

CLARKE FAMILY

NB: The following is prepared from Falkland Islands Registers and files – there may be other family born outside the Falklands. Unless stated otherwise, all dated births, deaths and marriages occurred in the Falklands and all numbered graves are in Stanley Cemetery. Any variations which may occur in the spellings of names are recorded as written in the records at the time.

George Andrew CLARKE was married to Hannah DAWSON (not in Falkland Islands).

George was appointed Government Schoolmaster 1 September 1859. George and Hannah left the Thames, England, 23 November 1859 on board the Sunrise and arrived in the Falkland Islands 8 February 1860. Their full passage (paid by the Government) cost £70. There were no children with them. George was promised a salary of £70 a year with a small weekly allowance to his wife for teaching needlework (Hannah's father, James DAWSON, was a tailor). On 9 April 1860 in a letter to the Governor from Charles Bull, Colonial Chaplain, he reports "The girls have greatly improved in needlework under Mrs Clarke" [H16, p525].

Hannah was appointed Government Schoolmistress 1 February 1864 by the Governor at an annual salary of £12.

In the 1871 Blue Book, George was receiving an annual salary of £44 plus: £12 a year from the Admiralty for being Schoolmaster to the Garrison; School-pence which averaged £30 a year; and £22 a year as Parish Clerk and Sexton; total £108. Hannah was receiving an annual salary of £18. They also had a house, rent free. At that point they had 99 pupils, 49 boys and 50 girls.

In December 1872 a letter was written to Mr Clarke stating "The Governor is desirous of expressing to Mr Clarke his quiet satisfaction at the marked improvement made by the children attending the Govt School during the year 1873. After some scenting the Govr observes that the discipline is more decided the manner of the Scholars are softer, their reading clearer and a desire of emulation apparent, all this is very Creditable when it is remembered that Mr Clarke has been a sufferer from ill health nearly all the Winter & Spring" [D16,p146].

In a report to the Earl of Wimberley written in March 1874 by Colonel D'Arcy, the Governor, he writes "5. Government School continues to be ably and zealously conducted by Mr Clarke, whose health I am sorry to say is breaking, the climate being too severe for his delicate constitution; the establishment of the Infant School has been a great relief to him of late years, and under Miss King's care it is all that can be wished for." [B16,p216].

George CLARKE died of consumption 23 February 1874, age 43, and is buried in Stanley Cemetery, Grave E429. In a letter dated 6 April 1874 to Colonel D'Arcy, the Governor, from E F Smith he states "I regret to have to inform Your Excellency of the death of Mr Clarke the Schoolmaster; I, accompanied by all the Colonial Officials attended the funeral." [H31].

As to Hannah, in a letter dated 31 March 1874 to the Secretary of State by G Travis, Acting Colonial Secretary, he writes "Mrs Clarke, the widow, is Schoolmistress, she has a young family, and receives £18 a year, it is hoped her tenure of office may not be disturbed, her interests Colonel D'Arcy is bound to consider." [B16,p206/207]. I have not been able to find a reply and Hannah does not appear to have kept her position as she is not listed in the Civil Establishment in the Blue Book of 1875 and the Schoolmistress is recorded as Alice FELTON.

At some point Hannah's sister, Caroline DAWSON joined them in Stanley. Caroline, age 18, from England & living in Stanley, was married to Carl Christian Andrew HAGEN, mate of the Una & from Denmark, 15 August 1871 at Trinity Church Stanley according to
