Hon. Ed. See:

The plant referred to is the local scurvy-grass. - the largest native flower, it is quite common & appears to be in some demand. I have had many tries to propagate from seed, without result & I concluded that it is only in exceptional years of sunshine that the seeds ripen

Subsequent Paper.

There is no nurseryman, or in fact scarcely anyone with a knowledge of the local flora resident in the colony.

One of my boys could collect a small number of Rhizomes = continuous growing roots, about March next, failing anyone else.

To the British Consul of

The FALKLAND ISLANDS.

South America.

Dear Sir,

Herewith we take the liberty to ask you whether you could give us some address of a nurseryman or a plantexporter on the Falkland Islands. The sort of plants, we are interested in, is Oxalis enneaphylla native on the mentioned islands.

We should be very much obliged by receiving your answer and thank you in advance.

Yours faithfully
