Please see the attached papers. More freezing and resistant better freezing is required before the standard

Frozen meat trade can be produced.

Has the question of a small Freezer for exportation of meat been considered?

I think if such a plant were established at, say San Carlos, both East and West Falkland Groups would be able to feed it. It is a matter worthy of consideration, bearing in mind Empire preference and the dropping off of exported meat from South America to Great Britain.
