2).

(2) If the person is remanded in custody, section 274 applies, and if the person is remanded on bail, section 275 applies.

(3) If a person remanded on bail is bound to appear before a court at any time but fails to do so, and if subsection (1) does not apply, the court may in the person’s absence appoint a later time as the time at which the person is to appear and may enlarge the recognisances of any sureties for the person to that time.

(4) If the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court sends a person for trial on bail and the recognisance of any surety for the person has been conditioned in accordance with section 275(2)(a), the court may, in the absence of the surety, enlarge the surety’s recognisance so that he or she is bound to ensure that the person so sent for trial appears also before the Supreme Court.

[UK Magistrate’s Courts Act 1980 s.129]

277. Remand of defendant already in custody

(1) If the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court remands a defendant in custody and the defendant is already detained under a custodial sentence, the period for which the person is remanded may be up to 28 clear days, subject to subsection (2).

(2) If the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court is considering remanding a person pursuant to subsection (1) —

(a) it must inquire as to the expected date of the persons release from the current detention; and

(b) if it appears that it will be before 28 clear days have expired, the court must not remand the person in custody for more than 8 clear days or (if longer) a period ending with that date

[UK Magistrate’s Courts Act 1980 s.131]

Powers in relation to witnesses

278. Power of Magistrate’s Court or Summary Court to call witnesses

(1) The Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court may, at any stage of any proceedings under this Ordinance, summon or call any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance though not summoned as a witness, or recall and re-examine any person already examined.

(2) If the evidence of a person mentioned in subsection (1) appears to the court to be essential to the just decision of a case, the court must summon and examine or recall and re-examine the person.

(3) Upon the examination of a person under subsection (1) or (2), the prosecutor and the defendant, or the legal practitioner for the defendant, each has the right to cross-examine the person, and the court must adjourn the case if it is necessary to enable such cross-examination to be adequately prepared if, in the court's opinion, either party may be prejudiced by the calling of the person as a witness.

[Common law; UK Criminal Proc. Rules r.28]

279. Power of justice of the peace to summon witnesses

(1) If a justice of the peace is satisfied that —

(a) any person in the Falkland Islands is likely to be able to give material evidence, or produce any document or thing likely to be material evidence, at the summary trial of an information or hearing of a complaint by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court; and

(b) that person will not voluntarily attend as a witness or will not voluntarily produce the document or thing, the justice of the peace must issue a summons directed to that person requiring him or her to attend before the court at the time and place appointed in the summons to give evidence or to produce the document or thing.

(2) If a justice of the peace is satisfied by evidence on oath of the matters mentioned in subsection (1), and also that it is probable that a summons under that subsection would not procure the attendance of the person in question, the justice of the peace may instead of issuing a summons issue a warrant to arrest that person and bring him or her before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court at a time specified in the warrant.

(3) A summons may also be issued under subsection (1) if the justice of the peace is satisfied that the person in question is outside the Falkland Islands, but no warrant may be issued under subsection (2) unless the justice of the peace is satisfied by evidence on oath that the person in question is in the Falkland Islands.

(4) A justice of the peace may refuse to issue a summons under subsection (1) in relation to the summary trial of an information if he or she is not satisfied that an application for the summons was made by a party to the case as soon as reasonably practicable after the defendant pleaded not guilty.

(5) In relation to the summary trial of an information, subsection (2) has effect as if the reference to the matters mentioned in subsection (1) included a reference to the matter mentioned in subsection (4).

(6) On the failure of any person to attend before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court in answer to a summons under this section, if —

(a) the court is satisfied by evidence on oath that the person is likely to be able to give material evidence or produce any document or thing likely to be material evidence in the proceedings;

(b) it is proved on oath, or in some other prescribed manner, that the person has been duly served with the summons, and that a sum calculated in accordance with criminal procedure rules has been paid or tendered to the person for costs and expenses;

(c) the witness has been provided with conduct money for travel to the court in accordance with criminal procedure rules in that regard; and

(d) it appears to the court that there is no just excuse for the failure, the court may issue a warrant to arrest the person and bring him or her before the court at a time and place specified in the warrant.

(7) If any person attending or brought before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court refuses without just excuse to be sworn or give evidence, or to produce any document or thing, the court may —

(a) commit the person to custody for up to 28 days or until he or she sooner gives evidence or produces the document or thing;

(b) impose on the person a fine at level 4 on the standard scale; or

(c) commit the person to custody under paragraph (a) and fine him or her under paragraph (b).

(8) A fine imposed under subsection (7) is, for the purposes of any enactment, a sum adjudged to be paid on a conviction.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act s.97 am. by Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005]

Recognisances for good behaviour

280. Binding over

(1) Nothing in this Ordinance prevents any person from laying a complaint in the Summary Court for any adult to show cause why he or she should not be bound over to keep the peace.

(2) Upon such a complaint, and after hearing evidence and submissions from both parties, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may order either party to enter into a recognisance, with or without sureties, to keep the peace or to be of good behaviour towards the other party.

(3) If a person ordered by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court under subsection (1) to enter into a recognisance, with or without sureties, to keep the peace or to be of good behaviour fails to comply with the order, the court may commit the person to custody for up to 6 months or until the person sooner complies with the order.

(4) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court has committed a person to custody under this section in default of finding sureties, the court may, on application by or on behalf of the person committed, and after hearing fresh evidence —

(a) reduce the amount in which it is proposed that any surety should be bound; or

(b) dispense with any of the sureties or otherwise deal with the case as it thinks just.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 ss.115 and 118]

281. Discharge of recognisance on complaint of surety

(1) On complaint being made to a justice of the peace by a surety to a recognisance to keep the peace or to be of good behaviour entered into before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court that the person bound by the recognisance as principal has been, or is about to be, guilty of conduct constituting a breach of the conditions of the recognisance, the justice may issue —

(a) a warrant to arrest the principal and bring him or her before the court which took the recognisance; or

(b) a summons requiring the principal to appear before that court.

(2) A justice of the peace must not issue a warrant under subsection (1) unless the complaint is in writing and substantiated on oath.

(3) When the principal appears or is brought before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, pursuant to a summons or warrant under subsection (1), the court may, unless it orders the recognisance to be forfeited, order the recognisance to be discharged and order the principal to enter into a new recognisance, with or without sureties, to keep the peace or to be of good behaviour.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.116]

Recognisances: General provisions

282. Postponement of taking recognisance

(1) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court has power to take any recognisance, the court may, instead of taking it, fix the amount in which the principal and his or her sureties, if any, are to be bound, after which the recognisance may be taken by any person prescribed.

(2) This section does not enable the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court to alter the amount of a recognisance fixed by the Supreme Court.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.119]

283. Forfeiture of recognisance

(1) If —

(a) a recognisance to keep the peace or to be of good behaviour has been entered into before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court; or

(b) any recognisance is conditioned for the appearance of a person before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court or for the person doing any other thing connected with a proceeding before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court; and

(c) the recognisance appears to the court to be forfeited, the court may, subject to subsection (2), declare the recognisance to be forfeited and order the persons bound by it, whether as principal or sureties, or any of them, to pay the sum in which they are respectively bound.

(2) If a recognisance is conditioned to keep the peace or to be of good behaviour, the court must not declare it forfeited except by order made on complaint.

(3) The court which declares the recognisance to be forfeited may, instead of ordering a person to pay the whole sum in which he or she is bound —

(a) order the person to pay part only of the sum; or

(b) remit the sum.

(4) Subject to subsection (5), payment of any sum ordered to be paid under this section, including any costs awarded against the defendant, may be enforced, and any such sum must be applied, as if it were a fine and as if the adjudication were a summary conviction.

(5) At any time before —

(a) the issue of a warrant of commitment to enforce payment of the sum under subsection (4); or

(b) the sale of goods under a warrant of distress to satisfy the sum, the court may reduce or remit the sum absolutely or on conditions the court thinks just.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.120 adapted]

Proceedings against corporations

284. Representatives of corporations

(1) On the trial by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court of an information against a corporation, a legal practitioner may on behalf of the corporation enter a plea of guilty or not guilty.

(2) A notice for the purposes of section 271 (plea of guilty in absence) may be given on behalf of the corporation by a director or the secretary of the corporation, and that subsection applies in relation to a notice so given as it applies to a notice given by an individual defendant.

(3) A legal practitioner may on behalf of a corporation enter a plea of guilty or not guilty on the trial by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court of an information.

(4) If a legal practitioner appears, any requirement of this Ordinance that anything must be done in the presence of the defendant, or be read or said to the defendant, is to be construed as a requirement that that thing is to be done in the presence of the legal practitioner or read or said to the legal practitioner.

(5) If a legal practitioner does not appear, any requirement referred to in subsection (4) and any requirement that the consent of the defendant must be obtained for summary trial, does not apply.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.46 and Sched.3 (part)]

285. Sending for trial of a corporation

(1) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may send a corporation for trial by an order in writing empowering the prosecutor to prefer a bill of indictment in respect of the offence named in the order.

(2) An order under subsection (1) does not prohibit the inclusion in the indictment of counts that under this Ordinance may be included in the indictment in substitution for or in addition to counts charging the offence named in the order.

(3) The provisions of this Ordinance relating to committal to the Supreme Court for sentence do not apply to a corporation.

(4) Subject to the preceding subsections, the provisions of this Ordinance relating to the trial of offences apply to a corporation as they apply to an adult.

(5) Section 284 as to the powers of and appearance by a legal practitioner applies to a legal practitioner for the purposes of this section as it applies to a legal practitioner for the purposes of that section.

(6) This section does not affect the provisions of Part 12 (Sending for Trial) so far as they relate to the sending for trial of a corporation.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.46 and Sched.3 (part)]

Miscellaneous provisions

286. Power of the court to re-open cases to rectify mistakes, etc.

(1) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court may vary or rescind a sentence or other order imposed or made by it when dealing with an offender if it appears to the court to be in the interests of justice to do so, including replacing a sentence or order which for any reason appears to be invalid by another which the court has power to impose or make.

(2) The power conferred on the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court by subsection (1) is not exercisable in relation to any sentence or order imposed or made by it when dealing with an offender if the Supreme Court has decided an appeal against —

- (a) that sentence or order;
- (b) the conviction in respect of which that sentence or order was imposed or made; or
- (c) any other sentence or order imposed or made by the Magistrates' Court when dealing with the offender in respect of that conviction (including a sentence or order replaced by that sentence or order).

(3) If a person is convicted by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court and it subsequently appears to the court that it would be in the interests of justice that the case should be heard again by different justices, the court may so direct.

(4) The power conferred on the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court by subsection (3) is not exercisable in relation to a conviction if the Supreme Court has decided an appeal against —

- (a) the conviction; or
- (b) any sentence or order imposed or made by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court when dealing with the offender in respect of the conviction.

(5) If a court gives a direction under subsection (3) —

- (a) the conviction and any sentence or other order imposed or made in consequence of it is of no effect; and
- (b) section 266 (Adjournment of trial) applies as if the trial of the person in question had been adjourned.

(6) If a sentence or order is varied under subsection (1), the sentence or other order, as so varied, takes effect from the beginning of the day on which it was originally imposed or made, unless the court otherwise directs.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.142 as amended]

287. Criminal procedure rules

(1) The Chief Justice may, by criminal procedure rules, make provision to implement this Part, including, but not limited to, provision —

- (a) relating to pleas of guilty in the absence of the defendant under section 271;
- (b) prescribing rates of conduct money to be paid to witnesses who attend court pursuant to section 279;

(c) prescribing the form of an information or charge;

(d) relating to the functions of the Clerks to the courts, and the delegation of functions by them to assistant clerks or other public officers;

(e) generally governing the procedure in the Magistrate's Court and the Summary Court.

(2) Rules made under subsection (1) must be consistent with the other provisions of this Ordinance, but may displace any directions given by the Chief Justice under section 785.

PART 17 – SUPREME COURT PROCEDURE

Manner of trial

288. Trials to be with jury or by judge alone

(1) Subject to the following subsections, every criminal case before the Supreme Court is to be tried with a jury in the manner provided by Part 18 (Jury Trial).

(2) Subsection (1) is subject to the right of the defendant to elect trial by judge alone under sections 298 and 299.

(3) If there is more than one defendant, section 298(3) applies.

(4) If a defendant appearing on an indictment pleads not guilty and the prosecutor proposes to offer no evidence against the defendant, the court may, if it thinks fit, order that a verdict of not guilty be recorded without the defendant being given in charge to a jury, and the verdict has the same effect as if the defendant had been tried and acquitted on the verdict of a jury.

(5) A jury does not need to be empanelled for a trial if the defendant (or all of them, if more than one) pleads or plead guilty to the offence at the start of the trial.

[Common law; UK Criminal Justice Act 1967 s.17]

289. Place and date of sessions of Supreme Court

(1) For the exercise of its original and appellate criminal jurisdiction the Supreme Court must sit in the Falkland Islands, except as provided by or under this Ordinance in relation to any matter which may be dealt with by a judge while outside the Falkland Islands.

(2) When sitting in the Falkland Islands, the Supreme Court must sit in Stanley at places and on days that the judge directs.

(3) The Registrar must give public notice beforehand of all sittings of the Supreme Court.

(4) Subsection (1) does not affect —

(a) section 183 as to the exercise of the powers of a judge while outside the Falkland Islands;
or

(b) any other provision of this Ordinance as to decisions that can be taken, or powers that can be exercised, by a judge outside the Falkland Islands.
[SH Criminal Procedure Ord. s.46 adapted]

Indictments

290. Bills of indictment

(1) Subject to subsection (2), a bill of indictment charging any person with an indictment-only offence before the Supreme Court may be preferred only by the Attorney General and only after the person charged has been sent for trial for the offence under Part 12 (Sending for Trial).

(2) A bill of indictment charging any person with an indictment-only offence may be preferred—

(a) by the direction of the Court of Appeal or by the direction of a judge of the Supreme Court; or

(b) by an individual with the consent of a judge of the Supreme Court.

and it thereupon becomes an indictment and must be proceeded with accordingly.

(3) If the person charged has been sent for trial, the bill of indictment against the person may include, either in substitution for or in addition to counts charging the offence on which the person was committed, any counts founded on evidence admissible under section 195(4), being counts which may lawfully be joined in the same indictment.

(4) In a case to which subsection (2)(a) applies, the bill of indictment may include, either in substitution for or in addition to any count charging an offence specified in the sending notice, any counts founded on material that accompanied the copy of the sending notice which, pursuant to Part 12 (Sending for Trial), was given to the person charged, being counts which may lawfully be joined in the same indictment.

(5) In a case to which subsection (2)(b) applies, the bill of indictment may include, either in substitution for or in addition to any count charging an offence specified in the sending notice under Part 12 (Sending for Trial), any counts founded on material which, pursuant to that Part, or any relevant criminal procedure rules, was served on the person charged, being counts which may be lawfully joined in the same indictment.

(6) If a bill of indictment has been preferred otherwise than in accordance with subsections (2) to (5), the indictment is liable to be quashed, except that —

(a) if the bill contains several counts, and those subsections have been complied with as respects one or more of them, only those counts that were wrongly included are to be quashed under this subsection; and

(b) if a person who has been sent for trial is convicted on any indictment or any count of an indictment, that indictment or count must not be quashed under this subsection in any proceedings on appeal, unless application was made at the trial that it should be so quashed.

(7) If a bill of indictment is preferred in accordance with subsections (1) and (2), no objection to the indictment may be taken after the commencement of the trial by reason of any failure to observe any requirement of or under section 303 (Application to make summons under section 300 ineffective).

(8) For the purposes of subsection (7), the trial commences —

(a) if there is a jury - when the jury is sworn to consider the issue of guilt or whether the defendant did the act or made the omission charged;

(b) if the court accepts a plea of guilty before the time when a jury is sworn - when that plea is accepted;

(c) in any other case - when the prosecution commences opening the case.

[UK Administration of Justice (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1933 s.2 (part) am. by Courts Act 2003 and Coroners & Justice Act 2009]

291. Contents of indictments

(1) Every indictment must contain, and is sufficient if it contains, a statement of the specific offence or offences with which the defendant is charged, together with any particulars needed to give reasonable information as to the nature of the charge.

(2) Despite any rule of law or practice, an indictment is, subject to the provisions of this Part, not open to objection in respect of its form or contents if it is framed in accordance with relevant criminal procedure rules.

[UK Indictments Act 1915 s.3]

292. Joining of charges in same indictment

(1) Subject to relevant criminal procedure rules, charges for more than one offence may be joined in the same indictment.

[UK Indictments Act 1915 s.4]

(2) A count charging a person with an offence to which this section applies may be included in an indictment if the charge is on a linked offence, but only if the facts or evidence relating to the offence are disclosed by material which has been served on the person charged.

(3) If a count charging an offence to which subsection (2) applies is included in an indictment, the offence must be tried in the same manner as if it were an indictment-only offence, but the Supreme Court may only deal with the offender in respect of it in a manner in which the Magistrate's Court could have dealt with the offender.

(4) This section does not affect sections 309 to 311 as to summary offences included in cases sent for trial to the Supreme Court.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1988 s.40 adapted]

293. Objections to and amendment of indictments

(1) An objection to an indictment for any formal defect on its face must be taken immediately after the indictment has been read over to the defendant and not later.

(2) If, before trial, or at any stage of a trial, it appears to the court that the indictment is defective, the court —

(a) must make such order for the amendment of the indictment as the court thinks necessary to meet the circumstances of the case, unless, having regard to the merits of the case, the required amendments cannot be made without injustice; and

(b) may make such order as to the payment of any costs incurred owing to the necessity for amendment as the court thinks fit.

(3) If an indictment is amended under this section, a note of the order for amendment must be endorsed on it.

[UK Indictments Act 1915 s.5 (part)]

294. Separate trial of counts and postponement of trial

(1) If, before trial, or at any stage of a trial, the court is of opinion that —

(a) a person who is a defendant may be prejudiced or embarrassed in the person's defence by reason of being charged with more than one offence in the same indictment; or

(b) for any other reason it is desirable to direct that the person should be tried separately for any one or more offences charged in an indictment, the court may order a separate trial of any count or counts of the indictment.

(2) If, before trial, or at any stage of a trial, the court is of opinion that the postponement of the trial of a defendant is expedient as a consequence of the exercise of any power of the court under this Part to amend an indictment or to order a separate trial of a count, the court must make any order as to the postponement of the trial that appears necessary.

(3) If an order of the court is made under this section for a separate trial or for the postponement of a trial —

(a) if the order is made during a trial - the court may order that the jury are to be discharged from giving a verdict on the count or counts the trial of which is postponed or on the indictment, as the case may be;

(b) the procedure on the separate trial of a count is the same in all respects as if the count had been found in a separate indictment, and the procedure on the postponed trial is the same in all respects, if the jury has been discharged, as if the trial had not commenced; and

(c) the court may make such order as to costs and as to admitting the defendant to bail, and as to the enlargement of recognisances and otherwise as the court thinks fit.

(4) Any power of the court under this section is in addition to and does not derogate from any other power of the court for the same or similar purposes.

[UK Indictments Act 1915 s.5 (part)]

Pleas

295. Plea of guilty to other offence

If a person is charged on an indictment for any offence, and can lawfully be convicted on that indictment of some other offence not charged in the indictment, the person may plead not guilty of the offence charged in the indictment, but guilty of that other offence.

[UK Criminal Law Act 1925 s.6]

296. Pleas by corporations

(1) A corporation may, on appearing on an indictment before the Supreme Court, enter in writing by its representative a plea of guilty or not guilty, and if either the corporation does not appear by a representative or, though it does so appear, fails to enter any plea, the court must order a plea of not guilty to be entered and the trial must proceed as though the corporation had duly entered a plea of not guilty.

(2) In this section “representative”, in relation to a corporation, means a person duly appointed by the corporation to represent it for the purpose of doing any act or thing which the representative of a corporation is by this section authorised to do, but a person so appointed is not, by virtue only of being so appointed, qualified to act on behalf of the corporation before any court for any other purpose.

(3) A representative for the purposes of this section need not be appointed under the seal of the corporation, and a statement in writing purporting to be signed by a managing director of the corporation, or by any person (by whatever name called) having, or being one of the persons having, the management of the affairs of the corporation, to the effect that the person named in the statement has been appointed as the representative of the corporation for the purposes of this section, is admissible without further proof as prima facie evidence that that person has been so appointed.

(4) If a corporation does not appear on an indictment in the manner provided for by this Ordinance —

(a) the court may summon any officer of the corporation before it in the manner provided in this Ordinance for compelling the attendance of witnesses; and

(b) if the officer fails to attend the court may issue a warrant to apprehend the officer and cause him or her to be brought before the court.

(5) A warrant must not be issued under this section for the arrest of any person unless the court is satisfied by evidence on oath that the summons directed to that person was duly served.

(6) Nothing in this section affects the power of a court to deal with a case in the absence of the defendant corporation in the manner for which provision is made by this Part.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1925 s.33]

297. Plea of autrefois acquit or autrefois convict

(1) A defendant charged upon an indictment may plead —

(a) that the defendant has previously been convicted or acquitted, as the case may be, of the same offence; or

(b) that the defendant has obtained a pardon for the offence, and if either of such pleas is pleaded in any case and denied to be true in fact, the court must try whether the plea is true in fact or not.

(2) If the court finds that the facts alleged by the defendant do not establish the plea, or if it finds that it is false in fact, the defendant must be required to plead to the indictment.

(3) If a defendant pleads autrefois acquit or autrefois convict it is for the judge, without the presence of a jury, to decide the issue.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1988 s.122]

Choice of mode of trial

298. Right to choose mode of trial in respect of indictment-only offences

(1) Subject to subsection (2), a person who has been sent for trial for an offence in respect of which the person is to be tried on indictment (“the defendant”) must, in accordance with Part 18 (Jury Trial), be tried in respect of that offence in the Supreme Court before a judge and a jury unless the defendant elects to be tried by a judge alone.

(2) If an indictment contains more than one count in respect of the same defendant, not including any counts which the trial judge has ordered to be separately tried, the defendant’s must be tried in the Supreme Court before a judge and jury in respect of all of those counts unless the defendant elects to be tried by a judge alone in respect of all of those counts.

(3) If more than one person is sent for trial for an offence on the same indictment, they must all be tried in respect of that offence in the Supreme Court before a judge and a jury unless each of them elects to be tried by judge alone, in which case the trial is to be by judge alone.

(4) A defendant must personally state his or her choice of the mode of trial under this section as provided by section 299.

[Jury Ord. s.16]

299. Choice of mode of trial: Supplementary provisions

(1) Immediately after the defendant has pleaded to all of the counts of the indictment on which he or she is to be tried on indictment on that occasion, the trial judge must, in open court, explain to the defendant in ordinary language —

- (a) the respective roles of the judge and jury in a trial upon indictment;
- (b) the different role of the judge sitting alone to try an indictment;
- (c) the defendant's right to choose whether to be tried by a judge and jury or by the judge alone;
- (d) if appropriate, the effect of section 325(1);
- (e) if appropriate, the effect of section 325(2);
- (f) the effect of subsection (2) of this section; and
- (g) the effect of section 338(1), and the judge must then call upon the defendant to make his or her choice.

(2) The defendant's choice is irrevocable, unless the trial judge otherwise permits, and in any case is irrevocable once a member of the jury has been sworn or, if there is no jury, once any witness has been called to give evidence.

(3) If a defendant is unable, or refuses, to choose whether to be tried before the judge with a jury or by the judge sitting alone, he or she is deemed to have chosen to be tried before the judge sitting with a jury.

[Jury Ord. s.17]

Witnesses

300. Issue of witness summons on application to the Court

(1) This section applies if the Supreme Court is satisfied that a person other than a police officer is likely to be able to give evidence likely to be material evidence, or produce any document or thing likely to be material evidence, for the purpose of any criminal proceedings before the Supreme Court.

(2) In such a case the Supreme Court must, subject to the following provisions of this section, issue a witness summons directed to the person concerned and requiring him or her to —

- (a) attend before the Supreme Court at the time and place stated in the summons; and
- (b) give the evidence or produce the document or thing.

(3) A witness summons may only be issued under this section on an application; and the Supreme Court may refuse to issue the summons if any requirement relating to the application is not fulfilled.

(4) If a person has been sent for trial under Part 12 (Sending for Trial) for any offence to which the proceedings concerned relate, an application must be made as soon as is reasonably practicable after the issue of the notice of trial.

(5) If the proceedings concerned relate to an offence in relation to which a bill of indictment has been preferred under the authority of section 15(1) of the Court of Appeal Ordinance (bill preferred by direction of Court of Appeal) or by direction or with consent of a judge, an application must be made as soon as is reasonably practicable after the bill was preferred.

(6) An application must be made in accordance with any relevant criminal procedure rules.

(7) Criminal procedure rules may specify the cases which —

- (a) require an application to be made by a party to the case;
- (b) require the service of notice of an application on the person to whom the witness summons is proposed to be directed;
- (c) require an application to be supported by an affidavit or a statement containing a declaration of truth that contains any matters the rules require.

(8) Criminal procedure rules may make provision for enabling the person to whom the witness summons is proposed to be directed to be present or represented at the hearing of the application for the witness summons.

(9) The rules may in particular require an affidavit or statement to —

- (a) set out any charge on which the proceedings concerned are based;
- (b) specify any stipulated evidence, document or thing in such a way as to enable the directed person to identify it;
- (c) specify grounds for believing that the directed person is likely to be able to give any stipulated evidence or produce any stipulated document or thing;
- (d) specify grounds for believing that any stipulated evidence is likely to be material evidence;

(e) specify grounds for believing that any stipulated document or thing is likely to be material evidence.

(10) In subsection (9) —

(a) references to any stipulated evidence, document or thing are to any evidence, document or thing whose giving or production is proposed to be required by the witness summons;

(b) references to the directed person are to the person to whom the witness summons is proposed to be directed.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Attendance of Witnesses) Act 1965 s.2 as amended]

301. Power to require advance production

A witness summons which is issued under section 300 and which requires a person to produce a document or thing as mentioned in subsection (2) of that section may also require the person to produce the document or thing —

(a) at a place stated in the summons; and

(b) at a time which is so stated and precedes that stated under that subsection, for inspection by the person applying for the summons.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Attendance of Witnesses) Act 1965 s.2A ins. by Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.65]

302. Directions if summons no longer needed

(1) If —

(a) a document or thing is produced pursuant to a requirement imposed by a witness summons under section 301;

(b) the person applying for the summons concludes that a requirement imposed by the summons under section 300(2) is no longer needed; and

(c) the person accordingly applies to the Supreme Court for a direction that the summons is to be of no further effect, the court may direct accordingly.

(2) An application under this section must be made in accordance with relevant criminal procedure rules.

(3) Criminal procedure rules may, in cases the rules specify, require the effect of a direction under this section to be notified to the person to whom the summons is directed.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Attendance of Witnesses) Act 1965 s.2B ins. by Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.65]

303. Application to make summons under section 300 ineffective

(1) If a witness summons issued under section 300 is directed to a person who —

(a) applies to the Supreme Court;

(b) satisfies the court that he or she was not served with notice of the application to issue the summons and was neither present nor represented at the hearing of the application; and

(c) satisfies the court that he or she cannot give any evidence likely to be material evidence or, as the case may be, produce any document or thing likely to be material evidence, the court may direct that the summons is of no effect.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1) it is immaterial whether or not criminal procedure rules —

(a) require the person to be served with notice of the application to issue the summons; or

(b) enable the person to be present or represented at the hearing of the application.

(3) In subsection (1)(b) “served” means —

(a) if the criminal procedure rules require the person to be served with notice of the application to issue the summons - served in accordance with relevant criminal procedure rules;

(b) in any other case - served in a way that appears reasonable to the court to which the application is made.

(4) The Supreme Court may refuse to make a direction under this section if any requirement relating to the application under this section is not fulfilled.

(5) An application under this section must be made in accordance with relevant criminal procedure rules.

(6) Criminal procedure rules may specify the cases which —

(a) require the service of notice of an application under this section on the person on whose application the witness summons was issued;

(b) require that if —

(i) a person applying under this section can produce a particular document or thing; but

(ii) the person seeks to satisfy the court that the document or thing is not likely to be material evidence,

the person must arrange for the document or thing to be available at the hearing of the application.

(7) If a direction is made under this section that a witness summons is of no effect, the person on whose application the summons was issued may be ordered to pay the whole or any part of the costs of the application under this section.

(8) Any costs payable under an order made under subsection (7) must be taxed by the Registrar, and payment of those costs is enforceable in the same manner as an order for payment of costs made by the Supreme Court in a civil case or as a sum adjudged summarily to be paid as a civil debt.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Attendance of Witnesses) Act 1965 s.2C ins. by Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.65]

304. Issue of witness summons on court's own initiative

(1) For the purpose of any criminal proceedings before it, the Supreme Court may on its own initiative issue a witness summons directed to a person and requiring the person to —

- (a) attend before the court at the time and place stated in the summons; and
- (b) give evidence, or produce any document or thing specified in the summons.

(2) The Supreme Court may, at any stage of any proceedings under this Ordinance, summon or call any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance though not summoned as a witness, or recall and re-examine any person already examined.

(3) If the evidence of a person mentioned in subsection (2) appears to the court to be essential to the just decision of a case, the court must summon and examine or recall and re-examine the person.

(4) Upon the examination of a person under subsection (2) or (3), the prosecutor and the defendant, or the legal practitioner for the defendant, each has the right to cross-examine the person, and the court must adjourn the case if it is necessary to enable such cross-examination to be adequately prepared if, in the court's opinion, either party may be prejudiced by the calling of the person as a witness.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Attendance of Witnesses) Act 1965 s.2D ins. by Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.65; Criminal Proc. Rules r.28]

305. Application to make summons under section 304 ineffective

(1) If a witness summons issued under section 304 is directed to a person who —

- (a) applies to the Supreme Court; and
- (b) satisfies the court that he or she cannot give any evidence likely to be material evidence or, as the case may be, produce any document or thing likely to be material evidence,

the court may direct that the summons is of no effect.

(2) The Supreme Court may refuse to make a direction under this section if any requirement relating to the application under this section is not fulfilled.

(3) An application under this section must be made in accordance with relevant criminal procedure rules.

(4) Criminal procedure rules may specify the cases which —

(a) require the service of notice of an application under this section on the person on whose application the witness summons was issued;

(b) require that if —

(i) a person applying under this section can produce a particular document or thing; but

(ii) the person seeks to satisfy the court that the document or thing is not likely to be material evidence,

the person must arrange for the document or thing to be available at the hearing of the application.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Attendance of Witnesses) Act 1965 s.2E ins. by Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.65]

306. Penalty for disobeying a witness summons or requirement

(1) A person who without just excuse disobeys a witness summons requiring the person to attend before the Supreme Court commits contempt of court and may be punished summarily as if the contempt had been committed in the face of the court.

(2) A person who without just excuse disobeys a requirement made by the Supreme Court under section 301 commits contempt of court and may be punished summarily as if the contempt had been committed in the face of the court.

(3) No person is by reason of any disobedience mentioned in subsection (1) or (2) liable to imprisonment for a period exceeding 6 months.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Attendance of Witnesses) Act 1965 s.3 as amended]

307. Further process to ensure attendance of witness

(1) If a judge of the Supreme Court is satisfied by evidence on oath that a witness in respect of whom a witness summons is in force is unlikely to comply with the summons, the judge may, subject to subsection (2), issue a warrant to arrest the witness and bring him or her before the court.

(2) A warrant may not be issued under subsection (1) unless the judge is satisfied by evidence as mentioned in that subsection that the witness is likely to be able to give material evidence or to produce any document or thing that will be material evidence in the proceedings.

(3) If a witness who is required to attend before the Supreme Court by virtue of a witness summons fails to attend in compliance with the summons —

(a) the court may serve on the person a notice requiring him or her to attend the court at a specified time; and

(b) if —

(i) there are reasonable grounds for believing that the person has failed to attend without just excuse; or

(ii) the person has failed to comply with the notice, the court may issue a warrant to arrest the person and bring him or her before the court.

(4) A witness brought before the Supreme Court pursuant to a warrant under this section may be remanded in custody or on bail (with or without sureties) until a time the court appoints for receiving the person's evidence or dealing with the person under section 306.

(5) If a witness attends the Supreme Court pursuant to a notice under this section the court may direct that the notice has effect as if it required the person to attend at any later time appointed by the court for receiving the person's evidence or dealing with the person under section 306.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Attendance of Witnesses) Act 1965 s.4 as amended]

308. Expenses of witnesses

(1) Every person who attends any criminal trial of the Supreme Court as a witness for the prosecution or for the defence, in response to a witness summons, is entitled at the conclusion of the case, whether the person has been examined or not, to be paid for his or her attendance and expenses in accordance with a scale established by criminal procedure rules.

(2) The court may, if it thinks fit, disallow the payment to a witness of any sum that would otherwise be payable under subsection (1).

(3) If the court certifies that in its opinion any witness examined for the defence, not being a witness mentioned in subsection (1) —

(a) has given material evidence; and

(b) has given his or her evidence in a truthful and satisfactory manner, it may order that the witness is to be paid allowances and expenses as if he or she had attended in response to a witness summons, and the account of such a witness is to be taxed and paid accordingly.

(4) No claim made by a witness for payment of a sum under subsection (3) is to be entertained unless the claim is made within one month after the last day of the criminal trial in respect of which it is made.

(5) Payment of any allowances or expenses under this section is to be made out of the Consolidated Fund.

[UK Costs in Criminal Cases (General) Regs. 1986 Part V]

Powers of Supreme Court to deal with summary offences

309. Procedure following trial on indictment

(1) This section applies to a summary offence if —

- (a) a person was sent to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of it;
- (b) that person (or another person) has been convicted of one or more offences on an indictment;
- (c) the judge considers that the summary offence is a linked offence in relation to one or more of those offences; and
- (d) no trial has commenced in the Supreme Court in respect of the summary offence.

(2) This section also applies to a summary offence if —

- (a) a person was sent to the Supreme Court for trial in respect of it;
- (b) no plea has been entered in relation to it (either by the person or on the person's behalf); and
- (c) the person is charged on an indictment which (following amendment of the indictment as a result of an application for dismissal or for any other reason) no longer includes an indictment-only offence.

(3) If the person was sent to the Supreme Court in respect of more than one summary offence, the provisions of this section apply to each of the summary offences separately.

(4) If this section applies to a summary offence, the judge must —

- (a) state to the person the substance of it; and
- (b) ask the person to plead guilty or not guilty to the offence.

- (5) Subsection (6) applies to a summary offence if either —
- (a) the person pleads guilty to it; or
 - (b) a plea of guilty to it is entered on the person's behalf under section 310(2)(b).
- (6) If this subsection applies to a summary offence, the judge —
- (a) must convict the person of it; and
 - (b) may deal with the person in respect of it.
- (7) The remaining provisions of this section apply to a summary offence unless either —
- (a) the person pleads guilty to it; or
 - (b) a plea of guilty to it is entered on the person's behalf under section 310(2)(b).
- (8) If this subsection applies to a summary offence, the judge must ask the prosecutor if he or she intends to submit evidence on the charge relating to the offence.
- (9) If the prosecutor informs the court that he or she does not intend to submit evidence on the charge, the Supreme Court must dismiss it.
- (10) If the prosecutor informs the court that he or she does intend to submit evidence on the charge, the Supreme Court must —
- (a) remit the defendant on bail or in custody to the court which sent the defendant for trial, for the defendant to be dealt with by that court on a date specified in the remittal order; and
 - (b) advise the respective court of the remittal.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4; UK Criminal Justice Act 1988 s.41; Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Sched. 3 adapted]

310. Power of Supreme Court to proceed in absence of defendant

- (1) Proceedings before the Supreme Court under section 309 may take place in the absence of a defendant if —
- (a) the defendant is represented by a legal practitioner;
 - (b) either —
 - (i) the judge conducting the proceedings considers that, by reason of the person's disorderly conduct before the court, it is not practicable for the proceedings to be conducted in the person's presence; or

(ii) the defendant's legal practitioner signifies to the court that the defendant consents to the proceedings being conducted in the person's absence; and

(c) the judge considers that the proceedings should continue in the defendant's absence.

(2) If proceedings take place in the absence of the defendant, the judge must —

(a) state the substance of the summary offence to the defendant's legal practitioner (instead of stating it to the defendant); and

(b) ask the legal practitioner to enter a plea of guilty or not guilty to it on behalf of the defendant.

(3) If the legal practitioner enters a plea of guilty on behalf of the defendant, the Supreme Court must proceed under section 309 as if —

(a) the substance of the summary offence had been stated to the defendant; and

(b) the defendant had pleaded guilty to it.

(4) Unless the legal practitioner enters a plea of guilty on behalf of the defendant, the Supreme Court must proceed under section 309 as if —

(a) the substance of the summary offence had been stated to the defendant; and

(b) the defendant had not pleaded guilty to it.

311. Procedure following successful appeal against conviction

(1) Subsection (2) applies to a summary offence if —

(a) a person was convicted of it under section 309(6)(a); but

(b) an appeal court allows an appeal against conviction of an offence tried on indictment in relation to which it was a linked offence (or all of the offences tried on indictment in relation to which it was a linked offence, if there was more than one).

(2) If this subsection applies —

(a) the proceedings before the Supreme Court in relation to the summary offence must be disregarded for all purposes;

(b) the appeal court must —

(i) set aside the person's conviction of the summary offence; and

(ii) notify the court that sent the person for trial on the offence that it has done so;

(c) the appeal court may direct that no further proceedings are to be undertaken in relation to the summary offence;

(d) if the appeal court does that, it must notify the court that sent the person for trial on the offence about the direction.

(3) In this section, “appeal court” means either the Court of Appeal or the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in their respective criminal jurisdictions.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. Sched.4 (part); Crime & Disorder Act 1998 Sched. 3 (part)]

Miscellaneous provisions

312. Process to compel appearance

(1) Any direction to appear and any condition of a recognisance to appear before the Supreme Court, and any summons or order to appear before that court, may be so framed as to require appearance at such time and place as may be directed by the Supreme Court, and if a time or place is specified in the direction, condition, summons or order, it may be varied by any subsequent direction of that court.

(2) If an indictment has been signed, although the person charged has not been sent for trial, the Supreme Court may issue a summons requiring that person to appear before it, or may issue a warrant for his or her arrest.

(3) The Supreme Court, on issuing a warrant for the arrest of any person, may endorse the warrant for bail, in which case —

(a) the person arrested under the warrant must, unless the Supreme Court otherwise directs, be taken to a police station; and

(b) the officer in charge of the station must release the person from custody if the person enters, and any sureties required by the endorsement and approved by the officer enter into recognisances of an amount specified in the endorsement.

(4) A person in custody pursuant to a warrant issued by the Supreme Court with a view to the person’s appearance before that court must be brought forthwith before either the Supreme Court or the Magistrate’s Court.

[UK Senior Courts Act 1981 ss.80, 81 (part)]

313. Power to postpone or adjourn proceedings

(1) If, from the absence of witnesses or any other reasonable cause, which must be recorded in the proceedings, the Supreme Court considers it necessary or desirable to postpone the commencement of or to adjourn any trial, the court may from time to time postpone or adjourn the trial for a period it considers reasonable and may by warrant remand the defendant in prison or other place of security.

(2) In deciding whether to adjourn a trial, the court must take into account, among other things—

- (a) the importance of the trial and the interests of justice in the efficient despatch of business;
- (b) the likely adverse effect on the party seeking the adjournment of refusing it;
- (c) the likely adverse effect on any other party of granting it.

(3) During a remand the court may at any time order the defendant to be brought before it.

(4) The court may on a remand admit a defendant to bail in accordance with Part 9 (Bail in Criminal Proceedings) or permit the defendant to be at large.

(5) A period of adjournment under subsection (1) must be stated in the presence and hearing of the party or parties or their respective advocates (if any) then present.

(6) If it appears that the court will not be able to deal with any case on the day on which a person has been summoned to appear in connection with it, or on the date on which a person granted bail is required to surrender to custody, the Registrar may give written notice to the person to the effect that the person's attendance is not required on that date and that the person should attend on a later date specified in the notice.

(7) A notice given under subsection (6) has effect as if —

- (a) the original summons served upon the person had required the person's attendance on the later date specified in the notice; or
- (b) the person had been granted bail with a duty to surrender to custody on that later date, as the case may be.

[Common law; see cases in Archbold para.4-71]

314. Criminal procedure rules

(1) The Chief Justice may, by criminal procedure rules, make provision to implement this Part, including, but not limited to, provision —

- (a) prescribing rates of expenses to be paid to witnesses, as provided by section 308;
- (b) relating to the functions of the Registrar, and the delegation of functions by the Registrar to assistant registrars or other public officers;
- (c) generally governing the procedure in the Supreme Court in its criminal jurisdiction.

(2) Rules made under this section may make provision regulating indictments and any matter connected with them, and in particular as to —

- (a) the form of an indictment;
- (b) how and when bills of indictment are to be preferred; and
- (c) how application is to be made for the consent of a judge to the preferment of a bill of indictment.

(3) Rules made under subsection (1) must be consistent with the other provisions of this Ordinance, but may displace any directions given by the Chief Justice under section 785.

[UK Administration of Justice (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1933 s.2 (part)]

PART 18 – JURY TRIAL

315. Interpretation

In this Part, except where the context otherwise requires —

“appropriate officer” means the Registrar and any officer of the court acting under the direction of the Registrar;

“immigration permit” means a permanent residence permit, a residence permit or a work permit issued under the Immigration Ordinance.

[Jury Ord. s.2]

Jury service

316. Qualification for jury service – Schedule 6

(1) A person is qualified to serve as a juror in the Supreme Court if each of the following conditions is satisfied —

- (a) the person has reached the age of 18 but has not yet reached the age of 75;
- (b) the person —
 - (i) is registered as a voter under the Electoral Ordinance;
 - (ii) holds a permanent residence permit; or
 - (iii) holds a work permit or a residence permit (or is named as a dependent on a work permit or a residence permit) and has been ordinarily resident in the Falkland Islands throughout the preceding 36 months;
- (c) the person is not ineligible for jury service under Part 1 of Schedule 6; and
- (d) the person is not disqualified from jury service under Part 2 of Schedule 6 or subsection (2) of this section.

(2) A person is temporarily disqualified from jury service if the person is either —

- (a) on bail in criminal proceedings; or
- (b) remanded in custody in criminal proceedings.

[Jury Ord. s.3; UK Juries Act 1974 s.1]

317. Provision of information to Registrar

(1) The Registrar may request information for the purpose of summoning jurors —

- (a) under subsection (2), from a person who is a registration officer under the Electoral Ordinance; and
- (b) under subsection (3), from the Principal Immigration Officer.

(2) When requested by the Registrar, a registration officer must arrange for —

- (a) the Registrar to be provided as soon as possible with as many copies as the Registrar requires of the register of electors maintained by that registration officer; and
- (b) the copies to be marked to indicate those persons on the register who, as far as can be ascertained, are (on a date as close as possible to when the copies are provided) aged either—
 - (i) under 18; or
 - (ii) 75 or over.

(3) When requested by the Registrar, the Principal Immigration Officer must arrange for —

- (a) the Registrar to be provided as soon as possible with as many copies as the Registrar requires of a list of all those persons —
 - (i) holding immigration permits; and
 - (ii) named as dependents on immigration permits;
- (b) the copies to be marked to indicate —
 - (i) those persons on the list who, as far as can be ascertained, are (on a date as close as possible to when the copies are provided) either under 18 or 75 or over; and
 - (ii) those persons on the list who hold residence permits or work permits (or are named as dependents on them) and as far as can be ascertained, have not (on a date as close as possible to when the copies are provided) been ordinarily resident throughout the preceding 36 months.

[Jury Ord. s.3B]

318. Liability to jury service

(1) Every person who is qualified for jury service under section 316 is liable to be summoned for jury service.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Part, a person summoned under this Part must attend as directed by the summons or by the appropriate officer, and is liable to serve on any jury at the place to which the person is summoned.

[Jury Ord. ss.3A and 9]

319. Summoning for jury service

(1) Subject to this Part, and in accordance with a code of practice issued under subsection (6), the Registrar is responsible —

(a) for the summoning of jurors to attend for service in the Supreme Court; and

(b) for determining the occasions on which they are to attend when so summoned and the number to be summoned.

(2) Subject to this Part, jurors must be summoned by notice in writing served in accordance with the provisions of section 784.

(3) A written summons served under subsection (2) must be accompanied by a notice informing the person —

(a) of the effect of sections 318, 324(1), 325 and 338(5);

(b) that the person may make representations to the Registrar with a view to obtaining the withdrawal of the summons, if for any reason the person is not qualified for jury service, or wishes or is entitled to be excused.

(4) If a person is summoned under this section, the Registrar may at any time put or cause to be put to the person any questions the Registrar thinks fit in order to establish whether or not the person is qualified for jury service.

(5) If it appears to the Registrar, at any time before the day on which a person summoned under section 319 is first to attend, that the person's attendance is unnecessary the Registrar may withdraw or alter the summons by notice served in the same way as a notice of summons.

(6) The Chief Justice, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, must issue guidelines as to the manner of selection of jurors. The guidelines must address, but need not be limited to, such matters as —

(a) the convenience of persons summoned, having regard to their occupations and places of residence and the likely length of a potential trial;

(b) the desirability of not having persons who are married to each other serving on the same jury;

(c) the need to avoid having relatives of a defendant serving on a jury to try that defendant;

(d) the need to avoid calling too many employees of the same business at the same time.

[Jury Ord. ss.4 (part) and 6 modified; UK Juries Act 1974 ss 2, 4]

320. Service of notices

(1) A notice required by or under this Part will be treated as served if it has been served in accordance with the provisions of section 784.

(2) A certificate signed by the Registrar or any other public officer employed in the office of the court that the conditions of either subsection (1) or (2) were met in relation to a notice is admissible as evidence in proceedings without the signature having to be proved.

321. Panels

(1) The arrangements to be made by the Registrar under this Part include the preparation, in accordance with any criminal procedure rules made or directions issued under this Part, of lists (hereafter called “panels”) of persons summoned as jurors, and the information to be included in panels, the court sittings for which they are prepared, and the enlargement or amendment of panels.

(2) A person sent for trial by the Supreme Court on indictment, the Attorney General and any person acting on behalf of such a person or on behalf of the Attorney General, is entitled to all reasonable facilities for inspecting the panel from which the jurors are or will be drawn.

(3) The right conferred by subsection (2) is not exercisable after the close of the trial by jury (or after it is no longer possible for there to be a trial by jury).

(4) The judge may, if he or she thinks fit, at any time afford to any person facilities for inspecting the panel, although not given the right by subsection (2).

[Jury Ord. s.7; UK Juries Act 1974 s.5]

322. Excusal for previous jury service

(1) If a person summoned under this Part shows to the satisfaction of the appropriate officer, or of the court to which that person is summoned —

(a) that the person has served on a jury in the 2 years ending with the service of the summons;

(b) that the Supreme Court has excused him or her from jury service for a period which has not terminated, the officer or the court must excuse the person from attending, or further attending, in response to the summons.

(2) The phrase “served on a jury” in subsection (1) does not include service on a jury in a coroner’s court.

[Jury Ord. s.10; UK Juries Act 1974 s.8]

323. Discretionary refusal

(1) If any person summoned under this Part shows to the satisfaction of the appropriate officer that there is good reason why he or she should be excused from attending in response to the summons, the appropriate officer may excuse the person from so attending, and must do so if the reason shown is that the person is entitled to excusal under subsection (1).

(2) Without affecting the other provisions of this section, the Supreme Court, having due regard to the provisions of any guidelines issued under section 319(6), may excuse from attending any person summoned for jury service under this Part.

[Jury Ord. s.11; UK Juries Act 1974 s.9]

324. Discharge of summonses

(1) If it appears to the appropriate officer, when a person attends the court in response to a summons under this Part, that —

- (a) on account of physical disability; or
- (b) on account of insufficient knowledge of English,

there is doubt as to the person's capacity to act effectively as a juror, the person may be brought before the judge.

(2) When a person is brought before the judge under subsection (1)(a) or (b), the judge must determine, in the light of any disability or lack of knowledge of English, as the case may be, whether or not the person is capable of acting or should act as a juror.

(3) If of the opinion that the person should not act as a juror, the judge must discharge the summons, but otherwise must affirm it.

[Jury Ord. ss.12 and 13; UK Juries Act 1974 ss.9B and 10]

Conduct of jury trials

325. Size and composition of juries

(1) A person who has elected to be tried before the judge and jury and who is indicted with the crime of treason or murder must be tried before a jury of 12 persons.

(2) A person who has elected to be tried before the judge and jury and to whom subsection (1) does not apply must be tried before a jury of 7 persons.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) do not affect section 331 (continuation of trial) or section 334 (Majority verdicts).

[Jury Ord. s.20]

326. The ballot and swearing of jurors

(1) The jury to try an issue before the Supreme Court must be selected by ballot in open court from the panel, or part of the panel, of jurors summoned to attend at the time and place in question.

(2) Each member of a jury to try an issue in the Supreme Court must be sworn separately.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), the jury selected by any one ballot must try only one issue, but any juror may be selected on more than one ballot.

(4) Subsection (3) does not prevent the trial of 2 or more issues by the same jury if the trial of the second or last issue begins within 24 hours from the time when the jury is constituted.

(5) In the cases within subsection (4) the court may, on the trial of the second or any subsequent issue, instead of proceeding with the same jury in its entirety, order any juror to withdraw, if the court considers that juror could be challenged or excused, or if the parties to the proceedings consent, and the juror to replace that juror must, subject to subsection (2), be selected by ballot in open court.

(6) The foregoing provisions of this section are subject to the right to choose the mode of trial conferred by Part 11 (Criminal Jurisdiction).

[Jury Ord. s.14; UK Juries Act 1974 s.11]

327. Challenge of jurors

(1) In proceedings for the trial of a person for an offence on indictment —

(a) the person or the prosecution may challenge all or any of the jurors for cause;

(b) any challenge for cause must be tried by the judge before whom the person is to be tried.

(2) A challenge to a juror must be made after the juror's name has been drawn by ballot (unless the court, pursuant to section 325(2), has dispensed with balloting for jurors) and before the juror is sworn.

(3) The fact that a person summoned to serve on a jury is not qualified to serve is a ground of challenge for cause.

(4) There is no right of peremptory challenge of a juror, either by the Crown or by the defendant.

(5) The right of challenge to the array, that is to say the right of challenge on the ground that the person responsible for summoning the jurors in question is biased or has acted improperly, is not affected by any of the foregoing provisions of this section.

(6) The powers of the court to order the exclusion of the public from any proceedings include power for the judge to order that the hearing of a challenge for cause must be in camera or in chambers.

[Jury Ord. s.19; UK Juries Act 1974 s.12]

328. Appointment of foreman

(1) When the jurors have been sworn, they must appoint one of their number to be foreman.

(2) If a majority of the jurors do not agree in the appointment of a foreman within a time the judge considers reasonable, the judge must appoint a foreman.

(3) The functions of the foreman are —

(a) to preside during the deliberations of the jury;

(b) to ask any information from the court that is required by the jury or any of the jurors;

(c) to announce the verdict of the jury.

[Common law]

329. Documents produced as exhibits

(1) This section applies if on a trial before a judge and jury for an offence —

(a) a statement made in a document is admitted in evidence; and

(b) the document or a copy of it is produced as an exhibit.

(2) The exhibit must not accompany the members of the jury when they retire to consider their verdict unless —

(a) the judge considers it appropriate; or

(b) all the parties to the proceedings agree that it should accompany the jury.

[Common law; UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.122]

330. Separation and refreshment

(1) After the jury has been sworn for the trial of a person the judge may, if he or she thinks fit, permit the jury to separate, either before or after it has been directed to consider its verdict.

(2) If the jury is allowed to separate, the judge must give a suitable warning about not speaking to anyone who is not a member of the jury.

(3) A jury, after being sworn, may in the discretion of the court be allowed reasonable refreshment at the court's expense.

[Jury Ord. ss.20 and 21; UK Juries Act 1974 s.13]

331. Continuation of trial on death or discharge of a juror

(1) If in the course of a trial with a jury one or more members of the jury dies or is discharged by the court, whether because of illness, incapacity to continue to act, or any other reason, the jury remains (subject to subsections (2) and (3)) for all the purposes of the trial properly constituted and the trial must proceed and a verdict may be given accordingly.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply, and the jury must be discharged, if the number of jurors is reduced —

(a) in the case of a trial for treason - to below 10;

(b) in the case of any other trial – to below 6.

(3) Despite subsection (1), on the death or discharge of a member of the jury in the course of the trial of any person for an offence on indictment the court may discharge the jury in any case where the court sees fit to do so.

[Jury Ord. s.23; UK Juries Act 1974 s.16]

332. Discharge of jury for jury tampering

(1) If the judge is minded during a trial on indictment to discharge the jury because jury tampering appears to have taken place, then before taking any steps to discharge the jury, the judge must —

(a) inform the parties that he or she is minded to discharge the jury;

(b) inform the parties of the reason; and

(c) allow the parties an opportunity to make representations.

(2) If the judge, after considering any such representations, discharges the jury, the judge may, subject to subsection (4), order that the trial is to continue without a jury if the judge is satisfied that —

(a) jury tampering has taken place; and

(b) to continue the trial without a jury would be fair to the defendant or defendants.

(3) If the judge considers that it is necessary in the interests of justice for the trial to be terminated, he or she must terminate the trial.

(4) If a trial is continued without a jury, the court has all the powers, authorities and jurisdiction that the court would have had if the trial had been continued with a jury (including power to determine any question and to make any finding which would be required to be determined or made by a jury).

(5) Unless the context otherwise requires, any reference in an enactment to a jury, the verdict of a jury or the finding of a jury is to be read, in relation to a trial continued without a jury, as a reference to the court, the verdict of the court or the finding of the court.

(6) If a trial is continued without a jury and the court convicts a defendant —

(a) the judge must give a judgment which states the reasons for the conviction at, or as soon as reasonably practicable after, the time of the conviction; and

(b) for purposes of an appeal (or any other purpose) the date of the conviction is to be read as a reference to the date of that judgment.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.46]

333. Delivery of verdict

(1) Every verdict in a criminal case must be delivered orally in open court by the foreman of the jury, and must thereupon be recorded and read over to the jury before they are discharged.

(2) In every case the foreman must announce the number of jurors who agreed on the verdict and the number who dissented.

[Common law]

334. Majority verdicts

(1) Subject to subsections (2) and (3), the verdict of a jury need not be unanimous —

(a) in a trial of an offence of treason or murder, if at least 10 jurors agree on the verdict; and

(b) in any other trial, if at least 6 jurors agree on the verdict.

(2) A verdict of guilty by virtue of subsection (1) must not be accepted by the trial judge unless the foreman of the jury has stated in open court the number of the jurors who respectively agreed to and dissented from the verdict.

(3) The trial judge must not —

(a) accept a verdict by virtue of subsection (1) unless it appears to the judge that the jury has had a period of time for deliberation that the judge considers reasonable having regard to the nature and complexity of the case; and

(b) in any case accept such a verdict unless it appears to the judge that the jury has had at least 2 hours for deliberation.

[Jury Ord. s.24; UK Juries Act 1974 s.17]

335. Jury unable to reach a verdict

(1) If in any criminal case the judge is satisfied that there is no reasonable prospect of the jury agreeing upon a verdict which the court can accept, the judge must, subject to subsection (2), discharge the jury and either —

(a) cause a new jury to be at once empanelled and sworn and charged with the case; or

(b) adjourn the proceedings to a date the judge thinks fit.

(2) A jury must not be discharged before it has deliberated for at least 3 hours after the conclusion of the summing-up.

(3) A trial with a new jury must proceed afresh as if the first jury had not been empanelled.
[Common law]

336. Judgments: Limit on stay and reversal

(1) A judgment after a verdict in a trial by jury must not be stayed or reversed only because of any alleged impossibility or difficulty in the circumstances of the Falkland Islands or of the particular case in obtaining a fair trial by jury of the defendant in the Falkland Islands in respect of the offence in question, as it is open to any defendant who apprehends any such impossibility or difficulty to elect trial by the judge sitting without a jury.

(2) A judgment after a verdict in a trial by jury must not be stayed or reversed only because —

(a) the provisions of this Part about the summoning or empanelling of juries or the selection of jurors by ballot have not been complied with;

(b) a juror was not qualified in accordance with section 316;

(c) any juror was misnamed or misdescribed; or

(d) any juror was unfit to serve.

(3) Subsection (2)(a) does not apply in respect of an irregularity if objection is taken at, or as soon as practicable after, the time it occurs, and the irregularity is not corrected.

(4) Nothing in subsection (1) or (2) applies to an objection to a verdict on the ground of personation.

[Jury Ord. s.18; UK Juries Act 1974 s.18]

Miscellaneous provisions

337. Payment for jury service

(1) A person who serves as a juror is entitled, in respect of attendance at court for the purpose of performing jury service, to receive payment —

(a) for travelling and subsistence; and

(b) As compensation for financial loss, at the rates and subject to the conditions prescribed by criminal procedure rules.

(2) Compensation for financial loss is payable only if in consequence of a person's attendance at court for jury service the person has —

(a) incurred any expenditure (otherwise than on travelling and subsistence) to which the person would not otherwise be subject; or

(b) suffered any loss of earnings which the person would otherwise have made or received.

[Jury Ord. s.25]

338. Offences relating to juries and jurors

(1) Subject to subsections (2) to (4) it is an offence for —

(a) a person duly summoned under this Part to fail to attend in compliance with the summons;

(b) a person, after attending in response to a summons, not to be available when called to serve as a juror, or to be unfit for service by reason of drink or drugs.

Penalty: A fine at level 3 on the standard scale.

(2) An offence under subsection (1) is punishable either on summary conviction or as if it were criminal contempt of court committed in the face of the court.

(3) Subsection (1)(a) does not apply to a person summoned, otherwise than under section 322, unless the summons was duly served on the person not later than 14 days before the date fixed by the summons for the person's first attendance.

(4) A person who can show reasonable cause for failure to comply with a summons, or for not being available when called upon to serve, does not commit an offence under the preceding subsections; and those subsections have effect subject to the provisions of this Part about the withdrawal or alteration of a summons and about the granting of any excusal.

(5) It is an offence for a person —

(a) having been summoned under this Part, to make or cause to be made on his or her behalf a false representation to the appropriate officer with the intention of evading jury service;

(b) to make or cause to be made on behalf of another person who has been so summoned a false representation to that officer with the intention of enabling the other to avoid jury service;

(c) when any question is put to the person pursuant to section 319(5), to refuse without reasonable excuse to answer, or to give an answer which he or she knows to be false in a material particular;

(d) knowing that he or she is not qualified for jury service by reason of section 316(2), to serve on a jury;

(e) to impersonate a juror.

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

[Jury Ord. s.26; Common law]

(6) It is an offence for a person to —

- (a) attempt to corrupt or influence a juror by any means other than evidence and argument in open court at the trial;
- (b) give money to a juror in consideration of the juror giving or having given a verdict favourable to one of the parties;
- (c) by improper means procure for the person or others to be sworn upon a jury for the purpose of giving a verdict favourable to one of the parties;
- (d) induce a juror not to appear.

Penalty: imprisonment for one year or a fine at level 6 on the standard scale, or both.

(7) A juror who consents to or assists in the commission of any of the acts mentioned in subsection (6) commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for one year or a fine at level 6 on the standard scale, or both.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. s.42]

339. Rules and directions

(1) The Chief Justice may, in accordance with section 785, make criminal procedure rules and issue directions as contemplated by this Part and generally as required to ensure the effective conduct of criminal trials before a judge and jury.

(2) Rules made under this section may provide for juries to view the scene of a crime and to make notes, and for other matters, whether similar to those matters or not.

CHAPTER 7 – EVIDENCE

PART 19 – EVIDENCE: GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Principles for admission of evidence

340. Principles for admission of statements

(1) If, having regard to all the circumstances —

- (a) the Supreme Court —
 - (i) on a trial on indictment;
 - (ii) on an appeal from the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court; or
- (b) the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court on a trial of an information, is of the opinion that in the interests of justice a statement which is admissible by virtue of this Part nevertheless ought not to be admitted, it may direct that the statement be not admitted.

(2) Without limiting subsection (1), the court, in deciding whether a statement should be admitted, must have regard to —

(a) the nature and source of the document containing the statement and to whether or not, having regard to its nature and source and to any other circumstances that appear to the court to be relevant, it is likely that the document is authentic;

(b) the extent to which the statement appears to supply evidence which would otherwise not be readily available;

(c) the relevance of the evidence that it appears to supply to any issue which is likely to have to be determined in the proceedings; and

(d) any risk, having regard in particular to whether it is likely to be possible to controvert the statement if the person making it does not attend to give oral evidence in the proceedings, that its admission or exclusion will result in unfairness to the defendant or, if there is more than one, to any of them.

(3) Nothing in this Part affects —

(a) any power of a court to exclude evidence (whether by preventing questions from being put or otherwise) at its discretion;

(b) any power of a court to exclude at its discretion a statement admissible by virtue of this Part;

(c) the admissibility of a statement not made by a person while giving oral evidence in court which is admissible otherwise than by virtue of this Part.

(4) Nothing in this Ordinance affects any power of a court to exclude evidence at its discretion (whether by preventing questions being put or otherwise) which is exercisable apart from this Ordinance.

[CJ Ord. s.2 (part); UK PACE Act 1984 s.82]

341. Exclusion of unfair evidence

(1) In any proceedings the court may refuse to allow evidence on which the prosecution proposes to rely to be given if it appears to the court that, having regard to all the circumstances, including the circumstances in which the evidence was obtained, the admission of the evidence would have such an adverse effect on the fairness of the proceedings that the court ought not to admit it.

(2) Nothing in this section affects any rule of law requiring a court to exclude evidence.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.105; UK PACE Act 1984 s.78 am. by Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996]

342. Onus of proving exceptions, etc.

If the defendant to an information or on indictment relies for a defence on any exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification, whether or not it accompanies the description of the offence or matter of complaint in the enactment creating the offence or on which the complaint is founded, the burden of proving the exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification is on the defendant, even if the information or complaint contains an allegation negating the exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification.

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.101]

Summoning and calling of witnesses

343. General power to summon witnesses, etc.

(1) A court may, at any stage of any criminal proceedings, and in accordance with this Ordinance—

- (a) summon or call any person as a witness;
- (b) examine any person in attendance though not summoned as a witness;
- (c) recall and re-examine any person already examined.

(2) The court must summon and examine or recall and re-examine any witness if the person's evidence appears to it essential to the just decision of the case.

(3) The prosecutor or counsel for the prosecution or the defendant or counsel for the defendant may, with the leave of the court, cross-examine any person summoned or called by the court pursuant to subsection (1), and the court must adjourn the case for the time it thinks necessary to enable such cross-examination to be adequately prepared if, in its opinion, either party may be prejudiced by the calling of any such person as a witness.

[Case law summarised]

344. Witnesses in custody

(1) Without affecting any other power to summon witnesses conferred upon it by this Ordinance or any other law, a court that wishes to examine as a witness in any criminal proceedings before it a person who is in prison, may issue an order to the Chief Police Officer requiring the person to be brought in proper custody, at a time specified in the order, before the court for examination.

(2) The Chief Police Officer, on receipt of such an order, must —

- (a) act in accordance with it; and
- (b) provide for the safe custody of the prisoner during the prisoner's absence from the prison for such purpose.

[Case law summarised]

345. Arrest and punishment of recalcitrant witnesses

(1) Without affecting any other powers conferred by this Ordinance or any other law in relation to witnesses, a court may, if any person summoned to attend as a witness before it in any criminal proceedings fails to attend as required by the summons, issue a warrant to arrest the person and bring the person before the court at the time specified in the warrant.

(2) Without affecting any other powers conferred by this Ordinance or any other law, a person who, without just excuse —

(a) fails to attend before a court as required by any summons; or

(b) having attended a court, departs without obtaining the permission of the court or fails to attend after adjournment of the court after being ordered so to attend, is liable by order of the court to a fine at level 3 on the standard scale.

(3) If any person summoned to attend as a witness before a court in any criminal proceedings refuses without just excuse to be sworn or give evidence, or to produce any document or thing, the court may —

(a) commit the person to custody for up to 28 days or until the person sooner gives evidence or produces the document or thing;

(b) impose on the person a fine at level 4 on the standard scale; or

(c) commit the person to custody under paragraph (a) and fine the person under paragraph (b).

(4) If any person summoned to attend as a witness before a court in any criminal proceedings upon being brought before the court under a warrant issued under subsection (3) at or before the expiration of the period specified in the warrant, again refuses to do what is required of him or her, the court may, if it sees fit, commit the person to custody for a further period of up to 28 days and so again, from time to time, until the person consents to do what is required of him or her.

[Case law summarised; UK Criminal Procedure Rules 2012 Part 62]

346. Calling of the defendant

(1) If the only witness to the facts of the case called by the defence is the defendant, that person must be called as a witness immediately after the close of the evidence for the prosecution.

(2) Every defendant in criminal proceedings who is called as a witness in the proceedings must, unless otherwise ordered by the court, give evidence from the witness box or other place from which the other witnesses give their evidence.

[UK Criminal Evidence Act 1898 ss.1 and 2]

347. Time for taking defendant's evidence

If at the trial of any person for an offence —

- (a) the defence intends to call 2 or more witnesses to the facts of the case; and
- (b) those witnesses include the defendant,

the defendant must, subject to section 366 (Defendant's silence at trial), be called before the other witnesses unless the court in its discretion otherwise directs.

[CJ Ord. s.106; UK PACE Act 1984 s.79]

348. Evidence to be on oath

Subject to the provisions of any enactment or rule of law authorising the reception of unsworn evidence, evidence given before a court must be given on oath or by affirmation.

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.98 adapted]

Competence and compellability

349. Competence of witnesses to give evidence

(1) Subject to subsections (2) and (3), at every stage in criminal proceedings all persons (whatever their age) are competent to give evidence.

(2) A person is not competent to give evidence in criminal proceedings if it appears to the court that he or she is not a person who is able to —

- (a) understand questions put to him or her as a witness; and
- (b) give answers to them which can be understood.

(3) A defendant in criminal proceedings is not competent to give evidence in the proceedings for the prosecution, whether he or she is the only person, or is one of 2 or more persons, charged in the proceedings.

(4) In subsection (3) the reference to a defendant in criminal proceedings does not include a person who is not, or is no longer, liable to be convicted of any offence in the proceedings, whether as a result of pleading guilty or for any other reason.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. ss.3(3) and 40; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.53]

350. Determining competence of witnesses

(1) Any question whether a witness in criminal proceedings is competent to give evidence in the proceedings, whether raised by —

- (a) a party to the proceedings; or
- (b) the court on its own initiative,

is to be decided by the court in accordance with this section.

(2) It is for the party calling the witness to satisfy the court that, on a balance of probabilities, the witness is competent to give evidence in the proceedings.

(3) In determining the question mentioned in subsection (1) the court must treat the witness as having the benefit of any directions under section 429 (Special measures direction relating to eligible witness) which the court has given, or proposes to give, in relation to the witness.

(4) Any proceedings held for the determination of the question must take place in the absence of the jury (if there is one).

(5) Expert evidence may be received on the question.

(6) Any questioning of the witness (if the court considers that necessary) must be conducted by the court in the presence of the parties.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.41; UK Youth Justice & Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.54]

351. Deciding whether witness to be sworn

(1) Any question whether a witness in criminal proceedings may be sworn for the purpose of giving evidence on oath, whether raised by —

(a) a party to the proceedings; or

(b) the court on its own initiative,

is to be decided by the court in accordance with this section.

(2) The witness may not be sworn for that purpose unless he or she —

(a) has attained the age of 14; and

(b) has a sufficient appreciation of the solemnity of the occasion and of the particular responsibility to tell the truth which is involved in taking an oath.

(3) A witness who is able to give intelligible oral evidence is presumed to have a sufficient appreciation of those matters if no evidence tending to show the contrary is adduced by any party.

(4) If any such evidence is adduced, it is for the party seeking to have the witness sworn to satisfy the court that, on a balance of probabilities, the witness has attained the age of 14 and has a sufficient appreciation of the matters mentioned in subsection (2)(b).

(5) Any proceedings held for deciding the question mentioned in subsection (1) must take place in the absence of the jury (if there is one).

(6) Expert evidence may be received on the question.

(7) Any questioning of the witness, if the court considers that necessary, must be conducted by the court in the presence of the parties.

(8) For the purposes of this section a person is able to give intelligible oral evidence if the person is able to —

(a) understand questions put to him or her as a witness; and

(b) give answers to them which can be understood.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.42; UK Youth Justice & Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.55]

352. Reception of unsworn evidence

(1) Subsections (2) and (3) apply to a person of any age who —

(a) is competent to give evidence in criminal proceedings; but

(b) by virtue of section 351(2) is not permitted to be sworn for the purpose of giving evidence on oath in such proceedings.

(2) The evidence in criminal proceedings of a person to whom this subsection applies is to be given unsworn.

(3) A deposition of unsworn evidence given by a person to whom this subsection applies may be taken for the purposes of criminal proceedings as if that evidence had been given on oath.

(4) A court in criminal proceedings must receive in evidence any evidence given unsworn pursuant to subsection (2) or (3).

(5) If a person (“the witness”) who is competent to give evidence in criminal proceedings gives evidence in such proceedings unsworn, no conviction, verdict or finding in those proceedings is to be taken to be unsafe for the purposes of an appeal against conviction by reason only that it appears to the Court of Appeal that the witness was a person falling within section 351(2) (and should accordingly have given evidence on oath).

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.43; UK Youth Justice & Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.56]

353. No right for defendant to make unsworn statement

(1) Subject to subsections (2) and (3), in any criminal proceedings the defendant is not entitled to make a statement without being sworn, and accordingly, if the defendant gives evidence, he or she must, subject to sections 351 and 352, do so on oath and is liable to cross-examination.

(2) This section does not affect the right of the defendant, if not legally represented, to address the court or jury otherwise than on oath on any matter on which, if the defendant were so represented, a legal practitioner could address the court or jury on the defendant’s behalf.

(3) Nothing in subsection (1) prevents the defendant making a statement without being sworn if—

(a) it is one which the defendant is required by law to make personally; or

(b) the defendant makes it by way of mitigation before the court passes sentence.

[CJ Ord. s.106A; UK Criminal Justice Act 1982 s.72]

354. Competence of defendants and their spouses

(1) Subject to this section, a defendant, and the spouse of a defendant, is a competent witness for the defence at every stage of the proceedings, whether the defendant is charged solely or jointly with any other person.

(2) A defendant in criminal proceedings may not be called as a witness in the proceedings except upon the person's own application.

(3) The spouse of a defendant may not, except as provided in this Part, be called as a witness pursuant to this Part except upon the application of the defendant.

(4) A defendant in criminal proceedings who is called as a witness in the proceedings may be asked any question in cross-examination even though it would tend to incriminate the person as to any offence with which he or she is charged in the proceedings.

[UK Criminal Evidence Act 1898 s.1 am. by Youth Justice & Criminal Evidence Act 1999 etc.]

355. Compellability of defendant's spouse

(1) In any criminal proceedings the spouse of a defendant in the proceedings is, subject to subsection (4), compellable to give evidence on behalf of that person.

(2) In any criminal proceedings a person who has been, but is no longer, married to the defendant is compellable to give evidence as if that person and the defendant had never been married.

(3) In any criminal proceedings the spouse of a defendant in the proceedings is, subject to subsection (4), compellable to give evidence —

(a) on behalf of any other person charged in the proceedings, but only in respect of any specified offence with which that other person is charged;

(b) for the prosecution, but only in respect of any specified offence with which any person is charged in the proceedings.

(4) No defendant in any proceedings is compellable by virtue of subsection (1), (2) or (3) to give evidence in the proceedings.

(5) The failure of the spouse of a defendant in any proceedings to give evidence in the proceedings must not be made the subject of any comment by the prosecution.

[CJ Ord. s.107 (part); UK PACE Act 1984 s.80 am. by Youth Justice & Criminal Evidence Act 1999, etc.]

356. Compellability of defendant’s spouse: Supplementary

(1) In relation to the spouse of a defendant in any criminal proceedings, an offence is a specified offence for the purposes of section 355(3) if —

- (a) it involves an assault on, or injury or a threat of injury to, the spouse or a person who was at the material time under the age of 16;
- (b) it is a sexual offence (as defined in section 2(1)) alleged to have been committed in respect of a person who was at the material time under that age;
- (c) it consists of attempting or conspiring to commit, or of encouraging or aiding and abetting the commission of, an offence falling within paragraph (a) or paragraph (b).

(2) References in section 355 or this section to a defendant in any proceedings do not include a person who is not, or is no longer, liable to be convicted of any offence in the proceedings, whether as a result of pleading guilty or for any other reason.

[CJ Ord. s.107 (part); UK PACE Act 1984 s.80A ins. by Youth Justice & Criminal Evidence Act 1999]

Convictions and acquittals

357. Evidence in Magistrate’s Court or Summary Court

If —

- (a) person is convicted of a summary offence by the Magistrate’s Court or Summary Court, except when sitting as a Youth Court;
- (b) it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that not less than 7 days previously a notice was served on the person in a form and manner prescribed by criminal procedure rules specifying an alleged previous conviction of the person of an offence proposed to be brought to the notice of the court in the event of the person’s conviction of the offence charged; and
- (c) the person is not present in person before the court, the court may take account of any such previous conviction so specified as if the defendant had appeared and admitted it.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.104]

358. Proof of convictions and acquittals

(1) If in any proceedings the fact that a person has been convicted or acquitted of an offence in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere, other than by a court martial, is admissible in evidence, it may be proved by —

- (a) producing a certificate of conviction or, as the case may be, of acquittal relating to that offence; and

(b) proving that the person named in the certificate as having been convicted or acquitted of the offence is the person whose conviction or acquittal of the offence is to be proved.

(2) For the purposes of this section, a certificate of conviction or of acquittal must be, as regards a conviction or acquittal —

(a) on indictment - a certificate, signed by the proper officer of the court where the conviction or acquittal took place, giving the substance and effect (omitting the formal parts) of the indictment and of the conviction or acquittal;

(b) on summary trial - a copy of the conviction or of the dismissal of the information, signed by the proper officer of the court where the conviction or acquittal took place or by the proper officer of the court, if any, to which a memorandum of the conviction or acquittal was sent;

(c) by a court outside the Falkland Islands – a certificate, signed by the proper officer of the court where the conviction or acquittal took place, giving details of the offence, of the conviction or acquittal, and of any sentence.

(3) A document purporting to be a duly signed certificate of conviction or acquittal under this section is to be taken to be such a certificate unless the contrary is proved.

(4) In subsection (2) “proper officer” means —

(a) in relation to the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court - the Clerk of the court;

(b) in relation to the Supreme Court - the Registrar;

(c) in relation to a court outside the Falkland Islands – a person who would be the proper officer of the court if the court were in the Falkland Islands.

(5) References in this section to the clerk or registrar of a court include references to the deputy and to any other person having the custody of the court record.

(6) The method of proving a conviction or acquittal authorised by this section is in addition to any other authorised manner of proving a conviction or acquittal.

[CJ Ord. s.101; UK PACE Act 1984 s.73; Evidence Act 1851 s.7]

359. Conviction as evidence of commission of offence

(1) In any proceedings, if —

(a) evidence is admissible of the fact that the defendant has committed an offence; and

(b) the defendant is proved to have been convicted of the offence by or before any court or court martial in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere, the defendant is to be taken to have committed that offence unless the contrary is proved.

(2) In any proceedings, the fact that a person other than the defendant has been convicted of an offence by or before any court or court martial in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere is admissible to prove that the person committed that offence, if evidence of the person having committed it is admissible, whether or not any other evidence of the person having committed that offence is given.

(3) In any proceedings in which by virtue of this section or section 358 a person other than the defendant is proved to have been convicted of an offence by or before any court or court martial in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere, the person is to be taken to have committed that offence unless the contrary is proved.

(4) Nothing in this section affects —

(a) the admissibility in evidence of any conviction which would be admissible apart from this section; or

(b) the operation of any enactment by which a conviction or a finding of fact in any proceedings is for the purposes of any other proceedings made conclusive evidence of any fact.

(5) If evidence that a person has been convicted of an offence is admissible by virtue of this section, then, without affecting the reception of any other admissible evidence for the purpose of identifying the facts on which the conviction was based, the contents of —

(a) any document which is admissible as evidence of the conviction; and

(b) the information, complaint, indictment or charge-sheet on which the person in question was convicted, are admissible in evidence for that purpose.

(6) For the purposes of this section —

(a) a conviction leading to a conditional or absolute discharge, to a community sentence or to a probation order is a conviction; but

(b) a conviction that no longer subsists is not a conviction.

(7) If in any proceedings the contents of any document are admissible in evidence by virtue of subsection (5), a copy of the document, or of the material part of it, purporting to be certified or otherwise authenticated by or on behalf of the court or authority that has custody of the document is admissible in evidence and is to be taken to be a true copy of the document or part unless the contrary is shown.

[CJ Ord. s.102; UK PACE Act 1984 ss.74 and 75 am. by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

360. Proof by fingerprints

(1) A previous conviction may be proved against any person in any proceedings, by the production of such evidence of the conviction as is mentioned in this section, and by showing that that person's fingerprints and those of the person convicted are the fingerprints of the same person.

(2) A certificate purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the Chief Police Officer containing particulars relating to a conviction extracted from the criminal records kept by the police, and certifying that the copies of the fingerprints exhibited to the certificate are copies of the fingerprints appearing in the records to have been taken from the person convicted on the occasion of the conviction, is evidence of the conviction and that the copies of the fingerprints exhibited to the certificate are copies of the fingerprints of the person convicted.

(3) A certificate purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the Chief Police Officer, certifying that the fingerprints exhibited to it were taken from any person while in lawful custody, is evidence that the fingerprints exhibited to the certificate are the fingerprints of that person.

(4) A certificate purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the Chief Police Officer and certifying that the fingerprints, copies of which are certified by or on behalf of the Chief Police Officer to be copies of the fingerprints of a person previously convicted and the fingerprints certified by or on behalf of the Chief Police Officer under subsection (3), or otherwise shown to be the fingerprints of the person against whom the previous conviction is sought to be proved are the fingerprints of the same person, is evidence of the matters so certified.

(5) The method of proving a previous conviction authorised by this section is in addition to and not to the exclusion of any other authorised method of proving such conviction.

[UK case law summarised]

Admissions and confessions

361. Proof by formal admission

(1) Subject to this section, any fact of which oral evidence may be given in any proceedings may be admitted for the purpose of those proceedings by or on behalf of the prosecutor or defendant, and the admission by any party of any such fact under this section is, as against that party, conclusive evidence in those proceedings of the fact admitted.

(2) An admission under this section —

(a) may be made before or at the proceedings;

(b) if made otherwise than in court, must be in writing;

(c) if made in writing by an individual, must purport to be signed by the person making it and, if so made by a corporate body, to be signed by a director or manager, or the secretary or clerk, or some other similar officer of the body;

(d) if made on behalf of a defendant who is an individual, must be made by his or her legal practitioner;

(e) if made at any stage before the trial by a defendant who is an individual, must be approved by his or her legal practitioner, whether at the time it was made or subsequently, before or at the proceedings in question.

(3) An admission under this section for the purpose of proceedings relating to any matter is to be treated as an admission for the purpose of any subsequent criminal proceedings relating to that matter, including any appeal or retrial.

(4) An admission under this section may with the leave of the court be withdrawn in the proceedings for the purpose of which it is made or any subsequent criminal proceedings relating to the same matter.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1967 s.10]

362. Confessions: General

(1) In any proceedings a confession made by a defendant may be given in evidence against the defendant in so far as it is relevant to any matter in issue in the proceedings and is not excluded by the court pursuant to this section.

(2) If, in any proceedings in which the prosecution proposes to give in evidence, a confession made by a defendant, it is represented to the court that the confession was or may have been obtained —

(a) by oppression of the person who made it; or

(b) in consequence of anything said or done which was likely, in the circumstances existing at the time, to render unreliable any confession which might be made by the defendant in consequence of that thing, the court must not allow the confession to be given in evidence against the defendant (even if it may be true) unless the prosecution proves to the court beyond reasonable doubt that the confession was not obtained as described in paragraph (a) or (b).

(3) In any proceedings in which the prosecution proposes to give in evidence a confession made by a defendant, the court may on its own initiative require the prosecution, as a condition of allowing it to do so, to prove that the confession was not obtained as mentioned in subsection (2).

(4) The fact that a confession is wholly or partly excluded pursuant to this section does not affect the admissibility in evidence —

(a) of any facts discovered as a result of the confession; or

(b) if the confession is relevant as showing that the defendant speaks, writes or expresses himself or herself in a particular way - of so much of the confession as is necessary to show that he or she does so.

(5) Evidence that a fact to which this subsection applies was discovered as a result of a statement made by a defendant is not admissible unless evidence of how it was discovered is given by the defendant or on his or her behalf.

(6) Subsection (5) applies to any fact discovered as a result of a confession which is —

(a) wholly excluded pursuant to this section; or

(b) partly so excluded, if the fact is discovered as a result of the excluded part of the confession.

(7) In this section “oppression” includes torture, inhuman or degrading treatment and the use or threat of violence (whether or not amounting to torture).

[CJ Ord. s.103; UK PACE Act 1984 s.76 am. by Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996]

363. Confessions may be given in evidence for co-defendant

(1) In any proceedings a confession made by a defendant may be given in evidence for another person charged in the same proceedings (a co-defendant) insofar as it is relevant to any matter in issue in the proceedings and is not excluded by the court pursuant to this section.

(2) If, in any proceedings where a co-defendant proposes to give in evidence a confession made by a defendant, it is represented to the court that the confession was or may have been obtained—

(a) by oppression of the person who made it; or

(b) in consequence of anything said or done which was likely, in the circumstances existing at the time, to render unreliable any confession which might be made by the person in consequence of it, the court must not allow the confession to be given in evidence for the co-defendant except insofar as it is proved to the court on the balance of probabilities that the confession (even if it might be true) was not so obtained.

(3) Before allowing a confession made by a defendant to be given in evidence for a co-defendant in any proceedings, the court may on its own initiative require the fact that the confession was not obtained as mentioned in subsection (2) to be proved in the proceedings on the balance of probabilities.

(4) The fact that a confession is wholly or partly excluded pursuant to this section does not affect the admissibility in evidence —

(a) of any facts discovered as a result of the confession; or

(b) if the confession is relevant as showing that the defendant speaks, writes or expresses himself or herself in a particular way - of so much of the confession as is necessary to show that the defendant does so.

(5) Evidence that a fact to which this subsection applies was discovered as a result of a statement made by a defendant is not admissible unless evidence of how it was discovered is given by the defendant or on his or her behalf.

(6) Subsection (5) applies to —

(a) any fact discovered as a result of a confession which is wholly excluded pursuant to this section; and

(b) any fact discovered as a result of a confession which is partly so excluded, if the fact is discovered as a result of the excluded part of the confession.

(7) In this section “oppression” includes torture, inhuman or degrading treatment, and the use or threat of violence (whether or not amounting to torture).

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.76A inserted by Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.128]

364. Confessions by mentally disabled persons

(1) Without affecting the general duty of the court at a trial on indictment with a jury to direct the jury on any matter on which it appears to the court appropriate to do so, if in such a trial —

(a) the case against the defendant depends wholly or substantially on a confession by the defendant; and

(b) the court is satisfied that —

(i) the defendant is mentally disabled; and

(ii) the confession was not made in the presence of an independent person,

the court must —

(c) warn the jury, if there is one, or direct itself, if there is not, that there is special need for caution before convicting the defendant in reliance on the confession; and

(d) explain that the need arises because of the circumstances mentioned in paragraphs (a) and (b).

(2) If in a summary trial or a trial without a jury of a person for an offence it appears to the court that a warning under subsection (1) would be required if the trial were on indictment with a jury, the court must treat the case as one in which there is a special need for caution before convicting the defendant on his or her confession.

(3) In this section —

“independent person” does not include a police officer or a person employed for or engaged on police purposes;

“mentally disabled”, in relation to a person, means that the person is in a state of arrested or incomplete development of mind which includes significant impairment of intelligence and social functioning;

“police purposes” includes the purposes of civilians employed by the police and police cadets undergoing training with a view to becoming members of the police force.

[CJ Ord. s.104; UK PACE Act 1984 s.77 am. by UK Police Act 1996]

Inferences from silence

365. Defendant’s failure to mention facts when questioned or charged

(1) If, in any proceedings against a person for an offence, evidence is given that the defendant —

(a) at any time before the person was charged with the offence, on being questioned under caution by a police officer trying to discover whether or by whom the offence had been committed, failed to mention any fact relied on in his or her defence in those proceedings; or

(b) on being charged with the offence or officially informed that he or she might be prosecuted for it, failed to mention any such fact, and the fact is one which in the circumstances existing at the time the defendant could reasonably have been expected to mention when so questioned, charged or informed, as the case may be, subsection (2) applies.

(2) If this subsection applies —

(a) a judge, in determining whether there is a case to answer; and

(b) a court or jury, in determining whether the defendant is guilty of the offence charged, may draw any inferences from the failure that appear proper.

(3) If the defendant was at a place of lawful custody at the time of the failure, subsections (1) and (2) do not apply if the defendant had not been allowed an opportunity to consult a legal practitioner before being questioned, charged or informed as mentioned in subsection (1).

(4) Subject to any directions by the court, evidence tending to establish the failure may be given before or after evidence tending to establish the fact which the defendant is alleged to have failed to mention.

(5) This section applies in relation to questioning by persons (other than police officers) charged with the duty of investigating offences or charging offenders as it applies in relation to questioning by police officers; and in subsection (1) “officially informed” means informed by a police officer or any such person.

(6) This section does not —

(a) affect the admissibility in evidence of the silence or other reaction of the defendant in the face of anything said in the defendant’s presence relating to the conduct in respect of which the defendant is charged, insofar as evidence of it would be admissible apart from this section; or

(b) preclude the drawing of any inference from any such silence or other reaction of the defendant which could properly be drawn apart from this section.

(7) This section does not apply in relation to a failure to mention a fact if the failure occurred before the commencement of this section.

[UK Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994 s.34

366. Defendant’s silence at trial

(1) At the trial of any person for an offence, subsections (3) and (4) apply unless —

(a) the defendant’s guilt is not in issue; or

(b) it appears to the court that the physical or mental condition of the defendant makes it undesirable for him or her to give evidence.

(2) Subsection (3) does not apply if, at the conclusion of the evidence for the prosecution, the defendant’s legal practitioner informs the court that the defendant will give evidence or, if the defendant is unrepresented, the court ascertains from the defendant that he or she will give evidence.

(3) If this subsection applies, the court must, at the conclusion of the evidence for the prosecution, satisfy itself (in the case of proceedings on indictment, in the presence of the jury, if any) that the defendant is aware that —

(a) the stage has been reached at which evidence can be given for the defence;

(b) the defendant can, if he or she wishes, give evidence; and

(c) if the defendant chooses not to give evidence, or having been sworn, without good cause refuses to answer any question, it will be permissible for the court or jury to draw such inferences as appear proper from the defendant’s failure to give evidence or refusal, without good cause, to answer any question.

(4) If this subsection applies, the court or jury, in determining whether the defendant is guilty of the offence charged, may draw any inferences that appear proper from the defendant's failure to give evidence or refusal, without good cause, to answer any question.

(5) This section does not render the defendant compellable to give evidence on his or her own behalf, and the defendant is accordingly not guilty of contempt of court by reason of a failure to do so.

(6) For the purposes of this section a person who, having been sworn, refuses to answer any question is to be taken to do so without good cause unless —

(a) the person is entitled to refuse to answer the question by virtue of any enactment, whenever passed or made, or on the ground of privilege; or

(b) the court in the exercise of its general discretion excuses the person from answering it.

(7) This section applies —

(a) in relation to proceedings on indictment for an offence - only if the person charged with the offence appears on the indictment on or after the commencement of this section;

(b) in relation to proceedings in the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court - only if the time when the court begins to receive evidence in the proceedings falls after the commencement of this section.

[UK Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994 s.35]

367. Defendant's failure or refusal to account for objects, substances or marks

(1) If —

(a) a person is arrested by a police officer, and there is —

(i) on his or her person;

(ii) in or on his or her clothing or footwear;

(iii) otherwise in his or her possession; or

(iv) in any place in which he or she is when arrested, any object, substance or mark, or there is any mark on any such object;

(b) that or another police officer investigating the case reasonably believes that the presence of the object, substance or mark may be attributable to the participation of the arrested person in the commission of an offence specified by the officer;

(c) the police officer informs the arrested person that the officer so believes, and requests the person to account for the presence of the object, substance or mark; and

(d) the person fails or refuses to do so, then if, in any proceedings against the person for the offence so specified, evidence of those matters is given, subsection (2) applies.

(2) If this subsection applies —

(a) a judge, in determining whether there is a case to answer; and

(b) a court or jury, in determining whether the defendant is guilty of the offence charged,

may draw any inferences from the failure or refusal that appear proper.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) apply to the condition of clothing or footwear as they apply to a substance or mark on clothing or footwear.

(4) Subsections (1) and (2) do not apply unless the defendant was told in ordinary language by the police officer when making the request mentioned in subsection (1)(c) what the effect of this section would be if the defendant failed or refused to comply with the request.

(5) If the defendant was at a place of lawful custody at the time of the failure or refusal, subsections (1) and (2) do not apply if the defendant had not been allowed an opportunity to consult a legal practitioner before the request was made.

(6) This section applies in relation to questioning by customs officers investigating offences or charging offenders as it applies in relation to questioning by police officers.

(7) This section does not preclude the drawing of any inference from a failure or refusal of the defendant to account for the presence of an object, substance or mark or from the condition of clothing or footwear which could properly be drawn apart from this section.

(8) This section does not apply in relation to a failure or refusal which occurred before the commencement of this section.

[UK Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994 s.36 am. by Youth Justice & Criminal Evidence Act 1999]

368. Defendant's failure or refusal to account for presence at a particular place

(1) If —

(a) a person arrested by a police officer was found by the officer at a place at or about the time the offence for which he or she was arrested is alleged to have been committed;

(b) that or another police officer investigating the offence reasonably believes that the presence of the person at that place and at that time may be attributable to his or her participation in the commission of the offence;

(c) the police officer informs the person that the officer so believes, and requests the person to account for that presence; and

(d) the person fails or refuses to do so, then if, in any proceedings against the person for the offence, evidence of those matters is given, subsection (2) applies.

(2) If this subsection applies —

(a) a judge, in determining whether there is a case to answer; and

(b) a court or jury, in determining whether the defendant is guilty of the offence charged,

may draw any inferences from the failure or refusal that appear proper.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) do not apply unless the defendant was told in ordinary language by the police officer when making the request mentioned in subsection (1)(c) what the effect of this section would be if the defendant failed or refused to comply with the request.

(4) If the defendant was at a place of lawful custody at the time of the failure or refusal, subsections (1) and (2) do not apply if the defendant had not been allowed an opportunity to consult a legal practitioner before the request was made.

(5) This section applies in relation to questioning by other public officers investigating offences or charging offenders under statutory powers as it applies in relation to questioning by police officers.

(6) This section does not preclude the drawing of any inference from a failure or refusal of the defendant to account for his or her presence at a place which could properly be drawn apart from this section.

(7) This section does not apply in relation to a failure or refusal which occurred before the commencement of this section.

[UK Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994 s.37 am. by Youth Justice & Criminal Evidence Act 1999]

369. Interpretation and savings for sections 365 to 368

(1) In sections 365 to 368, references to an offence charged include references to any other offence of which the defendant could lawfully be convicted on that charge.

(2) A person must not be sent to the Supreme Court for trial, will not have a case to answer and must not be convicted of an offence by any court solely on an inference drawn from such a failure or refusal as is mentioned in section 365(2), 366(4), 367(2) or 368(2).

(3) Nothing in any of sections 365 to 368 affects the operation of a provision of any enactment which provides (in whatever words) that any answer or evidence given by a person giving evidence in specified circumstances is not admissible in evidence against that person or some other person in any proceedings or class of proceedings (however described, and whether civil or criminal).

(4) In subsection (3), the reference to giving evidence is a reference to giving evidence in any manner, whether by furnishing information, making discovery, producing documents or otherwise.

(5) Nothing in any of sections 365 to 368 affects any power of a court, in any proceedings, to exclude evidence (whether by preventing questions being put or otherwise) at its discretion.

[UK Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994 s.38 am. by Youth Justice & Criminal Evidence Act 1999]

370. Inferences in murder and manslaughter cases

(1) Subsection (2) applies if a defendant is charged in the same proceedings with an offence of murder or manslaughter and with an offence under section 77 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Causing or allowing the death of a child or vulnerable adult) in respect of the same death (“the section 77 offence”).

(2) If by virtue of section 366(4) a court or jury is permitted, in relation to the section 77 offence, to draw any inferences that appear proper from the defendant’s failure to give evidence or refusal to answer a question, the court or jury may also draw such inferences in determining whether the defendant is guilty —

(a) of murder or manslaughter; or

(b) of any other offence of which the defendant could lawfully be convicted on the charge of murder or manslaughter, even if there would otherwise be no case for the defendant to answer in relation to that offence.

(3) In any trial on a charge of murder or manslaughter the question whether there is a case for the defendant to answer is not to be considered before the close of all the evidence.

[UK Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004 s.6 adapted]

Evidence of bad character

371. Interpretation of sections 372 to 385

(1) In sections 372 to 385 —

“bad character” is to be read in accordance with section 372;

“important matter” means a matter of substantial importance in the context of the case as a whole;

“misconduct” means the commission of an offence or other reprehensible behaviour;

“probative value”, and “relevant”(in relation to an item of evidence), are to be read in accordance with section 383;

“prosecution evidence” means evidence which is to be (or has been) adduced by the prosecution, or which a witness is to be invited to give (or has given) in cross-examination by the prosecution.

(2) If a defendant is charged with 2 or more offences in the same criminal proceedings, sections 374 to 385 (except section 375(3)) have effect as if each offence were charged in separate proceedings; and references to the offence with which the defendant is charged are to be read accordingly.

(3) Nothing in sections 374 to 385 affects the exclusion of evidence —

(a) under the rule in section 401 (Witness may be discredited by the party producing) against a party impeaching the credit of that party’s own witness by general evidence of bad character;

(b) under section 455 (questions about complainant’s sexual history); or

(c) on grounds other than the fact that it is evidence of a person’s bad character.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.112]

372. “Bad character”

(1) References in sections 373 to 385 to evidence of a person’s “bad character” are to evidence of, or of a disposition towards, misconduct on the person’s part, other than evidence which —

(a) has to do with the alleged facts of the offence with which the defendant is charged; or

(b) is evidence of misconduct in connection with the investigation or prosecution of that offence.

(2) For the purpose of this section, evidence of bad character may include —

(a) notwithstanding section 136(3) - evidence of a previous caution, including a caution which has become “spent” in terms of section 136;

(b) notwithstanding section 505 - a conviction resulting in an absolute discharge under Part 24 (Absolute or Conditional Discharges); and

(c) notwithstanding section 628 - evidence of a previous conviction, including a conviction which has become “spent” in terms of section 627.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.98 expanded]

373. Abolition of common law rules

(1) The common law rules governing the admissibility of evidence of bad character in criminal proceedings are abolished.

(2) Subsection (1) is subject to section 396(1) (categories of admissibility) in so far as it preserves the rule under which in criminal proceedings a person’s reputation is admissible for the purposes of proving his or her bad character.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.99]

374. Non-defendant’s bad character

(1) In criminal proceedings, evidence of the bad character of a person other than the defendant is admissible if and only if —

(a) it is important explanatory evidence;

(b) it has substantial probative value in relation to a matter which —

(i) is a matter in issue in the proceeding; and

(ii) is of substantial importance in the context of the case as a whole; or

(c) all parties to the proceedings agree to the evidence being admissible.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1)(a) evidence is important explanatory evidence if —

(a) without it, the court or jury would find it impossible or difficult properly to understand other evidence in the case; and

(b) its value for understanding the case as a whole is substantial.

(3) In assessing the probative value of evidence for the purposes of subsection (1)(b) the court must have regard to the following factors (and to any others it considers relevant) —

(a) the nature and number of the events, or other things, to which the evidence relates;

(b) when those events or things are alleged to have happened or existed;

(c) if —

(i) the evidence is evidence of a person’s misconduct; and

(ii) it is suggested that the evidence has probative value by reason of similarity between that misconduct and other alleged misconduct, the nature and extent of the similarities and the dissimilarities between each of the alleged instances of misconduct;

(d) if —

(i) the evidence is evidence of a person's misconduct;

(ii) it is suggested that that person is also responsible for the misconduct charged; and

(iii) the identity of the person responsible for the misconduct charged is disputed, the extent to which the evidence shows or tends to show that the same person was responsible each time.

(4) Except where subsection (1)(c) applies, evidence of the bad character of a person other than the defendant must not be given without leave of the court.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.100]

375. Defendant's bad character

(1) In criminal proceedings evidence of the defendant's bad character is admissible if, but only if—

(a) all parties to the proceedings agree to the evidence being admissible;

(b) the evidence is adduced by the defendant or is given in answer to a question asked by the defendant in cross-examination and intended to elicit it;

(c) it is important explanatory evidence;

(d) it is relevant to an important matter in issue between the defendant and the prosecution;

(e) it has substantial probative value in relation to an important matter in issue between the defendant and a co-defendant;

(f) it is evidence to correct a false impression given by the defendant; or

(g) the defendant has made an attack on another person's character.

(2) Sections 376 to 380 contain provisions supplementing subsection (1).

(3) The court must not admit evidence under subsection (1)(d) or (g) if, on an application by the defendant to exclude it, it appears to the court that the admission of the evidence would have such an adverse effect on the fairness of the proceedings that the court ought not to admit it.

(4) On an application to exclude evidence under subsection (3) the court must have regard, in particular, to the length of time between the matters to which that evidence relates and the matters which form the subject of the offence charged.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.101]

376. “Important explanatory evidence”

For the purposes of section 375(1)(c) evidence is important explanatory evidence if —

(a) without it, the court or jury would find it impossible or difficult properly to understand other evidence in the case; and

(b) its value for understanding the case as a whole is substantial.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.102]

377. “Matter in issue between the defendant and the prosecution” – Schedule 7

(1) For the purposes of section 375(1)(d) the matters in issue between the defendant and the prosecution include —

(a) the question whether the defendant has a propensity to commit offences of the kind with which he or she is charged, except where having such a propensity makes it no more likely that the defendant is guilty of the offence;

(b) the question whether the defendant has a propensity to be untruthful, except where it is not suggested that the defendant’s case is untruthful in any respect.

(2) If subsection (1)(a) applies, a defendant’s propensity to commit offences of the kind with which he or she is charged may (without affecting any other way of doing so) be established by evidence that the defendant has been convicted of —

(a) an offence of the same description as the one with which he or she is charged; or

(b) an offence of the same category as the one with which he or she is charged.

(3) Subsection (2) does not apply in the case of a particular defendant if the court is satisfied, by reason of the length of time since the conviction or for any other reason, that it would be unjust for it to apply in his or her case.

(4) For the purposes of subsection (2) —

(a) 2 offences are of the same description as each other if the statement of the offence in an indictment would, in each case, be in the same terms;

(b) 2 offences are of the same category as each other if they belong to the same category of offences as set out in Schedule 7.

(5) Only prosecution evidence is admissible under section 375(1)(d).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.103 and SI 2004 No. 3346]

378. “Matter in issue between the defendant and a co-defendant”

(1) Evidence which is relevant to the question whether the defendant has a propensity to be untruthful is admissible on that basis under section 375(1)(e) only if the nature or conduct of his or her defence is such as to undermine the co-defendant’s defence.

(2) Only evidence —

(a) which is to be (or has been) adduced by the co-defendant; or

(b) which a witness is to be invited to give (or has given) in cross-examination by the co-defendant, is admissible under section 375(1)(e).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.104]

379. Evidence to correct a false impression

(1) For the purposes of section 375(1)(f) —

(a) the defendant gives a false impression if he or she is responsible for the making of an express or implied assertion which is apt to give the court or jury a false or misleading impression about the defendant;

(b) evidence to correct such an impression is evidence which has probative value in correcting it.

(2) A defendant is treated as being responsible for the making of an assertion if —

(a) the assertion is made by the defendant in the proceedings (whether or not in evidence given by him or her);

(b) the assertion was made by the defendant —

(i) on being questioned under caution, before charge, about the offence with which he or she is charged; or

(ii) on being charged with the offence or officially informed he or she might be prosecuted for it, and evidence of the assertion is given in the proceedings;

(c) the assertion is made by a witness called by the defendant;

(d) the assertion is made by any witness in cross-examination in response to a question asked by the defendant that is intended to elicit it, or is likely to do so; or

(e) the assertion was made by any person out of court, and the defendant adduces evidence of it in the proceedings.

(3) A defendant who would otherwise be treated as responsible for the making of an assertion is not to be so treated if, or to the extent that, the defendant withdraws it or disassociates himself or herself from it.

(4) If it appears to the court that a defendant, by means of his or her conduct (other than the giving of evidence) in the proceedings, is seeking to give the court or jury an impression about himself or herself that is false or misleading, the court may if it appears just to do so treat the defendant as being responsible for the making of an assertion which is apt to give that impression.

(5) In subsection (4) “conduct” includes appearance or dress.

(6) Evidence is admissible under section 375(1)(f) only if it goes no further than is necessary to correct the false impression.

(7) Only prosecution evidence is admissible under section 375(1)(f).
[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.105]

380. Attack on another person’s character

(1) For the purposes of section 375(1)(g) a defendant makes an attack on another person’s character if —

(a) the defendant adduces evidence attacking the other person’s character;

(b) the defendant (or any legal practitioner appointed under section 453(4) to cross-examine a witness in his or her interests) asks questions in cross-examination that are intended to elicit such evidence, or are likely to do so; or

(c) evidence is given of an imputation about the other person made by the defendant —

(i) on being questioned under caution, before charge, about the offence with which he or she is charged; or

(ii) on being charged with the offence or officially informed that he or she might be prosecuted for it.

(2) In subsection (1) “evidence attacking the other person’s character” means evidence to the effect that the other person —

(a) has committed an offence (whether a different offence from the one with which the defendant is charged or the same one); or

(b) has behaved, or is disposed to behave, in a reprehensible way; and “imputation about the other person” means an assertion to that effect.

(3) Only prosecution evidence is admissible under section 375(1)(g).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.106]

381. Stopping the case if evidence contaminated

(1) If on a defendant’s trial before a judge and jury for an offence —

(a) evidence of the defendant’s bad character has been admitted under any of paragraphs (c) to (g) of section 375(1); and

(b) the court is satisfied at any time after the close of the case for the prosecution that —
(i) the evidence is contaminated; and

(ii) the contamination is such that, considering the importance of the evidence to the case against the defendant, his or her conviction of the offence would be unsafe, the court must either direct the jury to acquit the defendant of the offence or, if it considers that there ought to be a retrial, discharge the jury.

(2) If —

(a) a jury is directed under subsection (1) to acquit a defendant of an offence; and

(b) the circumstances are such that, apart from this subsection, the defendant could if acquitted of that offence be found guilty of another offence, the defendant may not be found guilty of that other offence if the court is satisfied as mentioned in subsection (1)(b) in respect of it.

(3) If —

(a) a jury is required to decide under section 764 (Finding that the defendant did the act or made the omission charged) whether a person charged on an indictment with an offence did the act or made the omission charged;

(b) evidence of the person’s bad character has been admitted under any of paragraphs (c) to (g) of section 375(1); and

(c) the court is satisfied at any time after the close of the case for the prosecution that —

(i) the evidence is contaminated; and

(ii) the contamination is such that, considering the importance of the evidence to the case against the person, a finding that he or she did the act or made the omission would be unsafe,

the court must either direct the jury to acquit the defendant of the offence or, if it considers that there ought to be a rehearing, discharge the jury.

(4) This section does not prejudice any other power a court may have to direct a jury to acquit a person of an offence or to discharge a jury.

(5) For the purposes of this section a person's evidence is contaminated if —

(a) as a result of an agreement or understanding between the person and one or more others;
or

(b) as a result of the person being aware of anything alleged by one or more others whose evidence may be, or has been, given in the proceedings, the evidence is false or misleading in any respect, or is different from what it would otherwise have been.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.107]

382. Offences committed by defendant when a child

(1) In proceedings for an offence committed or alleged to have been committed by the defendant when aged 21 or over, evidence of his or her conviction for an offence when under the age of 14 is not admissible unless —

(a) both of the offences are indictment-only; and

(b) the court is satisfied that the interests of justice require the evidence to be admissible.

(2) Subsection (1) applies in addition to section 375.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.108]

383. Assumption of truth in assessment of relevance or probative value

(1) Subject to subsection (2), a reference in any of sections 374 to 385 to the relevance or probative value of evidence is a reference to its relevance or probative value on the assumption that it is true.

(2) In assessing the relevance or probative value of an item of evidence for any purpose of sections 374 to 385, a court need not assume that the evidence is true if it appears, on the basis of any material before the court (including any evidence it decides to hear on the matter) that no court or jury could reasonably find it to be true.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.109]

384. Court's duty to give reasons for rulings

(1) If the court makes a relevant ruling —

(a) it must state in open court (but in the absence of the jury, if there is one) its reasons for the ruling;

(b) if it is the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, it must cause the ruling and the reasons for it to be entered in the register of the court's proceedings.

(2) In this section "relevant ruling" means —

(a) a ruling on whether an item of evidence is evidence of a person's bad character;

(b) a ruling on whether an item of such evidence is admissible under section 374 or 375 (including a ruling on an application under section 375(3));

(c) a ruling stopping the case under section 381.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.110]

385. Criminal procedure rules

(1) The Chief Justice may, by criminal procedure rules, make further provision for the purposes of sections 371 to 384, including a provision requiring a prosecutor who proposes to —

(a) adduce evidence of a defendant's bad character; or

(b) cross-examine a witness with a view to eliciting such evidence, to serve on the defendant such notice, and such particulars of or relating to the evidence, as are prescribed by the rules.

(2) The criminal procedure rules may provide that the court or the defendant may, in prescribed circumstances, dispense with a requirement imposed by virtue of subsection (1).

(3) In considering the exercise of its powers with respect to costs, the court may take into account any failure by a party to comply with a requirement imposed by virtue of subsection (1) and not dispensed with by virtue of subsection (2).

(4) The criminal procedure rules may —

(a) limit the application of any provision of the rules to prescribed circumstances;

(b) subject any provision of the rules to prescribed exceptions;

(c) make different provision for different cases or circumstances.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.111]

Expert evidence

386. Expert reports

(1) Subject to the following sections, an expert report is admissible as evidence in criminal proceedings, whether or not the person making it attends to give oral evidence in those proceedings.

(2) If the person making the report does not give oral evidence, the report is only admissible with the leave of the court.

(3) In deciding whether to give leave the court must have regard to —

(a) the contents of the report;

(b) the reasons why it is proposed that the person making the report should not give oral evidence;

(c) any risk, having regard in particular to whether it is likely to be possible to controvert statements in the report if the person making it does not attend to give oral evidence in the proceedings, that its admission or exclusion will result in unfairness to the defendant or, if there is more than one, to any of them; and

(d) any other circumstances that appear to the court to be relevant.

(4) An expert report, when admitted, is evidence of any fact or opinion of which the person making it could have given oral evidence.

(5) In this section, “expert report” means a written report by a person dealing wholly or mainly with matters on which the person is (or would if living be) qualified to give expert evidence.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1988 s.30]

387. Form of evidence and glossaries

(1) For the purpose of helping the members of a jury to understand complicated issues of fact or technical terms in any proceedings, the court may, subject to relevant criminal procedure rules, provide, or give leave for one of the parties to provide to the jury —

(a) evidence in any form, even if there exists admissible material from which the evidence to be given in that form would be derived; and

(b) one or more glossaries for specified purposes.

(2) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules provide for the circumstances in which, and the manner in which, provision as described in subsection (1) may be made.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1988 s.31]

388. Expert evidence: Preparatory work

(1) This section applies if —

(a) a statement has been prepared for the purposes of criminal proceedings;

(b) the person who prepared the statement had or may reasonably be supposed to have had personal knowledge of the matters stated;

(c) notice is given pursuant to relevant criminal procedure rules that another person (“the expert”) will in evidence given in the proceedings orally, or under section 408 (Proof by written statement), base an opinion or inference on the statement; and

(d) the notice gives the name of the person who prepared the statement and the nature of the matters stated.

(2) In evidence given in the proceedings the expert may base an opinion or inference on the statement.

(3) If evidence based on the statement is given under subsection (2) the statement is to be treated as evidence of what it states.

(4) This section does not apply if the court, on an application by a party to the proceedings, orders that it is not in the interests of justice that it should apply.

(5) The matters to be considered by the court in deciding whether to make an order under subsection (4) include —

(a) the expense of calling as a witness the person who prepared the statement;

(b) whether relevant evidence could be given by that person which could not be given by the expert;

(c) whether that person can reasonably be expected to remember the matters stated well enough to give oral evidence of them.

(6) Subsections (1) to (5) apply to a statement prepared for the purposes of a criminal investigation as they apply to a statement prepared for the purposes of criminal proceedings, and in such a case references to the proceedings are to criminal proceedings arising from the investigation.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.127]

389. Advance notice of expert evidence: Criminal procedure rules

(1) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision —

(a) requiring any party to proceedings before any court to disclose to the other party or parties any expert evidence which the party proposes to adduce in the proceedings; and

(b) prohibiting a party who fails to comply in respect of any evidence with any requirements imposed by virtue of paragraph (a) from adducing that evidence without the leave of the court.

(2) Criminal procedure rules made pursuant to subsection (1) may —

(a) specify the kinds of expert evidence to which they apply; and

(b) exempt facts or matters of any description specified in the rules.
[Criminal Justice Ord. s.108; UK PACE Act 1984 s.81]

Proof of non-payment of sum adjudged

390. Proof of non-payment of sum adjudged

If a court has ordered one person to pay to another any sum of money, and proceedings are taken before that or any other court to enforce payment of that sum, then —

(a) if the person to whom the sum is ordered to be paid is the Registrar or the Clerk of the court - a certificate, purporting to be signed by the registrar or clerk, that the sum has not been paid to the registrar or clerk; and

(b) in any other case - a document purporting to be a statutory declaration by the person to whom the sum is ordered to be paid, that the sum has not been paid to that person, is admissible as evidence that the sum has not been paid, unless the court requires the registrar or clerk or other person to be called as a witness.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.99 adapted]

PART 20 – HEARSAY AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

391. Interpretation of Part

(1) In this Part —

“oral evidence” includes evidence which, by reason of any disability, disorder or other impairment, a person called as a witness gives in writing or by signs or by way of any device;

“video recording” means any recording, on any medium, from which a moving image may by any means be produced, and includes the accompanying sound-track.

(2) If a defendant is charged with 2 or more offences in the same criminal proceedings, this Part has effect as if each offence were charged in separate proceedings.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.133]

Hearsay: Main provisions

392. Admissibility of hearsay evidence

(1) In criminal proceedings a statement not made in oral evidence in the proceedings is admissible as evidence of any matter stated if, but only if —

(a) any provision of this Part or any other statutory provision makes it admissible;

(b) any rule of law preserved by section 396 makes it admissible;

(c) all parties to the proceedings agree to it being admissible; or

(d) the court is satisfied that it is in the interests of justice for it to be admissible.

(2) In deciding whether a statement not made in oral evidence should be admitted under subsection (1)(d), the court must have regard to the following factors (and to any others it considers relevant) —

(a) how much probative value the statement has (assuming it to be true) in relation to a matter in issue in the proceedings, or how valuable it is for the understanding of other evidence in the case;

(b) what other evidence has been, or can be, given on the matter or evidence mentioned in paragraph (a);

(c) how important the matter or evidence mentioned in paragraph (a) is in the context of the case as a whole;

(d) the circumstances in which the statement was made;

(e) how reliable the maker of the statement appears to be;

(f) how reliable the evidence of the making of the statement appears to be;

(g) whether oral evidence of the matter stated can be given and, if not, why it cannot;

(h) the amount of difficulty involved in challenging the statement;

(i) the extent to which that difficulty would be likely to prejudice the party facing it.

(3) Nothing in this Part affects the exclusion of evidence of a statement on grounds other than the fact that it is a statement not made in oral evidence in the proceedings.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.114]

393. Statements and matters stated

(1) In this Part references to a statement or to a matter stated are to be read as follows.

(2) A statement is any representation of fact or opinion made by a person by whatever means; and it includes a representation made in a sketch, photofit or other pictorial form.

(3) A matter stated is one to which this Part applies if (and only if) the purpose, or one of the purposes, of the person making the statement appears to the court to have been —

(a) to cause another person to believe the matter; or

(b) to cause another person to act or a machine to operate on the basis that the matter is as stated.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.115]

Principal categories of admissibility

394. Cases where a witness is unavailable

(1) In criminal proceedings a statement not made in oral evidence in the proceedings is admissible as evidence of any matter stated if —

- (a) oral evidence given in the proceedings by the person who made the statement (the relevant person) would be admissible as evidence of that matter;
- (b) the person who made the statement is identified to the court's satisfaction; and
- (c) any of the 5 conditions mentioned in subsection (2) is satisfied.

(2) The conditions are that the relevant person —

- (a) is dead;
- (b) is unfit to be a witness because of his or her bodily or mental condition;
- (c) is outside the Falkland Islands and it is not reasonably practicable to ensure his or her attendance;
- (d) cannot be found although such steps as it is reasonably practicable to take to find him or her have been taken;
- (e) through fear or because he or she is kept out of the way, does not give (or does not continue to give) oral evidence in the proceedings, either at all or in connection with the subject matter of the statement, and the court gives leave for the statement to be given in evidence.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2)(e) “fear” is to be widely construed and (for example) includes fear of the death or injury of another person or of financial loss.

(4) Leave may be given under subsection (2)(e) only if the court considers that the statement ought to be admitted in the interests of justice, having regard to —

- (a) the statement's contents;
- (b) any risk that its admission or exclusion will result in unfairness to any party to the proceedings (and in particular to how difficult it will be to challenge the statement if the relevant person does not give oral evidence);
- (c) in appropriate cases - the fact that a direction under section 429 (Special measures direction relating to eligible witness) could be made in relation to the relevant person; and
- (d) any other relevant circumstances.

(5) A condition set out in any paragraph of subsection (2) which is in fact satisfied is to be treated as not satisfied if it is shown that the circumstances described in that paragraph are caused —

- (a) by the person in support of whose case it is sought to give the statement in evidence; or
- (b) by a person acting on that person's behalf, in order to prevent the relevant person giving oral evidence in the proceedings (whether at all or in connection with the subject matter of the statement).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.116]

395. Business and other documents

(1) In criminal proceedings a statement contained in a document is admissible as evidence of any matter stated if —

- (a) oral evidence given in the proceedings would be admissible as evidence of that matter; and
- (b) the requirements of subsection (2) are satisfied.

(2) The requirements of this subsection are satisfied if —

- (a) the document or the part containing the statement was created or received by a person in the course of a trade, business, profession or other occupation, or as the holder of a paid or unpaid office;
- (b) the person who supplied the information contained in the statement (the relevant person) had or may reasonably be supposed to have had personal knowledge of the matters dealt with; and
- (c) each person (if any) through whom the information was supplied from the relevant person to the person mentioned in paragraph (a) received the information in the course of a trade, business, profession or other occupation, or as the holder of a paid or unpaid office.

(3) The persons mentioned in paragraphs (a) and (b) of subsection (2) may be the same person.

(4) A statement is not admissible under this section if the court makes a direction to that effect under subsection (5).

(5) The court may make a direction under this subsection if satisfied that the statement's reliability as evidence for the purpose for which it is tendered is doubtful in view of —

- (a) its contents;
- (b) the source of the information contained in it;

(c) the way in which or the circumstances in which the information was supplied or received; or

(d) the way in which or the circumstances in which the document concerned was created or received.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.117 adapted]

396. Preservation of certain common law categories of admissibility

(1) The following rules of law are preserved so far as they allow the court to treat such evidence as proving the matter concerned —

A. Public information, etc.

Any rule of law under which in criminal proceedings —

(a) published works dealing with matters of a public nature (such as histories, scientific works, dictionaries and maps) are admissible as evidence of facts of a public nature stated in them;

(b) public documents (such as public registers, and returns made under public authority with respect to matters of public interest) are admissible as evidence of facts stated in them;

(c) records (such as the records of certain courts, treaties, Crown grants, pardons and commissions) are admissible as evidence of facts stated in them; or

(d) evidence relating to a person's age or date or place of birth may be given by a person without personal knowledge of the matter.

B. Reputation as to character

Any rule of law under which in criminal proceedings evidence of a person's reputation is admissible for the purpose of proving his or her good or bad character, so far as it allows the court to treat such evidence as proving the matter concerned.

C. Reputation or family tradition

Any rule of law under which in criminal proceedings evidence of reputation or family tradition is admissible for the purpose of proving or disproving —

(a) pedigree or the existence of a marriage;

(b) the existence of any public or general right; or

(c) the identity of any person or thing, so far as it allows the court to treat such evidence as proving or disproving the matter concerned.

D. Res gestae

Any rule of law under which in criminal proceedings a statement is admissible as evidence of any matter stated if —

- (a) the statement was made by a person so emotionally overpowered by an event that the possibility of concoction or distortion can be disregarded;
- (b) the statement accompanied an act which can be properly evaluated as evidence only if considered in conjunction with the statement; or
- (c) the statement relates to a physical sensation or a mental state (such as intention or emotion).

E. Confessions, etc.

Any rule of law relating to the admissibility of confessions or mixed statements in criminal proceedings.

F. Admissions by agents, etc.

Any rule of law under which in criminal proceedings —

- (a) an admission made by an agent of a defendant is admissible against the defendant as evidence of any matter stated; or
- (b) a statement made by a person to whom a defendant refers a person for information is admissible against the defendant as evidence of any matter stated.

G. Common enterprise

Any rule of law under which in criminal proceedings a statement made by a party to a common enterprise is admissible against another party to the enterprise as evidence of any matter stated.

H. Expert evidence

Any rule of law under which in criminal proceedings an expert witness may draw on the body of expertise relevant to his or her field.

(2) With the exception of the rules preserved by this section, the common law rules governing the admissibility of hearsay evidence in criminal proceedings are abolished.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.118 adapted]

397. Inconsistent statements

(1) If in criminal proceedings a person gives oral evidence and —

- (a) the person admits making a previous inconsistent statement; or
- (b) a previous inconsistent statement made by the person is proved by virtue of section 398 or 399, the statement is admissible as evidence of any matter stated of which oral evidence by the person would be admissible.

(2) If in criminal proceedings evidence of an inconsistent statement by any person is given under section 403(2)(c) the statement is admissible as evidence of any matter stated in it of which oral evidence by that person would be admissible.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.119]

398. Witness may be discredited by the party producing

(1) A party producing a witness —

(a) may not impeach the credit of the witness by general evidence of bad character; but

(b) may, if the witness in the opinion of the judge proves adverse, contradict the witness by other evidence, or, by leave of the judge, prove that the witness has made at other times a statement inconsistent with his or her present oral evidence.

(2) Before proof can be given as in subsection (1)(b), the circumstances of the supposed statement, sufficient to designate the particular occasion, must be mentioned to the witness, and the witness must be asked whether or not he or she has made such statement.

[UK Criminal Procedure Act 1865 s.3]

399. Proof of contradictory statements of adverse witness

(1) If a witness, upon cross-examination as to a former statement made by the witness relative to the subject matter of the indictment or proceeding, and inconsistent with his or her present oral evidence, does not distinctly admit that he or she has made such statement, proof may be given that the witness did in fact make it.

(2) Before such proof can be given, the circumstances of the supposed statement sufficient to designate the particular occasion, must be mentioned to the witness, and the witness must be asked whether or not he or she has made such statement.

(3) A witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by the witness in writing, or reduced into writing, relative to the subject matter of the indictment or proceeding, without such writing being shown to the witness.

(4) If it is intended to contradict such witness by the writing, the attention of the witness must, before such contradictory proof can be given, be called to those parts of the writing which are to be used for the purpose of so contradicting him or her.

(5) The judge, at any time during the trial, may require the production of the writing for the judge's inspection, and may then make such use of it for the purposes of the trial as the judge thinks fit.

[UK Criminal Procedure Act 1865 ss.4 & 5]

400. Other previous statements of witnesses

(1) This section applies when a person (the witness) is called to give evidence in criminal proceedings.

(2) If a previous statement by the witness is admitted as evidence to rebut a suggestion that his or her oral evidence has been fabricated, that statement is admissible as evidence of any matter stated of which oral evidence by the witness would be admissible.

(3) A statement made by the witness in a document —

- (a) which is used by the witness to refresh his or her memory while giving evidence;
- (b) on which the witness is cross-examined; and
- (c) which as a consequence is received in evidence in the proceedings, is admissible as evidence of any matter stated of which oral evidence by the witness would be admissible.

(4) A previous statement by the witness is admissible as evidence of any matter stated of which oral evidence by the witness would be admissible, if —

- (a) any of the following three conditions is satisfied; and
- (b) while giving evidence the witness indicates that to the best of his or her belief he or she made the statement, and that to the best of his or her belief it states the truth.

(5) The first condition is that the statement identifies or describes a person, object or place.

(6) The second condition is that the statement was made by the witness when the matters stated were fresh in his or her memory but the witness does not remember them, and cannot reasonably be expected to remember them, well enough to give oral evidence of them in the proceedings.

(7) The third condition is that —

- (a) the witness claims to be a person against whom an offence has been committed;
- (b) the offence is one to which the proceedings relate;
- (c) the statement consists of a complaint made by the witness (whether to a person in authority or not) about conduct which would, if proved, constitute the offence or part of the offence;
- (d) the complaint was not made as a result of a threat or a promise; and

(e) before the statement is adduced the witness gives oral evidence in connection with its subject matter.

(8) For the purposes of subsection (7), the fact that the complaint was elicited (for example, by a leading question) is irrelevant unless a threat or a promise was involved.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.120 am. by Coroners & Justice Act 2009]

Hearsay: Supplementary

401. Admissibility of multiple hearsay

(1) A hearsay statement is not admissible to prove the fact that an earlier hearsay statement was made unless —

(a) one of the statements is admissible under section 395, 398 or 400;

(b) all parties to the proceedings so agree; or

(c) the court is satisfied that the value of the evidence in question, taking into account how reliable the statements appear to be, is so high that the interests of justice require the later statement to be admissible for that purpose.

(2) In this section “hearsay statement” means a statement, not made in oral evidence, that is relied on as evidence of a matter stated in it.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.121]

402. Capability to make statement

(1) Nothing in section 394, 397 or 400 makes a statement admissible as evidence if it was made by a person who did not have the required capability at the time when he or she made the statement.

(2) Nothing in section 395 makes a statement admissible as evidence if any person who, in order for the requirements of section 395(2) to be satisfied, must at any time have supplied or received the information concerned or created or received the document or part concerned —

(a) did not have the required capability at that time; or

(b) cannot be identified but cannot reasonably be assumed to have had the required capability at that time.

(3) For the purposes of this section a person has the required capability if the person is able to —

(a) understand questions put to him or her about the matters stated; and

(b) give answers to the questions which can be understood.

(4) If by reason of this section there is an issue as to whether a person had the required capability when he or she made a statement —

(a) proceedings held for deciding the issue must take place in the absence of the jury (if there is one);

(b) in determining the issue the court may receive expert evidence and evidence from any person to whom the statement in question was made;

(c) the burden of proof on the issue lies on the party seeking to adduce the statement, and the standard of proof is the balance of probabilities.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.123]

403. Credibility

(1) This section applies if in criminal proceedings —

(a) a statement not made in oral evidence in the proceedings is admitted as evidence of a matter stated; and

(b) the person who made the statement does not give oral evidence in connection with the subject matter of the statement.

(2) In such a case —

(a) any evidence which (if the person had given such evidence) would have been admissible as relevant to his or her credibility as a witness is so admissible in the proceedings;

(b) evidence may with the court's leave be given of any matter which (if the person had given such evidence) could have been put to the person in cross-examination as relevant to his or her credibility as a witness but of which evidence could not have been adduced by the cross-examining party;

(c) evidence tending to prove that the person made (at whatever time) any other statement inconsistent with the statement admitted as evidence is admissible for the purpose of showing that the person contradicted himself or herself.

(3) If as a result of evidence admitted under this section an allegation is made against the maker of a statement, the court may permit a party to lead additional evidence of a description specified by the court for the purposes of denying or answering the allegation.

(4) In the case of a statement in a document which is admitted as evidence under section 394, each person who, in order for the statement to be admissible, must have supplied or received the information concerned, or created or received the document or part concerned, is to be treated as the maker of the statement for the purposes of subsections (1) to (3) of this section.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.124]

404. Stopping the case if evidence is unconvincing

(1) If on a defendant's trial before a judge and jury for an offence the court is satisfied at any time after the close of the case for the prosecution that —

(a) the case against the defendant is based wholly or partly on a statement not made in oral evidence in the proceedings; and

(b) the evidence provided by the statement is so unconvincing that, considering its importance to the case against the defendant, a conviction of the offence would be unsafe, the court must either direct the jury to acquit the defendant of the offence or, if it considers that there ought to be a retrial, discharge the jury.

(2) If —

(a) a jury is directed under subsection (1) to acquit a defendant of an offence; and

(b) the circumstances are such that, apart from this subsection, the defendant could if acquitted of that offence be convicted of another offence, the defendant may not be convicted of that other offence if the court is satisfied as mentioned in subsection (1) in respect of it.

(3) If —

(a) a jury is required to decide under section 764 whether a person charged on an indictment with an offence did the act or made the omission charged; and

(b) the court is satisfied as mentioned in subsection (1) at any time after the close of the case for the prosecution that —

(i) the case against the defendant is based wholly or partly on a statement not made in oral evidence in the proceedings; and

(ii) the evidence provided by the statement is so unconvincing that, considering its importance to the case against the person, a finding that the person did the act or made the omission would be unsafe,

the court must either direct the jury to acquit the defendant of the offence or, if it considers that there ought to be a rehearing, discharge the jury.

(4) This section does not affect any other power a court may have to direct a jury to acquit a person of an offence or to discharge a jury.

(5) This section applies with necessary modifications to a trial on indictment by judge alone and to a summary trial.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.125]

405. Court's general discretion to exclude evidence

(1) In criminal proceedings the court may refuse to admit a statement as evidence of a matter stated if —

- (a) the statement was made otherwise than in oral evidence in the proceedings; and
- (b) the court is satisfied that the case for excluding the statement, taking account of the danger that to admit it would result in undue waste of time, substantially outweighs the case for admitting it, taking account of the value of the evidence.

(2) Nothing in this Part affects —

- (a) any power of a court to exclude evidence under section 341 (Exclusion of unfair evidence); or
- (b) any other power of a court to exclude evidence at its discretion (whether by preventing questions from being put or otherwise).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.126]

406. Representations other than by a person

(1) If a representation of any fact —

- (a) is made otherwise than by a person; but
- (b) depends for its accuracy on information supplied (directly or indirectly) by a person, the representation is not admissible in criminal proceedings as evidence of the fact unless it is proved that the information was accurate.

(2) Subsection (1) does not affect the operation of the presumption that a mechanical device has been properly set or calibrated.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.129]

407. Criminal procedure rules

(1) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make such provision as appears to the Chief Justice to be necessary or expedient for the purposes of this Part.

(2) The criminal procedure rules may —

- (a) make provision about the procedure to be followed and other conditions to be fulfilled by a party proposing to tender a statement in evidence under any provision of this Part;

(b) require a party proposing to tender the evidence to serve on each party to the proceedings prescribed notice, and prescribed particulars of or relating to the evidence;

(c) provide that the evidence is to be treated as admissible by agreement of the parties if —

(i) a notice has been served in accordance with provision made under paragraph (b); and

(ii) no counter-notice in the prescribed form objecting to the admission of the evidence has been served by a party.

(3) If a party proposing to tender evidence fails to comply with a prescribed requirement applicable to it —

(a) the evidence is not admissible except with the court's leave;

(b) if leave is given the court or jury may draw such inferences from the failure as appear proper.

(4) In considering whether or how to exercise any of its powers under subsection (3) the court must have regard to whether there is any justification for the failure to comply with the requirement.

(5) A person is not to be convicted of an offence solely on an inference drawn under subsection (3)(b).

(6) The criminal procedure rules may —

(a) limit the application of any provision of the rules to prescribed circumstances;

(b) subject any provision of the rules to prescribed exceptions;

(c) make different provision for different cases or circumstances.

(7) Nothing in this section limits any enactment conferring power to make criminal procedure rules; and no particular provision of this section prejudices any general provision of it.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.132]

Documentary evidence

408. Proof by written statement

(1) In any criminal proceedings, a written statement by any person is, if such of the conditions mentioned in subsection (2) as are applicable are satisfied, admissible as evidence to the same extent as oral evidence to the same effect by that person.

(2) The conditions are —

- (a) the statement purports to be signed by the person who made it;
 - (b) the statement contains a declaration by that person to the effect that it is true to the best of his or her knowledge and belief and that he or she made the statement knowing that, if it were tendered in evidence, he or she would be liable to prosecution if he or she wilfully stated in it anything which he or she knew to be false or did not believe to be true;
 - (c) before the hearing at which the statement is tendered in evidence, a copy of the statement is served, by or on behalf of the party proposing to tender it, on each of the other parties to the proceedings; and
 - (d) none of the other parties or their legal practitioners, within 7 days after the service of the copy of the statement, serves a notice on the party so proposing objecting to the statement being tendered in evidence under this section.
- (3) The conditions mentioned in paragraphs (c) and (d) of subsection (2) do not apply if the parties agree before or during the hearing that the statement may be tendered in evidence.
- (4) The following provisions also have effect in relation to any written statement tendered in evidence under this section, that is to say —
- (a) if the statement is made by a person under the age of 18, it must give his or her age;
 - (b) if it is made by a person who cannot read it, it must be read to the person before he or she signs it and be accompanied by a declaration by the person who read the statement to the effect that it was so read; and
 - (c) if it refers to any other document as an exhibit, the copy served on any other party to the proceedings under subsection (2)(c) must be accompanied by a copy of that document or by any information necessary to enable the party on whom it is served to inspect the document or a copy of it.
- (5) Even if a written statement made by a person is admissible as evidence by virtue of this section —
- (a) the party by whom or on whose behalf a copy of the statement was served may call the person to give evidence; and
 - (b) the court may, on its own initiative or on the application of any party to the proceedings, require the person to attend before the court and give evidence.
- (6) An application under subsection (5)(b) to a court may be made before the hearing, and on any such application the powers of the court are exercisable by any person eligible to preside over or sit as a member of the court.
- (7) If a statement is admitted in evidence by virtue of this section —

(a) the statement must, unless the court otherwise directs, be read aloud at the hearing;

(b) if the court so directs, an account must be given orally of any of the statement that is not read aloud.

(8) Any document or object referred to as an exhibit and identified in a written statement tendered in evidence under this section must be treated as if it had been produced as an exhibit and identified in court by the maker of the statement.

(9) A document required by this section to be served on any person may be served —

(a) by delivering it to the person or to his or her legal practitioner;

(b) by addressing it to the person and leaving it at his or her usual or last known place of abode or place of business or by addressing it to his or her legal practitioner and leaving it at the practitioner's office;

(c) by sending it in a registered letter or by the recorded delivery service addressed to the person at his or her usual or last known place of abode or place of business or addressed to the person's legal practitioner at the practitioner's office; or

(d) in the case of a corporate body, by delivering it to the secretary or clerk of the body at its registered or principal office or sending it in a registered letter or by the recorded delivery service addressed to the secretary or clerk of that body at that office.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1967 s.9]

409. Evidence by certificate

(1) In any proceedings, a certificate purporting to be signed by a police officer and certifying that—

(a) a plan or drawing exhibited thereto is a plan or drawing made by the officer of the place or object specified in the certificate; and

(b) the plan or drawing is correctly drawn to a scale so specified, is evidence of the relative position of the things shown on the plan or drawing.

(2) In any proceedings for an offence under the Road Traffic Ordinance, or any other law relating to the use of vehicles on roads, a certificate purporting to be signed by a police officer and certifying that a person specified in the certificate stated to the police officer that a particular motor vehicle on a particular occasion —

(a) was being driven by, or belonged to, that person;

(b) belonged to a firm in which that person also stated that he or she was at the time of the statement a partner; or

(c) belonged to a corporation of which that person also stated that he or she was at the time of the statement a director, officer or employee, is admissible as evidence for the purpose of determining by whom the vehicle was being driven, or to whom it belonged, as the case may be, on that occasion.

(3) In any proceedings for an offence relating to the theft, receiving or unlawful detention of a mail bag or postal packet, a statutory declaration by any person that —

(a) the person dispatched or received or failed to receive any goods or postal packet, or that any goods or postal packet when dispatched or received by the person were in a particular state or condition; or

(b) a vessel, vehicle or aircraft was at any time employed by or under the Government for, or engaged in, the transmission of postal packets under contract, is admissible as evidence of the facts stated in the declaration.

(4) Nothing in this section makes a certificate or statutory declaration admissible as evidence in proceedings for an offence except if and to the extent that oral evidence to the same effect would have been admissible in those proceedings.

(5) Nothing in this section makes a certificate or statutory declaration admissible as evidence in proceedings for any offence —

(a) unless a copy of it has, not less than 7 days before the hearing or trial, been served on the person charged with the offence; or

(b) if that person, not later than 3 days before the hearing or trial, or within any further time the court in special circumstances allows, serves notice on the prosecutor requiring the attendance at the trial of the person who signed the certificate or the person by whom the declaration was made, as the case may be.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1948 s.41]

410. Proof of statements in documents

(1) If a statement contained in a document is admissible as evidence in criminal proceedings, it may be proved by the production of —

(a) the document; or

(b) a copy of the document, or of the material part of it, (whether or not the document is still in existence), authenticated in any manner the court approves.

(2) It is immaterial for the purposes of this section how many removes there are between a copy and the original.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.133]

411. Use of documents to refresh memory

(1) A person giving oral evidence in criminal proceedings about any matter may, at any stage in the course of doing so, refresh his or her memory of it from a document made or verified by the person at an earlier time if —

(a) the person states in oral evidence that the document records his or her recollection of the matter at that earlier time; and

(b) the person's recollection of the matter is likely to have been significantly better at that time than it is at the time of that oral evidence.

(2) If —

(a) a person giving oral evidence in criminal proceedings about any matter has previously given an oral account, of which a sound recording was made, and the person states in that evidence that the account represented his or her recollection of the matter at that time;

(b) the person's recollection of the matter is likely to have been significantly better at the time of the previous account than it is at the time of the oral evidence; and

(c) a transcript has been made of the sound recording, the person may, at any stage in the course of giving evidence, refresh his or her memory of the matter from that transcript.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.139]

412. Microfilm copies

In any proceedings, the contents of a document may (whether or not the document is still in existence) be proved by the production of an enlargement of a microfilm copy of that document or of the material part of it, authenticated in any manner the court approves.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.71]

413. Proof by production of copy

(1) If a statement, deposition or document is admissible in evidence by virtue of any provision of this Part, it may be proved by the production of —

(a) the statement, deposition or document; or

(b) a copy of it or the material part of it.

(2) Subsection (1)(b) applies whether or not the statement, deposition or document is still in existence.

(3) It is immaterial for the purposes of this section how many removes there are between a copy and the original.

[UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.5F]

414. Documentary evidence: Supplementary

(1) Sections 408 to 413 are in addition to and do not displace the provisions of Part 19 (Evidence: General Principles) or any other written law governing the reception of documentary evidence in the Falkland Islands so far as those provisions are relevant to criminal proceedings.

(2) A statement in a document is not capable of corroborating evidence given by the person making it.

(3) In estimating the weight, if any, to be attached to such a statement regard must be had to all the circumstances from which any inference can reasonably be drawn as to its accuracy or otherwise.

[Common law]

Video recordings

415. Evidence by video recording

(1) This section applies if —

- (a) a person is called as a witness in criminal proceedings;
- (b) the person claims to have witnessed (whether visually or in any other way) —
 - (i) events alleged by the prosecution to include conduct constituting the offence or part of the offence; or
 - (ii) events closely connected with such events;
- (c) the person has previously given an account of the events in question (whether in response to questions asked or otherwise);
- (d) the account was given at a time when those events were fresh in the person's memory (or would have been, assuming the truth of the claim mentioned in paragraph (b));
- (e) a video recording was made of the account;
- (f) the court has given a direction that the recording should be admitted as evidence in chief of the witness, and the direction has not been rescinded; and
- (g) the recording is played in the proceedings in accordance with the direction.

(2) If, or to the extent that, the witness in his or her oral evidence in the proceedings asserts the truth of the statements made by him or her in the recorded account, they are to be treated as if made by the witness in that evidence.

(3) A direction under subsection (1)(f) —

(a) may not be made in relation to a recorded account given by the defendant;

(b) may be made only if it appears to the court that —

(i) the witness's recollection of the events in question is likely to have been significantly better when the witness gave the recorded account than it will be when he or she gives oral evidence in the proceedings; and

(ii) it is in the interests of justice for the recording to be admitted, having regard in particular to the matters mentioned in subsection (4).

(4) The matters referred to in subsection (3) are —

(a) the interval between the time of the events in question and the time when the recorded account was made;

(b) any other factors that might affect the reliability of what the witness said in that account;

(c) the quality of the recording;

(d) any views of the witness as to whether his or her evidence in chief should be given orally or by means of the recording.

(5) For the purposes of subsection (2) it does not matter if the statements in the recorded account were not made on oath.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.137]

416. Video recordings: Further provisions

(1) The reference in section 415(1)(f) to the admission of a recording includes a reference to the admission of part of a recording; and references in that section and this one to the video recording or to the witness's recorded account are, when appropriate, to be read accordingly.

(2) In considering whether any part of a recording should be admitted under section 418, the court must consider —

(a) whether admitting that part would carry a risk of prejudice to the defendant; and

(b) if so, whether the interests of justice nevertheless require it to be admitted in view of the desirability of showing the whole, or substantially the whole, of the recorded interview.

(3) A court may not give a direction under section 4158(1)(f) in relation to any proceedings unless it is satisfied that arrangements can be made for implementing directions under that section.

(4) Nothing in section 415 affects the admissibility of any video recording which would be admissible apart from that section.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.138 am. by Coroners & Justice Act 2009]

PART 21 – LIVE LINK EVIDENCE

417. Interpretation and savings

(1) In this Part “live link” means an arrangement by which a person (when not in the place where criminal proceedings are being conducted) is able —

- (a) to see and hear a person at the place; and
- (b) to be seen and heard by the persons mentioned in subsection (2), and for this purpose any impairment of eyesight or hearing is to be disregarded.

(2) The persons are —

- (a) the judge, Senior Magistrate or justices of the peace taking part in the proceedings;
- (b) the Registrar or Clerk of the court while taking part in the proceedings;
- (c) the defendant or defendants and the prosecutor;
- (d) legal practitioners appearing for the defence or prosecution and persons assisting them;
- (e) the jury, if any; and
- (f) any interpreter appointed to assist a defendant, while performing that role.

(3) Nothing in this Part affects any power of a court —

- (a) to make an order, give directions or give leave of any description in relation to any witness (including the defendant or defendants);
- (b) to exclude evidence at its discretion (whether by preventing questions being put or otherwise);
- (c) to give a direction for live link evidence to be received under section 435 (Evidence by live link) or 445 (Live link directions).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.56 adapted; Youth Justice & Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.33B]

418. Evidence by live link by persons outside the Falkland Islands

(1) A person other than the defendant may, with the leave of the court, give evidence through a live television link in proceedings to which subsection (2) applies, if the person is outside the Falkland Islands.

(2) This subsection applies to —

(a) trials on indictment and appeals to the Court of Appeal; and

(b) proceedings in the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court (including when sitting as the Youth Court) and appeals to the Supreme Court arising out of such proceedings.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1988 s.32 as amended]

419. Evidence by live link by persons generally

(1) A witness (other than the defendant) may, if the court so directs, give evidence through a live link in the following criminal proceedings —

(a) a summary trial;

(b) an appeal to the Supreme Court arising out of such a trial;

(c) a trial on indictment;

(d) an appeal in a criminal matter to the Court of Appeal; and

(e) a hearing before the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court, or the Supreme Court, after the defendant has entered a plea of guilty.

(2) A direction may be given under this section —

(a) on an application by a party to the proceedings; or

(b) on the court’s own initiative,

but may not be given unless the court is satisfied, after considering any representations made by the prosecutor and the defence —

(c) that it is in the interests of the efficient or effective administration of justice for the person concerned to give evidence in the proceedings through a live link; and

(d) that suitable facilities for receiving evidence through a live link are available in the place in which it appears to the court that the proceedings will take place.

(3) In deciding whether to give a direction under this section the court must consider all the circumstances of the case, including, but not limited to —

- (a) the availability of the witness;
- (b) the need for the witness to attend in person;
- (c) the importance of the witness's evidence to the proceedings;
- (d) the views of the witness;
- (e) the suitability of the facilities at the place where the witness would give evidence through a live link; and
- (f) whether a direction might tend to inhibit any party to the proceedings from effectively testing the witness's evidence.

(4) The court must state in open court its reasons for granting or refusing an application for a direction under this section and, if it is the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, must cause the reasons to be entered in the register of its proceedings.

(5) Nothing in this section limits section 6 of the Constitution with regard to participating in proceedings.

420. Effect of, and rescission of, a direction under section 419

(1) If the court gives a direction under section 419 for a person to give evidence through a live link in particular proceedings, that person may not give evidence in those proceedings after the direction is given except through a live link, subject to the following provisions of this section.

(2) The court may rescind a direction under section 419 if it appears to the court to be in the interests of justice to do so.

(3) If the court rescinds a direction, the person concerned may no longer give evidence in the proceedings through a live link, but this does not prevent the court from giving a further direction under section 419 in relation to that person.

(4) A direction under section 419 may be rescinded under subsection (2) —

- (a) on an application by a party to the proceedings; or
- (b) on the court's own initiative,

but no application may be made under paragraph (a) unless there has been a material change of circumstances since the direction was given.

(5) The court must state in open court its reasons for —

- (a) rescinding a direction under section 419; or

(b) refusing an application to rescind such a direction, and, if it is the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, must cause the reasons to be entered in the register of its proceedings.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.52]

421. Warning to jury

If, by virtue of section 418 or 419, evidence has been given through a live link in criminal proceedings before the Supreme Court, the judge must give the jury (if there is one) any direction the judge considers necessary to ensure that the jury gives the same weight to the evidence as if it had been given by the witness in the courtroom or other place where the proceedings are held.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.54]

422. Procedural provisions

In relation to an application under this Part —

(a) uncontested applications may be decided by the court without a hearing;

(b) an unsuccessful application under section 418 may not be renewed unless there has been a material change of circumstances.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.55 (part) as substantive provision]

423. Criminal procedure rules

(1) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make any provision that appears to the Chief Justice to be necessary or expedient for the purposes of this Part.

(2) Criminal procedure rules may in particular make provision as to —

(a) the procedure to be followed in connection with applications under section 418 or 419; and

(b) the arrangements or safeguards to be put in place in connection with the operation of live links.

(3) The provision which may be made by virtue of subsection (2)(a) includes provision for the manner in which confidential or sensitive information is to be treated in connection with an application under section 418 or 419, and in particular as to its being disclosed to, or withheld from, a party to the proceedings.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.55 (part)]

424. Offence of perjury

A statement made on oath by a witness and given in evidence through a live link by virtue of this Part is to be treated for the purposes of Part 19 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Perjury, etc.) as having been made in the proceedings in which it is given in evidence.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1988 s.32 (part)]

PART 22 – VULNERABLE WITNESSES

425. Interpretation of Part

(1) In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires —

“child witness” has the meaning given to it by section 431(1);

“eligible witness” means a witness eligible for assistance by virtue of section 426 or 427;

“relevant recording”, in relation to a witness or a complainant, is a video recording of an interview of the witness or complainant made with a view to its admission as evidence in chief of the witness or complainant;

“relevant time” in relation to a direction under this Part means —

(a) the time when the direction was given; or

(b) if a previous application has been made for a direction, the time when the application (or last application) was made;

“special measures direction” means a direction given under section 426;

“witness anonymity order” has the meaning given by section 469.

(2) In this Part —

(a) references to the quality of a witness’s evidence are to its quality in terms of completeness, coherence and accuracy; and for this purpose “coherence” refers to a witness’s ability in giving evidence to give answers which address the questions put to the witness and can be understood both individually and collectively;

(b) references to the special measures available in relation to a witness are to be construed in accordance with section 428;

(c) references to a person being able to see or hear, or be seen or heard by, another person are to be read as not applying to the extent that either of them is unable to see or hear by reason of any impairment of eyesight or hearing;

(d) a reference to cross-examination includes a reference to further cross-examination;

(e) a reference to an offence includes a reference to attempting or conspiring to commit, or encouraging, or aiding and abetting the commission of, that offence;

(f) in proceedings in which there is more than one defendant, a reference to the defendant includes a reference to all or any of the defendants, as the court determines.

(3) For the purposes of this Part —

(a) if it is alleged that an offence to which this Part applies has been committed, the fact that any person has consented to an act which, on a prosecution for that offence, would fall to be proved by the prosecution, does not prevent that person from being regarded as a person against whom the alleged offence was committed;

(b) if it is alleged that an offence of conspiracy or encouragement of another to commit an offence has been committed, the person against whom the substantive offence is alleged to have been intended to be committed is to be regarded as the person against whom the conspiracy or encouragement is alleged to have been committed;

(c) if a person is accused of an offence under any of sections 212 to 218 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014, (Child sex offences) or under section 227, 228, 283 or 284 (Familial sex offences) of that Ordinance, the other party to the act in question is to be taken to be a person against whom the offence was committed even though he or she consented to that act;

(d) a person is accused of an offence if —

(i) an information is laid alleging that the person has committed the offence;

(ii) the person appears before a court charged with the offence;

(iii) a court before which the person is appearing sends the person to the Supreme Court for trial on a new charge alleging the offence; or

(iv) part of an indictment charging the person with the offence is preferred before the Supreme Court.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.21; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 ss.33, 62, 65; Coroners & Justice Act 2009]

Special measures: Eligible witnesses

426. Witnesses eligible for assistance on grounds of age or incapacity

(1) A witness in criminal proceedings (other than the defendant) is eligible for assistance by virtue of this section if —

(a) the witness is under the age of 18 at the time of the hearing; or

(b) the court considers that the quality of evidence given by the witness is likely to be diminished by reason of any circumstances falling within subsection (2).

(2) The circumstances falling within this subsection are —

(a) that the witness —

- (i) suffers from mental disorder; or
- (ii) otherwise has a significant impairment of intelligence and social functioning;

(b) that the witness has a physical disability or is suffering from a physical disorder.

(3) In subsection (1)(a) “the time of the hearing”, in relation to a witness, means the time when it falls to the court to make a determination for the purposes of section 429 in relation to the witness.

(4) In determining whether a witness falls within subsection (1)(b) the court must consider any views expressed by the witness.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.4; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.16]

427. Witnesses eligible for assistance on grounds of fear or distress about testifying

(1) A witness in criminal proceedings (other than the defendant) is eligible for assistance by virtue of this subsection if the court is satisfied that the quality of evidence given by the witness is likely to be diminished by reason of fear or distress on the part of the witness in connection with testifying in the proceedings.

(2) In determining whether a witness falls within subsection (1) the court must take into account, in particular —

(a) the nature and alleged circumstances of the offence to which the proceedings relate;

(b) the age of the witness;

(c) any of the following matters that appear to the court to be relevant, namely —

(i) the social and cultural background and ethnic origins of the witness;

(ii) the domestic and employment circumstances of the witness; and

(iii) any religious beliefs or political opinions of the witness;

(d) any behaviour towards the witness on the part of —

(i) the defendant;

(ii) members of the family or associates of the defendant; or

(iii) any other person who is likely to be a defendant or a witness in the proceedings.

(3) In determining that question the court must in addition consider any views expressed by the witness.

(4) If the complainant in respect of a sexual offence is a witness in proceedings relating to that offence (or to that offence and any other offences), the witness is eligible for assistance in relation to those proceedings by virtue of this subsection unless the witness has informed the court of the witness's wish not to be so eligible by virtue of this subsection.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.5; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.17]

428. Special measures available to eligible witnesses

(1) For the purposes of this Part —

(a) the provision which may be made by a special measures direction by virtue of each of sections 434 to 442 is a special measure available in relation to a witness eligible for assistance by virtue of section 426; and

(b) (subject to subsection (3)) the provision which may be made by such a direction by virtue of each of sections 434 to 440 is a special measure available in relation to a witness eligible for assistance by virtue of section 427.

(2) A court must not make a special measures direction pursuant to subsection (1)(a) or (b) in relation to a witness in any proceedings unless the court is satisfied that relevant arrangements can be made available in the court where the proceedings will take place.

(3) In subsection (3) “relevant arrangements” means arrangements for implementing the measure in question which cover the witness and the proceedings in question.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.6; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.18 adapted]

429. Special measures direction relating to eligible witness

(1) This section applies when in any criminal proceedings —

(a) a party to the proceedings makes an application for the court to give a direction under this section in relation to a witness in the proceedings other than the defendant; or

(b) the court on its own initiative raises the issue whether such a direction should be given.

(2) If the court determines that the witness is eligible for assistance by virtue of section 426 or 427, the court must —

(a) determine whether any of the special measures available in relation to the witness (or any combination of them) would, in its opinion, be likely to improve the quality of evidence given by the witness; and

(b) if so —

(i) determine which of those measures (or combination of them) would, in its opinion, be likely to maximise so far as practicable the quality of such evidence; and

(ii) give a direction under this section providing for the measure or measures so determined to apply to evidence given by the witness.

(3) In determining for the purposes of this Part whether any special measure or measures would or would not be likely to improve, or to maximise so far as practicable, the quality of evidence given by the witness, the court must consider all the circumstances of the case, including in particular —

(a) any views expressed by the witness; and

(b) whether the measure or measures might tend to inhibit such evidence being effectively tested by a party to the proceedings.

(4) A special measures direction must specify particulars of the provision made by the direction in respect of each special measure which is to apply to the witness's evidence.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.7 (part); UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.19]

430. General provisions about directions

(1) Subject to subsection (2) and section 431(8), a special measures direction has binding effect from the time it is made until the proceedings for the purposes of which it is made are either determined or abandoned, in relation to the defendant or (if there is more than one) in relation to each of the defendants.

(2) The court may discharge or vary (or further vary) a special measures direction if it appears to the court to be in the interests of justice to do so, and may do so either —

(a) on an application made by a party to the proceedings, if there has been a material change of circumstances since the relevant time; or

(b) on its own initiative.

(3) Nothing in any of sections 435(2) and (3), 438(4) to (6) or 440(4) to (6) affects the power of the court to vary or discharge a special measures direction under subsection (2).

(4) The court must state in open court its reasons for —

(a) giving or varying;

(b) refusing an application for, or for the variation or discharge of; or

(c) discharging,

a special measures direction and, if it is the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, must cause the reasons to be entered in the register of its proceedings.

(5) Uncontested applications may be determined by the Clerk of the court without a hearing.

(6) An unsuccessful application for a special measures direction may not be renewed unless there has been a material change of circumstances.

(7) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision for —

(a) expert evidence to be given in connection with an application for, or for varying or discharging, such a direction;

(b) the manner in which confidential or sensitive information is to be treated in connection with such an application and in particular as to its being disclosed to, or withheld from, a party to the proceedings.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.8; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.20]

431. Special provisions relating to child witnesses

(1) For the purposes of this section, a witness in criminal proceedings is a “child witness” if he or she is under the age of 18.

(2) If the court, in making a determination for the purposes of section 429(2), determines that a witness is a child witness, the court must —

(a) decide whether any of the special measures available in relation to the witness (or any combination of them) would be likely to improve the quality of evidence given by the witness; if so

(b) determine which of those measures (or combination of them) would be likely to maximise the quality of such evidence as far as practicable; and

(c) give a special measures direction accordingly, having regard to subsections (3) to (5) of this section.

(3) The primary rule for a special measures direction in the case of a child witness is that —

(a) any relevant recording is to be admitted under section 438; and

(b) any evidence given by the witness in the proceedings which is not given by means of a video recording is to be given by means of a live link in accordance with section 435.

(4) The primary rule is subject to the availability of recording equipment, and the interests of justice, as required by section 438(2).

(5) The primary rule is also disapplied if —

(a) the witness (not being a child in need of special protection) tells the court that he or she wishes the rule not to apply or to apply only in part; and

(b) the court is satisfied that not complying with the rule would not diminish the quality of the witness's evidence.

(6) If as a consequence of all or part of the primary rule being disapplied under subsection (5) a witness's evidence or any part of it would fall to be given as oral evidence in court, the court must give a special measures direction making provision as described in section 434 for the evidence or that part of it.

(7) In making a decision under subsection (5)(b), the court must take into account the following factors (and any others it considers relevant) —

- (a) the age and maturity of the witness;
- (b) the ability of the witness to understand the consequences of giving evidence otherwise than in accordance with subsection (3);
- (c) the relationship (if any) between the witness and the defendant;
- (d) the witness's social and cultural background and ethnic origins;
- (e) the nature and alleged circumstances of the offence to which the proceedings relate.

(8) If a special measures direction is given in relation to a child witness who is an eligible witness by reason only of being under 18, then —

- (a) subject to subsection (9); and
- (b) unless the witness has already begun to give evidence in the proceedings, the direction ceases to have effect when the witness attains the age of 18.

(9) If a special measures direction is given in relation to a child witness who is an eligible witness by reason only of being under 18, and —

- (a) the direction provides for —
 - (i) any relevant recording to be admitted under section 438 as evidence in chief of the witness; or
 - (ii) recorded cross-examination or re-examination as provided by section 440; and
- (b) the witness is still under the age of 18 when the video recording is made for the purposes of section 438 or 440, the direction continues to have effect even though the witness subsequently attains that age.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.9; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.21]

432. Extension of section 431 to certain witnesses over 17

(1) For the purposes of this section, a witness in criminal proceedings (other than the defendant) is a “qualifying witness” if he or she —

(a) is not under the age of 18 at the time of the hearing; but

(b) was under that age when a relevant recording was made.

(2) Subsections (2) to (4) and (9) of section 431 apply to a qualifying witness in respect of the relevant recording as they apply to a child witness (within the meaning of that section).

(3) Subsection (5) of section 431 applies to a qualifying witness in need of special protection as it applies to a child witness in need of special protection.

(4) Subsections (6) and (7) of section 431 apply to a qualifying witness in need of special protection by virtue of subsection (1) of this section as they apply to a child witness as mentioned in that section.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.10; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.22]

433. Special provisions relating to sexual offences

(1) This section applies if in criminal proceedings relating to a sexual offence (or to a sexual offence and other offences) the complainant in respect of that offence is a witness in the proceedings and is aged 18 or over.

(2) If a party to the proceedings applies under section 429(1)(a) for a special measures direction in relation to the complainant, and the court is satisfied that the complainant is eligible for assistance by virtue of section 426(1)(b) or 429, the court must decide whether any of the special measures available in relation to the witness (or any combination of them) would be likely to improve the quality of evidence given by the witness and if so must give a special measures direction accordingly.

(3) If the application for a special measures direction includes an application for any relevant recording to be admitted under section 438, the court, if satisfied that the use of such a recording would improve the quality of the complainant’s evidence, must, subject to section 438(2), give a special measures direction in relation to the complainant that provides for any relevant recording to be admitted under section 429.

Special measures: General

434. Screening witness from defendant

(1) Subject to subsection (2), a special measures direction may provide for the witness, while giving oral evidence or being sworn in court, to be prevented by means of a screen or other arrangement from seeing the defendant.

(2) The screen or other arrangement provided under subsection (1) must not prevent the witness from being able to see, and to be seen by —

- (a) the judge, the Senior Magistrate or justices and the jury, if any;
- (b) any legal practitioners acting in the proceedings; and
- (c) any interpreter or other person appointed to assist the witness.

(3) If 2 or more legal practitioners are acting for a party to the proceedings, subsection (2)(b) is satisfied in relation to those practitioners if the witness is able at all material times to see and be seen by at least one of them.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.11; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.23]

435. Evidence by live link

(1) A special measures direction may provide for the witness to give evidence by means of a live link.

(2) Such a direction may also provide for a specified person to accompany the witness while the witness is giving evidence by live link.

(3) In determining who may accompany the witness, the court must have regard to the wishes of the witness.

(4) If a direction provides for the witness to give evidence by means of a live link, the witness may not give evidence in any other way without the permission of the court.

(5) The court may give permission for the purposes of subsection (4) if it appears to the court to be in the interests of justice to do so, and may do so either —

- (a) on an application by a party to the proceedings, if there has been a material change of circumstances since the relevant time; or
- (b) on its own initiative.

(6) In this section, “live link” means a live television link or other arrangement whereby a witness, while absent from the courtroom or other place where the proceedings are being held, is able to see and hear a person there and to be seen and heard by the persons specified in section 434(2)(a) to (c).

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.12; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.24]

436. Evidence given in private

(1) A special measures direction may provide for the exclusion from the court, during the giving of the witness’s evidence, of persons of any description specified in the direction.

(2) The persons who may be excluded under subsection (1) do not include —

- (a) the defendant;
- (b) legal practitioner acting in the proceedings;
- (c) any interpreter or other person appointed by the court to assist the witness.

(3) If a special measures direction provides for representatives of news gathering or reporting organisations to be excluded, it must be expressed in relation to a named person who —

- (a) is a representative of the organisation; and
- (b) has been nominated for the purpose by the organisations, unless it appears to the court that no such nomination has been made.

(4) A special measures direction may only provide for the exclusion of persons under this section if —

- (a) the proceedings relate to a sexual offence; or
- (b) it appears to the court that there are reasonable grounds for believing that any person other than the defendant has sought, or will seek, to intimidate the witness in connection with testifying in the proceedings.

(5) Any proceedings from which persons are excluded under this section (whether or not those persons include representatives of news gathering or reporting organisations) are, despite the exclusion, to be taken to be held in public for the purposes of any privilege or exemption from liability available in respect of fair, accurate and contemporaneous reports of legal proceedings held in public.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.13; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.25]

437. Removal of wigs and gowns

A special measures direction may provide for the wearing of wigs or gowns to be dispensed with during the giving of the witness's evidence.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.14; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.26]

438. Video recorded evidence in chief

(1) Subject to subsection (2), a special measures direction may provide for a video recording of an interview of the witness to be admitted as evidence in chief of the witness.

(2) A special measures direction may not provide for a video recording, or a part of such a recording, to be admitted under this section if the court is of the opinion, having regard to all the circumstances, that in the interests of justice the recording, or that part of it, should not be so admitted.

(3) In considering for the purposes of subsection (2) whether any part of a recording should not be admitted under this section, the court must consider whether any prejudice to the defendant which might result from that part being so admitted is outweighed by the desirability of showing the whole, or substantially the whole, of the recorded interview.

(4) If a special measures direction provides for a recording to be admitted under this section, the court may nevertheless subsequently direct that it is not to be so admitted if —

(a) it appears to the court that —

(i) the witness will not be available for cross-examination; and

(ii) the parties to the proceedings have not agreed that there is no need for the witness to be so available; or

(b) criminal procedure rules requiring disclosure of the circumstances in which the recording was made have not been complied with to the satisfaction of the court.

(5) If a recording is admitted under this section —

(a) the witness must be called by the party tendering it in evidence, unless —

(i) a special measures direction provides for the witness's evidence on cross-examination to be given otherwise than by oral evidence in court; or

(ii) the parties to the proceedings have agreed as mentioned in subsection (4)(a)(ii); and

(b) the witness may not without the permission of the court give evidence in chief except by means of the recording as to any matter which, in the opinion of the court, is dealt with in the witness's recorded oral evidence.

(6) If, pursuant to subsection (2), a special measures direction provides for part only of a recording to be admitted, references in subsections (4) and (5) to the recording or to the witness's recorded oral evidence are references to the part of the recording or oral evidence which is to be so admitted.

(7) The court may give permission for the purposes of subsection (5)(b) if it appears to the court to be in the interests of justice to do so, and may do so either —

(a) on an application by a party to the proceedings; or

(b) on its own initiative.

(8) The court may, in giving permission for the purposes of subsection (5)(b), direct that the evidence in question is to be given by the witness by means of a live link, and section 443 applies in relation to that evidence as it applies in relation to evidence which is to be given in accordance with a special measures direction.

(9) Nothing in this section affects the admissibility of any video recording which would be admissible apart from this section.

439. Video recorded evidence in chief: Supplementary

(1) If a court, on an application by a party to the proceedings, or on its own initiative, grants leave to admit a video recording in evidence under section 441 and directs that any part of the recording be excluded under subsection (2) or (3) of that section, the party who made the application to admit the recording, or to whom leave was given, must edit the recording in accordance with the court's directions and send a copy of the edited recording to —

- (a) the Registrar or the Clerk of the respective court, as the case may be; and
- (b) every other party to the proceedings.

(2) If a video recording is to be produced during any criminal proceedings, it should be produced and proved by the interviewer, or some other person who was present at the interview with the witness at which the recording was made. It is the responsibility of the party applying for the recording to be admitted in evidence, or to whom leave is given, to ensure that that person is available to give evidence, unless the parties have agreed to accept a written statement by that person instead of oral evidence.

(3) If a trial has to be adjourned for editing of a video recording that should have been edited before the trial, or to call a witness who should have been available, the court may make an appropriate order for costs in accordance with Part 30 (Costs in Criminal Cases).

[UK Practice Direction [2002] 1WLR 2870]

440. Video recorded cross-examination or re-examination

(1) If a special measures direction provides for a video recording to be admitted under section 441 as evidence in chief of the witness, the direction may also provide —

- (a) for any cross-examination of the witness, and any re-examination, to be recorded by means of a video recording; and
- (b) for such a recording to be admitted, so far as it relates to any such cross-examination or re-examination, as evidence of the witness under cross-examination or on re-examination, as the case may be.

(2) A recording referred to in subsection (1) must be made in the presence of such persons as the direction provides and in the absence of the defendant, and in conformity with subsection (3).

(3) A recording referred to in subsection (1) must be made in circumstances in which —

(a) the judge, the Senior Magistrate or justices, the jury if any, and any legal practitioner acting in the proceedings are able to see and hear the examination of the witness and to communicate with the persons in whose presence the recording is being made; and

(b) the defendant is able to see and hear any such examination and to communicate with any legal practitioner acting for him or her.

(4) If 2 or more legal practitioners are acting for a party to the proceedings, subsection (2)(a) and (b) are satisfied in relation to those practitioners if at all material times they are satisfied in relation to at least one of them.

(5) If a special measures direction provides for a recording to be admitted under this section, the court may nevertheless subsequently direct that it is not to be so admitted if a requirement of subsection (2) or any criminal procedure rules or the direction has not been complied with to the satisfaction of the court.

(6) If pursuant to subsection (1) a recording has been made of any examination of the witness, the witness may not be subsequently cross-examined or re-examined in respect of any evidence given by the witness in the proceedings unless the court gives a further special measures direction making a provision as mentioned in subsection (1)(a) and (b) in relation to any subsequent cross-examination, and re-examination, of the witness.

(7) The court may only give such a further direction if it appears to the court —

(a) that the proposed cross-examination is sought by a party to the proceedings as a result of that party having become aware, since the time when the original recording was made pursuant to subsection (1), of a matter which that party could not with reasonable diligence have ascertained by then; or

(b) that for any other reason it is in the interests of justice to give the further direction.

(8) This section does not apply in relation to any cross-examination of the witness by the defendant in person.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.16; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.28 am. by Courts Act 2003 s.109]

441. Examination of witness through intermediary

(1) A special measures direction may provide for any examination of the witness to be conducted through an interpreter or other person approved by the court for the purposes of this section (“an intermediary”).

(2) The function of an intermediary is to communicate —

(a) to the witness, questions put to the witness; and

(b) to any person asking such questions, the answers given by the witness in reply to them, and to explain such questions or answers so far as necessary to enable them to be understood by the witness or person.

(3) Any examination of the witness pursuant to subsection (1) must take place in the presence of such persons as criminal procedure rules or the direction provide, but so that —

(a) the judge, the Senior Magistrate or justices, the jury, if any, and any legal practitioner acting in the proceedings are able to see and hear the examination of the witness and to communicate with the intermediary; and

(b) (except in the case of a video recorded examination) the jury (if there is one) are able to see and hear the examination of the witness.

(4) If 2 or more legal practitioners are acting for a party to the proceedings, subsection (3)(a) is satisfied in relation to those practitioners if at all material times it is satisfied in relation to at least one of them.

(5) A person may not act as an intermediary in a particular case except after making a declaration, in a form prescribed by criminal procedure rules, that he or she will faithfully perform the function as intermediary.

(6) Subsection (1) does not apply to an interview of the witness which is recorded by means of a video recording with a view to its admission as evidence in chief of the witness; but a special measures direction may provide for such a recording to be admitted under section 443 if the interview was conducted through an intermediary and —

(a) that person complied with subsection (5) before the interview began; and

(b) the court's approval for the purposes of this section is given before the direction is given.

(7) Part 19 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Perjury, etc.) applies in relation to a person acting as an intermediary as it applies in relation to a person lawfully sworn as an interpreter in a judicial proceeding; and for this purpose, if a person acts as an intermediary in any proceeding which is not a judicial proceeding for the purposes of that section, that proceeding is to be taken to be part of the judicial proceeding in which the witness's evidence is given.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.17; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.29]

442. Aids to communication

A special measures direction may provide for the witness, while giving evidence, to be provided with a device the court considers appropriate with a view to enabling questions or answers to be communicated to or by the witness despite any disability or disorder or other impairment which the witness has or suffers from.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.18; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.30]

443. Status of evidence given under special measures

(1) Subsections (2) to (4) apply to a statement made by a witness in criminal proceedings which, in accordance with a special measures direction, is not made by the witness in direct oral evidence in court but forms part of the witness's evidence in those proceedings.

(2) The statement is to be treated as if made by the witness in direct oral evidence in court; and accordingly it is —

(a) admissible evidence of any fact of which such oral evidence from the witness would be admissible;

(b) not capable of corroborating any other evidence given by the witness.

(3) Subsection (2) applies to a statement admitted under section 438 or 440 which is not made by the witness on oath even though it would have been required to be made on oath if made by the witness in direct oral evidence in court.

(4) In estimating the weight (if any) to be attached to the statement, the court must have regard to all the circumstances from which an inference can reasonably be drawn.

(5) If any statement made by a person on oath in any proceeding which is not a judicial proceeding for the purposes of Part 19 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Perjury, etc.) is received in evidence pursuant to a special measures direction, that proceeding is to be taken for the purposes of that section to be part of the judicial proceeding in which the statement is so received in evidence.

(6) If in any proceeding which is not a judicial proceeding for the purposes of Part 19 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 —

(a) a person wilfully makes a false statement otherwise than on oath which is subsequently received in evidence pursuant to a special measures direction; and

(b) the statement is made in such circumstances that had it been given on oath in any such judicial proceeding that person would have been guilty of perjury, the person commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 6 months, or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both; or, if the person is under the age of 14, a fine at level 3 on the standard scale.

(7) In this section “statement” includes any representation of fact, whether made in words or otherwise.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.19; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.31]

444. Special measures: Warning to jury

If on a trial on indictment with a jury evidence has been given in accordance with a special measures direction, the judge must give the jury such warning (if any) as the judge considers necessary to ensure that the fact that the direction was given in relation to the witness does not prejudice the defendant.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.20; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.32]

Use of live link and intermediary for evidence of certain defendants

445. Live link directions

(1) This section applies to any proceedings against a person for an offence.

(2) The court may, on the application of the defendant, give a live link direction if it is satisfied that —

(a) the conditions in subsection (4) or, as the case may be, subsection (5) are met in relation to the defendant; and

(b) it is in the interests of justice for the defendant to give evidence through a live link.

(3) A live link direction is a direction that any oral evidence to be given before the court by the defendant is to be given through a live link.

(4) If the defendant is aged under 18 when the application is made, the conditions are that —

(a) the defendant's ability to participate effectively in the proceedings as a witness giving oral evidence in court is compromised by his or her level of intellectual ability or social functioning; and

(b) use of a live link would enable the defendant to participate more effectively in the proceedings as a witness.

(5) If the defendant has attained the age of 18 when the application is made, the conditions are that —

(a) the defendant suffers from a mental disorder or otherwise has a significant impairment of intelligence and social function;

(b) he or she is for that reason unable to participate effectively in the proceedings as a witness giving oral evidence in court; and

(c) use of a live link would enable him or her to participate more effectively in the proceedings as a witness.

(6) When a live link direction is in effect, the defendant may not give oral evidence before the court in the proceedings otherwise than through a live link.

(7) The court may discharge a live link direction at any time before or during any hearing to which it applies if it appears to the court to be in the interests of justice to do so, without affecting the power to give a further live link direction in relation to the defendant.

(8) The court may exercise the power conferred by subsection (7) on its own initiative or on an application by a party.

(9) The court must state in open court its reasons for —

(a) giving or discharging a live link direction; or

(b) refusing an application for, or for the discharge of a live link direction, and, if it is the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, must cause those reasons to be entered in the register of its proceedings.

[UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.33A ins. by Police & Justice Act 2006 s.47]

446. Meaning of “live link”

(1) In section 448 “live link” means an arrangement by which the defendant, while absent from the place where the proceedings are being held, is able to —

(a) see and hear a person there; and

(b) be seen and heard by the persons mentioned in subsection (2), and for this purpose any impairment of eyesight or hearing is to be disregarded.

(2) The persons are —

(a) the judge, the Senior Magistrate or justices and the jury, if any;

(b) if there are 2 or more defendants in the proceedings – the other defendant or each of the other defendants;

(c) any legal practitioner acting in the proceedings; and

(d) any interpreter or other person appointed by the court to assist the defendant.

[UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.33B ins. by Police & Justice Act 2006 s.47]

447. Examination of defendant through intermediary

(1) This section applies to any proceedings against a person for an offence.

(2) The court may, on the application of the defendant, give a direction under this section if it is satisfied that —

(a) the condition in subsection (5) is or, as the case may be, the conditions in subsection (6) are met in relation to the defendant; and

(b) making the direction is necessary in order to ensure that the defendant receives a fair trial.

(3) A direction under this section is a direction that provides for any examination of the defendant to be conducted through an interpreter or other person approved by the court for the purposes of this section (“an intermediary”).

(4) The function of an intermediary is to communicate —

(a) to the defendant, questions put to him or her; and

(b) to any person asking such questions, the answers given by the defendant in reply to them, and to explain such questions or answers so far as necessary to enable them to be understood by the defendant or the person in question.

(5) If the defendant is aged under 18 when the application is made, the condition is that the defendant’s ability to participate effectively in the proceedings as a witness giving oral evidence in court is compromised by the defendant’s level of intellectual ability or social functioning.

(6) If the defendant has attained the age of 18 when the application is made, the conditions are that the defendant —

(a) suffers from a mental disorder or otherwise has a significant impairment of intelligence and social function; and

(b) is for that reason unable to participate effectively in the proceedings as a witness giving oral evidence in court.

(7) Any examination of the defendant pursuant to a direction under this section must take place in the presence of such persons as the direction provides, and in circumstances in which —

(a) the judge, the Senior Magistrate or justices, the jury, if any, and any legal practitioner acting in the proceedings are able to see and hear the examination of the defendant and to communicate with the intermediary,

(b) the jury (if there is one) are able to see and hear the examination of the defendant; and

(c) if there are 2 or more defendant in the proceedings, each of the other defendants is able to see and hear the examination of the defendant.

(8) For the purposes of subsection (7) any impairment of eyesight or hearing is to be disregarded.

(9) If 2 or more legal practitioners are acting for a party to the proceedings, subsection (7)(a) is to be regarded as satisfied in relation to those practitioners if at all material times it is satisfied in relation to at least one of them.

(10) A person may not act as an intermediary in a particular case except after making a declaration, in a form prescribed by criminal procedure rules, that the person will faithfully perform the function of an intermediary.

(11) Part 19 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 applies in relation to a person acting as an intermediary as it applies in relation to a person lawfully sworn as an interpreter in a judicial proceeding.

[UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.33BA added by Coroners & Justice Act 2009 ins. by Police & Justice Act 2006 s.47]

448. Further provision as to directions under section 447

(1) The court may discharge a direction given under section 447 at any time before or during the proceedings to which it applies if it appears to the court that the direction is no longer necessary in order to ensure that the defendant receives a fair trial, (but this does not affect the power to give a further direction under that section in relation to the defendant).

(2) The court may vary (or further vary) a direction given under section 447 at any time before or during the proceedings to which it applies if it appears to the court that it is necessary for the direction to be varied in order to ensure that the defendant receives a fair trial.

(3) The court may exercise the power in subsection (1) or (2) on its own in initiative or on an application by a party.

(4) The court must state in open court its reasons for —

(a) giving, varying or discharging a direction under section 447; or

(b) refusing an application for, or for the variation or discharge of, a direction under that section, and, if it is the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, it must cause the reasons to be entered in the register of its proceedings.

[UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.33BB added by Coroners & Justice Act 2009]

Protection of witnesses from cross-examination by defendant in person

449. Complainants in proceedings for sexual offences

No person charged with a sexual offence may in any criminal proceedings cross-examine in person a witness who is the complainant, either —

(a) in connection with that offence; or

(b) in connection with any other offence with which that person is charged in the proceedings.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.22; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.34]

450. Child complainants and other child witnesses

(1) No person charged with an offence to which this section applies may in any criminal proceedings cross-examine in person a protected witness, either —

(a) in connection with that offence; or

(b) in connection with any other offence with which that person is charged in the proceedings.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1) a “protected witness” is a witness who —

(a) is the complainant or is alleged to have been a witness to the commission of the offence to which this section applies; and

(b) is a child or falls to be cross-examined after giving evidence in chief —

(i) by means of a video recording made (for the purposes of section 438 at a time when the witness was a child; or

(ii) in any other way at a time when the witness was a child.

(3) The offences to which this section applies are —

(a) any sexual offence or offence of violence;

(b) any other offence that involves an assault on, or injury or a threat of injury to, any person.

(4) In this section “child” means —

(a) if the offence falls within subsection (3)(a) - a person under the age of 18;

(b) if the offence falls within subsection (3)(b) - a person under the age of 14.

(5) For the purposes of this section “witness” includes a witness who is charged with an offence in the proceedings.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.23; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.35]

451. Direction prohibiting defendant from cross-examining particular witness

(1) This section applies if, in a case in which neither section 449 nor section 450 operates to prevent a defendant in any criminal proceedings from cross-examining a witness in person —

(a) the prosecutor applies for the court to give a direction under this section in relation to the witness; or

(b) the court on its own initiative raises the issue whether such a direction should be given.

(2) If it appears to the court that —

(a) the quality of evidence given by the witness on cross-examination —

(i) is likely to be diminished if the cross-examination is conducted by the defendant in person; and

(ii) would be likely to be improved if a direction were given under this section; and

(b) it would not be contrary to the interests of justice to give such a direction, the court may give a direction prohibiting the defendant from cross-examining the witness in person.

(3) In deciding whether subsection (2)(a) applies in the case of a witness, the court must have regard, in particular, to —

(a) any views expressed by the witness as to whether or not the witness is content to be cross-examined by the defendant in person;

(b) the nature of the questions likely to be asked, having regard to the issues in the proceedings and the defence case advanced so far (if any);

(c) any behaviour on the part of the defendant at any stage of the proceedings, both generally and in relation to the witness;

(d) any relationship between the witness and the defendant;

(e) whether any person other than the defendant is or has at any time been charged in the proceedings with an offence to which section 450 applies, and (if so) whether section 449 or 450 operates or would have operated to prevent that person from cross-examining the witness in person;

(f) any direction under section 429 which the court has given, or proposes to give, in relation to the witness.

(4) For the purposes of this section —

(a) “witness”, in relation to a defendant, does not include any other person who is charged with an offence in the proceedings; and

(b) any reference to the quality of a witness's evidence is to be construed in accordance with section 425(2)(a).

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.24; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.36]

452. Further provisions about directions under section 451

(1) Subject to subsection (2), a direction under section 451 has binding effect from the time it is made until the witness to whom it applies is discharged.

(2) The court may discharge a direction if it appears to the court to be in the interests of justice to do so, and may do so either —

(a) on an application made by a party to the proceedings, if there has been a material change of circumstances since the relevant time; or

(b) on its own initiative.

(3) The court must state in open court its reasons for —

(a) giving;

(b) refusing an application for, or for the discharge of; or

(c) discharging,

a direction and, if it is the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, must cause the reasons to be entered in the register of its proceedings.

(4) Uncontested applications may be determined by the Clerk of the court without a hearing.

(5) An unsuccessful application for a special measures direction may not be renewed unless there has been a material change of circumstances.

(6) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision for —

(a) expert evidence to be given in connection with an application for, or for varying or discharging, such a direction;

(b) the manner in which confidential or sensitive information is to be treated in connection with such an application and in particular as to its being disclosed to, or withheld from, a party to the proceedings.

(6) In this section "direction" means a direction under section 451.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.25; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.37]

453. Defence representation for purposes of cross-examination

(1) This section applies if a defendant is prevented from cross-examining a witness in person by virtue of section 449, 450 or 451.

(2) If it appears to the court that this section applies, it must —

(a) invite the defendant to arrange for a legal practitioner to act for him or her for the purpose of cross-examining the witness; and

(b) require the defendant to notify the court, by the end of a period specified by the court, whether a legal practitioner is to act for that purpose.

(3) If by the end of the period specified under subsection (2)(b) either —

(a) the defendant has notified the court that no legal practitioner is to act for him or her for the purpose of cross-examining the witness; or

(b) no notification has been received by the court and it appears to the court that no legal practitioner is to so act, the court must consider whether it is necessary in the interests of justice for the witness to be cross-examined by a legal practitioner appointed to represent the interests of the defendant.

(4) If the court determines that it is necessary for the witness to be so cross-examined, the court must choose and appoint a legal practitioner to cross-examine the witness in the interests of the defendant.

(5) In the circumstances described in subsection (4) —

(a) a person so appointed is not responsible to the defendant;

(b) the court may order such sums as appear to the court to be reasonably necessary to cover the proper fee or costs of the legal practitioner and any expenses incurred in providing him or her with evidence or other material in connection with the appointment to be paid out of public funds.

(6) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision to implement this section, including (but not limited to) provision —

(a) as to the time when, and the manner in which, subsection (2) is to be complied with;

(b) in connection with the appointment and payment of a legal practitioner under subsection (4), and in particular for securing that a person so appointed is provided with evidence or other material relating to the proceedings.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.26; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.38]

454. Cross-examination: Warning to jury

If on a trial on indictment with a jury a defendant is prevented from cross-examining a witness in person by virtue of section 449, 450 or 451, the judge must give the jury such warning (if any) as the judge considers necessary to ensure that the defendant is not prejudiced —

(a) by any inferences that might be drawn from the fact that the defendant has been prevented from cross-examining the witness in person;

(b) if the witness has been cross-examined by a legal practitioner appointed under section 453(4), by the fact that the cross-examination was carried out by such a legal practitioner and not by a person acting as the defendant's own legal representative.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.27; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.39]

Protection of complainants in proceedings for sexual offences

455. Restriction on evidence or questions about complainant's sexual history

(1) If at a trial a person is charged with a sexual offence, then, except with the leave of the court—

(a) no evidence may be adduced; and

(b) no question may be asked in cross-examination, by or on behalf of any defendant at the trial, about any sexual behaviour of the complainant.

(2) The court may give leave in relation to any evidence or question only on an application made by or on behalf of a defendant, and may not give such leave unless it is satisfied that —

(a) subsection (3) or (5) applies; and

(b) a refusal of leave might have the result of rendering unsafe a conclusion of the jury, or (as the case may be) the court on any relevant issue in the case.

(3) This subsection applies if the evidence or question relates to a relevant issue in the case and either —

(a) that issue is not an issue of consent;

(b) it is an issue of consent and the sexual behaviour of the complainant to which the evidence or question relates is alleged to have taken place at or about the same time as the event which is the subject matter of the charge against the defendant; or

(c) it is an issue of consent and the sexual behaviour of the complainant to which the evidence or question relates is alleged to have been, in any respect, so similar to —

(i) any sexual behaviour of the complainant which (according to evidence adduced or to be adduced by or on behalf of the defendant) took place as part of the event which is the subject matter of the charge against the defendant; or

(ii) any other sexual behaviour of the complainant which (according to such evidence) took place at or about the same time as that event, that the similarity cannot reasonably be explained as a coincidence.

(4) For the purposes of subsection (3), no evidence or question is to be regarded as relating to a relevant issue in the case if it appears to the court to be reasonable to assume that the purpose (or main purpose) for which it would be adduced or asked is to establish or elicit material for impugning the credibility of the complainant as a witness.

(5) This subsection applies if the evidence or question —

(a) relates to any evidence adduced by the prosecution about any sexual behaviour of the complainant; and

(b) in the opinion of the court, would go no further than is necessary to enable the evidence adduced by the prosecution to be rebutted or explained by or on behalf of the defendant.

(6) For the purposes of subsections (3) and (5), the evidence or question must relate to a specific instance (or specific instances) of alleged sexual behaviour on the part of the complainant.

(7) If this section applies in relation to a trial by virtue of the fact that one or more of a number of persons charged in the proceedings is or are charged with a sexual offence —

(a) it ceases to apply if the prosecutor decides not to proceed with the case against that person or those persons in respect of that charge; but

(b) it does not cease to apply upon that person or those persons pleading guilty to, or being convicted of, that charge.

(8) Nothing in this section authorises any evidence to be adduced or any question to be asked which cannot be adduced or asked apart from this section.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.28; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.41]

456. Interpretation and application of section 455

(1) In section 455 —

(a) “relevant issue in the case” means any issue falling to be proved by the prosecution or defence in the trial of the defendant;

(b) “issue of consent” means any issue whether the complainant in fact consented to the conduct constituting the offence with which the defendant is charged;

(c) “sexual behaviour” means any sexual behaviour or other sexual experience, whether or not involving any defendant or other person, but excluding (except in section 455(3)(c)(i) and (5)(a)) anything alleged to have taken place as part of the event which is the subject matter of the charge against the defendant; and

(d) subject to any order made under subsection (2), “sexual offence” has the meaning given it in section 2 (Interpretation).

(2) Section 454 applies in relation to the following proceedings as it applies to a trial —

(a) any hearing held between conviction and sentencing for the purpose of determining matters relevant to the court’s decision as to how the defendant is to be dealt with; and

(b) the hearing of an appeal, and references in this section and section 455 to a person charged with an offence include a person convicted of an offence.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.29; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.42]

457. Procedure on applications under section 455

(1) An application for leave under section 455 must be heard in private and in the absence of the complainant.

(2) If such an application has been determined, the court must state in open court (but in the absence of the jury, if there is one) —

(a) its reasons for giving or refusing leave; and

(b) if it gives leave, the extent to which evidence may be adduced or questions asked in pursuance of the leave, and, if it is the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court, must cause those matters to be entered in the register of its proceedings.

(3) An applications for leave must specify, in relation to each item of evidence or question to which it relates, particulars of the grounds on which it is asserted that leave should be given by virtue of subsection (3) or (5) of section 458.

(4) The court may request a party to the proceedings to provide the court with any information which it considers would assist it in determining an application for leave.

(5) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision for the manner in which confidential or sensitive information is to be treated in connection with such an application, and in particular as to its being disclosed to, or withheld from, parties to the proceedings.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.30; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.43]

Reporting restrictions: General

458. Restrictions on reporting alleged offences involving youths

(1) This section applies (subject to subsection (3)) when a criminal investigation has begun in respect of an alleged offence against the law of the Falkland Islands.

(2) No matter relating to any person involved in the offence may, while the person is a youth, be included in any publication if it is likely to lead members of the public to identify him or her as a person involved in the offence.

(3) The restrictions imposed by subsection (2) cease to apply once there are proceedings in a court in respect of the offence.

(4) For the purposes of subsection (2), a reference to a person involved in the offence is to —

(a) a person by whom the offence is alleged to have been committed; or

(b) if this paragraph applies to the publication in question by virtue of subsection (5) —

(i) a person against or in respect of whom the offence is alleged to have been committed;
or

(ii) a person who is alleged to have been a witness to the commission of the offence, except that paragraph (b)(i) does not include a person in relation to whom section 468 (Restriction on reporting of identity) applies in connection with the offence.

(5) The matters relating to a person in relation to which the restrictions imposed by subsection (2) apply (if their inclusion in any publication is likely to have the result mentioned in that subsection) include in particular —

(a) the person's name;

(b) the person's address;

(c) the identity of any school or other educational establishment attended by the person;

(d) the identity of any place where the person works; and

(e) any still or moving picture of the person.

(6) Subject to subsection (7), the court may by order dispense, to the extent specified in the order, with the restrictions imposed by subsection (2) in relation to a person if it is satisfied that it is necessary in the interests of justice to do so.

(7) When deciding whether to make an order under subsection (6) dispensing (to any extent) with the restrictions imposed by subsection (2) in relation to a person, the court must have regard to the welfare of that person.

(8) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court makes or refuses to make an order under subsection (6), any person who was a party to the proceedings on the application for the order may, in accordance with relevant criminal procedure rules, appeal to the Supreme Court against that decision and appear or be represented at the hearing of the appeal.

(9) In this section —

(a) “offence” includes an act or omission outside the Falkland Islands which, if committed in the Falkland Islands, would be an offence against the law of the Falkland Islands;

(b) any reference to a criminal investigation, in relation to an alleged offence, is to an investigation conducted by police officers, or other persons charged with the duty of investigating offences, with a view to ascertaining whether a person should be charged with the offence.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.31; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.44]

459. Power to restrict reporting of criminal proceedings involving youths

(1) This section applies in relation to any criminal proceedings in any Falkland Islands court, including proceedings on appeal.

(2) The court may direct that no matter relating to any person concerned in the proceedings may, while he or she is a youth, be included in any publication if it is likely to lead members of the public to identify him or her as a person concerned in the proceedings.

(3) The court may by direction (“an excepting direction”) dispense, to any extent specified in that direction, with the restrictions imposed by a direction under subsection (2) if it is satisfied that it is necessary in the interests of justice to do so.

(4) The court may also by an excepting direction dispense, to any extent specified in that direction, with the restrictions imposed by a direction under subsection (2) if it is satisfied that —

(a) their effect is to impose a substantial and unreasonable restriction on the reporting of the proceedings; and

(b) it is in the public interest to remove or relax that restriction.

(5) No excepting direction may be given under subsection (4) by reason only of the fact that the proceedings have been determined in any way or have been abandoned.

(6) When deciding whether to make —

(a) a direction under subsection (2) in relation to a person; or

(b) an excepting direction under subsection (3) or (4) by virtue of which the restrictions imposed by a direction under subsection (2) would be dispensed with (to any extent) in relation to a person, the court must have regard to the welfare of that person.

(7) For the purposes of subsection (2), any reference to a person concerned in the proceedings is to a person —

(a) against or in respect of whom the proceedings are taken; or

(b) who is a witness in the proceedings.

(8) The matters relating to a person in relation to which the restrictions imposed by a direction under subsection (2) apply (if their inclusion in any publication is likely to have the result mentioned in that subsection) include in particular —

(a) the person's name;

(b) the person's address;

(c) the identity of any school or other educational establishment attended by the person;

(d) the identity of any place where the person works; and

(e) any still or moving picture of the person.

(9) A direction under subsection (2) may be revoked by the court.

(10) An excepting direction —

(a) may be given at the time the direction under subsection (2) is given or subsequently; and

(b) may be varied or revoked by the court.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.32; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.45]

460. Power to restrict reports about certain adult witnesses in criminal proceedings

(1) This section applies if in any criminal proceedings in any Falkland Islands court, including proceedings on appeal, a party to the proceedings makes an application for the court to give a reporting direction in relation to a witness in the proceedings (other than the defendant) who has attained the age of 18.

(2) If the court determines that —

(a) the witness is eligible for protection; and

(b) giving a reporting direction in relation to the witness is likely to improve —

(i) the quality of evidence given by the witness; or

(ii) the level of co-operation given by the witness to any party to the proceedings in connection with that party's preparation of its case, the court may give a reporting direction in relation to the witness.

(3) For the purposes of this section a witness is eligible for protection if the court is satisfied —

(a) that the quality of evidence given by the witness; or

(b) the level of co-operation given by the witness to any party to the proceedings in connection with that party's preparation of its case, is likely to be diminished by reason of fear or distress on the part of the witness in connection with being identified by members of the public as a witness in the proceedings.

(4) In determining whether a witness is eligible for protection the court must take into account, in particular —

(a) the nature and alleged circumstances of the offence to which the proceedings relate;

(b) the age of the witness;

(c) such of the following matters as appear to the court to be relevant, namely —

(i) the social and cultural background and ethnic origins of the witness;

(ii) the domestic and employment circumstances of the witness; and

(iii) any religious beliefs or political opinions of the witness;

(d) any behaviour towards the witness on the part of —

(i) the defendant;

(ii) members of the family or associates of the defendant; or

(iii) any other person who is likely to be a defendant or a witness in the proceedings.

(5) In determining that question the court must in addition consider any views expressed by the witness.

(6) For the purposes of this section a reporting direction in relation to a witness is a direction that no matter relating to the witness may during the witness's lifetime be included in any publication if it is likely to lead members of the public to identify him or her as being a witness in the proceedings.

(7) The matters relating to a witness in relation to which the restrictions imposed by a reporting direction apply (if their inclusion in any publication is likely to have the result mentioned in subsection (6)) include in particular —

- (a) the witness's name;
- (b) the witness's address;
- (c) the identity of any educational establishment attended by the witness;
- (d) the identity of any place where the witness works; and
- (e) any still or moving picture of the witness.

(8) In determining whether to give a reporting direction the court must consider —

- (a) whether it would be in the interests of justice to do so; and
- (b) the public interest in avoiding the imposition of a substantial and unreasonable restriction on the reporting of the proceedings.

(9) The court may by direction ("an excepting direction") dispense, to any extent specified in that direction, with the restrictions imposed by a reporting direction if it is —

- (a) satisfied that it is necessary in the interests of justice to do so; or
- (b) satisfied that —
 - (i) the effect of those restrictions is to impose a substantial and unreasonable restriction on the reporting of the proceedings; and
 - (ii) it is in the public interest to remove or relax that restriction, but no excepting direction may be given under paragraph (b) by reason only of the fact that the proceedings have been determined in any way or have been abandoned.

(10) A reporting direction may be revoked by the court.

(11) An excepting direction —

- (a) may be given at the time the reporting direction is given or subsequently; and

(b) may be varied or revoked by the court.

(12) In this section, references to the preparation of the case of a party to any proceedings include, if the party is the prosecution, the carrying out of investigations into any offence at any time charged in the proceedings.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.33; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.46]

461. Restrictions on reporting directions given under this Part

(1) Except as provided by this section, no publication may include a report of a matter falling within subsection (2).

(2) The matters falling within this subsection are —

(a) a direction under section 429, 447 or 451, or an order discharging, or in the case of a direction under section 429, varying, such a direction;

(b) proceedings —

(i) on an application for such a direction or order; or

(ii) if the court acts on its own initiative to determine whether to give or make any such direction or order.

(3) The court dealing with a matter falling within subsection (2) may order that subsection (1) is not to apply, or is not to apply to a specified extent, to a report of that matter.

(4) If —

(a) there is only one defendant in the relevant proceedings; and

(b) he or she objects to the making of an order under subsection (3),

then —

(c) the court must make the order if (and only if) satisfied, after hearing the representations of the defendant, that it is in the interests of justice to do so; and

(d) if the order is made it does not apply to the extent that a report deals with any such objections or representations.

(5) If —

(a) there are 2 or more defendants in the relevant proceedings; and

(b) one or more of them object to the making of an order under subsection (3),

then —

(c) the court must make the order if (and only if) satisfied after hearing the representations of each of the defendant that it is in the interests of justice to do so; and

(d) if the order is made it does not apply to the extent that a report deals with any such objections or representations.

(6) Subsection (1) does not apply to the inclusion in a publication of a report of matters after the relevant proceedings are either —

(a) determined (by acquittal, conviction or otherwise); or

(b) abandoned, in relation to the defendant or (if there is more than one) in relation to each of the defendants.

(7) In this section “the relevant proceedings” means the proceedings to which any such direction as is mentioned in subsection (2) relates or would relate.

(8) Nothing in this section affects any prohibition or restriction by virtue of any other enactment on the inclusion of matter in a publication.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.34; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.47 am. by Police & Justice Act 2006 s.52]

462. Offences relating to reporting

(1) This section applies if a publication —

(a) includes any matter in contravention of section 458(2) or of a direction under section 459(2) or 460(2); or

(b) includes a report in contravention of section 461.

(2) If the publication is a newspaper or periodical, any proprietor, any editor and any publisher of the newspaper or periodical commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

(3) If the publication is included in a programme service —

(a) any body corporate engaged in providing the service in which the publication is included; and

(b) any person having functions in relation to the service corresponding to those of an editor of a newspaper, commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

(4) In the case of any other publication, any person publishing it commits an offence.
Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

(5) Proceedings for an offence under this section in respect of a publication falling within subsection (1)(b) may not be commenced except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney General.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.36; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.49]

463. Defences relating to reporting

(1) If a person is charged with an offence under section 462, it is a defence to prove that at the time of the alleged offence the person was not aware, and neither suspected nor had reason to suspect, that the publication included the matter or report in question.

(2) If —

(a) a person is charged with an offence under section 462; and

(b) the offence relates to the inclusion of any matter in a publication in contravention of section 462(2), it is a defence to prove that at the time of the alleged offence the person was not aware, and neither suspected nor had reason to suspect, that the criminal investigation in question had begun.

(3) If —

(a) subsection (2) applies; and

(b) the contravention of section 462(2) does not relate to either —

(i) the person by whom the offence mentioned in that provision is alleged to have been committed; or

(ii) (if the offence is one in relation to which section 465 applies) a person who is alleged to be a witness to the commission of the offence, it is a defence to show to the satisfaction of the court that the inclusion in the publication of the matter in question was in the public interest on the ground that, to the extent that they operated to prevent that matter from being so included, the effect of the restrictions imposed by section 462(2) was to impose a substantial and unreasonable restriction on the reporting of matters connected with that offence.

(4) Subsection (5) applies if —

(a) subsection (2) applies; and

(b) the contravention of section 462(2) relates to a person who is neither —

(i) the person mentioned in subsection (3)(b)(i); nor

(ii) a person within subsection (3)(b)(ii) who is under the age of 16.

(5) In a case mentioned in subsection (4), it is a defence, subject to subsection (6), to prove —

(a) that written consent to the inclusion of the matter in question in the publication had been given —

(i) by an appropriate person, if at the time when the consent was given the protected person was under the age of 16; or

(ii) by the protected person, if that person was aged 16 or 17 at that time; and

(b) if the consent was given by an appropriate person - that written notice had been previously given to that person drawing to his or her attention the need to consider the welfare of the protected person when deciding whether to give consent.

(6) The defence provided by subsection (5) is not available if —

(a) the consent was given by an appropriate person and it is proved that written or other notice withdrawing the consent —

(i) was given to the appropriate recipient by any other appropriate person or by the protected person; and

(ii) was so given in sufficient time to enable the inclusion in the publication of the matter in question to be prevented; or

(b) subsection (8) applies.

(7) If —

(a) a person is charged with an offence under section 462; and

(b) the offence relates to the inclusion of any matter in a publication in contravention of a direction under section 460(2), it is a defence, unless subsection (8) applies, to prove that the person in relation to whom the direction was given had given written consent to the inclusion of that matter in the publication.

(8) Written consent is not a defence if it is proved that any person interfered —

(a) with the peace or comfort of the person giving the consent; or

(b) if the consent was given by an appropriate person - with the peace or comfort of either that person or the protected person, with intent to obtain the consent.

(9) In this section —

“appropriate person” means (subject to subsections (10) and (11)) a person who is a parent or guardian of the protected person;

“guardian”, in relation to the protected person, means any person who is not a parent of the protected person but who has parental responsibility for the protected person;

“protected person” means a person in respect of whom publication is an offence under section 462.

(10) If the protected person is a child who is looked after by the Crown, “an appropriate person” means a person who is —

(a) a representative of the Crown; or

(b) a parent or guardian of the protected person with whom the protected person is allowed to live.

(11) No person by whom the offence mentioned in section 458(2) is alleged to have been committed is, by virtue of subsections (9) or (10), an appropriate person for the purposes of this section.

(12) In this section “appropriate recipient”, in relation to a notice under subsection (6)(a), means—

(a) the person to whom the notice giving consent was given;

(b) the person by whom the matter in question was published (if different); or

(c) any other person exercising, on behalf of the person mentioned in paragraph (b), any responsibility in relation to the publication of that matter, and for this purpose “person” includes a body of persons and a partnership.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.37; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.50]

464. Decisions as to public interest in relation to reporting

(1) If for the purposes of sections 458 to 461 it falls to a court to decide whether anything is (or, as the case may be, was) in the public interest, the court must have regard, in particular, to the matters referred to in subsection (2) (so far as relevant).

(2) Those matters are —

(a) the interest in —

(i) the open reporting of crime;

(ii) the open reporting of matters relating to human health or safety; and

(iii) the prevention and exposure of miscarriages of justice;

(b) the welfare of any person in relation to whom the relevant restrictions imposed by or under any of sections 458 to 461 apply or would apply (or, as the case may be, applied); and

(c) any views expressed —

(i) by an appropriate person on behalf of a person within paragraph (b) who is under the age of 18 (“the protected person”); or

(ii) by a person within that paragraph who has attained that age.

(3) In subsection (2) “appropriate person”, in relation to the protected person, has the same meaning as it has for the purposes of section 463.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.40; UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s.52]

Reporting restrictions: Identity of victims

465. Restriction on reporting of identity of victims of certain offences

(1) If an allegation has been made that a sexual offence has been committed against a person, no matter relating to that person may, during that person’s lifetime, be included in any publication, if it is likely to lead members of the public to identify that person as the person against whom the offence is alleged to have been committed.

(2) If a person is accused of an offence to which this section applies, no matter likely to lead members of the public to identify a person as the person against whom the offence is alleged to have been committed (“the complainant”) may during the complainant’s lifetime be included in any publication.

(3) This section —

(a) does not apply in relation to a person by virtue of subsection (1) at any time after a person has been defendant of the offence; and

(b) in its application in relation to a person by virtue of subsection (2), has effect subject to any direction given under section 470.

(4) The matters relating to a person in relation to which the restrictions imposed by subsection (1) or (2) apply, if their inclusion in any publication is likely to have the result mentioned in that subsection, include in particular —

- (a) the person's name;
- (b) the person's address;
- (c) the identity of any school or other educational establishment attended by the person;
- (d) the identity of any place where the person works; and
- (e) any still or moving picture of the person.

(5) Nothing in this section prohibits the inclusion in a publication of matter consisting only of a report of criminal proceedings other than proceedings at, or intended to lead to, or on an appeal arising out of, a trial at which the defendant is charged with the offence.

[UK Sexual Offences (Amendment) Act 1992 ss.1 and 2]

466. Power to displace section 465

(1) If, before the commencement of a trial at which a person is charged with an offence to which section 468 applies, that person or another person against whom the complainant may be expected to give evidence at the trial applies to the judicial officer for a direction under this subsection and satisfies the judicial officer —

- (a) that the direction is required for the purpose of inducing persons who are likely to be needed as witnesses at the trial to come forward; and
- (b) that the conduct of the applicant's defence at the trial is likely to be substantially prejudiced if the direction is not given, the judicial officer must direct that section 465 does not, by virtue of the accusation alleging the offence in question, apply in relation to the complainant.

(2) An application under subsection (1) must be heard and disposed of in private.

(3) If at a trial the judicial officer is satisfied —

- (a) that the effect of section 465 is to impose a substantial and unreasonable restriction upon the reporting of proceedings at the trial; and
- (b) that it is in the public interest to remove or relax the restriction, the judicial officer must direct that that section does not apply to any matter specified in the direction.

(4) A direction must not be given under subsection (2) by reason only of the outcome of the trial.

(5) If a person who has been convicted of an offence and has given notice of appeal against the conviction, or notice of an application for leave so to appeal, applies to an appellate court for a direction under this subsection and satisfies the court —

(a) that the direction is required for the purpose of obtaining evidence in support of the appeal; and

(b) that the applicant is likely to suffer substantial injustice if the direction is not given, the appellate court must direct that section 465 does not, by virtue of an accusation which alleges an offence to which that section applies and is specified in the direction, apply in relation to a complainant so specified.

(6) A direction given under this section does not affect the operation of section 468 before the direction is given.

(7) In this section, “judicial officer” means —

(a) in the case of an offence which is to be tried summarily – the Senior Magistrate, or 3 justices of the peace sitting together (but not in open court);

(b) in any other case - a judge of the Supreme Court.

(8) If, after the commencement of a trial at which a person is charged with an offence to which section 468 applies, a new trial of the person for that offence is ordered, the commencement of any previous trial is to be disregarded for the purposes of subsection (1).

[UK Sexual Offences (Amendment) Act 1992 s.3]

467. Offences relating to reporting of identity of victims

(1) If any matter is included in a publication in contravention of section 465, the following persons commit an offence —

(a) if the publication is a newspaper or periodical - any proprietor, any editor and any publisher of the newspaper or periodical;

(b) if the publication is included in a programme service —

(i) any body corporate engaged in providing the service in which the publication is included; and

(ii) any person having functions in relation to the service corresponding to those of an editor of a newspaper;

(c) in the case of any other publication - any person publishing it.

Penalty: The statutory maximum fine.

(2) If a person is charged with an offence under this section in respect of the inclusion of any matter in a publication, it is a defence, subject to subsection (3), to prove that the publication in which the matter appeared was one in respect of which the person against whom the offence mentioned in section 468 is alleged to have been committed had given written consent to the appearance of matter of that description.

(3) Written consent is not a defence if it is proved that any person interfered unreasonably with the peace or comfort of the person giving the consent, with intent to obtain it, or that that person was under the age of 18 at the time when it was given.

(4) Proceedings for an offence under this section may not be commenced except by or with the consent of the Attorney General.

(5) If a person is charged with an offence under this section it is a defence to prove that at the time of the alleged offence the person was not aware, and neither suspected nor had reason to suspect, that the publication included the matter in question.

(6) If —

(a) a person is charged with an offence under this section; and

(b) the offence relates to the inclusion of any matter in a publication in contravention of section 468,

it is a defence to prove that at the time of the alleged offence the person was not aware, and neither suspected nor had reason to suspect, that the allegation in question had been made.

[UK Sexual Offences (Amendment) Act 1992 s.5]

Anonymity of witnesses

468. Abolition of common law rule

(1) The following provisions of this Part provide for the making of witness anonymity orders in relation to witnesses in criminal proceedings.

(2) The common law rules relating to the power of a court to make an order for securing that the identity of a witness in criminal proceedings is withheld from the defendant (or, on a defence application, from other defendants) are abolished.

[UK Criminal Evidence (Witness Anonymity) Act 2008 s.1]

469. Witness anonymity orders

(1) In this Part, a “witness anonymity order” is an order made by a court requiring specified measures to be taken in relation to a witness in criminal proceedings that the court considers appropriate to ensure that the identity of the witness is not disclosed in or in connection with the proceedings.

(2) The kinds of measures that may be required to be taken in relation to a witness include —

(a) the witness's name and other identifying details may be —

(i) withheld; or

(ii) removed from materials disclosed to any party to the proceedings;

(b) the witness may use a pseudonym;

(c) the witness is not asked questions of any specified description that might lead to the identification of the witness;

(d) the witness is screened to any specified extent; or

(e) the witness's voice is subjected to modulation to any specified extent.

(3) Subsection (2) does not affect the generality of subsection (1).

(4) Nothing in this section authorises the court to require —

(a) the witness to be screened to such an extent that the witness cannot be seen by —

(i) the judicial officer (as defined in section 466(7));

(ii) the jury (if there is one); or

(iii) any interpreter or other person appointed by the court to assist the witness;

(b) the witness's voice to be modulated to such an extent that the witness's natural voice cannot be heard by any persons within paragraph (a)(i) to (iii).

(5) In this section "specified" means specified in the witness anonymity order concerned.

[UK Coroners and Justice Act 2009 s.86]

470. Applications for orders

(1) An application for a witness anonymity order to be made in relation to a witness in criminal proceedings may be made to the court by the prosecutor or the defendant.

(2) If the application is made by the prosecutor, the prosecutor —

(a) must (unless the court directs otherwise) inform the court of the identity of the witness; but

(b) need not disclose in connection with the application —

(i) the identity of the witness; or

(ii) any information that might enable the witness to be identified, to any other party to the proceedings or that party's legal practitioner.

(3) If the application is made by the defendant, the defendant —

(a) must inform the court and the prosecutor of the identity of the witness; but

(b) (if there is more than one defendant) need not disclose in connection with the application—

(i) the identity of the witness; or

(ii) any information that might enable the witness to be identified, to any other defendant or that defendant's legal practitioner.

(4) If the prosecutor or the defendant proposes to make an application under this section in respect of a witness, any relevant material which is disclosed by or on behalf of that party before the determination of the application may be disclosed in such a way as to prevent —

(a) the identity of the witness; or

(b) any information that might enable the witness to be identified, from being disclosed except as required by subsection (2)(a) or (3)(a).

(5) In subsection (4), "relevant material" means any document or other material which falls to be disclosed, or is sought to be relied on, by or on behalf of the party concerned in connection with the proceedings or proceedings preliminary to them.

(6) The court must give every party to the proceedings the opportunity to be heard on an application under this section.

(7) Subsection (6) does not prevent the court from hearing one or more parties in the absence of a defendant and his or her legal practitioner, if it appears to the court to be appropriate to do so in the circumstances of the case.

[UK Coroners and Justice Act 2009 s.87]

471. Conditions for making an order

(1) This section applies when an application is made for a witness anonymity order to be made in relation to a witness in criminal proceedings.

(2) The court may make such an order only if it is satisfied that Conditions A to C below are met.

(3) Condition A is that the measures to be specified in the order are necessary to —

(a) protect the safety of the witness or another person or to prevent any serious damage to property; or

(b) prevent real harm to the public interest, whether affecting the carrying on of any activities in the public interest or the safety of a person involved in carrying on such activities, or otherwise.

(4) Condition B is that, having regard to all the circumstances, the taking of those measures would be consistent with the defendant receiving a fair trial.

(5) Condition C is that the importance of the witness's oral evidence is such that in the interests of justice the witness ought to testify and —

(a) the witness would not testify if the proposed order were not made; or

(b) there would be real harm to the public interest if the witness were to testify without the proposed order being made.

(6) In determining whether the measures to be specified in the order are necessary for the purpose mentioned in subsection (3)(a), the court must have regard (in particular) to any reasonable fear on the part of the witness that —

(a) the witness or another person would suffer death or injury; or

(b) there would be serious damage to property,

if the witness were to be identified.

[UK Coroners and Justice Act 2009 s.88]

472. Relevant considerations

(1) When deciding whether Conditions A to C in section 471 are met in the case of an application for a witness anonymity order, the court must have regard to —

(a) the considerations mentioned in subsection (2) of this section; and

(b) any other matters the court considers relevant.

(2) The considerations are —

(a) the general right of a defendant in criminal proceedings to know the identity of a witness in the proceedings;

(b) the extent to which the credibility of the witness concerned would be a relevant factor when the weight of his or her evidence comes to be assessed;

(c) whether evidence given by the witness might be the sole or decisive evidence implicating the defendant;

(d) whether the witness's evidence could be properly tested (whether on grounds of credibility or otherwise) without his or her identity being disclosed;

(e) whether there is any reason to believe that the witness —

(i) has a tendency to be dishonest; or

(ii) has any motive to be dishonest in the circumstances of the case,

having regard (in particular) to any previous convictions of the witness and to any relationship between the witness and the defendant or any associates of the defendant;

(f) whether it would be reasonably practicable to protect the witness's identity by any means other than by making a witness anonymity order specifying the measures that are under consideration by the court.

[UK Coroners and Justice Act 2009 s.89]

473. Warning to jury

(1) Subsection (2) applies if, on a trial on indictment, any evidence has been given by a witness at a time when a witness anonymity order applied to the witness.

(2) The judge must give the jury such warning as the judge considers appropriate to ensure that the fact that the order was made in relation to the witness does not prejudice the defendant.

(3) In a case being heard without a jury, the court must direct itself as in subsection (2).

[UK Coroners and Justice Act 2009 s.90]

474. Discharge or variation of order generally

(1) A court that has made a witness anonymity order in relation to any criminal proceedings may subsequently discharge or vary (or further vary) the order if it appears to the court to be appropriate to do so in view of the provisions of sections 471 and 472 that applied to the making of the order.

(2) The court may discharge or vary a witness anonymity order —

(a) on an application made by a party to the proceedings if there has been a material change of circumstances since the relevant time; or

(b) on its own initiative.

(3) The court must give every party to the proceedings the opportunity to be heard —

(a) before determining an application made to it under subsection (2);

(b) before discharging or varying the order on its own initiative.

(4) Subsection (3) does not prevent the court hearing one or more of the parties to the proceedings in the absence of a defendant in the proceedings and his or her legal practitioner, if it appears to the court to be appropriate to do so in the circumstances of the case.

(5) In subsection (2), “relevant time” means —

(a) the time when the order was made; or

(b) if a previous application has been made under subsection (2) - the time when the application (or the last application) was made.

[UK Coroners and Justice Act 2009 s.91]

475. Discharge or variation of order after proceedings or on appeal

(1) When —

(a) a court has made a witness anonymity order in relation to a witness in criminal proceedings (“the old proceedings”), and

(b) the old proceedings have come to an end, the court that made the order may discharge or vary (or further vary) the order if it appears to the court to be appropriate to do so in view of —

(i) the provisions of sections 471 and 472 that apply to the making of a witness anonymity order; and

(ii) any other matters the court considers relevant.

(2) The court may exercise the power under subsection (1) —

(a) on an application made by a party to the old proceedings if there has been a material change of circumstances since the relevant time; or

(b) on an application made by the witness if there has been a material change of circumstances since the relevant time.

(3) The court may not determine an application made to it under subsection (2) unless in the case of each of the parties to the old proceedings and the witness —

(a) it has given the person the opportunity to be heard; or

(b) it is satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to communicate with the person.

(4) Subsection (3) does not prevent the court hearing one or more of the persons mentioned in that subsection in the absence of a person who was a defendant in the old proceedings and his or her legal practitioner, if it appears to the court to be appropriate to do so in the circumstances of the case.

(5) Subsection (6) applies when —

(a) a court has made a witness anonymity order in relation to a witness in criminal proceedings (“the trial proceedings”); and

(b) a defendant in the trial proceedings has in those proceedings been —

(i) convicted;

(ii) found not guilty by reason of mental disorder; or

(iii) found to be under a disability and to have done the act charged in respect of an offence.

(6) If this subsection applies, the appellate court may in proceedings on or in connection with an appeal by the defendant from the trial proceedings discharge or vary (or further vary) the order if it appears to the court to be appropriate to do so in view of —

(a) the provisions of sections 471 and 472 that apply to the making of a witness anonymity order; and

(b) any other matters the court considers relevant.

(7) The appellate court may not discharge or vary an order under subsection (6) unless in the case of each party to the trial proceedings it —

(a) has given the person the opportunity to be heard; or

(b) is satisfied that it is not reasonably practicable to communicate with the person.

(8) Subsection (7) does not prevent the appeal court hearing one or more of the parties to the trial proceedings in the absence of a person who was a defendant in the trial proceedings and his or her legal practitioner, if it appears to the court to be appropriate to do so in the circumstances of the case.

(9) In this section —

(a) “the relevant time” means —

(i) the time when the old proceedings came to an end; or

(ii) if a previous application has been made under subsection (3) - the time when the application (or the last application) was made;

(b) a reference to the doing of an act includes a reference to a failure to act.

[UK Coroners and Justice Act 2009 ss.92 and 93]

Savings

476. Savings for other powers and rules

(1) Except as expressly provided in this Part, nothing in this Part affects —

(a) any power of a court to make an order, give directions or give leave of any description in relation to any witness (including a defendant);

(b) the operation of any rule of law relating to evidence in criminal proceedings;

(c) any power of a court to exclude evidence at its discretion (whether by preventing questions being put or otherwise) which is exercisable apart from this Part; or

(d) any prohibition or restriction imposed by or under this Ordinance or any other enactment upon a publication or upon matter included in a programme service.

(2) Nothing in this Part affects any power of a court to make an order or give leave of any description, in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction or otherwise —

(a) in relation to a witness who is not an eligible witness; or

(b) in relation to an eligible witness if the order is made or the leave is given otherwise than by reason of the fact that the witness is an eligible witness.

(3) Nothing in this Part affects the common law rules as to the withholding of information on the grounds of public interest immunity.

[CJ (Evidence) Ord. s.7 (part); UK Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 ss.33C & 63]

CHAPTER 8 – SENTENCING

PART 23 – SENTENCING: GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Principles for sentencing

477. Purposes of sentencing

(1) A court dealing with an offender in respect of an offence must have regard to the following purposes of sentencing —

(a) the punishment of offenders;

(b) the reduction of crime (including its reduction by deterrence);

- (c) the reform and rehabilitation of offenders;
- (d) the protection of the public; and
- (e) the making of reparation by offenders to persons affected by their offences.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply —

- (a) in relation to offenders who are aged under 18 at the time of conviction (as to whom Part 33 (Young Offenders and Youth Protection) applies;
- (b) to an offence the sentence for which is fixed by law; or
- (c) in relation to the making of an order for a person's custody or detention in a hospital or approved medical centre under the Mental Health Ordinance.

(3) This section does not affect —

- (a) any other principle or requirement about sentencing contained in this Ordinance in relation to particular offences or particular offenders; nor
- (b) the duty to consider making a compensation order when imposing a sentence, as required by section 608.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.142 adapted]

478. Determining the seriousness of an offence

(1) In considering the seriousness of any offence, the court must consider the offender's culpability in committing the offence and any harm which the offence caused, was intended to cause or might foreseeably have caused.

(2) In considering the seriousness of an offence ("the current offence") committed by an offender who has one or more previous convictions, the court must treat each previous conviction as an aggravating factor if (in the case of that conviction) the court considers that it can reasonably be so treated having regard, in particular, to —

- (a) the nature of the offence to which the conviction relates and its relevance to the current offence; and
- (b) the time that has elapsed since the conviction.

(3) In considering the seriousness of any offence committed while the offender was on bail, the court must treat the fact that it was committed in those circumstances as an aggravating factor.

(4) Any reference in subsection (2) to a previous conviction is to be read as a reference to a previous conviction by a court in the Falkland Islands.

(5) Subsections (2) and (4) do not prevent the court from treating a previous conviction by a court outside the Falkland Islands as an aggravating factor in any case where the court considers it appropriate to do so.

(6) If —

(a) a court is considering the seriousness of an offence other than one under any of sections 555 to 559 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014, (racially or religiously aggravated assaults, etc.); and

(b) the offence was racially or religiously aggravated, the court must —

(i) treat that fact as an aggravating factor; and

(ii) state in open court that the offence was so aggravated.

(7) If the court is considering the seriousness of an offence committed in any of the circumstances mentioned in subsection (8) the court must —

(a) treat the fact that the offence was committed in any of those circumstances as an aggravating factor; and

(b) state in open court that the offence was committed in such circumstances.

(8) Those circumstances are —

(a) that, at the time of committing the offence, or immediately before or after doing so, the offender demonstrated towards the victim of the offence hostility based on —

(i) the sexual orientation (or presumed sexual orientation) of the victim; or

(ii) a disability (or presumed disability) of the victim; or

(b) that the offence is motivated (wholly or partly) by hostility towards persons —

(i) who are of a particular sexual orientation; or

(ii) who have a disability or a particular disability, whether or not the offender's hostility is also based, to any extent, on any other factor.

(9) In this section —

“disability” means any physical or mental impairment;

“racially or religiously aggravated” has the same meaning as in section 555 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.143, 145 and 146]

479. Reduction in sentences for guilty pleas

(1) In determining what sentence to pass on an offender who has pleaded guilty to an offence in criminal proceedings before that or another court, a court must take into account —

(a) the stage in the proceedings for the offence at which the offender indicated an intention to plead guilty; and

(b) the circumstances in which this indication was given.

(2) If, as a result of taking into account any matter referred to in subsection (1) above, the court imposes a punishment on the offender which is less severe than the punishment it would otherwise have imposed, it must state in open court that it has done so.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.144 (part); Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.152 (part)]

480. Sentencing powers: General

(1) Subject to any maximum penalty prescribed for an offence, and subject to other provisions of this Ordinance limiting sentencing powers —

(a) the Supreme Court may impose imprisonment for any period, or a fine of any amount, or both;

(b) the Magistrate’s Court may impose imprisonment for any period, or a fine of any amount, or both if the penalty provision so provides;

(c) the Summary Court may impose a sentence of imprisonment up to the limit prescribed by section 178, or a fine up to the limit prescribed by section 589, or both if the penalty provision so provides;

(d) the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court when sitting as a Youth Court may impose a custodial sentence or a fine (up to the limits prescribed in Part 33), or both if the penalty provision so provides.

(2) In imposing a sentence a court must have regard to —

(a) the relative seriousness of the offence as indicated by the maximum sentence that can be imposed for the offence on conviction;

(b) any matter that, in the opinion of the court, is relevant in mitigation of sentence as provided by section 481;

(c) any sentencing guidelines issued under section 482.

(3) If in any written law of the Falkland Islands a penalty is prescribed for an offence under that law, the provision implies —

(a) that the offence is punishable upon conviction by a penalty not exceeding the penalty prescribed; and

(b) if the amount of the fine is unspecified, that the offence, without affecting any law against excessive or unreasonable fines or assessments, is punishable by a fine of any amount.

(4) If in any written law of the Falkland Islands —

(a) a penalty is set out at the foot of any section or subsection, any contravention of that provision is an offence under that law punishable upon conviction by a penalty not exceeding the penalty so set out;

(b) more than one penalty is prescribed for an offence, the use of the word “and” means that the penalties may be inflicted alternatively or cumulatively.

(5) If under any law an offender sentenced, on summary conviction, to imprisonment or a fine is required to enter into a recognisance with or without sureties to keep the peace or observe any other condition, the court convicting the person may dispense with or modify the requirement.

(6) A court may in imposing a sentence for an offence combine different types of sentence, whether custodial or non-custodial, provided the effective total sentence does not exceed the maximum prescribed for the offence, and for this purpose a period of a community sentence counts as a period of imprisonment.

(7) The imposition of a penalty or fine by or under any written law of the Falkland Islands does not relieve any person from liability to answer in damages to a person injured.

[Criminal Justice Ord. ss.5 to 8; UK Magistrate’s Courts Act 1980 s.34 adapted]

481. Power to mitigate sentences

(1) Unless a provision of this Ordinance otherwise provides, a court may mitigate an offender’s sentence by taking into account any such matters as, in the opinion of the court, are relevant in mitigation of sentence.

(2) The court may, on application by or for the defendant made in private, if it considers it necessary for the fair administration of justice, order that all or part of a submission in mitigation of sentence be heard in private.

(3) In subsection (2), “in private” means excluding the public generally, but not the witnesses or the parties or their legal practitioners.

(4) Documents adduced in support of a plea in mitigation may be put before the court without being read aloud, provided the parties and their legal practitioners are informed of the contents and have an opportunity to make submissions on them.

(5) A court, after taking into account any matters such matters as are mentioned in subsection (1), may pass a community sentence even though it is of the opinion that the offence, or the combination of the offence and one or more offences associated with it, was so serious that a community sentence would not normally be justified for the offence.

(6) A court may —

(a) mitigate any penalty included in an offender’s sentence by taking into account any other penalty included in that sentence; and

(b) in the case of an offender who is convicted of one or more other offences, mitigate the sentence by applying any rule of law as to the totality of sentences.

(7) A court may reduce the sentence that it would otherwise impose to take account of any assistance given (or offered to be given) by the offender to the prosecutor or investigator of an offence either before or after the person was charged with the offence.

(8) Subsections (6) and (7) do not limit subsection (1).

(9) Nothing in this Ordinance —

(a) requires a court to pass a custodial sentence, or any particular custodial sentence, on a mentally disordered offender; or

(b) restricts any power which enables a court to deal with such an offender in the manner it considers to be most appropriate in all the circumstances.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.166 adapted]

482. Sentencing guidelines

(1) The Criminal Justice Council, on the recommendation of the Sentencing Guidelines Committee given after consulting as required by Part ‘B’ of Schedule 13, must publish guidelines relating to the sentencing of offenders (“sentencing guidelines”), which may be general in nature or limited to a particular category of offence or offenders.

(2) The sentencing guidelines must have regard to the principles set out in Part ‘B’ of Schedule 13 and to —

(a) the need to promote consistency in sentencing;

(b) the cost of different sentences and their relative effectiveness in preventing re-offending;

(c) the need to promote public confidence in the criminal justice system; and

(d) any views communicated to the Council in writing on the subject of sentencing.

(3) Every court must in sentencing an offender have regard to any sentencing guidelines which are relevant to the offender's case, and must follow those guidelines unless satisfied it would be contrary to the interests of justice to do so.

(4) If and to the extent that sentencing guidelines have not been published under subsection (1), and subject to any common law provision, a court may have regard to the guidelines issued by the Sentencing Guidelines Council and by the Sentencing Council for England and Wales as amended or replaced from time to time.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss. 171, 172, replaced by Coroners & Justice Act 2009 ss.120, 125 and 135 and adapted]

483. Duty to give reasons for, and explain effect of, sentence

(1) Subject to subsection (4), a court passing sentence on an offender must —

(a) state in open court, in ordinary language and in general terms, its reasons for deciding on the sentence passed; and

(b) explain to the offender in ordinary language —

(i) the effect of the sentence;

(ii) if the offender is required to comply with any order of the court forming part of the sentence - the effects of non-compliance with the order;

(iii) any power of the court, on the application of the offender or any other person, to vary or review any order of the court forming part of the sentence; and

(iv) if the sentence consists of or includes a fine - the effects of failure to pay the fine.

(2) In complying with subsection (1)(a), the court must —

(a) if applicable sentencing guidelines indicate that a sentence of a particular kind, or within a particular range, would normally be appropriate for the offence and the sentence is of a different kind, or is outside that range – state the court's reasons for deciding on a sentence of a different kind or outside that range;

(b) if the sentence is a custodial sentence and the duty in subsection (2) of section 558 is not excluded by subsection (3) of that section - state that it is of the opinion referred to in section 558(2) and why it is of that opinion;

(c) if the sentence is a community sentence - state that it is of the opinion that section 551 applies and why it is of that opinion;

(d) in every case, mention any aggravating or mitigating factors which the court has regarded as being of particular importance.

(3) The court must identify any sentencing guidelines relevant to the offender's case and —

(a) explain how the court discharged any duty imposed on it by section 482(3) to observe the guidelines, unless satisfied it would be contrary to the interests of justice to do so;

(b) if the court was satisfied it would be contrary to the interests of justice to follow the guidelines, state why.

(4) If, as a result of taking into account any matter referred to in section 479, the court imposes a punishment on the offender which is less severe than the punishment it would otherwise have imposed, the court must state that fact.

(5) If a court passes a custodial sentence, it must cause any reason stated by virtue of subsection (2)(b) to be specified in the warrant of commitment and entered on the court records.

(6) Subsections (1) to (5) do not apply to an offence the sentence for which is fixed by law.

(7) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision —

(a) prescribing cases in which the duties under this section do not apply, and

(b) providing how an explanation under subsection (4) is to be given.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.174 as replaced by s.64 of the LASPOA 2012 and adapted]

Derogatory assertions

484. Orders in respect of certain assertions

(1) This section applies when a person has been convicted of an offence and a speech in mitigation is made by the person or on the person's behalf before —

(a) a court deciding what sentence should be passed on the person in respect of the offence;
or

(b) the Summary Court deciding whether the person should be committed to the Magistrate's Court for sentence.

(2) This section also applies when a sentence has been passed on a person in respect of an offence and a submission relating to the sentence is made by the person or on the person's behalf before —

(a) a court hearing an appeal against or reviewing the sentence; or

(b) a court deciding whether to grant leave to appeal against the sentence.

(3) If it appears to the court that there is a real possibility that an order under subsection (8) will be made in relation to the assertion, the court may make an order under subsection (7) in relation to the assertion.

(4) If there are substantial grounds for believing —

(a) that an assertion forming part of the speech or submission is derogatory to a person's character (for instance, because it suggests that the person's conduct is or has been criminal, immoral or improper); and

(b) that the assertion is false or that the facts asserted are irrelevant to the sentence, the court may make an order under subsection (8) in relation to the assertion.

(5) An order under subsection (7) or (8) must not be made in relation to an assertion if it appears to the court that the assertion was previously made —

(a) at the trial at which the person was convicted of the offence; or

(b) during any other proceedings relating to the offence.

(6) Sections 485 and 486 have effect if a court makes an order under subsection (7) or (8).

(7) An order under this subsection —

(a) may be made at any time before the court has made a decision with regard to sentencing;

(b) may be revoked at any time by the court;

(c) subject to paragraph (b), ceases to have effect when the court makes a decision with regard to sentencing.

(8) An order under this subsection —

(a) may be made after the court has made a decision with regard to sentencing, but only if it is made as soon as is reasonably practicable after the making of the decision;

(b) may be revoked at any time by the court;

(c) subject to paragraph (b), ceases to have effect after 12 months;

(d) may be made whether or not an order has been made under subsection (7) with regard to the case concerned.

(9) For the purposes of subsections (7) and (8) the court makes a decision with regard to sentencing —

(a) when it decides what sentence should be passed (if this section applies by virtue of subsection (1)(a));

(b) when it decides whether the person should be committed to the Magistrate's Court for sentence (if this section applies by virtue of subsection (1)(b));

(c) when it decides what the sentence should be (if this section applies by virtue of subsection (2)(a));

(d) when it decides whether to grant leave to appeal (if this section applies by virtue of subsection (2)(b)).

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.58]

485. Restriction on reporting of assertions

(1) If a court makes an order under section 484(7) or (8) in relation to any assertion, at any time when the order has effect the assertion must not be —

(a) published in the Falkland Islands in a written publication available to the public; or

(b) included in a relevant programme for reception in the Falkland Islands.

(2) For the purposes of this section an assertion is published or included in a programme if the material published or included —

(a) names the person about whom the assertion is made or, without naming the person, contains enough information to make it likely that members of the public will identify the person as the person about whom the assertion is made; and

(b) reproduces the actual wording of the matter asserted or contains its substance.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.59]

486. Reporting of assertions: Offences

(1) If an assertion is published or included in a relevant programme in contravention of section 485, each of the following commits an offence —

(a) in the case of publication in a newspaper or periodical - any proprietor, editor or publisher of the newspaper or periodical;

(b) in the case of publication in any other form - the person who publishes the assertion;

(c) in the case of an assertion included in a relevant programme - any person, whether an individual or a corporate body, engaged in providing the service in which the programme is included and any person who has functions in relation to the programme corresponding to those of an editor of a newspaper.

Penalty: The statutory maximum fine.

(2) If a person is charged with an offence under this section it is a defence to prove that at the time of the alleged offence the person —

(a) was not aware, and neither suspected nor had reason to suspect, that an order under section 484(7) or (8) had effect at that time; or

(b) was not aware, and neither suspected nor had reason to suspect, that the publication or programme in question was of, or (as the case may be) included, the assertion in question.

(3) Subsection (2) of section 485 applies for the purposes of this section as it applies for the purposes of that section.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.60]

Commencement and alteration of sentence

487. Commencement of sentence

(1) A sentence imposed, or other order made, by a court when dealing with an offender takes effect from the beginning of the day on which it is imposed, unless the court otherwise directs.

(2) The power to give a direction under subsection (1) has effect subject to any restriction on consecutive sentences for released prisoners.

(3) If a sentence is varied under section 488, in this section “sentence” means a sentence as so varied.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.154 adapted]

488. Alteration of Supreme Court sentence

(1) Subject to the following provisions of this section, a sentence imposed, or other order made, by the Supreme Court when dealing with an offender may be varied or rescinded by the Supreme Court within the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which the sentence or other order was imposed or made or, if subsection (2) applies, within the time allowed by that subsection.

(2) If 2 or more persons are jointly tried on an indictment, then, subject to the following provisions of this section, a sentence imposed, or other order made, by the Supreme Court on conviction of any of those persons on the indictment may be varied or rescinded by the Supreme Court not later than —

(a) 28 days after the conclusion of the joint trial; or

(b) 56 days after the sentence or other order was imposed or made,

whichever is the earlier.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2), the joint trial is concluded when any of the persons jointly tried is sentenced or is acquitted or when a special verdict is brought in, whichever is the later.

(4) A sentence or other order must not be varied or rescinded under this section except by the court constituted as it was when the sentence or other order was imposed or made.

(5) Subject to subsection (6), if a sentence or other order is varied under this section the sentence or other order, as so varied, takes effect from the beginning of the day on which it was originally imposed or made, unless the court otherwise directs.

(6) For the purposes of an appeal to the Court of Appeal, the sentence or other order is to be regarded as imposed or made on the day on which it is varied under this section.

(7) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules —

(a) in relation to cases in which 2 or more persons are tried separately on the same or related facts alleged in one or more indictments, provide for extending the period fixed by subsection (1);

(b) subject to this section, prescribe the cases and circumstances in which, and the time within which, any order or other decision made by the Supreme Court may be varied or rescinded by that court.

(8) In this section, “sentence” includes a recommendation for deportation made under section 501.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.155 adapted]

Deferment of sentence

489. Power to defer sentence

(1) Subject to this section, a court may defer passing sentence on a person for the purpose of enabling the court, or any other court to which it falls to deal with the person, to have regard in dealing with the person to —

(a) the person’s conduct after conviction; or

(b) any change in the person’s circumstances.

(2) Without limiting subsection (1), the matters to which the court to which it falls to deal with the person may have regard by virtue of paragraph (a) of that subsection include the extent to which the offender has complied with any requirements imposed under subsection (3)(b).

(3) The power conferred by subsection (1) is exercisable only if —

(a) the offender consents;

(b) the person undertakes to comply with any requirements as to the person’s conduct during the period of the deferment that the court considers it appropriate to impose; and

(c) the court is satisfied, having regard to the nature of the offence and the character and circumstances of the offender, that it would be in the interests of justice to exercise the power.

(4) Any deferment under this section —

(a) must be until a date not later than 6 months after the date on which the deferment is announced by the court;

(b) can only be done once, unless the person is committed for sentence to the Supreme Court.

(5) If sentence is deferred under subsection (1), the probation officer must —

(a) monitor the offender's compliance with the requirements; and

(b) provide to the court to which it falls to deal with the offender in respect of the offence in question any information the court requires relating to the offender's compliance with the requirements.

(6) If a court has under this section deferred passing sentence on an offender, it must forthwith give a copy of the order deferring the passing of sentence and setting out any requirements imposed under subsection (3)(b) to —

(a) the offender; and

(b) the probation officer.

(7) A court which under this section defers passing sentence on an offender must not on the same occasion remand the person.

(8) If —

(a) a court which under this section has deferred passing sentence on a person proposes to deal with the person on the date originally specified by the court, or by virtue of section 488(1), before that date;

(b) the person does not appear on the day so specified,

the court may issue a summons requiring the person to appear before the court at a time and place specified in the summons, or may issue a warrant to arrest the person and bring him or her before the court at a time and place specified in the warrant.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.17 (part); UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss.1 and 2 replaced by Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.278]

490. Breach of undertakings

(1) A court which under section 489 has deferred passing sentence on a person may deal with the person before the end of the period of deferment if —

- (a) the person appears or is brought before the court under subsection (3); and
- (b) the court is satisfied that he or she has failed to comply with one or more requirements imposed under section 489(3)(b) in connection with the deferment.

(2) Subsection (3) applies if —

- (a) a court has under section 489 deferred passing sentence on an offender;
- (b) the offender undertook to comply with one or more requirements imposed under paragraph (3)(b) of that section in connection with the deferment; and
- (c) the probation officer has reported to the court that the offender has failed to comply with one or more of those requirements.

(3) If this subsection applies, the court may issue —

- (a) a summons requiring the offender to appear before the court at a time and place specified in the summons; or
- (b) a warrant to arrest the offender and bring him or her before the court at a time and place specified in the warrant.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.17 (part); UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.1B ins. by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

491. Conviction of offence during period of deferment

(1) A court which under section 489 has deferred passing sentence on a person may deal with the person before the end of the period of deferment if during that period he or she is convicted in the Falkland Islands of any offence.

(2) Subsection (3) applies if a court has under section 489 deferred passing sentence on a person in respect of one or more offences and during the period of deferment the person is convicted in the Falkland Islands of any offence (“the later offence”).

(3) If this subsection applies, then (without affecting subsection (1) and whether or not the person is sentenced for the later offence during the period of deferment), the court which passes sentence on the person for the later offence may also, if this has not already been done, deal with the person for the offence or offences for which passing of sentence has been deferred, except that —

- (a) the power conferred by this subsection may not be exercised by the Magistrate’s Court if the court which deferred passing sentence was the Supreme Court, nor by the Summary

Court if the court which deferred passing sentence was the Supreme Court or the Magistrate's Court;

(b) the Supreme Court, in exercising that power in a case in which the court which deferred passing sentence was the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, may not pass any sentence which could not have been passed by the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court in exercising that power.

(4) If a court which under section 489 has deferred passing sentence on a person proposes to deal with the person by virtue of subsection (1) of this section before the end of the period of deferment, the court may issue —

(a) a summons requiring the person to appear before the court at a time and place specified in the summons; or

(b) a warrant to arrest the person and bring the person before the court at a time and place specified in the warrant.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.17 (part); UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.1C ins. by Criminal Justice Act 2003]

492. Deferment of sentence: Supplementary

(1) In deferring the passing of sentence under section 489 a court is to be regarded as exercising a power of adjourning the trial and accordingly any provisions about non-appearance of the defendant apply if the offender does not appear on the date specified under section 491(4), but without affecting section 489(8).

(2) If the passing of sentence on a person has been deferred by a court ("the original court") under section 489, the power of that court under that section to deal with the person at the end of the period of deferment and any power of that court under section 490(1) or 491(1), or of any court under section 491(3), to deal with the person —

(a) is power to deal with the person, in respect of the offence for which passing of sentence has been deferred, in any way in which the original court could have dealt with the person if it had not deferred passing sentence; and

(b) without limiting paragraph (a), in the case of the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court includes the power to commit the person to the Supreme Court for sentence.

(3) If —

(a) the passing of sentence on a person in respect of one or more offences has been deferred under section 489; and

(b) the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court deals with the person in respect of the offence or any of the offences by committing the person to the Supreme Court, the power of the Supreme Court to deal with the person includes the same power to defer passing sentence on the person as if the person had just been convicted of the offence or offences on indictment before the court.

(4) Nothing in this section or section 489 or 491 affects —

(a) the power of any court to bind over an offender to come up for judgment when called upon; or

(b) the power of any court to defer passing sentence for any purpose for which it may lawfully do so apart from this section.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.17 (part); UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.1D ins. by Criminal Justice Act 2003 adapted]

Information before sentence passed

493. Pre-sentence reports

(1) The court, before passing any sentence, must make such inquiries as it thinks fit, in order to inform itself as to the appropriate sentence to be passed.

(2) For the purpose of subsection (1), the court may inquire into the character and antecedents of the offender, either at the request of the prosecution or the offender, and may require a pre-sentence report from the probation officer or any other appropriate person.

(3) If a court requires a pre-sentence report it may remand the defendant in custody after conviction for the purpose of the report being prepared for up to 28 days.

(4) The offender must be given an opportunity to confirm, deny or explain any adverse statement made about the offender in a pre-sentence report and in any case of doubt the court must in the absence of legal proof of such a statement ignore it.

(5) No sentence shall be invalidated by the failure of a court to consider a pre-sentence report, but an appellate court on appeal from that court must consider such a report in determining whether a different sentence should be passed on the applicant from the sentence passed by the court below.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.61; UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.156 (part); Magistrates Courts Act 1980 s.10(3)]

494. Taking previous offences into account

(1) In assessing the proper sentence to be passed, the court must take into consideration the offender's character and antecedents, including any other offences committed by the offender, which the offender admits, whether or not the offender has been convicted of those offences.

(2) No offence of which the offender has not been convicted may be taken into consideration in assessing the proper sentence unless the offender specifically agrees that the offence should be taken into consideration and details of the request have been recorded in the proceedings.

(3) If for any reason the sentence passed by the court is set aside, the offender is not entitled to plead autrefois convict in respect of any offence taken into consideration in assessing the sentence that was set aside.

(4) If an offender has committed a series of offences over a period of time, and has been convicted upon an indictment charging the offender with having committed one or more of those offences —

(a) the court may pass a sentence which is appropriate to the whole of the offender's involvement in that series of offences; but.

(b) the court may take into account any such series of offences only to the extent (if any) to which the offender admits guilt.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.156 (part) and s.158]

495. Additional requirements in case of mentally disordered offender

(1) Subject to subsection (2), in any case where the offender is or appears to be mentally disordered, the court must obtain and consider a medical report before passing a custodial sentence other than one fixed by law.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply if, in the circumstances of the case, the court is of the opinion that it is unnecessary to obtain a medical report.

(3) Before passing a custodial sentence other than one fixed by law on a person who is or appears to be mentally disordered, a court must consider —

(a) any information before it which relates to the person's mental condition (whether given in a medical report, a pre-sentence report or otherwise); and

(b) the likely effect of such a sentence on that condition and on any treatment which may be available for it.

(4) No custodial sentence which is passed in a case to which subsection (1) applies is invalidated by the failure of a court to comply with that subsection, but any court on an appeal against such a sentence must —

(a) obtain a medical report if none was obtained by the court below; and

(b) consider any such report obtained by it or by that court.

(5) In this section, "medical report" means a report as to a person's mental condition made or submitted orally or in writing by a medical practitioner or the Chief Medical Officer as defined in the Mental Health Ordinance.

(6) If the court considers that a medical report is required, it may remand the offender for the purpose in accordance with section 48 of the Mental Health Ordinance (remand for report on defendant's mental condition).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.157 adapted]

496. Disclosure of pre-sentence reports

(1) This section applies if the court obtains a pre-sentence report (including a medical report obtained pursuant to section 495) if the report is not given orally in open court.

(2) Subject to subsections (3) and (4), the court must give a copy of the report —

(a) to the offender or the offender's legal practitioner;

(b) if the offender is aged under 18 - to any parent or guardian of the offender, or other person having parental responsibility for the offender, who is present in court; and

(c) to the person having the conduct of the proceedings in respect of the offence

(3) If the offender is aged under 18 and it appears to the court that the disclosure to the offender or to his or her parent or guardian of any information contained in the report would be likely to create a risk of significant harm to the offender, a complete copy of the report need not be given to the offender or, as the case may be, to that parent or guardian.

(4) No information obtained by virtue of subsection (2)(c) may be used or disclosed otherwise than for the purpose of —

(a) determining whether representations as to matters contained in the report need to be made to the court; or

(b) making such representations to the court.

(5) In relation to an offender aged under 18 for whom the Crown has responsibility and who —

(a) is in the care of the Crown; or

(b) is provided with accommodation by the Crown, references in this section to the offender's parent or guardian are to be read as references to the Crown.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.62; UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.159]

497. Pre-sentence drug testing

(1) If a person aged 14 or over is convicted of an offence and the court is considering passing a community sentence or a suspended sentence, it may make an order under subsection (2) for the purpose of ascertaining whether the offender has any controlled drug in his or her body.

(2) The order requires the offender to provide, in accordance with the order, samples of any description specified in the order.

(3) If the offender has not attained the age of 18, the order must provide for the samples to be provided in the presence of an appropriate adult.

(4) If it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that the offender has, without reasonable excuse, failed to comply with the order it may impose on the offender a fine at level 4 on the standard scale.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.161]

Impact statements

498. Victim Personal Statements

(1) For purposes of this section —

(a) a Victim Personal Statement (“VPS”) is a written statement made by a person who was the victim of an offence as to how the offence has affected the person;

(b) the statement may include information to identify whether the person has a particular need for information, support and protection;

(c) the statement should not include any opinion as to the appropriate sentence;

(d) the statement may be made by relatives of a victim, for example if the victim has died as a result of the relevant criminal conduct, or if the victim is a youth when the statement is made;

(e) the statement must be made in the form of a witness statement or an expert statement as provided by or under this Ordinance.

(2) A court when determining sentence for an offence must take into account any VPS made in relation to it, and any supporting documents. Unless inferences can properly be drawn from the nature of or circumstances surrounding the offence, a sentencing court must not make assumptions unsupported by evidence about the effects of an offence on the victim.

(3) A VPS must be made before sentence is considered, but may be updated between sentence and appeal if appropriate, for example if the victim was injured and the final prognosis was not available at the date of sentence.

(4) Any VPS made in relation to an offence must be served on the defendant or the defendant’s legal practitioner, if any, in sufficient time before sentencing for the defence to prepare a response to it.

(5) If a VPS has been made in relation to an offence —

- (a) it must be referred to in the course of sentencing;
- (b) subject to the court's discretion, the contents of the VPS may be summarised and in an appropriate case read out in open court.

(6) The Chief Justice, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, must issue a code of practice and may issue associated guidelines for the making of VPSs by victims of criminal offences, specifying among other things —

- (a) the offences to which such statements can relate;
- (b) the persons who can make them;
- (c) the time, manner and form of making them;
- (d) the duties of the police and other public officers in relation to them; and
- (e) the rights of victims of crime generally.

[UK Practice Direction (Crim Proc) 2009 para. III.28 and Code of Practice for Victims of Crime Oct 2013]

499. Community Impact Statements

(1) For purposes of this section —

- (a) a Community Impact Statement (“CIS”) is a written statement made by a police officer of the rank of inspector or above in relation to an offence for which a court is due to determine sentence;
- (b) the purpose of the statement is to make the court aware of particular crime trends in the local area and the impact of them on the local community;
- (c) the statement should not include any opinion as to the appropriate sentence;
- (d) the statement must be made in the form of a witness statement or an expert statement as provided by or under this Ordinance.

(2) A court when determining sentence for an offence must take into account any CIS made in relation to it, so far as the court considers it appropriate. Unless inferences can properly be drawn from the nature of or circumstances surrounding the offence, a sentencing court must not make assumptions unsupported by evidence about the effects of an offence on the local community.

(3) Any CIS made in relation to an offence must be served on the defendant or the defendant's legal practitioner, if any, in sufficient time before sentencing for the defence to prepare a response to it.

(4) If a CIS has been made in relation to an offence —

(a) it must be referred to in the course of sentencing;

(b) subject to the court's discretion, the contents of the CIS may be summarised and in an appropriate case read out in open court.

(5) The Chief Justice, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, must issue a code of practice and may issue associated guidelines for the making of CISs by police officers.

[UK Practice Direction (Crim Proc) 2009 para. III.28]

500. Family impact measures

(1) The Chief Justice, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may issue a code of practice and associated guidelines for the making of statements by the family members of a deceased victim of an offence resulting in death, in addition to or in place of a VPS made by relatives of a deceased victim as provided by section 498(1)(d).

(2) The code may specify the manner, form and time for the making of such a statement, including whether it can be made orally in court, and the persons who should assist the family members in making such a statement.

(3) To the extent compatible with family members' roles as witnesses, the court should consider the following measures in relation to the family of a deceased victim of an offence resulting in death —

(a) seating for family members in the courtroom in an area away from the public gallery;

(b) warning being given to families if the evidence on a certain day is expected to be particularly distressing;

(c) providing a written copy of the sentencing remarks to the family after sentence has been passed.

[UK Practice Direction (Crim Proc) 2009 para. III.28 and CJ's Protocol May 2006]

Deportation

501. Power to recommend deportation

(1) Subject to this section, if a person who does not have Falkland Islands status within the meaning of section 22(5) of the Constitution and who has attained the age of 18 years is convicted in the Falkland Islands of an offence for which the person is punishable with imprisonment, the court when sentencing the person for that offence may, unless it commits the person to be sentenced or further dealt with for that offence by another court, recommend, in addition to so sentencing the person, that the person be deported from the Falkland Islands.

(2) A court must not under this section recommend a person for deportation unless the person has been given not less than 7 days notice of the court's intention to do so, but the court may after convicting an offender adjourn the case for the purpose of enabling a notice to be given to the person under this section or, if a notice was given to the person less than 7 days previously, for the purpose of enabling the necessary 7 days to elapse.

(3) For the purposes of this section —

(a) a person is deemed to have attained the age of 18 years at the time of his or her conviction if, on consideration of any available evidence, the person appears to the court making or considering a recommendation for deportation to have attained that age;

(b) the question whether an offence is one for which a person is punishable with imprisonment must be decided without regard to any enactment restricting the imprisonment of young offenders or first offenders; and

(c) if a person who on being charged with an offence is found to have committed it, the person is, despite any enactment to the contrary and even if the court does not proceed to conviction, to be regarded as a person convicted of the offence, and references to conviction must be construed accordingly.

(4) If a court recommends or purports to recommend a person for deportation, the validity of the recommendation is not to be called in question except on an appeal against the recommendation or against the conviction on which it is made, but the recommendation is to be treated as a sentence for the purpose of any enactment providing an appeal against sentence.

(5) The powers under this section are in addition to and do not affect the power of the Governor to order deportation under Part II of the Immigration Ordinance.

[UK Immigration Act 1971 ss.3, 7, 8 etc. adapted]

PART 24 – ABSOLUTE OR CONDITIONAL DISCHARGES

502. Absolute or conditional discharge

(1) If a court by or before which a person is convicted of an offence (not being an offence the sentence for which is fixed by law) is of the opinion, having regard to the circumstances, including the nature of the offence and the character of the offender, that it is inexpedient to inflict punishment, the court may make an order discharging the person —

(a) absolutely; or

(b) subject to the condition that the person commits no offence during a period, not exceeding 3 years from the date of the order, specified in the order.

(2) An order discharging a person subject to a condition as mentioned in subsection (1)(b) is in this Part referred to as “an order for conditional discharge” and the period specified in any such order as “the period of conditional discharge”.

(3) Before making an order for conditional discharge the court must explain to the offender in ordinary language that if he or she commits another offence during the period of conditional discharge he or she will be liable to be sentenced for the original offence.

(4) If, under the following provisions of this Part, a person conditionally discharged under this section is sentenced for the offence in respect of which the order for conditional discharge was made, that order ceases to have effect.

(5) If an order for conditional discharge has been made on appeal, for the purposes of this Part the order is deemed —

(a) if made on an appeal from the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court – to have been made by that court;

(b) if made on an appeal from the Supreme Court or from the Court of Appeal - to have been made by the Supreme Court.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.24; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss.12 and 150 adapted]

503. Substitution of conditional discharge for community sentence

(1) If on an application made by a person subject to a community sentence or by the probation officer it appears to the court having power to discharge a community sentence that the community sentence is no longer appropriate (for reasons other than the person’s own conduct), the court may, subject to subsection (2), make an order for conditional discharge in respect of the original offence, in substitution for the community sentence imposed for that offence.

(2) The period of conditional discharge in an order made under subsection (1) must not extend beyond the period of the community sentence originally imposed.

(3) No application may be made under subsection (1) while an appeal against the community sentence is pending.

(4) A person in respect of whom an order is made under this section must, while the condition mentioned in section 502(1)(b) continues in force, be treated in all respects as if the original order had been an order for conditional discharge made by the court which imposed the community sentence.

(5) If an application under this section is made by the probation officer, it may be heard in the absence of the person on whom the community sentence was imposed if the officer produces to the court a statement by the offender that he or she —

(a) understands the effect of an order made under this section; and

(b) consents to the application being made.

(6) On the making of an order under this section the appropriate officer of the court must forthwith give copies of the order to the probation officer, who must give a copy to the person in respect of whom the order is made and to the person in charge of any institution in which that person was required by the community sentence to reside.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.27]

504. Commission of further offence by person conditionally discharged

(1) If it is proved to the satisfaction of the court by which an order for conditional discharge was made that the person in whose case the order was made has been convicted of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge, the court may deal with the person for the offence for which the order was made, in any manner in which it could deal with the person if he or she had just been convicted by or before that court of that offence.

(2) If a person in whose case an order for conditional discharge has been made by the Supreme Court is convicted by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge, the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court must —

(a) commit the person in custody or on bail to appear before the Supreme Court; and.

(b) send to the Supreme Court a copy of the minute or memorandum of the conviction entered in the register, signed by the Clerk of the court.

(3) If a person in whose case an order for conditional discharge has been made by the Summary Court or the Magistrate's Court is convicted before the Supreme Court of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge, the Supreme Court may deal with the person, for the offence for which the order was made, in any manner in which the court which made the order for conditional discharge could deal with the person if it had just convicted the person of that offence.

(4) If the person in whose case an order for conditional discharge has been made by the Summary Court is —

(a) convicted by the Magistrate's Court of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge; or

(b) dealt with by the Magistrate's Court for any such offence in respect of which the person was committed for sentence to the Magistrate's Court, the Magistrate's Court may deal with the person, for the offence for which the order was made, in any manner in which the Summary Court could deal with the person if it had just convicted the person of that offence.

(5) If the person in whose case an order for conditional discharge has been made by the Magistrate's Court is convicted by the Summary Court of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge, the Summary Court must —

- (a) commit the person in custody or on bail to appear before the Magistrate's Court; and
- (b) send to the Magistrate's Court a copy of the minute or memorandum of the conviction entered in the register, signed by the Clerk of the court.

(6) A reference in this section to a person having been convicted of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge is a reference to the person having been so convicted by a court in the Falkland Islands.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.25 modified; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.13 adapted]

505. Effect of discharge

(1) Without affecting section 503, and subject to subsections (2), (3) and (5) below, a conviction of an offence for which an order is made under this Part discharging the offender absolutely or conditionally is not a conviction for any purpose other than the purposes of —

- (a) the proceedings in which the order is made; and
- (b) any subsequent proceedings which may be taken against the offender under the preceding provisions of this Part.

(2) If the offender was aged 18 or over at the time of his or her conviction of the offence in question and is subsequently sentenced under this Part for that offence, subsection (1) does not apply to the conviction.

(3) Without affecting subsections (1) and (2), the conviction of an offender who is discharged absolutely or conditionally under this Part is to be disregarded for the purposes of any law which—

- (a) imposes any disqualification, forfeiture or other disability upon convicted persons; or
- (b) authorises or requires the imposition of any such disqualification, forfeiture or disability.

(4) Subsections (1) to (3) do not affect —

- (a) any right of an offender discharged absolutely or conditionally under this Part to rely on the conviction in bar of any subsequent proceedings for the same offence;
- (b) any right of any such offender to appeal against the conviction or otherwise; or
- (c) the restoration of any property in consequence of the conviction of any such offender.

(5) An absolute discharge may be adduced as evidence of bad character, as provided by section 372(2).

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.29; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.14 adapted]

506. Breach of conditional discharge by young offender

If an order for conditional discharge has been made by a court in the case of an offender under 18 years of age, the powers exercisable by that or any other court after the offender has attained the age of 18 years in the event of any breach of the order are those which would be exercisable if the person had attained the age of 18 years at the time of the commission of the offence in respect of which the order for conditional discharge was made.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.26]

507. Further provisions as to discharge

(1) A court that makes an order for conditional discharge under this Part may, if it thinks it will help the reformation of the offender, allow any person who consents to do so to give security for the good behaviour of the offender.

(2) For the purposes of this Ordinance, except section 503, if an order for conditional discharge has been made on appeal, the order is deemed to have been made by the court from which the appeal was brought.

(3) In criminal proceedings before the Supreme Court, any question whether a person in whose case an order for conditional discharge has been made has been convicted of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge, is to be determined by the court and not by the verdict of a jury.

(4) Nothing in this Part takes away any power of the court, on discharging an offender absolutely or conditionally, to order the offender to pay costs or compensation or to order forfeiture.

(5) A sentence imposed by a court on a breach of a conditional discharge by virtue of section 504 may be the subject of an appeal as if imposed upon conviction.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.28; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.15 adapted]

PART 25 – COMMUNITY SENTENCES

508. Interpretation of Part

(1) In this Part, unless the contrary intention appears —

“community order” means an order imposed on a person under section 509;

“community sentence” means a sentence which consists of or includes —

(a) a community order; or

(b) a youth rehabilitation order;

“drug” means a controlled drug as defined in the Misuse of Drugs Ordinance;

“relevant order” means —

- (a) a community order; or
- (b) a youth rehabilitation order;

“review hearing” means a hearing as described in section 521(1)(b);

“treatment provider” means a person specified in a requirement as a person with the necessary qualifications or experience to provide treatment in response to the requirement;

“youth rehabilitation order” means an order imposed on a person under section 528.

(2) In this Part, “the appropriate court” means —

- (a) in relation to any relevant order imposing a drug rehabilitation requirement which is subject to review - the court responsible for the order;
- (b) in relation to any relevant order which was made by the Supreme Court and does not include any direction that any failure to comply with the requirements of the order is to be dealt with by the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court - the Supreme Court; and
- (c) in relation to any other relevant order - the court that made the order.

(3) If the Crown has parental responsibility for an offender who is in its care or provided with accommodation by it, any reference in this Part to the offender’s parent or guardian is to be read as a reference to the Crown.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.147; Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 s.7]

Community orders

509. Community orders

(1) If an adult individual is convicted of an offence punishable with imprisonment, not being an offence for which the sentence is fixed by law, the court by or before which the person is convicted may make an order (a “community order”) imposing on the person any one or more of the following requirements —

- (a) an unpaid work requirement;
- (b) an activity requirement;
- (c) a programme requirement;
- (d) a prohibited activity requirement;
- (e) a curfew requirement;
- (f) an exclusion requirement;

- (g) a residence requirement;
- (h) a foreign travel prohibition requirement;
- (i) a mental health treatment requirement;
- (j) a drug rehabilitation requirement;
- (k) an alcohol treatment requirement;
- (l) an alcohol abstinence and monitoring requirement;
- (m) an intoxicating substance treatment requirement
- (n) a supervision requirement;
- (o) an electronic monitoring requirement.

(2) Subsection (1) has effect subject to the provisions of this Part relating to particular requirements.

(3) A community order must specify a date, not more than 3 years after the date of the order, by which all the requirements in it must have been complied with (in this Part called the “end date”).

(4) If a community order imposes 2 or more different requirements falling within subsection (1), the order may also specify a date by which each of those requirements must have been complied with; and the last of those dates must be the same as the end date.

(5) Subject to section 510(6), a community order ends on the end date.

(6) A community order which imposes 2 or more requirements under subsection (1) may also specify an earlier date or dates in relation to compliance with any one or more of them.

(7) Before making a community order imposing 2 or more different requirements falling under subsection (1), the court must consider whether, in the circumstances of the case, the requirements are compatible with each other.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.177]

510. Unpaid work requirement

(1) In this Part “unpaid work requirement” means a requirement that the offender must perform unpaid work in accordance with this section.

(2) The number of hours which a person may be required to work under an unpaid work requirement must be specified in the relevant order and must be in aggregate not less than 40 and not more than 300.

- (3) A court may not impose an unpaid work requirement in respect of an offender unless —
- (a) after considering any recommendations of the probation officer, the court is satisfied that the offender is a suitable person to perform work under such a requirement; and
 - (b) the court is satisfied that provision for the offender to work under such a requirement can be made.
- (4) An offender in respect of whom an unpaid work requirement of a relevant order is in force must perform for the number of hours specified in the order such work at such times as he or she is instructed by the probation officer.
- (5) Subject to section 547(1)(Extension of unpaid work requirement), the work required to be performed under an unpaid work requirement must be performed during a period of 12 months.
- (6) Unless revoked, a relevant order imposing an unpaid work requirement remains in force until the offender has worked under it for the number of hours specified in it.
[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.199 and 200]

511. Activity requirement

- (1) In this Part “activity requirement” means a requirement that the offender must do either or both of the following —
- (a) present himself or herself to a person or persons specified in the relevant order at a place or places so specified on the number of days so specified;
 - (b) participate in activities specified in the order on the number of days so specified.
- (2) The specified activities may consist of or include activities whose purpose is that of reparation, such as activities involving contact between offenders and persons affected by their offences.
- (3) A court may not include an activity requirement in a relevant order unless the court —
- (a) has consulted the probation officer;
 - (b) is satisfied that it is feasible to ensure compliance with the requirement; and
 - (c) is satisfied that provision for the offender to participate in the activities proposed to be specified in the order can be made.
- (4) A court may not include an activity requirement in a relevant order if compliance with that requirement would involve the co-operation of a person other than the offender and the probation officer, unless that other person consents to its inclusion.
- (5) The aggregate number of days specified under subsection (1)(a) and (b) must not exceed 60.

(6) The requirement mentioned in subsection (1)(a) means that the offender must —

(a) in accordance with instructions given by the probation officer, present himself or herself at a place or places on the number of days specified in the relevant order; and

(b) while at any place, comply with instructions given by, or under the authority of, the person in charge of that place or activity.

(7) The requirement mentioned in subsection (1)(b) means that the offender must —

(a) in accordance with instructions given by the probation officer, participate in activities on the number of days specified in the relevant order; and

(b) while participating, comply with instructions given by, or under the authority of, the person in charge of the activities.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.201]

512. Programme requirement

(1) In this Part “programme requirement” means a requirement that the offender must participate in a systematic set of activities specified in the relevant order at a place so specified on the number of days so specified.

(2) A court may not include a programme requirement in a relevant order unless —

(a) the programme which the court proposes to specify in the order has been recommended to the court by the probation officer as being suitable for the offender; and

(b) the court is satisfied that the programme is available at the place proposed to be specified.

(3) A court may not include a programme requirement in a relevant order if compliance with that requirement would involve the co-operation of a person other than the offender and the probation officer, unless that other person consents to its inclusion.

(4) A requirement to participate in a programme means that the offender must —

(a) in accordance with instructions given by the probation officer, participate in the programme at the place specified in the relevant order on the number of days specified in the order; and

(b) while at that place, comply with any instructions given by, or under the authority of, the person in charge of the programme.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.202]

513. Prohibited activity requirement

(1) In this Part “prohibited activity requirement” means a requirement that the offender must refrain from participating in activities specified in the relevant order —

- (a) on a day or days so specified; or
- (b) during a period so specified.

(2) A court may not include a prohibited activity requirement in a relevant order unless it has consulted the probation officer.

(3) The requirements that may by virtue of this section be included in an order include a requirement that the offender does not possess, use or carry a firearm within the meaning of the Firearms and Ammunition Ordinance.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.203]

514. Curfew requirement

(1) In this Part “curfew requirement” means a requirement that the offender must remain, for periods specified in the relevant order, at a place so specified.

(2) A relevant order imposing a curfew requirement may specify different places or different periods for different days, but may not specify periods which amount to less than 2 hours or more than 12 hours in any day.

(3) A relevant order which imposes a curfew requirement may not specify periods which fall outside the period of 6 months beginning with the day on which it is made.

(4) Before making a relevant order imposing a curfew requirement, the court must obtain and consider information about the place proposed to be specified in the order, including information as to the attitude of persons likely to be affected by the enforced presence of the offender.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.204; Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.37]

515. Exclusion requirement

(1) In this Part “exclusion requirement” means a provision prohibiting the offender from entering a place specified in the relevant order for a period so specified.

(2) An exclusion requirement may —

- (a) provide for the prohibition to operate only during the periods specified in the relevant order; and
- (b) specify different places for different periods or days.

(3) The period specified in a community order must be no more than 2 years.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.205]

516. Residence requirement

(1) In this Part, “residence requirement” means a requirement that, during a period specified in the relevant order, the offender must reside at a place specified in the order.

(2) If the relevant order so provides, a residence requirement does not prohibit the offender from residing, with the prior approval of the probation officer, at a place other than that specified in the order.

(3) Before making a relevant order containing a residence requirement, the court must consider the home surroundings of the offender.

(4) A court may not specify a hostel or other institution as the place where the offender must reside, except on the recommendation of the probation officer.

(5) A court may not by virtue of subsection (1)(b) include in a relevant order a requirement that the offender reside with an individual unless that individual has consented to the requirement.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.206]

517. Foreign travel prohibition requirement

(1) In this Part “foreign travel prohibition requirement” means a requirement prohibiting the offender from travelling, on a day or days specified in the relevant order, or for a period so specified —

(a) to any country or territory outside the Falkland Islands specified or described in the order;

(b) to any country or territory outside the Falkland Islands other than a country or territory specified or described in the order; or

(c) to any country or territory outside the Falkland Islands.

(2) A day specified under subsection (1) may not fall outside the period of 12 months beginning with the day on which the relevant order is made.

(3) A period specified under that subsection may not exceed 12 months beginning with the day on which the relevant order is made.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.206A ins. by s.72 LASPO Act 2012]

518. Mental health treatment requirement

(1) In this Part, “mental health treatment requirement” means a requirement that the offender must submit, during a period or periods specified in the relevant order, to treatment by or under the direction of a registered medical practitioner with a view to the improvement of the offender’s mental condition.

(2) The treatment required may be provided as a resident or non-resident patient at any hospital or medical centre as defined by the Mental Health Ordinance.

(3) A court may not by virtue of this section include a mental health treatment requirement in a relevant order unless —

(a) the court is satisfied, on the evidence of an approved doctor, in terms of the Mental Health Ordinance, that the mental condition of the offender —

(i) is such as requires and may be susceptible to treatment; and

(ii) is not such as to justify the offender being detained under any provision of the Mental Health Ordinance;

(b) the court is also satisfied that arrangements have been or can be made for the treatment intended to be specified in the order, including arrangements for the reception of the offender if he or she is required to submit to treatment as a patient; and

(c) the offender has expressed his or her willingness to comply with such a requirement.

(4) While the offender is under treatment as a patient pursuant to a mental health requirement of a relevant order, the probation officer must carry out the supervision of the offender only to the extent necessary for the purpose of the revocation or amendment of the order.

(5) Section 64 of the Mental Health Ordinance has effect with respect to proof of an offender's mental condition for the purposes of this section as it has effect with respect to proof of a person's mental condition for the purposes of that Ordinance.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.207]

519. Mental health treatment at place other than as specified in order

(1) If the medical practitioner by whom or under whose direction an offender is being treated for a mental condition pursuant to a mental health treatment requirement is of the opinion that part of the treatment can be better or more conveniently given in or at an institution or place which —

(a) is not specified in the relevant order; and

(b) is one in or at which the treatment of the offender will be given by or under the direction of a registered medical practitioner, the medical practitioner may, with the consent of the offender, make arrangements for the offender to be treated accordingly.

(2) The arrangements mentioned in subsection (1) may provide for the offender to receive part of his or her treatment as a resident patient in or at an institution or place even if it is not one which could have been specified for that purpose in the relevant order.

(3) If arrangements as mentioned in subsection (1) are made for the treatment of an offender —

(a) the medical practitioner by whom the arrangements are made must give notice in writing to the probation officer, specifying the institution or place in or at which the treatment is to be carried out; and

(b) the treatment provided for by the arrangements are deemed to be treatment to which he or she is required to submit pursuant to the relevant order.

(4) Arrangements made pursuant to subsection (1) may include treatment outside the Falkland Islands, in which case Part 9 of the Mental Health Ordinance applies to the extent appropriate.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.208 adapted]

520. Drug rehabilitation requirement

(1) In this Part “drug rehabilitation requirement” means a requirement that during a period specified in a relevant order (“the treatment and testing period”) the offender —

(a) must submit to treatment by or under the direction of a specified treatment provider with a view to reducing or eliminating the offender’s dependency on or propensity to misuse controlled drugs; and

(b) for the purpose of ascertaining whether the offender has any controlled drug in his or her body during that period, must provide samples of a description, and at times or in circumstances (subject to the provisions of the order) decided by the probation officer or by the treatment provider.

(2) A court may not impose a drug rehabilitation requirement unless —

(a) it is satisfied —

(i) that the offender is dependent on, or has a propensity to misuse, controlled drugs; and

(ii) that the dependency or propensity is such as requires and may be susceptible to treatment;

(b) it is also satisfied that arrangements have been or can be made for the treatment intended to be specified in the relevant order, including arrangements for the reception of the offender if he or she is to be required to submit to treatment as a resident;

(c) the requirement has been recommended to the court as being suitable for the offender by the probation officer; and

(d) the offender expresses his or her willingness to comply with the requirement.

(3) The treatment and testing period must be at least 6 months, unless it appears to the court that the treatment provider is likely to leave the Falkland Islands within 6 months from the date of imposing the requirement, in which case the period can be for less than 6 months.

(4) The required treatment for any particular period may be —

- (a) treatment as a resident in or at an institution or place specified in the relevant order; or
- (b) treatment as a non-resident in or at an institution or place, and at intervals, so specified, but the nature of the treatment is not to be specified in the order except as mentioned in paragraph (a) or (b).

(5) A relevant order imposing a drug rehabilitation requirement —

- (a) must specify for each month the minimum number of occasions on which samples are to be provided; and
- (b) may specify —
 - (i) times at which and circumstances in which the probation officer or treatment provider may require samples to be provided; and
 - (ii) descriptions of the samples that may be so required.

(6) The results of drug tests carried out pursuant to a drug rehabilitation requirement in a relevant order otherwise than by the probation officer must be communicated to the probation officer.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.209; Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 Schedule 1 para.2 etc.]

521. Drug rehabilitation requirement: Provision for review by court

(1) A relevant order imposing a drug rehabilitation requirement may, and must if the treatment and testing period is for more than 12 months —

- (a) provide for the requirement to be reviewed periodically at intervals of not less than one month;
- (b) provide for each review of the requirement to be made, subject to section 522(5), at a hearing held for the purpose by the court responsible for the order;
- (c) require the offender to attend each review hearing;
- (d) provide for the probation officer to make to the court responsible for the order, before each review, a report in writing on the offender's progress under the requirement; and
- (e) provide for each such report to include the test results communicated to the probation officer under section 520(5).

(2) In this section a reference to the court responsible for a relevant order imposing a drug rehabilitation requirement is a reference to the court by which the order is made.

(3) If a relevant order imposing a drug rehabilitation requirement has been made on an appeal from the Supreme Court or from the Court of Appeal, for the purposes of subsection (2), it is to be taken to have been made by the Supreme Court.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.210]

522. Periodic review of drug rehabilitation requirement

(1) At a review hearing the court may, after considering the probation officer's report referred to in that subsection, amend the relevant order, so far as it relates to the drug rehabilitation requirement.

(2) The court —

(a) may not amend the drug rehabilitation requirement unless the offender expresses his or her willingness to comply with the requirement as amended;

(b) may not amend any provision of the relevant order so as to reduce the period for which the drug rehabilitation requirement has effect below the minimum specified in section 520(3); and

(c) except with the consent of the offender, may not amend any requirement or provision of the order while an appeal against the order is pending.

(3) If the offender fails to express his or her willingness to comply with the drug rehabilitation requirement as proposed to be amended by the court, the court may —

(a) revoke the relevant order; and

(b) deal with the offender, for the offence in respect of which the order was made, in any way in which he or she could have been dealt with for that offence by the court which made the order if the order had not been made.

(4) In dealing with the offender under subsection (3)(b), the court must take into account the extent to which the offender has complied with the requirements of the relevant order.

(5) If at a review hearing the court, after considering the probation officer's report, is of the opinion that the offender's progress under the requirement is satisfactory, the court may amend the relevant order so as to provide for each subsequent review to be made by the court without a hearing.

(6) If at a review without a hearing the court, after considering the probation officer's report, is of the opinion that the offender's progress under the requirement is no longer satisfactory, the court may require the offender to attend a hearing of the court at a specified time and place.

(7) At that hearing the court, after considering that report, may —

(a) exercise the powers conferred by this section as if the hearing were a review hearing; and

(b) so amend the relevant order as to provide for each subsequent review to be made at a review hearing.

(8) In this section a reference to the court, in relation to a review without a hearing, is to be read in the case of —

(a) the Supreme Court - as a reference to a judge of the court;

(b) the Magistrate's Court - as a reference to the Senior Magistrate;

(c) the Summary Court - as a reference to two justices of the peace.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.211]

523. Alcohol treatment requirement

(1) In this Part “alcohol treatment requirement” means a requirement that the offender must submit, during a period specified in the relevant order, to treatment by or under the direction of a specified treatment provider, with a view to the reduction or elimination of the offender's dependency on alcohol.

(2) A court may not impose an alcohol treatment requirement in respect of an offender unless it is satisfied that —

(a) he or she is dependent on alcohol;

(b) the dependency is such as requires and may be susceptible to treatment; and

(c) arrangements have been or can be made for the treatment intended to be specified in the order, including arrangements for the reception of the offender if he or she is required to submit to treatment as a resident.

(3) A court may not impose an alcohol treatment requirement unless the offender expresses his or her willingness to comply with its requirements.

(4) The treatment period must be at least 6 months, unless it appears to the court that the offender or the treatment provider is likely to leave the Falkland Islands within 6 months from the date of imposing the requirement, in which case the period can be for less than 6 months.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.212 am. by LASPO Act 2012 s.75]

524. Alcohol abstinence and monitoring requirement

(1) In this Part “alcohol abstinence and monitoring requirement” means a requirement —

(a) that, subject to any exceptions specified in the relevant order the offender —

(i) must abstain from consuming any alcohol throughout a period of 6 months; or

(ii) must not consume alcohol so that at any time during that period there is more than 35 microgrammes of alcohol in 100 millilitres of the offender's breath; and

(b) that the offender must, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the offender is complying with provision under paragraph (a) or (b) submit during the period of 120 days to monitoring in accordance with the directions of the probation officer.

(2) The directions of the probation officer under subsection (1)(b) may include —

(a) a breathalyser test administered by the police force or by any other body that has the necessary equipment and knowledge;

(b) arrangements for monitoring by electronic means of testing.

(3) A court may not include an alcohol abstinence and monitoring requirement in a relevant order unless the following conditions are met.

(4) The first condition is that —

(a) the consumption of alcohol by the offender is an element of the offence for which the relevant order is to be imposed or an associated offence; or

(b) the court is satisfied that the consumption of alcohol by the offender was a factor that contributed to the commission of that offence or an associated offence.

(5) The second condition is that the court is satisfied that the offender is not dependent on alcohol.

(6) The third condition is that the court does not include an alcohol treatment requirement in the relevant order.

(7) In this section, "alcohol" includes anything containing alcohol.

(8) An electronic monitoring requirement (if included in a relevant order) may not be included for the purposes of securing the electronic monitoring of the offender's compliance with an alcohol abstinence and monitoring requirement unless so provided by directions under subsection (2).

(9) The Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order amend the figures in subsection (1).

(10) The power to impose an alcohol abstinence and monitoring requirement under this section is in addition to and does not affect the power under section 76 of the Licensing Ordinance to make a prohibition order, but only one of these 2 types of order can be in effect in respect of the same person at any given time.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.212A ins. by LASPO Act 2012 s.76 and adapted]

525. Intoxicating substance treatment requirement

(1) A court that imposes a relevant order may include in the order an “intoxicating substance treatment requirement”, that is to say, a requirement that the offender must submit, during a period or periods specified in the order, to treatment, by or under the direction of a person so specified who has the necessary qualifications or experience, with a view to the reduction or elimination of the offender’s dependency on or propensity to misuse intoxicating substances.

(2) A court may not include an intoxicating substance treatment requirement in a relevant rehabilitation order unless it is satisfied that —

- (a) the offender is dependent on, or has propensity to misuse, intoxicating substances; and
- (b) the offender’s dependency or propensity is such as requires and may be susceptible to treatment.

(3) The treatment required during a period specified under subsection (1) must be —

- (a) treatment as a resident in or at an institution or place specified in the order;
- (b) treatment as a non-resident in or at an institution or place, and at intervals, as so specified; or
- (c) treatment by or under the direction of a person with the necessary qualification or experience as so specified, but the nature of the treatment must not be specified in the relevant order except as mentioned in paragraph (a), (b) or (c).

(4) A court may not include an intoxicating substance treatment requirement in a relevant order unless —

- (a) the requirement has been recommended to the court as suitable to the offender by the probation officer;
- (b) the offender has expressed his or her willingness to comply with the requirement; and
- (c) the court is satisfied that arrangements have been or can be made for the treatment intended to be specified in the order, including arrangements for the reception of the offender if he or she is required to submit to treatment as a resident.

(5) In this section “intoxicating substance” means any substance or product (other than a controlled drug or alcohol) which is, or the fumes of which are, capable of being inhaled or otherwise used for the purpose of causing intoxication.

[UK Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 Sched.1 para.24]

526. Supervision requirement

(1) In this Part “supervision requirement” means a requirement that, during the period for which the relevant order remains in force, the offender must attend appointments with the probation officer or another person decided by the probation officer, at a time and place decided by the probation officer.

(2) The purpose for which a supervision requirement may be imposed is that of promoting the offender’s rehabilitation.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.213 am. by LASPO Act 2012 ss.68 and 89]

527. Electronic monitoring requirement

(1) In this Part “electronic monitoring requirement” means a requirement for securing the electronic monitoring of the offender’s compliance with other requirements imposed by a relevant order during a period specified in the order, or determined by the probation officer in accordance with the relevant order.

(2) If —

(a) it is proposed to include in a relevant order a requirement for securing electronic monitoring in accordance with this section; but

(b) there is a person (other than the offender) without whose co-operation it will not be practicable to secure the monitoring, the requirement may not be included in the order without that person’s consent.

(3) A relevant order which includes an electronic monitoring requirement must include provision for making the Chief Police Officer, the probation officer or some other public officer responsible for electronic monitoring in any particular case.

(4) If an electronic monitoring requirement is required to take effect during a period determined by the probation officer in accordance with the relevant order, the probation officer must, before the beginning of that period, notify —

(a) the offender;

(b) the person responsible for the monitoring; and

(c) any person falling within subsection (2)(b), of the time when the period is to begin.

(5) Electronic monitoring may be ordered by the court only if the court is satisfied that the requisite equipment is available in the Falkland Islands at the date of the sentencing hearing

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.215]

Youth rehabilitation orders

528. Youth rehabilitation orders

(1) This section applies if a person under the age of 18 but over the age of 10 years is convicted of an offence punishable with imprisonment, not being an offence for which the sentence is fixed by law.

(2) If this section applies, the court by or before which the person is convicted may make an order (a “youth rehabilitation order”) imposing on the person any one or more of the requirements as described in the preceding sections, but as varied by section 529.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) have effect subject to the provisions of this Part relating to particular requirements.

(4) The provisions of section 509(3) to (7) apply to a youth rehabilitation order as if for references to a community order there were substituted references to a youth rehabilitation order.

(5) Before making a youth rehabilitation order, the court must obtain from the probation officer and give due consideration to information about the offender’s family circumstances and the likely effect of such an order on those circumstances.

[UK Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 s.1 and Sched.1]

529. Variation of requirements for youths

(1) An unpaid work requirement can only be imposed on a youth aged 16 or 17 at the time of conviction.

(2) The number of hours which a person aged 16 or 17 at the date of conviction may be required to work under an unpaid work requirement must be in aggregate not less than 40 and not more than 240.

(3) The period specified in an exclusion requirement in relation to a youth must be no more than 3 months.

(4) A residence requirement included in a youth rehabilitation order must require the youth to reside with an individual specified in the order.

[UK Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 Schedule 1 para.2 adapted]

Further provisions about relevant orders

530. Relevant order made by Supreme Court: Direction in relation to further proceedings

(1) If the Supreme Court imposes a relevant order under this Part, it may include in the order a direction that further proceedings relating to the sentence, including any review, are to be in the Magistrate’s Court, but subject to section 557.

(2) If a direction is given under subsection (1), and the Magistrate's Court would be required, or has the power, to deal with the offender in one of the ways mentioned in section 542, the court may instead —

- (a) commit the offender in custody; or
- (b) release the offender on bail, until the offender can be brought or appear before the Supreme Court.

(3) If the Magistrate's Court deals with the case under subsection (2) it must send to the Supreme Court —

- (a) a certificate signed by a justice of the peace certifying that the offender has failed to comply with the community sentence in the respect specified in the certificate; and
- (b) any other particulars of the case that are appropriate,

and a certificate purporting to be so signed is admissible as evidence of the failure before the Supreme Court.

(4) In subsection (1), "further proceedings", in relation to a relevant order, means proceedings —

- (a) for any failure to comply with the order; or
- (b) on any application for amendment or revocation of the order.

[UK Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 Sched.1 para.36; Sched.2 para.7]

531. Relevant orders made on appeal

If a relevant order has been made on appeal, for the purposes of this Part it is to be treated —

- (a) if it was made on appeal from the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court - as having been made by the respective court;
- (b) if it was made on an appeal brought from the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeal - as having been made by the Supreme Court.

[UK Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 Sched.2 para.2]

532. Duties of probation officer

(1) When a relevant order has effect, it is the duty of the probation officer —

- (a) to make any arrangements that are necessary in connection with the requirements imposed by the order;
- (b) to promote the offender's compliance with those requirements; and

(c) where appropriate, to take steps to enforce those requirements.

(2) The probation officer is responsible for monitoring the implementation of the requirements of a relevant order, and for informing the court that made the order, in accordance with this Part, if the offender is in breach of them.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.198]

533. Requirement must avoid conflict with religious beliefs, etc.

The court must ensure, as far as practicable, that any requirement imposed by a relevant order is such as to avoid —

(a) any conflict with the offender’s religious beliefs; and

(b) any interference with the times, if any, at which he or she normally works or attends school or any other educational establishment.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.217]

534. Provision of copies of relevant orders

(1) The appropriate officer of the court by which any relevant order is made must provide copies of the order —

(a) to the offender;

(b) if the offender is a youth - to the offender’s parent or guardian; and

(c) to the probation officer.

(2) If an order imposes any of the following requirements, the court by which the relevant order is made must also provide the person specified in relation to that requirement with a copy of so much of the order as relates to that requirement —

(a) an activity requirement - the person specified in section 511(1)(a);

(b) an exclusion requirement imposed for the purpose (or partly for the purpose) of protecting a person from being approached by the offender - the person intended to be protected;

(c) a residence requirement requiring residence with an individual - the individual specified in section 516(1)(b);

(d) a residence requirement relating to residence in an institution - the person in charge of the institution;

(e) a mental health treatment requirement - the person in charge of the institution or place where the offender is to receive treatment as a patient;

(f) a drug rehabilitation requirement - the person in charge of the institution or place specified under section 520(4)(a) or (b);

(g) an alcohol treatment requirement - the person specified under section 523(1);

(h) an intoxicating substance treatment requirement - the person specified in section 525(3)(c).

(3) On the making of an order revoking or amending a relevant order, the appropriate officer of the court must —

(a) provide copies of the revoking or amending order to —

(i) the offender;

(ii) if the offender is a youth - the offender's parent or guardian; and

(iii) the probation officer;

(b) in the case of an amending order which imposes or amends a requirement specified in subsection (2)(a) to (h) - provide a copy of the revoking or amending order to the person specified in relation to that requirement.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.219 and Sched.8 para.27]

535. Duty of offender to keep in touch with probation officer

(1) An offender in respect of whom a relevant order is in force must —

(a) keep in touch with the probation officer in accordance with any instructions that he or she is from time to time given by the officer; and

(b) notify the probation officer of any change of address.

(2) The obligation imposed by subsection (1) is enforceable as if it were a requirement imposed by the relevant order.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.220]

Breach of requirement of community sentence

536. Breach of requirement of order

(1) If the probation officer is of the opinion that the offender has failed without reasonable excuse to comply with any of the requirements of a relevant order, and that the failure is unacceptable, the officer must report the failure by information on oath to the Clerk of the court.

(2) An information under this section must —

(a) describe the circumstances of the failure;

(b) mention any warning that has been given to the offender; and

(c) state that the failure is unacceptable

(3) The Clerk of the court must record an information sworn before him or her under this section.

(4) In relation to any relevant order which was made by the Supreme Court and does not include a direction that any failure to comply with the requirements of the order is to be dealt with by the Magistrate's Court, the references in subsection (1) and (3) to the Clerk of the court are to be read as references to the Registrar.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 paras.5 and 6]

537. Issue of summons or warrant by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court

(1) This section applies to —

(a) a relevant order made by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court;

(b) a relevant order made by the Supreme Court which includes a direction that a failure to comply with the requirements of the order is to be dealt with by the Magistrate's Court, but subject to section 557.

(2) If at any time while a relevant order to which this section applies is in force it appears to the Senior Magistrate or a justice of the peace that the offender has failed to comply with any of the requirements of the order, the Senior Magistrate or justice may —

(a) issue a summons requiring the offender to appear at the place and time specified in it; or

(b) if the information is in writing and on oath - issue a warrant for his or her arrest.

(3) A summons or warrant issued under this section must direct the offender to appear or be brought before the court that imposed the relevant order or that is to deal with a failure to comply pursuant to subsection (1)(b).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.7]

538. Issue of summons or warrant by Supreme Court

(1) This section applies to a relevant order made by the Supreme Court which does not include a direction that any failure to comply with the requirements of the order is to be dealt with by the Magistrate's Court, but subject to section 557.

(2) If at any time while an order to which this section applies is in force it appears to a judge of the Supreme Court that the offender has failed to comply with any of the requirements of the order, the judge may —

(a) issue a summons requiring the offender to appear at the place and time specified in it; or

(b) if the information is in writing and on oath - issue a warrant for his or her arrest.

(3) Any summons or warrant issued under this section must direct the offender to appear or be brought before the Supreme Court.

(4) If a summons issued under subsection (2)(a) requires the offender to appear before the Supreme Court and the offender does not appear in answer to the summons, the Supreme Court may issue a warrant for the arrest of the offender.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.8]

539. Powers of Magistrate’s Court or Summary Court on a breach

(1) If an offender appears or is brought before the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court under section 535 and the court is satisfied that the offender has failed without reasonable excuse to comply with any of the requirements of a relevant order, the court must deal with the offender in respect of the failure in one of the following ways —

(a) subject to relevant requirements of this Part, by amending the terms of the order so as to impose more onerous requirements which the court could include if it were then making an order;

(b) if the order was made by the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court - by dealing with the offender, for the offence in respect of which the order was made, in any way in which the court could deal with the offender if he or she had just been convicted by it of the offence; or

(c) if the order was made by the Supreme Court - by amending the terms of the order as provided by paragraph (a), or by committing the offender in custody or on bail to appear before the Supreme Court.

(2) In dealing with an offender under subsection (1), the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, must take into account the extent to which the offender has complied with the requirements of the relevant order.

(3) In dealing with an offender under subsection (1)(a), the court may extend the duration of particular requirements, subject to any limit imposed by this Part, but may only amend a relevant order to substitute a later date for that specified under section 509(3) in accordance with subsections (4) and (5) of this section.

(4) A date substituted under subsection (3) —

(a) may not fall outside the period of 6 months beginning with the date previously specified under section 509(3);

(b) subject to that, may fall more than 3 years after the date of the relevant order.

(5) The power under subsection (3) to substitute a date may not be exercised in relation to an order if that power or the power in section 540(3) to substitute a date has previously been exercised in relation to that power.

(6) A date substituted under subsection (3) is to be treated as having been specified in relation to the relevant order under section 509(3).

(7) If —

(a) the court is dealing with an offender under subsection (1)(a); and

(b) the relevant order does not contain an unpaid work requirement,

section 510(2)(a) applies in relation to the inclusion of such a requirement as if for “40” there were substituted “20”.

(8) If the court deals with an offender under subsection (1)(b) it must first revoke the relevant order if it is still in force.

(9) If the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court deals with an offender under subsection (1)(c) it must send to the Supreme Court —

(a) a certificate signed by the Senior Magistrate or a justice of the peace, as the case may be, certifying that the offender has failed to comply with the requirements of the relevant order in the respect specified in the certificate; and

(b) any other particulars of the case that the Senior Magistrate or justice of the peace considers appropriate, and a certificate purporting to be so signed is admissible as evidence of the failure before the Supreme Court.

(10) A person sentenced under subsection (1)(b) for an offence may appeal to the Supreme Court against the sentence.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.9 am. by LASPO Act 2012 s.66]

540. Powers of Supreme Court on breach

(1) If under section 538 or by virtue of section 539(1)(c) an offender appears before the Supreme Court and it is proved to the satisfaction of that court that he or she has failed without reasonable excuse to comply with any of the requirements of a relevant order, the Supreme Court must deal with the offender in respect of the failure in one of the following ways —

(a) subject to relevant requirements of this Part, amend the terms of the order so as to impose more onerous requirements which the Supreme Court could impose if it were then making the order; or

(b) deal with the offender, for the offence in respect of which the order was made, in any way in which he or she could have been dealt with for that offence by the court which made the order if the order had not been made.

(2) In dealing with an offender under subsection (1), the Supreme Court must take into account the extent to which the offender has complied with the requirements of the relevant order.

(3) In dealing with an offender under subsection (1)(a), the court may extend the duration of particular requirements, subject to any limit imposed by this Part, but may only amend the relevant order to substitute a later date for that specified under section 509(3) in accordance with subsections (4) and (5) of this section.

(4) A date substituted under subsection (3) —

(a) may not fall outside the period of 6 months beginning with the date previously specified under section 509(3);

(b) subject to that, may fall more than 3 years after the date of the relevant order.

(5) The power under subsection (3) to substitute a date may not be exercised in relation to a relevant order if that power or the power in section 539(3) to substitute a date has previously been exercised in relation to that power.

(6) A date substituted under subsection (3) is to be treated as having been specified in relation to the relevant order under section 509(3).

(7) If —

(a) the court is dealing with an offender under subsection (1)(a); and

(b) the relevant order does not contain an unpaid work requirement,

section 510(2)(a) applies in relation to the inclusion of such a requirement as if for “40” there were substituted “20”.

(8) If the Supreme Court deals with an offender under subsection (1)(b), it must first revoke the relevant order if it is still in force.

(9) In proceedings before the Supreme Court under this section any question whether the offender has complied with the requirements of the relevant order is to be decided by the court and not by the verdict of the jury.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.10 am. by LASPO Act 2012 s.66]

541. Restriction of powers when treatment required

(1) An offender who is required by any of the following requirements of an order —

(a) a mental health treatment requirement;

(b) a drug rehabilitation requirement;

- (c) a drug treatment requirement;
- (d) an alcohol treatment requirement; or
- (e) an intoxicating substance treatment requirement, to submit to treatment for his or her mental condition, or his or her dependency on or propensity to misuse drugs, alcohol, or any other intoxicating substance, must not be treated for the purposes of section 539 or 540 as having failed to comply with that requirement on the ground only that he or she had refused to undergo any surgical, electrical or other treatment if, in the opinion of the court, the refusal was reasonable having regard to all the circumstances.

(2) A court may not under section 539(1)(a) or 540(1)(a) amend a mental health treatment requirement, a drug rehabilitation requirement, an alcohol treatment requirement or an intoxicating substance treatment requirement unless the offender expresses his or her willingness to comply with the requirement as amended.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.11]

Revocation and amendment of relevant orders

542. Revocation of relevant order

(1) This section applies if a relevant order is in force and on the application of the offender or the probation officer it appears to the court that made the order, that, having regard to circumstances which have arisen since the order was made, it would be in the interests of justice —

- (a) for the order to be revoked; or
- (b) for the offender to be dealt with in some other way for the offence in respect of which the order was made.

(2) The court may —

- (a) revoke the relevant order; or
- (b) both —
 - (i) revoke the order; and
 - (ii) deal with the offender, for the offence in respect of which the order was made, in any way in which it could deal with the offender if he or she had just been convicted by the court of the offence.

(3) The circumstances in which a relevant order may be revoked under subsection (2) include the offender making good progress or responding satisfactorily to supervision or treatment, as the case requires.

(4) In dealing with an offender under subsection (2)(b), the court must take into account the extent to which the offender has complied with the requirements of the relevant order.

(5) A person sentenced by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court under subsection (2)(b) for an offence may appeal to the Supreme Court against the sentence.

(6) A person sentenced by the Supreme Court under subsection (2)(b) for an offence may appeal to the Court of Appeal against the sentence.

(7) If a court proposes to exercise its powers under subsection (2) on the application of the probation officer, it must summon the offender to appear before the court and, if the offender does not appear in answer to the summons, may issue a warrant for his or her arrest.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 paras.13 and 14]

543. Amendment of requirements of a relevant order

(1) The appropriate court may, on the application of the offender or the probation officer, by order amend a relevant order —

(a) by cancelling any of the requirements of the order; or

(b) subject to relevant provisions of this Part, by replacing any of those requirements with a requirement of the same kind, which the court could include if it were then making the order.

(2) The court may not under this section amend a mental health treatment requirement, a drug rehabilitation requirement, an alcohol treatment requirement, an intoxicating substance treatment requirement or a drug treatment requirement unless the offender expresses his or her willingness to comply with the requirement as amended.

(3) If the offender fails to express his or her willingness to comply with one of those requirements as proposed to be amended by the court under this section, the court may —

(a) revoke the relevant order; and

(b) deal with the offender, for the offence in respect of which the order was made, in any way in which he or she could have been dealt with for that offence by the court which made the order if the order had not been made.

(4) In dealing with the offender under subsection (3)(b), the court must take into account the extent to which the offender has complied with the requirements of the relevant order.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.17]

544. Amendment of treatment requirements

(1) If the medical practitioner or other person by whom or under whose direction an offender is, pursuant to a mental health treatment requirement, a drug rehabilitation requirement, an alcohol treatment requirement, an intoxicating substance treatment requirement or a drug treatment requirement, being treated for a mental condition or for dependency on or a propensity to misuse drugs, alcohol or any other intoxicating substance —

(a) is of the opinion mentioned in subsection (2); or

(b) is for any reason unwilling to continue to treat or direct the treatment of the offender, the practitioner or other person must make a report in writing to that effect to the probation officer and that officer must apply under section 545 to the appropriate court for the variation or cancellation of the requirement.

(2) The opinion mentioned in subsection (1) is that —

(a) the treatment of the offender should be continued beyond the period specified in the relevant order;

(b) the offender needs different treatment;

(c) the offender is not susceptible to treatment; or

(d) the offender does not require further treatment.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.18]

545. Amendment in relation to review of drug rehabilitation requirement

If the probation officer is of the opinion that a relevant order imposing a drug rehabilitation requirement which is subject to review should be so amended as to provide for each subsequent periodic review required by section 522 (Periodic review of drug rehabilitation requirement) to be made without a hearing instead of at a review hearing, or vice versa, the officer must apply under section 543 to the court responsible for the order for the variation of the order.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.19]

546. Extension of order

(1) A court which imposes a community sentence may, on the application of the offender or the probation officer, amend the relevant order by substituting a later date for that specified under section 509(3).

(2) A date substituted under subsection (1) —

(a) may not fall outside the period of 6 months beginning with the date previously specified under section 509(3);

(b) subject to that, may fall more than 3 years after the date of the order.

(3) The power under subsection (1) may not be exercised in relation to an order if it has previously been exercised in relation to that order.

(4) A date substituted under subsection (1) is to be treated as having been specified in relation to the order under section 509(3).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.19A ins. by LASPO Act 2012 s.66]

547. Extension of unpaid work requirement

If —

(a) a relevant order imposing an unpaid work requirement is in force in respect of any offender; and

(b) on the application of the offender or the probation officer, it appears to the appropriate court that it would be in the interests of justice to do so, having regard to circumstances which have arisen since the order was made, the court may extend the period of 12 months specified in section 510.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.20]

Powers of court following subsequent conviction

548. Powers of Magistrate's Court or Summary Court following subsequent conviction

(1) This paragraph applies if —

(a) an offender in respect of whom a relevant order made by the Magistrates' Court is in force is convicted of an offence by the Magistrate's Court; or

(b) an offender in respect of whom a relevant order made by the Summary Court is in force is convicted of an offence by the Summary Court; and

(c) it appears to either court that it would be in the interests of justice to exercise its powers under this section, having regard to circumstances which have arisen since the order was made.

(2) The respective court may —

(a) revoke the relevant order; or

(b) both —

(i) revoke the order; and

(ii) deal with the offender, for the offence in respect of which the order was made, in any way in which the offender could have been dealt with for that offence by the court which made the order if the order had not been made.

(3) In dealing with an offender under subsection (2)(b), the respective court must take into account the extent to which the offender has complied with the requirements of the order.

(4) A person sentenced under subsection (2)(b) for an offence may appeal to the Supreme Court against the sentence.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.21]

549. Powers when relevant order made by Supreme Court

(1) If an offender in respect of whom a relevant order made by the Supreme Court is in force is convicted of an offence by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, that court may commit the offender in custody or on bail to appear before the Supreme Court.

(2) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court deals with an offender under subsection (1), it must send to the Supreme Court all particulars of the case that the Senior Magistrate considers appropriate, or (as the case may be) that the justices of the peace consider appropriate.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.22]

550. Powers of Supreme Court following subsequent conviction

(1) This section applies if —

(a) an offender in respect of whom a relevant order is in force —

(i) is convicted of an offence by the Supreme Court; or

(ii) appears before the Supreme Court by virtue of section 549; and

(b) it appears to the Supreme Court that it would be in the interests of justice to exercise its powers under this section, having regard to circumstances which have arisen since the order was made.

(2) The Supreme Court may —

(a) revoke the relevant order; or

(b) both —

(i) revoke the order; and

(ii) deal with the offender, for the offence in respect of which the order was made, in any way in which the offender could have been dealt with for that offence by the court which made the order if the order had not been made.

(3) In dealing with an offender under subsection (2)(b), the Supreme Court must take into account the extent to which the offender has complied with the requirements of the order.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.23]

Supplementary

551. Restrictions on imposing community sentences

(1) A court must not pass a community sentence on an offender unless it is of the opinion that for the offence, or the combination of the offence and one or more offences associated with it, a community sentence is the most appropriate sentence in the circumstances of the case.

(2) If a court imposes a relevant order —

(a) the particular requirement or requirements forming part of the order must be such as, in the opinion of the court, is, or taken together are, the most suitable for the offender; and

(b) the restrictions on liberty imposed by the order must be such as in the opinion of the court are commensurate with the seriousness of the offence, or the combination of the offence and one or more offences associated with it.

(3) In determining the restrictions on liberty to be imposed by a relevant order in respect of an offence, the court may have regard to any period for which the offender has been remanded in custody in connection with the offence or any other offence the charge for which was founded on the same facts or evidence.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.148 and 149]

552. No relevant order to be made while appeal pending

(1) Subject to subsection (2), no application in respect of a relevant order may be made under any of sections 542 to 547 while an appeal against the order is pending.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to an application under section 544 which —

(a) relates to a mental health treatment requirement, a drug rehabilitation requirement, an alcohol treatment requirement, an intoxicating substance treatment requirement or a drug treatment requirement; and

(b) is made by the probation officer with the consent of the offender.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.24]

553. Issue of summons or warrant under certain sections

(1) Subject to subsection (2), if a court proposes to exercise its powers under any of sections 542 to 547 on the application of the probation officer, the court —

(a) must summon the offender to appear before the court; and

(b) if the offender does not appear in answer to the summons, may issue a warrant for his or her arrest.

(2) This section does not apply to an order cancelling a requirement of an order or reducing the period of any requirement, or substituting a new place for the one specified in the order.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.25]

554. Regulations

(1) The Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by regulations provide for —

- (a) the supervision of persons who are subject to relevant orders;
- (b) without limiting paragraph (a), the functions of the probation officer in relation to offenders subject to a relevant order;
- (c) the arrangements to be made by the probation officer or the Crown, as the case may be, for persons subject to unpaid work requirements to perform work and the performance of such work;
- (d) the attendance of persons subject to activity requirements at the places at which they are required to attend, including hours of attendance, reckoning days of attendance and the keeping of attendance records.

(2) Regulations made under subsection (1)(c) may, in particular, make provision —

- (a) limiting the number of hours of work to be done by a person on any one day;
- (b) as to the reckoning of hours worked and the keeping of work records; and
- (c) for the payment of travelling and other expenses in connection with the performance of work.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.222]

555. Hearing by Magistrate's Court or Summary Court

(1) This section applies to any hearing held by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court in relation to an offender in proceedings under this Part.

(2) The court may adjourn the hearing, and if it does so may —

- (a) direct that the offender be released forthwith; or
- (b) remand the offender.

(3) If the court remands the offender under subsection (2) —

- (a) it must fix the time and place at which the hearing is to be resumed; and
- (b) that time and place must be the time and place at which the offender is required to appear before the court by virtue of the remand.

(4) If the court adjourns the hearing under subsection (2) but does not remand the offender —

(a) it may fix the time and place at which the hearing is to be resumed;

(b) if it does not do so, it must not resume the hearing unless it is satisfied that the offender, the probation officer and, if the offender is a youth, a parent or guardian of the offender, have had adequate notice of the time and place for the resumed hearing.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.8 para.25A]

556. Power to provide for court review of relevant orders

The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision —

(a) enabling or requiring a court that makes a relevant order, or another court, to review the order periodically;

(b) enabling a court to amend a relevant order so as to include or remove a provision for review by a court; and

(c) for the timing and conduct of reviews and the powers of the court on a review.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.178]

557. Summary Court to deal with cases if Senior Magistrate absent, etc.

If under a provision of this Part the Supreme Court has ordered that a case is to be dealt with by the Magistrate's Court, the Summary Court may deal with the case if the Senior Magistrate is absent from the Falkland Islands or indisposed or for any other reason unable to deal with the case.

PART 26 – CUSTODIAL SENTENCES

Restrictions on custodial sentences

558. General restrictions on imposing discretionary custodial sentences

(1) This section applies if a person is convicted of an offence punishable with a custodial sentence other than one fixed by law.

(2) The court must not pass a custodial sentence unless it is of the opinion —

(a) that the offence, or the combination of the offence and one or more offences associated with it, was so serious that only such a sentence can be justified for the offence; or

(b) if the offence is a violent or sexual offence - that only such a sentence would be adequate to protect the public from serious harm from the offender.

(3) Nothing in subsection (2) prevents the court from passing a custodial sentence on an offender who fails to express willingness to comply with a requirement which is proposed by the court to be included in a non-custodial sentence and which requires an expression of such willingness.

(4) If a court passes a custodial sentence, it must —

(a) in a case not falling within subsection (3) - state in open court that it is of the opinion that subsection (2) applies and why it is of that opinion; and

(b) in any case - explain to the offender in open court and in ordinary language why it is passing a custodial sentence on him or her.

(5) The Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, must cause a reason stated by it under subsection (4) to be specified in the warrant of commitment and to be entered in the register.

(6) This section and section 559 are in addition to and do not derogate from the provisions of Part 33 as regards custodial sentences on persons under 21.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.31 (part); UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.79; Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.152]

559. Restriction on imposing custodial sentences on unrepresented first offenders

(1) A court must not pass a sentence of imprisonment on a person who was of or over 21 years of age at the date of conviction —

(a) on whom such a sentence has not previously been passed by a court in the Falkland Islands; and

(b) who is not legally represented, unless the court is of the opinion that no other method of dealing with the person is appropriate.

(2) For the purpose of determining whether any other method of dealing with any such person is appropriate the court must obtain and consider information about the circumstances, and must take into account any information before the court which is relevant to the person's character and physical and mental condition.

(3) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court passes a sentence of imprisonment on any such person as is mentioned in subsection (1), the court must —

(a) state the reason for its opinion that no other method of dealing with the person is appropriate; and

(b) cause the reason to be specified in the warrant of commitment and to be recorded on the court file relating to the proceedings in question.

(4) For the purposes of this section —

(a) a previous sentence of imprisonment which has been suspended and which has not taken effect under section 568 must be disregarded;

(b) “sentence of imprisonment” does not include a committal or attachment for contempt of court; and

(c) “legally represented” in relation to a person includes a person who is represented by a legal practitioner after conviction and before being sentenced, or who declined to apply for or accept legal aid for that purpose, or who had legal aid withdrawn because of his or her conduct.

(5) Subsection (1) does not affect the power of the court to pass sentence on any person for an offence the sentence for which is fixed by law.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.3; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.83 adapted]

560. Pre-sentence report for purposes of section 559

(1) Subject to subsection (2), the court must wherever reasonably practicable obtain a pre-sentence report for the purpose of determining under section 559(1) whether there is any appropriate method of dealing with an offender other than imprisonment.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply if in the circumstances of the case, the court is of the opinion that it is unnecessary to obtain a pre-sentence report.

(3) If a court, without first obtaining a pre-sentence report, passes a sentence of imprisonment on a person to whom section 559(1) applies, it must state in open court the reason why it was not reasonably practicable or it was unnecessary to obtain such a report.

(4) A court which states a reason as required by subsection (3) must cause that reason to be specified in the warrant of commitment and in the court file relating to the proceedings.

(5) A sentence is not invalidated by the failure of a court to comply with subsection (1), but an appellate court on appeal from that court must obtain a pre-sentence report if it is reasonably practicable to do so and if none was obtained by the court below, unless the appellate court is of the opinion that in the circumstances of the case it is unnecessary to do so.

(6) In determining whether it should deal with the offender otherwise than by passing a sentence of imprisonment, the appellate court must consider any pre-sentence report obtained by it or by the court below.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.32; UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.156 (part)]

561. Length of discretionary custodial sentences

If a court passes a custodial sentence other than one fixed by law, the custodial sentence must be for the shortest term (not exceeding the permitted maximum) that in the opinion of the court is commensurate with the seriousness of the offence, or the combination of the offence and one or more offences associated with it.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.153]

562. Liability to imprisonment if period not specified

(1) If a person is convicted of an offence against any enactment and is for that offence liable to be sentenced to imprisonment, but the sentence is not by any enactment either limited to a specified term or expressed to extend to imprisonment for life, the person so convicted is liable to imprisonment for not more than 2 years.

(2) If a person is convicted of an offence contrary to common law, the person so convicted is liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years or to a fine not exceeding the maximum of level 6 on the standard scale or to both such imprisonment and fine.

(3) A person shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed not to have been convicted of an offence contrary to common law unless the person was convicted on a charge, summons, information or indictment alleging that the person committed that offence contrary to common law.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.30; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.77 adapted]

Duration of sentences

563. Duration of sentences of imprisonment

(1) Subject to this Part and any other enactment to the contrary, every sentence of imprisonment is deemed to commence from and to include the whole of the day on which it was pronounced.

(2) If a sentence of imprisonment for an offence is passed on a person who has been in custody under an order of a court made in connection with the proceedings for that offence, the length of the sentence is to be reduced by the period during which the person was in custody.

(3) The length of sentence is also to be reduced by the time for which the offender was in police detention in connection with the offence.

(4) If a sentence of imprisonment for an offence is passed on a person who was previously subject to a probation order, an order for conditional discharge or a suspended sentence in respect of that offence, any period of custody falling before the order was made or suspended sentence passed is to be disregarded for the purposes of this section.

(5) For the purposes of this section, but subject to subsections (6) and (7) as regards partly suspended sentences, a suspended sentence is to be treated as a sentence of imprisonment when it takes effect under section 568 and as being imposed by the order under which it takes effect.

(6) If a person is sentenced to imprisonment with an order under section 566(1), subsection (4) of this section —

(a) operates to reduce the part of the sentence required to be served in prison;

(b) operates to reduce the whole period of the sentence for the purposes of section 566(6);
but

(c) does not operate to reduce any part of the sentence which is ordered under section 566(1) to be held in suspense.

(7) If —

(a) an offender has been sentenced to imprisonment with an order under section 566(1) and has been released from prison after serving part of the sentence; and

(b) an order is subsequently made restoring part of the sentence,

the restored part —

(i) is for the purposes of this section deemed to be a sentence of imprisonment imposed by the order restoring it; but

(ii) is not to be reduced by a period spent in custody by the offender before the original sentence was passed.

(8) A reference in this Ordinance or any other enactment to the length of any sentence of imprisonment is, unless the context otherwise requires, a reference to the sentence pronounced by the court and not the sentence as reduced by this section.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.95; UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.240 to 242 adapted]

564. Time in custody pending appeal

(1) If on appeal the Court of Appeal or the Supreme Court, as the case may be, makes an order which has the effect of requiring a person to commence or resume a sentence of imprisonment —

(a) any time during which the person has been at liberty, whether on bail or otherwise, after the sentence was first passed does not count as part of the sentence;

(b) the sentence is deemed to commence or, if the person has already served part of the sentence, to be resumed on the day on which the person is first received into prison after the making of the order.

(2) Subsection (1) is in addition to, and does not derogate from, the any provision of this Ordinance relating to bail on an appeal.

(3) The time during which an appellant is in custody pending the determination of his or her appeal to the Supreme Court or to the Court of Appeal is, subject to any direction to the contrary by the court hearing the appeal, to be reckoned as part of the term of any sentence to which he or she is for the time being subject.

(4) The Supreme Court or Court of Appeal respectively must not give a contrary direction under subsection (3) if the court has granted a certificate under section 3 of the Court of Appeal Ordinance or has given leave to appeal under that section.

(5) If a court gives a contrary direction under subsection (3) it must state its reasons.
[Gibraltar Criminal Procedure Act s.178 adapted; SH CPE Bill]

Suspended sentences

565. Suspended sentences of imprisonment

(1) A court which passes a sentence of imprisonment, or a sentence of detention on a young offender, for a term of not more than 2 years for an offence may order that the sentence or any part of it is not to take effect unless —

(a) during the period specified in the order, being at least one year but not more than 2 years from the date of the order (in this Part referred to as “the operational period”), the offender commits in the Falkland Islands another offence punishable with imprisonment; and

(b) thereafter a court having power to do so under section 569 orders under section 568 that the original sentence is to take effect.

(2) A court must not deal with an offender by means of a suspended sentence unless the case appears to the court to be one in which a sentence of imprisonment would have been appropriate in the absence of any power to suspend such a sentence by an order under subsection (1).

(3) On passing a suspended sentence the court must explain to the offender in ordinary language his or her liability under section 568 if during the operational period he or she commits an offence punishable with imprisonment.

(4) Subject to any provision to the contrary contained in this or any other Ordinance, a suspended sentence which has not taken effect under section 568 is to be treated as a sentence of imprisonment for the purposes of all enactments, except any enactment which provides for disqualification for or loss of office, or forfeiture of pensions, of persons sentenced to imprisonment.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.45 (part); Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.118]

566. Partly suspended sentences

(1) Subject to subsection (2), if a court passes on an adult a sentence of imprisonment for a term of not less than 3 months and not more than 2 years, it may order that, after the person has served part of the sentence in prison, the remainder of it is to be held in suspense.

(2) A court must not make an order under subsection (1) unless the case appears to the court to be one in which an order under section 565 would not be appropriate.

(3) Subsection (2) does not affect section 558 as regards restrictions on custodial sentences.

(4) The part of the sentence to be served in prison must be not less than 28 days and the part to be held in suspense must be not less than one-quarter of the whole term.

(5) The offender must not be required to serve the part of the sentence held in suspense unless it is restored under subsection (6); and this must be explained to the offender by the court, using ordinary language and stating the substantial effect of that subsection.

(6) If at any time after the making of the order the offender is convicted of an offence punishable with imprisonment and committed during the whole period of the original sentence, then, subject to subsections (7) and (8) a court which is competent under this subsection may restore the part of the sentence held in suspense and order the offender to serve it.

(7) If a court, considering the offender's case with a view to exercising the powers in subsection (6), is of opinion that (in view of all the circumstances, including the facts of the subsequent offence) it would be unjust to restore the part of the sentence held in suspense, it must either restore a lesser part or declare, with reasons given, its decision to make no order under that subsection.

(8) If an order restoring part of a sentence has been made under subsection (6), no order restoring any further part of it may be made.

(9) If a court restores part of a sentence under subsection (6), it may direct that the restored part of the original sentence is to take effect as a term to be served either immediately or on the expiration of another term of imprisonment passed on the offender by that or another court.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.45 (part)]

567. Partly suspended sentences: Supplementary

(1) If an offender is convicted by the Magistrate's Court or by the Summary Court of an offence punishable with imprisonment and the court is satisfied that the offence was committed during the whole period of a sentence passed by the Supreme Court with an order under section 566(1)—

(a) the court may, if it thinks fit, commit the offender in custody or on bail to the Supreme Court; and

(b) if it does not, it must give written notice of the conviction to the Registrar.

(2) If it appears to a judge, the Senior Magistrate or a justice of the peace, respectively having jurisdiction under subsection (3), that —

(a) an offender has been convicted in the Falkland Islands of an offence punishable with imprisonment and committed during the whole period of a sentence passed with an order under section 566(1); and

(b) the offender has not been dealt with in respect of the part of the sentence held in suspense, the judge, Senior Magistrate or justice, as the case may be, may issue a summons requiring the offender to appear at the place and time specified therein, or may issue a warrant for the arrest of the offender.

(3) Jurisdiction for the purposes of subsection (2) may be exercised —

(a) if the sentence was passed by the Supreme Court - by a judge or the Senior Magistrate;

(b) if it was passed by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court - by the Senior Magistrate or a justice of the peace.

(4) A summons or warrant issued under this section must direct the offender to appear or to be brought before the court by which the original sentence of imprisonment was passed.

(5) If the offender is before the Supreme Court with a view to the exercise by that court of its powers under section 566(6), any question whether and, if so, when the person has been convicted of an offence is to be determined by the judge and not by the verdict of a jury.

(6) If the offender has been before a court with a view to its exercising the powers under section 566(6), the appropriate officer must —

(a) if the court decided not to exercise the powers - record that fact; and

(b) whether or not it exercised them, notify the appropriate officer of the court which passed the original sentence as to the manner in which the offender was dealt with.

(7) For the purposes of any enactment conferring rights of appeal in criminal cases, the restoration by a court under section 566(6) of a part of a sentence held in suspense is to be treated as a sentence passed on the offender by that court for the original offence, that is to say the offence for which the original sentence was passed with an order under section 566(1).

(8) If a sentence of imprisonment is passed with an order under subsection (1) —

(a) the sentence is still to be regarded for all purposes as a sentence of imprisonment for the term stated by the court even though part of it is held in suspense by virtue of the order;

(b) a sentence of which part is held in suspense by virtue of such an order is not to be regarded as falling within the expression "suspended sentence" for the purposes of any legislation, instrument or document.

(9) If an offender is sentenced to imprisonment with an order under section 566(1) and, having served part of the sentence in prison, is discharged by virtue of having received remission for industry and good conduct, the remainder of the sentence being held in suspense, the sentence is not to be regarded as having expired.

(10) In this section and sections 563 and 566, “the whole period” of a sentence is the time which the offender would have had to serve in prison if —

(a) the sentence had been passed without an order under subsection (1); and

(b) the offender had no remission of imprisonment for good conduct in prison under the relevant law.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.45 (part) and Schedule 2 (part)]

568. Powers of court on conviction for further offence

(1) If —

(a) a person is convicted of an offence punishable with imprisonment which was committed during the operational period of a suspended sentence; and

(b) the person is so convicted by or before a court having power under section 569 to deal with the person in respect of the suspended sentence, or subsequently appears or is brought before such a court, that court must consider the case and, subject to subsection (2) order that the suspended sentence (or the part of it which has not already been served, as the case may be) is to take effect with the original term unaltered.

(2) If the court is of the opinion that, in view of all the circumstances which have arisen since the suspended sentence was passed, including the facts of the subsequent offence, it would be unjust to make an order referred to in subsection (1), the court must state its reasons for that opinion and may —

(a) order that the sentence is to take effect with the substitution of a lesser term for the original term;

(b) by order vary the original order made under section 565(1) by extending the operational period by a further period expiring not later than 2 years from the date of the variation; or

(c) make no order with respect to the suspended sentence.

(3) If a court orders that a suspended sentence is to take effect, with or without any variation of the original term, the court may order that the sentence is to take effect immediately or that it is to commence at the expiration of another term of imprisonment passed on the offender by that or another court.

(4) In proceedings for dealing with an offender in respect of a suspended sentence which take place before the Supreme Court, any question whether the offender has been convicted of an offence punishable with imprisonment committed during the operational period of the suspended sentence must be determined by the judge and not by a jury.

(5) If a court deals with an offender under this section in respect of a suspended sentence, the appropriate officer of the court must notify the appropriate officer of the court which passed the sentence of the method adopted.

(6) If on consideration of the case of an offender a court makes no order with respect to a suspended sentence, the appropriate officer of the court must record that fact.

(7) For the purposes of any enactment conferring rights of appeal in criminal cases, an order made by a court with respect to a suspended sentence is to be treated as a sentence passed on the offender by that court for the offence for which the suspended sentence was passed.

(8) If a suspended sentence has taken effect under this section, the offender is to be treated as having been convicted on the date on which the period allowed for making an appeal against an order under this section expires or, if such an appeal is made, the date on which it is finally disposed of or abandoned or fails for non-prosecution.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.46; Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.119]

569. Court by which suspended sentence may be dealt with

(1) An offender may be dealt with in respect of a suspended sentence or a partly suspended sentence —

(a) by the Supreme Court, irrespective of the court by which the suspended sentence or partly suspended sentence was passed;

(b) by the Magistrate's Court, if the suspended sentence or partly suspended sentence was passed by the Magistrate's Court or by the Summary Court;

(c) by the Summary Court if the suspended sentence or partly suspended sentence was passed by that court.

(2) If an offender is convicted by the Magistrate's Court or by the Summary Court of an offence punishable with imprisonment and the court is satisfied that the offence was committed during the operational period of a suspended sentence or partly suspended sentence passed by the Supreme Court, the court must commit the offender in custody or on bail to the Supreme Court.

(3) For the purposes of this section and of section 570 a suspended sentence passed on an offender on appeal is to be treated as having been passed by the court by which the person was originally sentenced.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.47 and Schedule 2 (part); Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.120 adapted]

570. Procedure if convicting court does not deal with suspended sentence

(1) If it appears to a judge, the Senior Magistrate or a justice of the peace that an offender —

(a) has been convicted in the Falkland Islands of an offence punishable with imprisonment committed during the operational period of a suspended sentence; and

(b) has not been dealt with in respect of the suspended sentence, the judge, Senior Magistrate or justice may, subject to the following subsections, issue a summons requiring the offender to appear at the place and time specified in the summons, or may issue a warrant for the arrest of the offender.

(2) A justice of the peace must not —

(a) issue a summons under this section except on information;

(b) issue a warrant under this section except on information in writing and on oath.

(3) A summons or warrant issued under this section must direct the offender to appear or to be brought before the court by which the suspended sentence was passed.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.48 simplified; Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.121 adapted]

571. Suspended sentence supervision orders

(1) If a court passes on an offender a suspended sentence for a term of more than 6 months for a single offence, the court may make a suspended sentence supervision order (in this Part referred to as a “supervision order”) placing the offender under the supervision of a probation officer for a period specified in the order, being a period not exceeding the operational period of the suspended sentence.

(2) A supervision order may require the offender to comply during the whole or any part of the supervision period with conditions that the court, having regard to the circumstances of the case, considers necessary or appropriate for promoting the rehabilitation of the offender, securing his or her good conduct and preventing a repetition by the offender of the same offence or the commission of other offences.

(3) The conditions that may be attached to a supervision order include complying with one or more requirements falling within sections 510 to 527 and specified in the order.

(4) The conditions may include an electronic monitoring order only if the requirements for such an order as set out in section 527 are met.

(5) Sections 532 to 534 and 543 to 545 apply, with necessary modifications, to a supervision order made under this section as they apply to a community order made under section 509.

(6) An offender in respect of whom a supervision order is in force must —

(a) keep in touch with the probation officer in accordance with any instructions given from time to time by that officer;

(b) comply with any conditions imposed under subsection (2); and

(c) notify the probation officer of any change of address.

(7) The court by which a supervision order is made must on making the order give copies of it to the probation officer, who must give a copy to the offender.

(8) A supervision order ceases to have effect if before the end of the period specified in it —

(a) a court orders under section 568(3) that a suspended sentence passed in the proceedings in which the order was made is to have effect; or

(b) the order is discharged or replaced under the following provisions of this section.

(9) A supervision order may be discharged, on the application of the probation officer or the offender —

(a) if it was made by the Supreme Court and includes a direction reserving the power of discharging it to that court - by the Supreme Court;

(b) if it was made by the Supreme Court and does not include a direction of the kind referred to in paragraph (a) - by the Magistrate's Court;

(c) if it was made by the Magistrate's Court - by the Magistrate's Court;

(d) if it was made by the Summary Court - by the Summary Court.

(10) If under section 568(2) a court deals with an offender in respect of a suspended sentence by varying the operational period of the sentence or by making no order with respect to the sentence, the court may make a supervision order in respect of the offender —

(a) in place of any such order made when the suspended sentence was passed; or

(b) if the court which passed the sentence could have made such an order but did not do so.

(11) On making a supervision order the court must in ordinary language explain its effect to the offender.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.49; Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.122; Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.189 and 190]

572. Breach of suspended sentence supervision order

(1) If it appears to a judge, the Senior Magistrate or a justice of the peace that at any time while a supervision order is in force in respect of an offender the offender has failed to comply with any of the requirements of section 571(3), the judge, Senior Magistrate or justice may, subject to the following subsections, issue a summons requiring the offender to appear at the place and time specified in it, or may issue a warrant for the arrest of the offender.

(2) A justice of the peace must not —

(a) issue a summons under this section except on information;

(b) issue a warrant under this section except on information in writing and on oath.

(3) A summons or warrant issued under this section must direct the offender to appear or to be brought before the court by which the suspended sentence was passed.

(4) If it is proved to the satisfaction of the court before which an offender appears or is brought under this section that the offender has failed without reasonable cause to comply with any of the requirements of section 571(3), the court may deal with the offender as if he or she were in breach of a relevant order under section 539 or 540, as the case may be, but subject to section 541 and with necessary modifications.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.50; Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.123 and Sched.8 by analogy]

Consecutive sentences

573. Consecutive sentences: General

(1) If a court imposes 2 or more custodial sentences for 2 or more offences on the same indictment or information, the court may order the sentences to run concurrently or consecutively.

(2) If a court imposes a custodial sentence on a person who is already serving a custodial sentence for another offence, the court may order the sentence for the subsequent offence to commence at the expiration of the first sentence, even if the total term of a custodial sentence exceeds the term for which the person can be sentenced for either offence on its own.

(3) In deciding whether to impose a consecutive sentence, the court must have regard to the following principles —

(a) consecutive sentences should not normally be imposed in respect of offences arising out of the same event;

(b) the total custodial sentence must not be excessive, having regard to the nature of the offences and the circumstances of the offender;

(c) a custodial sentence on a person under 21 must not exceed 24 months in total, as provided by section 726(4);

(d) life imprisonment should not run consecutively to an existing determinate sentence;

(e) consecutive sentences will be treated as separate sentences for the purpose of release on licence.

(4) A court in deciding whether to impose concurrent or consecutive sentences must also have regard to any limit upon sentencing imposed on the Summary Court by Part 11 (Criminal Jurisdiction), to any sentencing guidelines published under section 485 and to any practice direction issued by the Chief Justice in that regard.

[Gibraltar Criminal Procedure Act s.174; SH CPE Bill; Common law]

574. Consecutive sentences: Partly suspended sentences

(1) This section applies if —

- (a) an offender is serving consecutive sentences of imprisonment; and
- (b) at least one of the sentences was passed with an order under section 566(1).

(2) Where this paragraph applies the offender must, so far as the consecutive sentences are concerned, be treated for the purposes of —

- (a) computing the date when he or she should be released from prison; and
- (b) calculating the term of imprisonment liable to be restored under section 566(6), as if the offender had been sentenced to a single term of imprisonment with an order under section 566(1) of which the part which the offender is immediately required to serve in prison were the aggregate —

- (i) of the part which the offender is required to serve in prison of any consecutive sentence passed with an order under section 566(1); and
- (ii) of the whole term of any other consecutive sentences, and of which the part which is held in suspense were the aggregate of all parts of the sentences which were ordered to be held in suspense under that section.

(3) Section 567(10) has effect, in relation to any consecutive sentence passed with an order under section 566(1), as if for the words following the word “prison” there were substituted the words “if —

- (a) none of the sentences to which the offender is subject had been passed with an order under section 566(1); and
- (b) the offender had not had, in respect of any sentence passed with such an order, any remission for industry and good conduct in prison.”

(4) In this section “a consecutive sentence” means a sentence which is one of 2 or more sentences of imprisonment the terms of which have been ordered to run consecutively.

[Criminal Justice Ord. Schedule 2 (part)]

Extended sentences

575. Punishment of persistent offenders

(1) If —

- (a) a person is convicted by the Supreme Court or by the Magistrate's Court of an offence punishable with imprisonment for a term of 2 years or more;
- (b) the conditions specified in subsection (3) are satisfied; and
- (c) the court is satisfied, because of the offender's previous conduct and the likelihood of his or her committing further offences, that it is expedient to protect the public from the offender for a substantial time, the court may impose an extended term of imprisonment under this section.

(2) The extended term which may be imposed under this section for any offence —

- (a) may exceed the maximum term authorised for the offence apart from this section if the maximum so authorised is less than 10 years; but
- (b) must not exceed 10 years if the maximum so authorised is less than 10 years nor exceed 5 years if the maximum so authorised is less than 5 years.

(3) The conditions referred in subsection (1) are —

- (a) the offence was committed before the expiration of 3 years from the previous conviction of an offence punishable with imprisonment for 2 years or more or from the offender's final release from prison after serving a sentence of imprisonment passed on such a conviction;
- (b) the offender has been convicted on at least 3 previous occasions since attaining the age of 21 of offences punishable with imprisonment for 2 years or more; and
- (c) the total length of the sentences of imprisonment to which the offender was sentenced on those occasions was not less than 5 years.

(4) If an extended term of imprisonment is imposed on an offender under this section, the court must issue a certificate (in this Part referred to as an "extended sentence certificate") stating that the term was so imposed.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.51]

576. Persistent offenders: Supplementary

(1) For the purposes of section 575(3)(a) a certificate purporting to be signed by the Chief Police Officer to the effect —

- (a) that a prisoner was finally released from prison on a date specified in the certificate after serving a sentence so specified; or

(b) that a prisoner had not been finally released from prison on a date so specified after serving a sentence so specified, is evidence of the matter so certified.

(2) For the purposes of section 575(3)(b) a person who has been convicted by the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court of an offence punishable on conviction with imprisonment for 2 years or more and sentenced for that offence by the Supreme Court, or on appeal from the Supreme Court, to imprisonment, is to be treated as if convicted of that offence by the Supreme Court.

(3) For the purpose of determining whether the conditions specified in section 575(3) are satisfied in relation to an offender no account is to be taken of any previous conviction or sentence unless notice has been given to the offender at least 3 days before the later sentence is passed that it is intended to prove the previous conviction or sentence to the court.

(4) For the purposes of subsection (3) a certificate purporting to be signed by a police officer that a copy of a notice annexed to the certificate was given to an offender is evidence that it was so given and of the contents of the notice.

(5) In this section and in section 575 "final release" includes a release pursuant to the provisions of section 71(1) of the Constitution (Power of pardon, etc.), but does not include any temporary discharge from prison whether under section 71(1) of the Constitution or otherwise.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.52]

Life sentences

577. Recommendation as to minimum term

(1) If a person is sentenced to a mandatory life sentence for an offence, the court must state the minimum term that the court recommends the person should serve in prison, by reference to the starting points specified in the following subsections.

(2) If —

(a) the court considers that the seriousness of the offence (or the combination of the offence and one or more offences associated with it) is exceptionally high; and

(b) the offender was aged 21 or over when he or she committed the offence, the appropriate starting point is 40 years.

(3) Cases that would normally fall within subsection (2)(a) include —

(a) the murder of 2 or more persons, where each murder involves any of the following —

(i) a substantial degree of premeditation or planning;

(ii) the abduction of the victim; or

(iii) sexual or sadistic conduct;

(b) the murder of a person under the age of 18 if it involves the abduction of the person or sexual or sadistic motivation;

(c) a murder done for the purpose of advancing a political, religious or ideological cause, or

(d) a murder by an offender previously convicted of murder.

(4) If —

(a) the case does not fall within subsection (3) but the court considers that the seriousness of the offence (or the combination of the offence and one or more offences associated with it) is particularly high; and

(b) the offender was aged 18 or over when he or she committed the offence, the appropriate starting point, in determining the minimum term, is 30 years.

(5) Cases not falling within subsection (3) that would normally fall within subsection (4) include—

(a) the murder of a police officer or prison officer in the course of duty;

(b) a murder involving the use of a firearm or explosive;

(c) a murder done for gain (such as a murder done in the course or furtherance of robbery or burglary, done for payment or done in the expectation of gain as a result of the death);

(d) a murder intended to obstruct or interfere with the course of justice;

(e) a murder involving sexual or sadistic conduct;

(f) the murder of 2 or more persons;

(g) a murder that is racially or religiously aggravated; or

(h) a murder falling within subsection (3) committed by an offender who was aged under 21 when he or she committed the offence.

(6) If the offender was aged 18 or over when he or she committed the offence and the case does not fall within subsection (3) or (5), the appropriate starting point, in determining the minimum term, is 15 years.

(7) If the offender was aged under 18 when he or she committed the offence, the appropriate starting point, in determining the minimum term, is 12 years.

(8) In this section, “life sentence” means —

(a) a sentence of imprisonment for life; or

(b) a sentence of detention during Her Majesty’s pleasure as provided in Part 33 (Young Offenders and Youth Protection).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.269 adapted; s. 277 and Sched.21 (part)]

578. Aggravating and mitigating factors

(1) Once a court has chosen a starting point for a minimum term pursuant to section 577, the court must take into account any aggravating or mitigating factors, to the extent that it has not allowed for them in its choice of starting point.

(2) Detailed consideration of aggravating or mitigating factors may result in a minimum term of any length (whatever the starting point), or in the making of an order under section 577(2).

(3) Aggravating factors (additional to those mentioned in section 577(3) or (5)) that may be relevant to the offence of murder include —

(a) a significant degree of planning or premeditation;

(b) the fact that the victim was particularly vulnerable because of age or disability;

(c) mental or physical suffering inflicted on the victim before death;

(d) the abuse of a position of trust;

(e) the use of duress or threats against another person to facilitate the commission of the offence;

(f) the fact that the victim was providing a public service or performing a public duty, and

(g) concealment, destruction or dismemberment of the body.

(4) Mitigating factors that may be relevant to the offence of murder include —

(a) an intention to cause serious bodily harm rather than to kill;

(b) lack of premeditation;

(c) the fact that the offender suffered from any abnormality of mental functioning which, although not falling within section 48 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014, (Diminished responsibility) lowered his or her degree of culpability;

- (d) the fact that the offender was provoked (for example, by prolonged stress);
- (e) the fact that the offender acted to any extent in self-defence or in fear of violence;
- (f) a belief by the offender that the murder was an act of mercy; and
- (g) the age of the offender.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sched.21 (part)]

579. Duty to give reasons

(1) A court making a recommendation under section 577 must state in open court, in ordinary language, its reasons for deciding on the order made.

(2) In stating its reasons the court must, in particular state —

- (a) which of the starting points in that section it has chosen and its reasons for doing so; and
- (b) its reasons for any departure from that starting point.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.270 adapted]

Release of prisoners on licence

580. Advisory Committee's functions in relation to release of prisoners on licence

(1) In addition to its functions under section 71 of the Constitution, the Advisory Committee on the Prerogative of Mercy has the function of advising the Governor, if the Governor so requests or this Part so requires, about —

- (a) the release of persons on licence under section 581 or 582, and the recall of persons under section 583;
- (b) the conditions to be attached to any such licence and the variation or cancellation of any such conditions; and
- (c) any other matter referred to it by the Governor relating to the release on licence or recall of persons pursuant to sections 581 to 584.

(2) If a case is referred to the Advisory Committee by the Governor, the Committee must deal with it on consideration of documents that are to be given to it by the Governor, any reports that it has called for, and any information whether oral or in writing that it has obtained.

(3) If in any particular case the Advisory Committee thinks it necessary to interview the person to whom the case relates before reaching a decision, the Committee —

- (a) may request one of its members to interview the person; and
- (b) must take into account the report of that interview by that member.

(4) The documents to be given by the Governor to the Advisory Committee under subsection (2) include —

(a) if the case is one of release under section 581 or 582 - any written representations made by the person to whom the case relates since his or her last interview;

(b) if the case relates to a person recalled under section 583 - any written representation made under that section.

(5) Without affecting subsections (2) to (4), the Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by rules provide for the exercise by the Advisory Committee of its functions under this Ordinance, including, but not limited to, provision authorising cases to be dealt with by a prescribed number of members of the Committee.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.90 modified]

581. Release on licence of persons serving determinate sentences

(1) The Governor, after consulting the Advisory Committee, may release on licence a person serving a sentence of imprisonment, other than imprisonment for life, or serving a sentence of detention, after the person has served not less than one-third of the sentence or 12 months, whichever expires the later.

(2) If a sentence of imprisonment for an offence has been passed on a person with an order under section 566(1) (Partly suspended sentence) and the offender has not been released from prison since the sentence for the offence was passed, the only portion of that sentence that is to be taken into account for the purposes of subsection (1) of this section is any portion of it that the offender is required to serve in prison under section 566(1) or (6).

(3) If a sentence has been partly suspended and the offender is released from prison but part of the sentence for the offence is subsequently restored under section 566(6), the offender must be treated for the purpose of subsection (1) of this section as if the only sentence for the offence were the part of the sentence so restored.

(4) A person whose sentence falls to be reduced under section 582 is, for the purpose of determining under subsection (2) of this section whether the person has served one-third of the sentence, to be treated as if any period spent in custody and taken into account under that section were included in the sentence and as if the person had served that period as part of that sentence.

(5) Without affecting any earlier release under subsection (1) of this section, the Governor, after consulting the Advisory Committee, may direct that a person who is serving a sentence of imprisonment and in respect of whom an extended sentence certificate under section 575(4) was issued when the sentence was passed is, instead of being granted remission of any part of the sentence under the Prison Regulations made under the Prison Ordinance, to be released on licence at a specified time on or after the day on which the person could have been discharged from prison if the remission had been granted.

(6) A person subject to a licence granted under this section must comply with any conditions specified in the licence.

(7) Every custodial sentence of more than 12 months imposed on a person that is being served in the Falkland Islands must be brought up to the Governor for review under this section after the person has served one-third of the sentence.

(8) The Governor —

(a) must consult the Advisory Committee before including on the release of a person, or subsequently inserting, a condition in a licence relating to that person, or varying or cancelling any such condition;

(b) is deemed to have consulted the Advisory Committee on a proposal to include, insert, vary or cancel a condition in any case if the Governor has consulted that Committee on the implementation of proposals of that description generally or in that class of case.

(9) A licence granted to any person under this section, unless previously revoked under section 583, remains in force until a date specified in the licence being —

(a) in the case of a licence granted to a person in respect of whom an extended sentence certificate was issued under section 575(4) when sentence was passed - the date of the expiration of the sentence; and

(b) in any other case - the remission date.

(10) In this section, “the remission date”, in relation to a person released on licence under this section, means the date on which the person could have been discharged from prison on remission of part of his or her sentence under the Prison Regulations, if, after the date of the release on licence, the person has not forfeited remission on any part of the sentence under those Regulations.

(11) This section is in addition to, and does not derogate from, section 29 of the Prison Ordinance which provides for remission of sentence after the expiry of two-thirds of the period.

[Criminal Justice Ord.s.91 modified]

582. Release on licence of persons sentenced to imprisonment for life, etc.

(1) Subject to subsection (2), the Governor, after consulting the Advisory Committee, may release on licence a person serving a sentence of imprisonment for life or custody for life or a person detained under section 730.

(2) In the case of a person sentenced to life imprisonment for murder, or to detention during Her Majesty’s pleasure or for life, the Governor must not release the person until after the minimum period recommended under section 577 has expired, and only after consulting the Advisory Committee.

(3) Subsections (5) to (10) of section 581 apply in relation to the release of a person on licence under this section as they apply in relation to the release of a person on licence under that section.

(4) A licence granted under this section to any person sentenced under Part 33 (Young Offenders and Youth protection) to be detained otherwise than for life, unless previously revoked under section 583, remains in force until a date specified in the licence, being the date of the expiration of the sentence.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.92 modified]

583. Revocation of licences and recall of prisoners on licence

(1) The Governor may at any time revoke a licence granted to a person under section 581 or 582 and recall the person to prison.

(2) A person recalled to prison under subsection (1) —

(a) may make representations in writing in respect of the revocation, with the assistance of a legal practitioner at the person's own expense or with legal aid if provided; and

(b) must on return to prison be informed of the reasons for the recall and of the right to make such representations.

(3) If a person recalled to prison under subsection (1) makes representations under subsection (2)—

(a) the Governor must refer the case to the Advisory Committee; and

(b) if the Committee recommends the immediate release on licence of the person, the Governor must consider the recommendation and, if he or she considers it appropriate again to release the person under section 581(1), may do so.

(4) If a person subject to a licence under section 581 or 582 is convicted of any offence punishable on conviction by imprisonment for a period of 12 months or more, then, except in a case to which subsection (5) of this section applies, the court by which the person is convicted, or a court to which the person is committed for sentence, may, whether or not it passes any other sentence, revoke the licence.

(5) A licence under section 581 or 582 is deemed to be revoked if —

(a) the offender was —

(i) sentenced to imprisonment with an order under section 566(1) (Partly suspended sentence); and

(ii) released on licence before the expiration of any part of the sentence which the offender was required to serve in prison under section 566(1); and

(b) by virtue of section 566(6) a court restores any part of the sentence held in suspense, and subsection (6) of this section applies to the offender accordingly.

(6) On the revocation of the licence of a person under this section, the person —

(a) is liable to be detained pursuant to the sentence; and

(b) if at large, is deemed to be unlawfully at large and may be arrested without warrant by any police officer and taken to the prison from which the person was released.

(7) If in the case of a person subject to a licence under section 581 a court revokes the licence under subsection (4) of this section, the Governor must not thereafter release the person under section 581(1) before the expiration of one year from the date of revocation or before the expiration of one-third of the period during which the licence would have remained in force, whichever is the later; but without affecting any power to release the person otherwise than under section 581(1).

(8) This section has effect, in its application to a sentence of detention on a young offender under Part 33 (Young Offenders and Youth Protection) as if for any reference to a prison there were a reference to any place in which the offender was detained immediately before being released on licence.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.93]

584. Provisions supplementary to sections 580 to 583

(1) When under any of the provisions of sections 580 to 583 the Governor is required to consult the Advisory Committee before exercising any power under any of those sections, or in fact does so, section 788 applies.

(2) If a person who is subject to a licence under section 581 or 582 is recalled to prison, the period during which the person was absent from prison pursuant to the licence counts as if the person had been imprisoned throughout that period, but does not count towards remission of the sentence under section 29 of the Prison Ordinance.

(3) The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, must —

(a) establish criteria for the release prisoners on licence and for their recall;

(b) make rules governing applications for release, the revocation of licences, the recall of prisoners, the making of representations by or on behalf of prisoners and persons released on licence and other matters relating to the release of prisoners on licence, whether of a similar kind or not.

(4) Rules made under this section may, among other things —

(a) confer powers of arrest on police officers; and

(b) create offences carrying a maximum penalty of 3 months' imprisonment or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both.

(5) Sections 580 to 583 apply to young offenders as provided by subsections (7) and (8) of section 728

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.94 modified]

Miscellaneous provisions

585. Warrants for imprisonment

When a person has been sentenced to imprisonment by a court, a warrant under the hand of the person presiding at the trial ordering that the sentence is to be carried out in the prison is full authority to the Chief Police Officer and to all other persons for carrying into effect the sentence described in the warrant.

[SH and Gib precedents]

586. Place of imprisonment

A sentence of imprisonment imposed by a Falkland Islands court is to be served in the Falkland Islands unless the Governor otherwise directs.

[SH and Gib precedents]

587. Exercise of powers of release

(1) Any power conferred by this Ordinance or any other enactment to release a person from a prison or other institution to which the Prison Ordinance applies, or from a place where a young offender is detained, may be exercised even if the person is not for the time being detained in that institution or place.

(2) A person released from a prison or other institution or place by virtue of this section is, after release, to be treated in all respects as if he or she had been released from that institution or place.

588. Warrants for arrest of escaped prisoners

(1) On an information in writing being laid before the Senior Magistrate or a justice of the peace and substantiated on oath, alleging that any person is an offender unlawfully at large from a prison or institution to which the Prison Ordinance applies, or from a place where a young offender is detained, in either case being a place in which the person is required to be detained after having been convicted of an offence, the Senior Magistrate or justice of the peace may issue a warrant to arrest the person and bring him or her before an appropriate court.

(2) For the purposes of this section "appropriate court" means —

(a) if the warrant was issued by the Senior Magistrate - the Magistrate's Court;

(b) if the warrant was issued by a justice of the peace - the Summary Court.

(3) If a person is brought before a court pursuant to a warrant of arrest under this section, the court must, if satisfied that the person is the person named in the warrant and as to the facts mentioned in the information, order the person to be returned to the prison or other institution or place where he or she is required to be detained.

PART 27 – FINES AND RECOGNISANCES

Imposing of fines

589. General power to impose a fine

(1) Subject to subsection (3), when a person is convicted of any offence, other than an offence or which the sentence is fixed by law, the court may impose a fine up to the limit, if any, prescribed in the penalty provision applicable to that offence, in addition to imposing any other punishment for the offence.

(2) If under any law the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court has power to sentence an offender to imprisonment but not to a fine, the court may, unless the law expressly provides to the contrary, instead of sentencing the person to imprisonment, impose a fine —

(a) not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale; and

(b) not of such an amount as would subject the offender, in default of payment of the fine, to a longer term of imprisonment or detention than the term to which he or she is liable on conviction of the offence.

(3) Unless otherwise provided by any Ordinance, the Summary Court may not impose a fine on an adult exceeding £5,000.

(4) The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order amend the amount prescribed in subsection (3).

(5) The powers of a court to impose a fine on a youth are as provided in section 733.

(6) This section is subject to any enactment requiring the offender to be dealt with in a particular way.

[Criminal Justice Ord. ss.13 and 163; Admin. of Justice Ord. s.13]

590. Standard scale of fines – Schedule 8

(1) The standard scale of fines for offences is as set out in Part A of Schedule 8.

(2) The statutory maximum fine is the highest level of fine on the standard scale.

(3) Any provision in an enactment that provides —

(a) that a person convicted of an offence is liable on conviction to the statutory maximum fine, or a fine at a specified level on the standard scale; or

(b) confers power by subsidiary legislation to make a person liable on conviction of an offence to the statutory maximum fine, or a fine at a specified level on the standard scale, is to be construed as referring respectively to the statutory maximum fine or the standard scale as set out in Schedule 8 from time to time.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.11(1) to (4)]

591. Variation of level of fines

(1) The Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order amend any written law of the Falkland Islands which provides for a person convicted of an offence, other than an indictment-only offence, to be liable to a fine at a level on the standard scale prescribed in that provision, so as to vary the prescribed level.

(2) A variation in the prescribed level of fine effected by an order under subsection (1) does not apply in relation to an offence committed before the order is first published in the Gazette.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.12]

592. Fixing of fines

(1) The amount of any fine fixed by a court must be such as, in the opinion of the court, reflects the seriousness of the offence.

(2) Before fixing the amount of any fine to be imposed on an offender who is an individual, a court must inquire into his or her financial circumstances as provided by section 593.

(3) In fixing the amount of any fine to be imposed on an offender (whether an individual or other person), a court must take into account the circumstances of the case including, among other things, the financial circumstances of the offender so far as they are known, or appear, to the court.

(4) Subsection (3) applies whether taking into account the financial circumstances of the offender has the effect of increasing or reducing the amount of the fine.

(5) If an individual offender has —

(a) been convicted in his or her absence;

(b) failed to comply with an order under section 593(1); or

(c) otherwise failed to co-operate with the court in its inquiry into his or her financial circumstances, and the court considers that it has insufficient information to make a proper determination of the financial circumstances of the offender, it may make such determination as it thinks fit.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.164]

593. Power to order statement as to offender’s financial circumstances

(1) If an individual has been convicted of an offence, the court may, before sentencing him or her, make a financial circumstances order with respect to him or her.

(2) If the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court has been notified that an individual desires to plead guilty without appearing before the court, the court may make a financial circumstances order with respect to that individual.

(3) In this section “a financial circumstances order” means, in relation to any individual, an order requiring the individual to give to the court, within a period specified in the order, such a statement of his or her financial circumstances as the court requires.

(4) An individual who without reasonable excuse fails to comply with a financial circumstances order commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 3 on the standard scale.

(5) An individual who, in furnishing any statement for purposes of a financial circumstances order —

- (a) makes a statement which he or she knows to be false in a material particular;
- (b) recklessly furnishes a statement which is false in a material particular; or
- (c) knowingly fails to disclose any material fact,

commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 4 on the standard scale.

(6) Proceedings in respect of an offence under subsection (5) may, notwithstanding any rule about limitation of time, be commenced at any time within 2 years from the date of the commission of the offence or within 6 months from its first discovery by the prosecutor, whichever period expires the earlier.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.162]

594. Remission of fines

(1) This section applies if a court has, in fixing the amount of a fine (but not any other pecuniary penalty), determined the offender’s financial circumstances under section 592.

(2) If, on subsequently inquiring into the offender’s financial circumstances, the court is satisfied that had it had the results of that inquiry when sentencing the offender it would —

- (a) have fixed a smaller amount; or
- (b) not have fined the offender,

it may remit the whole or part of the fine.

(3) If under this section the court remits the whole or part of a fine after a term of imprisonment has been fixed under section 599, it must reduce the term by the corresponding proportion.

(4) In calculating any reduction required by subsection (3), any fraction of a day is to be ignored.

(5) Neither the Magistrate's Court nor the Summary Court may remit any part of a fine imposed by, or sum due under a recognisance forfeited by —

(a) the Supreme Court;

(b) the Court of Appeal; or

(c) the Judicial Committee, without the consent of the Supreme Court.

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.85 adapted; Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.165]

595. Power to allow time, etc.

(1) If a court imposes a fine on a person, or orders a person's recognisance to be forfeited, the court, on application by or on behalf of the person liable to make the payment, may make an order —

(a) allowing time for the payment of the fine or the amount due under the recognisance;

(b) directing payment of that amount by instalments of the amounts and on the dates specified in the order;

(c) in the case of a recognisance - discharging the recognisance or reducing the amount due under it.

(2) The court on ordering a person to pay a fine or recognisance must, unless a warrant of distress is issued under section 598, allow the person at least 7 days to pay the sum or the first instalment of the sum.

(3) If the court has allowed time for payment, the court may allow further time or order payment by instalments.

(4) If a court refuses to allow time for payment, it must state the reasons for not allowing the person time to pay.

(5) If time is allowed for payment, or payment by instalments is ordered, the court must not when convicting impose a term of imprisonment in the event of a future default in paying the sum unless the offender is present and the court decides that for special reason, whether having regard to the gravity of the offence, to the character of the offender or other special circumstances, it is expedient that in default of payment he or she should be imprisoned without further inquiry.

(6) If a court has ordered payment by instalments and default is made in the payment of any one instalment, proceedings may be taken as if the default had been made in the payment of all the instalments then remaining unpaid.

(7) The power conferred by this section to discharge a recognisance or reduce the amount due under it is in addition to the powers conferred by any other law relating to the discharge, cancellation, mitigation or reduction of recognisances or sums forfeited under them.

(8) This section does not apply to a fine imposed by the Supreme Court on appeal from a decision of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.14(1); UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 ss.75(3) and 85A; Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.139 (part)]

Enforcement of fines and recognisances

596. Non-payment of fine, etc

(1) If it appears that a fine or other payment ordered to be made by a defendant has not been paid, the court must, on its own initiative, inquire into the circumstances and may make one or more of the orders mentioned in subsection (2).

(2) The orders which may be made under subsection (1) are —

(a) if there are exceptional circumstances in which the court judges it in the interests of justice to do so - remit the outstanding payment (or any part of it) and discharge the debtor from further liability in respect of it;

(b) make such fresh order as appears to be just as to the date by which or the instalments by which the outstanding amount is to be paid;

(c) in the case of a fine - revoke the original order for payment and substitute for it an alternative sentence that meets the justice of the case;

(d) make an attachment of earnings order in accordance with section 597;

(e) issue a distress warrant under section 598; or

(f) order the defendant to serve a term of imprisonment for non-payment in accordance with section 599.

(3) A justice of the peace may issue a summons or a warrant to secure the attendance of any person whose attendance before the court is necessary for the purposes of this section.

(4) If the original sentence or order was imposed by the Supreme Court, neither the Magistrate's Court nor the Summary Court may make an order under subsection (2)(d) but either court may commit the debtor, either in custody or on bail, to the Supreme Court.

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.75]

597. Attachment of earnings

(1) Without affecting any other power to enforce payment of money, the Supreme Court, the Magistrate’s Court and the Summary Court may each make an attachment of earnings order to enforce the payment of any sum ordered to be paid by way of fine, costs, compensation or otherwise.

(2) In this section “attachment of earnings order” means an order directed to a person (in this section called “the employer”) who appears to the court to be the employer of the person (in this section called “the debtor”) ordered to pay the sum the payment of which is to be enforced.

(3) An attachment of earnings order is an order directing the employer to deduct from the salary or other remuneration of the debtor periodical sums as specified in the order, and to remit the sums to the proper officer of the court.

(4) The proper officer of the court for the purposes of subsection (3) is —

(a) in the case of the Supreme Court - the Registrar; and

(b) in the case of the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court - the Clerk of the court.

(5) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules prescribe the form and contents of an attachment of earnings order, and generally provide for the effective use of attachment of earnings orders.

[UK Courts Act 2003 Sched.5; Collection of Fines (Final Scheme) Order 2006]

598. Enforcement by distress

(1) Subject to the following provisions of this Part, if default is made in paying a fine or recognisance, the court may issue a warrant of distress for the purpose of paying the sum.

(2) A warrant of committal may be issued in respect of a person for failure to pay a fine or recognisance if it appears on the return to a warrant of distress that the money and goods of the person are insufficient to pay the fine or recognisance with the costs and charges of levying the sum.

(3) The period for which a person may be committed to prison under such a warrant must not, subject to the provisions of any other law, exceed the period applicable to the case under section 603(3).

[UK Magistrate’s Courts Act 1980 s.76]

599. Imprisonment for non-payment of a fine – Schedule 9

(1) Subject to this section, if the court imposes a fine on any person or forfeits a person’s recognisance, the court must, subject in the case of a young offender to section 731 make an order fixing a term of imprisonment or of detention for default which the person is to undergo if any sum which the person is liable to pay is not duly paid or recovered.

(2) A court must not commit a person to prison or order a person's detention pursuant to an order under subsection (1) unless —

(a) in the case of an imprisonable offence, the person appears to the court to have sufficient means to pay the sum forthwith;

(b) on being asked by the court whether he or she wishes to have time for payment, the person does not ask for time;

(c) the person asks the court to commit him or her to prison immediately;

(d) it appears to the court that the person is unlikely to remain long enough at a place of abode in the Falkland Islands to enable payment of the sum to be enforced by other methods;

(e) when the order is made the court sentences the person to immediate imprisonment, custody for life or detention for that or another offence, or so sentences the person for an offence in addition to forfeiting his or her recognisance, or the person is already serving a sentence of custody for life or a term of imprisonment or detention; or

(f) there are other special circumstances appearing to the court to justify immediate committal.

(3) The periods set out in the second column of Schedule 9 are the maximum periods of imprisonment or detention under subsection (1) applicable respectively to the amounts set out opposite them.

(4) If the amount due at the time imprisonment or detention is imposed is so much of any fine or forfeited recognisance as remains due after part payment, then, subject to subsection (5), the maximum period applicable to the amount is the period applicable to the whole sum reduced by the number of days that are proportionate to the total sum.

(5) In calculating the reduction required under subsection (4) —

(a) any fraction of a day is to be left out of account; and

(b) the maximum period must not be reduced to less than 5 days.

(6) If a person liable for the payment of a fine or a sum due under a recognisance to which this section applies is sentenced by a court to, or is serving or otherwise liable to serve, a term of imprisonment or a term of detention under any enactment creating a criminal offence, the court may order that any term of imprisonment or detention fixed under subsection (1) does not begin to run until after the end of the first-mentioned term.

(7) The power conferred by this section to discharge a recognisance or reduce the amount due under it is in addition to the powers conferred by any other enactment relating to the discharge, cancellation, mitigation or reduction of recognisances or sums forfeited under a recognisance.

(8) Subject to subsection (9), the powers conferred by this section are not restricted by any enactment about committal by any court to another court which authorises the court to which an offender is committed to deal with the offender in any way in which the court from which the offender was committed might have dealt with the offender.

(9) Any term fixed under subsection (1) in respect of a fine imposed pursuant to such an enactment, that is to say a fine which the court from which an offender is committed could have imposed, must not exceed the period applicable to that fine (if imposed by that court) under any provision of the Customs Ordinance.

(10) This section does not apply to a fine imposed by the Supreme Court on appeal against a decision of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, but subsections (1) to (3) apply in relation to a fine imposed or recognisance forfeited by the Court of Appeal, or by the Judicial Committee on appeal from that court, as they apply in relation to a fine imposed or recognisance forfeited by a court.

(11) For the purposes of this section —

(a) in any reference to a term of imprisonment or other detention to which a person has been sentenced or which, or part of which, the person has served, consecutive terms and terms which are wholly or partly concurrent are, unless the context otherwise requires, to be treated as a single term;

(b) a reference to a previous sentence is to be construed as a reference to a previous sentence passed by a court in the Falkland Islands.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.14(2 to (11)); UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.82 (part); Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.139 (part)]

600. Enforcement of fines imposed and recognisances forfeited by Supreme Court

(1) Subject to subsection (5), a fine imposed or a recognisance forfeited by the Supreme Court is to be treated for the purposes of collection and enforcement of the fine or other sum as having been imposed or forfeited by the Magistrate's Court and, in the case of a fine, as having been so imposed on conviction by that court.

(2) Subsection (3) applies if the Magistrate's Court issues a warrant of commitment on a default in the payment of —

(a) a fine imposed by the Supreme Court; or

(b) a sum due under a recognisance forfeited by the Supreme Court.

(3) In such a case, the term of imprisonment or detention specified in the warrant of commitment as the term which the offender is liable to serve is —

(a) the term fixed by the Supreme Court under section 599(1); or

(b) if that term has been reduced under section 594, that term as so reduced.

(4) Subsections (1) to (3) apply in relation to a fine imposed or recognisance forfeited by the Court of Appeal, or by the Judicial Committee on appeal from that court, as they apply in relation to a fine imposed or recognisance forfeited by the Supreme Court.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.140]

601. Restriction on committal and means inquiry

(1) A court must not commit a person to prison for failing to pay a fine or recognisance or for want of sufficient distress to pay a fine or recognisance unless the court has inquired into the person's means in his or her presence.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply if the person is in prison.

(3) The court may, for the purpose of enabling inquiry to be made under this section —

(a) issue a summons requiring the person to appear before the court at the time and place appointed in the summons; or

(b) issue a warrant to arrest the person and bring him or her before the court.

(4) On the failure of a person to appear before the court in answer to a summons under this section the court may issue a warrant to arrest the person and bring him or her before the court.

(5) A warrant issued under this section may be executed in like manner, and the like proceedings may be taken with a view to its execution, as if it had been issued under section 598.

(6) A warrant under this section ceases to have effect when the sum in respect of which the warrant is issued is paid to the police officer holding the warrant.

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.82 (part)]

602. Defect in distress warrant and irregularity in execution

(1) A warrant of distress issued for the purpose of paying a fine or recognisance must not, if it states that the fine or recognisance has been ordered to be paid, be held void by reason of any defect in the warrant.

(2) A person acting under a warrant of distress is not a trespasser ab initio by reason only of any irregularity in the execution of the warrant.

(3) Nothing in this section affects the claim of any person for special damages in respect of any loss caused by a defect in the warrant or irregularity in its execution.

(4) A person who removes any goods marked as articles impounded in the execution of a warrant of distress, or defaces or removes any such mark, commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 1 on the standard scale.

(5) A person who has the duty of executing a warrant of distress and who —

- (a) wilfully retains from the proceeds of a sale of the goods on which distress is levied;
- (b) otherwise exacts any greater costs and charges than those properly payable; or
- (c) makes any improper charge,

commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 1 on the standard scale.

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.78]

603. Release from custody, etc. on payment

(1) If imprisonment or other detention has been imposed on any person by the order of the Magistrate's Court in default of payment of a fine or recognisance, or for want of sufficient distress to pay a fine or recognisance, then, on the payment of the fine or recognisance, together with the costs and charges, if any, of the commitment and distress —

- (a) the order ceases to have effect; and
- (b) if the person has been committed to custody the person must be released unless he or she is in custody for some other cause.

(2) If, after a period of imprisonment or other detention has been imposed on any person —

- (a) in default of payment of a fine or recognisance; or
- (b) for want of sufficient distress to pay a fine or recognisance, payment is made of part of the fine or recognisance, the period of imprisonment or detention is to be reduced proportionately.

(3) In calculating the reduction required under subsection (2) any fraction of a day is to be ignored.

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.79]

604. Power of court to order search of person and application of money found

(1) If a court, on convicting a person, or on an appeal brought by any person —

- (a) imposes a fine on a person or forfeits the person's recognisance;
- (b) makes against a person any order for the payment of costs by a defendant; or
- (c) makes a compensation order against a person, then, if that person is before it, the court may order the person to be searched.

(2) Any money found —

(a) on a search under subsection (1); or

(b) on the arrest of a person ordered to pay a fine or recognisance; or

(c) on a person being taken to a prison or other place of detention in default of payment of the fine or recognisance, may, unless the court otherwise directs, be applied towards payment of the fine or recognisance, and the balance, if any, must be returned to the person.

(3) The court must not allow the application of any money found on a person if it is satisfied that—

(a) the money does not belong to that person; or

(b) the loss of the money would be more injurious to the person's family than would be his or her detention.

[UK Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.80; Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.142]

Miscellaneous

605. Disposal of fines and recognisances

(1) The Registrar or the Clerk of the respective court, as the case may be, must apply any moneys received on account of a sum ordered to be paid on a conviction as follows —

(a) firstly, in payment of any costs ordered on the conviction to be paid to the prosecutor;

(b) secondly, in payment of any damages or compensation so ordered to be paid to any person;

(c) thirdly in payment of any fine ordered to be paid by the defendant.

(2) Subject to any enactment relating to customs or excise, anything other than money forfeited on a conviction by a court, or the forfeiture of which may be enforced by the court, must be sold or otherwise disposed of in accordance with section 90 of the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance.

(3) Any fine imposed or recognisance forfeited by or under the authority of any enactment is to be paid into the Consolidated Fund.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.16 modified; UK Magistrates Courts Act 1980 ss.139, 140 adapted]

606. Removal of limit on fines

(1) If, on or after the commencement of this Part, an offence would, apart from this subsection, be punishable on summary conviction by a maximum fine of £10,000 or more (however expressed), the offence is punishable on summary conviction on or after that day by a fine of any amount, but subject to section 733 (Limit on fines imposed in respect of youths).

(2) If, on or after the commencement of this Part, an enactment gives power to create an offence punishable on summary conviction by a maximum fine of £10,000 or more (however expressed), the power may be exercised to create an offence punishable on summary conviction by a fine of any amount.

[UK LASPO Act 2012 s.85]

PART 28 – COMPENSATION, RESTITUTION, DEPRIVATION, ETC.

Public compensation awards

607. Compensation and awards in relation to arrests

(1) A court by or before which a person ('A') is convicted of an imprisonable offence may recommend to the Legislative Assembly that the Assembly pay to any person ('B') who appears to the court to have been injured in endeavouring to arrest 'A' a sum specified in the recommendation, not exceeding £10,000.

(2) If before a recommendation is made under subsection (1) 'B' dies, the court may make a like recommendation for payment to the surviving spouse or children of 'B', not exceeding £50,000 if the death was a result of 'A' endeavouring to arrest 'B', or £10,000 in any other case.

(3) A court by or before which a person ('A') is convicted of an imprisonable offence may recommend to the Legislative Assembly that the Assembly pay to any person ('B') who appears to the court to have been active in or towards the arrest of ('B') a sum specified in the recommendation, not exceeding £1,000, to compensate 'B' for the expense, exertion, and loss of time involved in or towards the arrest.

(4) The Legislative Assembly must, if a court so recommends under subsection (1), (2) or (3), make to ('B'), or to the surviving spouse or children of B, if subsection (2) applies, a payment of money from the Consolidated Fund by way of compensation, in the amount recommended by the court in each case.

[Gibraltar & St Helena CPE Bill adapted]

Compensation orders

608. Compensation orders against convicted persons

(1) A court by or before which a person is convicted of an offence, instead of or in addition to dealing with the person in any other way, may, on application or otherwise, make an order (a "compensation order") requiring the person to —

- (a) pay compensation for any personal injury, loss or damage resulting from that offence or any other offence which is taken into consideration by the court in determining sentence; or

(b) make payments for funeral expenses or bereavement in respect of a death resulting from any such offence, other than a death due to an accident arising out of the presence of a motor vehicle on a road, subject to the following subsections and sections 609 and 610.

(2) A court must —

(a) consider making a compensation order in any case in which this section empowers it to do so; and

(b) give reasons, on passing sentence, for not making a compensation order if it does not make such an order in a case in which this section empowers it to do so.

(3) If the person is convicted of an offence the sentence for which is fixed by law, subsection (1) has have effect as if the words “instead of or” were omitted.

(4) If a person is convicted of any offence relating to property, the power conferred by subsection (1) includes a power to award compensation to any purchaser in good faith of any property in relation to which the offence was committed, for the loss of the property if the property is restored to the possession of the person entitled to it.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.53 (part); UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.130 (part) as amended by LASPOA 2012 s.63]

609. Compensation orders: Supplementary

(1) In the case of an offence under Part 12 (Theft and Fraud) of the Crimes Ordinance 2014, or under section 30 of the Road Traffic Ordinance, if the property in question is recovered, any damage to the property occurring while it was out of the owner’s possession is to be treated for the purposes of section 608(1) as having resulted from the offence, however and by whomever the damage was caused.

(2) If a compensation order falls to be made in respect of injury, loss or damage (other than loss suffered by a person’s dependants in consequence of the death) which was due to an accident arising out of the presence of a motor vehicle on a road —

(a) compensation is only payable for injury, loss or damage in respect of which the offender is uninsured in relation to the use of the vehicle;

(b) the amount to be paid may include an amount representing the whole or part of any loss of or reduction in preferential rates of insurance attributable to the accident.

(3) A vehicle, the use of which by or under the Road Traffic Ordinance is exempted from insurance is not uninsured for the purposes of subsection (2).

(4) If a compensation order is made in respect of injury, loss or damage due to an accident arising out of the presence of a motor vehicle on a road, the amount to be paid may include an amount representing the whole or part of any loss of or reduction in preferential rates of insurance attributable to the accident.

(5) A compensation order in respect of funeral expenses may be made for the benefit of anyone who incurred the expenses.

(6) If compensation is claimed in respect of bereavement —

(a) compensation is only payable for the benefit of a person for whose benefit a claim for damages for bereavement could be made under section 1A of the Fatal Accidents Act 1976 in its application to the Falkland Islands;

(b) the amount of compensation must not exceed the amount for the time being specified in section 1A(3) of that Act.

(7) A compensation order may be made against any person in respect of an offence taken into consideration under section 494(1) in determining the person's sentence.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.53 (part); UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 am. s.130 (part)]

610. Amount payable under a compensation order

(1) Subject to subsection (2), a compensation award under section 608 must be of an amount the court considers appropriate, having regard to any evidence and to any representations made by or on behalf of the defendant or the prosecutor.

(2) The compensation awarded by the Summary Court must not exceed £5,000.

(3) The compensation or total compensation payable under a compensation order or orders made by a court in respect of an offence or offences taken into consideration in determining sentence must not exceed the difference (if any) between the maximum amount specified in subsection (2) in respect of an offence or offences of which the offender has been convicted and the amount or total amounts (if any) which are in fact ordered to be paid in respect of that offence or those offences.

(4) Subject to subsection (3), the compensation payable under section 608 must be of an amount the court considers appropriate, having regard to any evidence and to any representations made by or on behalf of the defendant or the prosecutor.

(5) In deciding whether to make a compensation order against any person, and if so the amount to be paid by the person under the order, the court must have regard to the person's means so far as they appear or are known to the court.

(6) If the court considers that —

(a) it would be appropriate both to impose a fine and to make a compensation order; but

(b) the offender has insufficient means to pay both an appropriate fine and appropriate compensation, the court must give priority to compensation, though it may impose a fine as well.

[Criminal Justice Ordinance s.53 (part); UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss.130 (part), 131 and 141 adapted]

611. Compensation orders: Appeals

(1) The Supreme Court, on an appeal under Part 31 (Appeals to the Supreme Court) against conviction or sentence, may by order annul or vary any compensation order made by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, whether or not the conviction is quashed or the sentence otherwise varied.

(2) The Court of Appeal, on an appeal against a conviction or sentence in the Supreme Court, may by order annul or vary any compensation order made by the Supreme Court, whether or not the conviction is quashed or the sentence otherwise varied.

(3) An appeal against a compensation order made on a conviction may be made, without appealing against the conviction or any other sentence imposed on the conviction, and the appellate court may by order annul or vary any compensation order made by the trial court.

(4) If the Supreme Court, on a revision of a case in the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court under Part 31 restores a conviction, it may make any compensation order which the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, could have made at the trial.

(5) If the Court of Appeal on an appeal against an acquittal under the Court of Appeal Ordinance restores a conviction, it may make any compensation order which the Supreme Court could have made at the trial.

(6) There is no appeal from a compensation order made by the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeal in an appellate or revising capacity.

(7) A person in whose favour a compensation order is made is not entitled to receive the amount due to the person until (disregarding any power of a court to grant leave to appeal out of time) there is no further possibility of an appeal on which the order could be varied or set aside.

(8) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules provide for the way in which a court is to deal with money paid in satisfaction of a compensation order while the entitlement of the person in whose favour it was made is suspended pending an appeal.

(9) If, as provided by section 609(7) a compensation order has been made against any person in respect of an offence taken into consideration under section 494(1) in determining the person's sentence —

(a) the order ceases to have effect if the person successfully appeals against the conviction of the offence or, if more than one, all the offences, of which the person was convicted in the proceedings in which the order was made;

(b) the person may appeal against the order as if it were part of the sentence imposed in respect of the offence or, if more than one, any of the offences, of which the person was so convicted.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.54 (part); UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.132]

612. Review of compensation orders

(1) At any time before a compensation order has been complied with or fully complied with, the court which made the order may, on the application of the person against whom it was made, discharge the order, or reduce the amount which remains to be paid, if it appears to the court—

(a) that the injury, loss or damage in respect of which the order was made has been held in civil proceedings to be less than was taken to be for the purposes of the order;

(b) in the case of an order in respect of the loss of any property - that the property has been recovered by the person in whose favour the order was made; or

(c) that the means of the person against whom the order was made are insufficient to satisfy in full both the order and a confiscation order under the Proceeds of Crime Ordinance made against the person in the same proceedings; or

(d) that the person against whom the compensation order was made has suffered a substantial reduction in means which was unexpected at the time when the order was made, and that the person's means seem unlikely to increase for a considerable period.

(2) The court may exercise a power conferred by subsection (1) only —

(a) when (disregarding any power of a court to grant leave to appeal out of time) there is no further possibility of an appeal on which the compensation order could be varied or set aside; and

(b) before the person against whom the compensation order was made has paid into court the whole of the compensation which the order requires the person to pay.

(3) If the compensation order was made by the Supreme Court, neither the Magistrate's Court nor the Summary Court may exercise any power conferred by subsection (1) in a case where it is satisfied as mentioned in paragraph (c) or (d) of that subsection unless it has first obtained the consent of the Supreme Court.

(4) If a compensation order has been made on appeal, for the purposes of subsection (2) the order is deemed —

(a) if it was made on an appeal from the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court – to have been made by that court;

(b) if it was made on an appeal from the Supreme Court or from the Court of Appeal - to have been made by the Supreme Court.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.55; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.133]

613. Effect of compensation order on damages in civil proceedings

(1) This section has effect if a compensation order has been made in favour of any person in respect of any injury, loss or damage and a claim by the person in civil proceedings for damages in respect of the injury, loss or damage subsequently falls to be decided.

(2) The damages in the civil proceedings must be assessed without regard to the order; but the plaintiff may only recover an amount equal to the aggregate of —

(a) any amount by which the damages exceed the compensation; and

(b) a sum equal to any portion of the compensation which the plaintiff fails to recover, and may not enforce the judgment, so far as it relates to a sum such as is mentioned in paragraph (b), without the leave of the court.

(3) If the whole or part of the amount awarded by the order remains unpaid and the court awards damages in the civil proceedings, then, unless the person against whom the order was made has ceased to be liable to pay the amount unpaid, the court must direct that the judgement —

(a) if it is for an amount not exceeding the amount unpaid under the order – is not to be enforced; or

(b) if it is for an amount exceeding the amount unpaid under the order – is not to be enforced as to a corresponding amount, without the leave of the court.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.56; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.134]

614. Enforcement of compensation orders

(1) An order under this Part for the payment of compensation by a defendant is enforceable under Part 27 (Fines and Recognisances) as if it were a fine imposed on a conviction.

(2) If a court making a compensation order considers that the period for which the person subject to the order is liable apart from this subsection to be committed to prison for default under the order is insufficient —

(a) the court may specify a longer period for that purpose, not exceeding 12 months in total;

(b) that period must be substituted as the maximum for which the person may be imprisoned for default in payment; and

(c) subsection (3) applies to reduce the specified period if, at the time of the person's imprisonment, he or she has made part payment under the order.

(3) If the amount due when imprisonment is imposed for failure to pay a sum due under a compensation order is the part remaining due after part payment, then, subject to subsection (4), the maximum period applicable to the amount is to be reduced proportionately to the amount already paid.

(4) In calculating the reduction required under subsection (3) —

(a) any fraction of a day is to be left out of account; and

(b) the maximum period must not be reduced to less than 5 days.

(5) A court may not specify under subsection (2) a period of imprisonment longer than that which it could order a person to undergo on imposing on the person a fine equal in amount to the sum required to be paid by the order.

(6) If a court makes an order against a person for the payment of costs or compensation, the court may —

(a) allow time for the payment of the sum due under the order;

(b) direct payment of that sum by instalments of amounts and on dates that the court specifies.

(7) If the person liable to pay is the person convicted, the court may direct that an order for compensation is to be paid out of any money taken from the person on arrest.

(8) No steps to enforce an order for compensation under this Part may be taken until the time for appealing against the award of compensation has passed or the person against whom the award was made has indicated that the person does not intend to appeal, or the appeal has been disposed of.

[Criminal Justice Ord. ss.15 and 57; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.14 adapted]

Restitution orders

615. Restitution orders

(1) This section applies if goods have been stolen, and either —

(a) a person is convicted of any offence with reference to the theft (whether or not the stealing is the gist of the offence); or

(b) a person is convicted of any other offence, but an offence as mentioned in paragraph (a) is taken into consideration in determining the person's sentence.

(2) If this section applies, the court by or before which the offender is convicted may on the conviction (whether or not the passing of sentence is in other respects deferred) —

(a) order anyone having possession or control of the stolen goods to restore them to any person entitled to recover them from the offender;

(b) on the application of a person entitled to recover from the person convicted any other goods directly or indirectly representing the stolen goods (as being the proceeds of any disposal or realisation of the whole or part of them or of goods so representing them) - order those other goods to be delivered or transferred to the applicant; or

(c) order that a sum not exceeding the value of the stolen goods is to be paid, out of any money of the person convicted which was taken out of the person's possession on his or her arrest, to any person who, if those goods were in the possession of the person convicted, would be entitled to recover them from the person.

(3) If the court has power on a person's conviction to make an order against the person both under paragraph (b) and under paragraph (c) of subsection (2) with reference to the stealing of the same goods, the court may make orders under both paragraphs provided that the person in whose favour the orders are made does not as a result recover more than the value of those goods.

(4) If the court on a person's conviction makes an order under subsection (2)(a) for the restoration of any goods, and it appears to the court that the person convicted —

(a) has sold the goods to a person acting in good faith; or

(b) has borrowed money on the security of them from a person so acting,

the court may order to be paid to the purchaser or lender, out of any money of the person convicted which was taken out of the person's possession on his or her arrest, a sum not exceeding the amount paid for the purchase by the purchaser or, as the case may be, the amount owed to the lender in respect of the loan.

(5) The court must not exercise the powers conferred by this section unless in the opinion of the court the relevant facts sufficiently appear from evidence given at the trial or the available documents, together with admissions made by or on behalf of any person in connection with any proposed exercise of the powers.

(6) In subsection (5) "the available documents" means —

(a) any written statements or admissions which were made for use, and would have been admissible, as evidence at the trial; and

(b) such written statements, depositions and other documents as were tendered by or on behalf of the prosecutor at any committal proceedings.

(7) Subject to subsection (8), references in this section to stealing are to be construed in accordance with Part 12 (Theft and Fraud) of the Crimes Ordinance 2014.

(8) In this section and section 616, “goods”, unless the context otherwise requires, includes money and every other description of property (within the meaning of Part 12 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014) except land, and includes things severed from the land by stealing.

(9) An order may be made under this section in respect of money owed by the Government.

(10) The powers conferred by subsections (2)(c) and (4) are exercisable either on the court’s own initiative or on the application of any person appearing to the court to be interested in the property concerned.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss.148 & 149 (part)]

616. Restitution orders: Appeals

(1) An appellate court may by order annul or vary a restitution order made by the trial court even if the conviction is not quashed, and the order, if annulled, does not take effect, and, if varied, takes effect as so varied.

(2) If a restitution order is made against any person in respect of an offence taken into consideration in determining the person’s sentence —

(a) the order ceases to have effect if the person successfully appeals against the conviction of the offence or, if more than one, all the offences, of which the person was convicted in the proceedings in which the order was made;

(b) the person may appeal against the order as if it were part of the sentence imposed in respect of the offence or, if more than one, any of the offences, of which the person was so convicted.

(3) A restitution order made by any court must be suspended —

(a) in any case - until the end of the period for the time within which an appeal against conviction may be brought;

(b) if notice of appeal is given within that period - until the determination of the appeal.

(4) If the operation of a restitution order is suspended until the determination of an appeal, the order does not take effect as to the property in question if the conviction is quashed on appeal.

(5) Subsection (4) does not apply if the order is made under section 615(2)(a) or (b) and the court so directs, being of the opinion that the title to the goods to be restored or, as the case may be, delivered or transferred under the order is not in dispute.

(6) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules provide for securing the safe custody of any property during the suspension of the operation of a restitution order.
[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.149 (part)]

Deprivation orders

617. Deprivation orders

(1) If a person is convicted of an offence and the court by or before which the person is convicted is satisfied that any property which has been lawfully seized from the person, or which was in the person's possession or under the person's control at the time when the person was apprehended for the offence or when a summons in respect of it was issued —

(a) has been used for the purpose of committing, or facilitating the commission of, any offence; or

(b) was intended by the person to be used for that purpose, the court may (subject to subsection (6)) make an order under this section (a "deprivation order") in respect of that property.

(2) If a person is convicted of an offence and the offence, or an offence which the court has taken into consideration in determining the person's sentence, consists of unlawful possession of property which —

(a) has been lawfully seized from the person; or

(b) was in the person's possession or under the person's control at the time when the person was arrested for the offence of which he or she has been convicted or when a summons in respect of that offence was issued, the court may (subject to subsection (6)) make a deprivation order in respect of that property.

(3) For the purposes of this section, facilitating the commission of an offence includes the taking of any steps after it has been committed for the purposes of disposing of any property to which it relates or avoiding arrest or detection.

(4) A deprivation order deprives the offender of all rights, if any, in the property to which it relates, and the property, if not already in police possession, must be taken into the possession of the police.

(5) Any power conferred on a court by subsection (1) or (2) may be exercised —

(a) whether or not the court also deals with the offender in any other way in respect of the offence of which the offender has been convicted; and

(b) without regard to any restrictions on deprivation or forfeiture in any other enactment.

(6) In considering whether to make a deprivation order in respect of any property, a court must have regard —

(a) to the value of the property; and

(b) to the likely financial and other effects on the offender of the making of the order (taken together with any other order that the court contemplates making).

(7) If a person commits an offence to which this subsection applies by —

(a) driving, attempting to drive, or being in charge of a vehicle; or

(b) failing to comply with a requirement made under section 23 or 24 of the Road Traffic Ordinance (duty to give specimen of breath) in the course of an investigation into whether the offender had committed an offence while driving, attempting to drive or being in charge of a vehicle; or

(c) failing, as the driver of a vehicle, to comply with section 46 of the Road Traffic Ordinance (duty to give name and address, etc.), the vehicle is to be regarded for the purposes of subsection (1) as used for the purpose of committing the offence or any offence of encouraging, or aiding and abetting the commission of the offence.

(8) Subsection (7) applies to —

(a) an offence under the Road Traffic Ordinance which is punishable with imprisonment; and

(b) an offence of manslaughter.

(9) Section 51 of the Police Ordinance 2000 applies, with the following modifications, to property which is in the possession of the police by virtue of this section —

(a) no application may be made under that section by any claimant of the property more than 6 months after the making of the order in respect of the property; and

(b) no such application will succeed unless the claimant satisfies the court either that the claimant had not consented to the offender having possession of the property or that the claimant did not know, and had no reason to suspect, that the property was likely to be used for the purpose mentioned in subsection (1) of this section.

(10) Section 90 of the Interpretation and General Provisions Ordinance applies to the disposal of items which are the subject of an order under this section as if it were an order for forfeiture.

(11) An order made under this section on a conviction does not take effect until the expiration of the time within which an appeal against the conviction may be lodged (whether to the Court of Appeal or the Supreme Court, and if to the Supreme Court, whether by notice of appeal or by way of a case stated for the opinion of that court) or, if such an appeal is duly lodged, until the appeal is finally decided or abandoned.

Disqualification orders

618. Driving disqualification if vehicle used for crime

(1) This section applies if a person is convicted by or before a court of an offence punishable with imprisonment for a term of 2 years or more or, having been convicted by the Summary Court of such an offence, is committed to the Magistrate's Court for sentence.

(2) If the convicting court (or, in the case of committal for sentence, the Magistrate's Court) is satisfied that a motor vehicle was used, whether by the person convicted or by anyone else, for the purpose of committing, or facilitating the commission, of the offence in question, the court may order the person convicted to be disqualified, for such period as the court thinks fit, from holding or obtaining a licence to drive a motor vehicle granted under the Road Traffic Ordinance.

(3) Subsection (3) of section 617 applies for the purpose of this section as it applies for the purpose of that section.

(4) A court which makes an order under this section disqualifying a person from holding a driving licence as described in subsection (1) must require the person to produce any such licence held by him or her; and failure to comply with such a requirement is an offence under section 6(12) of the Road Traffic Ordinance.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.60; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.147]

619. Disqualification from working with youths or vulnerable adults

(1) If a person is convicted of an offence to which this subsection applies, as provided by section 620(2), the person is by virtue of that conviction disqualified for life from working with youths or vulnerable adults.

(2) If a person is convicted of any offence in which the court finds that the person has engaged in relevant conduct with a youth aged under 16 or a vulnerable adult, the court which passes sentence may by order disqualify the person from working with youths or vulnerable adults for any period it thinks fit.

(3) Before making an order under subsection (2), the court must hear any representations that the prosecution or the defence wish to make, and must take all the circumstances of the case into account.

(4) A person who is disqualified under subsection (2) may appeal against the disqualification as if it were a sentence of the court, and the disqualification is subject to revision under Part 31 (Appeals to the Supreme Court).

(5) A disqualification under subsection (1) or (2) operates from the date of the conviction or the date on which the order is imposed, as the case may be, but if a conviction as mentioned in subsection (1), or which results in an order being made under subsection (2), is reversed on appeal, the disqualification is automatically lifted.

[UK Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006 ss.3 and 5 adapted]

620. Provisions supplementary to section 619

(1) The offences to which section 619(1) applies are —

- (a) any offence listed in Schedule 3 to the Crimes Ordinance 2014;
- (b) an offence under section 87 of the Mental Health Ordinance;
- (c) an attempt to commit the offence listed in paragraph (b);
- (d) conspiracy to commit any of that offence;
- (e) encouraging, or aiding and abetting, that offence.

(2) In section 619(1), “working with youths or vulnerable adults” means doing any of the following on a regular basis in relation to such persons —

- (a) any form of teaching, training or instruction, unless the teaching, training or instruction is merely incidental to teaching, training or instruction of persons who are not youths or vulnerable adults;
- (b) any form of care or supervision, unless the care or supervision is merely incidental to care for or supervision of persons who are not youths or vulnerable adults;
- (c) any form of advice or guidance provided wholly or mainly for youths or vulnerable adults, if the advice or guidance relates to their physical, emotional or educational well-being;
- (d) any form of treatment or therapy provided for children or vulnerable adults;
- (e) moderating a public electronic interactive communication service which is likely to be used wholly or mainly by children or vulnerable adults; or
- (f) driving a vehicle which is being used only or mainly for the purpose of conveying children or vulnerable adults.

(3) In the case of a youth aged 16 or over or of a vulnerable adult, paragraphs (a), (b), (c) and (d) of subsection (1) do not prevent the activities mentioned in those paragraphs being carried out solely and necessarily in connection with the employment of the youth or vulnerable adult.

(4) For the purpose of section 619(2) —

(a) “relevant conduct” is —

- (i) conduct which endangers or is likely to endanger a child or vulnerable adult;
- (ii) conduct which, if repeated against or in relation to a child or vulnerable adult, would endanger or be likely to endanger that person;
- (iii) conduct involving sexual material relating to children (including possession of such material);
- (iv) conduct involving sexually explicit images depicting violence against human beings (including possession of such images);
- (v) conduct of a sexual nature involving a child;

(b) conduct endangers a child or vulnerable adult if the conduct —

- (i) harms the child or vulnerable adult;
- (ii) causes the child or vulnerable adult to be harmed; or
- (iii) puts the child or vulnerable adult at risk of harm;

(c) “sexual material relating to children” means —

- (i) indecent images of children; or
- (ii) material (in whatever form) which portrays children involved in sexual activity and which is produced for the purposes of giving sexual gratification; and

(d) “image” means an image produced by any means, whether of a real or imaginary subject.
[UK Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006 Schedule 4 adapted]

Return of property

621. Return of property taken from defendant

(1) If —

- (a) a summons or warrant has been issued requiring any person to appear or be brought before the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court to answer to an information; or

(b) a person has been arrested without a warrant for an offence, and property has been taken from the person after the issue of the summons or warrant or, as the case may be, on or after the person's arrest without a warrant, the police must report the taking of the property, with particulars of it, to either the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court.

(2) If the court considers that the whole or any part of the property can be returned to the defendant consistently with the interests of justice and the safe custody of the defendant, it may direct that the property, or any part of it, is to be returned to the defendant or to some other person as the defendant designates, but without affecting the provisions of section 51 of the Police Ordinance 2000.

(3) Despite any enactment to the contrary, if property has been stolen or obtained by fraud or other wrongful means, the title to that or any other property is not affected by reason only of the conviction of the offender.

[Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.144 adapted]

622. Order for disposal of property

(1) During or at the conclusion of any trial the court may make any order it thinks fit for the disposal, whether by way of deprivation, forfeiture, confiscation or otherwise, of any property produced before it regarding which any offence appears to have been committed or which has been used for the commission of or to facilitate the commission of any offence.

(2) In a case where no evidence has been called, if the prosecutor wishes any property to be disposed of under subsection (1), he or she must after the conviction of the defendant produce the property before the court and the court may make an order under subsection (1).

(3) If the court orders the deprivation, forfeiture or confiscation of any property under subsection (1) but does not make an order for its destruction or for its delivery to any person, the court may direct that the property is to be kept or sold and that the property or, if sold, the proceeds of it is to be held as it directs until some person establishes to the satisfaction of the court a right to the property or proceeds.

(4) If no person establishes a right under subsection (3) within 6 months from the date of forfeiture or confiscation, the property or the proceeds of it must be paid into and form part of the Consolidated Fund.

(5) The powers conferred on the court by subsections (1) and (3) must be exercised subject to any special provisions regarding deprivation, forfeiture, confiscation, destruction, detention or delivery in the enactment under which the conviction was made or in any other applicable written law, including section 51 of the Police Ordinance 2000 and section 90 of the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance.

(6) If an order is made under this section, or section 51 of the Police Ordinance 2000, the order must not, unless the property is livestock or is subject to speedy and natural decay, be carried out until the period allowed for appealing against the order has passed or, if an appeal is made, until its disposal.

(7) In this section, “property” includes, in the case of property regarding which an offence appears to have been committed, not only such property as has been originally in the possession or under the control of any person, but also any property into or for which the same has been converted or exchanged and anything acquired by such conversion or exchange, whether immediately or otherwise.

[UK Police Property Act 1897 s.1]

623. Application of proceeds of forfeited property

(1) If a court makes an order under section 622 in a case where —

(a) the offender has been convicted of an offence which has resulted in a person suffering personal injury, loss or damage; or

(b) any such offence is taken into consideration by the court in determining sentence, the court may also make an order that any proceeds which arise from the disposal of the property and which do not exceed a sum specified by the court are to be paid to that person.

(2) The court may make an order under this section only if it is satisfied that but for the inadequacy of the offender’s means it would have made a compensation order under this Part under which the offender would have been required to pay compensation of an amount not less than the specified amount.

(3) An order under this section has no effect —

(a) before the end of the period specified in section 623(4); or

(b) if a successful application under section 619 has been made.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s. 145]

Miscellaneous provisions

624. Effect of appeal

No steps to enforce an order under this Part may be taken until the time for appealing against the order has passed or the person against whom the award was made has indicated that the person does not intend to appeal, or the appeal has been disposed of.

625. Power to vary financial limits

The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order vary any financial limits prescribed in this Part, other than the limit prescribed by section 607.

626. Saving for other powers of forfeiture, etc.

This Part does not affect the operation of any provisions of any other law relating to compensation for victims of crime, compensation for unlawful imprisonment, confiscation of the proceeds of crime, forfeiture of anything used in connection with the commission of crime or similar matters.

PART 29 – REHABILITATION OF OFFENDERS

Rehabilitation of offenders

627. Rehabilitated persons and spent convictions

(1) If an individual has been convicted of any offence or offences, and the conditions mentioned in subsection (2) are satisfied, then, after the end of the rehabilitation period applicable to the conviction (including any extension under section 631 of the period originally applicable) or, if that rehabilitation period ended before the commencement of this Part, after the commencement of this Part, that individual is for the purposes of this Part to be treated as a rehabilitated person in respect of the conviction and the conviction is for those purposes to be treated as spent.

(2) The conditions are that the individual —

(a) did not have imposed on him or her in respect of that conviction a sentence which is excluded from rehabilitation under this Part; and

(b) has not had imposed on him or her in respect of a subsequent conviction during the rehabilitation period applicable to the first-mentioned conviction in accordance with section 631 a sentence which is excluded from rehabilitation under this Part.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), a person does not become a rehabilitated person for the purposes of this Part in respect of a conviction unless the person has served or otherwise undergone or complied with any sentence imposed on him or her in respect of that conviction.

(4) The following do not prevent a person from becoming a rehabilitated person for the purposes of this Part —

(a) failure to pay a fine or other sum adjudged to be paid by or imposed on a conviction, or breach of a condition of a recognisance or bond to keep the peace or be of good behaviour;

(b) breach of any condition or requirement applicable in relation to a sentence which renders the person to whom it applies liable to be dealt with for the offence for which the sentence was imposed, or, if the sentence was a suspended sentence of imprisonment, liable to be dealt with in respect of that sentence (whether or not, in any case, the person is in fact so dealt with);

(c) failure to comply with any requirement of a suspended sentence supervision order imposed under section 571.

(5) If in respect of a conviction a person has been sentenced to imprisonment with an order under section 566 (Partly suspended sentence), the person is to be treated for the purposes of subsection (3) above as having served the sentence when the person completes service of so much of the sentence as was by that order required to be served in prison.

(6) In this Part “sentence” includes any order made by a court in dealing with a person in respect of his or her conviction of any offence or offences, other than —

(a) an order for committal or any other order made in default of payment of a fine or other sum adjudged to be paid by or imposed on a conviction, or for want of sufficient distress to satisfy any such fine or other sum;

(b) an order dealing with a person in respect of a suspended sentence of imprisonment.

(7) In this Part, references to a conviction, however expressed, include references to —

(a) a conviction by or before a court outside the Falkland Islands; and

(b) any finding (other than a finding linked with a finding of mental disorder) in any criminal proceedings or in care proceedings under the Children Ordinance 2014 (or any Ordinance replaced by that Ordinance) that a person has committed an offence or done the act or made the omission charged.

(8) A conviction in respect of which an order is made discharging the person absolutely or conditionally, imposing a community sentence, or, before the repeal of Part III of the Criminal Justice Ordinance, placing the person convicted on probation, is to be treated as a conviction for the purposes of this Part and the person in question may become a rehabilitated person in respect of that conviction and the conviction may become a spent conviction for those purposes accordingly.

(9) This section is in addition to and does not affect the operation of Part 8 (Simple and Conditional Cautions) as regards spent cautions.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.132; UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.1]

628. Effect of rehabilitation

(1) Subject to the following provisions of this Part, and except as provided by section 372, if a person has become a rehabilitated person for the purposes of this Part in respect of a conviction—

(a) the person is to be treated for all purposes in law as a person who has not committed or been charged with or prosecuted for or convicted of or sentenced for the offence or offences which were the subject of that conviction;

(b) no evidence is admissible in any proceedings before a court exercising jurisdiction or performing functions in the Falkland Islands to prove that the person has committed or been charged with or prosecuted for or convicted of or sentenced for any offence which was the subject of that conviction;

(c) the person must not, in any such proceedings, be asked, and, if asked, is not required to answer, any question relating to his or her past which cannot be answered without acknowledging or referring to that conviction or any circumstances ancillary to that conviction.

(2) If a question seeking information with respect to a person's previous convictions, offences, conduct or circumstances is put to the person or to any other person otherwise than in proceedings before a court —

(a) the question is to be treated as not relating to spent convictions or to any circumstances ancillary to spent convictions, and the answer to it may be framed accordingly; and

(b) the person questioned is not to be subject to any liability or otherwise prejudiced in law by reason of any failure to acknowledge or disclose a spent conviction or any circumstances ancillary to a spent conviction in his or her answer to the question.

(3) Any obligation imposed on any person by any rule of law or by the provisions of any agreement or arrangement to disclose any matters to any other person does not extend to requiring the person to disclose a spent conviction or any circumstances ancillary to a spent conviction (whether the conviction is that person's own or another's).

(4) A conviction which has become spent or any circumstances ancillary to such a conviction, or any failure to disclose a spent conviction or any such circumstances, is not a proper ground for dismissing or excluding a person from any office, profession, occupation or employment, or for prejudicing the person in any way in any occupation or employment.

(5) For the purposes of this section and section 632 any of the following are circumstances ancillary to a conviction —

(a) the offence or offences which were the subject of that conviction;

(b) the conduct constituting that offence or those offences;

(c) any process or proceedings preliminary to that conviction, any sentence imposed in respect of that conviction, any proceedings (whether by way of appeal or otherwise) for reviewing that conviction or any such sentence, and anything done pursuant to or undergone in compliance with any such sentence.

(6) For the purposes of this section and section 632, "proceedings before a court" include, in addition to proceedings before a court of law, proceedings before any tribunal, body or person that has power —

(a) by virtue of any enactment, law, custom or practice;

(b) under the rules governing any association, institution, profession, occupation or employment; or

(c) under any provision of an agreement providing for arbitration with respect to questions arising under it, to decide any question affecting the rights, privileges, obligations or liabilities of any person, or to receive evidence affecting the determination of any such question.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.133; UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.4 (part)]

629. Excluded sentences

(1) The sentences excluded from rehabilitation under this Part are —

(a) a sentence of imprisonment for life;

(b) a sentence of imprisonment for more than 48 months;

(c) a sentence of detention during Her Majesty's pleasure.

(2) Any other sentence is a sentence subject to rehabilitation under this Part.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.134(1); UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.5(1) am. by LASPO Act 2012 and adapted]

630. Rehabilitation periods for particular sentences – Schedule 10

(1) For the purposes of this Act and subject to subsections (3) and (4), the rehabilitation period for a sentence is the period —

(a) beginning with the date of the conviction in respect of which the sentence is imposed; and

(b) ending at the time listed in Schedule 10 in relation to that sentence:

(2) In Schedule 10, the age of the defendant is the age at the date of conviction.

(3) For the purposes of this section —

(a) consecutive terms of imprisonment, and terms which are wholly or partly concurrent (being terms of imprisonment or detention imposed in respect of offences of which a person was convicted in the same proceedings) are to be treated as a single term;

(b) no account is to be taken of any subsequent variation, made by a court in dealing with a person in respect of a suspended sentence of imprisonment, of the term originally imposed; and

(c) a sentence imposed by a court outside the Falkland Islands is to be treated as a sentence of that one of the descriptions mentioned in this section that most nearly corresponds to the sentence imposed.

(4) References in this section to the period during which a probation order, a care order or supervision order under the Children Ordinance 2014 (or any Ordinance replaced by that Ordinance), or a community sentence was in force include references to any period during which an order or sentence imposed in substitution for such an order or sentence is or was in force.

(5) In this section and section 631, a reference to a probation order is to such an order made under Part III of the Criminal Justice Ordinance before that Part was repealed by this Ordinance. [Criminal Justice Ord. s.134(2); UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.5(1A) to (11) am. by Policing & Crime Act 2009 s.18 and LASPO Act 2012 s.139]

631. The rehabilitation period applicable to a conviction

(1) If only one sentence is imposed in respect of a conviction (not being a sentence excluded from rehabilitation under this Part) the rehabilitation period applicable to the conviction is, subject to the following provisions of this section, the period applicable to the sentence in accordance with section 630.

(2) If more than one sentence is imposed in respect of a conviction (whether or not in the same proceedings) and none of the sentences imposed is excluded from rehabilitation under this Part, then, subject to this section, if the periods applicable to those sentences in accordance with section 630 differ, the rehabilitation period applicable to the conviction is the longer or the longest (as the case may be) of those periods.

(3) Without affecting subsection (2), if in respect of a conviction a person was conditionally discharged or placed on probation, or made the subject of a community sentence, and after the end of the rehabilitation period applicable to the conviction in accordance with subsection (1) or (2) the person is dealt with, in consequence of a breach of the conditional discharge, probation order or community sentence, for the offence for which the order for conditional discharge or probation order was made or community sentence imposed, subsection (4) applies.

(4) If the rehabilitation period applicable to the conviction in accordance with subsection (2) (taking into account any sentence imposed when the person is so dealt with) ends later than the rehabilitation period previously applicable to the conviction —

(a) the person is to be treated for the purposes of this Part as not having become a rehabilitated person in respect of that conviction; and

(b) the conviction is for those purposes to be treated as not having become spent, in relation to any period falling before the end of the new rehabilitation period.

(5) Subject to subsection (7), if during the rehabilitation period applicable to a conviction —

(a) the person convicted is convicted of a further offence; and

(b) no sentence excluded from rehabilitation under this Part is imposed on the person in respect of the later conviction, and if the rehabilitation period applicable in accordance with this section to either of the convictions would end earlier than the period so applicable in relation to the other, the rehabilitation period which would (apart from this subsection) end the earlier is extended so as to end at the same time as the other rehabilitation period.

(6) If a person is convicted of a further offence during a rehabilitation period in respect of an offence, then —

(a) if the rehabilitation period is the rehabilitation period applicable to an order imposing on the person any disqualification, disability, prohibition or other penalty, the rehabilitation period applicable to the later conviction is not extended by reference to that period; but

(b) if any other sentence is imposed in respect of the first-mentioned conviction for which a rehabilitation period is prescribed by section 630, the rehabilitation period applicable to the later conviction is, to be calculated by reference to the period applicable to that sentence or, if more than one such sentence is imposed, by reference to the longer or longest of the periods so applicable to those sentences, as if the period in question were the rehabilitation period applicable to the first-mentioned conviction.

(7) For the purposes of subsection (6)(a), any conviction by or before a court outside the Falkland Islands of an offence involving conduct which, if it had taken place in the Falkland Islands, would not have constituted an offence in the Falkland Islands, is to be disregarded.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.135; UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.6]

632. Limitations on rehabilitation under this Part, etc.

(1) Nothing in section 628(1) affects —

(a) the Governor's power under section 71 of the Constitution to pardon an offender;

(b) the power under the Prison Ordinance or under Part 26 (Custodial Sentences) to release a prisoner on licence;

(c) the enforcement by any process or proceedings of any fine or other sum adjudged to be paid by or imposed on a spent conviction;

(d) the issue of any process for the purpose of proceedings in respect of any breach of a condition or requirement applicable to a sentence imposed in respect of a spent conviction; or

(e) the operation of any enactment by virtue of which, in consequence of any conviction, a person is subject, otherwise than by way of sentence, to any disqualification, disability, prohibition or other penalty the period of which extends beyond the rehabilitation period applicable in accordance with section 631 to the conviction.

(2) Except as provided in section 637 (references in court to spent convictions), nothing in section 628(1) affects the determination of any issue, or prevents the admission or requirement of any evidence, relating to a person's previous convictions or to circumstances ancillary to it —

(a) in any criminal proceedings before a court in the Falkland Islands, including any appeal or reference in a criminal matter;

(b) in any proceedings relating to adoption or to the guardianship, wardship, marriage, custody, care or control of, or access to, any minor, or to the provision by any person of accommodation, care or schooling for minors;

(c) in any care proceedings under the Children Ordinance 2014 or on appeal from any such proceedings, or in any proceedings relating to the variation

(d) in any proceedings in which the person is a party or a witness, if, when the issue or the admission or requirement of the evidence falls to be decided, the person consents to the determination of the issue or, as the case may be, the admission or requirement of the evidence despite the provisions of section 628(1).

(3) If at any stage in any proceedings before a court in the Falkland Islands the court is satisfied, in the light of any considerations which appear to it to be relevant (including any evidence which has been or may thereafter be put before it), that justice cannot be done in the case except by admitting or requiring evidence relating to a person's spent convictions or to circumstances ancillary to them, the court may admit or, as the case may be, require the evidence in question despite the provisions of section 628(1), and may decide any issue to which the evidence relates in disregard, so far as necessary, of those provisions.

(4) Subsection (3) does not apply to proceedings to which, by virtue of section 629(1) or of an order made under subsection (5), section 628(1) has no application, or proceedings to which section 635 applies)

(5) The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order exclude the application of section 628(1) in relation to any proceedings specified in the order (other than proceedings to which section 635 applies) to the extent and for the purposes specified in the order.

(6) No order made by a court with respect to any person otherwise than on a conviction may be included in any list or statement of that person's previous convictions given or made to any court which is considering how to deal with the person in respect of an offence.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.136 modified; UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.7]

633. Exceptions to rehabilitation – Schedule 11

(1) Section 628(2) does not apply in relation to any question asked by or on behalf of any person in the course of the duties of his or her office or employment, in order to assess the suitability —

(a) of the person to whom the question relates for admission to any of the professions specified in Part 1 of Schedule 11;

(b) of the person to whom the question relates for any office or employment specified in Part 2 of Schedule 11;

(c) of the person to whom the question relates or of any other person to pursue any occupation specified in Part 3 of Schedule 11 or to pursue it subject to a particular condition or restriction; or

(d) of the person to whom the question relates or of any other person to hold a licence, certificate or permit of a kind specified in Part 4 of Schedule 11 or to hold it subject to a particular condition or restriction, if the person questioned is informed at the time the question is asked that, by virtue of this section, spent convictions are to be disclosed.

(2) Section 628(2) does not apply in relation to any question asked in the course of duties by or on behalf of a person employed in the service of the Government or of the Crown in right of the Falkland Islands or any statutory body prescribed for the purposes of this section by the Governor by order, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, if —

(a) the question is asked in order to assess, for the purpose of safeguarding national security, the suitability of the person to whom the question relates or of any other person; and

(b) the person questioned is informed at the time the question is asked that, by virtue of this section, spent convictions are to be disclosed for the purpose of safeguarding that security.

(3) Section 628(2) does not apply in relation to any question asked by or on behalf of a person ('A') in the course of A's duties at work, in order to assess the suitability of another person ('B') to work with children, if —

(a) the question relates to B;

(b) one of the following applies —

(i) B lives on the premises where B's work with children would normally take place and the question relates to a person ('C') living in the same household as B;

(ii) B lives on the premises where B's work with children would normally take place and the question relates to a person ('C') who regularly works on those premises at a time when the work with children usually takes place; or

(iii) the work for which B's suitability is being assessed is working with children which would normally take place on premises other than premises where B lives and the question relates to a person who lives on those other premises or to a person who regularly works on them at a time when the work takes place; and

(c) the person to whom the question relates is informed at the time the question is asked that, by virtue of this section, spent convictions are to be disclosed.

(4) Section 628(2) does not apply in relation to any question asked by or on behalf of a person ('A') in the course of A's duties to assess the suitability of another person ('B') to adopt children in general or a child in particular if —

(a) the question relates to B; or

(b) the question relates to a person over the age of 18 living in the same household as B, and if the person to whom the question relates is informed at the time the question is asked that, by virtue of this section, spent convictions are to be disclosed.

(5) Section 628(3) does not apply in relation to any question asked by or on behalf of any person ('A') in the course of the duties of A's work, in order to assess the suitability of a person ('B') to provide day care for children if —

(a) the question relates to B; or

(b) the question relates to a person who lives on the premises which are or are proposed to be day care premises, and if the person to whom the question relates is informed at the time the question is asked that, by virtue of this section, spent convictions are to be disclosed.

(6) Section 628(4) does not apply in relation to the dismissal or exclusion of any person from any profession specified in Part 1 of Schedule 11, or from any office or employment or occupation specified in Part 2 of that Schedule, or from any occupation specified in Part 3 of that Schedule.

(7) Section 628(4) does not apply in relation to any action taken for the purpose of safeguarding national security.

(8) Section 628(4) does not apply in relation to any proceedings specified in Part 5 of Schedule 11 to the extent that a decision needs to be taken in those proceedings relating to a person's spent conviction or to circumstances ancillary to a conviction.

[Criminal Justice Ord. RO (Exceptions) Order 1989; UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.4 (part); UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 (Exceptions) Order 1975 (part)]

634. Exceptions: Supplementary

(1) For the purpose of section 633 and Schedule 11, unless the context otherwise requires —

“day care premises” means any premises at which day care for children (as defined in the Children Ordinance 2014) is provided and children are looked after;

“work” includes —

- (a) work of any kind, whether paid or unpaid, and whether under a contract of service or apprenticeship, under a contract for services, or otherwise than under a contract; and
- (b) an office established by or by virtue of an enactment;

“work with children” means any work which is normally concerned with the provision of any form of information, advice or guidance wholly or mainly to children which relates to their physical, emotional or educational well-being and includes giving such advice by means of telephone or other form of electronic communication including the internet and mobile telephone text messaging.

(2) Schedule 11 applies in respect of all convictions and findings of guilt whatsoever and whatever the age of the person concerned at the date of any such conviction or finding of guilt.

(3) If, by virtue of section 633, the operation of any provision of this Part is excluded in relation to spent convictions, the exclusion is to be taken to extend to spent convictions for offences of every description.

[UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 (Exceptions) Order 1975 (part)]

635. Defamation actions

(1) This section applies to any action for libel or slander begun after the commencement of this Part by a rehabilitated person and founded upon the publication of any matter imputing that the claimant has committed or been charged with or prosecuted for or convicted of or sentenced for an offence which was the subject of a spent conviction.

(2) Nothing in section 628(1) affects an action to which this section applies if the publication complained of took place before the conviction in question became spent, and the following provisions of this section do not apply in any such case.

(3) Subject to subsections (5) and (6), nothing in section 628(1) prevents the defendant in an action to which this section applies from relying on any defence of justification or fair comment or of absolute or qualified privilege which is available to the defendant, or restricts the matters the defendant may establish in support of any such defence.

(4) Without limiting subsection (3), if in any such action malice is alleged against a defendant who is relying on a defence of qualified privilege, nothing in section 628(1) restricts the matters he or she may establish in rebuttal of the allegation.

(5) A defendant in any such action is not by virtue of subsection (3) entitled to rely upon the defence of justification if the publication is proved to have been made with malice.

(6) Subject to subsection (7), a defendant in any such action is not, by virtue of subsection (3), entitled to rely on any matter or adduce or require any evidence for the purpose of establishing the defence that the matter published constituted a fair and accurate report of judicial proceedings, if it is proved that the publication contained a reference to evidence which was ruled to be inadmissible in the proceedings by virtue of section 628(1).

(7) Subsection (3) applies without the qualifications imposed by subsection (6) in relation to —

(a) a report of judicial proceedings contained in any bona fide series of law reports which does not form part of any other publication and consists solely of reports of proceedings in courts of law;

(b) a report or account of judicial proceedings published for bona fide educational, scientific or professional purposes, or given in the course of any lecture, class or discussion given or held for any of those purposes.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.137; UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.8]

Disclosure of spent convictions and cautions

636. Unauthorised disclosure of spent convictions

(1) In this section —

(a) “official record” means a record which —

(i) contains conviction information; and

(ii) is kept for the purposes of its functions by any court, police force, Government department or other public authority in the Falkland Islands;

(b) “conviction information” means information imputing that a named or otherwise identifiable rehabilitated living person (“the rehabilitated person”) has committed or been charged with or prosecuted for or convicted of or sentenced for any offence which is the subject of a spent conviction; and

(c) “relevant person” means any person who, in the course of his or her official duties has or at any time has had custody of or access to any official record or the information contained in it.

(2) Subject to an order under subsection (5), a relevant person commits an offence if, knowing or having reasonable cause to suspect that any conviction information he or she has obtained in the course of those duties is conviction information, the person discloses it, otherwise than in the course of those duties, to another person.

Penalty: A fine at level 4 on the standard scale.

(3) In proceedings for an offence under subsection (2) it is a defence to show that the disclosure was made —

(a) to the rehabilitated person or to another person at the express request of the rehabilitated person; or

(b) to a person whom the defendant reasonably believed to be the rehabilitated person or to another person at the express request of a person whom the defendant reasonably believed to be the rehabilitated person.

(4) A person who obtains any conviction information from any official record by means of fraud, dishonesty or a bribe commits an offence.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 6 months or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both.

(5) The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order make provision for excepting the disclosure of conviction information derived from an official record from the provisions of subsection (2) in the cases or classes of case specified in the order.

(6) Proceedings for an offence under subsection (2) or (4) may not be commenced except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney General.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.138; UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s.9]

637. References to spent convictions and cautions in court proceedings

(1) The court and every legal practitioner appearing in a court should not refer to a spent conviction or caution if such reference can reasonably be avoided.

(2) After a verdict of guilty —

(a) the court must be provided with a statement of the defendant's record for the purpose of sentence;

(b) the record should contain all previous convictions and cautions, but those which are spent should, as far as possible, be marked as such.

(3) No person should refer in open court to a spent conviction or caution without the authority of the judge or person presiding, which authority should not be given unless the interests of justice so require.

(4) A person when passing sentence should make no reference to spent convictions or cautions unless it is necessary to do so to explain the sentence being passed.

(5) In this section and section 638 “spent caution” has the meaning given to it by section 136.

[UK Practice Direction (Criminal Proceedings: Consolidation) 2002 para.1.6]

638. Character reports and protected convictions and cautions

(1) Subject to this section, a spent conviction or spent caution may be disclosed in a report on the antecedents and character of a defendant prepared by a police officer for the purpose of section 637(2)(a) (a “character report”.)

(2) A protected conviction or caution must not be included in a character report.

(3) A conviction is a protected conviction if the conditions in subsection (4) are satisfied and —

(a) if the person was under 18 years at the time of the conviction - 5 ½ years or more have passed since the date of the conviction; or

(b) if the person was 18 years or over at the time of the conviction - 11 years or more have passed since the date of the conviction.

(4) The conditions referred to in subsection (3) are that —

(a) the offence of which the person was convicted was not a listed offence;

(b) no custodial sentence was imposed in respect of the conviction; and

(c) the person has not been convicted of any other offence at any time.

(5) A caution is a protected caution if it was given to a person for an offence other than a listed offence and —

(a) if the person was under 18 years at the time the caution was given - 2 years or more have passed since the date on which it was given; or

(b) if the person was 18 years or over at the time the caution was given - 6 years or more have passed since the date on which it was given.

(6) For protected convictions and cautions the following will apply —

(a) a cautions administered to a young offender will not be subject to disclosure after a period of 2 years;

(b) an adult caution will not be subject to disclosure after a period of 6 years;

(c) a conviction received as a young offender resulting in a non-custodial sentence will not be subject to disclosure after a period of 5 1/2 years.

(d) an adult conviction resulting in a non-custodial sentence will not be subject to disclosure after a period of 11 years;

(e) a conviction will still be subject to disclosure if there is some other conviction on the individual's record, whether as a young offender or an adult.

(7) In subsections (4)(a) and (5) "listed offence" means —

(a) an offence listed in Schedule 3 or 4 to the Crimes Ordinance 2014;

(b) an offence under the Medicines Ordinance relating to prescribing of medicinal products;

(c) an offence under Part 12 of the Mental Health Ordinance;

- (d) any offence relating to child minding, day care, private fostering or the registration or administration of a children's home;
- (e) an offence superseded (whether directly or indirectly) by any offence falling within paragraphs (a) to (d);
- (f) an offence under any enactment specified by the Governor by order, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council;
- (g) attempting or conspiring to commit any offence falling within paragraphs (b) to (f);
- (h) encouraging, or aiding and abetting, any such offence;
- (i) an offence under the law of any country or territory outside the Falkland Islands which corresponds to any offence under the law of the Falkland Islands falling within paragraphs (a) to (h).

[UK Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 (Exceptions) Order 1975 (Amendment) (England and Wales) Order 2013 Art.2A]

Disregarded convictions and cautions

639. Certain convictions and cautions to be disregarded

(1) A person who has been convicted of, or cautioned for, an offence under any of the offences mentioned in subsection (2) may apply to the Governor for the conviction or caution to become a disregarded conviction or caution.

(2) The offences are any offence under —

- (a) section 12 of the UK Sexual Offences Act 1956 (buggery);
- (b) section 13 of that Act (gross indecency between men);
- (c) section 61 of the UK Offences against the Person Act 1861 (corresponding earlier offences), as applied to the Falkland Islands until repealed by the UK Sexual Offences Act 2003.

(3) A conviction or caution becomes a disregarded conviction or caution when conditions A and B are met.

(4) Condition A is that it appears to the Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, that —

- (a) the other person involved in the conduct constituting the offence consented to it and was aged 16 or over; and

(b) any such conduct now would not be an offence under section 289 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Sexual activity in a public lavatory).

(5) Condition B is that the Governor has given notice of the decision to the applicant under section 640(5) and at least 14 days have expired since the notice was given.

[UK Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 s. 92]

640. Procedure on an application

(1) An application under section 639 must be in writing and must state —

- (a) the name, address and date of birth of the applicant;
- (b) the name and address of the applicant at the time of the conviction or caution;
- (c) so far as known to the applicant, the time when and the place where the conviction was made or the caution given and, for a conviction, the case number; and
- (d) any other information the Governor reasonably requires.

(2) An application may include representations by the applicant or written evidence about the matters mentioned in condition A in section 639(4).

(3) In considering whether to make a decision of the kind mentioned in condition A in section 639(4), the Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, must, in particular, consider —

- (a) any representations or evidence included in the application; and
- (b) any available record of the investigation of the offence and of any proceedings relating to it that the Governor considers to be relevant.

(4) The Governor may not hold an oral hearing for the purpose of deciding whether to make a decision of the kind mentioned in condition A in section 639(4).

(5) If the Governor, after consulting as aforesaid —

- (a) decides that it appears as mentioned in condition A in section 639(4); or
- (b) makes a different decision in relation to the matters mentioned in that condition, the Governor must record the decision in writing and give notice of it to the applicant.

[UK Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 ss. 93 and 94]

641. Effect of disregard on police and other records

(1) The Governor must by notice direct the relevant data controller to delete details contained in relevant official records, of a disregarded conviction or caution.

(2) A notice under subsection (1) may be given at any time after condition A in section 639(4) is met, but no deletion is to have effect before condition B in subsection (5) of that section is met.

(3) Subject to that, the relevant data controller must delete the details as soon as reasonably practicable.

(4) Having done so, the relevant data controller must give notice to the person who has the disregarded conviction or caution that the details of it have been deleted.

(5) In this section —

“delete”, in relation to relevant official records, means record with the details of the conviction or caution concerned —

- (a) the fact that it is a disregarded conviction or caution; and
- (b) the effect of it being such a conviction or caution;

“official records” means records containing information about persons convicted of, or cautioned for, offences and kept by the Royal Falkland Islands Police Force, or by any court or government department of and in the Falkland Islands for the purposes of its functions;

“prescribed” means prescribed by the Governor by order, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council;

“relevant data controller” means —

- (a) in relation to the names database, the Chief Police Officer;
- (b) in relation to other relevant official records, a prescribed person;

“relevant official records” means —

- (a) the names database; and
- (b) any other prescribed official records.

[UK Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 s.95]

642. Effect of disregard for disclosure and other purposes

(1) A person who has a disregarded conviction or caution is to be treated for all purposes in law as if the person has not —

- (a) committed the offence;
- (b) been charged with, or prosecuted for, the offence;
- (c) been convicted of the offence;

(d) been sentenced for the offence; or

(e) been cautioned for the offence.

(2) In particular —

(a) no evidence is to be admissible in any proceedings before a court exercising its jurisdiction or functions in the Falkland Islands to prove that the person has done, or undergone, anything within subsection (1)(a) to (e); and

(b) the person is not, in any such proceedings, to be asked (and, if asked, is not to be required to answer) any question relating to the person's past which cannot be answered without acknowledging or referring to the conviction or caution or any circumstances ancillary to it.

(3) If a question is put to a person, other than in such proceedings, seeking information with respect to the previous convictions, cautions, offences, conduct or circumstances of any person—

(a) the question is to be treated as not relating to any disregarded conviction or caution, or any circumstances ancillary to it (and the answer to the question may be framed accordingly); and

(b) the person questioned is not to be subjected to any liability or otherwise prejudiced in law by reason of any failure to acknowledge or disclose that conviction or caution or any circumstances ancillary to it in answering the question.

(4) Any obligation imposed on any person by any enactment or rule of law or by the provisions of any agreement or arrangement to disclose any matters to any other person is not to extend to requiring the disclosure of a disregarded conviction or caution or any circumstances ancillary to it.

(5) A disregarded conviction or caution, or any circumstances ancillary to it, is not a proper ground for —

(a) dismissing or excluding a person from any office, profession, occupation or employment; or

(b) prejudicing the person in any way in any office, profession, occupation or employment.

(6) This section is subject to subsection (7) but otherwise applies despite any enactment or rule of law to the contrary.

(7) Nothing in this section affects —

(a) any power of the Governor under section 71 of the Constitution to grant a free pardon, grant a respite from the execution of any punishment, substitute a less severe form of punishment or remit the whole or any part of any punishment; or

(b) the power of any court under any enactment to vary or quash any sentence on appeal or review.

[UK Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 ss.96 and 97 adapted]

643. Supplementary provisions

(1) In section 642 “proceedings before a court” includes (in addition to proceedings before any of the ordinary courts of law) proceedings before any tribunal, body or person having power —

- (a) by virtue of any enactment, law, custom or practice;
- (b) under the rules governing any association, institution, profession, occupation or employment; or
- (c) under any provision of an agreement providing for arbitration with respect to questions arising under that agreement, to determine any question affecting the rights, privileges, obligations or liabilities of any person, or to receive evidence affecting the determination of any such question.

(2) For the purposes of section 642, circumstances ancillary to a conviction are any circumstances of —

- (a) the offence which was the subject of the conviction;
- (b) the conduct constituting the offence;
- (c) any process or proceedings preliminary to the conviction;
- (d) any sentence imposed in respect of the conviction;
- (e) any proceedings (whether by way of appeal or otherwise) for reviewing the conviction or any such sentence;
- (f) anything done pursuant to, or undergone in compliance with, any such sentence.

(3) For the purposes of section 642, circumstances ancillary to a caution are any circumstances of—

- (a) the offence which was the subject of the caution;
- (b) the conduct constituting the offence;
- (c) any process preliminary to the caution (including consideration by any person of how to deal with the offence and the procedure for giving the caution);
- (d) any proceedings for the offence which take place before the caution is given;

(e) anything which happens after the caution is given for the purpose of bringing any such proceedings to an end; and

(f) any judicial review proceedings relating to the caution.

[UK Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 s.98]

644. Appeal against refusal to disregard convictions or cautions

(1) The applicant may appeal to the Supreme Court if —

(a) the Governor makes a decision of the kind mentioned in section 640(5)(b); and

(b) the Supreme Court gives permission for an appeal against the decision.

(2) On such an appeal, the Supreme Court must make its decision only on the basis of the evidence that was available to the Governor.

(3) If the Supreme Court decides that it appears as mentioned in condition A in section 639(4), it must make an order to that effect.

(4) Otherwise it must dismiss the appeal.

(5) A conviction or caution to which an order under subsection (3) relates becomes a disregarded conviction or caution when the period of 14 days beginning with the day on which the order was made has ended.

(6) There is no appeal from a decision of the Supreme Court under this section.

[UK Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 s.99]

645. Advisors

(1) The Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may appoint persons to advise whether, in any case referred to them by the Governor, the Governor should decide as mentioned in condition A in section 639(4).

(2) The Governor may disclose to a person so appointed such information (including anything within section 640(3)(a) or (b)) as the Governor considers relevant to the provision of such advice.

(3) The Governor may pay expenses and allowances to a person so appointed.

[UK Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 s.100]

CHAPTER 9 – COSTS

PART 30 – COSTS IN CRIMINAL CASES

646. Interpretation of Part

(1) In this Part —

“costs order” means an order for payment of the costs of a defendant or a prosecutor, pursuant to this Part;

“defendant” includes a person who is accused in an information or indictment and a person who is convicted at a trial and appeals against the conviction or sentence;

“witness ” means any person properly attending to give evidence, whether or not the person gives evidence or is called at the instance of one of the parties or of the court, but does not include a person attending as a witness to character only unless the court has certified that the interests of justice required the person’s attendance.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.21 (part)]

647. Award of costs

(1) A court may order the payment of costs —

- (a) to the prosecutor, whether public or private, by a person convicted of an offence;
- (b) to any person acquitted of any offence, by the prosecutor, whether public or private, if the court considers that the prosecutor had no reasonable grounds for prosecuting the person;
- (c) to the defendant in a trial, by the prosecutor, if the court considers that the charge or indictment, as the case may be, contains unnecessary matter, or is of unnecessary length, or is materially defective in any respect and that the defendant has incurred unnecessary costs as a result;
- (d) to the respondent to an appeal, by an appellant, if the appeal fails;
- (e) to an appellant, by a respondent, if the appeal is successful;
- (f) to any person in any matter of an interlocutory nature, including a request for an adjournment, if the person has been put to any expense when in the opinion of the court the applicant had no reasonable or proper grounds for making the application.

(2) The costs awarded under subsection (1) —

- (a) must be a sum that appears to the court to be just and reasonable in the circumstances of the case;

(b) without affecting sections 648 and 649, must take account of any plea of guilty and the manner in which the parties have conducted the case; and

(c) must take account of any scale of costs set by the Criminal Justice Council.

(3) Costs awarded against a prosecutor (not being a private prosecutor) are payable out of the Consolidated Fund.

(4) Costs payable to a prosecutor by a defendant who has been granted legal aid are payable out of legal aid funds.

(5) Costs awarded on an appeal are payable out of the Consolidated Fund, unless the award —

(a) is against a private prosecutor, in which case the prosecutor is liable to pay them;

(b) is against a legally aided person, in which case the legal aid funds are liable to pay them.

(6) A costs order against a youth must not exceed —

(a) the amount of any fine that is imposed on the youth (if a fine is imposed); or

(b) the limit on the fine that could be imposed on the youth under section 733.

(7) No costs in a criminal matter may be awarded against legal aid funds except as provided by subsection (4).

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 ss.16 to 18 adapted]

648. Costs orders in special circumstances

(1) If a court is satisfied that one party to criminal proceedings has incurred costs as a result of an unnecessary or improper act or omission by, or on behalf of, another party to the proceedings, the court may make an order for the payment of those costs by that other party, subject to subsection (2).

(2) A costs order made under subsection (1) —

(a) may be made at any time during the proceedings;

(b) must take account of any other order as to costs which has been made in respect of the proceedings;

(c) must be taken into account in the making of any other order as to costs in respect of the proceedings; and

(d) must specify the amount to be paid by the relevant party under the order.

(3) A court may order the payment out of the Consolidated Fund of such sums as appear to the court to be reasonably necessary —

(a) to compensate any person who is called by the court as a witness in the proceedings or who in the opinion of the court necessarily attends for the purpose of the proceedings otherwise than to give evidence, for the expense, trouble or loss of time properly incurred in or incidental to that attendance, at the court or elsewhere;

(b) to cover the proper expenses of an interpreter who is required because of the defendant's lack of English, except as provided in section 652(4);

(c) to compensate a medical practitioner (other than one employed by the Government) who makes an oral or written report to the court pursuant to a request made by the court under any provision of this Ordinance, for the expenses properly incurred in or incidental to reporting to the court;

(d) to cover the proper fee or costs of a person appointed by the court under any provision of this Ordinance to represent the interests of any defendant or witness, and any expenses properly incurred in providing such a person with evidence or other material in connection with the appointment.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.19 adapted]

649. Costs against legal practitioners

(1) In any criminal proceedings, a court may disallow, or (as the case may be) order the legal practitioner concerned to meet, the whole of any wasted costs or such part of them as may be determined by the court in accordance with relevant criminal procedure rules, or in the absence of such rules, as the court thinks fit.

(2) A legal practitioner against whom action is taken by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court under subsection (1) may appeal to the Supreme Court, and a legal practitioner against whom action is taken by the Supreme Court under subsection (1) may appeal to the Court of Appeal.

(3) In this section, "wasted costs" means any costs incurred by a party —

(a) as a result of any improper, unreasonable, or negligent act or omission on the part of a legal practitioner, or any employee of a legal practitioner; or

(b) which, in the light of any such act or omission occurring after they were incurred, the court considers it is unreasonable to expect that party to pay.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.19A]

650. Costs against third parties

(1) A court may at any time during the course of criminal proceedings before the court make a third party costs order, if the conditions in subsection (3) are satisfied.

(2) A “third party costs order” is an order as to the payment of costs incurred by a party to criminal proceedings by a person who is not a party to those proceedings (“the third party”).

(3) The conditions are that —

(a) there has been serious misconduct (whether or not constituting a contempt of court) by a person who is not a party to those proceedings; and

(b) the court considers it appropriate, having regard to that misconduct, to make a third party costs order against the person.

(4) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules specify types of misconduct in respect of which a third party costs order may not be made.

(5) Any other order as to costs which has been made in respect of the proceedings may be varied upon, or taken account of in, the making of a third party costs order.

(6) Account must be taken of any third party costs order in the making of any other order as to costs in respect of the proceedings.

(7) A person against whom a third party costs order has been made in the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court may appeal to the Supreme Court against the order.

(8) A person against whom a third party costs order has been made in the Supreme Court may appeal to the Court of Appeal against the order.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.19B]

651. Appeals on costs

(1) An appeal may be brought to the Supreme Court against any award of costs of over £50 by the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court, but only if the leave of the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, or of a judge is given for the bringing of the appeal.

(2) Subject to subsection (3) an appeal may not be brought —

(a) against an order of the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court refusing to award costs;

(b) against an order of the Supreme Court in respect of costs, including an order on an appeal under subsection (1).

(3) A court hearing an appeal relating to any other matter than costs may vary any order relating to costs made by the court from whose decision the appeal is made.

(4) An appellate court may by order annul or vary a costs order made by the trial court even if the conviction is not quashed or the sentence varied, and the order, if annulled, does not take effect, and, if varied, takes effect as so varied.

652. Assessment of costs

(1) Subject to this Part, costs should be reasonably sufficient to compensate the person to whom they are awarded for any expenses properly incurred in the conduct of the prosecution, defence, appeal or application, as the case may be, including any preliminary or incidental proceedings.

(2) For the purposes of this Part, the costs of any party to proceedings include the expense of compensating any witness called by the party for the expenses, trouble or loss of time properly incurred in or incidental to attendance by the witness.

(3) Costs ordered to be paid under this Part may include the reasonable cost of any transcript of a record of proceedings made, in accordance with relevant criminal procedure rules, for the purposes of an appeal or application.

(4) If, in any proceedings in a criminal cause or matter or in either of the cases mentioned in subsection (5), an interpreter is required because of the defendant's lack of English, the expenses properly incurred are to be paid out of the Consolidated Fund.

(5) The cases are —

(a) if an information charging the defendant with an offence is laid before a justice of the peace but not proceeded with and the expenses are incurred on the employment of the interpreter for the proceedings on the information; and

(b) if the defendant is sent for trial but not tried and the expenses are incurred on the employment of the interpreter for the proceedings in the Supreme Court.

(6) The amount to be paid under a costs order must —

(a) if the court considers it appropriate for the amount to be specified and the person in whose favour the order is made agrees the amount - be specified in the order; and

(b) in any other case - be determined in accordance with relevant criminal procedure rules.

(7) If a court makes a costs order but is of the opinion that there are circumstances which make it inappropriate that the person in whose favour the order is made should recover the full amount mentioned in subsection (1), the court must, after hearing representations from the person —

(a) assess what amount would, in its opinion, be just and reasonable; and

(b) specify that amount in the order.

(8) If a person ordered to be retried is acquitted at the retrial, the costs which may be ordered to be paid under this section include —

(a) any costs which, at the original trial, could have been ordered to be paid under this section if the person had been acquitted; and

(b) if no order was made under this section in respect of the person's expenses on appeal - any sums for the payment of which such an order could have been made.

(9) Costs payable under this Part and not specified by the court are to be assessed by the Registrar in the case of the Supreme Court and by the Clerk of the court in the case of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court.

(10) Sections 98 to 102 of the Court of Appeal Rules (which provide for assessment and taxation of costs on appeal to the Court of Appeal) apply to the making of costs orders under this Part by the Court of Appeal unless and until the Chief Justice makes criminal procedure rules for the assessment of costs on appeal.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 ss.16 (part) and 21 (part)]

653. Enforcement of costs orders

(1) Sums allowed for costs under this Part must in all cases be specified in the conviction, sentence or order, but may be made subject to assessment as provided by section 652.

(2) If a court makes an order against a person for the payment of costs, the court may —

(a) allow time for the payment of the sum due under the order;

(b) direct payment of that sum by instalments of amounts and on dates that the court specifies.

(3) An order under this Part for the payment of costs by a defendant is enforceable under Part 27 (Fines and Recognisances) as if it were a fine imposed on a conviction.

(4) An order under this Part for the payment of costs by any other party or by a legal practitioner is enforceable as a civil debt.

(5) If the person liable to pay is the person convicted, the court may direct that an order for costs is to be paid out of any money taken from the person on arrest.

(6) No steps to enforce an order under this Part may be taken until the time for appealing against the award of costs has passed or the person against whom the award was made has indicated that the person does not intend to appeal, or the appeal has been disposed of.

[Criminal Justice Ord s.15; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.141 adapted]

654. Criminal procedure rules

(1) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision giving effect to this Part, and in particular, but without limiting that power, may, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council —

(a) with the approval of the Governor (acting in his or her discretion), prescribe the scales or rates of payments of any costs payable out of the Consolidated Fund pursuant to a costs order;

(b) prescribe the expenses which may be included in such costs;

(c) prescribe the circumstances in which and conditions under which such costs may be allowed and paid;

(d) provide for the review, as respects costs payable out of the Consolidated Fund pursuant to a costs order, of any decision on taxation, or determination of the amount, of the costs; and

(e) provide for the repayment of overpaid costs by the person to whom they were paid.

(2) Any provision made by or under this Part enabling any sum to be paid out of the Consolidated Fund has effect subject to relevant criminal procedure rules.

[UK Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s.20]

655. Saving provisions

(1) Nothing in this Part affects the provision in any law for the payment of the costs of the prosecution or defence of any offence out of any assets, money or fund or by any person other than the prosecutor or defendant.

(2) Costs awarded under this Part may be awarded in addition to any compensation awarded under Part 28 (Compensation, Restitution, Deprivation, etc.).

(3) This Part does not displace —

(a) the provision about costs on the abandonment of an appeal in section 658(2);

(b) the provisions about costs on entry of a plea of guilty in absence under Part 16 (Summary Procedure), or any other specific statutory provision about payment of costs in criminal proceedings.

CHAPTER 10 – APPEALS

PART 31 – APPEALS TO AND FROM THE SUPREME COURT

Appeals to Supreme Court

656. Right of appeal to Supreme Court in criminal proceedings

(1) A person convicted by the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court may appeal to the Supreme Court —

(a) if the person pleaded guilty - against the sentence;

(b) if the person did not plead guilty - against the conviction or sentence, or both.

(2) A person sentenced by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court for an offence in respect of which a probation order or conditional discharge has been previously made may appeal to the Supreme Court against the sentence.

(3) An appeal may be made against a conviction resulting in an absolute or conditional discharge, even though such a discharge may for certain purposes not be regarded as a conviction.

(4) In this section "sentence" includes any order made on conviction by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, except —

(a) an order for the payment of costs;

(b) an order under any enactment which enables a court to order the destruction of an animal, fish or bird;

(c) an order made pursuant to any enactment under which the court has no discretion as to the making of the order or as to its terms.

(5) If a person is ordered by the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court to enter into a recognisance with or without sureties to keep the peace or to be of good behaviour, the person may appeal to the Supreme Court and in the case of any such appeal —

(a) the other party to the proceedings which were the occasion of the making of the order is the respondent to the appeal;

(b) in relation to an appellant in custody for failure to comply with the order, 153 (Bail on appeal) applies, with necessary modifications, as if the appeal were an appeal against a conviction;

(c) the appeal may be treated as an appeal against conviction for purposes of the grant of legal aid.

[UK Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s.108]

657. Notice of appeal

(1) An appeal under section 656 is commenced by the appellant giving notice of appeal to the Clerk of the court and to the other party within 21 days after the day on which the decision of the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court was given.

(2) For the purpose of subsection (1), the day on which the decision of the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court is given is —

(a) if the court adjourns the trial of an information after conviction - the day on which the court sentences or otherwise deals with the offender;

(b) if the court defers sentence - the day to which sentence is deferred.

(3) A notice of appeal must —

(a) be in writing; and

(b) state the grounds of appeal.

(4) The time for giving notice of appeal may be extended, either before or after it expires, by direction of the Chief Justice, on an application in writing to the Registrar, specifying the grounds of the application.

(5) If the Chief Justice extends the time for giving notice of appeal, the Registrar must give notice of the extension to —

(a) the appellant; and

(b) the Clerk of the court, and the appellant must give notice to any other party to the appeal.

(6) On receiving a notice of appeal, the Clerk of the court must send the notice and the record of the proceedings to the Registrar, who must —

(a) enter the appeal; and

(b) give notice of the date, time and place of the hearing to the appellant, any other party to the appeal and the Clerk of the court.

(7) A notice required by this section to be given to any person may be sent by post in a registered letter addressed to the person at the person's last or usual place of residence.

[UK Criminal Procedure Rules 2005 rule 63]

658. Abandonment of appeal

(1) An appellant may abandon an appeal to the Supreme Court in a criminal proceeding by giving notice in writing, not later than the third day before the day fixed for hearing the appeal, to the Registrar, with a copy to the Clerk of the court.

(2) If notice of abandonment of an appeal has been duly given by the appellant —

(a) the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, may issue process for enforcing its decision, subject to anything already suffered or done under it by the appellant; and

(b) the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, may, on the application of the other party to the appeal, order the appellant to pay to that party any costs that appear to the court to be just and reasonable in respect of expenses properly incurred or work done by or on behalf of that party in connection with the appeal before notice of abandonment was given to that party.

(3) Costs ordered to be paid under this section are enforceable as a civil debt.

[UK Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s.109]

659. Duties of Registrar

(1) The Registrar must, in respect of any criminal appeal that has not been abandoned —

(a) take all necessary steps for obtaining a hearing under this Part of any appeals of which notice is given to the Registrar; and

(b) obtain and lay before the Chief Justice in proper form all documents, exhibits, and other things relating to the proceedings in the court before which the appellant was tried that appear to be necessary for the proper determination of the appeal.

(2) Any documents, exhibits, or other things connected with the proceedings on the trial of any person, who, if convicted, is entitled or may be authorised to appeal, must be kept in the custody of the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court, as the case may be, in accordance with relevant rules, for the time provided by the rules, and subject to any power given by the rules for the conditional release of any such documents, exhibits, or things from that custody.

(3) The Registrar must provide the necessary forms and instructions in relation to notices of appeal under this Part to any person who demands them, and to the Clerk of the court.

(4) The Chief Police Officer must cause —

(a) the forms and instructions referred to in subsection (4) to be placed at the disposal of prisoners wishing to appeal; and

(b) any notice of appeal given by a prisoner in custody to be forwarded on behalf of the prisoner to the Registrar.

(5) In this section “the relevant rules” means —

(a) the Falkland Islands Court of Appeal Rules as they apply to criminal appeals to the Court of Appeal, but replacing references to the Court of Appeal by references to the Supreme Court, references to the Supreme Court by references to the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court as the case may be, and references to the Registrar by references to the Clerk of the Court, and with other appropriate modifications; or

(b) any replacement of those rules that applies to appeals to the Supreme Court in criminal matters.

[Court of Appeal Ord. (part) by analogy; SH Criminal Procedure Ord.; Gibraltar CPE Act]

660. Summary dismissal of appeal

(1) If it appears to the Chief Justice that any notice of an appeal against a conviction or sentence, does not show any substantial ground of appeal, the Chief Justice may, if he or she considers that the appeal is frivolous or vexatious, and can be decided without adjourning the same for a full hearing, dismiss the appeal summarily, without calling on any persons to attend the hearing or to appear for the Crown on the appeal, despite any other provisions of this Part.

(2) For the purpose of section 681 of this Ordinance and section 5(1) of the Court of Appeal Ordinance, a decision by the Chief Justice under this section is an interlocutory decision of the Supreme Court in its appellate capacity.

(3) The powers of the Chief Justice under subsection (1) may be exercised while the Chief Justice is outside the Falkland Islands.

[Court of Appeal Ord. (part) by analogy]

661. Procedure at hearing

(1) An appeal to the Supreme Court under section 656 is to be decided by the Supreme Court after —

(a) perusing a copy, certified as a true copy by the Clerk of the court, of the notes made the Clerk of the proceedings before the Magistrate’s Court or Summary Court, as the case may be, or other transcript of those proceedings;

(b) perusing the Grounds of Appeal and any Respondent’s Notice or further written legal submission which has been made by either party; and

(c) hearing the parties to the appeal or their legal practitioners.

(2) The parties to the appeal or their legal practitioners are to be heard in the following order—

(a) the appellant or the appellant’s legal practitioner first addresses the court in support of the appeal;

(b) the prosecutor then addresses the court;

(c) the appellant or the appellant’s legal practitioner then has the right of reply.

(3) If neither party appears or is represented on an appeal, the appeal must be dismissed.

(4) An appellant, even if in custody, is entitled to be present, if he or she desires it, on the hearing of an appeal, including —

(a) on a ground involving a question of law alone;

(b) on proceedings preliminary or incidental to an appeal;

(c) any stage of an appeal conducted by live link.

(5) The power of the Supreme Court to pass any sentence under this Part may be exercised even if the appellant is for any reason not present, but only if the appellant is legally represented.

(6) Section 153 applies as regards the grant of bail by the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court on an appeal.

(7) Subject to subsection (9), and unless the Supreme Court otherwise orders, any sentence passed on appeal under this Ordinance in substitution for another sentence begins to run from the time when that other sentence would have begun to run.

(8) Unless the Supreme Court otherwise directs, the time during which an appellant is in custody pending the determination of his or her appeal is to be reckoned as part of the term of any sentence to which the appellant is for the time being subject. If the Supreme Court otherwise directs, it must state its reasons for doing so.

(9) If a person subject to sentence is granted bail pending an appeal to the Supreme Court, the time during which the person is released on bail is to be disregarded in computing the term of any sentence to which the person is for the time being subject.

(10) So far as is convenient and practicable, and to the extent that any matter is not provided for by this Part, the practice and procedure of the Supreme Court in the exercise of its criminal appellate jurisdiction is to be the same as that of the Court of Appeal in relation to criminal appeals, with necessary modifications, including but not limited to those mentioned in section 659(5)(a).

(11) Section 183 (which enables judicial functions to be exercised outside the Falkland Islands) applies to appeals under this Part if the conditions mentioned in section 183(4) are satisfied.
[Admin. of Justice Ord. s.48(2) adapted; Court of Appeal Ord. s.8 etc. by analogy; SH Criminal Procedure Ord.; Gibraltar CPE Act]

662. Powers of Supreme Court on a criminal appeal

(1) On an appeal under section 656 against conviction, the Supreme Court may —

- (a) quash the conviction and acquit the appellant;
- (b) affirm the conviction;
- (c) substitute a conviction for any other offence of which the appellant could have been lawfully convicted in the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be; or
- (d) order a retrial of the appellant before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be;
- (e) order the payment of costs in accordance with Part 30 (Costs in Criminal Cases).

(2) On an appeal against sentence, or against conviction and sentence, the Supreme Court may—

(a) affirm the sentence;

(b) substitute any other sentence, whether more or less severe and whether of the same nature or not, that the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, would have had power to pass; or

(c) substitute a finding of not guilty by reason of mental disorder for any sentence;

(d) order the payment of costs in accordance with Part 30 (Costs in Criminal Cases).

(3) On an appeal against any other order, the Supreme Court may affirm, quash or vary the order, in which case the Supreme Court may make any consequential or incidental order that appears to it to be just and proper.

(4) Subsections (1) to (3) have effect subject to any enactment relating to any such appeal which expressly limits or restricts the powers of the Supreme Court on the appeal.

(5) This section applies whether or not the appeal is against the whole of the decision.

(6) Neither the Senior Magistrate nor any other justice of the peace is liable to any costs in respect or by reason of an appeal under this Part.

[Court of Appeal Ord. (part) by analogy]

663. Appeals against conviction

(1) Subject to subsection (2), the Supreme Court, upon the hearing of an appeal against conviction, must allow the appeal if it thinks that —

(a) the verdict should be set aside on the ground that under all the circumstances of the case it is unsafe or unsatisfactory;

(b) the judgment of the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court should be set aside because of a wrong decision on any question of law; or

(c) there was a material irregularity in the course of the trial, and in any other case must dismiss the appeal.

(2) The Supreme Court, even if it is of the opinion that the point raised in the appeal might be decided in favour of the appellant, may dismiss the appeal if it considers that no miscarriage of justice has actually occurred.

(3) Subject to this Part, the Supreme Court must, if it allows an appeal against conviction, quash the conviction and direct a judgment and order of acquittal to be entered.

[UK Criminal Appeal Act 1968 s.2 applied by analogy]

664. Appeals against sentence

(1) On an appeal against sentence under this Part, if 2 or more sentences were passed by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court in the same proceedings, an appeal against any one of those sentences is to be treated as an appeal or application in respect of both or all of them.

(2) For the purposes of this section, any 2 or more sentences are to be treated as passed in the same proceedings if —

(a) they are passed on the same day; or

(b) they are passed on different days but the court in passing any one of them states that it is treating that one together with the other or others as substantially one sentence, and consecutive terms of imprisonment and terms which are wholly or partly concurrent are to be treated as a single term.

(3) In this Part, "sentence" includes any order made by a court when dealing with an offender, including —

(a) a hospital order, interim hospital order or supervision order under Part 34 (Mentally Disordered Offenders); and

(b) a recommendation for deportation made when dealing with an offender.

[Court of Appeal Ord. s.16 by analogy]

665. Notification to Magistrate's Court or Summary Court

When an appeal against a conviction, special finding or order of the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court has been decided under the provisions of this Part —

(a) the Registrar must forthwith notify that decision to the relevant court; and

(b) that court must, in relation to the decision, exercise all the powers necessary for the enforcement of the decision that are conferred by this Ordinance, or any other written law for the enforcement of a conviction, special finding or order of the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court.

[SH Criminal Procedure Ord.; Gibraltar CPE Act]

666. Enforcement of decision on appeal

(1) After the determination by the Supreme Court of an appeal from the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, the decision appealed against as confirmed or varied by the Supreme Court, or any decision of the Supreme Court substituted for the decision appealed against, may, without affecting the powers of the Supreme Court to enforce the decision, be enforced —

(a) by the issue by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court of any process it could have issued if it had decided the case as the Supreme Court decided it;

(b) so far as the nature of any process already issued to enforce the decision against permits - by that process.

(2) The decision of the Supreme Court has effect as if it had been made by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court.

UK Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s.110]

Appeals in particular cases

667. Right of appeal in mental disorder cases

(1) A person in whose case a special finding or verdict under Part 34 (Mentally Disordered Offenders) is made by the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court may appeal against the finding or verdict to the Supreme Court in accordance with this Part.

(2) If on the trial of an information charging a person with an offence the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court makes a hospital order or interim hospital order in respect of the person without convicting the person —

(a) the person has the same right of appeal against the order as if it had been made on conviction of the person; and

(b) on any such appeal the Supreme Court has the same powers as if the appeal had been against both conviction and sentence.

(3) The fact that an appeal is pending against an interim hospital order under Part 34 does not affect the power of the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court to renew or terminate the order or to deal with the appellant on its termination.

(4) If the Supreme Court quashes an interim hospital order but does not pass any sentence or make any other order in its place the court may direct the appellant to be kept in custody or released on bail pending the appellant's case being dealt with by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be.

(5) If the Supreme Court makes an interim hospital order by virtue of this section —

(a) the power of renewing or terminating the order and of dealing with the appellant on its termination is exercisable by the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court, as the case may be, and not by the Supreme Court; and

(b) the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court, as the case may be, is to be treated for the purposes of section 158 (absconding offenders) as the court that made the order.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. s.57 (part); Court of Appeal Ord. ss.4(1)(f), 17, 18 and 20 by analogy; UK Mental Health Act 1983 s.45]

668. Appeals against special findings or verdicts

(1) If, apart from this section —

(a) an appeal against a special finding or verdict would fall to be allowed; and

(b) none of the grounds for allowing it relates to the question of the mental disorder of the defendant, the Supreme Court may dismiss the appeal if it is of the opinion that but for the mental disorder of the defendant the proper verdict would have been that he or she was guilty of an offence other than the offence charged.

(2) If an appeal by a person against a special finding or verdict is allowed, then —

(a) if the ground, or one of the grounds, for allowing the appeal is that the finding of the court as to the mental disorder of the person ought not to stand and the Supreme Court is of the opinion that the proper verdict would have been that the person was guilty of an offence, whether the offence charged or any other offence of which the court could have found the person guilty, the Supreme Court —

(i) must substitute for the special finding a verdict of guilty of that offence; and

(ii) has the like powers of punishing or otherwise dealing with the appellant and other powers as the court before which he or she was tried would have had if the court had come to the substituted verdict; and

(b) in any other case, the Supreme Court must substitute for the finding of the court a verdict of acquittal.

(3) If, on an appeal against conviction, the Supreme Court, on the written or oral evidence of 2 or more medical practitioners, is of the opinion —

(a) that the proper verdict would have been one of not guilty by reason of mental disorder; or

(b) that the case is not one where there should have been a verdict of acquittal, but there should have been a finding that the defendant was suffering from mental disorder so as not to be responsible in law for his or her actions at the time when the act was done or omission made, then, if it appears to the court that the defendant did the act or made the omission charged, but was suffering from mental disorder at the time when he or she did or made the same, the court must give a special verdict to the effect that the defendant was not guilty by reason of mental disorder.

(4) If the court gives a special verdict as in subsection (3), it must also make —

(a) a hospital order, interim hospital order or supervision order pursuant to Part 34 (Mentally Disordered Offenders); or

(b) an order for the defendant's absolute discharge.

(5) The term of any sentence imposed by the Supreme Court in the exercise of the powers conferred by subsection (2)(a), unless the court otherwise directs, begins to run from the time when it would have begun to run if imposed in the proceedings in the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be.

[Court of Appeal Ordinance ss.12 and 13 by analogy; UK Criminal Appeal Act 1968 ss.12 & 13]

669. Appeals in cases concerning youths

(1) Appeals to the Supreme Court from orders of the Magistrates' Court or Summary Court, sitting as a Youth Court, in relation to a youth may be brought in the following cases and by the following persons —

(a) in the case of a sentence of imprisonment or detention - by the youth or his or her parent or guardian on behalf of the youth;

(b) in the case of a community sentence (youth rehabilitation order) - by the youth or by the probation officer;

(c) in the case of a binding over order on a parent or guardian - by the parent or guardian.

(2) Nothing in this section affects any right of appeal to the Supreme Court conferred by this Ordinance or any other law.

[SH Criminal Procedure Ord; Gibraltar CPE Act adapted]

Prosecution appeals

670. Prosecution appeal from the Supreme Court in respect of rulings

(1) This section applies whenever a judge in a trial on indictment makes a ruling at an applicable time relating to one or more offences included on the indictment.

(2) The prosecutor may appeal to the Court of Appeal on the grounds that the ruling —

(a) was erroneous in law; or

(b) was one which no reasonable court, properly directing itself in law, could have reached.

(3) The ruling appealed against has no effect while the prosecution is able to take any steps under subsection (4).

(4) The prosecution may not appeal in respect of a ruling unless —

(a) following the making of the ruling, it —

(i) informs the court that it intends to appeal; or

(ii) requests an adjournment to consider whether to appeal; and

(b) if such an adjournment is granted, informs the court following the adjournment that it intends to appeal.

(5) If the prosecution requests an adjournment under subsection (4)(a)(ii), the court may grant such an adjournment.

(6) If the ruling relates to two or more offences —

(a) any one or more of those offences may be the subject of the appeal; and

(b) if the prosecution informs the court in accordance with subsection (5) that it intends to appeal, it must at the same time inform the court of the offence or offences which are the subject of the appeal.

(7) If —

(a) the ruling is one that there is no case to answer; and

(b) the prosecution, when it informs the court in accordance with subsection (5) that it intends to appeal, nominates one or more other rulings which have been made by the judge in relation to the trial at an applicable time and which relate to the offence or offences which are the subject of the appeal, that other ruling or those other rulings are also to be treated as the subject of the appeal.

(8) The prosecution may not inform the court in accordance with subsection (4) that it intends to appeal unless, at or before that time, it informs the court that it agrees that, in respect of the offence or each offence which is the subject of appeal, the defendant in relation to that offence should be acquitted of that offence if either —

(a) leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal is not obtained; or

(b) the appeal is abandoned before it is determined by the Court of Appeal.

(9) On an appeal under subsection (2)(a) or (b) the Court of Appeal may remit the case together with its judgment on it to the Supreme Court for determination, whether or not by way of rehearing, with any directions the Court of Appeal thinks necessary.

(10) The procedure on an appeal under this section is to be governed by the Court of Appeal Rules.

(11) In this section —

“applicable time”, in relation to a trial before the Supreme Court, means any time (whether before or after the commencement of the trial) before the closure of the case for the defence, or, if the trial is before a jury, before the time when the judge starts summing up to the jury;

“ruling” includes a decision, determination, direction, finding, notice, order, refusal, rejection or requirement.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.58 to 61]

671. Prosecution appeal from the Magistrate’s Court in respect of rulings and sentence

(1) This section applies whenever the Senior Magistrate —

(a) makes a ruling at an applicable time relating to one or more offences being considered at the trial; or

(b) imposes a sentence on a person convicted of an offence for which the maximum penalty is imprisonment for 10 years or more.

(2) The prosecutor may appeal to the Supreme Court on any of the following grounds —

(a) that the ruling was erroneous in law;

(b) that the ruling was one which no reasonable court, properly directing itself in law, could have reached;

(c) that the sentence imposed was so lenient as to be one which no reasonable court, properly directing itself in law, could have passed.

(3) An appeal under subsection (2)(c) may not be instituted except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney General.

(4) The ruling or sentence appealed against has no effect while the prosecution is able to take any steps under subsection (5).

(5) The prosecution may not appeal in respect of a ruling or sentence unless —

(a) following the making of the ruling or imposing of the sentence, it —

(i) informs the court that it intends to appeal; or

(ii) requests an adjournment to consider whether to appeal; and

(b) if such an adjournment is granted, informs the court following the adjournment that it intends to appeal.

(6) If the prosecution requests an adjournment under subsection (5)(a)(ii), the court may grant such an adjournment.

(7) If the appeal relates to a ruling, subsections (8) to (11) apply.

(8) If the ruling relates to two or more offences —

(a) any one or more of those offences may be the subject of the appeal; and

(b) if the prosecution informs the court in accordance with subsection (5) that it intends to appeal, it must at the same time inform the court of the offence or offences which are the subject of the appeal.

(9) If —

(a) the ruling is one that there is no case to answer; and

(b) the prosecution, when it informs the court in accordance with subsection (5) that it intends to appeal, nominates one or more other rulings which have been made by the Senior Magistrate in relation to the trial at an applicable time and which relate to the offence or offences which are the subject of the appeal, that other ruling or those other rulings are also to be treated as the subject of the appeal.

(10) The prosecution may not inform the court in accordance with subsection (5) that it intends to appeal unless, at or before that time, it informs the court that it agrees that, in respect of the offence or each offence which is the subject of appeal, the defendant in relation to that offence should be acquitted of that offence if either —

(a) leave to appeal to the Supreme Court is not obtained; or

(b) the appeal is abandoned before it is determined by the Supreme Court.

(11) On an appeal under subsection (2)(a) or (b) the Supreme Court may remit the case together with its judgment on it to the Magistrate's Court for determination, whether or not by way of rehearing, with any directions the Supreme Court thinks necessary.

(12) On appeal against sentence under subsection (2)(c) the Supreme Court may substitute any sentence the Magistrate's Court could lawfully have imposed.

(13) The procedure on an appeal under this section is to be governed by criminal procedure rules.

(14) In this section —

“applicable time” in relation to a trial before the Magistrate's Court means any time (whether before or after the commencement of the trial) before the closure of the case for the defence;

“ruling” includes a decision, determination, direction, finding, notice, order, refusal, rejection or requirement.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.58 to 61, by analogy; SH Criminal Procedure Ord. ss.242 and 251]

Appeals by way of case stated

672. Statement of case by Magistrate's Court or Summary Court

(1) Any person who was a party to any criminal proceeding before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court or who is aggrieved by the conviction, order, determination or other decision of either court may, subject to subsection (2), question the decision on the ground that it is wrong in law or is in excess of jurisdiction by applying to the Senior Magistrate, or to the justices composing the Summary Court, as the case may be, to state a case for the opinion of the Supreme Court on the question of law or jurisdiction involved.

(2) A person may not make an application under this section in respect a decision against which the person has a right of appeal to the Supreme Court under section 656, or which by virtue of any enactment is final.

(3) An application under subsection (1) must be made within 21 days of the day on which the decision of the Summary Court was given.

(4) For the purpose of subsection (3), the day on which the decision of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court is given is the day on which the court sentences or otherwise deals with the defendant.

(5) Subject to subsection (6), if the Senior Magistrate is, or the justices are, of the opinion that an application under this section is frivolous, the Senior Magistrate or the justices, as the case may be, may refuse to state a case, and if the applicant so requires, must certify that the application has been refused.

(6) The Senior Magistrate or the justices must not refuse under subsection (5) to state a case if the application is made by or on the direction of the Attorney General.

(7) If the Senior Magistrate or the justices refuse to state a case, the Supreme Court may, on the application of the person who applied for the case to be stated, make an order requiring the Senior Magistrate or justices, as the case may be, to state a case.

(8) Nothing in this section, nor the fact that an application has been made to the Senior Magistrate or to the justices to state a case, precludes a judge from exercising the powers conferred by sections 682 to 685 (revision powers).

[UK Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s.111; Senior Courts Act 1981 s.28; Criminal Procedure Rules 2012 para.64.2, 3]

673. Case may be sent back for amendment

(1) The Supreme Court may, if it thinks fit, cause any case stated to be sent back to the Senior Magistrate or the Summary Court justices for amendment.

(2) If a case is sent back pursuant to subsection (1), the case must be amended accordingly, and judgment is to be delivered only after it has been amended.

[UK Senior Courts Act 1981 s.28A (part)]

674. Determination of question and enforcement of decision

(1) The Supreme Court must hear and decide the question or questions of law arising on any case stated, and may —

(a) reverse, affirm or amend the decision in respect of which the case has been stated; or

(b) remit the matter to the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, as the case may be, with the opinion of the Supreme Court on the case; and

(c) make any other order in relation to the matter as the Supreme Court thinks fit.

(2) Any conviction, order, determination or other proceeding of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court that is varied by the Supreme Court on an appeal by case stated, and any judgment or order of the Supreme Court on such an appeal, may be enforced as if it were a decision of the Magistrate's Court or of the Summary Court, as the case may be.

(3) Neither the Senior Magistrate nor any other justice of the peace is liable to any costs in respect or by reason of an appeal by way of case stated under this section.

[UK Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s.112; Senior Courts Act 1981 s.28A (part)]

Miscellaneous provisions

675. Enlargement of time

A judge of the Supreme Court may, upon application made in open court by the appellant and after not less than 2 days' notice to the other party, enlarge any period of time prescribed for the doing of any act or the taking of any proceedings in relation to an appeal, if in any particular case the judge thinks fit so to do.

[UK CPR 2012 Rule 63.9; CA Ordinance s.23(3); Gibraltar CPE Act s.306]

676. Power to correct errors or omissions

(1) The conviction of an offender shall not be quashed or set aside on the ground of want of form in the order, judgment, warrant or other proceeding made in connection therewith.

[Admin. of Justice Ord. s.50]

(2) The Supreme Court may, in the course of hearing any appeal, correct any error or omission in the order or judgment incorporating the decision which is the subject of the appeal.

(3) Without limiting subsection (1), if on an appeal under this Part —

(a) an objection is made on account of any error or omission in the drawing up of a conviction or order of the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court; and

(b) it is shown to the satisfaction of a judge of the Supreme Court that sufficient grounds were placed before the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court to have authorised the drawing up of such conviction or order free from the error or omission, the judge may amend the conviction or order and adjudicate on it as if no such error or omission had occurred.

[SH Criminal Procedure Ord. s.244; Gibraltar CPE Act]

677. Effect of death on appeals to Supreme Court

(1) If a person dies —

(a) any appeal to which this Part applies which the person might have begun if he or she were still alive may be begun by a person approved by the Supreme Court; and

(b) if any such appeal was begun by the person while alive or is begun by virtue of paragraph (a),

any further step which might have been taken by the dead person in connection with the appeal if he or she were alive may be taken by a person so approved.

(2) Approval for the purposes of this section may only be given to —

(a) the widow or widower of the dead person;

(b) a person who is the personal representative of the dead person; or

(c) any other person appearing to the Supreme Court to have, by reason of a family or similar relationship with the dead person, a substantial financial or other interest in the determination of a relevant appeal relating to that person.

(3) An application for such approval may not be made more than one year after the date of death.

(4) If this section applies, any reference in this Part to the appellant is, where appropriate, to be construed as being or including a reference to the person approved under this section.

(5) If the Supreme Court refuses an application for approval under this section, the applicant is entitled to have the application determined by the Court of Appeal.

[UK Criminal Appeals Act 1968 s.44A adapted]

678. Effect of death on appeals from the Supreme Court

(1) If a person dies —

(a) any criminal appeal to which the Court of Appeal Ordinance applies which the person might have begun if he or she were still alive may be begun by a person approved by the Court of Appeal; and

(b) if any such appeal was begun by the person while alive or is begun by virtue of paragraph (a),

any further step which might have been taken by the dead person in connection with the appeal if he or she were alive may be taken by a person so approved.

(2) Approval for the purposes of this section may only be given to —

(a) the widow or widower of the dead person;

(b) a person who is the personal representative of the dead person; or

(c) any other person appearing to the Court of Appeal to have, by reason of a family or similar relationship with the dead person, a substantial financial or other interest in the determination of a relevant appeal relating to that person.

(3) An application for such approval may not be made more than one year after the date of death.

(4) If this section applies, any reference in the Court of Appeal ordinance to the appellant is, where appropriate, to be construed as being or including a reference to the person approved under this section.

(5) If the Court of Appeal refuses an application for approval under this section, the applicant is entitled to have the application determined by the Judicial Committee.

[UK Criminal Appeals Act 1968 s.44A adapted]

679. Restitution of property

(1) The operation of an order for the restitution of property to a person made by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court is, unless the Supreme Court directs to the contrary in any case in which, in its opinion, the title to property is not in dispute, be suspended until there is no further possibility of an appeal on which the order could be varied or set aside.

(2) The Supreme Court may by order annul or vary any order made by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court for the restitution of property to any person, although the conviction is not quashed; and the order, if annulled, does not take effect and, if varied, takes effect as if so varied.

680. Evidence

(1) In the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction under this section the Supreme Court may in its discretion hear additional evidence.

(2) For the purposes of this Part, the Supreme Court may, if it thinks that it is necessary or expedient in the interests of justice —

(a) order the production of any document, exhibit or other thing connected with the proceedings, the production of which appears to it to be necessary for the determination of the case;

(b) order any person who would have been a compellable witness in the proceedings in which the appeal lies to attend for examination and be examined before the Court, whether or not the person was called in the proceedings; and

(c) receive any evidence which was not adduced in the proceedings from which the appeal lies.

(3) The Supreme Court must, in considering whether to receive any evidence, have regard in particular to —

(a) whether the evidence appears to the Court to be capable of belief;

(b) whether it appears to the Court that the evidence may afford any ground for allowing the appeal; and

(c) whether there is a reasonable explanation for the failure to adduce the evidence in those proceedings.

(4) Subsection (2)(c) applies to evidence of any witness (including the appellant) who is competent but not compellable, and applies also to the appellant's spouse where the appellant makes an application for that purpose and the evidence of the spouse could not have been given in the proceedings from which the appeal lies except on such an application.

(5) For the purposes of this Part, the Supreme Court may, if it thinks that it is necessary or expedient in the interests of justice, order the examination of any witness whose attendance might be required under subsection (1)(b) of this section to be conducted, in a manner provided by criminal procedure rules, before any judge or officer of the Court or other person appointed by the Court for the purpose, and allow the admission of any depositions so taken as evidence before the Court.

681. Further appeals

(1) The right of any person to appeal from an interlocutory or final decision of the Supreme Court in its appellate capacity is governed by the Court of Appeal Ordinance.

(2) The granting of bail on an appeal from the Supreme Court is governed by section 7 of the Court of Appeal Ordinance.

Revision powers

682. Revision by Supreme Court

(1) The Chief Justice (in this section and sections 683 and 684 called “the judge”) may on his or her own initiative call for and examine the record of any criminal proceedings before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court in which a person has been sentenced to imprisonment or to a fine exceeding £100, for the purpose of being satisfied as to the correctness, legality or propriety of the finding, sentence or order recorded or passed, and as to the regularity of those proceedings.

(2) In every case coming before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court in which a person is convicted and sentenced to an aggregate period of more than 12 months imprisonment, the Clerk of the court must as soon as reasonably practicable submit the record of the proceedings to the Supreme Court for consideration.

(3) If —

(a) the judge has called for any proceedings of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court pursuant to subsection (1), or proceedings have been submitted to the judge under subsection (2); and

(b) the judge, having examined the proceedings, considers that in those proceedings an error material to the merits of any case or involving a miscarriage of justice has occurred, the judge has the powers mentioned in section 683.

(4) The powers of the judge under this section and sections 683 and 684 may be exercised while the judge is outside the Falkland Islands.

[SH Criminal Procedure Ord. s.261]

683. Powers of judge on revision

(1) The powers that the judge may exercise on revision of proceedings are —

(a) in the case of a conviction - any of the powers conferred on the Supreme Court on an appeal under section 662;

(b) in the case of any other order, other than an order of acquittal – the power to alter or reverse the order.

(2) No order may be made under this section to the prejudice of a person convicted of an offence unless the person has had an opportunity of making representations either personally or by a legal practitioner on behalf of the person.

(3) In exercising the powers under this section in relation to sentence, the judge must not impose a more severe sentence for the offence which in the opinion of the judge the defendant has committed, than could legally have been imposed by the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court, as the case may be.

(4) Nothing in this section authorises the judge to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction, except that if a person is acquitted of the offence with which the person was charged but is convicted of another offence, whether charged with that other offence or not, the judge may, if he or she reverses the finding of conviction, convert the finding of acquittal into one of conviction.

(5) If there is a right of appeal from any finding, sentence or order, and no appeal is brought, the party who could have appealed cannot initiate a proceeding by way of revision.

(6) In exercising the powers under this section, the judge may call for and receive from the Magistrate's Court or Summary court, as the case may be, a report on any matter connected with the case.

[SH Criminal Procedure Ord. s.262]

684. Procedure on revision

(1) Except as provided in section 683, no party has any right to be heard either personally or by a legal practitioner by the judge when the powers of revision, but the judge may, when exercising those powers, hear any party either personally or by a legal practitioner, or receive a written submission.

(2) When a case is revised by a judge —

(a) the judge must certify his or her decision or order to the Magistrate's Court or Summary Court, as the case may be;

(b) that court must make orders conforming to the decision so certified; and

(c) if necessary, the record of that court must be amended accordingly.

[SH Criminal Procedure Ord. ss.263 and 264]

685. Saving for judicial review

The power of revision conferred by sections 682 to 684 does not affect the right of a defendant or of the Attorney General to apply for a prerogative order, declaration or injunction under any enactment of or applying to the Falkland Islands governing applications for judicial review.

[UK Senior Courts Act 1981 s.31]

PART 32 – RETRIALS, REFERENCES, ETC.

Prosecution application for retrial

686. Cases that may be retried

(1) Sections 687 to 703 apply if a person has been acquitted of a qualifying offence in proceedings —

(a) on indictment in the Falkland Islands;

(b) on appeal against a conviction, verdict or finding in proceedings on indictment in the Falkland Islands; or

(c) on appeal from a decision on such an appeal.

(2) A person acquitted of an offence in proceedings mentioned in subsection (1) is treated for the purposes of that subsection as also acquitted of any qualifying offence of which the person could have been convicted in the proceedings because of the first-mentioned offence being charged in the indictment, except an offence —

(a) of which the person has been convicted;

(b) of which the person has been found not guilty by reason of mental disorder; or

(c) in respect of which a finding has been made under section 764 that the person did the act or made the omission charged against him or her.

(3) References in subsections (1) and (2) to a qualifying offence do not include references to an offence which, at the time of the acquittal, was the subject of an order under section 688(1) or (3).

(4) Sections 687 to 703 also apply if a person has been acquitted, in criminal proceedings elsewhere than in the Falkland Islands, of an offence under the law of the place where the proceedings were held, if the commission of the offence as alleged would have amounted to or included the commission (in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere) of a qualifying offence.

(5) Conduct punishable under the law in force elsewhere than in the Falkland Islands is an offence under that law for the purposes of subsection (4), however it is described in that law.

(6) Sections 687 to 703 apply whether the acquittal was before or after the commencement of this Part.

(7) In this section and sections 687 to 703 —

(a) references to acquittal are to acquittal in circumstances within subsection (1) or (4) of this section;

(b) “qualifying offence” means an indictment-only offence and a serious offence as defined in section 2;

(c) “new evidence” is to be read in accordance with section 689(2).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss.75 and 95]

687. Application to Court of Appeal

(1) The Attorney General may apply to the Court of Appeal for an order —

(a) quashing a person’s acquittal in proceedings within section 686(1); and

(b) ordering the person to be retried for the qualifying offence.

(2) The Attorney General may apply to the Court of Appeal, in the case of a person acquitted elsewhere than in the Falkland Islands, for —

(a) a decision whether the acquittal is a bar to the person being tried in the Falkland Islands for the qualifying offence; and

(b) if it is, an order that the acquittal is not to be a bar.

- (3) The Attorney General may make an application only if satisfied that —
- (a) there is evidence as respects which the requirements of section 689 appear to be met;
 - (b) it is in the public interest for the application to be made; and
 - (c) any trial pursuant to an order on the application would not be inconsistent with section 6(6) of the Constitution.
- (4) Not more than one application may be made under subsection (1) or (2) in relation to an acquittal.
- (5) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules provide for the procedure on an application to the Court of Appeal under this Part, having regard to section 93(3) of the Constitution (which enables the Court of Appeal to sit outside the Falkland Islands.)
[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.76]

688. Decision by Court of Appeal

- (1) On an application under section 687(1), the Court of Appeal —
- (a) if satisfied that the requirements of sections 686 and 687 are met, must make the order applied for;
 - (b) otherwise, must dismiss the application.
- (2) Subsections (3) and (4) apply to an application under section 687(2).
- (3) If the Court of Appeal decides that the acquittal is a bar to the person being tried for the qualifying offence, the court —
- (a) if satisfied that the requirements of sections 689 and 690 are met, must make the order applied for;
 - (b) otherwise, must make a declaration to the effect that the acquittal is a bar to the person being tried for the offence.
- (4) If the Court of Appeal decides that the acquittal is not a bar to the person being tried for the qualifying offence, it must make a declaration to that effect.
[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.77]

689. New and compelling evidence

- (1) The requirements of this section are met if there is new and compelling evidence against the acquitted person in relation to the qualifying offence.
- (2) Evidence is new if it was not adduced in the proceedings in which the person was acquitted (nor, if those were appeal proceedings, in earlier proceedings to which the appeal related).

(3) Evidence is compelling if —

(a) it is reliable;

(b) it is substantial; and

(c) in the context of the outstanding issues, it appears highly probative of the case against the acquitted person.

(4) The outstanding issues are the issues in dispute in the proceedings in which the person was acquitted and, if those were appeal proceedings, any other issues remaining in dispute from earlier proceedings to which the appeal related.

(5) For the purposes of this section, it is irrelevant whether any evidence would have been admissible in earlier proceedings against the acquitted person.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.78]

690. Interests of justice

(1) The requirements of this section are met if in all the circumstances it is in the interests of justice for the court to make the order under section 687.

(2) That question is to be decided having regard in particular to —

(a) whether existing circumstances make a fair trial unlikely;

(b) for the purposes of that question and otherwise, the length of time since the qualifying offence was allegedly committed;

(c) whether it is likely that the new evidence would have been adduced in the earlier proceedings against the acquitted person but for a failure by a police officer or by the prosecutor to act with due diligence or expedition;

(d) whether, since those proceedings or, if later, since the commencement of this Part, any police officer or prosecutor has failed to act with due diligence or expedition.

(3) In subsection (2) references to a police officer or prosecutor include references to a person charged with corresponding duties under a law in force outside the Falkland Islands.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.79]

691. Procedure and evidence on the application

(1) If the Attorney General wishes to make an application under section 687(1) or (2), he or she must give notice of the application to the Court of Appeal.

(2) Within 2 days beginning with the day on which any such notice is given, notice of the application must be served by the Attorney General on the person to whom the application relates, charging the person with the offence to which it relates or, if the person has been charged with it in accordance with section 699(4), stating that the person has been so charged.

(3) Subsection (2) applies whether the person to whom the application relates is in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere, but the Court of Appeal may, on application by the Attorney General, extend the time for service under that subsection if it considers it necessary to do so because of the person's absence from the Falkland Islands.

(4) The Court of Appeal must consider the application at a hearing.

(5) The person to whom the application relates —

(a) is entitled to be present at the hearing, even if in custody, unless the person is in custody outside the Falkland Islands; and

(b) is entitled to be represented at the hearing, whether present or not.

(6) For the purposes of the application, the Court of Appeal may, if it thinks it necessary or expedient in the interests of justice —

(a) order the production of any document, exhibit or other thing, the production of which appears to the court to be necessary for the determination of the application; and

(b) order any witness who would be a compellable witness in criminal proceedings, pursuant to an order or declaration made on the application, to attend for examination and be examined before the court.

(7) The Court of Appeal may at one hearing consider more than one application (whether or not relating to the same person), but only if the offences concerned could be tried on the same indictment.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.80]

692. Appeals

(1) An appeal lies to the Judicial Committee, at the instance of the acquitted person or the Attorney General, from any decision of the Court of Appeal on an application under section 687(1) or (2).

(2) An appeal under subsection (1) can be made only with the leave of the Court of Appeal or the Judicial Committee.

(3) An application under this Part to the Court of Appeal for leave to appeal to the Judicial Committee may be made orally immediately after the court gives its ruling or by notice served on the Registrar within 14 days of the ruling.

(4) For the purpose of dealing with a case under this section the Judicial Committee may exercise any powers of the Court of Appeal.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.81]

693. Restrictions on publication in the interests of justice

(1) If it appears to the Court of Appeal that the inclusion of any matter in a publication or relevant programme would give rise to a substantial risk of prejudice to the administration of justice in a retrial, the court may order that the matter is not to be included in any publication or relevant programme while the order has effect.

(2) In subsection (1) “retrial” means the trial of an acquitted person for a qualifying offence pursuant to any order made or that may be made under section 688.

(3) The court may make an order under this section only if it appears to it necessary in the interests of justice to do so.

(4) An order under this section may apply to a matter which has been included in a publication published or relevant programme included in a programme service before the order takes effect, but such an order —

(a) applies only to the later inclusion of the matter in a publication or programme (whether directly or by inclusion of the earlier publication or programme); and

(b) does not otherwise affect the earlier publication.

(5) After notice of an application has been given under section 691(1) relating to the acquitted person and the qualifying offence, the court may make an order under this section either —

(a) on its own initiative; or

(b) on the application of the Attorney General.

(6) Before such notice has been given, an order under this section —

(a) may be made only on the application of the Attorney General; and

(b) may not be made unless, since the acquittal concerned, an investigation of the commission by the acquitted person of the qualifying offence has been commenced by the police.

(7) The court may at any time, on its own initiative or on an application made by the Attorney General or the acquitted person, vary or revoke an order under this section.

(8) Any order made under this section before notice of an application has been given under section 691(1) relating to the acquitted person and the qualifying offence must specify the time when it ceases to have effect.

(9) An order under this section which is made or has effect after such notice has been given ceases to have effect, unless it specifies an earlier time —

(a) when there is no longer any step that could be taken which would lead to the acquitted person being tried pursuant to an order made on the application; or

(b) if the person is tried pursuant to such an order, at the conclusion of the trial.

(10) Nothing in this section affects any prohibition or restriction by virtue of any other enactment on the inclusion of any matter in a publication or relevant programme or any power, under an enactment or otherwise, to impose such a prohibition or restriction.

(11) A breach of an order under this section, whether or not in the face of the court, may be treated as contempt of court and dealt with in accordance with Part 18 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.82]

694. Offences in connection with publication restrictions

(1) This section applies if —

(a) an order under section 693 is made; and

(b) while the order has effect, any matter is included in a publication in contravention of the order.

(2) If the publication is a newspaper or periodical, any proprietor, editor or publisher of the newspaper or periodical commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

(3) If the publication is a relevant programme, any person having functions in relation to the programme corresponding to those of an editor of a newspaper commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

(4) In the case of any other publication, any person publishing it commits an offence.

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

(5) If an offence under this section committed by a corporate body is proved —

(a) to have been committed with the consent or connivance of; or

(b) to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, an officer, the officer as well as the corporate body commits the offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly.

(6) In subsection (5), “officer” means a director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body, or a person purporting to act in any such capacity.

(7) If the affairs of a corporate body are managed by its members, “director” in subsection (6) means a member of that body.

(8) Proceedings for an offence under this section may not be commenced except by, or with the consent of, the Attorney General.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.83]

695. Procedure on a retrial

(1) If a person is to be tried pursuant to an order under section 688(1) or (3), the trial must be —

(a) on an indictment preferred by direction of the Court of Appeal, or on a fresh information laid by the Attorney General; and

(b) by the same mode (i.e. judge and jury or judge alone) as the original trial.

(2) After the end of 2 months after the date of the order, the person may not be charged on an indictment preferred or an information laid pursuant to such a direction unless the Court of Appeal gives leave.

(3) The Court of Appeal must not give leave unless satisfied that —

(a) the prosecutor has acted with due expedition; and

(b) there is a good and sufficient cause for trial despite the lapse of time since the order under section 688.

(4) If the person may not be charged without leave, he or she may apply to the Court of Appeal to set aside the order and —

(a) for any direction required for restoring an earlier judgment and verdict of acquittal of the qualifying offence; or

(b) in the case of a person acquitted outside the Falkland Islands, for a declaration to the effect that the acquittal is a bar to the person’s being tried for the qualifying offence.

(5) An indictment preferred or information laid under subsection (1) may relate to more than one offence, or more than one person, and may relate to an offence which, or a person who, is not the subject of an order or declaration under section 688.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.84 (part)]

696. Evidence on a retrial

(1) Evidence given at a trial pursuant to an order under section 688(1) or (3) must be given orally if it was given orally at the original trial, unless —

(a) all the parties to the trial agree otherwise;

(b) section 394 applies (witness unavailable); or

(c) the witness is unavailable to give evidence, otherwise than as mentioned in subsection (2) of that section, and section 392(1)(d) applies (interests of justice).

(2) At a retrial pursuant to an order under section 688(1), written depositions read as evidence at the original trial are not admissible in evidence.

(3) A transcript of the record of the evidence given by any witness at the original trial may, with the leave of the judge, be read as evidence —

(a) by agreement between the prosecution and the defence; or

(b) if the judge is satisfied that the witness is dead or unfit to give evidence or to attend for that purpose, or that all reasonable efforts to find him or to secure his attendance have been made without success, and in either case may be so read without further proof, if verified in accordance with relevant criminal procedure rules.

697. Authorisation of investigations

(1) This section applies to the investigation of the commission of a qualifying offence by a person —

(a) acquitted in proceedings within section 686(1) of the qualifying offence; or

(b) acquitted outside the Falkland Islands of an offence the commission of which as alleged would have amounted to or included the commission (in the Falkland Islands or elsewhere) of the qualifying offence.

(2) Subject to section 698, a police officer may not do anything within subsection (3) for the purposes of such an investigation unless the Attorney General has —

(a) certified that in his or her opinion the acquittal would not be a bar to the trial of the acquitted person in the Falkland Islands for the qualifying offence; or

(b) given written consent to the investigation (whether before or after the start of the investigation).

(3) The police officer may not, either with or without the consent of the acquitted person —

(a) arrest or question the person;

(b) search the person or premises owned or occupied by the person;

(c) search a vehicle owned by the person or anything in or on such a vehicle;

(d) seize anything in the person's possession; or

(e) take the person's fingerprints or take a sample from the person.

(4) The Attorney General may only give consent on a written application, and such an application may be made only by a police officer of the rank of Inspector or above.

(5) A police officer may make an application under subsection (4) only if the officer —

(a) is satisfied that new evidence has been obtained which would be relevant to an application under section 687(1) or (2) in respect of the qualifying offence to which the investigation relates; or

(b) has reasonable grounds for believing that such new evidence is likely to be obtained as a result of the investigation.

(6) The Attorney General may not give consent unless satisfied that —

(a) there is, or there is likely as a result of the investigation to be, sufficient new evidence to warrant the conduct of the investigation; and

(b) it is in the public interest for the investigation to proceed.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.85]

698. Urgent investigative steps

(1) Section 697 does not prevent a police officer from taking any action for the purposes of an investigation if —

(a) the action is necessary as a matter of urgency to prevent the investigation being substantially and irrevocably prejudiced;

(b) the requirements of subsection (2) are met; and

(c) either —

(i) the action is authorised under subsection (3); or

(ii) the requirements of subsection (5) are met.

(2) The requirements of this subsection are met if —

(a) there has been no undue delay in applying for consent under section 697(2);

(b) that consent has not been refused; and

(c) taking into account the urgency of the situation, it is not reasonably practicable to obtain that consent before taking the action.

(3) A police officer of the rank of Inspector or above may authorise the action if the officer —

(a) is satisfied that new evidence has been obtained which would be relevant to an application under section 687(1) or (2) in respect of the qualifying offence to which the investigation relates; or

(b) has reasonable grounds for believing that such new evidence is likely to be obtained as a result of the investigation.

(4) An authorisation under subsection (3) must —

(a) if reasonably practicable, be given in writing;

(b) otherwise, be recorded in writing by the officer giving it as soon as is reasonably practicable.

(5) The requirements of this subsection are met if —

(a) there has been no undue delay in applying for authorisation under subsection (3);

(b) that authorisation has not been refused; and

(c) taking into account the urgency of the situation, it is not reasonably practicable to obtain that authorisation before taking the action.

(6) If the requirements of subsection (5) are met, the action is nevertheless to be treated as having been unlawful unless, as soon as reasonably practicable after the action is taken, a police officer of the rank of Inspector or above certifies in writing that he or she is satisfied that, when the action was taken —

(a) new evidence had been obtained which would be relevant to an application under section 687(1) or (2) in respect of the qualifying offence to which the investigation relates; or

(b) the officer who took the action had reasonable grounds for believing that such new evidence was likely to be obtained as a result of the investigation.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.86]

699. Arrest and charge

(1) If section 697 applies to the investigation of the commission of an offence by any person and no certification has been given under subsection (2) of that section —

(a) a justice of the peace may issue a warrant to arrest the person for that offence only if satisfied by written information that new evidence has been obtained which would be relevant to an application under section 687(1) or (2) in respect of the commission by that person of that offence; and

(b) the person may not be arrested for that offence except under a warrant so issued.

(2) Subsection (1) does not affect section 701(3)(b) or 703(3), or any other power to arrest a person, or to issue a warrant for the arrest of a person, otherwise than for an offence.

(3) Part 5 (Police Detention) applies as follows if a person —

(a) is arrested for an offence under a warrant issued in accordance with subsection (1)(a); or

(b) having been so arrested, is subsequently treated under section 59(7) (limitations on police detention) as arrested for that offence.

(4) For the purposes of Part 5 (Police Detention) there is sufficient evidence to charge the person with the offence for which the person has been arrested if, and only if, a police officer of the rank of Inspector or above (who has not been directly involved in the investigation) is of the opinion that the evidence available or known to that officer is sufficient for the case to be referred to a prosecutor to consider whether consent should be sought for an application in respect of that person under section 687.

(5) For the purposes of that Part it is the duty of the custody officer at each police station where the person is detained to make available or known to an officer at that police station of the rank of Inspector or above any evidence which it appears to that officer may be relevant to an application under section 687(1) or (2) in respect of the offence for which the person has been arrested, and to do so as soon as practicable —

(a) after the evidence becomes available or known to the officer; or

(b) if later, after the officer forms that view.

(6) Section 61 (Duties of custody officer before charge), including any provision of that section as applied by section 67(7) (review of police detention) has effect subject to the following modifications —

(a) in subsection (1) —

(i) for “decide whether the officer has before him” substitute “request an officer of the rank of Inspector or above (who has not been directly involved in the investigation) to decide, in accordance with section 699(4), whether there is”;

(ii) for “the officer to make that decision” substitute “that decision to be made”;

(b) in subsection (2) —

(i) for the words from “custody officer decides” to “evidence” substitute “officer who is making a decision decides that there is not such sufficient evidence”;

(ii) omit “custody” from the second place where it occurs;

(c) in subsection (3) —

(i) omit “custody”;

(ii) after “may” insert “direct the custody officer to”.

(d) in subsection (7) for the words from “the custody officer” to the end of that subsection substitute “an officer of the rank of Inspector or above (who has not been directly involved in the investigation) decides, in accordance with section 699(4), that there is sufficient evidence to charge the person arrested with the offence for which he or she was arrested, the person arrested must be charged.”;

(e) subsection (8) does not apply;

(f) after subsection (13) insert —

“(14) The officer who is requested by the custody officer to make a decision under subsection (1) must make it as soon as practicable after the request is made.”.

(7) Section 67 (Review of police detention) has effect as if in subsections (7) and (8) of that section after “(6)” there were inserted “and (12)”.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.87]

700. Bail and custody before application

(1) In relation to a person charged in accordance with section 689(4) —

(a) section 65 (Duties of custody officer after charge) (including any provision of that section as applied by section 67(9)) has effect as if, in subsection (1), for “either on bail or without bail” there were substituted “on bail”;

(b) section 76(2) (Bail after arrest) does not apply and references in section 61 to bail are references to bail subject to a duty to appear before the Supreme Court at a time the custody officer appoints, not being later than 24 hours after the person is released.

(2) A person who, after being charged in accordance with section 699(4), is kept in police detention, must be brought before the Supreme Court as soon as practicable and, in any event, not more than 24 hours after being charged.

(3) If a person appears or is brought before the Supreme Court in accordance with subsection (1) or (2), the court may either —

(a) grant bail for the person to appear, if notice of an application is served on the person under section 691(2), before the Court of Appeal at the hearing of that application; or

(b) remand the person in custody to be brought before the Supreme Court under section 701(2).

(4) If the Supreme Court grants bail under subsection (3), it may revoke bail and remand the person in custody as referred to in subsection (3)(b).

(5) In subsection (6) the “relevant period”, in relation to a person granted bail or remanded in custody under subsection (3), means —

(a) the period of 42 days beginning with the day on which the person is granted bail or remanded in custody under that subsection; or

(b) that period as extended or further extended under subsection (7).

(6) If at the end of the relevant period no notice of an application under section 687(1) or (2) in relation to the person has been given under section 689(1), the person —

(a) if on bail subject to a duty to appear as mentioned in subsection (3)(a), ceases to be subject to that duty and to any conditions of that bail; and

(b) if in custody on remand under subsection (3)(b) or (4), must be released immediately without bail.

(7) The Supreme Court may, on the application of the prosecutor, extend or further extend the period mentioned in subsection (5)(a) until a specified date, but only if satisfied that —

(a) the need for the extension is due to some good and sufficient cause; and

(b) the prosecutor has acted with all due diligence and expedition.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.88]

701. Bail and custody before hearing

(1) This section applies when notice of an application is given under section 691(1).

(2) If the person to whom the application relates is in custody under section 700(3)(b) or (4), the person must be brought before the Supreme Court as soon as practicable and, in any event, within 48 hours after the notice is given.

(3) If that person is not in custody under section 700(3)(b) or (4), the Supreme Court may, on application by the prosecutor —

(a) issue a summons requiring the person to appear before the Court of Appeal at the hearing of the application; or

(b) issue a warrant for the person's arrest, and a warrant under paragraph (b) may be issued at any time even though a summons has previously been issued.

(4) If a summons is issued under subsection (3)(a), the time and place at which the person must appear may be specified either —

(a) in the summons; or

(b) in a subsequent direction of the Supreme Court.

(5) The time or place specified may be varied from time to time by a direction of the Supreme Court.

(6) A person arrested under a warrant under subsection (3)(b) must be brought before the Supreme Court as soon as practicable and in any event within 48 hours after arrest.

(7) If a person is brought before the Supreme Court under subsection (2) or (6) the court must either —

(a) remand the person in custody to be brought before the Court of Appeal at the hearing of the application; or

(b) grant bail for the person to appear before the Court of Appeal at the hearing.

(8) If bail is granted under subsection (7)(b), the Supreme Court may revoke the bail and remand the person in custody as referred to in subsection (7)(a).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.89]

702. Bail and custody during and after hearing

(1) The Court of Appeal may, at any adjournment of the hearing of an application under section 687(1) or (2) —

(a) remand the person to whom the application relates on bail; or

(b) remand the person in custody.

(2) At a hearing at which the Court of Appeal —

(a) makes an order under section 688;

(b) makes a declaration under subsection (4) of that section; or

(c) dismisses the application or makes a declaration under subsection (3) of that section (if the court gives the prosecutor leave to appeal against its decision or the prosecutor gives notice of intention to apply for such leave), the court may make any order it sees fit for the custody or bail of the acquitted person pending trial pursuant to the order or declaration, or pending determination of the appeal.

(3) For the purpose of subsection (2), the determination of an appeal is pending —

(a) until any application for leave to appeal is disposed of, or the time within which it must be made expires;

(b) if leave to appeal is granted - until the appeal is disposed of.

(4) Section 142 (Reasons for not granting bail) applies in relation to the grant of bail under this section as if in subsection (2) the reference to the court included a reference to the Court of Appeal.

(5) The court may at any time, as it sees fit —

(a) revoke bail granted under this section and remand the person in custody; or

(b) vary an order under subsection (2).

[UK Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.90]

703. Revocation of bail

(1) If —

(a) a court revokes a person's bail under this Part; and

(b) that person is not before the court when his or her bail is revoked, the court must order the person to surrender forthwith to the custody of the court.

(2) If a person surrenders into the custody of the court in compliance with an order under subsection (1), the court must remand the person in custody.

(3) A person who has been ordered to surrender to custody under subsection (1) and who fails without reasonable cause to surrender to custody in accordance with the order may be arrested by a police officer without a warrant.

(4) A person arrested under subsection (3) must be brought as soon as practicable, and, in any event not more than 24 hours after the arrest, before the court and the court must remand the person in custody.

Tainted acquittals

704. Acquittals tainted by intimidation, etc.

(1) This section applies if —

(a) a person has been acquitted of an offence in any court; and

(b) any person has been convicted of an administration of justice offence involving interference with or intimidation of a juror or a witness (or potential witness) in any proceedings which led to the acquittal.

(2) If it appears to the court before which the person was convicted as mentioned in subsection (1)(b) that —

(a) there is a real possibility that, but for the interference or intimidation, the acquitted person would not have been acquitted; and

(b) it would not, for lapse of time or for any other reason, be contrary to the interests of justice to take proceedings against the acquitted person for the offence of which the person was acquitted, the court must certify that it so appears.

(3) If a court certifies under subsection (2), the Attorney General may apply to the Supreme Court for an order quashing the acquittal, and the court must make the order if (but must not do so unless) the 4 conditions in section 705 are satisfied.

(4) If an order is made under subsection (3) —

(a) proceedings may be taken against the acquitted person for the offence of which the person was acquitted; and

(b) the provisions of this Ordinance relating to arrest, charge and detention of persons apply with necessary modifications.

(5) For the purposes of this section the following offences are administration of justice offences—

(a) perverting the course of justice;

(b) an offence under section 467 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Intimidation etc. of witnesses, jurors and others);

(c) an offence of encouraging, or aiding and abetting, another person to commit an offence under section 477 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Perjury in judicial proceedings).

(6) This section only applies in relation to acquittals in respect of offences alleged to be committed on or after the commencement of this Part.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.54]

705. Conditions for making order

(1) The first condition required by section 704(3) is that it appears to the Supreme Court likely that, but for the interference or intimidation, the acquitted person would not have been acquitted.

(2) The second condition is that it does not appear to the court that, because of lapse of time or for any other reason, it would be contrary to the interests of justice to take proceedings against the acquitted person for the offence of which the person was acquitted.

(3) The third condition is that it appears to the court that the acquitted person has been given a reasonable opportunity to make written representations to the court.

(4) The fourth condition is that it appears to the court that the conviction for the administration of justice offence will stand.

(5) In applying subsection (4) the court must —

(a) take into account all the information before it; but

(b) ignore the possibility of new factors coming to light.

(6) Accordingly, the fourth condition has the effect that the court must not make an order under section 704(3) if (for example) it appears to the court that any time allowed for giving notice of appeal has not expired or that an appeal is pending.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.55]

706. Time limits for proceedings

(1) If —

(a) an order is made under section 704(3) quashing an acquittal;

(b) by virtue of section 704(4) it is proposed to take proceedings against the acquitted person for the offence of which the person was acquitted; and

(c) apart from this subsection, there is a statutory requirement that the proceedings must be commenced before a specified period calculated by reference to the commission of the offence, in relation to the proceedings the requirement has effect as if the period were instead one calculated by reference to the time the order is made under section 704(3).

(2) Subsection (1)(c) applies however the requirement is expressed.

[UK Criminal Procedure & Investigations Act 1996 s.56]

707. Time and service of certification

(1) The certification referred to in section 704(2) must be given —

- (a) immediately after the court sentences or otherwise deals with a person for the administration of justice offence; or
- (b) if the person is committed to the Magistrate's Court for sentencing for the offence - immediately after the person is so committed
- (c) if the person is a youth and is remitted to the Youth Court for sentence – immediately after the youth is so remitted.

(2) A certification under section 704(2) must be in the form prescribed by criminal procedure rules or, if no rules have been made, in accordance with any relevant practice direction in that behalf.

(3) If a court makes a certification under section 704(2), the court officer must, as soon as practicable after the drawing up of the form of certification serve a copy on the person who was acquitted, on the prosecutor and, if the certification takes place before a court other than the court which acquitted the person, on the Clerk of the court or the Registrar, as the case may be.

[UK Criminal Proc. Rules 2012 Pt.40]

References by the Attorney General

708. Review of sentence: Scope

(1) Any proceeding in which sentence is passed on a person by the Supreme Court for an indictment-only offence (other than a sentence substituted on an appeal) may be referred to the Court of Appeal under this section.

(2) If it appears to the Attorney General that the sentencing of a person for an offence as mentioned in subsection (1) has been unduly lenient, the Attorney General may, with the leave of the Court of Appeal, refer the proceeding to that court for it to review the sentencing of that person.

(3) Without limiting subsection (2), the sentence of the Supreme Court may be regarded as unduly lenient if the court —

- (a) failed to impose a sentence required by any enactment; or
- (b) erred in law as to its powers of sentencing.

(4) For the purposes of this section, any 2 or more sentences are to be treated as passed in the same proceeding if they would be so treated for the purposes of an appeal by the defendant.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1988 s.35 and s.36 (part)]

709. Review of sentence: Powers

(1) On a reference under subsection (1), the Court of Appeal may —

(a) quash any sentence passed on the person in the proceeding; and

(b) in place of it pass a sentence that the court thinks appropriate for the case and that the Supreme Court had power to pass when dealing with the person.

(2) A judge must not sit as a member of the Court of Appeal on the hearing of, or decide any application in proceedings incidental or preliminary to, a reference under this section of a sentence passed by that judge.

(3) When the Court of Appeal has concluded the review of a proceeding referred to it under section 708, the Attorney General or the person to whose sentencing the reference relates may refer a point of law involved in any sentence passed on that person in the proceeding to the Judicial Committee which must —

(a) consider the point and decide on it accordingly;

(b) either remit the case to the Court of Appeal or deal with it.

(4) A reference under subsection (3) can be made only with the leave of the Court of Appeal or the Judicial Committee and leave is not to be granted unless it is certified by the Court of Appeal that the point of law is of general public importance and it appears to the Court of Appeal or the Judicial Committee (as the case may be) that the point is one which ought to be considered by the Judicial Committee.

(5) For the purpose of dealing with a case under this section the Judicial Committee may exercise any powers of the Court of Appeal.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1988 s.36 (part)]

710. Review of sentence: Procedure

(1) Notice of an application for leave to refer a proceeding to the Court of Appeal under section 708 must be given within 28 days after the day on which the sentence, or the last of the sentences, in the proceeding was passed.

(2) If notice of a reference or application to the Court of Appeal under section 708 is given to the Registrar, the Registrar must —

(a) take all necessary steps for obtaining a hearing of the reference or application; and

(b) obtain and lay before the court in proper form all documents, exhibits and other things which appear necessary for the proper determination of the reference or application.

(3) The Chief Justice may, by criminal procedure rules, make provision —

(a) enabling a person to whose sentencing such a reference or application relates to obtain from the Registrar any documents or things, including copies or reproductions of documents, required for the reference or application; and

(b) authorising the Registrar to make charges for such documents or things in accordance with scales and rates fixed by the rules;

(c) enabling an application for review of sentence to be made, and for the review to be conducted, while the Chief Justice is outside the Falkland Islands.

(4) An application —

(a) to the Court of Appeal for leave to refer a proceeding to the Judicial Committee under section 709(3) - must be made within 14 days after the Court of Appeal concludes its review of the proceeding;

(b) to the Judicial Committee for leave - must be made within 14 days after the Court of Appeal concludes its review or refuses leave to refer the proceeding to the Judicial Committee.

(5) The time during which a person whose case has been referred for review under section 708 is in custody pending its review and pending any reference to the Judicial Committee under section 709(3) is to be reckoned as part of the term of any sentence to which the person is for the time being subject.

(6) Subject to subsections (7) and (8), a person whose sentencing is the subject of a reference to the Court of Appeal under section 708 is entitled to be present, if the person wishes, on the hearing of the reference, even if the person is in custody.

(7) A person in custody is not entitled to be present —

(a) on an application by the Attorney General for leave to refer a case; or

(b) on any proceedings preliminary or incidental to a reference, unless the Court of Appeal gives the person leave to be present.

(8) The power of the Court of Appeal to pass sentence on a person may be exercised even if the person is not present.

(9) A person whose sentencing is the subject of a reference to the Judicial Committee under section 709(3), and who is detained pending the hearing of that reference, is not entitled to be present on the hearing of the reference or of any proceeding preliminary or incidental to it unless the Judicial Committee so authorises.

(10) The term of any sentence passed by the Court of Appeal or by the Judicial Committee under section 709 begins to run from the time when it would have begun to run if passed in the proceeding in relation to which the reference was made, unless the Court of Appeal or the Judicial Committee otherwise directs.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1988 Sched.3]

711. Reference of point of law following acquittal on indictment

(1) If a person tried on indictment has been acquitted (whether in respect of the whole or part of the indictment) —

(a) the Attorney General, if desiring to have the opinion of the Court of Appeal on a point of law which has arisen in the case, may refer that point to the court; and

(b) the Court of Appeal must, in accordance with this section, consider the point and give its opinion on it.

(2) For the purpose of its consideration of a point referred to it under this section the Court of Appeal must hear argument —

(a) by, or by counsel on behalf of, the Attorney General; and

(b) if the acquitted person desires to present any argument to the court - by counsel on the person's behalf or, with the leave of the court, by the acquitted person in person.

(3) A reference under this section does not affect the trial in relation to which the reference is made, or any acquittal in that trial.

(4) The court must ensure that the identity of the respondent to a reference is not disclosed during the proceedings on the reference unless the respondent has consented to the use of the respondent's name in the proceedings.

(5) No mention must be made in the reference of the proper name of any person or place which is likely to lead to the identification of the respondent.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1972 s.36 (part)]

712. Appeal on a reference to the Judicial Committee

(1) If the Court of Appeal has given its opinion on a point referred to it under section 711, the court may, on its own initiative or pursuant to an application in that behalf, refer the point to the Judicial Committee if it appears to the court that the point ought to be considered by the Judicial Committee.

(2) If a point is referred to the Judicial Committee under subsection (3), the Judicial Committee must consider the point and give an opinion on it accordingly.

(3) An application under this section to the Court of Appeal for leave to appeal to the Judicial Committee on any ruling by the Court of Appeal may be made orally immediately after the court gives its ruling or by notice served on the Registrar within 14 days of the ruling.

[UK Criminal Justice Act 1972 s.36 (part); Criminal Procedure Rules 2012 Pt.70]

References by the Governor

713. Reference to the Court of Appeal of conviction, verdict or finding on indictment

(1) If a person has been convicted of an offence on indictment before the Supreme Court the Governor, in his or her discretion, may, subject to section 715, at any time refer the conviction to the Court of Appeal.

(2) A reference under subsection (1) of a person's conviction is to be treated for all purposes as an appeal by the person under section 4(1)(c) of the Court of Appeal Ordinance, whether or not the person pleaded guilty.

(3) On a reference under subsection (1) of a person's conviction on an indictment the Governor may give notice to the Court of Appeal that any other conviction on the indictment which is specified in the notice is to be treated as referred to the Court of Appeal under subsection (1).

(4) If in the Supreme Court a verdict of not guilty by reason of mental disorder has been returned by a jury or by a judge sitting alone, the Governor may at any time refer the verdict to the Court of Appeal, and a reference under this subsection is to be treated for all purposes as an appeal under section 4(1)(e) of the Court of Appeal Ordinance against the verdict.

(5) If in a trial in the Supreme Court a jury has returned findings, or a judge sitting alone has found, that a person is under a disability and did the act or made the omission charged, the Governor may at any time refer either or both of those findings to the Court of Appeal; and a reference under this subsection is to be treated for all purposes as an appeal under section 4(1)(f) of the Court of Appeal Ordinance against the finding or findings referred.

[Criminal Justice (Am) (Miscarriages of Justice Ord. s.2 modified]

714. Reference to the Supreme Court of conviction, verdict or finding in a summary trial

(1) If a person has been convicted of an offence by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, the Governor may, subject to section 715, at any time refer the conviction to the Supreme Court.

(2) A reference under subsection (1) of a person's conviction is to be treated for all purposes as an appeal under Part 31 (Appeals to the Supreme Court) against the conviction, whether or not the person pleaded guilty.

(3) On a reference under subsection (1) of a person's conviction the Governor may give notice to the Supreme Court that any related conviction which is specified in the notice is to be treated as referred to the Supreme Court under subsection (1).

(4) For the purposes of subsection (3) convictions are related if they are convictions of the same person by the same court on the same day.

(5) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court has returned a verdict of not guilty by reason of mental disorder, the Governor may at any time refer the verdict to the Supreme Court, and a reference under this subsection is to be treated for all purposes as an appeal under section 668 against the verdict.

(6) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court has found that a person is under a disability and did the act or made the omission charged, the Governor may at any time refer either or both of those findings to the Supreme Court; and a reference under this subsection is to be treated for all purposes as an appeal under section 668 against the finding or findings referred.

[Criminal Justice (Am) (Miscarriages of Justice Ord. s.3 modified)]

715. Conditions for making of reference

(1) If —

(a) a person has been convicted of an offence in any court;

(b) a verdict of not guilty by reason of mental disorder has been returned by a court in respect of a person; or

(c) a finding has been made by a court that a person was under a disability and did the act or made the omission charged, the person, or the Attorney General on behalf of the person (with or without the consent of the person) may petition the Governor for the conviction, verdict or finding to be referred to the Court of Appeal or the Supreme Court, as the case may be, on the ground that the conviction, verdict or finding constitutes a miscarriage of justice.

(2) Before exercising the powers in this section or section 713 or 714, the Governor must obtain the advice of the Advisory Committee as to whether the conviction, verdict or finding should be referred under section 713 or 714, as the case may be.

(3) The Advisory Committee must not advise the Governor to refer a conviction, verdict or finding unless —

(a) the Advisory Committee considers that there is a real possibility that the conviction, verdict or finding would not be upheld if the reference were made;

(b) the Advisory Committee so considers because of an argument, or evidence, not raised in the proceedings which led to it or on any appeal or application for leave to appeal against it; and

(c) an appeal against the conviction, verdict or finding has been determined or leave to appeal against it has been refused.

(4) Nothing in subsection (3)(b) or (c) prevents the making of a reference if it appears to the Advisory Committee that there are exceptional circumstances which justify making it.

[Criminal Justice (Am) (Miscarriages of Justice Ord. s.4 modified; UK Criminal Appeal Act 1995 s.13]

716. Procedure on a petition

(1) A petition under section 715 must contain —

- (a) the facts of the case and the arguments as to why the conviction, verdict or finding constitutes a miscarriage of justice;
- (b) all the evidence before the courts in the previous hearings;
- (c) all previous judgments in the case;
- (d) all new evidence or significant points of law not previously considered by the courts.

(2) Unless the Attorney General is acting on behalf of a petitioner as provided by section 715(1), a copy of every petition must be served on the Attorney General, who must —

- (a) decide whether to oppose or support the petition; and
- (b) notify the Governor accordingly.

(3) When the Governor requests the advice of the Advisory Committee on the Prerogative of Mercy on a petition, as required by section 715(2), the Advisory Committee must have regard to—

- (a) any application or representations made to the Governor by or on behalf of the person to whom the conviction, verdict or finding relates;
- (b) any other representations made to the Governor in relation to it; and
- (c) any other matters which appear to the Governor to be relevant.

(4) The Advisory Committee —

- (a) may instruct independent investigators or experts to assist it if necessary;
- (b) when satisfied that all investigations necessary to make a decision on the petition are complete, must decide whether to advise the Governor to refer the conviction, verdict or finding under section 713 or 714 as the case may be.

717. Further provisions about references

(1) In considering whether to make a reference under section 713 or 714 the Governor, on the advice of the Advisory Committee on the Prerogative of Mercy, may at any time refer any point on which the Governor desires the assistance of the Court of Appeal to that court for the court's opinion on it; and on a reference under this subsection the Court of Appeal must consider the point referred and furnish the Governor with the court's opinion on the point.

(2) If the Governor makes a reference under section 713 or 714 the Governor must —

(a) give to the court to which the reference is made a statement of the Governor's reasons for making the reference; and

(b) send a copy of the statement to every person who appears to the Governor to be likely to be a party to any proceedings on the reference.

(3) When an appeal arising out of a reference under section 713 or 714 is being considered by the Court of Appeal or the Supreme Court, as the case maybe, it may be considered on any ground relating to the conviction, verdict or finding, whether or not the ground is related to any reason given by the Governor for making the reference.

(4) The grounds on which a conviction, verdict or finding may be reversed on a reference under section 713 or 714 are that —

(a) fresh evidence shows clearly that the defendant is innocent of the crime of which the defendant was convicted (or in respect of which a verdict was returned or a finding was made);

(b) the fresh evidence is such that, had it been available at the time of the trial, no reasonable jury (or court, in the absence of a jury) could properly have convicted the defendant (or returned a verdict or made a finding);

(c) the fresh evidence renders the conviction, verdict or finding unsafe in that, had it been available at the time of the trial, a reasonable jury (or court, in the absence of a jury) might or might not have convicted the defendant (or returned the verdict or made the finding); and

(d) something has gone seriously wrong in the investigation of the offence or the conduct of the trial, resulting in the conviction of someone who should not have been convicted (or a wrongful verdict or finding).

(5) In every case in which —

(a) an application has been made to the Governor by or on behalf of any person for the reference under section 713 or 714 of any conviction, verdict or finding; but

(b) the Governor decides not to make a reference of the conviction, verdict or finding, the Governor must give a statement of the reasons for the decision to the person who made the application.

(6) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision governing the procedure on a petition under section 716 and on an application for compensation under section 718, including provision for applications to be made and disposed of while the Chief Justice is outside the Falkland Islands.

(7) The procedure in and powers of the Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court on a reference under section 713 or 714 respectively are the same as on an appeal under the Court of Appeal Ordinance or Part 31 (Appeals to the Supreme Court) respectively.

[Criminal Justice (Am) (Miscarriages of Justice Ord. s.5]

718. Compensation for miscarriage of justice

(1) Subject to subsection (2), if a person has been convicted of a criminal offence, and if subsequently the conviction has been reversed or the person has been pardoned on the ground that a new or newly discovered fact so undermines the evidence against the defendant that no conviction could reasonably be based upon it, the Governor must order compensation to be paid—

(a) to the person who suffered punishment as the result of the conviction; or

(b) if that person is dead, to his or her personal representatives, unless the disclosure of the unknown fact was wholly or partly attributable to the person convicted.

(2) No payment of compensation under this section is to be made unless an application for such compensation has been made to the Governor.

(3) If the Governor determines that there is a right to compensation, the amount of the compensation, not exceeding £1 million for a sentence served in excess of 10 years or £500,000 in any other case, must be determined by an assessor appointed by the Governor.

(4) In assessing so much of any compensation payable under this section to or in respect of a person as is attributable to suffering, harm to reputation or similar damage, the assessor must have regard in particular to —

(a) the seriousness of the offence of which the person was convicted and the severity of the punishment resulting from the conviction;

(b) the conduct of the investigation and prosecution of the offence; and

(c) any other convictions of the person and any punishment resulting from them.

(5) In this section “reversed” is to be construed as referring to a conviction having been quashed—

(a) on an appeal out of time;

(b) on a reference under section 713 or 714.

(6) For the purposes of this section a person suffers punishment as a result of a conviction when sentence is passed on the person for the offence of which he or she was convicted.

(7) A person shall not be appointed by the Governor under subsection (3) to be an assessor unless the person holds one or more of the qualifications specified in section 88(2) of the Constitution.

(8) The Governor's powers under this section are to be exercised after consultation with the Advisory Committee on the Prerogative of Mercy.

CHAPTER 11 – YOUTHS AND YOUNG OFFENDERS

PART 33 – YOUNG OFFENDERS AND YOUTH PROTECTION

Preliminary

719. Interpretation of Part

(1) In this Part —

“detained” means detained in a place designated by the Governor under section 732; and “detention” is to be construed accordingly;

“make reparation”, in relation to an offender, means make reparation for the offence otherwise than by the payment of compensation;

“place of safety” means any police station or any hospital other suitable place which is able and willing to receive a youth temporarily;

“youth justice system” means the system of criminal justice in so far as it relates to youths and young offenders.

(2) The provisions of this Part are in addition to and do not derogate from the provisions of —

(a) Part 25 (Community Sentences) relating to community sentences on youths or young offenders;

(b) Part 24 (Absolute or Conditional Discharges) relating to breaches of conditional discharges by young offenders;

(c) Part 8 (Simple and Conditional Cautions) relating to conditional cautioning of young offenders;

(d) Part 23 (Sentencing: General principles) relating to young offenders;

(e) the Children Ordinance 2014 relating to care and supervision orders.

720. General considerations when dealing with youths

(1) The principal aim of the youth justice system in the Falkland Islands is to prevent offending by youths and re-offending by young offenders, and all persons and bodies performing functions in relation to the youth justice system must have regard to that aim.

(2) Every court in dealing with a youth who is brought before it, either as an offender or otherwise, must —

(a) have regard to the welfare of the youth; and

(b) in an appropriate case take steps for removing the youth from undesirable surroundings, and for securing that proper provision is made for his or her education and training.

(3) A court dealing with a youth —

(a) must have regard to the principal aim of the youth justice system as set out in subsection (1);

(b) must have regard to the purpose of sentencing as set out in section 477, except when considering an offence the sentence for which is fixed by law, or is provided for by section 730 (murder convictions) or by Part 34 (Mentally Disordered Offenders).

(4) The words “conviction” and “sentence” must not be used in relation to youths dealt with summarily and any reference in any enactment to a person convicted, a conviction or a sentence is, in the case of a youth, to be construed as including a reference to a person found guilty of an offence, a finding of guilt or an order made upon such a finding, as the case may be.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 ss.44 & 59; Crime & Disorder Act 1998 s.37; Criminal Justice Act 2003 s.142A ins. by Criminal Justice & Investigations Act 2009]

Youth Courts

721. Constitution and procedure of Youth Courts

(1) Subject to section 722, the Magistrate’s Court or the Summary Court when sitting for the purpose of hearing any charge against a youth or when exercising any other jurisdiction conferred on a Youth Court by this or any other enactment is to be known as the Youth Court.

(2) No person may be present at any sitting of the Youth Court except —

(a) members and officers of the court;

(b) parties to the case before the court, their legal practitioners, and witnesses and other persons directly concerned in that case;

- (c) genuine representatives of newspapers or news agencies; and
- (d) any other persons that the court authorises to be present.

(3) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision regulating the procedure of the Youth Court.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 ss.45 and 47 adapted]

722. Charges to be heard in the Youth Court

(1) Subject to subsections (2) and (3), every charge against a youth that is not for an indictment-only offence is to be heard by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court sitting as the Youth Court, except that —

(a) a charge made jointly against a youth and an adult must be heard by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court in accordance with Part 16 (Summary Procedure); and

(b) if a youth is charged with an offence and an adult is charged at the same time with aiding, abetting, causing, procuring, allowing or permitting that offence, the case must be tried in the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court in accordance with Part 16.

(2) If, in the course of any proceedings before the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court not sitting as the Youth Court, it appears that the person to whom the proceedings relate is a youth, the court may, if it thinks fit to do so, proceed with the hearing and determination of those proceedings.

(3) If a notification that the defendant wishes to plead guilty without appearing before the court is received by the Clerk of the court and the court has no reason to believe that the defendant is a youth, then, even if the defendant is a youth, he or she is deemed to have attained the age of 18 for the purposes of subsection (1) in its application to the proceedings in question.

(4) No rule, whether contained in this Ordinance or any other law, that a charge is to be brought before the Youth Court restricts the powers of any justice of the peace to entertain an application for bail or for a remand, and to hear any evidence necessary for that purpose.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.46 am by Children & Young Persons Acts 1963 and 1969]

723. Extension of jurisdiction

(1) The Youth Court when sitting for the purpose of hearing a charge against a person who is believed to be a youth may, if it thinks fit to do so, proceed with the hearing and determination of the charge even if it is discovered that the person in question is not a youth.

(2) The attainment of the age of 18 years by a person who is a youth subject to a youth rehabilitation order, or in whose case an order for conditional discharge has been made, does not deprive the Youth Court of jurisdiction to enforce the person's attendance and deal with him or her in respect of any failure to comply with the requirements of the order or the commission of a further offence or to amend or discharge the youth rehabilitation order.

724. Duty to remit youth offenders to the Youth Court for sentence

(1) Subsection (2) applies if a youth is convicted by or before any court, other than the Youth Court, of an offence other than homicide.

(2) The court must, unless satisfied that it would be undesirable to do so, remit the case to the Youth Court for sentence, subject to subsection (6).

(3) If a case is remitted under subsection (2), the offender must be brought before the Youth Court accordingly, and that court may deal with the offender in any way in which it might have dealt with the offender if he or she had been tried and convicted by that court.

(4) A court by which an order remitting a case to the Youth Court is made under subsection (2)—

(a) may, subject to section 161 (Bail in cases of treason or murder) and section 162 (Bail in cases of other serious crime), give any directions necessary with respect to the custody of the offender or for the release of the offender on bail until he or she can be brought before the Youth Court; and

(b) must send to the Clerk of the court a certificate setting out the nature of the offence and stating that —

(i) the offender has been convicted of the offence; and

(ii) the case has been remitted for the purpose of being dealt with under this section.

(5) If a case is remitted under subsection (2), the offender does not have a right of appeal against the order of remission, but has the same right of appeal against any order of the Youth Court as if he or she had been convicted by that court.

(6) If the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court convicts a youth of an offence it must exercise the power conferred by subsection (2) unless the court is of the opinion that the case is one which can properly be dealt with by means of —

(a) an order discharging the offender absolutely or conditionally;

(b) an order for the payment of a fine; or

(c) an order under section 737 requiring the offender's parent or guardian to enter into a recognisance to take proper care of the offender and exercise proper control over him or her, with or without any other order that the court has power to make when absolutely or conditionally discharging an offender.

(7) For the purposes of subsection (6), taking care of a person includes giving him or her protection and guidance, and control includes discipline.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss.8 & 150(11)]

725. Remitting an offender who becomes 18 to the Magistrate's Court for sentence

(1) If a person who appears or is brought before the Youth Court charged with an offence subsequently attains the age of 18, the Youth Court may, at any time after conviction and before sentence, remit the person for sentence to the Magistrate's Court.

(2) If an offender is remitted under subsection (1), the Youth Court must adjourn proceedings in relation to the offence, and —

(a) any enactment relating to remand or the granting of bail in criminal proceedings has effect, in relation to the Youth Court's power or duty to remand the offender on that adjournment, as if any reference to the court to or before which the person remanded is to be brought or appear after remand were a reference to the Magistrate's Court;

(b) subject to subsection (3), the Magistrate's Court may deal with the case in any way in which it would have power to deal with it if all proceedings relating to the offence which took place before the Youth Court had taken place before the Magistrate's Court.

(3) If an offender is remitted under subsection (1), section 724(6) does not apply to the Magistrate's Court.

(4) An offender who is remitted under subsection (1) has no right of appeal against the order of remission, but without affecting any right of appeal against an order made in respect of the offence by the Magistrate's Court to which he or she is remitted.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.9]

Custodial sentences on young offenders and youths

726. Custodial sentences on young offenders

(1) Subject to subsection (2) and section 730(2) and (3), a court must not —

(a) pass a sentence of imprisonment for an offence on a person who was aged under 21 when convicted of the offence; or

(b) commit a person aged under 21 to prison for any reason.

(2) Nothing in subsection (1) prevents the committal to prison of a person aged under 21 who is—

(a) remanded in custody; or

(b) sent in custody for trial or committed in custody for sentence.

(3) A court must not —

- (a) pass a sentence of detention under any of sections 727 to 729; or
- (b) pass a sentence of custody for life under section 730, unless it is satisfied —

- (i) that the circumstances, including the nature and gravity of the offence, are such that if the offender were aged 21 or over the court would pass a sentence of imprisonment; and
- (ii) that the offender qualifies for a custodial sentence.

(4) An offender qualifies for a custodial sentence if —

- (a) he or she has a history of failure to respond to non-custodial penalties and is unable or unwilling to respond to them; or
- (b) only a custodial sentence would be adequate to protect the public from serious harm from the offender or
- (c) the offence of which the offender has been convicted or found guilty was so serious that a non-custodial sentence for it cannot be justified.

(5) The provisions of sections 558 and 559 apply in relation to a person under 21 years of age as they do to a person above that age with the modification required by subsection (7).

(6) The modification referred to in subsection (6) is the substitution of a reference to a sentence of detention or a sentence of custody for life for any reference to a term of imprisonment.

(7) Before imposing a custodial sentence on a youth the court must consider a report from the probation officer on the offender and his or her personal and family circumstances (irrespective of how serious the offence is).

(8) If —

- (a) the Supreme Court passes a sentence of detention or a sentence of custody for life under section 730; or
- (b) the Magistrate's Court or the Youth Court passes a sentence of detention, the court must—
 - (i) state in open court that it is satisfied that the offender qualifies for a custodial sentence under one or more of the paragraphs of subsection (4) above, the paragraph or paragraphs in question and why it is so satisfied; and

- (ii) explain to the offender in open court and in ordinary language why it is passing a custodial sentence on him or her.

[Criminal Justice Ord. ss.33 & 37; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.89]

727. Detention of young offenders

(1) Subject to sections 728 to 730, if —

(a) an offender under 21 but not less than 15 years of age at the date of conviction is convicted of an offence which is punishable with imprisonment in the case of a person aged 21 or over; and

(b) the court is satisfied of the matters referred to in section 726(3), the court may impose a sentence of detention.

(2) Subject to section 728(2) and (3), the maximum term of detention that a court may impose for an offence is the same as the maximum term of imprisonment that it may impose for that offence on a person aged 21 or over.

(3) Subject to subsection (4) of this section and to section 728(3), a court must not pass a sentence of detention on an offender for less than 21 days.

(4) A court may pass a sentence of detention for less than 21 days for an offence under section 731(2) (contempt of court)

(5) Subject to section 728(4), if —

(a) an offender is convicted of more than one offence for which he or she is liable to a sentence of detention; or

(b) an offender who is serving a sentence of detention is convicted of one or more further offences for which he or she is liable to such a sentence, the court has the same power to pass consecutive sentences of detention as if they were sentences of imprisonment.

(6) If an offender who —

(a) is serving a sentence of detention; and

(b) is aged over 21 years, is convicted of one or more further offences for which he or she is liable to imprisonment, the court may impose one or more sentences of imprisonment to run consecutively upon the sentence of detention.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss.101 & 102 adapted (part)]

728. Detention of young offenders: Supplementary

(1) A person who was under the age of 15 years at the date of conviction must not be sentenced to detention unless section 729 or section 730 applies.

(2) A person who was aged 15 but less than 18 years at the date of conviction may be sentenced to detention for any period not exceeding 24 months.

(3) Subject to the limit specified in subsection (2), the maximum period of detention which the court can impose upon a person aged 15 but less than 18 years for an offence is half the maximum term of imprisonment for the offence that a court could impose on a person over 21.

(4) A court may impose consecutive sentences of detention up to a maximum total term of 24 months.

(5) Time spent by the offender on remand in detention in must be allowed for in calculating a term of detention under this section or section 727.

(6) In this section “total term” means, in the case of an offender sentenced (whether or not on the same occasion) to 2 or more terms of detention which are consecutive or wholly or partly concurrent, the total of those terms.

(7) Sections 580 to 583 (relating to release on licence) and any rules made or criteria established under section 584 apply, with necessary modifications, to persons serving a period of detention under this Part as they apply to persons serving a term of imprisonment under that Part.

(8) The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may specify the modifications required to sections 580 to 583 and any rules made or criteria established under section 584 in relation to young offenders.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.35; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss.101 & 102 adapted (part)]

729. Youths convicted of murder, etc.

(1) If a person convicted of murder or any other offence the sentence for which is fixed by law as life imprisonment appears to the court to have been aged under 18 when the offence was committed, the court must sentence the person to be detained during Her Majesty’s pleasure.

(2) If a youth is convicted of —

(a) any indictment-only offence;

(b) an offence punishable in the case of a person aged 21 or over with imprisonment for 14 years or more, not being an offence the sentence for which is fixed by law;

(c) an offence under section 216 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (child sex offences); or

(d) an offence under section 14 of the Road Traffic Ordinance (Causing death by reckless driving), and the court is of the opinion that none of the other ways in which the case may be dealt with is suitable, the court may sentence the offender to be detained for a specified period, not exceeding the maximum term of imprisonment with which the offence is punishable in the case of a person aged 18 or over.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) are subject to section 726(3) to (8) (restrictions on imposition of custodial sentences).

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.39; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss.90 & 91 adapted]

730. Young offenders convicted of murder, etc.

(1) If a person aged under 21 is convicted of murder or any other offence the sentence for which is fixed by law as imprisonment for life, the court must sentence the person to imprisonment for life unless he or she is liable to be detained under section 729(1).

(2) If a person aged at least 18 but under 21 is convicted of an offence —

(a) for which the sentence is not fixed by law; but

(b) for which a person aged 21 or over would be liable to imprisonment for life, the court must, if it considers that a sentence for life would be appropriate, sentence the person to imprisonment for life.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) are subject to section 726(3) to (8) (restrictions on imposition of custodial sentences).

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.38; UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss.93 and 94 am. by Criminal Justice & Court Services Act 2000 s.61]

731. Sentences on young offenders for contempt, etc.

(1) In any case where, but for section 726, a court would have power to —

(a) commit a person under 21 to prison for contempt of court or any kindred offence;

(b) commit such a person to prison for default in payment of a fine or any other sum of money; or

(c) make an order fixing a term of imprisonment in the event of such a default by such a person, the court may commit the person to be detained under this section or, as the case may be, may make an order for fixing a term of detention under this section in the event of default, for a term not exceeding the term of imprisonment.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), a power of the court to order a person to be imprisoned under legislation relating to the attachment of earnings in default of payment by that person of any sum ordered by a court to be paid shall be taken to be a power to commit the person to prison.

(3) A court must not commit a person under 21 to be detained under this section unless it is of the opinion that no other method of dealing with the person is appropriate.

(4) If a court commits a person under 21 to be detained under this section it must state its reasons in open court and cause the reason to be recorded in the warrant of commitment and the register.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.40 modified]

732. Powers of the Governor

(1) The Governor may from time to time direct where a youth or a young offender who is sentenced to detention under this Part is to be detained.

(2) The place designated under subsection (1) must not be in the prison unless no other suitable place is available to receive the offender.

(3) If a place in the prison is designated, it must be an area of the prison partitioned off from other areas of the prison.

(4) A person sentenced to be detained during Her Majesty's pleasure is to be detained in a place, and under conditions, that the Governor directs.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.36]

Fines, etc. on youth offenders

733. Limit on fines imposed in respect of youths

(1) The maximum fine that can be imposed by a court on a child for any offence is £250.

(2) The maximum fine that can be imposed by a Youth Court on a young person for any offence is level 3 on the standard scale.

(3) The Supreme Court may fine a young person any amount up to the limit, if any, prescribed for the offence.

(4) A youth must not be imprisoned for non-payment of a fine but the court may impose a youth rehabilitation order under Part 25 (Community Sentences) instead of imprisonment.

(5) The Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order vary the maximum amount of fine mentioned in subsection (1) or (2).

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.135 adapted; Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s.36]

734. Power to order parent or guardian to pay fine, costs or compensation

(1) If —

(a) a youth is convicted of any offence for the commission of which a fine or costs may be imposed or a compensation order may be made; and

(b) the court is of the opinion that the case would best be met by the imposition of a fine or costs or the making of such an order, whether with or without any other penalty, the court must order that the fine, compensation or costs awarded be paid by the parent or guardian of the youth instead of by the youth himself or herself, unless the court is satisfied that—

(i) the parent or guardian cannot be found; or

(ii) it would be unreasonable to make an order for payment, having regard to the circumstances of the case.

(2) If but for this subsection a court would impose a fine on a youth for a breach of any order or condition imposed by a court, the court must order that the fine be paid by the parent or guardian of the youth instead of by the youth himself or herself, unless the court is satisfied that —

(a) the parent or guardian cannot be found; or

(b) it would be unreasonable to make an order for payment, having regard to the circumstances of the case.

(3) In the case of a young person aged 16 or over, subsections (1) and (2) have effect as if, instead of imposing a duty, they conferred a power to make an order as mentioned in those subsections.

(4) Subject to subsection (5), no order may be made under this section without giving the parent or guardian an opportunity of being heard.

(5) An order under this section may be made against a parent or guardian who, having been required to attend, has failed to do so.

(6) A parent or guardian may appeal to the Supreme Court against an order under this section made by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court.

(7) A parent or guardian may appeal to the Court of Appeal against an order under this section made by the Supreme Court, as if he or she had been convicted on indictment and the order were a sentence passed on his or her conviction.

(8) In relation to a youth for whom the Crown has parental responsibility and who —

(a) is in the care of the Crown; or

(b) is provided with accommodation by the Crown in the exercise of any statutory functions, references in this section to his or her parent or guardian are to be construed as references to the Crown.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.137; Magistrate's Courts Act s.81 (part) adapted]

735. Power to order statement as to financial circumstances of parent or guardian

(1) Before exercising its powers under section 734 against the parent or guardian of a youth who has been convicted of an offence, the court may make a financial circumstances order with respect to the parent or (as the case may be) guardian.

(2) In this section “financial circumstances order” has the meaning given by subsection (3) of section 593, and subsections (4) to (6) of that section apply in relation to a financial circumstances order made under this section as they apply in relation to such an order made under that section.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.136; Magistrate's Courts Act 1980 s.81 (part)]

736. Fixing of fine or compensation to be paid by parent or guardian

(1) For the purposes of any order under section 734 made against the parent or guardian of a youth —

(a) section 592 (Fixing of fines) has effect as if any reference in subsections (1) to (4) of that section to the financial circumstances of the offender were a reference to the financial circumstances of the parent or guardian, and as if subsection (5) were omitted;

(b) section 604 (Power of court to order search, etc.) has effect as if the person before the court were the parent or guardian;

(c) section 610(5) (decision on amount payable under a compensation order) has effect as if any reference to the means of the person against whom the compensation order is made were a reference to the financial circumstances of the parent or guardian; and

(d) section 610(6) (preference to be given to compensation) has effect as if the reference to the offender were a reference to the parent or guardian;

but in relation to an order under section 734 made against the Crown this subsection has effect subject to subsection (2) of this section.

(2) For the purposes of any order under section 734 made against the Crown, sections 592(1) to (4) and 610(4) to (6) do not apply.

(3) For the purposes of an order under section 734, if the parent or guardian of an offender who is a youth has —

(a) failed to comply with an order under section 735 or

(b) otherwise failed to co-operate with the court in its inquiry into his or her financial circumstances, and the court considers that it has insufficient information to make a proper determination of the parent's or guardian's financial circumstances, it may make such determination as it thinks fit.

(4) If a court has, in fixing the amount of a fine, decided the financial circumstances of a parent or guardian under subsection (3), subsections (2) to (4) of section 594 have effect as they have effect in the case mentioned in section 594(1), but as if the reference in section 594(2) to the offender's financial circumstances were a reference to the financial circumstances of the parent or guardian.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.138; Magistrate's Courts Act s.81 (part) adapted]

Action against parent or guardian

737. Binding over of parent or guardian

(1) If a youth is convicted of an offence, the powers conferred by this section are exercisable by the court by which the youth is sentenced for that offence, and if he or she is aged under 16 when sentenced the court must —

(a) exercise those powers if it is satisfied, having regard to the circumstances of the case, that their exercise is appropriate in the interests of preventing the commission by the youth of further offences; and

(b) if it does not exercise them, state in open court that it is not satisfied as mentioned in paragraph (a) and why it is not so satisfied.

(2) A court may, in relation to the parent or guardian of a youth convicted by the court of an offence —

(a) if the parent or guardian consents – order the parent or guardian to enter into a recognisance to take proper care of the offender and exercise proper control over the youth;

(b) if the parent or guardian refuses consent and the court considers the refusal unreasonable – to order the parent or guardian to pay a fine of up to level 3 on the standard scale.

(3) If the court has imposed a youth rehabilitation order on a youth under Part 25 (Community Sentences), it may include in the recognisance a provision that the youth's parent or guardian must ensure that the youth complies with the requirements of that sentence.

(4) An order under this section must not require the parent or guardian to enter into a recognisance —

(a) for more than £1,000; or

(b) for a period exceeding 3 years; or

(c) if the offender will attain the age of 18 in a period shorter than 3 years – for a period exceeding that shorter period.

(5) The power under Part 27 (Fines and Recognisances) to enforce a recognisance applies in relation to a recognisance entered into pursuant to an order under this section as it applies in relation to a recognisance to keep the peace under Part 4 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014.

(6) A fine imposed under subsection (2)(b) is deemed, for the purposes of any enactment, to be a sum adjudged to be paid upon a conviction.

(7) In fixing the amount of a recognisance under this section, the court must take into account among other things the means of the parent or guardian so far as they appear or are known to the court, whether this has the effect of increasing or reducing the amount of the recognisance.

(8) A parent or guardian may appeal to the Supreme Court against an order under this section made by the Magistrate’s Court or the Youth Court.

(9) A parent or guardian may appeal to the Court of Appeal against an order under this section made by the Supreme Court, as if he or she had been convicted on indictment and the order were a sentence passed on that conviction.

(10) A court may vary or revoke an order made by it under this section if, on the application of the parent or guardian, it appears to the court, having regard to any change in the circumstances since the order was made, to be in the interests of justice to do so.

(11) For the purposes of this section, taking care of a person includes giving him or her protection and guidance and control includes discipline.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.150]

738. Attendance at court of parent or guardian

(1) If a youth is charged with an offence or is for any other reason brought before a court, the court —

(a) may in any case; and

(b) must in the case of a youth who is under the age of 16 years, require a person who is a parent or guardian of the youth to attend at the court during all the stages of the proceedings, unless and to the extent that the court is satisfied that it would be unreasonable to require such attendance, having regard to the circumstances of the case.

(2) If a youth is arrested and taken to the police station or to a place of safety, the police officer by whom the youth is arrested, or the police officer in charge of the police station, or the person by whom the youth is taken to the place of safety, as the case may be, must cause the parent or guardian of the youth, if he or she can be found, to be warned to attend at the court before which the youth will appear.

(3) The attendance of the parent or guardian of a youth is not required under this section in any case where the youth was before the institution of the proceedings removed from the custody or charge of his or her parent by an order of a court.

(4) In relation to a youth for whom the Crown has parental responsibility and who is —

(a) in its care; or

(b) provided with accommodation by the Crown in the exercise of functions under the Children Ordinance 2014, the reference in subsections (1) to (3) to a person who is a parent or guardian of the youth is to be construed as a reference to the Crown.

(5) The Chief Justice may by criminal procedure rules make provision —

(a) for enforcing the attendance of the parent or guardian of a youth brought before a court;

(b) enabling such parent or guardian to take part in the proceedings;

(c) enabling orders to be made against a parent or guardian; and

(d) prescribing forms of summons to a youth and to his or her parent or guardian.

(6) This section is in addition to and does not derogate from sections 88 and 89 (rights to have someone informed when arrested) in relation to a youth in police detention.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.115; UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.34]

Reparation orders on youths

739. Making of reparation orders

(1) If a youth is convicted of an offence, other than one for which the sentence is fixed by law, the court by or before which the youth is convicted may, subject to section 741, make an order (a “reparation order”) requiring him or her to make reparation specified in the order —

(a) to a person or persons identified by the court as a victim of the offence or a person otherwise affected by it; or

(b) to the community at large.

(2) The court must not make a reparation order in respect of the offender if it proposes —

(a) to pass on the offender a custodial sentence; or

(b) to make in respect of the offender a youth rehabilitation order.

(3) Before making a reparation order, a court must obtain and consider a written report by the probation officer indicating —

(a) the type of work that is suitable for the offender; and

(b) the attitude of the victim or victims to the requirements proposed to be included in the order.

(4) Before making a reparation order, the court must explain to the offender in ordinary language—

(a) the effect of the order and of the requirements proposed to be included in it;

(b) the consequences which may follow under section 741 if he or she fails to comply with any of those requirements; and

(c) that the court has power under section 742 to review the order on the application either of the offender or of the probation officer.

(5) The court must give reasons if it does not make a reparation order in a case in which it has power to do so.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.73]

740. Requirements and provisions of reparation orders

(1) A reparation order must not require the offender to —

(a) work for more than 24 hours in total; or

(b) make reparation to any person without the consent of that person.

(2) Subject to subsection (1), requirements specified in a reparation order must be such as in the opinion of the court are commensurate with the seriousness of the offence, or the combination of the offence and one or more offences associated with it.

(3) Requirements so specified must, as far as practicable, be such as to avoid —

(a) any conflict with the offender's religious beliefs or with the requirements of any community order to which he or she is subject; and

(b) any interference with the times, if any, at which the offender normally works or attends school or any other educational establishment.

(4) Any reparation required by a reparation order —

(a) must be made under the supervision of the probation officer; and

(b) must be made within 3 months from the making of the order.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s.74]

741. Breach of requirement of reparation order

(1) This section applies if while a reparation order is in force in respect of an offender it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that made the order, on the application of the probation officer, that the offender has failed to comply with any requirement included in the order.

(2) If this section applies, the court, whether or not it also makes an order under section 742, may—

(a) subject to section 733, order the offender to pay a fine of up to level 3 on the standard scale;

(b) if the reparation order was made by the Magistrate's Court or the Youth Court – revoke the order and deal with the offender, for the offence in respect of which the order was made, in any way in which the offender could have been dealt with for that offence by the court which made the order if the order had not been made; or

(c) if the reparation order was made by the Supreme Court – commit the offender in custody or release the offender on bail until he or she can be brought or appear before the Supreme Court.

(3) If a court deals with an offender under subsection (2)(c), it must send to the Supreme Court a certificate signed by a justice of the peace giving —

(a) particulars of the offender's failure to comply with the requirement in question; and

(b) any other particulars of the case that are appropriate.

(4) If —

(a) by virtue of subsection (2)(c) the offender is brought or appears before the Supreme Court; and

(b) it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that the offender has failed to comply with the requirement in question, that court may deal with the offender, for the offence in respect of which the order was made, in any way in which it could have dealt with him or her for that offence if it had not made the order.

(5) If the Supreme Court deals with an offender under subsection (4), it must revoke the reparation order if it is still in force.

(6) A fine imposed under this section is deemed, for the purposes of any enactment, to be a sum adjudged to be paid upon a conviction.

(7) In dealing with an offender under this section, a court must take into account the extent to which the offender has complied with the requirements of the reparation order.

(8) A reparation made on appeal is, for the purposes of this section, deemed —

(a) if made on an appeal brought from the Magistrate’s Court or the Youth Court – to have been made by that court;

(b) if made on an appeal brought from the Supreme Court or from the Court of Appeal – to have been made by the Supreme Court, and in relation to such an order, subsection (2)(b) has effect as if the words “if the order had not been made” were omitted and subsection (4) has effect as if the words “if it had not made the order” were omitted.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 Sched.8 para. 2]

742. Revocation and amendment of reparation order

(1) If, while a reparation order is in force in respect of an offender, it appears to the court, on the application of the probation officer or the offender, that it is appropriate to make an order under this subsection, the court may make an order —

(a) revoking the reparation order; or

(b) amending it —

(i) by cancelling any provision included in it; or

(ii) by inserting in it (either in addition to or in substitution for any of its provisions) any provision which could have been included in the order if the court had then had power to make it and were exercising the power.

(2) If an application under subsection (1) for the revocation of a reparation order is dismissed, no further application for its revocation may be made under that subsection by any person except with the consent of the court.

743. Presence of offender in court, remands, etc.

(1) If the probation officer makes an application under section 741 or 742 —

(a) the officer may bring the offender before the court; and

(b) subject to subsection (7), the court must not make an order under either of those sections unless the offender is present before the court.

(2) Without affecting any other power to issue a summons or warrant, the court to which an application under section 741 or 742 is made may issue a summons or warrant for the purpose of securing the attendance of the offender before it.

(3) If the offender is arrested pursuant to a warrant issued by virtue of subsection (2) and cannot be brought immediately before the court, the person in whose custody the offender is —

(a) may make arrangements for the detention of the offender in a place of safety for a period of up to 72 hours from the time of the arrest (and the offender may be detained pursuant to the arrangements); and

(b) must within that period bring the offender before the Youth Court.

(4) If an offender is brought before the Youth Court under subsection (3)(b), the court may —

(a) direct that the offender be released forthwith; or

(b) subject to subsection (6), remand the offender to segregated accommodation in the prison or other place of safety.

(5) Subject to subsection (6), if an application is made to a court under section 741, the court may remand (or further remand) the offender to segregated accommodation in the prison or other place of safety, if —

(a) a warrant has been issued under subsection (2) for the purpose of securing the attendance of the offender before the court; or

(b) the court considers that remanding (or further remanding) the offender will enable information to be obtained which is likely to assist the court in deciding whether and, if so, how to exercise its powers under section 742.

(6) If the offender is aged 18 or over at the time when he or she is brought before the Youth Court under subsection (3)(b), or is aged 18 or over at a time when (apart from this subsection) the court could exercise its powers under subsection (5) in respect of the offender, he or she must be remanded to segregated accommodation in the prison.

(7) A court may make an order under section 742 in the absence of the offender if the effect of the order is confined to —

(a) revoking the reparation order; or

(b) cancelling a requirement included in the reparation order.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 Sched.8 para. 6]

744. Reparation orders: Appeals

An offender may appeal to the Supreme Court against —

(a) any order made under section 741 or 742 except an order made, or which could have been made, in the offender's absence under section 743(7);

(b) the dismissal of an application under section 742(1) to revoke a reparation order.

[UK Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 Sched.8 para.7]

Protection of youths: Schedule 12 offences

745. Presumption and determination of age

(1) If in any charge or indictment for any of the offences listed in Schedule 12 —

(a) it is alleged that the person by or in respect of whom the offence was committed was a youth or was under or had attained any specified age; and

(b) the person appears to the court, having regard to the provisions of section 758, to have been at the date of the commission of the alleged offence a youth, or to have been under or to have attained the specified age, as the case may be, the person is for the purposes of this Ordinance presumed at that date to have been a youth or to have been under or to have attained that age, as the case may be, unless the contrary is proved.

(2) If in any charge or indictment for any of the offences listed in Schedule 12, it is alleged that the person in respect of whom the offence was committed was a youth, it is not a defence to prove that a person alleged to have been a child was a young person or that a person alleged to have been a young person was a child if the acts constituting the alleged offence would equally have been an offence if committed in respect of any youth.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.99 (part)]

746. Power to proceed with case in absence of youth

If in any proceedings with relation to any of the offences listed in Schedule 12 the court is satisfied that the attendance before the court of any youth in respect of whom the offence is alleged to have been committed is not essential to the just hearing of the case, the case may be proceeded with and decided in the absence of the youth.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.41]

747. Extension of power to take deposition of youth

(1) If a justice of the peace is satisfied by the evidence of a medical practitioner that the attendance before a court of any youth against whom any of the offences listed in Schedule 12 is alleged to have been committed would involve serious danger to the youth's life or health, the justice —

(a) may take in writing the deposition of the youth on oath; and

(b) must sign the deposition and add to it a statement of his or her reason for taking it and of the day when and place where it was taken, and of the names of the persons (if any) present at the taking of it.

(2) The justice of the peace taking a deposition pursuant to subsection (1) must send it with his or her statement —

(a) if the deposition relates to an offence for which an accused person is already sent for trial - to the Registrar; and

(b) in any other case - to the Clerk of the court.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.42]

748. Admission of deposition of youth in evidence

(1) If, in any proceedings in respect of any of the offences listed in Schedule 12, the court is satisfied by the evidence of a medical practitioner that the attendance before the court of any youth in respect of whom the offence is alleged to have been committed would involve serious danger to the youth's life or health, a deposition of the youth taken under this Ordinance is admissible in evidence either for or against the defendant without further proof of it if it purports to be signed by the justice of the peace by or before whom it purports to be taken.

(2) The deposition is not admissible in evidence against the defendant unless it is proved that reasonable notice of the intention to take the deposition has been served upon the defendant and that the defendant or his or her legal practitioner had, or would have had if present, an opportunity of cross-examining the youth making the deposition.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.43]

749. Mode of charging offences and limitation of time

(1) If a person is charged with committing any of the offences listed in Schedule 12 in respect of 2 or more youths, the same information or summons may charge the offence in respect of all or any of them, but the person charged is not, if he or she is summarily convicted, liable to a separate penalty in respect of each youth except upon separate informations or charges.

(2) The same information or summons may charge a person with the offences of assault, ill-treatment, neglect, abandonment or exposure, together or separately, and may charge a person with committing all or any of those offences in a manner likely to cause unnecessary suffering or injury to health, alternatively or together, but if those offences are charged together the person charged is not, if summarily convicted, liable to a separate penalty for each.

(3) If an offence listed in Schedule 12 charged against any person is a continuous offence, it is not necessary to specify in the information, summons or indictment the date of the acts constituting the offence.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.14]

750. Warrant to search for youth suspected of being ill-treated, etc.

(1) If it appears to a justice of the peace on information on oath laid by any person who, in the opinion of the justice, is acting in the interests of a youth, that there is reasonable cause to suspect that —

(a) the youth has been or is being assaulted, ill-treated, or neglected in a manner likely to cause him or her unnecessary suffering, or injury to health; or

(b) any offence listed in Schedule 12 has been or is being committed in respect of the youth, the justice may issue a warrant authorising any police officer as described in subsection (2).

(2) A warrant issued under subsection (1) in relation to a youth authorises the police officer to —

(a) search for the youth and, if it is found that he or she has been or is being assaulted, ill-treated or neglected in the manner described in subsection (1)(a), or that an offence as mentioned in subsection (1)(b) has been or is being committed in respect of the youth, to take the youth and detain him or her in a place of safety until he or she can be brought before the Youth Court; or

(b) remove the youth with or without search to a place of safety and detain him or her there until he or she can be brought before the Youth Court.

(3) A police officer authorised by warrant under this section to search for a youth, or to remove a youth with or without search, may enter, if need be by force, any house, building, or other place specified in the warrant, and may remove the youth from it.

(4) A warrant issued under this section must be executed by a police officer, who —

(a) must be accompanied by the person laying the information, if that person so desires, unless the justice of the peace by whom the warrant is issued otherwise directs; and

(b) may also, if the justice so directs, be accompanied by a medical practitioner.

(5) It is not necessary in an information or warrant under this section to name the youth.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.40]

Other protective provisions

751. Segregation of youths in detention

Arrangements must be made for —

(a) preventing as far as possible a youth while detained in a place of lawful custody, or while being conveyed to or from a criminal court, or while waiting before or after attendance in a criminal court, from associating with an adult, not being a relative, who is charged with any offence other than an offence with which the youth is jointly charged; and

(b) ensuring as far as possible that a girl who is a youth is while so detained, conveyed, or waiting, under the care of a woman.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.31]

752. Prohibition of unnecessary presence of children in court

(1) No child, other than an infant in arms, may be present in court during the trial of any other person charged with an offence, or during any proceedings preliminary to such a trial, except during any time that his or her presence is required as a witness or otherwise for the purposes of justice, or if the court consents to his or her presence.

(2) If a child is present in court when under this section he or she is not to be permitted to be so the court must order the child to be removed.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.114; UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.36 am. by Access to Justice Act 1999]

753. Power to clear court while youth is giving evidence

(1) If, in any proceedings in relation to an offence against, or any conduct contrary to, decency or morality, a person who, in the opinion of the court, is a youth is called as a witness, the court may direct that all or any persons, not being members or officers of the court or parties to the case, their legal practitioners, or persons otherwise directly concerned in the case, be excluded from the court during the taking of the evidence of that witness.

(2) Nothing in this section authorises the exclusion of genuine representatives of a news gathering or news reporting organisation or a programme service.

(3) The powers conferred on a court by this section are in addition to and do not affect any other powers of the court to hear proceedings other than in open court.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.111; UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.37]

754. Evidence of child of tender years

(1) Section 352 (Reception of unsworn evidence) applies for the purpose of determining whether a child should give sworn or unsworn evidence.

(2) If a child whose evidence is received unsworn in any proceedings for an offence by virtue of section 352 wilfully gives false evidence in such circumstances that the child would, if the evidence had been given on oath, have been guilty of perjury, the child is liable to be dealt with for an offence under section 480 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Penalty for giving false unsworn evidence).

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.38]

755. Restrictions on reports of proceedings in which youths are concerned

(1) Subject to subsection (5), the following prohibitions apply in relation to any proceedings to which this section applies —

(a) no report may be published which reveals the name, address or school of any youth concerned in the proceedings or includes any particulars likely to lead to the identification of any youth concerned in the proceedings; and

(b) no picture may be published or included in a relevant programme as being or including a picture of any youth concerned in the proceedings.

(2) The proceedings to which this section applies are —

(a) proceedings in the Youth Court;

(b) proceedings on appeal from the Youth Court;

(c) proceedings for varying or revoking a youth rehabilitation order; and

(d) proceedings on appeal from the Magistrate's Court arising out of proceedings under section 528 (Youth rehabilitation orders).

(3) The reports to which this section applies are —

(a) reports in a newspaper;

(b) reports included in a relevant programme; and

(c) any pictures in a newspaper or relevant programme.

(4) For the purposes of this section a youth is “concerned” in any proceedings whether as being the person against or in respect of whom the proceedings are taken or as being a witness in the proceedings.

(5) If a court is satisfied that it is in the public interest to do so, it may, in relation to a youth who has been convicted of an offence, by order dispense to any specified extent with the requirements of this section in relation to any proceedings before it to which this section applies by virtue of subsection (2)(a) or (b), if they relate to —

(a) the prosecution or conviction of the youth for the offence;

(b) the manner in which the youth, or his or her parent or guardian, should be dealt with in respect of the offence; or

(c) the enforcement, amendment, variation, revocation or discharge of any order made in respect of the offence.

(6) A court must not exercise its power under subsection (5) without —

- (a) giving the parties to the proceedings an opportunity to make representations; and
- (b) taking into account any representations which are so made.

(7) Subject to subsections (8) and (9) a court may, in relation to proceedings before it to which this section applies, by order dispense to any specified extent with the requirements of this section in relation to a youth who is concerned in the proceedings if it is satisfied —

- (a) that it is appropriate to do so for the purpose of avoiding injustice to the youth; or
- (b) that, as respects a youth to whom this paragraph applies who is unlawfully at large, it is necessary to dispense with those requirements for the purpose of apprehending the youth and bringing him or her before a court or returning the youth to the place in which he or she was in custody.

(8) Subsection (7)(b) applies to any youth who is charged with or has been convicted of —

- (a) an offence of violence;
- (b) a sexual offence; or
- (c) an offence punishable in the case of a person aged 21 or over with imprisonment for 14 years or more.

(9) The court must not exercise its power under subsection (7)(b) —

- (a) except pursuant to an application by or on behalf of the Attorney General; and
- (b) unless notice of the application has been given by the Attorney General to any legal practitioner of the youth.

(10) If a report or picture is published or included in a relevant programme in contravention of subsection (1), the following persons commit an offence —

- (a) in the case of publication of a written report or a picture as part of a newspaper - any proprietor, editor or publisher of the newspaper;
- (b) in the case of the inclusion of a report or picture in a relevant programme – any corporate body which provides the programme service and any person having functions in relation to the programme corresponding to those of an editor of a newspaper.

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.49 am. by Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000]

756. Power to prohibit publication of certain matter in newspapers

(1) In relation to any proceedings in any court, the court may direct that —

(a) no published report of the proceedings is to reveal the name, address or school, include any particulars likely to lead to the identification, of any youth concerned in the proceedings, either as being the person by or against or in respect of whom the proceedings are taken, or as being a witness in them;

(b) no picture is to be published or included in a programme service as being or including a picture of any youth so concerned in the proceedings, unless to the extent (if at all) permitted by the direction of the court.

(2) If a report or picture is published or included in a relevant programme in contravention of subsection (1), the following persons commit an offence —

(a) in the case of publication of a written report or a picture as part of a newspaper - any proprietor, editor or publisher of the newspaper;

(b) in the case of the inclusion of a report or picture in a relevant programme – any corporate body which provides the programme service and any person having functions in relation to the programme corresponding to those of an editor of a newspaper.

Penalty: A fine at level 5 on the standard scale.

(3) This section is in addition to and does not derogate from the provisions of section 755 as regards the proceedings mentioned in subsection (2) of that section.

[UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.39 as amended]

Miscellaneous provisions

757. Character evidence and procedure in relation to youths

(1) In any proceedings for an offence committed or alleged to have been committed by a person of or over 21 years of age —

(a) any offence of which the person was found guilty while under 14 years of age must be disregarded for the purpose of any evidence relating to the person's previous convictions; and

(b) the person must not be asked, and if asked is not required to answer, any question relating to such an offence, even if the question would otherwise be admissible under this Ordinance.

(2) If proceedings in respect of a youth are begun for an offence and the person attains 18 years of age before the conclusion of the proceedings, the court may deal with the case and make any order which it could have made if the person had not attained that age.

(3) Criminal proceedings against a child must not be commenced except by or with the consent of the Attorney General.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.116; UK Children and Young Persons Act 1963 ss.16 & 29]

758. Ascertainment of age

(1) If a person, whether charged with an offence or not, is brought before any court otherwise than for the purpose of giving evidence, and it appears to the court that the person is a youth, the court must make due inquiry as to the age of that person.

(2) For the purpose of making due inquiry as to a person's age pursuant to subsection (1), a court must, if sufficient evidence is not readily available to the court, adjourn the proceedings for a proper age assessment to be carried out.

(3) An order or judgment of the court is not invalidated by any subsequent proof that the age of a person has not been correctly stated to the court, and —

(a) the age presumed or declared by the court to be the age of the person so brought before it is, for the purposes of this Ordinance, deemed to be the true age of that person; and

(b) if it appears to the court that the person so brought before it has attained the age of 18 years, that person is for the purposes of this Ordinance deemed not to be youth.

[Criminal Justice Ord. s.117; UK Children & Young Persons Act 1933 s.99 (part);

759. Relevant age for sentencing

(1) Unless otherwise provided in this Ordinance, the age of a young offender for the purpose of sentencing is the age at the date of conviction.

(2) If a young offender crosses a relevant age threshold between the date of the offence and the date of conviction the starting point is the likely sentence that would have been passed had the youth been sentenced on the day the offence was committed, unless there is good reason for using a different starting point in any particular case.

[Common law]

760. Regulations

(1) The Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may make regulations empowering a court, when a youth is detained by virtue of an order under this Part, after giving to the parent or guardian of the youth an opportunity to be heard, to make an order requiring a parent, guardian or other person to make periodic payments to be applied for the maintenance of the youth.

(2) Regulations under subsection (1) may prescribe the maximum amount of each such payment and the maximum period for which payments can be ordered and may regulate the manner in which, and the periods at which, such payments are to be made.

CHAPTER 12 – MENTALLY DISORDERED OFFENDERS

PART 34 – MENTALLY DISORDERED OFFENDERS

761. Interpretation of Part

(1) In this Part —

“approved doctor” has the meaning given to that term by sections 2 and 91 of the Mental Health Ordinance;

“hospital” means the King Edward VII Memorial Hospital in Stanley, any other hospital approved by the Governor by order for the purposes of the Mental Health Ordinance, and an approved medical centre as defined in that Ordinance;

“hospital treatment order” has the same meaning as a hospital treatment order under Part 3 of the Mental Health Ordinance and, subject to this Part, has the same effect;

“supervising officer” means the probation officer;

“supervision order” means an order made under section 768(1).

(2) This Part is in addition to and does not derogate from the provisions of Part 8 of the Mental Health Ordinance relating to persons concerned in criminal proceedings or under sentence.

(3) If a person who is detained in a hospital pursuant to an order or direction under this Part is further detained by virtue of a subsequent order or direction under this Part or a subsequent application for admission for treatment under the Mental Health Ordinance, the person must be treated as if the subsequent order, direction or application described him or her as suffering from the form or forms of mental disorder specified in the earlier order or direction.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Act 1964 s.8; Mental Health Act 1983 s.55 etc.]

Fitness to be tried, etc.

762. Finding of unfitness to be tried

(1) This section applies if on the trial of a person the question arises, at the instance of the defence or otherwise, whether the defendant is under such a disability as would constitute a bar to his or her being tried.

(2) If the court has reason to believe that the defendant is suffering from mental disorder and is consequently incapable of making his or her defence, it must —

(a) cause the person to be medically examined; and

(b) thereafter take medical and any other available evidence regarding the state of the defendant’s mind.

(3) If, having regard to the nature of the supposed disability, the court is of opinion that it is expedient to do so and in the interests of the defendant, it may postpone consideration of the question of fitness to be tried until any time up to the opening of the case for the defence.

(4) If, before the question of fitness to be tried falls to be decided —

(a) the jury (or, in the case of a judge sitting without a jury, the judge) returns a verdict of acquittal on the count or each of the counts on which the defendant is being tried; or

(b) in the case of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court, the court dismisses the information or each of the informations on which the defendant is being tried, that question must not be decided.

(5) Subject to subsections (3) and (4), the question of fitness to be tried must be decided as soon as it arises.

(6) In a trial on indictment, the question of fitness to be tried must be decided by the court without a jury.

(7) The court must not make a decision on fitness to be tried except on the written or oral evidence of 2 or more approved doctors.

(8) If a court finds that the defendant is unfit to be tried, it must make a decision under section 766(2) and for that purpose may adjourn the case for further medical evidence to be adduced in accordance with this Part.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Act 1964 ss.4 and 4A am by Criminal Procedure (Insanity and Unfitness to Plead) Act 1991]

763. Appeals against finding of unfitness

(1) For the purpose of providing an appeal against a finding of the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court that the defendant is unfit to be tried, sections 667 and 668 apply as if references to a special finding included references to such a decision.

(2) For the purpose of providing an appeal against a finding of the Supreme Court that the defendant is unfit to be tried, section 4 of the Court of Appeal Ordinance applies as if references to a conviction included references to such a finding.

(3) Section 668 applies with necessary modifications to appeals to the Court of Appeal pursuant to subsection (2) as it applies to appeals to the Supreme Court on the question of fitness to be tried.

764. Finding that the defendant did the act or made the omission charged

(1) This section applies if under section 762(6) a court finds that the defendant is unfit to be tried.

(2) The trial must not proceed or further proceed but, in the case of a trial on indictment, the jury (or, in the case of a judge sitting without a jury, the judge) must decide —

(a) on the evidence (if any) already given in the trial; and

(b) on any evidence that is adduced or further adduced by the prosecution, or adduced by a person appointed by the court under this section to put the case for the defence, whether the jury or judge, as the case may be, is satisfied, as respects the count or each of the counts on which the defendant was to be or was being tried, that the defendant did the act or made the omission charged against him or her as the offence.

(3) If as respects that count or any of those counts the jury are not so satisfied, they must return a verdict of acquittal as if on the count in question the trial had proceeded to a conclusion.

(4) If the question of disability was decided after the defendant was put in charge of the jury, the decision under subsection (2) must be made by the jury by whom the defendant was being tried.

(5) In the case of a summary trial, the trial must not proceed or further proceed, but the court must decide on the evidence as mentioned in subsection (2) whether it is satisfied as respects the information or each of the informations on which the defendant was being tried, that he or she did the act or made the omission charged against him or her as an offence.

(6) If as respects that information or any of those informations the court is not so satisfied, it must return a verdict of acquittal as if on the information in question the trial had proceeded to a conclusion.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Act 1964 s.4A ins. by Criminal Procedure (Insanity and Unfitness to Plead) Act 1991 as am. by Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004 and Adapted]

765. Acquittal on ground of mental disorder

(1) If —

(a) an act or omission is charged against any person as an offence; and

(b) it is given in evidence on the trial of the person for that offence that he or she was suffering from mental disorder so as not to be responsible in law for his or her actions at the time when the act was done or omission made, then, if it appears to the court before which the person is tried that he or she did the act or made the omission charged, but was suffering from mental disorder at the time when he or she did or made the same, the court must return a special verdict to the effect that the defendant was not guilty by reason of mental disorder.

(2) A court must not return a special verdict under this section except on the written or oral evidence of 2 or more approved doctors.

[UK Trial of Lunatics Act 1883 s.2; Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Act 1964 s.1; Criminal Procedure (Insanity and Unfitness to Plead) Act 1991 s.1]

766. Powers to deal with persons not guilty by reason of mental disorder or unfit to be tried

(1) This section applies if —

(a) a verdict is returned under section 765 that the defendant is not guilty by reason of mental disorder; or

(b) findings are recorded —

(i) under section 762, that the defendant is unfit to be tried; and

(ii) under section 764, that he or she did the act or made the omission charged against him or her.

(2) The court must make in respect of the defendant —

(a) a hospital treatment order;

(b) a supervision order; or

(c) an order for his or her absolute discharge.

(3) Subsection (2) does not apply if the offence to which the special findings or verdict relate is an offence the sentence for which is fixed by law.

(4) If a person confined in hospital by a hospital treatment order is found by the responsible medical officer to be fit to be tried, the officer must forthwith send a certificate to that effect to the court which recorded the finding under section 762 in respect of the person.

(5) A certificate issued under subsection (4) is admissible in evidence and the court must upon receipt of it —

(a) order the removal of the person from the place where he or she is detained; and

(b) cause the person to be brought in custody before it and proceed as provided by section 767.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Act 1964 s.5 replaced by Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004]

767. Resumption of trial if defendant fit to be tried

(1) If, during any criminal proceedings in a court, the defendant appears to be fit to be tried, although it is alleged that, at the time when the act was committed in respect of which he or she is charged he or she was by reason of mental disorder incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that it was wrong or contrary to law, the court must proceed with the case.

(2) If a trial is adjourned pursuant to section 762(8), the court may at any time resume the trial and require the defendant to appear or be brought before it.

(3) If, when a person is brought before a court pursuant to subsection (2), the court considers the person fit to be tried, the trial must proceed, but if the court considers the defendant to be still unfit to be tried, it must take action as if the defendant were brought before it for the first time.

Supervision orders

768. Power to make supervision orders

(1) If —

(a) a verdict is returned under section 765 that the defendant is not guilty by reason of mental disorder; or

(b) findings are recorded —

(i) under section 762, that the defendant is unfit to be tried; and

(ii) under section 764, that the defendant did the act or made the omission charged against him or her,

and if the conditions mentioned in subsection (3) are satisfied, the court may make an order requiring the person in respect of whom it is made (“the supervised person”) to be under the supervision of a supervising officer for a period specified in the order of not more than 2 years.

(2) A supervision order may require the supervised person to submit, during the whole of the period or a part specified in the order, to treatment by or under the direction of an approved doctor.

(3) The court must not make a supervision order unless it is satisfied —

(a) that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, the making of the order is the most suitable means of dealing with the defendant; and

(b) that arrangements have been made for the treatment intended to be specified in the order.

(4) Before making an order under this section, the court must explain to the defendant in ordinary language —

(a) the effect of the order (including any requirements proposed to be included in the order in accordance with section 769 or 771; and

(b) that the court has power under section 772 to review the order on the application either of the defendant or of the supervising officer.

(5) Immediately after making such an order, the court must give copies of it to —

(a) the supervised person;

(b) the supervising officer; and

(c) the person in charge of any institution in which the supervised person is required by the order to reside.

(6) If such an order is made, the supervised person must keep in touch with the supervising officer in accordance with any instructions that the officer gives the person from time to time and must notify the officer of any change of address.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Act 1964 s.5 and Sched.1A replaced by Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004]

769. Requirements as to medical treatment

(1) A supervision order may, if the court is satisfied as mentioned in subsection (2), include a requirement that the supervised person must submit, during the whole of the period specified in the order or during a specified part of that period, to treatment by or under the direction of an approved doctor with a view to the improvement of his or her mental condition.

(2) The court may impose a requirement as mentioned in subsection (1) only if satisfied on the written or oral evidence of 2 or more approved doctors, that the mental condition of the supervised person —

(a) is such as requires and may be susceptible to treatment; but

(b) is not such as to warrant the making of a hospital treatment order under this Part.

(3) If the court is satisfied on the written or oral evidence of 2 or more approved doctors that —

(a) because of his or her medical condition, other than his or her mental condition, the supervised person is likely to pose a risk to himself or herself or others; and

(b) the condition may be susceptible to treatment, the supervision order may (whether or not it includes a requirement under subsection (1)) include a requirement that the supervised person must submit, during the whole of the period specified in the order or during a specified part of that period, to treatment by or under the direction of an approved doctor with a view to the improvement of the condition.

(4) The treatment required by a supervision order must be either —

- (a) treatment as a non-resident patient in or at an institution or place specified in the order; or
- (b) treatment by or under the direction of an approved doctor so specified, but the nature of the treatment must not be specified in the order.

(5) While the supervised person is under treatment as a resident patient pursuant to a requirement of a supervision order, the supervising officer must carry out the supervision only to the extent necessary for the purpose of the revocation or amendment of the order.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Act 1964 Sched.1A replaced by Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004]

770. Change of place of treatment

(1) If the approved doctor by whom or under whose direction the supervised person is being treated pursuant to a supervision order is of the opinion that part of the treatment can be better or more conveniently given in or at an institution or place which —

- (a) is not specified in the order; and
- (b) is one in or at which the treatment of the supervised person will be given by or under the direction of an approved doctor, the doctor may, with the consent of the supervised person, make arrangements for the person to be treated accordingly.

(2) If any arrangements as mentioned in subsection (1) are made for the treatment of a supervised person —

- (a) the approved doctor by whom the arrangements are made must give notice in writing to the supervising officer, specifying the institution or place in or at which the treatment is to be carried out; and
- (b) the treatment provided for by the arrangements is deemed to be treatment to which the person is required to submit pursuant to the supervision and treatment order.

(3) Arrangements as mentioned in subsection (1) may provide for the supervised person to receive part of his or her treatment as a resident patient in or at an institution or place of any description, even if it is not one which could have been specified for that purpose in the supervision and treatment order.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Act 1964 Sched.1A replaced by Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004]

771. Requirement as to residence

(1) A supervision order may include requirements as to the residence of the supervised person.

(2) Before making an order containing any such requirement, the court must consider the home surroundings of the supervised person.

(3) If an order requires the supervised person to reside in a specified place, the period for which the person is so required to reside must be specified in the order.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Act 1964 Sched.1A replaced by Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004]

772. Revocation or amendment of a supervision order

(1) If a supervision order is in force in respect of any person and, on the application of the supervised person or the supervising officer, it appears to the court that made the order that, having regard to circumstances which have arisen since the order was made, it would be in the interests of the health or welfare of the supervised person that the order should be revoked, the court may revoke the order.

(2) The court by which a supervision order was made may on its own initiative revoke the order if, having regard to circumstances which have arisen since the order was made, it considers that it would be inappropriate for the order to continue.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), the court that made a supervision order may, on the application of the supervised person or the supervising officer, by order amend the order by —

(a) cancelling any of the requirements of the order; or

(b) inserting in the order (either in addition to or instead of any such requirement) any requirement which the court could have included when making it.

(4) The power of a court under subsection (3) does not include power to amend an order by extending the period specified in it beyond the end of 2 years from the date of the original order.

(5) If the approved doctor by whom or under whose direction the supervised person is being treated pursuant to any requirement of a supervision order —

(a) is of the opinion mentioned in subsection (6); or

(b) is for any reason unwilling to continue to treat or direct the treatment of the supervised person, the doctor must make a report in writing to that effect to the supervising officer who must apply under subsection (2) to the court that made the order for the variation or cancellation of the requirement.

(6) The opinion referred to in subsection (5) is that —

(a) the treatment of the supervised person should be continued beyond the period specified in the supervision order;

(b) the supervised person needs different treatment, of a kind to which he or she could be required to submit pursuant to such an order;

(c) the supervised person is not susceptible to treatment; or

(d) the supervised person does not require further treatment.

(7) On the making of an order revoking or amending a supervision order, the Registrar, or Clerk of the court as the case may be, must give a copy of the revoking order to —

(a) the supervised person;

(b) the supervising officer; and

(c) the person in charge of any institution in which the supervised person was required by the original order to reside.

[UK Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Act 1964 Sched.1A replaced by Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004]

Miscellaneous

773. Appeals against orders

(1) For the purpose of providing an appeal against a hospital treatment order or a supervision order made by the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court under this Part, Part 31 (Appeals to the Supreme Court) applies as if references to a sentence included references to such an order.

(2) For the purpose of providing an appeal against a hospital treatment order or a supervision order made by the Supreme Court under this Part, the Court of Appeal Ordinance applies as if references to a sentence included references to such an order.

(3) An appeal under this section may be initiated by a legal practitioner instructed by or on behalf of the person in respect of whom the order was made.

(4) This section is to be read in addition to and not as limiting Part 7 of the Mental Health Ordinance which establishes the Mental Health Tribunal.

774. Evidence by prosecution of mental disorder or diminished responsibility

If on a trial for murder the defendant contends —

(a) that at the time of the alleged offence he or she was suffering from mental disorder so as not to be responsible according to law for his or her actions; or

(b) that at that time he or she was suffering from such abnormality of mental functioning as is specified in section 48 of the Crimes Ordinance 2014 (Diminished responsibility), the court must allow the prosecution to adduce or elicit evidence tending to prove the other of those contentions, and may give directions as to the stage of the proceedings at which the prosecution may adduce such evidence.

CHAPTER 13 – SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS

PART 35 – CRIMINAL JUSTICE COUNCIL

775. Criminal Justice Council for the Falkland Islands – Schedule 13

(1) This section establishes a Criminal Justice Council for the Falkland Islands (in this Part referred to as “the Council”).

(2) The composition and procedure of the Council are as set out in Part ‘A’ of Schedule 13.

(3) The Governor, acting in his or her discretion, may provide the Council with such assistance, whether by provision of staff, accommodation, transport or otherwise, as the Council reasonably requests in connection with the necessary performance of its functions.

For this purpose, the Government must make reasonable financial provision in the annual budget to enable the Council to fulfill its stated aims.

776. Aims and activities of the Council

(1) The aims of the Council are —

(a) to seek to make the criminal justice system more effective and efficient so that it —

- (i) reduces crime;
- (ii) reduces reoffending;
- (iii) punishes offenders;
- (iv) protects the public;
- (v) encourages the making of reparation;
- (vi) increases public confidence in the system; and
- (vii) ensures that the system is fair and just;

(b) to maintain an overview of the working of the criminal justice system in the Falkland Islands;

(c) to ensure a ‘whole system’ approach is taken to tackling issues across the criminal justice system and to overcoming operational barriers;

(d) to provide accountability and co-ordination across the criminal justice system and to help overcome operational barriers.

(2) The powers of the Council are —

(a) to identify and report in accordance with its obligations in this section wherever necessary to ensure that the system provides an efficient and effective service to the people of the Falkland Islands;

(b) to regularly review performance, to comment upon whether current reforms are delivered on time and have their desired effect, and to recommend what further changes are necessary;

(c) to simplify and streamline the management of the criminal justice system by proposing appropriate procedural rules to the Chief Justice;

(d) to develop and deliver policy recommendations in accordance with the aims set out in this section;

(e) to advise the Governor on any matter, when called upon to do so;

(f) to advise the Chief Justice on any matter when called upon to do so;

(g) at the beginning of each calendar year to prepare an action plan setting out a programme for continuing review and development of the criminal justice system in the Falkland Islands;

(h) to ensure that the action plan —

(i) meets the needs of victims and the public; and

(ii) develops and makes policy recommendations in accordance with the aims set out in this section.

777. Sentencing Guidelines Committee

(1) The Sentencing Guidelines Committee for the Falkland Islands (in this Part referred to as “the Committee”) is a committee of the Council and consists of all the members of the Council.

(2) The aims of the Sentencing Guidelines Committee are —

(a) to promote greater consistency in sentencing in the Falkland Islands while maintaining the independence of the judiciary;

(b) to develop, implement and maintain a set of sentencing guidelines for use in the criminal courts of the Falkland Islands, applying the principles set out below.

(3) In developing sentencing guidelines, the Committee must have regard to the requirements of section 482 (Sentencing guidelines) and to the principles set out in Part ‘B’ of Schedule 13.

- (4) Sentencing guidelines developed by the Committee —
- (a) require the approval of the Chief Justice;
 - (b) must be included in the Committee's annual report required by section 778(2);
 - (c) must be included in the annual report of the Council published pursuant to section 778(5);
and
 - (d) have effect as provided by section 482 (Sentencing guidelines).

778. Annual reports

- (1) The Council must, as soon as practicable after the end of each calendar year, make to the Governor a report on the performance of the Council's functions during the year.
- (2) The Committee must, as soon as practicable after the end of each calendar year, make to the Council a report on the performance of the Committee's functions during the year.
- (3) The Council's annual report required by subsection (1) must incorporate, with any comments the Council wishes to make, the report of the Committee required by subsection (2).
- (4) The Governor must lay a copy of the Council's annual report before the Legislative Assembly.
- (5) The Council must publish its report once a copy has been so laid.
- (6) Schedule 13 makes further provision about the content of reports required by this section.
- (7) If this section comes into force after the beginning of a calendar year, the first report may relate to a period beginning with the day on which this section came into force and ending with the end of the next calendar year.

779. Rules and guidelines

- (1) The Council must develop —
 - (a) a set of rules of practice and procedure to be applied in the criminal courts of the Falkland Islands;
 - (b) a set of guidelines relating to the early release of prisoners and miscarriages of justice which may be used by the Advisory Committee and the Governor in the exercise of the discretion conferred by section 71 of the Constitution.
- (2) The rules developed by the Council under subsection (1)(a) must be submitted to the Chief Justice for approval, and once approved, are to be made by the Chief Justice as criminal procedure rules, as provided by section 785.

(3) The guidelines developed under section (1)(b) do not affect the right of the Advisory Committee to adopt its own rules of procedure as provided by section 70(5) of the Constitution.

PART 36 – MISCELLANEOUS AND TRANSITIONAL

780. Application of Ordinance to other public officers

(1) Subject to subsection (2), and to the extent practicable, the provisions of this Ordinance relating to powers of arrest, the investigation of offences, the searching, questioning and detention of suspects, the seizure of property and the retention of evidence apply to all public officers who have power to investigate offences or charge offenders as they apply in relation to police officers.

(2) The Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order declare modifications to the manner in which provisions of this Ordinance apply to public officers mentioned in subsection (1) so as to harmonise the provisions with those of any other written law conferring powers of arrest and investigation of offences.

(3) For the avoidance of doubt, but without limiting subsection (1), this section confers the powers mentioned in that subsection on customs officers and immigration officers

(4) In this section —

“customs officer” has the same meaning as in section 7 of the Customs Ordinance;

“immigration officer” has the same meaning as in section 3 of the Immigration Ordinance.
[UK PACE Act 1984 s.114; Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994 s.36 adapted]

781. Police officers performing duties of higher rank

(1) For the purpose of any provision of this Ordinance or any other enactment under which a power in respect of the investigation of offences or the treatment of persons in police custody is exercisable only by or with the authority of a police officer of at least the rank of inspector, an officer of the rank of sergeant is to be treated as holding the rank of inspector if the officer —

(a) has been authorised by the Chief Police Officer to exercise the power or, as the case may be, to give his or her authority for its exercise; or

(b) is acting during the absence of an officer holding the rank of inspector who has authorised him or her, for the duration of that absence, to exercise the power or, as the case may be, to give his or her authority for its exercise.

(2) For the purpose of any provision of this Ordinance or any other enactment under which a power mentioned in subsection (1) is exercisable only by or with the authority of an officer of at least the rank of sergeant, an officer of the rank of constable is to be treated as holding the rank of sergeant if he or she has been authorised by the Chief Police Officer to exercise the power or, as the case may be, to give his or her authority for its exercise.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.107]

782. Power of police officers and others to use reasonable force

(1) If any provision of this Ordinance —

(a) confers a power on a police officer or other public officer; and

(b) does not provide that the power may only be exercised with the consent of some person other than a police officer or public officer, the police officer or other public officer may use reasonable force, if necessary, in the exercise of the power.

(2) A person may use such force as is reasonable in the circumstances in the prevention of crime, or in effecting or assisting in the lawful arrest of offenders or suspected offenders or of persons unlawfully at large.

(3) Subsection (2) replaces the rules of the common law on the question as to when force used for a purpose mentioned in the subsection is justified by that purpose.

[UK PACE Act 1984 s.117; Criminal Law Act 1967 s.3]

783. Application of Ordinance to corporations

(1) This Ordinance applies in relation to a corporation as if —

(a) the corporation were an individual aged 18 or over;

(b) the words “he or she” or grammatical variations of those words were “it”; and

(c) the words “in custody or on bail” were omitted wherever they appear.

(2) If an offence under this or any other Ordinance is committed by a corporate body and it is proved —

(a) to have been committed with the consent or connivance of an officer; or

(b) to be attributable to any neglect on the part of an officer,

the officer as well as the corporate body commits the offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly.

(3) In subsection (2) “officer”, in relation to a corporate body, means a director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body, or a person purporting to act in any such capacity.

(4) If the affairs of a corporate body are managed by its members, subsection (2) applies in relation to the acts and defaults of a member in connection with his or her functions of management as if he or she were a director of the body.

(5) A reference in this Ordinance to a defendant or other person by a gender-specific term does not preclude the application of that provision to a corporation.

[Crimes Ord. s.51; UK Public Order Act 1986 s.28; UK Knives Act 1997 s.10 etc.]

784. Service of documents

(1) Any notice or other document required or authorised by this Ordinance to be served on any person may be served by —

(a) delivering it to the person;

(b) leaving it at the person's usual or last known address (whether residential or otherwise);

(c) sending it to the person by post at that address; or

(d) sending it to the person by electronic means, if the person has a published email address or has registered with the court an email address for service.

(2) Any notice or other document so required or authorised to be served on a corporate body is duly served at the registered office or upon the secretary or Director of the body.

(3) For the purposes of this section, the proper address of any person is, in the case of a body corporate, that of the registered or principal office of that body, and in any other case the last known address of the person to be served.

785. Criminal procedure rules and practice directions

(1) In addition to any other power in this Ordinance to make criminal procedure rules, the Chief Justice may make criminal procedure rules to implement this Ordinance.

(2) Rules made under this section or any other provision of this Ordinance —

(a) must be consistent with the Constitution and this Ordinance;

(b) must be made only after consulting the Criminal Justice Council;

(c) may create offences carrying a maximum penalty of 3 months' imprisonment or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both;

(d) may provide for applications to be made and interlocutory matters to be disposed of while the Chief Justice is outside the Falkland Islands;

(e) may make different provision for different cases or circumstances and may contain such incidental, supplemental, saving or transitional provisions as the Chief Justice, after consulting as required by paragraph (b), thinks fit.

(3) The Chief Justice, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may issue practice directions as to the practice to be adopted in the Supreme Court, the Magistrate's Court and the Summary Court on specific aspects of criminal procedure and practice arising under this Ordinance.

786. Regulations

(1) The Governor in Council, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may make regulations generally for carrying out any of the purposes or provisions of this Ordinance or any matters incidental or consequential to those purposes as appear to the Governor to be necessary or proper for giving full effect to this Ordinance.

(2) The Governor, acting in his or her discretion, may make like regulations as appear to the Governor to be necessary or proper on order to give full effect to the obligations of Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom under international law.

(3) Without affecting sections 621 and 622 or section 51 of the Police Ordinance 2000 or section 90 of the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance, with regard to disposal of property, the regulations made under subsection (1) may —

(a) regulate the retention and safe keeping and the disposal and the destruction in prescribed circumstances of items seized by virtue of a power in this Ordinance or under the Crimes Ordinance 2014; and

(b) prescribe charges in respect of the removal, retention, disposal and destruction of items so seized.

(4) Regulations made under this section may make different provisions for different classes of item or for different circumstances.

(5) The power in subsections (1) and (2) are in addition to and do not derogate from any other power to make regulations conferred by this Ordinance or the Crimes Ordinance 2014.

(6) Regulations made under this section may create offences carrying a maximum penalty of 3 months' imprisonment or a fine at level 5 on the standard scale, or both.

787 Amendment of Schedules, etc.

(1) The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order amend any Schedule to this Ordinance.

(2) An order under subsection (1) —

(a) may make such transitional and consequential provisions as appear to the Governor, after consulting as required by subsection (1), to be necessary or expedient;

(b) requires the approval of the Legislative Assembly.

(3) This section does not displace the requirement of section 122 as regards the amendment of a Code of Practice in Schedule 3.

(4) Subsection (2) applies to any other order having legislative effect that the Governor is empowered to make under this Ordinance.

788. Exercise of Governor’s powers

(1) If under any provision of this Ordinance the Governor is required to consult some person or body other than the Executive Council before exercising a power or performing a duty —

(a) the Governor, after such consultation, must decide the matter and act in accordance with his or her own deliberate judgment;

(b) if the Governor decides to act contrary to any advice received as a result of any such consultation, he or she must notify the Legislative Assembly of the reasons for so doing.

(2) The failure of the Governor to consult any person or body before exercising a power or performing a duty under this Ordinance does not invalidate the exercise of that power or the performance of that duty.

(3) This section is in addition to and must be applied in a manner consistent with sections 66 and 67 of the Constitution as regards the Governor’s obligation to consult the Executive Council.

789. Repeal, disapplication and savings – Schedule 14

(1) The Ordinances listed in Part ‘A’ of Schedule 14 (the “repealed Ordinances”) are repealed.

(2) The imperial enactments listed in Part ‘B’ of Schedule 14 (the “disapplied Acts”), being Imperial enactments that apply to the Falkland Islands by their own force or by virtue of Chapter X of the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance, are disapplied in relation to the Falkland Islands.

(3) In this section, the term “disapply” has the same effect as an order by the Governor under section 79(2) of the Interpretation and General Clauses Ordinance declaring that an Imperial enactment has never been enacted, except that the disapplication only has effect from the date of commencement of this section.

(4) Subject to subsection (5), all items of subsidiary legislation made under any of the repealed Ordinances or disapplied Acts continue in force as if made under the corresponding provision of this Ordinance until amended or replaced under this Ordinance.

(5) If there is no corresponding provision of this Ordinance under which an item of subsidiary legislation referred to in subsection (4) could be made, the item is repealed or disapplied, as the case may be, except that it continues to have effect in relation to proceedings that had commenced before the repeal or disapplication as provided by section 790.

(6) Any legislative instrument made by the Governor or Chief Justice under a repealed Ordinance or disappplied Act which could be made or issued by the Governor or Chief Justice under this Ordinance continues to have effect as if made or issued by the Governor or Chief Justice respectively under this Ordinance (irrespective of a requirement for consultation) until varied or revoked under this Ordinance.

(7) Any direction, exemption, notice or other non-legislative instrument made or issued by any person or body under any of the repealed Ordinances or disappplied Acts which could be made or issued by an equivalent person or body under this Ordinance continues to have effect as if made or issued by that person or body under this Ordinance until varied or revoked under this Ordinance.

(8) Any delegation made, direction given or other action taken by a person under any of the repealed Ordinances or disappplied Acts which could be taken by an equivalent person under this Ordinance continues to have effect as if taken by that person under this Ordinance.

790. Transitional provisions

(1) Proceedings for an offence under any enactment or at common law that had commenced before the commencement of this Ordinance must be conducted as if this Ordinance had not been enacted.

(2) An appeal against conviction or sentence in respect of an offence committed before the commencement of this Ordinance must be conducted as if this Ordinance had not been enacted.

(3) A provision of this Ordinance applies —

(a) in relation to proceedings on indictment for an offence - only if the person charged with the offence appears on the indictment on or after the commencement of the relevant provision;

(b) in relation to proceedings in the Magistrate's Court or the Summary Court - only if the time when the court begins to receive evidence in the proceedings falls after the commencement of the relevant provision.

(4) If an offence committed before the commencement of this Ordinance is by any enactment in force that was passed before the commencement of this Ordinance made punishable only on summary conviction, it remains only so punishable.

(5) Any investigation of an offence conducted by a police officer or a customs officer or immigration officer which was in progress at the commencement of this Ordinance but had not resulted in the commencement of proceedings must continue under this Ordinance.

(6) All sentences of imprisonment (including suspended sentences), fines, conditional discharges, disqualifications and forfeitures imposed before the commencement of this Ordinance continue to have effect and can be varied or appealed from as if this Ordinance had not been enacted.

(7) Probation orders made under Part III of the Criminal Justice Ordinance continue in force in accordance with that Ordinance until they expire or are revoked under that Ordinance.

(8) All witness summonses, orders for production of documents, recognisances and other orders made before the commencement of this Ordinance continue to have effect and may be varied or revoked as if this Ordinance had not been enacted.

(9) For purposes of this section, proceedings for an offence commence as provided in section 3(2).

[UK Criminal Justice & Public Order Act 1994 s.35]

791. Consequential amendments – Schedule 15

(1) A reference in any other enactment to a repealed Ordinance or to a disappplied Act is, to the extent possible, to be read as a reference to the corresponding provision of this Ordinance.

(2) A reference in any other enactment to the Governor or Chief Justice exercising legislative functions in relation to criminal offences is, to the extent possible, to be read as a reference to the Governor or Chief Justice, as the case may be, exercising equivalent functions under this Ordinance after consulting the Criminal Justice Council.

(3) The Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, may by order make such modifications or adaptations of any enactment as the Governor considers necessary or expedient in consequence of the repeal of the repealed Ordinances and the disapplication of the disappplied Acts.

(4) An order under subsection (3) may make such transitional and consequential provisions as the Governor, after consulting the Criminal Justice Council, considers necessary or expedient.

(5) Without affecting the powers in subsections (3) and (4), the Ordinances listed in column 1 of Schedule 15 are amended in the manner set out in column 2 of that Schedule.

792. Ordinance binds the Crown

This Ordinance is binding on the Crown.

SCHEDULE 1

(section 14)

ACCESS TO SPECIAL PROCEDURE MATERIAL OR EXCLUDED MATERIAL

Making of orders

1. If on an application made by a police officer the judicial officer is satisfied that one or other of the sets of access conditions is fulfilled, the judicial officer may make an order under paragraph 4.
2. The first set of access conditions is fulfilled if —
 - (a) there are reasonable grounds for believing that —
 - (i) an imprisonable offence has been committed;
 - (ii) there is material which consists of special procedure material or includes special procedure material and does not also include excluded material on premises specified in the application, or on premises occupied or controlled by a person specified in the application;
 - (iii) the material is likely to be of substantial value (whether by itself or together with other material) to the investigation in connection with which the application is made; and
 - (iv) the material is likely to be relevant evidence;
 - (b) other methods of obtaining the material have —
 - (i) been tried without success; or
 - (ii) not been tried because it appeared that they were bound to fail; and
 - (c) it is in the public interest, having regard to —
 - (i) the benefit likely to accrue to the investigation if the material is obtained; and
 - (ii) the circumstances under which the person in possession of the material holds it,that the material should be produced or that access to it should be given.
3. The second set of access conditions is fulfilled if —
 - (a) there are reasonable grounds for believing that there is material which consists of or includes excluded material or special procedure material on premises specified in the application, or on premises occupied or controlled by a person specified in the application;

(b) a search of such premises for that material could have been authorised before the commencement of Part 2 by the issue of a warrant to a police officer under an enactment other than this Schedule; and

(c) the issue of such a warrant would have been appropriate.

4. An order under this paragraph is an order that the person who appears to the judicial officer to be in possession of the material to which the application relates must —

(a) produce it to a police officer for the officer to take away; or

(b) give a police officer access to it, not later than 7 days after the date of the order or the end of any longer period the order specifies.

5. If the material consists of information stored in any electronic form —

(a) an order under paragraph 4(a) has effect as an order to produce the material in a form —

(i) in which it can be taken away and in which it is visible and legible; or

(ii) from which it can readily be produced in a visible and legible form;

(b) an order under paragraph 4(b) has effect as an order to give a police officer access to the material in a form in which it is visible and legible.

6. For the purposes of sections 29 and 32, material produced in pursuance of an order under paragraph 4(a) is to be treated as if it were material seized by a police officer.

Notice of application for an order

7. An application for an order under paragraph 4 must be made on notice.

8. Notice of an application for such an order may be served on a person either by delivering it to the person or by leaving it at the person's proper address or by sending it by post to the person in a registered letter.

9. Such a notice may be served on —

(a) a corporate body - by serving it on the body's secretary or clerk or other similar officer;
and

(b) a partnership - by serving it on one of the partners.

10. For the purposes of this Schedule the proper address of a person is —

- (a) in the case of a secretary or clerk or other similar officer of a corporate body – that of the registered or principal office of that body;
- (b) in the case of a partner of a firm - that of the principal office of the firm;
- (c) in any other case - the last known address of the person to be served.

11. If notice of an application for an order under paragraph 4 has been served on a person, the person must not conceal, destroy, alter or dispose of the material to which the application relates except with —

- (a) the leave of the judicial officer; or
- (b) the written permission of a police officer, until —

- (i) the application is dismissed or abandoned; or
- (ii) the person has complied with an order under paragraph 4 made on the application.

Issue of warrant

12. If on an application made by a police officer the judicial officer is satisfied —

- (a) that —
 - (i) either set of access conditions is fulfilled; and
 - (ii) any of the further conditions set out in paragraph 14 is also fulfilled; or
- (b) that —
 - (i) the second set of access conditions is fulfilled; and
 - (ii) an order under paragraph 4 relating to the material has not been complied with, the judicial officer may issue a warrant authorising a police officer to enter and search the premises.

13. A police officer may seize and retain anything for which a search has been authorised under paragraph 12.

14. The further conditions mentioned in paragraph 12(a)(ii) are that —

(a) it is not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to grant entry to the premises;

(b) it is practicable to communicate with a person entitled to grant entry to the premises, but not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to grant access to the material;

(c) the material contains information which —

(i) is subject to a restriction or obligation such as is mentioned in section 16(2)(b); and

(ii) is likely to be disclosed in breach of it if a warrant is not issued;

(d) service of notice of an application for an order under paragraph 4 may seriously prejudice the investigation.

15. (1) If a person fails to comply with an order under paragraph 4 or contravenes paragraph 11, the judicial officer may deal with the person as if the person had committed a contempt of the court.

(2) Any enactment relating to contempt of the Supreme Court or of the Magistrates' Court or Summary Court has effect in relation to such a failure as if it were such a contempt.

16. In this Schedule, "judicial officer" means the Senior Magistrate, except that —

(a) if the Senior Magistrate is not available, owing to absence or indisposition, "judicial officer" means a judge in chambers;

(b) if neither the Senior Magistrate nor a judge is available, "judicial officer" means three justices of the peace, sitting together (whether in open court or otherwise) and agreeing by a majority.

SCHEDULE 2
(sections 47 and 95)

FINGERPRINTING AND SAMPLES:
ATTENDANCE AT A PLACE OF LAWFUL CUSTODY
Part 1 - Fingerprinting

Persons arrested and released

1. (1) A police officer may require a person to attend a place of lawful custody for the purpose of taking the person's fingerprints under section 91(10).

(2) The power under sub-paragraph (1) may not be exercised in a case falling within section 91(10)(b) (fingerprints taken on previous occasion insufficient, etc.) later than 6 months after the day on which the appropriate officer was informed that section 91(12)(a) or (b) applied.

Persons charged, etc.

2. (1) A police officer may require a person to attend a place of lawful custody for the purpose of taking the person's fingerprints under section 91(8).

(2) In a case falling within section 91(8)(a) (fingerprints not taken previously) the power under sub-paragraph (1) may not be exercised later than 6 months after the day on which the person was charged or informed that he or she would be reported.

(3) In a case falling within section 91(8)(b) (fingerprints taken on previous occasion insufficient, etc.) the power under sub-paragraph (1) may not be exercised later than the day on which the appropriate officer was informed that section 91(12)(a) or (b) applied.

Persons convicted, etc. of an offence in the Falkland Islands

3. (1) A police officer may require a person to attend a place of lawful custody for the purpose of taking the person's fingerprints under section 91(9).

(2) If the condition in section 91(9)(a) is satisfied (fingerprints not taken previously), the power under sub-paragraph (1) may not be exercised later than 2 years after the day on which the person was convicted or cautioned.

(3) If the condition in section 91(9)(b) is satisfied (fingerprints taken on previous occasion insufficient, etc.) the power under subparagraph (1) may not be exercised later than 2 years after the day on which an appropriate officer was informed that section 91(12)(a) or (b) applied.

(4) Sub-paragraphs (2) and (3) do not apply if the offence is a qualifying offence.

Persons convicted, etc. of an offence outside the Falkland Islands

4. A police officer may require a person to attend a place of lawful custody for the purpose of taking the person's fingerprints under section 91(11).

Multiple attendance

5. (1) If a person's fingerprints have been taken under section 91 on 2 occasions in relation to any offence, the person may not under this Schedule be required to attend a place of lawful custody to have his or her fingerprints taken under that section in relation to that offence on a subsequent occasion without the authorisation of an officer of the rank of inspector or above.

(2) If an authorisation is given under sub-paragraph (1) —

- (a) the fact of the authorisation; and
- (b) the reasons for giving it, must be recorded as soon as practicable after it has been given.

Part 2 - Intimate samples

Persons suspected to be involved in an offence

6. A police officer may require a person to attend an approved place for the purpose of taking an intimate sample from the person under section 93(2) if, in the course of the investigation of an offence, 2 or more non-intimate samples suitable for the same means of analysis have been taken from the person but have proved insufficient.

Persons convicted, etc. of an offence outside the Falkland Islands

7. A police officer may require a person to attend an approved place for the purpose of taking an intimate sample from the person under section 93(4) if 2 or more non-intimate samples suitable for the same means of analysis have been taken from the person under section 94(9) but have proved insufficient.

Part 3 - Non-intimate samples

Persons arrested and released

8. (1) A police officer may require a person to attend a place of lawful custody for the purpose of taking a non-intimate sample from the person under section 94(6).

(2) The power under sub-paragraph (1) may not be exercised in a case falling within section 94(6)(b) (sample taken on a previous occasion not suitable, etc.) later than 6 months after the day on which the appropriate officer was informed of the matters specified in section 94(6)(b)(i) or (ii).

Persons charged, etc.

9. (1) A police officer may require a person to attend a place of lawful custody for the purpose of taking a non-intimate sample from the person under section 94(7).

(2) The power under sub-paragraph (1) may not be exercised in a case falling within section 94(7)(a) (sample not taken previously) later than 6 months after the day on which the person was charged or informed that he or she would be reported.

(3) The power under sub-paragraph (1) may not be exercised in a case falling within section 94(7)(b) (sample taken on a previous occasion not suitable, etc.) later than 6 months after the appropriate officer was informed of the matters specified in section 94(7)(b)(i) or (ii).

Persons convicted, etc. of an offence in the Falkland Islands

10. (1) A police officer may require a person to attend a place of lawful custody for the purpose of taking a non-intimate sample from the person under section 94(8)(a) or (b).

(2) If the condition in section 94(8)(c) is satisfied (sample not taken previously), the power under sub-paragraph (1) above may not be exercised later than 2 years after the day on which the person was convicted or cautioned.

(3) If the condition in section 94(8)(d) is satisfied (sample taken on a previous occasion not suitable, etc.), the power under subparagraph (1) may not be exercised later than 2 years after the day on which an appropriate officer was informed of the matters specified in section 94(8)(d)(i) or (ii).

(4) Sub-paragraphs (2) and (3) do not apply if the offence is a qualifying offence.

Persons convicted etc of an offence outside the Falkland Islands

11. A police officer may require a person to attend a place of lawful custody for the purpose of taking a non-intimate sample from the person under section 94(10).

Multiple exercise of power

12. (1) If a non-intimate sample has been taken from a person under section 94 on 2 occasions in relation to any offence, the person may not under this Schedule be required to attend a place of lawful custody to have another such sample taken from him or her under that section in relation to that offence on a subsequent occasion without the authorisation of an officer of the rank of inspector or above.

(2) If an authorisation is given under sub-paragraph (1) —

(a) the fact of the authorisation; and

(b) the reasons for giving it, must be recorded as soon as practicable after it has been given.

Part 4 - General and supplementary

Requirement to have power to take fingerprints or sample

13. A power conferred by this Schedule to require a person to attend an approved place or a place of lawful custody for the purposes of taking fingerprints or a sample under any provision of this Part may be exercised only in a case where the fingerprints or sample may be taken from the person under that provision (and, in particular, if any necessary authorisation for taking the fingerprints or sample under that provision has been obtained).

Date and time of attendance

14. (1) A requirement under this Schedule —

- (a) must give the person a period of at least 7 days within which he or she is to attend an approved place or a place of lawful custody; and
- (b) may direct the person so to attend at a specified time of day or between specified times of day.

(2) A requirement under this Schedule may specify a period shorter than 7 days if —

- (a) there is an urgent need for the fingerprints or sample for the purposes of the investigation of an offence; and
- (b) the shorter period is authorised by an officer of the rank of sergeant or above.

(3) If an authorisation is given under sub-paragraph (2)(b) —

- (a) the fact of the authorisation; and
- (b) the reasons for giving it, must be recorded as soon as practicable after it has been given.

(4) If the police officer giving a requirement under this Schedule and the person to whom it is given so agree, it may be varied so as to specify any period within which, or date or time at which, the person must attend; but a variation does not have effect unless confirmed by the police officer in writing.

Enforcement

15. A police officer may arrest without warrant a person who has failed to comply with a requirement under this Schedule.

General

This Code of Practice is a copy of the Code contained in Schedule 3 to the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Ordinance 2014 (in this Code referred to as “the Ordinance”) and is to be read as one with the Ordinance.

This Code must be readily available at every police station and every other place of lawful custody for consultation by police officers, detained persons and members of the public.

The Code must also be published on the Falkland Islands Government and/or Royal Falkland Islands Police website, and is to be made available for consultation by members of the public in such civic locations as the Governor directs or, if there is no such direction, as the Chief Police Officer considers appropriate (e.g. community library).

The Notes for Guidance are not provisions of this Code, but are guidance to police officers and others about its application and interpretation. Provisions in the Annexes to the Code are provisions of this Code.

If this Code requires the prior agreement or authority of an officer of a specified rank, it may be given by an officer authorised to perform the functions of that rank under section 781 of the Ordinance.

This Code does not apply to the powers of stop and search under the UK Aviation Security Act 1982, section 27(2) as applied to the Falkland Islands.

A1. Principles governing stop and search
