CIRCULAR.

Downing Street,

1st February, 1916.

Sir,

In my Circular despatch of the 6th December I forwarded to you specimens of forms used in this country for collecting information as to enemy property situated here, and as to claims by British subjects against persons in enemy territory, and vice versa.

2. I also enclosed copies of a sheet which is used for analysing the various returns sent in to the Public Trustee on the Registration Orders A. to H.

3. The various classes of information which it is desired to secure and register can be summarised as follows :—

Information with regard to

(a) Property situate in British territory belonging to enemy subjects.

(b) Debts due from British subjects to persons in enemy territory.

(c) Property in enemy territory belonging to British subjects.

(d) Debts due to British subjects from persons in enemy territory.

In this country the giving of information as to classes (c) and (d) is voluntary, but as to (a) and (b) compulsory.

4. I consider that it would be of great advantage if the collection of this information could be carried out, so far as possible, on similar lines in His Majesty's oversea dominions, with a view to obtaining complete statistical information which could be recorded by the Public Trustee here as a central authority. The information desired from each Colony or Protectorate is, accordingly, with regard to

- (a) Property situate in the Colony or Protectorate belonging to enemy subjects.
- (b) Debts due from British subjects in the Colony or Protectorate to persons in enemy territory.
- (c) Property in enemy territory belonging to British subjects in the Colony or Protectorate.
- (d) Debts due to British subjects in the Colony or Protectorate from persons in enemy territory.

In the case of Protectorates claims by or against residents who are British protected persons are to be considered as assimilated to claims by or against British subjects.

5. In order to carry out this scheme it will be necessary to appoint in each Colony and Protectorate a Public Custodian of Enemy Property, with power to receive or register enemy property under legislative authority, analogous to the Public Trustee acting in the United Kingdom under the Trading with the Enemy Acts. Where such an officer has already been appointed, but has not been invested with statutory powers to collect information under the above-mentioned headings (a) and (b), legislation should be enacted to enable him to do so.

In Colonies or Protectorates in which no Public Custodian of Enemy Property has hitherto been appointed, legislation should be enacted authorising the appointment of such an officer and investing him with the necessary statutory power; but in the case of any Colony or Protectorate in which there is no enemy property locally situate, and no enemy claims are known to have been made against British subjects, it will be sufficient that an officer should be appointed by the Governor to collect and register any information which may voluntarily be given to him under the above mentioned headings (c) and (d).

6. I request that you will be so good as to take the necessary steps to enable the Colony under your government to co-operate in this arrangement.

7. I would suggest that the information, when collected, should be classified under the heads shown in the accompanying list of headings, and the totals under each head forwarded at quarterly intervals to the Public Trustee, who will thus ultimately be in a position to compile figures covering the whole Empire. The returns to be so forwarded need not contain information as to each particular enemy person, but merely the total returns summarised and analysed as suggested. Each quarterly return after the first might show (1) the total of the returns previously recorded; (2) the additions to the returns under each head made during the quarter; (3) the total up to date.

I am addressing a similar despatch to the self-governing Dominions, to the various Colonies not possessing Responsible Government, and to the Protectorates.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient, humble servant,

A. BONAR LAW.

[Enclosure in Circular despatch dated 1st February, 1916.]
