BAD DIET MEANS BAD TEETH"ALMOST UNIVERSAL DISEASE"

The following extract is taken from the Daily Telegraph of July 16th, 1936.

"Dental decay was described as 'one of the great diseases of modern times' by Sir George Newman, formerly Chief Medical Officer of the Board of Education and the Ministry of Health, in an address to Empire dentists yesterday. The delegates, meeting in the Central Hall, Westminster, were welcomed by Sir Kingsley Wood, Minister of Health.

Sir George Newman said the disease was local, insidious and unnoticeable in its first occurrence. An apparently insignificant malady, it grew slowly over the years, and in the end it might undermine the health of the whole body. It might often prove harmless, or it might, by general result, kill the patient.

The causes were an unsound dietary, heredity, infection, general ill-health, and lack of dental supervision. Expectant and nursing mothers, and little children in particular, not infrequently lacked a sufficient and suitable mixed diet, well balanced.

We suffered as a people from this almost universal disease, which was liable to bring in its train so much suffering and incapacity.

'The morbidity and mortality directly or indirectly associated with childbirth and with dental disease,' added Sir George, 'are in large degree preventable. It is high time that the nation, as well as the dental profession, accepted the situation with which it is faced: the need for more preventive dental medicine.'

Sir George suggested five lines of action: proper nutrition in motherhood and infancy; throughout life a suitable and sound nutrition, which included fresh air, exercise, rest and normal functioning in order to assimilate food: daily cleansing of the teeth; better public facilities for dental supervision; and, lastly, the dental education of the people.

The school medical service was incomplete. Upwards of 1,500,000 schoolchildren were uninspected for dental caries in the year, and of those inspected and requiring treatment, only 63% actually received treatment. Secondly, in 1934, 2,500,000 teeth were extracted, but only 1,000,000 were filled. Thirdly, when the child left school he passed outside dental supervision.

The time had come for extension of the dental benefit under the Insurance Act. It was common knowledge that hundreds of thousands of insured persons were in desperate need of dental treatment, and most certainly they were not obtaining it.

"Startling" Cost To The Nation

Sir Kingsley Wood said everyone knew that many forms of ill-health were caused by or aggravated by dental disease. Although the loss of time and efficiency due to dental defects could not be calculated, the economic loss so caused, if it could be stated in terms of money, would certainly be startling.

'Bad health and economic loss are not the only results', added Sir Kingsley. 'He is a lucky man who does not know the discomfort and pain that come from bad teeth and what a common and potent cause they are of irritation and friction with one's friends and colleagues.'

Approved societies, he said, had paid an average of £2,000,000 a year during the past five years for dental treatment.

The meeting was attended by 700 members of the British Dental Association, 60 Overseas visitors and 400 women guests."

NEW WORLD ALTITUDE RECORDESTABLISHED BY A BRITISH PLANE

A new world altitude record has been established by a British aeroplane.

On Tuesday evening the Air Ministry announced that on Monday the Royal Air Force experimental high altitude aircraft - Bristol 138, with a special Pegasus engine, piloted by Squadron leader F.R.D. Swain of the Royal Aircraft Establishment at Farnborough - reached an altitude of 49,967 feet or 15,230 metres, thus breaking the world altitude record of 48,693 feet or 14,842 metres, set up six weeks ago by the French airman Detre.

The attempt was observed by official representatives of the Royal Aero Club and the height attained has been officially communicated to the Ministry by the Club. It was arrived at from an examination by the National Physical laboratory of sealed barothermographs which were carried in the wings of the aeroplane. The figures are subject to the usual confirmation and acceptance by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, to which application will be made for the homologation of records. This is the first occasion on which the Royal Air Force has attempted to beat the altitude records.

High praise is due to the pilot and to the constructors of the aircraft engine and special equipment - all of which are of British manufacture and design. The aeroplane and engine were constructed by the Bristol Aeroplane Company and were ordered by the Air Ministry in 1934 with a view to the exploration of the special problems involved in the operation of aircraft and the functioning of aircraft equipment and instruments at extreme altitudes, and the important work will be pursued in due course.

With further experience it is hoped that still greater heights may be attained by this new aircraft.

Moscow The Arctic Flyers' Conference on Monday adopted measures to establish a regular Soviet - United States air service in 1937, via Siberia & Alaska, at a cost of approximately £1,500,000.

DEBATE IN LEAGUE ASSEMBLY

Mr. Stanley Bruce (Australia), the Aga Khan (India), and Mr. W. Jordan (New Zealand), were among the speakers who continued the general debate in the League Assembly at Geneva on Tuesday.

Mr. Bruce said that the Assembly should respond whole-heartedly to the lead given by Britain, the United States, and France, in their recent monetary agreement. The exchange controls, tariff quotas and other trade restrictions had led to much economic unrest and an opportunity was now presented for solving these problems. The Aga Khan said that to condemn the League after sixteen years of its short life because they had learnt that men and nations were imperfect was as foolish as to condemn all philosophies and all religions because of the present state of the world. Mr. Jordan criticised the failure of the League to apply sterner measures in support of the Covenant during the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. Sanctions had to be immediate and effective. New Zealand, he said, was prepared to do its part in making collective security a reality.

His machine crashed but he himself was unhurt according to the first reports. Up to the time of the accident, the cause of which is not stated, he had taken just on 35 hours for a flight of 5,520 miles at an average speed, neglecting halts - of 157.6 M.P.H. At the last landing place Halse had complained of fatigue and air sickness due to the bumpy conditions. According to earlier reports, Scott and Guthrie in a Vega Gull were next behind Halse in the race, having left Kisumu, Kenya, at 2.20 B.S.T.

NATIONAL MEMORIAL TO HIS LATE MAJESTY KING GEORGE THE FIFTH

STATEMENT BY THE LORD MAYOR OF LONDON

The following statement by the Lord Mayor of London relating to the National Memorial to His Late Majesty King George the Fifth is published for general information.

The second purpose referred to in the Statement will be served by the establishment of a local playing field for children but the Colonial Secretary will be prepared to receive contributions towards the Statue to be erected in London.

"At a representative meeting held on my invitation at The Mansion House in the City of London on 12th March, 1936, it was resolved:

'That the Memorial to His Late Majesty King George V take the form of

A Statue of His Late Majesty in London in some noble setting

A Philanthropic Scheme of a specific character which would benefit the whole country and be associated with His Late Majesty's name.'

It was remitted to a Committee to consider and devise the most appropriate means by which effect could be given to this Resolution. Suggestions in great variety were received from many quarters and after prolonged investigation and deliberation it was decided that to accomplish the first of these purposes an area of ground at Abingdon Street, in the City of Westminster, immediately opposite to the Houses of Parliament and in close proximity to Westminster Abbey, should be acquired, cleared of existing buildings and laid out as an open space, in the centre of which a Statue of His Late Majesty should be erected. For the second purpose it was decided that the most suitable project was the provision of playing fields for young people and children throughout the country.

I.

The site proposed for the Memorial Statue is historic ground, unique in its associations and incomparable in situation. It faces the Houses of Parliament to which King George came from time to time in order to open, as a constitutional monarch, the deliberative assemblies of His people; it adjoins the Abbey which is the shrine of the nation's spiritual traditions, the place of His coronation and the scene of many great events in His life.

It will be necessary to remove a number of business and official premises which at present occupy part of the site. When these are cleared away new vistas of the Abbey buildings long concealed will be revealed and fresh dignity and beauty will be added to the surroundings of the Palace of Westminster. Here the Memorial Statue will have a distinctive setting on a site specially dedicated to it and ever to be associated with the gracious memory of His Late Majesty.

II.

His Late Majesty had deeply at heart the welfare of the rising generation and no happier or more beneficent means of perpetuating His memory could be devised than to provide throughout the length and breadth of the land recreation grounds to be known as King George's Fields. The project has much to commend it. The need for open spaces to which young people and children can resort for exercise and games, safe from the perils of the streets, cannot be exaggerated. The scheme is a flexible one and can be carried out in each locality according to its requirements; it will enlist local interest and support; it can be helped by gifts of land as well as of money. Each Field would have a distinctive gateway of a uniform type or other appropriate visible commemoration of His Late Majesty. Through the central fund the more prosperous districts will be able to help those which are less fortunate and whose young people for that very reason stand most in need of such a brightening influence in their lives.

I am permitted to state that these proposals have been submitted to His Majesty King Edward and to Her Majesty Queen Mary who have been graciously pleased to signify their entire approbation.

By means of these two schemes it will be possible to commemorate His Late Majesty both by an inspiring monument at the very heart of the Empire and also by centres of health and happiness throughout the land. To carry them into effect a large sum of money will be required, but I rely upon the admiration and affection which all His people cherish for the memory of the beloved King who reigned not only on the throne but in their hearts for a quarter of a century to make their realization possible."

(Sgd.) Percy Vincent

GOVERNMENT SCHOOL CHILDREN'S PARTY

Yesterday afternoon, with the kind permission of the Supt. of Education, who was unfortunately unable to be present, the girls of the Continuation Class and Standard VI. entertained their parents and the staff to tea in the Government School Buildings.

An assortment of attractive dainties had been prepared by the girls, who used the Domestic Science Centre for the purpose on the afternoons of Tuesday and Wednesday and the forenoon of Thursday of this week. The children's pleasure was considerably enhanced by the praise extended to them by their guests.

After tea the children indulged in organized games and folk dances until 6.30 p.m. when a most enjoyable party was brought to an end.

Miss M.I. McGill & Mr.B.N. Biggs

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's Church on Saturday by the Reverend Father Drumm between Miss Miriam Isobel McGill and Mr. Bernard Noel Biggs.

Miss McGill is the third daughter of Mr. W. McGill and the late Mrs. McGill of Port Harriet.

Mr. Biggs is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Biggs of Stanley.

The bride looked charming in a frock of nil green silk crepe and a hat of black velvet. She carried a lovely bouquet of cinerarias, snapdragons, geraniums and fern - the present of Mrs. T. Smith and Mrs. J. Ryan.

Her brother, Mr. Stanford McGill, gave her away.

Miss Doreen McAtasney (cousin of the bridegroom) was the bridesmaid, and looked very attractive in a dress of amber-coloured satin. She wore a brown hat and carried a bouquet of daffodils.

Mr. Basil Biggs (brother of the bridegroom) was the best man.

A reception was held later at the home of the bridegroom's parents, where a number of the friends and relations of the happy couple drank their health and tasted the fine wedding cake made by Mr. J.F. Summers.

The bride and bridegroom were the recipients of a large number of beautiful and useful presents.

They will make their home in Stanley.

We should like to join their many friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. B.N. Biggs every happiness in the future.

DANCE AT SALVADOR ON

The dance commenced at 8.15p.m. and did not end until 4.30 a.m. During the evening Miss E. Pitaluga played and sang, and Mr. J. Butler and Mr. L. Grant sang some favourite old songs, thereby delighting all present.

A wonderful supper was spread in the dining room, the centre-piece being a large iced birthday cake, to which everyone did ample justice.

DEFENCE AND ARMAMENTS

The following resolution on defence and armaments has been tabled by the National Executive of the Labour Party for discussion at this week's Party Conference at Edinburgh. "That in view of the threatening attitude of dictatorships which are increasing their armaments at an unprecedented rate and flouting international law and refusing to co-operate in the work of organising peace, this Conference declares that the armed strength of countries loyal to the League of Nations must be conditioned by the armed strength of potential aggressors. The Conference therefore re-affirms the policy of the Labour Party to maintain such defence forces as are consistent with the country's responsibilities as members of the League, the preservation of the people's rights and liberties, and the continuance of democratic institutions and the observance of International Law. Realising the relationship between foreign policy and armaments, and having regard to the deplorable record of the Government, the Labour Party declines to accept responsibility for a purely competitive armaments policy. It reserves its full liberty to criticise the re-armament programme of the present Government and declares the continuance of vested interests in the private manufacture of arms to be a grave contributory danger to the peace of the world."

NEW GERMAN BATTLESHIP LAUNCHED

"A symbol of the rebirth of German significance at sea and a testimony to her love of peace and readiness for understanding" was the War Minister's description of Germany's largest battleship "Scharnhorst" (26,000 tons) which he launched at Wilhelmshaven in Hitler's presence on Saturday. He added that this battleship was the fruit of the Anglo-German Naval Agreement of June 1935 by which Herr Fuhrer restored the German right to re-arm and establish a navy in appropriate proportion to the British Navy.

ONE DAY STRIKE IN PARIS

On Saturday the hotels and restaurants in Paris were dislocated by a sudden strike by the waiters demanding the abolition of the present system of payments by tips and seeking regular wages and paid holidays.

Many foreigners left Paris and the motor show there received its death blow. The strikers took possession of the hotels while visitors were unable to procure meals, this resulting in big queues at the small cafes.

The large hotels, which had been expecting to benefit from the franc devaluation, have been badly hit. Several American tourists unable to obtain service at their hotels lunched at the American Embassy.

The police protected the working waiters and evicted the stay-in strikers from various premises. The authorities, apprehensive of trouble on Sunday, moved 6,000 mobile guards and police patrols into the city.

The strike ended on Saturday night when the employers accepted Government arbitration.

SPANISH SHIP REACHES BUENOS AIRES

The Spanish ship s.s. "Cabo San Antonio" is reported to have arrived at Buenos Aires with 150 passengers and mails from Spain.

Her Captain was held prisoner by the crew during the voyage and has landed at Buenos Aires. The ship belongs to the Ibarra Company, and the agents in Buenos Aires have disowned the ship and contend that she should be treated as a pirate vessel due to the insubordination of the crew.

The Buenos Aires authorities have not allowed the vessel to enter from the outer roads and the Port Officers who visited her report that the crew are frankly communistic and that the vessel is short of provisions and fuel.

In the meantime the President of the Spanish Republic has signed a decree assuming Governmental responsibility for the vessel and incorporating her in the Spanish Government's own fleet.

INTENSE ACTIVITY IN CADIZ

It is reported from Gibraltar that intense activity is taking place in the naval shipyards at Cadiz and this is regarded as a prelude to the Insurgents' combined air land and sea attack on Malaga which, according to the Insurgents' Headquarters in Seville, will be launched either on Thursday or Friday.

It is estimated that during the last ten days 16,000 troops including the Riffian sharpshooters have landed at Cadiz, Jerez and Algeciras from various Moroccan towns - in addition to the movement of troops by sea the Riffians are being brought over by air at the rate of 70 an hour.

It is understood that 5,000 Moors headed by Riffian sharpshooters will form an advance guard in a series of attacks on Malaga while the rear guard will consist of Foreign Legion troops.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY SPEAKS ONCURRENCY ADJUSTMENT

Great prominence was given in the evening papers yesterday to a speech delivered at Geneva yesterday morning by the Financial Secretary to the Treasury in a Commission of the Assembly which deals with social and economic questions.

Mr. Morrison emphasized the opinion expressed by the League economic Committee that currency adjustment could not bring lasting improvement unless it were accompanied by the relaxation of direct and indirect import restrictions in the shape of quotas and exchange control, and declared that a reduction of barriers so as to allow imports to adjust price levels was a logical concomitant of currency re-alignment.

He undertook to submit two resolutions to the Commission - one dealing with the reduction of trade barriers and another in favour of a League enquiry into commercial access to certain raw materials.

THE SITUATION IN PALESTINE

A message from Jerusalem states that although negotiations made by the local Arab authorities with the Arab Trans-Jordan rulers are being conducted in the strictest secrecy, it is learned from a reliable source that an appeal which the Trans-Jordan rulers are issuing for the stoppage of the Palestinian disturbance expresses grave concern for the dislocation of normal life and the continuance of bloodshed which the disturbances are occasioning.

The signatories to the appeal promise to use their best endeavours to help the Palestinian Arabs' future and appeal to them to cease their strike and their methods of violence while trusting the British Government in its determination to carry out its obligations faithfully.

Meanwhile the British Expeditionary Force is daily strengthening its control and is ready to implement martial law should occasion necessitate this.

EXPERIMENTS IN ROAD CONSTRUCTION

More than 60 experiments have been begun by the Roads Department of the Ministry of Transport under the guidance of a technical Committee with the object of finding the best materials for the construction and surface treatment of roads. These experiments relate to the determination of the best colour for road surfaces from the point of view of night driving, to the durability of various forms of top dressings, and to the problem of skidding. They are being carried out in various parts of England.

NON-INTERVENTION POLICYSUPPORTED

The Labour Party Conference at Edinburgh on Monday passed by 1,836,000 votes to 519,000 votes, a resolution supporting the policy of non-intervention in the Spanish Civil War. Mr. Arthur Greenwood reminded the delegates that the policy was one for which the Socialist head of the "Front Populaire" Government in France - M. Leon Blum - had admitted responsibility.

The initiative came from M. Blum's Government and had received the support of Soviet Russia. It had become the united opinion of Europe, socialist and non-socialist, said Mr. Greenwood, that non-intervention was the real way out of a very grave and serious situation.

INSURGENTS SUFFER HEAVY LOSSES

It is reported from Madrid that the Insurgents delivered a second attack near Naval Feral yesterday but had to retire after suffering heavy losses. According to a War Ministry Communique some of the best Government troops were sent from Madrid to check the insurgents' advance yesterday.

The Daily Telegraph correspondent, reviewing the situation, anticipates that the conquest of the capital will be relatively slow and difficult.

Reuter reports from Hendaye state that fierce fighting has broken out at Oviedo where the insurgents are maintaining a stubborn defence against dynamite and bombing. A relief column of insurgents has been rushed to the area. The Insurgents' radio station broadcast yesterday that 30 planes have bombed the capital and Malaga.

Fears are felt in diplomatic circles relative to the fate of 7,000 prisoners and hostages held by the Madrid authorities and an official message is not reassuring.

NERVOUSNESS REGARDING THE FUTURE OF CURRENCY

It is reported from Berlin that the increasing nervousness in German business circles about the future of currency and economic development was reflected on the Bourse yesterday in the sharp climb of share prices caused by heavy buying.

The devaluation of the lira, which came as a surprise, and the expected devaluation of Czechoslovakian currency, both served to send investors scurrying to acquire German and foreign shares. Even the official warnings that the possession of shares was no protection against devaluation but that on the contrary the profits might be confiscated by the State, failed to have any considerable effect.

Supplies were short and quotations rose generally by two to three per cent. Well-informed banking circles do not, however, believe that devaluation is imminent, though the creation of an export mark is considered a possibility. This would be used abroad for the purchase of German goods and would be backed by gold coverage possibly deposited abroad. Banking circles are exhibiting great concern for the future of Germany's foreign trade.

MADRID

It is reported from Talavera that the insurgents are tightening their grip on Madrid, with renewed activity in all the six sectors.

General Franco's forces have captured some Government strongholds thus securing communications between the armies at Talavera and Toledo.

Against the Governments'
 80,000 defenders General Franco is attacking with 150,000, but the former are occupying strong defensive positions and are well supplied with ammunition.

CONTRACT FOR NEW GIANT LINER

The formal contract between the Cunard White Star Company and the shipbuilders for the construction of an express steamship to be known at present as "No. 552", (sister ship to the liner "Queen Mary") was signed at Liverpool on Tuesday.

Messrs. John Brown have moved into position in their yard on the Clyde the huge crane used in the construction of the "Queen Mary", and are proceeding with the formation of the keel box for the new liner. They have already placed an order with Messrs. William Beardmore for the hull castings for "No. 552". These castings are of exceptional dimensions and consist of a cast steel stem, a cast steel stern frame, cast steel shaft brackets and a cast steel rudder.

They will be manufactured at Beardmore's Park Head Works at Glasgow.

The contract is estimated to be worth many thousands of pounds and is one of the largest received by the firm for many years.

Scott and Mr. Giles Guthrie, the winners of the race.

He stated that Mr. Schlesinger had decided to grant £2000 each to Mrs. Findlay and Mrs. Morgan and the balance of £2000 would be paid into a Trust Fund for the benefit of their children.

NEW WARDEN FOR MERTON COLLEGE

INTERNATIONAL POLICY & DEFENCE

International policy and defence were debated all Tuesday at Edinburgh by the Labour Party Conference, which eventually approved the national executive's statement, issued on Saturday, by 1,738,000 as against 657,000 on a card vote.

The statement declared that in view of the threatening attitude of dictatorships which are refusing to co-operate in the organisation of peace, the armed strength of countries loyal to the League of Nations must be conditioned by the armed strength of potential aggressors, and re-affirmed the policy of maintaining defence forces consistent with the country's responsibilities as a member of the League, the preservation of the people's rights and liberties, the continuance of democratic institutions and the observances of international law. The statement also condemned the Government's record in foreign policy.

The debate revealed some division of opinion, and Mr. George Lansbury, Lord Arnold and Sir Stafford Cripps were among the prominent members who opposed the executive's resolution.

The Leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons - Major Attlee - winding up the debate, emphatically denied that the resolution committed the party to supporting the particular proposals of the Government for re-armament but explained that what the Executive had in mind was that the system of collective security must have sufficient force behind it.

DECLINE IN EMPLOYMENT INENGLAND.

The seasonal decline in employment in the hotel and boarding-house service and in the distributive trades and building industry as well as the increase in those temporarily laid off in the coal mining industry, in all amounting to over 34,000, explains the rise of 10,399 in the total numbers of the unemployed last month as compared with the numbers in August. The Ministry of Labour estimates that at the 21st of September there were approximately 10,966,000 insured persons aged 16 to 64 in employment in Great Britain. This was 5,000 more than the month before and 488,000 more than the year before. At the same time the numbers of registered unemployed totalled 1,624,339, comprising 1,322,934 wholly unemployed and 232,122 temporarily laid off and 69,283 normally in casual employment. This was 10,399 more than at the 24th of August.

FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION COUNCILHOLDS A MEETING

A meeting of the Football Association Council held in London on Tuesday announced that L.H. Pike had been nominated as the Australian representative on the Council and approved Uganda's application for membership.

The official report on British football in the Olympic Games points out that the Continental teams employing older methods were more effective.

It is believed that the British professionals will revert from W formation to their former methods, probably resulting in better International achievements.

A special sub-committee has been appointed to select an amateur International team.

REDUCTION OF TRADE BARRIERS

The progress of the movement for the reduction of trade barriers, following the realignment of currencies inaugurated by the Franco-British-American declaration of September 26th, was demonstrated again in yesterday's proceedings of the second commission of the Assembly. The Swiss delegate, Stucki, said that his Government had devalued principally to show its willingness to participate in an international gesture towards economic recovery and announced that Switzerland would progressively reduce her tariffs. The Czecho-Slovakian delegate said that his Government had taken up the study of the question of abolishing exchange control in order to secure abolition as quickly as possible.

THE IDEAL POLICEWOMAN

At Peel House, Victoria, S.W.1, new recruits to the Women Police are being trained in the most exacting work which a woman can undertake.

Since the Home Office decided to increase the strength of the women police from 69 to 142 recruiting has proceeded steadily. So high is the standard that out of hundreds of applicants the majority have been rejected.

The ideal policewoman has to combine the tact of a Solomon with the astuteness of a detective; the physique of a man with the tenderness of a mother. Most of the work is concerned with women and children. Several have been engaged in inquiries into the Soho Murders. Training of the women, several of whom are drawn from the Universities, includes lessons in self-defence.

Hitherto the policewoman has been regarded as an experiment, but successive police chiefs have testified to her value. Some have been introduced to the speed patrol cars. Others have been put on special observation work in West End Clubs, and one or two were engaged on special work at Epsom on Derby Day.

LAST NIGHT'S DANCE

The Town Hall, gaily decorated with flags, was the scene of great hilarity and pleasure last night when a return dance organised by Mr. A. Bonner and other Friends of the members of the Folk Dance Society was given. The members of the Society were the guests.

Folk Dances, which the men seem to have taken to as the proverbial "ducks to water", formed a large part of the programme - the "Dashing White Sergeant" being in great demand. Mr. G.L. Pallini had his radiogram there as before to play the folk dance records and the bands gave of their best for the modern dances.

This vigorous dancing gave everyone an appetite and the varied and delicious refreshments provided by a committee of ladies were most welcome.

No-one wished to go home at 1 a.m. so the dance was extended until 2 a.m. and we feel that some people will be suffering from aching feet this morning but are sure that all will agree that it was a most successful dance.

APPEAL TO ARAB RULERS

It is reported from Jerusalem that the Arab Higher Committee yesterday received the final text of a proposed appeal by four Arab rulers to bring the Arab strike campaign and violence to an end.

At the meeting the Committee decided to confer with the district committees to-day and to-morrow in order to seek their opinions before publishing the appeal.

Sheikh Kamelshassan, King Ibn Saud's envoy, who returned to Jerusalem yesterday from Cairo where he communicated with Fing Ibn Saud through the Hedjaz Legation, resumed consultations with the higher committee yesterday.

The feeling in Jerusalem yesterday was much more optimistic and even suggests that the strike may terminate by the week-end. This hopefulness is reflected at Jaffa where Arab merchants are stated to be busily preparing for the early commencement of the citrus shipping season.

The advance on Madrid from the south-west is also progressing, with the capture of many villages at the point of the bayonet, and the capital is now three-quarters encircled.

TRADE AGREEMENT BETWEEN THEUNITED KINGDOM AND PERU

A trade agreement between the United Kingdom and Peru was signed at Lima on Wednesday and is to come into force on the exchange of ratifications.

The tariff articles of the Agreement are to take effect provisionally in about a week's time.

The Agreement provides for reciprocal most-favoured nation treatment of goods in respect of customs duties, customs formalities and import prohibitions, and also in respect of the exercise of commerce and industry in general. Peru undertakes to accord benevolent treatment to public utility and other undertakings in Peru in which British capital is invested. The United Kingdom goods enumerated in the schedule annexed to the Agreement are not to be subjected in Peru to customs duties higher than those specified in the schedule. The scheduled rates represent reductions of higher duties fixed in February 1936 by the new Peruvian Customs Tariff in respect of various classes of cotton, woollen, linen and artificial silk fabrics and some other classes of goods of interest to the United Kingdom.

The conventionalisations of Peruvian tariff rates of duty have been secured in respect of numerous classes of goods of United Kingdom origin.

ALLEGED BREACHES OF AGREEMENT

The publication by the Russian Government of a Note regarding alleged breaches of Agreement for non-intervention in Spain in advance of to-day's meeting of the International Committee at which it will be considered, has caused surprise in London.

The Note, which was handed to Lord Plymouth, the acting Chairman of the Committee, in London on Wednesday afternoon and at the same time made public in Moscow, concluded with the comment that the Soviet Government could not agree to the transformation of the non-intervention Agreement into a screen masking military aid to the Spanish insurgents. Some speculation has been aroused by the terms of this comment in view of the fact that so long ago as September 21st the International Committee agreed upon the procedure to be followed in respect of alleged breaches of Agreement and affirmed the principle that it would be the duty of the Committee to examine such allegations with a view to ascertaining the facts.

The complaints had to be submitted by the Government party to the Agreement which had convinced itself that they were founded on evidence of sufficient weight.

The Russian Government, if it has satisfied itself of the trustworthiness of the complaints it is now sponsoring, is therefore acting in full accord with the intention of the Committee, but among those who have most closely followed the International Committee's work it is recalled that at its first meeting it was agreed that its proceedings should be treated as strictly confidential subject to the issue of an agreed communiqué at the conclusion of each meeting. So far as the British Government is concerned their attitude in this matter was made clear by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in an interview yesterday morning with the Labour Leader Major Attlee and by the official statement issued later that the British representatives on the Committee were fully conscious of the dangers which would be incurred if the situation arising out of allegations of breaches of the non-intervention Agreement were not cleared up without delay.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE UNITED KINGDOM AND THE GOVERNMENT OF SAUDI

By an exchange of Notes between the United Kingdom Government and the Government of Saudi Arabia has agreed not to exercise for seven years the right to terminate the Treaty of Jeddah of 1927, and at the same time to the modification of certain provisions of the Treaty and of Letters exchanged at the time.

The most important of these modifications relates to the right which His Majesty's Government have hitherto exercised to manumit slaves taking refuge at the British Legation at Jeddah. The recent decree of the Saudi Government on slavery contains regulations whereby the importation of slaves from any country whether by land or sea, unless they were recognised as slaves in their country of origin, is forbidden.

The decree also provides greatly increased facilities for manumission in Saudi Arabia and lays down provisions for the better treatment of slaves. These regulations are considered by His Majesty's Government to be of a sufficiently satisfactory nature to warrant the abandonment of the right of manumission in pursuance of the undertaking given by them in 1927.

The British Commonwealth Scientific Conference held its final meeting on Thursday. The Conference, which opened on September 21st, has been mainly engaged in reviewing the work of the various agricultural bureaux or information centres and the research activities coming within the administrative scope of the Executive Council of the Imperial Agricultural Bureaux, and is financed on an inter-imperial basis.

In addition certain matters involving the principle of collaborative action in research were referred to the Conference for consideration. The Report, which before publication will be submitted for the consideration of the Governments of the British Commonwealth, covers a wide field and includes certain recommendations for making still more effective the scientific information service provided by the Bureaux. The Imperial Institutes of Entomology and Mycology have also been the subject of review and the establishment of two further bureaux within the Empire, in dairying and forestry respectively, has received consideration.

The International Committee for the application of the Agreement regarding non-intervention in Spain met at the Foreign Office yesterday morning. After an hour and three quarters it adjourned until 4 p.m.

It is understood that Portugal has threatened to leave the non-intervention Committee. This threat was made it is understood after both the Portuguese and Italian delegates had vigorously denied the charges in the Spanish memorandum circulated to the Committee by Britain. It is uncertain how seriously this threat is intended.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE CORONATION

Good progress is being made with the preparation of the designs for the decoration of the streets and parks of London for the Coronation.

The eminent architects who have been appointed to supervise the schemes of decoration in the City of London and City of Westminster have been in frequent consultations with the Chief Architect of the Office of Works whose concern is the Royal parks, and schemes are being co-ordinated.

In the comparatively narrow streets of the City it is proposed that the decorations shall be suspended from buildings and houses but in the wider streets of Westminster it will be necessary as usual to make use of pylons in the decorative scheme. It will be the aim of those responsible to achieve more striking effects than have been usually obtained in street decorations on such occasions in the past.

Advice will shortly be issued to the general public about the decoration of private buildings and houses.

IMPROVEMENT TO A CITY'S STATUS

A message from Glasgow states that an anonymous resident there has offered a prize of £1,000 to the citizen doing the most to improve the city's general status socially or artistically or by bringing honour to it.

900 MEN TO BUILD ONE CASTLE

Sandgate Castle, near Folkestone, one of the five fortresses built along the Kent coast during the reign of Henry VIII, is for sale.

The central keep, where Queen Elizabeth was entertained to dinner in 1573, and the outer walls remain in parts.

The castle cost £50,000 and was built in eighteen months. Nine hundred men were employed on it at a time.

If egg custard curdles, it can be brought back to normal by pouring quickly into a basin and whipping up at once with an egg whisk until the correct smooth consistency is reached.

The next time unexpected visitors turn up and you feel you haven't enough cream to go round, just add the white of an egg and beat it well. It makes it go much further and yet does not make the cream thin or less nutritious.

A temporary bed-table can be contrived by arranging a folding ironing-table with the pointed end projecting over the bed. This makes breakfast in bed much more pleasant or is useful for an invalid.

Never throw away old hot water bottles because when they are cut into neat rounds and squares they make splendid mats for placing beneath vases or hot plates.

For ruching on children's dainty dresses try threading your machine with matching or contrasting thread, adjusting with a loose tension and large stitch. Then run as many rows as needed and draw up the stitches from the back. This saves endless and tedious hand-sewing.

Nail varnish may be used most successfully for colouring imitation pearl ear-rings of which you are tired. Really lovely pinky shades result and the gloss never becomes dull.

Try using paper clips instead of pins, for tacking, when working seams on the machine. They slip over the two edges of the material so easily, making no holes in delicate fabric, and are so quickly removed.

I don't think everyone knows that a tablespoonful of hot water stirred into a sponge mixture last thing of all before placing in the oven makes a bigger and much lighter sponge.

M.P.'S AND THEIR TEAS

After an interval of three years of repair work on the fabric of the House of Commons, the famous Terrace Teas have been resumed, and in the opinion of the catering manager the Members of Parliament will entertain record numbers of their friends there for so long as the fine weather lasts.

The Terrace has been completely refurnished with teak tables, chairs and benches, all made from the timbers of the Admiralty yacht "Enchantress" which was broken up in 1935 after 31 years of service.

A terrace tea, it may be mentioned, consists of a pot of tea, bread and butter, and strawberries and cream.

A man slightly under the influence of alcohol entered a shop to buy a pair of shoes. He tried on a pair but complained that they hurt him. "A little bit tight?" inquired the assistant. The customer fixed him with a glassy eye. "Thatsh none of your business," he said.

"What would you say," said he, "if I were to inform you that there is a beautiful fair-haired girl rather attracting me?" "Pooh!" sneered she, "I should say that it was a case of the 'blond' leading the 'blind'."

TECHNICAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR CO-OPERATION WITH THE MONETARY AUTHORITIES OF THE UNITED STATES

The Treasury announces that "arrangements for technical co-operation with the monetary authorities in the United States have now been completed and a new Regulation is being published by the Secretary of the United States Treasury which will enable gold to be obtained in the United States in exchange for dollars by any country which gives reciprocal facilities to the United States.

His Majesty's Government have arranged for such facilities to be afforded in London to the United States authorities.

This day-to-day working arrangement should greatly facilitate the technical operations of exchange control. Similar arrangements have been made with the Bank of France so as to provide for effective co-operation between the three centres."

As in the case of the three declarations made by the Governments of Great Britain, the United States, and France on September the 26th, the monetary authorities of the three countries have acted in unison regarding the present arrangement which is simply intended to facilitate the technical operations. It involves no change in policy, nor, of course, does it in any way alter the fact that sterling is free currency.

The balances in New York arising from the intervention of exchange controls will be exchanged for gold at a fixed price as the American announcement will show. Similarly the balances in London and Paris will be exchanged for gold on terms to be agreed in the light of daily circumstances.

WOMEN HOSTAGES EXCHANGED

British Ships Provide Transport

There is considerable satisfaction in London at the news of the part played by British ships and the British Consular authorities in what appears to be the first important concession to the humanitarian feelings of the outside world yet made in the course of the Spanish Civil conflict.

Women hostages have been released for exchange both by the insurgent authorities at Burgos and by the Basque authorities at Bilbao. His Majesty's Ships have provided the means of transport and the British Consul at Bilbao has given valuable help to Doctor Junod the representative of the International Red Cross to whose untiring efforts the successful outcome of the negotiations for exchange is almost entirely due.

The Polish Government has conveyed its thanks to the British Government for the assistance rendered by the British Navy to Polish nationals in Spain.

Fierce Fighting Continues

Fierce fighting in heavy rain raged 40 miles from Madrid yesterday where the Government are striving desperately to prevent the insurgents from exploiting their recent capture of Cebreros and San Martin. The Madrid Government claims that it has not yielded an inch of ground in this important sector west of Madrid while the insurgents state that the Government militia counter-attacked San Martin yesterday morning but were repulsed with the loss of 500 killed and wounded. The Government troops are also reported to have attacked the insurgent positions near Toledo forcing the insurgents to retire.

Yesterday the Spanish National holiday known as the "Feast of the Spanish Races" was expected to see the start of General Franco's general offensive on the capital, but a counter-attack by the Government forces combined with heavy rain appear to have caused the "zero hour" to be postponed.

It is officially claimed that after furious street fighting the Government troops besieging Oviedo occupied the San Lazaro quarter of the town, also the cemetery where 600 new graves inscribed with the names of insurgents who have fallen since the beginning of the siege have been made. On the other hand the Insurgent headquarters claim that the siege of Oviedo was virtually raised by the relief column which routed the Asturian miners and captured the heights dominating the city.

ARAB STRIKE TO END AT LAST

It is reported from Jerusalem that great relief is expressed throughout Palestine on the decision of the Higher Committee to call off the strike. The Daily Telegraph correspondent says that it is now evident that the leaders' fears of reaction are apparently unfounded and the Committee would have had wide support for cancelling the strike on their own initiative since their followers' patience had already been strained by the ruinous developments.

The Curfew period has been shortened, the bus services are preparing to resume, and trading preliminaries have commenced. It is a foregone conclusion that the trouble has been terminated and Monday's prayer was intended to precede a unanimous resumption of business activity.

INSURGENTS STILL ACTIVE

Another day passed yesterday without the opening of the Insurgents' attack on Madrid and reports of fresh skirmishes around the Capital indicate that General Franco is not ready to advance.

The Insurgents now occupy the five principal sectors running clockwise round the capital from the south to the north-east, but it is believed that the Madrid - Valencia railway is still working.

The Insurgents claim to have made a further air raid on Aranjuez Station, a vital junction on the railway, and it appears that the Insurgents are hoping to cut this communication before beginning their advance on Madrid.

General Varela, directing operations from the south-west, held a conference with Colonel Yague, commanding the Moorish troops advancing from the South, and it is learned that the Insurgent command possess no illusions regarding the difficulties in the task ahead of them, General Varela opining that the advance will take a considerable time but that the issue may be regarded as a foregone conclusion.

The Insurgent headquarters at Burgos deny that negotiations are proceeding with Madrid regarding terms for surrender and add that no conditional surrender will be accepted. Pamphlets were dropped in Madrid yesterday urging the authorities and residents to surrender in order to avoid needless bloodshed. The pamphlets add that failing surrender the extent of punishment will depend on the extent of the resistance encountered.

PEACE IN PALESTINE

It is reported from Jerusalem that the streets were animated on Tuesday evening as a result of the extension of the Curfew hours to 9 p.m. owing to the ending of the strike. The crowds gazed into the illuminated shop windows and filled the cafes.

GERMANY'S POLICY REGARDINGCOLONIES

A message from Berlin states that it is understood that Germany's policy with regard to the Colonial question was discussed at a conference at Berchtesgaden on Tuesday.

GERMAN NAVAL REARMAMENT

German naval rearmament is proceeding rapidly - the ship-yards at Kiel working night and day.

The ships under construction at Kiel include a 26,000 ton battleship, sister ship to the "Scharnhorst" launched at Bremen on the 3rd of August, and a 10,000 ton battleship of the Deutschland type.

It is expected that the 26,000 ton ship will be ready for launching by the end of November and is likely to be christened "Gneisenau".

Obituary The death occurred at Zurich on Tuesday of Sir Godfrey Collins, the Secretary for Scotland since 1932. Sir Godfrey, who was 61, was taken ill suddenly a few weeks ago while on holiday in Switzerland. The body will be taken back to Scotland for interment.

1,556 RECRUITS IN ONE MONTH

The latest returns show that during the month of September 1,556 recruits were taken on the strength of the Territorial Army as compared with 765 during August and 656 in September 1935.

During the six months April to September the intake of recruits was 21,638 as compared with 13,282 during the same period last year.

IMPERIAL DEFENCE

The First Lord of the Admiralty discussed Imperial Defence from the angle of inter-service co-operation in his address at Edinburgh on Tuesday night.

Sir Samuel Hoare began by recalling the main requirements of the defence programme which were - security of overseas communications, the protection of home shores from attack, and the defence of Imperial bases and territories.

He added "The further obligations of collective security I do not elaborate, not because I have abandoned the ideal of collective security - I suppose in the difficult months of last autumn I worked as hard for collective security as anyone in Europe - but because I am convinced that our first duty, whether for ourselves or for others is to make our own position secure. You cannot protect others until you can protect yourself. Nor, incidentally, can you have collective security without a collection. Collective security last autumn virtually meant the British Fleet. When next it is applied it must mean something much more than the naval, military, and air effort of a single country."

Instancing the importance of co-operation between the three Services on a number of past occasions in British history, the First Lord argued that planning for co-operation was now essential. With modern inventions, discoveries and development, and a third arm of unprecedented speed, the whole problem of defence had in the last twenty years become immeasurably more complicated.

For these new and complicated functions new organs were undoubtedly necessary, but how were they to be created? In the past the main strands of co-operation had been woven by actual experience, and so, as far as possible, Sir Samuel Hoare thought, the same policy should be pursued for the future. Already at least three valuable organs of co-operation had been evolved - the Chiefs of Staffs Committee of the Committee of Imperial Defence, the Joint Staff College in the Imperial Defence College, and the Minister for the co-ordination of Defence.

THE CIVIL SERVICE

A wages increase for the clerical grades of the Civil Service will result from the award of the Industrial Court announced on Tuesday on a claim of the Civil Service Clerical Association for higher maximum wage rates. The new award is estimated to be equivalent to an increase of 25% for the majority of those affected and ultimately it is understood the increase will apply to about 20,000 clerks. The change from the old maximum to the new will be effected by annual increments.

London. To eliminate a long railway journey and for linking up Empire Air Services, landing facilities are being provided near Lyons for the new British flying boats. On completion the craft will use Marseilles instead of Paris and will cut out Brindisi.

SMOKELESS FUEL PLANT

A new smokeless fuel plant costing £200,000 has been erected and inaugurated at Chesterfield.

This will give employment to 720 people and will utilise 500 tons of coal daily from the Bolsover Colliery.

ROOSEVELT DENOUNCES "GOSPEL OF FEAR"

It is reported from Kansas that Mr. Roosevelt, speaking at Wichita on Tuesday, denounced the "Gospel of fear" which is being spread by republican leaders. This apparently referred to Mr. Landon's speech at Cleveland the other day when he opposed relief works and alleged that the workers would by this means be compelled to sell their votes for bread.

The general opinion is that the tide flows with Roosevelt now.

ECONOMY IN BRIDGE BUILDING

It is stated that some of the material which was used by Rennie, the engineer, in the construction of Waterloo Bridge 120 years ago will be used in the new bridge.

The tons of stone and timber which have been removed during the demolition work in the last twelve months are largely useless scrap, but it is likely that gravel from the old structure will be used to "face" the concrete cut-waters of the piers on the new bridge.

Upwards of 11,000 people are sent to prison each year in England for failure to pay fines or rates.

The United Kingdom exports of aircraft in 1935 were valued at £2,721,441, the highest total on record.

CORONATION PLANS

A message to the people of the British Commonwealth will be broadcast by the King as his first public act following his Coronation in Westminster Abbey on May 12th next year.

His Majesty will speak from a room in Buckingham Palace in the evening.

FOREIGN SECRETARY ADDRESSES AMEETING AT SHEFFIELD

In his speech at the Cutlers' Feast at Sheffield last night the Foreign Secretary said that there existed among the British people a very general and widespread feeling of distaste for those extreme political doctrines which were being preached and fostered in different forms in different countries. Accompanying this distaste for extremes there was an increased appreciation of and increased attachment to the free institutions which were the expression of British life and character.

There was no wish to quarrel with others who had preferred to adopt different systems of Government. That was their own affair. But it was the affair of British people and very much their affair that they should not part with their own methods or weaken in loyalty to their own institutions. In the midst of all the turmoil of present day Europe the British might be excused for observing with some pride that the machinery of Constitutional Government continued to work smoothly and that freedom of person and thought was respected and preserved.

Mr. Eden added "In a world in which national prestige is worshipped as the Golden Calf I trust that we shall take as the standard of our own prestige as a nation our ability to combine tolerance and personal freedom with a strong and effective Government." The British people would show as great readiness to serve the State when the State existed for the people as when the people existed for the State and would exert every effort of mind and body to preserve the legacy of tradition and opportunity which had come down to them, and strive with persistence and imagination for its wider and fuller development.

Close attachment to their own institutions, Mr. Eden said, did not imply any attitude of detachment from the affairs of Europe. Even if that were desirable it was not possible. Britain had always played her part in Europe and would continue to do so.

The Foreign Secretary then turned to the Spanish crisis and after describing the origins of the non-intervention Agreement and the reasons why the British Government had so strongly supported the French Government's initiative, referred to the criticisms which were being directed against the Agreement and said that it was even being suggested that the time had come to give up this effort.

His Majesty's Government did not share that view. The impatience revealed in some quarters at the slowness of the International Committee's method and work had not been balanced by the production of any practical alternative proposals for dealing with the situation. He himself was far from endorsing some of the verdicts as to the effect of the non-intervention Agreement up to date upon the two parties engaged in a civil conflict but "let there be no doubt of the view of the Government of this country upon the policy of non-intervention. His Majesty's Government support non-intervention. That view is strongly held and has never wavered. We are, for our part, determined to carry out loyally our own undertaking and to promote in every way possible the execution of the terms of the Agreement. We consider that this is the best if not the only way to avert dangerous developments which are inherent in the Spanish situation." Mr. Eden added that in certain directions there were even now signs of an improvement in the international situation but that it would be foolish to blind ourselves to the difficulties - it was not so much the evident dangers which must cause anxiety as the fear of some unexpected development

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ADDRESSES THE DEFENCE FORCE

His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief delivered a lecture to over eighty Officers, N.C.O's., men and retired members of the Falkland Islands Defence Force at the Drill Hall on Wednesday the 7th of October. The Honourable G. Roberts, J.P., M.E.C., M.L.C., was also present.

The subject of the lecture was World Politics and the Defence of the Falkland Islands.

Before proceeding with the lecture, His Excellency expressed his pleasure at seeing so many ex-members of the Force present, and stated that he hoped they would associate themselves fully with present members in securing the additional recruits necessary if the Colony was to be in a position to defend itself from attack.

His Excellency opened his lecture by suggesting as possibly one of the main causes of unrest in Europe the closing down of immigration into the United States of America. There were nearly twelve million European born residents of the United States in 1930. Since restrictions on immigration had been enforced there were in some years such as 1935 more persons leaving than entering that country.

The history of the world showed the general movements of people from east to west and that was now blocked.

More immediate causes of unrest were the difference between the 'have' countries Great Britain, Russia, France and the United States owning more than half the area and half the population of the world and the 'have nots' such as Japan, Germany and Italy all of which countries were endeavouring to expand.

The chief countries of the world beginning with Japan and proceeding west were then dealt with in turn, the political state and ambitions of each being described briefly with references to their armed strength and its repercussions on the peace of the world.

His Excellency then gave a summary of the six or seven potent reasons why war which might involve all nations was liable to break out giving against them as the strongest factors for peace the determination of the British Empire to do all that lay in its power to prevent war and the genuine desire of the vast majority of the peoples of the world for peace. His Excellency did not believe personally that there would be war but considered that the next two or three years would be a very critical period and it was therefore emphatically necessary for every country to be in a position to defend itself as far as lay within its power.

These remarks brought the lecture to the point of the unpreparedness of the Colony holding as it does a key position between two oceans. The Colony had its armaments and had first rate shots and excellent material in the members of the Defence Force but these were all too few in number for the services required of the Force. Opportunities for training in field movements had not been available. It was very desirable to hold a summer camp in 1937, but more numbers were essential. There should be four full platoons, two of men permanently resident in Stanley, one of members partly resident and the fourth of campers.

His Excellency felt confident that all members of the Force and ex-members would do their best to obtain more recruits. Only men likely to prove a credit to the Force were required.

The Officer Commanding the Defence Force moved a vote of thanks which was cordially received.

The lecture was indeed most interesting and greatly appreciated by all ranks.

THE NEGUS BUYS A CHATEAU

A message from Geneva states that the Negus has purchased a Chateau in the French free zone surrounding Geneva, about fifteen miles from the Swiss frontier and within half an hour's motor run of the League building. It is presumed that he will require the permission of the French Government to settle there.

MORE AND MORE ELECTRICITY USED

Some interesting figures showing the steady growth in the use of electricity are given in the report just issued of the Electricity Commissioners.

Last year there was an increase of 13% in the number of consumers, bringing the total to over 6,904,000.

The sales of electricity amounted to 13,030,000,000 units. The importance of the electric supply undertakings in the economy of the country is shown by the fact that the salaries and wages paid totalled £12,390,572.

MISS BATTEN HOMEWARD BOUND

A message from Sydney says that Miss Jean Batten who is on her homeward flight, on which she has already set up a new record for a solo flight from England to Australia, took off from Richmond, New South Wales, at 4.37 a.m. yesterday (local time) for New Zealand.

INTERNATIONAL MOTOR EXHIBITION

Closed cars predominate at Olympia where the thirtieth International Motor Exhibition opened yesterday with exhibits of thirty British and twenty-four foreign manufactures.

The cars are becoming larger with a tendency towards increased power. Freak streamlining is not seen but the bodywork of most cars is clean-lined, with receptacles for spare wheels and luggage lockers incorporated in the coachwork.

Ventilation is better on nearly all models and the independent suspension of the wheel is becoming more common. Another noticeable improvement is in car maintenance which is again much simpler. Centralised chassis lubrication is a feature on many of this year's cars and built-in four-wheel jacking systems are now common.

SERIOUS RIOTS IN BOMBAY

A message from Bombay reports that serious Hindu-Moslem riots have broken out over Temple demolition resulting in 14 people being killed, 170 wounded, and 100 arrested.

Stabbing in bazaars and assaults with bottles and stones are reported, many police being among the casualties.

The troops may be called in.

WEST STORE CHIT CHAT

The Australian Air Ministry have tried to persuade Miss Jean Batten not to attempt the crossing of the Tasman Sea owing to climatic conditions..... Climate and distance however do not prevent that inveterate crosser of oceans, JOHNNIE WALKER, reaching the farthest corners of the world.

R.R.S. "WILLIAM SCORESBY"

It is announced that the Royal Research Ship "William Scoresby" will leave St. Katharine's Dock in a few days' time to continue her whale marking operations in the Antarctic. She will touch at Dakar and Capetown and will then proceed south-east to the ice edge in the vicinity of Enderby Land, working on this and other whaling grounds as the distribution of whales renders desirable.

She will not touch land again until the end of the whaling season in March.

During her last marking commission a year ago some 700 whales were marked from the "William Scoresby". It is possible to regain the marks from the operations of the previous seasons and thus to gather information not only on the migrations of whales but on the question as to whether the whale returns to the same grounds in the south year after year.

ORDER RESTORED IN PALESTINE

For the third day in succession the communique issued from the High Commissioner's Office in Jerusalem yesterday states that there have been no incidents to report since noon the previous day.

It continues "the Public is informed that owing to order having been restored and the absence of acts of violence, in future an official communique will be issued only when occasion demands and the daily issue of an official communique as a matter of routine is being discontinued."

Press messages from Palestine say that a hopeful impression is gaining ground among the public that the restoration of order has made possible the visit of a Royal Commission at a not too distant date.

THE DEFENCE FORCE RIFLE ASSOCIATION AND MINIATURE RIFLE CLUB DANCE.

Prizes Presented By His Excellency The Governor.

Considerable enthusiasm was shown at the dance held in the Town Hall last night, organised by the Defence Force Rifle Association and the Miniature Rifle Club at which His Excellency the Governor was present to distribute the prizes, medals and certificates won in connection with the Local Bisley Meeting and the Miniature Rifle competitions.

His Excellency arrived soon after 10.0'o'clock accompanied by Miss Henniker-Heaton, Miss F. Henniker Heaton, Mrs. G.J. Felton, Miss E. Felton, Major the Honourable M.J. Stewart (Officer Commanding the Falkland Islands Defence Force), the Honourable R.L. Cheverton, Mr. G. Goddard and Captain D.W. Roberts.

In introducing the Governor, Mr. J.W. Grierson J.P., (Hon. Secretary of the Defence Force Rifle Association) said that he had great pleasure in asking His Excellency to present the prizes.

His Excellency distributed the prizes and addressed the assembly. He congratulated the prize winners and then referred to the value of the Defence Force to the Colony. The necessity for increasing their numbers was shown in the "Penguin" of that day and His Excellency hoped that the ladies present would become recruiting sergeants for the Force.

At so critical a time as the present when His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom was making efforts, unprecedented in peace time, for strengthening all arms of defence it was the particular duty of every British subject in the Colonies to do their share. It would be a great folly to wait for war to break out before coming forward.

His Excellency stated that the present aim here should be to have 150 men on parade on the day of His Majesty's Coronation. No greater proof of our devotion to the throne could be given than preparedness to defend the liberties we have inherited under its protection.

Major the Honourable M.J. Stewart, Officer Commanding the Defence Force, thanked His Excellency for his kindness in presenting the prizes and also took the opportunity of thanking him for the advice and direction which he had received from His Excellency since assuming command of the Defence Force. He also mentioned that it may not be known to many that His Excellency's past connection with Colonial Military Forces began over 31 years ago and during all this period His Excellency had been in close contact with the heads of the Regular and Volunteer Military Forces in many Colonies.

No measure could adequately express the value of such experience and it was our good fortune that His Excellency was with us in this Colony and while we had the honour of his presence as the representative of His Majesty the King there could be no doubt as to the future success of the Falkland Islands Defence Force.

After the prize giving and the speeches the dance continued and so much was everyone enjoying it that an extension until 2 a.m. was granted.

PROSPERITY RETURNS TO THESHIPBUILDING INDUSTRY

The Shipbuilding Industry is beginning to share in the returning prosperity of the United Kingdom. An increase of more than 75% in the tonnage under construction in Great Britain and Ireland as compared with a year ago is shown in the statistics of Lloyds Register for the September quarter.

Two hundred and nineteen vessels of 928,571 tons gross were in hand on September 30th - these figures being the highest quarter by total recorded since September 1930.

HIS MAJESTY APPROVES A NEWAPPOINTMENT.

The King has approved the creation of the Office of Chief Royal Engineer of the Corps of the Royal Engineers and of the appointment thereto of General Sir Bindon Blood, Colonel Commandant of the Royal Engineers.

The creation of the Office of Chief Royal Engineer restores to the Royal Engineers an old military appointment originally styled Chief Engineer of the Kingdom which existed from the Restoration down to its abolition in 1808.

The holder of the appointment is the titular head of the Corps.

LORD PLYMOUTH ADDRESSES THE SOVIETEMBASSY

Lord Plymouth, the Acting Chairman of the International Committee for the application of the Agreement regarding non-intervention in Spain, has sent the following letter to Monsieur Kagan of the Soviet Embassy. "I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note of October 12th in which, on instructions from your Government, you asked that I should convene the Committee forthwith to discuss the proposal which you make therein to provide for the immediate establishment of control over Portuguese ports with a view to preventing the alleged supply of arms through Portugal to the Insurgent forces in Spain.

"As you know all specific complaints which have been brought against the Portuguese Government of violations of the Agreement for non-intervention in Spain were submitted to and discussed by the Committee at the meeting on October the 9th and the Portuguese Government have been requested in accordance with the rules of procedure laid down by the Committee on September the 21st, to supply at as early a date as possible such explanations as are necessary to establish the facts."

"Since the reply of the Portuguese Government has not yet been received, and since moreover your Note of October 12th contains no additional evidence whatsoever to show that the Agreement is in fact being violated, I do not think that it would be proper for me to summon a further meeting of the Committee at this stage to discuss the matter."

CHINESE SHOES FOR WOMEN NOW

As an outcome of the recent Chinese Exhibition, women are now wearing shoes made after the Chinese fashion. The new shoes are made to a height of more than an inch at the toe, and at the sides in front, to give them the thick padded effect seen on Chinese sandals. Only a thin strap keeps them in place at the back, but at the front the foot is covered closely as far as the instep - which seems to suggest that women will find them ideal for dancing, especially with an inexperienced partner. New for evening too, will be the colourings, for the most brilliantly lacquered patent leathers are used with the designs in Chinese colours painted closely over them.

"SKY SCRAPERS" FOR LONDON

The leasehold interests in five large mansions at Prince's Gate have been acquired by a syndicate which has been granted a long lease of the site by the Freaque Estate. On this site a block of flats, rising to a height of about 100 feet, is to be erected, and is expected to be ready for occupation in approximately a year's time. The building will be of 10 storeys, with only three flats in each floor. The flats will be of the "luxury" type, with drawing rooms 37 feet by 20 feet.

ORANGE TREES FED ON OX-BLOOD

In the Palace grounds at Versailles there are over one thousand orange trees growing in huge green boxes.

These trees require continual attention and are looked after by a special staff. Some of the trees date as far back as the time of Louis XIV. They are kept under cover between October 15th and April 15th, and if there happens to be a sudden cold spell during their open-air season the whole lot are rushed indoors.

Each of the large boxes has a detachable panel to permit inspection of the roots. The trees are grown in a special loam, mixed with turf and manure which has been kept a long time. Every two or three years they are taken out and put in fresh boxes.

At the beginning of October and in the middle of spring the orange trees are "fed" on a mixture of ox-blood and water. They each receive about 2½ gallons of water, into which about 10 grammes of ox-blood has been mixed. Each of the trees has its written record, containing indications of its growth and of any particularities.

THREE MONTHS' FIGHTING INSPAIN

It is exactly three months since the outbreak of the insurrection in Spain, and Madrid is preparing uncomplainingly for the ordeal which is plainly approaching.

The capital is now plunged in darkness at 10 p.m., the hour when the gay life generally began.

Severe heating and lighting restrictions are in force and there is food stringency due to the need for provisioning the 100,000 militia men of the new army and the thousands of prisoners.

All the able-bodied men are now under arms. Thousands of arrests have been made during the last few days and the custody and nourishment of these people is a problem.

AN APPEAL FOR BETTER FRANCO-GERMANUNDERSTANDING

It is reported from Paris that President Lebrun, unveiling a memorial to the 20,000 inhabitants of Strasbourg killed during the war, appealed for a better Franco-German understanding.

M. Lebrun stated that it was urged abroad that France had deep internal dissensions, but that if danger appeared France would be unanimous.

The memorial represents a Strasbourg woman embracing a dying son and a French and a German soldier clasping hands. M. Lebrun expressed the hope that they would extend their hands across the frontier in peace.

DEPUTATION FROM EAST END OF LONDON

The Home Secretary has intimated his willingness to receive a deputation from the east end of London regarding public order and the alleged provocative behaviour of the Fascist bodies.

Speaking at Leicester on Saturday the Home Secretary spoke of the question as being a very pressing and difficult problem which they should tackle in the single interest of preserving the essentials of British citizenship.

In the meantime, on the initiative of the Warden of Toynbee Hall, an East End Citizens' Committee has been set up, and the Presidency has been accepted by the Archbishop of Canterbury, with the object of uniting the Churches and social organisations of the district in a united effort to preserve order through insistence on the principle of self-control and tolerance which are the essential basis of democracy. In this way the promoters of the movement hope to prevent the deterioration of the situation before it becomes serious. The rowdiness which has been the cause of the recent trouble is of such small dimensions that the authorities can cope easily with it if and so long as the public itself avoids becoming involved through thoughtless faction.

HOME NOTES

Alarm clocks can be used in more ways than one, for instance if you have a special cake to bake, set your alarm clock and it will tell when it is time to get it out of the oven. Then if you want to take forty winks before going out to tea and don't trust yourself to wake in time, just set the alarm and take your rest confident that you won't oversleep.

When a calendar seems too nice to destroy just paste a piece of sand-paper over the old pad and use it for lighting matches. One in each room is both pretty and useful.

It is such a pity to let cookery books get greasy and dirty in the kitchen, why not cover the open book with a piece of glass from an old picture? This keeps it flat and clean.

To prevent your cutlery from getting stained when cutting acid fruits, just rub on a little butter beforehand.

To make sure none of your clothes get iron-mould from your copper, buy a child's hoop a size larger than the top of your copper. Then make a bag to fit the copper and bind the edges of it round your hoop. An old sheet serves admirably for this. On wash day just drop the bag in the copper so that the hoop rests on the edge.

If your bath is the old-fashioned kind and needs re-enamelling frequently, try this method:- After the bath has been sand-papered give it a coat of aluminium paint and allow this to dry before applying the bath enamel. In this way the rust is prevented from working through.

When you hang wallpaper and in spite of all your care it persists in creasing when dry, smooth over these creases with a moderately hot iron. You will be delighted with the way the creases disappear.

Add a dessertspoonful of salt to the water when scraping new potatoes and you'll find that the skins will come off much more easily and quickly.

EGG PRODUCTION INCREASE

Estimates made by the Ministry of Agriculture regarding the British poultry industry tell a remarkable story of expansion in the past eleven years.

From 1924 to 1935 the production of hens' eggs increased every year until they more than doubled. In the 1924-25 season the output was 1,422,000,000 eggs, and was 3,106,000,000 in the 1934-5 season.

Table poultry has a similar record. Ducks and geese for eating show little change in the years under review, but the production of fowls for the table has risen from 15,000,000 in the 1924-5 season to 32,000,000 in the 1934-5 season.

RESERVE LIFEBOATS

Carefully guarded in a yard at the East Indian Docks is the Reserve Fleet of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, some twenty in number.

Side by side in massive sheds stand lifeboats from Stornoway, Dungeness, Holyhead and Scarborough; in fact, from coastal towns all over the British Isles.

Some of them are new, some are old; some have motors, some are the fast-disappearing type propelled by oar and sail; but one and all are ready to go on duty at a moment's notice.

If a lifeboat somewhere on the East Coast were to go out of action, the news would be sent over to East India Docks, and in half an hour one of the reserves would be steaming full speed down Limehouse Canal on its way to the Thames and the North Sea.

Father "Baby always seems to cry whenever I look at him."

Mother "Never mind, dear. When he's older and gets some sense he'll probably laugh at you."

NEGOTIATIONS FOR A TRADEAGREEMENT

In view of the fact that negotiations are now in progress between His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and the Government of India for a trade agreement in replacement of that concluded at Ottawa in 1932 which will terminate on November the 13th, it has been agreed by the two Governments that pending a new Agreement the 1932 Agreement shall continue in force subject to termination at three months' notice by either side unless it is replaced by a new Agreement.

It has been further agreed that in the event of failure to conclude a new Agreement neither party shall withdraw the existing preferences without prior consultation with the other party.

BRITISH INVESTIGATIONS INCHINA

The Exports Credits Guarantee Department announced on Monday that they have appointed a representative to go out to China to examine and consider on the spot the proposals submitted for guarantees in connection with the export of United Kingdom goods.

The number of proposals of this kind received by the Department suggests that British manufacturers are alive to the opportunities in China, but the Department has been handicapped in assessing the credit risks by the rapidity with which conditions there are changing and the time and expense involved in communication.

The new representative, who will work in close contact with the Commercial Counsellor to the British Embassy, will make any detailed investigations required and assist if necessary with the negotiations. He will not initiate propositions or seek orders but will be solely concerned with the financial and economic merits of proposals for the export of United Kingdom goods which appear suitable for consideration under the British Exports Credit Scheme.

Exports to China have always been within the scope of the scheme and the present appointment simply provides machinery for facilitating its application. The scheme, as is well-known, is operated on a strictly commercial basis and does not represent a subsidy to British trade.

The announcement on Monday pointed out that the Exports Guarantee Department deals with exporters in the United Kingdom only and adds that there is no truth in the reports which have been in circulation that a loan or credit has been negotiated with the Chinese Government. The Department has appointed as its representative Mr. W.M. Kirkpatrick who has for many years represented British commercial and financial interests abroad. He has had experience of exchange banking and the import trade in India and has been on financial missions to Japan, Hong-Kong, and Chile. Mr. Kirkpatrick's appointment will necessitate his resignation of his seat in Parliament which he has held since 1931 as one of the two Conservative members for Preston.

THE SAFETY OF HOSTAGES INSPAIN.

The Foreign Secretary has sent a telegram to the British Charge d'Affaires in Madrid which, after expressing appreciation of what Mr. Ogilvie Forbes has himself done hitherto with the approval of the British Government for the mitigation of the dangers to non-combatants and of their suffering, continues with a reference to what it says is common knowledge, namely that in the course of the troubles in Spain large numbers of hostages have been taken and held, and that this applies more especially to the capital where so large a population is concentrated.

The telegram says "There would appear to be most serious reason to fear that in the absence of a sufficiently reliable means of ensuring the safety of these persons, a situation might arise when they would be in danger of an attack or even of wholesale massacre. In the face of such a possibility and of the further terrible consequences which might ensue, His Majesty's Government feel impelled to make an urgent appeal on purely humanitarian grounds to the authorities on both sides to come to an agreement for the exchange of all such hostages, and more especially for the release and removal into some place of safety of any women. To this end His Majesty's Government would be ready to give their own good offices in any way which would be acceptable to both parties and they would gladly offer the services of the British Navy in any cases where transport by sea might be required. You should make an immediate communication in the above sense to the Spanish Government and inform them that His Majesty's Government trust that they will give this suggestion all possible consideration and let you have an early reply. You should keep the naval authorities in touch with developments and arrange the details of any evacuation with them direct."

A similar message has been sent to His Majesty's Ambassador at Hendaye for communication to the authorities on the other side. In this telegram acknowledgment is made of the admirable work already done by Doctor Junod of the International Red Cross in connection with the exchange of hostages.

FACTORIES FOR THE PRODUCTIONOF ADDITIONAL AERO-ENGINES

Arrangements have been completed by the Air Ministry for the erection of six Government owned factories for the production of additional aero-engines for the Royal Air Force and the erection of factories has begun.

The firms which have undertaken the erection and management of the factories for the Air Ministry are the Austin Motor Company, the Bristol aeroplane Company, the Daimler Company, Rottes' Rover Company, and the Standard Motor Company.

DISTURBANCES IN THE EAST END

In connection with the recent disturbances in the East End of London arising out of the Fascist demonstrations, the Home Secretary, accompanied by the Minister of Health and the Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Home Department, yesterday received a deputation which urged on the Government the gravity of the situation and the risk of its becoming worse unless immediate steps were taken to apply remedial measures.

The Official statement says "The Home Secretary thanked the deputation for coming to see him and took the opportunity of obtaining a fuller explanation of the proposals which the deputation desired to make. The deputation could be assured that the Government were giving immediate and careful consideration to the difficult problems involved but he was not, of course, in a position to anticipate the announcement of the Government's intentions."

The newspapers anticipate that the whole question raised by the recent events in the east end of London and affecting the rights of assembly and free speech and the use of uniforms by party political organisations will be reviewed by the Cabinet before Parliament re-assembles.

NEW YORK PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONCostliest Ever

It is reported from New York that it is estimated that the coming Presidential election will be the costliest on record - probably reaching 25,000,000 dollars - and the Republicans are already dismayed by the rapid depletion of funds.

Both parties are making an unusually strong bid for a negro vote while the straw votes indicate an increasing democratic swing from the traditional republicanism in the coloured districts.

RIOTING CONTINUES IN BOMBAY

The police were compelled to open fire for the first time to quell the disorder. Over 100 arrests were made and 60 rioters were sentenced to a flogging.

TO EXAMINE INDIAN STATE-OWNEDRAILWAYS

Sir Ralph Wedgwood, the General Manager of the London North-Eastern railway, is going to India with Mr. W.A. Stanies, the Chief Mechanical engineer of the London Midland and Scottish line, as two of the members of the Committee appointed by the Government of India to examine the position of the Indian state-owned railways with a view to suggesting measures for placing their finances on a sound and remunerative basis.

In his recent report on Indian finances, after the receipt of which the decision was taken to proceed with the early introduction of provincial autonomy, Sir Otto Niemayer recommended a thorough-going overhaul of the railway expenditure as a vital element in the whole provincial problem.

CABINET MEETING TO CONSIDERSERIOUS SITUATION

Following yesterday's meeting of the Cabinet the Prime Minister has sent a reply to the letter addressed to him on Monday by the Leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, asking that in view of the increasing gravity of the situation arising from alleged infractions of the Agreement for non-intervention in Spain, Parliament should be summoned immediately.

Mr. Baldwin informed Major Attlee that he has consulted his colleagues about this request and continues: "The Government's main concern has been to see that the events in Spain do not involve hostilities over a wider area. With that object in view they supported the initiative of the French Government in setting up an International Committee. That Committee is even now, as you mentioned in your letter, engaged in the work of investigating certain allegations which have been made. The Government are determined not only to carry out loyally their own undertaking but also to promote in every way possible the execution of the terms of agreement. I do not see that the work of the Committee will be materially assisted or that the main object that the Government has in view, namely the limitation of the conflict to Spain, will be vitally affected by the summoning of Parliament at the most four or five days earlier than October the 29th. At the same time I appreciate your desire to have an early discussion and I would be prepared to arrange a debate on the situation in Spain which could take place on the day on which Parliament reassembles, namely October 29th."

NEW CENTRAL SCHOOL OPENED

The President of the Board of Education in his speech at the opening yesterday of a new Central School for 1,000 children designed on modern lines and occupying over sixteen acres, referred to the Government's new campaign for physical fitness. He said that the Board of Education was determined to give every possible assistance and encouragement to the campaign and instanced the spacious grounds and playing fields and excellent gymnasium equipment of the new school as an evidence of what had been and was being done already.

The foundation of any scheme for physical education in Great Britain must be the school. The test of its success would be how far the children after leaving school wanted to continue recreative physical exercise, for the British tradition was one of voluntary action and it would be no use their imitating the example of countries with the ideology of state control.

ITALIAN AND GERMAN MINISTERS HOLD CONVERSE

It is reported from Berlin that the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Ciano, had two hours' conversation with the German Foreign Minister, Von Neurath, on Wednesday which is regarded as having been concerned with a general review of all the outstanding questions, but according to the Daily Telegraph correspondent the importance of the visit is exaggerated. It is understood that all the subjects under discussion have already been thrashed out in diplomatic exchanges and the visit is in the nature of a demonstration to put up a spectre of a German-Italo alliance to frighten Anglo-French opinion, while it is realised that there are too many differences for any relations between the countries other than those of convenience.

EXPLANATIONS FROM PORTUGAL

It is understood that a Note from the Portuguese Government containing their explanations in respect of the allegations of breaches of the Agreement regarding non-intervention in Spain forwarded to them under the rules of procedure of the International Committee, is on its way to the Chairman of the Committee, Lord Plymouth.

Whether it will be received in time for the meeting of the Committee summoned for to-day is not known.

Similar complaints were communicated at the same time to the German and Italian Governments and the German observations have been in the possession of the Chairman since Wednesday, but so far no reply has been received from the Italian Government.

There has been no change in the desire of the British Government to see the Agreement for non-intervention maintained, and the International Committee for the application of the Agreement is working smoothly.

It is appreciated in British circles that if the Committee is to retain the confidence of public opinion it must discharge its task with unmistakable efficiency, determination, and dispassionateness. It would militate against the success of the Committee if the members imported into its proceedings considerations of "amour propre" quite inappropriate to its function as a fact-finding body.

There is no reason at all why invidious implications should attach to the investigations which the Committee is bound to undertake under the rules of procedure which it has itself adopted. The attitude of the British Government in this matter is that if any member of the Committee has complaints to bring forward of infractions on its part of the Agreement it will not think to take offence at the operation of the Committee's procedure, and will readily co-operate according to the rules adopted "to establish the facts."

In his speech in London last night the Minister of Health referred to the generous gift by Lord Nuffield of £1,250,000 to Oxford University for the development of the University Medical School and the Nuffield Institute for Medical Research.

Sir Kingsley Wood said that it was impossible to over-estimate all that it would mean, not only to research, but to many improvements in the health of the nation.

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE MEETING

As reported on Page 4, a Meeting of the International Committee for non-intervention in Spain was held yesterday and during the proceedings messages from Moscow gave publicity to the Note addressed by the Russian Ambassador to the Chairman of the Committee in which the Russian Government renewed its charges against the other countries participating in the Agreement and reserved its future position if the alleged infractions continued. It was also known that the Chairman had received an Italian Note with complaints regarding alleged breaches of the Agreement by Russia.

After the Meeting the following Communique was issued:- "Representatives were present of all the countries who are members of the Committee. At the opening of the Meeting the Chairman reminded the Committee that the chief concern of the United Kingdom Government in consenting to the establishment in London of the Committee had been to prevent the Civil War from spreading beyond the Spanish frontiers and to secure a measure of co-operation amongst the powers in what threatened to become a most dangerous International situation. He appealed to the Committee to fulfil its difficult task by examining all the information submitted to it in an impartial spirit. The United Kingdom Government had given careful study to the information in their possession in order to see to what extent it provided evidence that serious infringements of the Agreement were taking place, and as a result they had submitted particulars regarding certain incidents to the Governments concerned, on which they hoped those Governments would furnish the Committee with information. The Chairman then read a letter from the representative of the U.S.S.R. stating that "as a result of the violations of the Agreement a privileged situation for the rebels has been created, which situation was in no case within the purpose of the Agreement" and that not wishing to remain in the position of persons unwittingly assisting an unjust cause, the Government of the Soviet Union saw only one way out of the situation created - to return to the Spanish Government the right and facilities to purchase arms outside of Spain, which right and facilities were enjoyed at present by the Governments of the world, and to extend to the participants of the Agreement the right to sell or not to sell arms to Spain. In any case, the letter continued, "the Soviet Government is compelled to declare

NEAR THE FALKLANDS IN 1891

An extract taken from the report of the French Scientist M. de Farville in the Journal des Debats 1914.

"In February 1891 the whaling ship "Star of the East" was in the vicinity of the Falkland Islands when the lookout sighted a large sperm whale three miles away. Two boats were lowered and in a short time one of the harpooners was enabled to spear the whale.

The second boat attacked the whale but was upset by a lash of its tail, and the men were thrown into the sea, one man being drowned and another, James Bartley, having disappeared could not be found.

The whale was killed in a few hours, its great body lying on the ship's side, while the crew busied itself with axes and spades removing the blubber.

They worked all day and part of the night. The next morning they attached some tackle to the stomach of the whale and hoisted it on deck.

Suddenly the sailors were startled by something in it which gave spasmodic signs of life. Inside was found the missing sailor doubled up and unconscious. He was placed on deck and treated to a bath of salt water which soon revived him but his mind was not clear and he was placed in the Captain's quarters where he remained for two weeks a raving lunatic. He was kindly and carefully treated by the Captain and the ship's officers and gradually regained possession of his senses. At the end of the third week he entirely recovered from the shock and resumed his duties.

During his sojourn in the whale's stomach, Bartley's skin, where it was exposed to the action of the gastric juices, underwent a striking change. His face, neck, and hands, were bleached to a deadly whiteness, taking on the appearance of parchment.

Bartley remembered the lash of the whale's tail and "then was encompassed by great darkness" and he felt that he was slipping along a smooth passage that seemed to move and carry him forward. His hands came in contact with a yielding, slimy substance, which seemed to shrink from his touch.

He could easily breathe but the heat was terrible. It seemed to open his pores and draw out the vitality. The next he remembered he was in the Captain's cabin. While he recovered fully from his mental depression his skin retained its ghastly pallor to the end and never recovered its natural appearance."

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE MEETING

that it cannot consider itself bound by the Agreement for non-intervention to any greater extent than any of the remaining participants of the Agreement". The Portuguese representative repudiated with the utmost emphasis the allegations made against his country in the letter received from the U.S.S.R. representative and stated that these were entirely baseless as would be seen when the reply of his Government was received. It was agreed that the letter from the U.S.S.R. representative should be referred to the Chairman's Sub-Committee when the U.S.S.R. representative should be asked to elucidate certain aspects of his statement. The Committee had before them the reply of the German Government to the questions raised in the document relating to certain alleged breaches of Agreement submitted to the Committee by a representative of the United Kingdom Government by whom they had been received from the Spanish Government. In the course of the ensuing discussion the Chairman expressed the view that the German reply dealt satisfactorily with the complaints raised, with the exception of two points, in regard to which he asked that the German Government should give further elucidation. The German representative referred to the German Government reply according to which all the points raised had been covered. He added however that he was prepared to obtain the additional information asked for. The U.S.S.R. representative referred to the proposal in his letter of the 12th of October that there should be established an Anglo-French control of Portuguese ports. On the proposal of the Chairman the Committee agreed that such a proposal could not be considered until the Portuguese Government's reply had been received. The Portuguese representative declared that he could not consent to a discussion on this subject. On the proposal of the Chairman, supported by the French Ambassador, the Committee then agreed to invite the Chairman's sub-Committee to meet on the following morning to review the general working of the Committee and to consider whether, and if so in what respects, the non-Intervention Agreement could be made more effective. The Committee agreed, in view

TRADE EXHIBITION IN LONDON

In opening the Trade Exhibition in London yesterday Sir Harry McGowan, the Chairman of the Imperial Chemical Industries, said, "much can be accomplished by the Governments in easing the way of trade across the world's frontiers. High tariffs, quotas, and exchange restrictions have operated for years against the recovery of International Trade, but within the last few weeks currents have been set moving in the financial and economic life of the world which may well mark the beginning of a new era as well as new hope in Europe and the rest of the world. The solid front of America, France, and Great Britain, in successfully negotiating exchange arrangements is one of the most constructive moves made since the war. The promise for the future consequent on this arrangement is profoundly significant. With the fetters of quotas, tariff, and exchange controls removed, we shall see a new impetus given to the freer exchange of goods Internationally. A busy world is a peaceful world."

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE MEETS

Greatest Interest Aroused

The greatest interest has been aroused by the meeting of the International Committee for the application of the Agreement regarding non-intervention in Spain, which met at four o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Foreign Office.

The replies of the three Governments concerned to complaints of breaches of the Agreement brought forward at the meeting on October the 9th, had reached the Chairman, Lord Plymouth, before the beginning of yesterday's session as well as a Note from the Italian Government preferring further charges.

After sitting for over three hours the Committee adjourned for a short time and subsequently resumed to discuss the Communique which was to be announced later.

MADRID NOW ISOLATEDLast Railway Connection Severed

It is reported from Madrid that the capital is now virtually isolated with the severance of the last railway connection by the insurgents at Aranjuez.

Following the air-raids on Sunday the women are demanding that Madrid should surrender but the Government forces are still strongly entrenched in the mountainous Escorial sector where the Insurgents have been repulsed.

At Oviedo the situation is obscure with both sides making opposing claims.

In the south the insurgents have advanced between Cordoba and Malaga, capturing Castrolerrio and inflicting heavy losses.

UNIFICATION OF MINING ROYALTIES

It is reported from London that it is understood that a Bill for the unification of mining royalties will be among the measures foreshadowed by the King's speech when Parliament reopens.

The decision to proceed with legislation was only recently reached after many months' consideration but the Government hasn't accepted the suggestion of the Mine Owners' Committee of £150,000,000 as the purchase price of the royalties, and a relative figure will be a feature of Parliamentary controversy.

SIXTY KILLED IN TRAIN SMASH

It is reported from Shanghai that runaway coaches of the Canton-Hankow railway on Friday collided with a troop train at South Hunan and sixty people were killed and 53 soldiers were injured.

FALKLAND ISLANDER SHOT

IN MADRID

News has been received that a Falkland Islander was in Madrid during the revolution and was rather badly injured.

She is Dorothy, the daughter of Mr. J.G. Cameron late of San Carlos, and is now Mrs. Alex Borger.

She was standing on the balcony of her house when she and her husband were both wounded, luckily they have been able to leave Spain; but they have lost all their belongings.

BRIDE FROM THE FALKLAND ISLANDS

The following is an extract from the Middlesex County Times and we feel sure that it will be of great interest to our readers.

"The wedding took place on Monday at the Church of St. Anthony of Padua, Anerly, S.E., of Mr. Charles Kelly, fifth son of Mr. Robert J. Kelly, of Strelleyway, East Acton, the noted black and white artist, to Doris Mary, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.G. Creece, formerly of Acton and Port Stanley, Falkland Islands.

The ceremony was carried out with the full ritual of the Roman Catholic Church. After the ceremony, which was performed by the Revd. Bernard Wall, D.D., a nuptial mass was celebrated, the newly-wedded couple being privileged to occupy prie-deux within the elevated sanctuary. Following the mass, the couple were further privileged to remain for benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. E.G. Creece held a reception at Cintra Park, Upper Norwood, where a large circle of relatives and friends gathered.

The bride's parents, who formerly lived in Acton, were in the Falkland Islands for twenty years, where the bride was born."

SPANISH AMBASSADOR DISCUSSES THEBRITISH APPEAL WITH MR. EDEN

The Spanish Ambassador, Senor Azcarate, paid a visit to the Foreign Office in London yesterday, when it is understood that Mr. Eden discussed with him the British appeal to both of the parties engaged in the Civil War in Spain for the exchange of prisoners held as hostages, and the reply of the Madrid Government maintaining that the release of the prisoners held in captivity would amount in effect to helping the insurgents.

The Foreign Secretary is believed to have pressed Senor Azcarate strongly on the matter and to have urged that the Madrid Government should take some measures calculated to reassure the anxieties aroused outside Spain regarding the safety of the large number of prisoners in Madrid. The numbers are unofficially estimated at 14,000. In the meantime no reply to the British appeal has yet been received from the authorities of the anti-Government forces, but it is understood that the representations have met with goodwill.

HANKOW General Yang Yuntai, the Governor of Hupeh, was fatally shot on Sunday. The assassin has been arrested.

FIERCE GALE CAUSES HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY

Reports from all parts of the British Isles indicate how widespread and serious have been the effects of Monday night's gale which had only slightly abated yesterday morning.

A trail of havoc was left on the Mersey-side where the gusts reached a velocity of 92 miles an hour. A family at Bootle had an alarming experience early yesterday when the wind stripped a large section of the outer wall from their house and sent it flying down the street. Three-lives have been lost in the west of Scotland and the

MAIL REACHES ENGLAND .

The mail which left Stanley on September the 26th arrived in England on October 23rd.

24,932 VISITORS IN ONE MONTH

The important part taken by the tourist traffic in the revival of the international economic exchange lends interest to the figures of the numbers of overseas visitors to Great Britain in September which totalled 24,932, of whom 5,845 came from the United States, 5,512 from France and 3,732 from Germany.

ALTERATIONS TO TAKE PLACEIN LONDON

Not even London, that stronghold of historic tradition, can withstand the assault of modern traffic requirements. The Ministry of Transport has just approved of a grant to the Corporation of the City for the widening of part of Gresham Street, a narrow thoroughfare connecting St. Martin's Le Grand with Moorgate.

A RESULT OF MARCH OF THE UNEMPLOYED

In connection with the march of 200 unemployed men from Jarrow, a distressed Tyneside district, to present a petition to the House of Commons, which has the support of the three chief political parties in the area, a truce has been arranged there for the municipal elections, which take place all over the country on November the 2nd.

Only retiring councillors have been nominated at Jarrow by the Agreement between the three parties and as a demonstration of the united community behind the appeal for special measures in view of the failure of the returning prosperity to reach this derelict town.

MASS FOR SOULS OF THOSE KILLED

It is reported from Rome that the Pope has ordered a world-wide Mass to be held on November the 2nd for the souls of those killed in Spain.

FIERCE GALE - DAMAGE DONE

injured are variously reported from a few dozen to nearly a hundred. A motor cyclist was killed by a falling tree in Kent.

From Lowestoft it is reported that the herring boats which sailed yesterday morning have been driven back to port.

The gale has caused considerable interruption to the telephone and telegraph services. Scotland appears to have suffered most - all routes in the western highlands north of Glasgow being interrupted. In the whole of Scotland six trunk lines and junctions and 655 lines are interrupted and 10,350 subscribers' lines are out of action, while 208 exchanges are completely isolated. Seventeen telegraph lines are also affected. In England 267 trunk lines and junctions and 3,075 subscribers' lines are interrupted and twenty exchanges isolated.

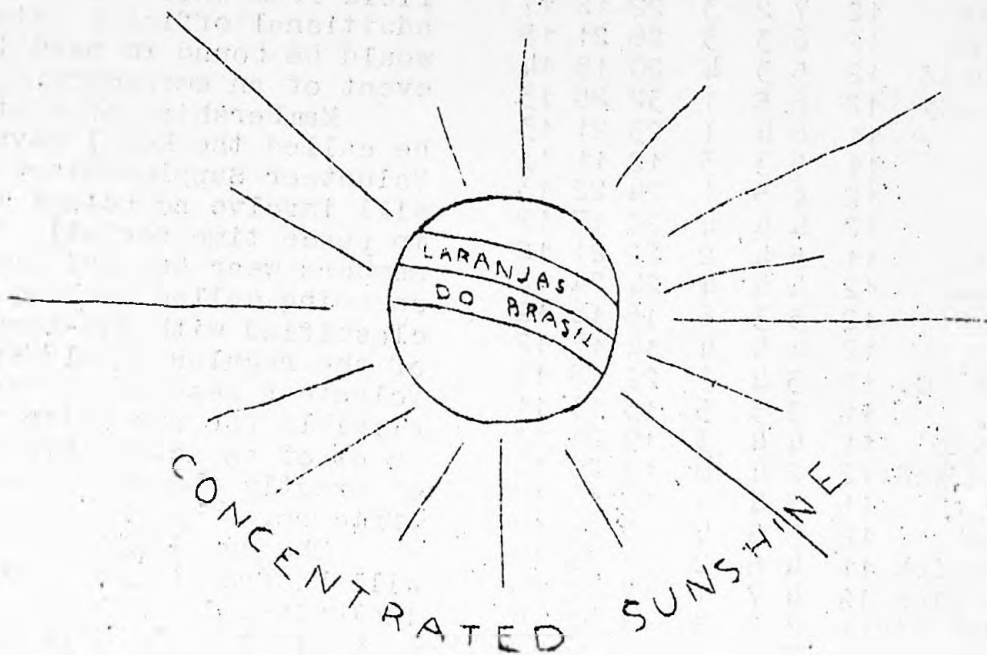

It is reported from Berlin that the crew of the Lightship "Elbe", numbering 15, have been drowned as a result of the gale which completely overturned the ship. The Graf zeppelin left Friedrichshaven to pick up passengers at Frankfurt for South America but was compelled to return.

INSURGENTS ADVANCE FOUR MILES

It is reported from Lisbon that the Insurgent cavalry have occupied La Calzada sixteen miles south of Madrid, thus marking a four mile advance by General Varela.

The Hendaye correspondents of the French press report that Guadalajara has also fallen to the Insurgents, thus bringing the north-east front within 35 miles of the capital. Meanwhile, 20 miles west of Madrid, the Government forces are making a strong bid for the recapture of Naval Carnero without success, but General Franco's advance has been held up at Escorial where the fighting continues, while further air-raids are being carried out over the capital.

NAVY LEAGUE DINNER IN LONDONFIRST LORD'S SPEECH

In his speech at the Navy League dinner in London last night the First Lord of the Admiralty announced that the King had decided that the two new battleships which were now being laid down should bear the names of King George Vth and the Prince of Wales.

In naming one of the ships after the recently deceased sovereign, His Majesty was creating a new precedent, but Sir Samuel Hoare said that he believed that the decision regarding both names would give great satisfaction to the navy and indeed to the whole country and Empire.

Immense trouble had been taken with the designs for the new battleships in order that they should fully embody the lessons of experiment, the developments of science, and the experience of war.

The First Lord also announced the formation of a new naval reserve in which yachtsmen who wish to be ear-marked for training as executive officers in the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve in the event of war would be enrolled.

Sir Samuel Hoare said that it was hoped that this scheme would make a wide appeal to any whom it was impossible to include in the present Volunteer Reserve and that it would give the Royal Navy a new and valuable field from which to draw those additional officers which it would be bound to need in the event of an emergency.

Membership of what will be called the Royal Naval Volunteer Supplementary Reserve will involve no actual training in peace time nor will the members wear any uniform, but on being called up they will be classified with Sub-Lieutenants of the regular Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve and will be eligible for promotion and the grant of an acting higher rank in exactly the same way as these officers.

The age limit for entry will be from 18 to 39 years inclusive.

Sir Samuel Hoare declared that the construction programme, spread to a large extent over the depressed areas, was proceeding satisfactorily.

Referring to his recent series of visits to the Fleets' chief Naval Commands and the Dockyards, he said that the chief impressions left on his mind were, firstly, the humanity, and secondly the efficiency, of the Royal Navy. As to the first he related incidents from the Navy's work in the evacuation of the refugees from Spain. "As to the Navy's efficiency I can tell you that the long drawn out crisis of last autumn provided opportunities for intensive training and they have in many directions raised its already high standard of efficiency. Mr. Winston Churchill was fully justified when in his fine speech the other day in Paris he declared to the world that the British Navy had never been more efficient."

Miss J. Redmond & Mr. W. McMillan

Despite the unpromising weather yesterday morning the weather clerk was kind and the weather in the afternoon was warm and calm when Miss Julia Ann Redmond and Mr. William McMillan were married.

The wedding was solemnised at St. Mary's Church by the Reverend Father Drumm at 2 p.m.

Miss Redmond is the eldest daughter of Mr. W. Redmond and the late Mrs. Redmond of Goose Green, and Mr. McMillan is the second son of Mr. H. McMillan who used to live at Goose Green, and the late Mrs. McMillan.

The bride was charmingly attired in a beautiful gown of ivory satin and wore a veil and orange blossom. Her bouquet was of fine mixed flowers.

Her sister, Miss Margaret Redmond, acted as bridesmaid and presented a pretty picture in her lovely blue taffetas ankle-length dress.

Mr. W. Redmond, the bride's Father, gave her away, and the Best Man was Mr. D. McMillan the brother of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Mr. and Mrs. T. Smith's house and a large number of relatives and friends assembled to drink the health of the happy couple.

Mr. and Mrs. W. McMillan will make their home at Goose Green.

We should like to join their many friends in wishing them every happiness in the future.

75TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE POSTOFFICE SAVINGS BANK

The Duke of Kent was present at a luncheon at the Guildhall on Tuesday in honour of the 75th anniversary of the Post Office Savings Bank and was handed a silver replica of the "Home Safe" available to depositors, by the Postmaster-General for the use of young Prince Edward.

Major Tryon said that the progress of the bank in the last few years had been phenomenal. The savings in the bank had reached the gigantic total of £600,000,000. There were 17,000 Post Offices up and down the country at which Savings Bank business was transacted, though the records of each individual account were centralised at the Headquarters in West Kensington, with a staff of 3,500, which had been the foremost in the adoption of clerical labour-saving devices including a ledger machine by means of which an average of 130,000 entries were made daily. The depositors number 10,390,000.

REDUCTION OF ALIMONY REFUSED

It is reported from New York that the Supreme Court has refused Count Covadonga's request that it should reduce the alimony of 250 dollars a month which it previously ordered should be paid to his Cuban wife. Count Covadonga pleaded that his income had been depreciated by the devaluation in France and by the heavy medical expenses of his recent illness. He left hospital on Tuesday after a long treatment for haemophilia and will shortly go to England to live with his mother, the ex-Queen of Spain.

MODERNISATION OF FRENCH AIR FORCE

It is reported from Paris that the Air Minister, M. Cot, has placed a programme before the Cabinet for speeding up the modernisation of the Air Force at a cost of 5,000,000,000 francs and this has been adopted. This sum is supplementary to the previous estimates and is spread over an indefinite period.

ENQUIRIES INTO SERIOUS INCIDENTIN JAPANESE WATERS

Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Little, the Commander-in-Chief of the China Station, has postponed the arrangements made for his visit to Japanese waters.

On October the 7th an incident occurred at Keelung in Formosa in which three British naval ratings were subjected to ill-treatment by the Japanese police. The facts of the incident were as follows. A dispute occurred regarding the payment of a taxi-cab fare, although there is good evidence to show that the fare had in fact been paid. As a result of the altercation three British sailors were taken to the police station. While under detention they were injured, one of them having his jaw fractured. The British naval officer who intervened on their behalf was insulted by the Japanese police. The British Government are in communication with the Japanese Government on the subject of the reparations to be made for this incident. Meanwhile it has been impossible for the Commander-in-Chief of the China Station to proceed on his official visit to Japanese ports.

VITRIOLIC ATTACK ON ROOSEVELT

It is reported from Pittsburg that Mr. Landon made a most vitriolic attack on Mr. Roosevelt on Tuesday and produced figures showing that the non-civil-service jobs under the President had increased three-fold to 325,000 which was "the most open, crude and brutal use of a spoils system that the country had ever seen." The need of the Federal Government was a good spring-cleaning, added Mr. Landon.

Manchester Wage negotiations ended in a deadlock on Tuesday and the Spinners' Union is taking a strike ballot among 120,000 members, the outcome of which involves 150,000 weavers and threatens a stoppage of the entire industry.

SUDDENGERMANS WATCH THE "CHANGING OF THE GUARD" IN LONDON

The Duke of Saxe Coburg Gotha and a party of German ex-service men who are at present in England watched the Changing of the Guard from the forecourt at Buckingham Palace yesterday morning.

After the ceremony the Duke of Saxe Coburg Gotha was received in an audience by the King.

Yesterday afternoon the Duke of Connaught, who is shortly going to Bath for the winter, called at the Palace and spent some time with His Majesty. Among the other visitors received later by the King was Mr. W.J. Jordan on his appointment as High Commissioner in London for New Zealand.

DEATH OF SIR EDGAR BRITTEN

Commander of the Liner "Queen Mary"

The Commander of the Cunard White Star Liner "Queen Mary", Sir Edgar Britten, was taken suddenly ill yesterday morning two hours before the liner was due to sail from Southampton for New York. He was carried ashore and died in a nursing home early yesterday afternoon.

Sir Edgar Britten, who has been in the service of the Cunard Company for thirty-four years, was 62 years of age. He had commanded most of the Company's principal ships including the "Mauretania", "Aquitania" and "Berengaria". The crowning moment of his career was his appointment on November the 25th last.

NON-INTERVENTION AGREEMENTIMPORTANT COMMITTEE MEETING

The Chairman's Sub-Committee of the International Committee for the application of the Agreement regarding non-intervention in Spain met at the Foreign Office yesterday morning and the full Committee met yesterday afternoon at three o'clock and was still in session after a short adjournment at 8 p.m. It was understood that the Committee would have before it the communication from the Russian Government regarding the Russian Note which was discussed at last Friday's meeting of the Committee.

At 11.30 p.m. last night the Communique had not been issued and it was reported that it would be issued this morning.

The result of the race for the Cambridgeshire stakes at Newmarket yesterday was Sir Abe Bailey's "Dan Bulger" 1st at 7/1; Sir George Bullough's "Daytona" second at 33/1 and Mr. Benson's "Laureat II" third at 100/6.

MOLLISON FLYING ACROSS ATLANTIC

The airman, J.A. Mollison, is making a flight across the Atlantic. He left Floyd Bennett Airfield, New York, at 1.44 p.m. G.M.T. on a Bellanca monoplane for Harbour Grace, Newfoundland, from which after re-fuelling he will make for England.

BRITAIN'S DEFENCE PROGRAMME

Lord Nuffield called on the Prime Minister at No. 10 Downing Street yesterday afternoon.

Parliament re-assembles today and in both Houses a statement will be made on the Air Ministry's plans for the production of aero-engines in connexion with the Government's defence programme in the light of the disagreement between the Ministry and Lord Nuffield revealed in the statement published by him on October the 22nd.

It is expected that the statement will indicate that the misunderstandings which had arisen have been cleared away in the last few days.

In the meantime for the convenience of Members of Parliament a White Paper is being issued to-day on the policy of His Majesty's Government in relation to the production of aero-engines.

The White Paper explains the factors which have governed the Air Ministry's policy in the past and modifications necessitated first by the expansion of the Air Force provided for in the supplementary estimate presented to Parliament in July 1935, and secondly by the acceleration and extension of the programme announced last March.

The matter in dispute between Lord Nuffield and the Air Ministry and the one which has caused the chief public interest, was the doubt expressed by the former as to the wisdom and practicability of the form given to the so-called "scheme for a shadow aero-engine industry."

The White Paper shows that the Air Ministry adopted the plan, by which the factors to be established under the management of seven companies co-operating would produce different groups of parts, and the assembly and test would be undertaken in two factories, only after consultation with, and upon the advice of, the Committee of representatives of seven firms and the Bristol Aeroplane Company.

Later, when Lord Nuffield's criticisms became known to Lord Swinton, the Secretary for Air, and Lord Weir who was advising him, the matter was again submitted to the Committee and its Chairman, Sir Herbert, now Lord, Austin, assured Lord Swinton that after most careful consideration the Committee was of the opinion that the only safe and practical and most efficient plan was for each firm to manufacture one section of engine parts only. Subsequent to the publication of Lord Nuffield's statement the Air engine Committee met again and an appendix to the White Paper gives the letter from Lord Austin to the Secretary for Air dated October 26th, which informs him "all the firms were represented and they unanimously wished me to tell you that they believe in the shadow scheme and they are confident that it can be made a success, and they are going to see it through. The buildings for the various factories are rapidly taking shape and upon enquiry I could find no hold-up or stoppage in the work connected with the purchase of machinery, tools and fixtures."

RESTORATION OF FULL COMMERCIALRIGHTS TO SPAIN

A statement was issued last night following a joint meeting of the General Council of the Trade Union Congress and Executives of the Labour and Parliamentary Labour Parties called "in view of the fact that the non-intervention Agreement has proved ineffective in its operation" for the restoration "to democratic Spain of full commercial rights including the purchase of munitions" to enable the Spanish people to bring their heroic struggle for liberty and democracy to a victorious conclusion.

The Conference decided to call upon the British Government in collaboration with the French Government immediately to take steps to restore to Spain full commercial rights including the purchase of munitions.

GERMANY WANTS RAW MATERIALRESOURCES

"We want to share the world's raw material sources and shall get them" declared Goering in his speech yesterday. He referred scathingly to the suggestion that Germany should buy raw materials "we would if they had not stolen our gold by reparations." He asserted that Germany's population was of the same denseness as England's but that England had the whole world as a colony and if Germany had a small portion of such colonies there would be no shortage of food or raw materials, in the meantime Goering fervently appealed to Germans to tighten their belts and work harder.

UNSATISFACTORY SITUATION

Following the meeting of the Committee for the application of the Agreement for non-intervention in Spain held for several hours on Wednesday an exhaustive Communique reviewing the work of the meeting was issued early yesterday morning.

It reported that the Committee had examined in the light of the Italian Government's reply each of the specific charges regarding alleged breaches of the Agreement by Italy which were submitted to the Committee by the United Kingdom Government who had received them from the Spanish Government. The Italian representative stated that his Government rejected most emphatically all allegations made against it. At the conclusion of the examination the Chairman said that he was of the opinion that either because of lack of evidence or because the incidents alleged were said to have occurred prior to the adherence by Italy to the Agreement or because the incidents alleged were shown not to have taken place, the Committee had received no proof of breaches of the Agreement by the Italian Government.

The complaints regarding alleged breaches by Portugal, which were placed before the Committee under similar conditions, were examined next. The Committee on each occasion, with the exception of the U.S.S.R. representative who expressed the opinion that both the Italian and the Portuguese replies were unsatisfactory, adopted the view expressed by the Chairman.

The complaint submitted by the Soviet representative concerning alleged breaches by Portugal, and the Portuguese reply thereto, were then considered. The U.S.S.R. representative declared that the answers were unsatisfactory and the second part of the Portuguese reply enumerating charges against Soviet Russia was pure invention. Russia had no dreams of European domination nor did they wish to turn Spain into a Communist Republic. In conclusion of the examination the Committee, with the exception of the U.S.S.R. representative, agreed, for reasons similar to those mentioned in the earlier cases that the Committee had received no proof of breaches of the Agreement by the Portuguese Government.

The next meeting of the Chairman's sub-Committee will be held on November 2nd and the next plenary meeting of the main Committee on November 4th at 11.15 o'clock.

The early part of Wednesday's session of the non-Intervention Committee was occupied with a further consideration of the attitude of the U.S.S.R. in view of the ambiguity of a sentence in the earlier communication upon which a request for elucidation had been addressed to Russia. The new Soviet statement was read to the Committee. It repeats that until a guarantee against the further supply of war materials to the rebel generals is created and an effective control over the strict fulfilment of the Agreement is established "those Governments who consider supplying the legitimate Spanish Government as conforming to International law, and International order, and International justice, are morally bound not to consider themselves more bound by the Agreement than those Governments who supply the rebels in contravention of the Agreement."

The Portuguese representative said that he could not accept a discussion on the proposal for the supervision of Portuguese ports and the Italian representative declared that the ambiguous attitude of the U.S.S.R. had not been cleared up. The German representative said that it would be necessary to refer the U.S.S.R. statement to his Government but he did not consider that the ambiguity had been removed. Lord Plymouth said that the object of the United Kingdom Government had throughout been to prevent the situation in Spain from becoming the cause of International complications of the utmost gravity. The situation had been complicated by the letter which had been received from the U.S.S.R. representative on the 23rd of October.

After listening to a further declaration made by the Soviet representative he still felt that the attitude of the U.S.S.R. was not clear. Did the U.S.S.R. still regard themselves as bound by the Agreement, or if they were satisfied that munitions were still being supplied to the insurgents in Spain, did they propose to regard themselves as freed from their obligations? He appealed to the Committee to co-operate in overcoming the present difficulties and thus to secure the continuance of the Agreement.

The Italian representative, subject to reserves which he had already indicated and any others which might later be communicated to the Committee, responded to the Chairman's appeal by agreeing to proceed to the discussion of other items on the Agenda.

Lord Plymouth stated during the course of the proceedings of the non-intervention Committee that he had put forward proposals for the establishment, subject to the concurrence of the two parties in Spain, of an impartial body of persons stationed on Spanish soil at the principal points of entry by sea and land for the purpose of reporting, when called upon to do so by the Committee, on any specific case of an alleged breach of the Agreement. The representatives of the various powers are consulting their Governments in reference to this proposal, upon which they will report in next Monday's sub-Committee Meeting.

PARLIAMENT REASSEMBLES

Parliament reassembled yesterday after the summer recess. The public and private galleries were crowded, and in view of the debate on Spain, the Ambassadors and Ministers representing foreign countries were present in large numbers.

The House presented a very animated scene. At the close of question time a tribute was paid by the Prime Minister and leaders of the Opposition parties to the late Sir Godfrey Collins.

MADRID BOMBED YESTERDAY

It is reported from Madrid that General Varela's column is now only eight miles from Getafe and thirteen miles from Madrid. The Government and insurgent forces engaged in an air battle over the front line yesterday, and Madrid was again bombed. The Insurgent Headquarters have moved forward from Valladolid to Naval Carnero. Madrid claims the destruction of 19 insurgent planes yesterday.

SOUTH GEORGIA NEWS

The floating factory "Jan Wellen" and six catchers arrived at South Georgia yesterday. She is 12,000 tons and belongs to the first German Whaling Co. There are fifteen Norwegians on board and the rest of the crew are Germans.

The factory leaves for the ice to-morrow.

New York. There is general sorrow over the death of Sir Edgar Britten in the United States. He was an extremely popular figure ashore and had already acquired the status of an unofficial Ambassador, states a Reuter message. The officials of the French Line in Paris, and owners of the "Queen Mary's" rival the "Normandie", have expressed their whole-hearted sympathy with the British Mercantile Marine.

STANLEY GIRL'S SUCCESS

THE CUTTER "PERSEVERANCE"

We heartily congratulate Miss Phyllis Turner on qualifying as a certificated school teacher in England. Miss Turner was head girl of the Government School in Stanley in 1930. After working in the school for some time as a pupil-teacher she went to England in 1932 and after only two years at Chelmsford High School she passed into Whitelands Training College. Miss Turner completed her training this year, and her parents, Mr and Mrs. G.I. Turner of Stanley, have just received information that she has passed her final examination. Miss Turner is now employed as a certificated assistant mistress in the school at Dunmow, Essex.

The cutter "Perseverance" returned to Stanley with a load of tussock last night and will leave for East Island as soon as there is a favourable wind.

NEW REGIME IN IRAQ NOW

It is reported from Bagdad that only the resignation of General Yasinkashimi's Cabinet yesterday prevented a march on the capital by the troops of the Iraqi army who are concentrated at Quaraghan seventy miles north-east of Bagdad for the annual manoeuvres.

Pamphlets were dropped in Bagdad by army aeroplanes, signed by General Bekrsidki, demanding the Cabinet's resignation and declaring that the Army had lost patience with the cabinet whom they accused of looking after their own interests to the exclusion of those of the public. Four warning bombs were subsequently dropped by military aeroplanes which flew over the city and one man was seriously injured while a score were taken to hospital suffering from shock and minor injuries. The resignation of the Cabinet was announced a few hours after the raid. The new Premier's Manifesto requested the population to return to their usual occupations "having had an opportunity to express feelings of joy". All the shops were shut on Thursday but the city is quiet and normal conditions are restored now.

GERMANY'S PRICE DICTATOR

It is reported from Berlin that Germany's price Dictator under General Goering, namely Josef Wagner Governor of Silesia, has been given far-reaching powers for his new post.

He is authorised to fix the prices of all the necessaries of life as well as all agricultural & industrial products and can punish the infringement of his orders with imprisonment or a fine and even close shops or factories belonging to law-breakers.

ENQUIRIES REGARDING INCIDENT INJAPANESE WATERS

Messages reaching London from Tokyo regarding the recent incident at Keelung, Formosa, which occasioned the postponement of Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Little's courtesy visit to Japanese waters, appear to show that the grounds of resentment aroused in Britain by this and similar cases are not properly appreciated. It is suggested, for example, that the naval ratings who were taken to the Japanese police station on October 7th were drunk and that other sailors landed from British ships have practised bilking or been disorderly. It happens that in the present instance a full enquiry by the Commander-in-Chief of the China Station has established that the three sailors were quite sober, but there is no objection in any responsible British quarter to a full investigation by the appropriate local authorities of the charges of this character against British sailors or other British nationals, and where guilt is proved, the imposition of legal penalties. What the British Government has had to have brought to the attention of the Japanese Government is the ill-treatment to which the three ratings were subjected by the police. There is evidence that the men were fit and well when they were taken to the police station. They emerged bruised and covered in blood and one of them had a fractured jaw. This occurrence is merely the culmination of a large number of cases in the last two years in which the Japanese police methods have been in question. Only last July vigorous protests had to be lodged in Tokyo regarding the torture of a British Indian merchant during detention at Hsinking in Manchuria from which he was subsequently released without any charge being brought against him. Instances of the brutal treatment of the Chinese employees of British firms in Manchuria by the Japanese police are constantly coming to the knowledge of the British authorities and in at least one case the victim is known to have died.

The representations which have been made to the Japanese Government regarding the Keelung incident have had for their object reparation to the three sailors for the injuries they suffered at the hands of the Japanese police.

TELEVISION SERVICE INAUGURATED

The British Broadcasting Corporation Television Service from Alexandra Palace, which has previously been in operation for short experimental periods only, was formally inaugurated yesterday when the official speeches, and the speakers, were broadcast on both the Baird and E.M.I. Marconi systems.

The Postmaster-General wished the service well and Lord Selsdon, the Chairman of the Television Advisory Committee, assured the listeners that the Television Service which was being introduced was undoubtedly ahead of the rest of the world.

The British Broadcasting Corporation, he declared, would be resolute to maintain it so. Just how wide the area served from Alexandra Palace would be, he could not predict.

"Roughly speaking it will cover greater London with a population of about 10,000,000, but there may be some surprising extensions. For instance I should be unwilling to lay heavy odds against residents in Hindhead in Surrey viewing the Coronation procession next year." In the light of the experience at Alexandra Palace the Corporation would proceed with the location of a second and subsequent transmitting stations as public interest justified.

50,000 PEOPLE HONOUR NEW GOVERNMENT

It is reported from Bagdad that 50,000 people demonstrated yesterday in honour of the new Government.

Fiery speeches lauding the new regime and decrying the past were delivered to the accompaniment of crackling fireworks and the chanting of thousands of black-robed and veiled Arab women on the flat roof tops.

The new Premier, Hikmatsulaiman, made a statement of policy and emphasised that he believed in the freedom of the press and of the people and promised to do everything possible to develop the national resources.

WOMAN MAKES REPLY IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

In the House of Commons yesterday afternoon an address in reply to the King's speech opening the new session of Parliament was moved for the first time by a woman member.

Miss Horsburgh, the Conservative member for Dundee, declared that the Legislative Programme outlined in the speech would be welcomed with satisfaction and relief. It was designed to bring greater security to the individual citizen and to stabilise economic and political life in the country.

Speaking of the intolerance which tended to undermine free political institutions, and action which was deliberately provocative and incompatible with the British ideas of free expression of opinion, she said that the vast majority of electors would welcome the assurance that a Bill was to be introduced to give power to deal more effectively with persons and organisations which promoted or caused disturbances of the public peace.

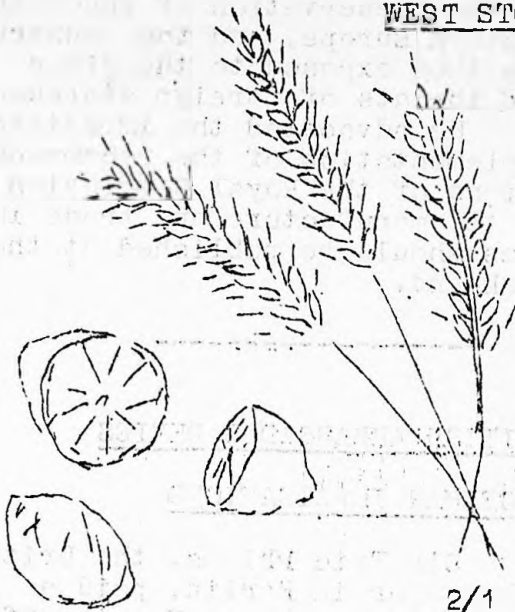

Her seconder, Mr. Harold Nicholson, the National Labour Member for Leicester, took up the reference in the speech to the need for more comprehensive efforts to improve the physical condition of the nation, and expressed confidence that the Government would not approach the problem from the angle either of the drill sergeant or the gymnasium instructor. They did not want to create a new generation of witless and muscle-bound men and women but a generation capable of observing and responding to what was going to be a period of great opportunity.

The House of Commons debate on the address, which will last for several days, was opened by Mr. C.R. Attlee who was yesterday re-elected as leader of the Labour Party in the House of Commons.

He welcomed the announcement of a Bill to remove the anomalies in the present standing of Ministers which is expected to increase the Premier's salary and to equalise those of the other Cabinet Ministers. As regards the main provisions of the speech he criticised the absence of a reference to the plight of the unemployed and the failure to indicate any approach to the major discontents at home or any initiative in dealing with world unrest.

Major Attlee was followed by the Prime Minister who was warmly received by the House on his resumption of his active political duties. He announced that Thursday would be devoted to a debate on Foreign Affairs in their widest aspect, to be opened by the Foreign Secretary, who would give a general review of the International situation. Mr. Baldwin added that he hoped that the debate on the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty might take place one day during the week after next.

On Thursday next, he said, there will be a statement on Palestine, and he expressed the hope that all parties in Palestine would co-operate with the Royal Commission which was going out and which would be perfectly free to report in any sense that its members thought fit within the terms of reference.

It was under the happiest auspices that the Imperial Conference would assemble again after five years, in the same month as the Coronation of the King. Reviewing the Legislative programme announced in the King's speech the Premier said that he hoped that the Factories Bill would be introduced before Christmas and that in the Bill they would be able to deal with all the aspects of the subject.

The existing law was out of date and spread over a large number of amending measures. The proposed Bill would be not only a consolidating measure but a measure for the revision of laws. He considered the projected Public Order Bill was urgent and he hoped to see it passed before Christmas.

The Liberal Leader, Sir Archibald Sinclair, said that he had found very great interest and profound anxiety about the International situation amongst the members of all parties and urged that a second day should be devoted to a debate on Foreign Affairs. He attributed to the weakness of the Government's policy the fact that while a year ago fifty nations were following the British lead in a united resistance to aggression, now the Government were unable to bring five nations into a conference on the preservation of peace in western Europe, and the country was thus exposed to the gibes and threats of foreign statesmen.

He advocated the immediate implementation of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on the manufacture and trade in arms should be published at the week-end.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR DENIES

The British Ambassador drew the friendly attention of the German Government to two speeches made recently by General Goering and Doctor Goebbels. Sir Eric Phipps made it clear that His Majesty's Government cannot accept the implications they seemed to contain that any hardship which may be suffered by the German population can in any way be attributed to the British policy.

POLISH FOREIGN MINISTER TO VISITENGLAND

Colonel Beck, the Polish Foreign Minister, who is visiting London next week to return Mr. Eden's visit to Warsaw in the spring of 1935, has been invited to be present at the Lord Mayor's Banquet at the Guildhall next Tuesday.

It is noted that the question of the recognition of the new Government is unlikely to arise as the resignation of the old Ministers, and the appointment of the new ones, outwardly followed the normal formalities. Looking further into the future several writers express the view that the attitude of the British public towards the new administration will be determined to a great extent by its policy towards the minority communities in Iraq.

BOMBING OUTRAGES IN MADRID

The reports reaching London from Spain describe the casualties inflicted on the civil population of Madrid by bombing from aeroplanes belonging to the anti-Government forces. These are reproduced in the newspapers and the accompanying comments show that just as the news of the indiscriminate arrests and the detention of suspects by the Government supporters has alienated much of the previous sympathy of considerable sections of public opinion with the cause of the Madrid Government, so the failure of the insurgent aircraft to confine its attacks to definite military objectives has shaken many who have been inclined to view the insurgents' aims with increasing understanding. The inevitable reaction of the bombing outrages on the safety of the prisoners in the Spanish capital - for whose fate in common with that of those in other parts of Spain His Majesty's Government has already demonstrated its concern - is not overlooked in the press comment, and the hope is expressed that the anti-Government leaders will take steps to obviate the recurrence of these events, which can only add to the ghastly record of the horrors of the Civil conflict in Spain.

The temperature ranges from 50 to 98 degrees. The average lies between 75 and 80 degrees, but this is considerably tempered by the prevailing sea breezes. The country consists chiefly of primeval forest, with savannahs and so-called "pine-ridges" which are open sandy plains covered with a wiry grass and dotted with pine trees affording fair runs for cattle. The capital of the Colony is Belize with a population of about 20,000.

COMMONS DEBATE ON THE INTERNATIONAL SITUATION

In London yesterday afternoon the Foreign Secretary opened the House of Commons debate on the International situation. There were certain guiding principles determining British foreign policy, he said, and the first and most important of these was in relation to the League of Nations. It was fashionable in some quarters to sneer at the League. The British did not join in that practice. On the contrary it was their hope and their intention to prove that those sneers were unjustifiable; but they must recognise the fundamental realities of the situation, and while it was real to believe that the League principles were the best yet devised for regulation of International affairs, it was also real to note that some nations did not at present share that view. It was real to recognise that until those nations did share that view the authority of the League could not be complete, though it could still be important, and it was their duty to make it as important as possible. Finally, it was real to make it plain to the world that Great Britain would be second to none in defence of its legitimate interests. Turning to League reform, Mr. Anthony Eden said that the British Government favoured action at the earliest possible moment in any dispute, and for any necessary modification of Article 11 to remove the need for unanimity. They had also pointed out the impracticability of a rigid maintenance of the status quo through all time as recognised in Article 19 of the League Covenant itself.

They would take their part in the Committee, set up by the League to consider these and other questions, which would meet next month. Mr. Eden then spoke of the prospects of the Five-Power Meeting. In the last week or two the British Government had been studying and collating the replies of the other four powers to an earlier British communication on the subject of the projected conference. Their preliminary exchanges had revealed important divergencies, none of which was a surprise. Though formidable they were not necessarily insuperable. He gave an assurance that the British Government would do what lay in their power to bring about the success of the negotiations. Leaving these questions Mr. Eden said that his main purpose that afternoon was to contribute something to the appeasement of International relations and he proceeded to review the relations of Great Britain with other countries. With France it would be difficult to recall the time when they were better, and they looked forward with confidence to the continued close co-operation between the French Government and themselves. The same applied to Belgium, and Mr. Eden added, regarding King Leopold's declaration, that he had received assurances that Belgium stood by her existing obligations. The desire for closer Anglo-German friendship, often expressed in Germany, was generally reciprocated in Britain. There were, however, two conditions attaching inevitably (Continued on Page 4.)

The King will attend the British Legion Festival of Remembrance at the Albert Hall on the evening of Armistice Day. The King, as Prince of Wales, has frequently attended the ceremony in the past.

ANGLO-ITALIAN TRADE AGREEMENT

It is understood that one of the principal features of the new Anglo-Italian trade agreement, which it is expected will be initialled in Rome at the end of this week, will be the provision of a satisfactory quota for British coal.

THE PALESTINE SITUATION

The Colonial Secretary was questioned on all aspects of the Palestine situation in the House of Commons on Wednesday. In the course of a dozen or more answers he made the following points.

The delegation of powers to the military commander under the recent Order in Council, which was in abeyance, could be made in the event of a renewal of the disorder. No application was made to the Arab rulers by the Mandatory for advice or assistance concerning Palestine but certain Arab rulers took spontaneous action to which the British Government raised no objection provided the appeal for the cessation of the strike was unconditional, "no undertakings or promises either explicit or implied were given by His Majesty's Government."

WIDESPREAD RESPONSE TO NATIONAL MEMORIAL FUND

The successful completion of the objects of the National Memorial Fund of the late King George Vth is assured, following the widespread response thereto.

The Lord Mayor announced on Wednesday that the final arrangements have been made for erecting a statue of the King on the site facing the Houses of Parliament to be provided by the acquisition and demolition of the houses surrounding the Jewel House opposite Victoria Tower, thus revealing new vistas of the Abbey buildings and the ancient Jewel House. The estimated total cost of this is £125,000, leaving £200,000 for the playing fields, to be administered by a Trust to be styled the King George Fields Foundation, of which King Edward will be the patron.

UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS OF MR. ROOSEVELT

It is reported from New York that with a victory of 46 out of 48 states Mr. Roosevelt has secured the biggest majority in the heaviest poll ever recorded and the greatest Presidential triumph since 1820.

Mr. Landon retained only Maine and Vermont, while Mr. Roosevelt won over Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Delaware & New Hampshire, the latter never having voted democratic before.

The electoral college votes gave Roosevelt 523 and Landon 91.

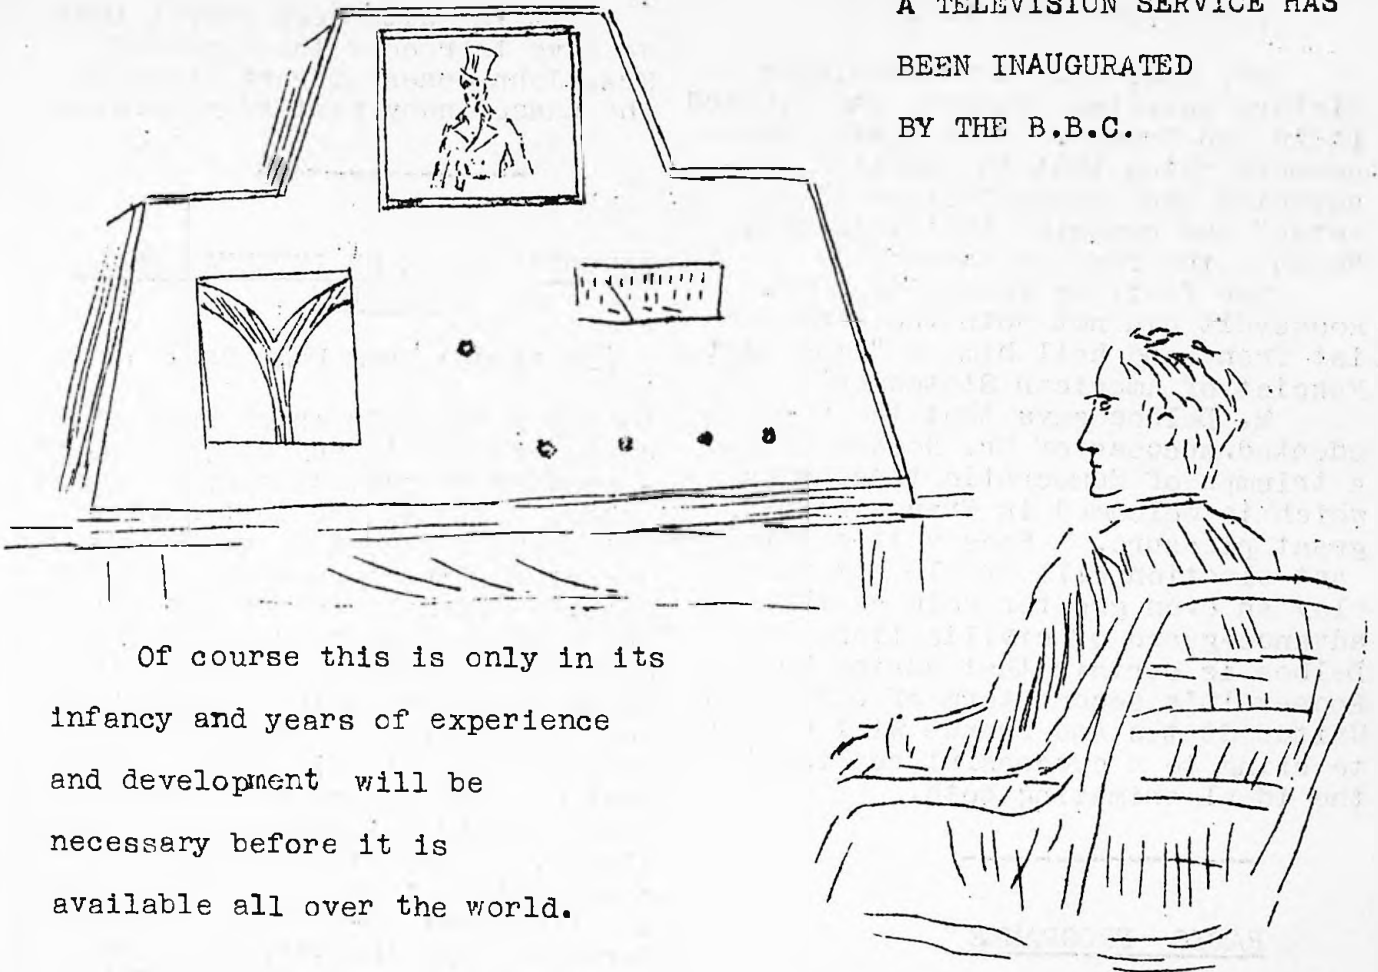

The President's bitterest enemies have lowered their heads in the presence of this triumph, says the Daily Telegraph Correspondent, and they admit that the New Deal policies have been strikingly vindicated.

The British view is that Mr. Roosevelt's re-election is because he can point to a more prosperous America than when he first took office, and the nation's decision is widely approved.

UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS OF ROOSEVELT

Mr. Roosevelt's overwhelming victory surprised Germany and pleased Italy and France. The German press comment notes that the world's democracies are "concentrating their votes" and expects that this will "change the face of the world."

The Italians recall that Mr. Roosevelt did not join the Sanctionist front, and hail him as "the most Fascist of American Statesmen".

M. Delbos says that the unprecedented success of Mr. Roosevelt is a triumph of democratic tendencies which is welcomed in France with great pleasure. Roosevelt's triumphant election will enable him to play an even greater role as the advance-guard of civilisation. M. Delbos is certain that during Mr. Roosevelt's second term of office the United States and France will be able to bring to a successful realisation the ideal animating both.

COMMONS DEBATE ON INTERNATIONAL SITUATION

to any friendship which Britain could proffer to any other country - whether France, Germany or any other. "These are that such friendships cannot be exclusive and cannot be directed against anyone else." In speaking of Germany the Foreign Secretary found it necessary to comment on the noticeable tendency in that country to put on Britain the blame for her present economic difficulties. That was not in accord with fact and he could not accept it for a minute. Recalling the British contribution towards the economic and financial co-operation with Germany since the war, Mr. Eden mentioned the basis of the 1934 Anglo-German payments Agreement, which left £45 out of every £100 spent by the British on German goods, at Germany's own disposal for the purpose of buying raw materials & foodstuffs, and meeting her financial obligations. He made bold to say that there was no other country with whom Germany had so favourable an Agreement. But much more important in relation to the solution of Germany's difficulties was the hopeful movement for a greater freedom of trade resulting from the Three-Power monetary declaration, in which the co-operation of the other powers, including Germany, was invited. In so far as Germany's export and import difficulties arose out of international restrictions and not as a result of her own deliberate decisions for dealing with her internal economic difficulties, the British Government would always be ready to consider with sympathy anything which appeared likely to contribute towards their easement.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL MEETING

In the course of the business transacted at the meeting of the Legislative Council held in the Court and Council Chamber at the Town Hall, yesterday, and presided over by His Excellency the Governor, three Bills were passed and a Bill to provide for the establishment of a Provident Fund in the Falkland Islands was read a first time.

The members present in addition to His Excellency the Governor were:- Major the Honourable M.J. Stewart, Acting Colonial Secretary, Capt. The Honourable R.L. Cheverton, Senior Medical Officer, the Honourable G. Roberts J.P., Director of Public Works, the Honourable N. Keith-Cameron, J.P., and the Honourable V.A.H. Biggs. Mr. A.I. Fleuret, Clerk of the Legislative Council, was also in attendance.

MESSAGE FROM HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

His Excellency delivered the following Message to the Council :

"Honourable Members of the Legislative Council, I propose to follow the usual procedure in Colonial legislatures elsewhere in opening the final session of the year by reviewing briefly the progress of the Colony and outlining the policy of the Government as reflected in the estimates of revenue and expenditure for the forthcoming year.

"During the present year the financial relations between the Colony and its Dependencies have been stabilized, a new source of excellent water has been connected with Stanley, more than doubling the town supply, a Domestic Science Centre has been established at the Government School, a long needed survey of the harbour has been carried to completion, the King Edward the VIIth Hospital has been enlarged and rendered more efficient in every branch, a contract has been made for a greatly improved mail and passenger service with South America and the United Kingdom, telegraphic rates have been reduced with benefit to the revenue and, in the interests of the farming industry, the services of an experienced adviser on agriculture and stock have been lent to the Colony by the Government of New Zealand.

"It has been found possible to establish the finances of the Administration on a broader basis and to initiate the plans foreshadowed this time last year for development. It is, however, likely to be some time and may indeed be ten or fifteen years before the agricultural policy of the Government will prove its value to the Colony.

"I am glad to be able to announce that the time has arrived when constructive measures can be taken to abolish unemployment and relief works. The latter and the dole constitute a policy of defeatism only. The Unemployment Relief Committee which has carried out a difficult task ably and impartially will be dissolved and an Employment Committee - composed, I hope, of a majority of the same members - will take its place with the duty of assisting workers to find employment and employers to obtain labour.

"The policy of the Government will now be to develop the activities of the Stock Department, which will in future be known as the Agricultural Department. Restrictions in the expenditure on Public Works will go far to meet the cost entailed.

"The first work to be undertaken will be the experimental regrassing of the Common on a comparatively large scale. A three fold object is in view:-

- (1) To ascertain, as part of the general scheme for improving the pastures of the Colony, what treatment will benefit poor peaty land which has never been spelled.
- (2) To provide work of economic value for those who could not otherwise find employment.
- (3) To provide good grazing for dairy cattle and so improve the milk supply of the capital.

"It is perforce an essential part of this scheme that agricultural work on the Common should not interfere with the labour supply for established industries and in the first instance at least part time employment only can be given out for this service.

"On turning to the estimates for 1937, honourable members will observe with satisfaction that the surplus of Assets over Liabilities will on the 1st of January next be £10,000 higher than the surplus at the beginning of the year. This is a cash increase and owes nothing to fluctuations in the market price of our investments. It is the policy of the Government to increase the Falkland Islands Reserve Fund from £34,000 at which it now stands to £50,000, any surpluses thereafter being devoted to development.

"The revised estimate for 1936 shows a surplus of revenue over expenditure for the current year of £4,406 instead of the £37 anticipated when the estimates were approved.

"The Memorandum prepared by the Acting Colonial Secretary explains in detail the reasons for the increase in revenue anticipated in 1937 and for the decrease in expenditure on other than agricultural services. Certain economies have been effected by the amalgamation and abolition of offices; others are to follow as circumstances permit.

"It is the aim of the Government to bring the total annual expenditure of the Colony down to £50,000 when further projected economies can be made. £1,000 of the estimated expenditure for 1937 of £56,901 is ascribable to the cost of the new issue of stamps and the allocation for celebrating the Coronation and £10,000 to Public Works Extraordinary. £4,000 annually should suffice for the latter when the works to be taken in hand next year have been completed.

"The principal new item of expenditure is £5,000 for the experimental regrassing of 300 acres of the Common to which reference has already been made. Application is being made for a grant of £2,500 of the total from the Colonial Development Fund. Other new works include the expenditure of £3,000 on an electric light plant to replace the worn machinery now running to capacity. The number of outstanding applications for electric lighting and increased use through a 24 hours' service leave little room for doubting that the expenditure will be covered by a reasonable return for the outlay.

"Provision is also made for part of the cost of erecting a new Secretariat Office. I with others will regret the passing of the present old unpretentious building, at one time a Court House with its place in the history of the Colony. It has however become necessary not only to provide suitable accommodation for the records, but to house in the same building the Treasury, which, in accordance with a scheme of common application to all Colonies, is to become an integral part of the headquarters establishment. The transfer of the Treasury offices from the Town Hall will moreover enable a long felt want to be met by the enlargement of the Post Office for the convenience of the general public.

"In addition to the bill to provide for the service of the year 1937, legislation will be laid before you to-day for the establishment of a Provident Fund for employees of the Government who are not pensionable. This will doubtless commend itself to your favourable consideration."

RESOLUTIONS .

Two resolutions were passed, the first sanctioning that a rate of 1s/9d. for every Twenty Shillings of the annual value of house property in the Town of Stanley should be charged, and the second sanctioning the additional provision required for the service of the Colony and its Dependencies for the year ending the 31st of December, 1936, amounting to One Thousand, Nine Hundred and Ninety-six Pounds, Seven Shillings and Five Pence (£1,996, 7s. 5d.).

B I L L S

The Council then passed the following Bills:

- (1) A Bill to amend the Tariff Ordinance, 1900, as amended by the Tariff (Import Duties) Amendment Ordinances, 1929, 1931 and 1933.
- (2) A Bill to provide for the service of the year 1937.
- (3) A Bill to amend the Tariff Ordinance, 1900, as amended by the Tariff (Export Duties) Amendment Ordinances, 1923 and 1924.

FIERCE FIGHTING ROUNDMADRID

It is reported from Madrid that bitter fighting is still proceeding at Carabanchel, five miles to the south-west of Madrid, which the insurgents are shelling. The air reverberates with the boom of guns and the bursting of shells. The Insurgents have launched their attack from the direction of Pazuelo towards the Government's principal railways; entering Madrid simultaneously there is another column advancing from Carabanchel while a third is working its way from the south with a similar object. The Insurgents appear to concentrate the bulk of their forces west of the capital even at the risk of endangering their positions in other parts of the country, and it is believed that the conquest of the capital, if achieved, will not mean the conquest of Spain as the Insurgent forces are likely to be compelled to leave the capital for other theatres of war. It is understood that preparations are afoot to continue fighting should the capital fall.

Miss M. Reive and Mr. K. Lellman

Large crowds assembled at and in the Tabernacle on Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. when a wedding of great local interest was solemnized by Pastor W.F. McWhan between Miss Malvina Reive and Mr. Karl Vernon Lellman.

Miss Reive is the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Reive of Stanley, and Mr. Lellman is the second son of Mr. A. Lellman and the late Mrs. Lellman of Stanley. The bridegroom is a popular member of the West Store Office Staff where he has been employed since May 1929.

A picture of radiant happiness, the bride in a lovely gown of white silk net and organdi with a veil and halo, and carrying a choice bouquet of Roses, Narcissi and Fern, was given away by her Father.

She was attended by Miss Phyllis Atkins, a friend, (whom we see quite often in this charming capacity). Miss Atkins's dress was of buttercup-yellow net and the becoming ensemble was completed by brown mittens and hat. She carried a posy of auriculas.

The Best Man was Mr. Henry Sedgwick, and old friend of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony photographs were taken and later a thé dansant was held in the Town Hall where some two hundred and fifty friends and relations of the happy couple assembled to offer their good wishes and spent a most enjoyable evening which concluded with the time-honoured Falkland Islands custom of "Chairing" the bride and bridegroom round the Hall.

Among the many useful and decorative wedding gifts received by the bride and bridegroom was a sewing machine from the Store Staff and a handsome clock from the members of the Jazz Band.

Mr. and Mrs. K.V. Lellman will make their home in Stanley and we should like to join their many friends in wishing them every happiness.

THE SPANISH GOVERNMENT LEAVE MADRID

Reports received in London on Saturday night state that the Spanish Government left Madrid that morning for Valencia, leaving control with the military Government. It is understood that there are about 200 British nationals in Madrid. Arrangements had already been made for their accommodation in the British Embassy and adjacent buildings in the event of an emergency arising.

Mr. Ogilvie-Forbes, the British Charge d'Affaires in Madrid, was in telephonic communication with the Foreign Office in London late on Saturday afternoon. At that time about 100 British nationals were assembled at the Embassy. All were reported well. Fighting was then proceeding in the south and west of Madrid and the attacking forces appeared to be entering mainly from the direction of the model prison on the western edge of the city.

Miss R.M. Bailey & Mr. A. Johnson

A very pretty wedding was solemnised at the Tabernacle on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. by Pastor W.F. McWhan, between Miss Regina Maud Bailey and Mr. Alfred George Reginald Johnson.

Miss Bailey is the second daughter of Mrs. C. Hawkins and the late Mr. Bailey, and Mr. Johnson is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E.R. Johnson of Hill Cove.

Wearing a beautiful gown of ivory crepe-ce-chine made by Mrs. Hunter, and a veil and orange blossom blossom, the bride's dainty fairness was accentuated. Her tasteful bouquet of Lilac and Stocks was arranged by Mrs. Catten.

Miss Violet Smith, a great friend of the bride and bridegroom, acted as Miss Bailey's bridesmaid and looked charming in a frock of powder blue satin, and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

Mr. Eric Johnson was the Best man. He is the brother of the bridegroom.

The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. W. Halliday.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Mr. E. Johnson's house where some one hundred and twenty friends and relations of the happy couple assembled to drink their health and to taste the splendid three-tier wedding cake made by Mr. J.F. Summers.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G.R. Johnson will be at Roy Cove.

We should like to join their many friends in wishing them every happiness.

Madrid The latest press reports state that the city is now in a state of panic and shells have been falling at the rate of three a minute around the Government defences. Both the War Office and the Opera House are filled with high explosives, and should the Insurgents secure a direct hit on either building it would mean the end of a big slice of Madrid. Casa de Campo, the former private park of the King of Spain, is now largely in the hands of the Insurgents.

INSTRUCTIONS ISSUED TO INHABITANTS OF MADRID

Instructions issued by the militia in Madrid ordain that in the event of the Insurgents entering the capital every inhabitant must be provided with bottles of petrol which must be lit and flung from the rooftops against the invaders. Secondly, persons belonging to the so-called fifth or Fascist column still remaining in the capital, must be annihilated immediately; thirdly, the civilians must organise the street fighting and assist in trench digging and barricade building, and fourthly, the inhabitants must convert their houses into fortresses which they must hold at all costs.

FIGHTING CONTINUES IN AND ROUND MADRID

It is reported from Madrid that the Insurgent artillery fire on Madrid decreased somewhat yesterday. From noon the Insurgent planes flew over the capital dropping bombs wherever they chose and the Government anti-aircraft did not reply and no Government planes took the air. Huge bombers dropped bombs in the Toledo Bridge district but apart from several lorries being burned no damage is reported.

The fifth regiment of the Militia has issued a proclamation giving instructions as to how to conduct street fighting. The Defence Council ordered all the residents to surrender their firearms to the Police within 48 hours and anyone failing to do this will be considered an insurgent.

PUBLIC ORDER BILL

Penalties up to two years' imprisonment and a fine up to £500 are prescribed in the Public Order Bill, the text of which is published.

This Bill firstly forbids the wearing of uniform signifying association with a political organisation with the exception of ceremonial occasions when uniform is unlikely to involve the risk of disorder; the Bill also prohibits the carrying of offensive weapons at public meetings and processions and the use of abusive language and behaviour in public places.

The Bill applies, with modifications, to Scotland but not to the north of Ireland. The onus of initiating proceedings against disturbers of meetings rests with the organisers of the meetings and not with the police.

SISTER SHIP TO THE "QUEEN MARY"

It is anticipated that the work of assembling the keel of the Number 552, the sister-ship to the "Queen Mary", will be started early next month. The preparations which have already been made at Clydebank indicate that the new liner will be larger than the "Queen Mary".

DEFENCE QUESTIONS

Defence questions were raised in the debate on the address to the Throne, in the House of Commons on Tuesday evening.

Replying to the expression of regret that the speech contained no promise of legislation to implement the report of the Royal Commission on the manufacture of and trade in arms, Sir Thomas Inskip, the Minister for the co-ordination of Defence, said that as the Commission had not indicated in what way the control of the arms manufacturing capacity should be controlled, it was not unreasonable that the Government should require further time to pursue their inquiries to arrive at a proper solution.

Discussing the broader issues he said that the navy continued to be the first line of defence. As long as we were dependent on overseas communications no-one would under-value the importance of a supremely strong navy. To say that the growth of air power had destroyed our historic security as an island was only a fraction of the truth. The protection of the home bases of the fleet and ports was, however, the prime necessity, which brought them to the consideration of the need for co-operation between the navy and the Air Force. The main purpose of the expansion of the Air Force was to provide for defence from risk of attack from the air.

It was the Government's aim to develop as a deterrent as powerful a fighting force as they could and they believed that in capacity, speed and range, Britain's new types of machines were not inferior to any that existed abroad.

The year 1937 would see the output of machines extending on an increased scale up to 1939 and 1940.

The resources for the provision of new and powerful guns required in connexion with this air defence scheme had been supplemented. Apart from the existing Government establishments and special private firms, large additional capacity had been created in the form of a Government factory at Nottingham which begins production in six weeks' time.

Sir Thomas Inskip went on to say that he had heard on Tuesday of the last steps in the negotiations for the new proposal for gun production by a group of firms in the North of England, and these proposals had been submitted for final approval.

So far as the navy was concerned the Fleet Air Arm was indispensable, but the time had not yet come for the abolition of capital ships.

The Government were of the opinion that no aircraft could play the role of the capital ships. He regretted very much that it had not been possible to publish confidential information, and he recognised that in consequence their report on this subject wore somewhat of a meagre and thin appearance. He hoped that the report would be accepted as settling not the design, but the status, of the capital ship for the time being.

He was not going to admit that the navy had met an opponent it could not master. They knew now how to grapple with mines and torpedoes and he believed that the same result could be achieved by the navy in relation to the air menace. Let anyone ask a sailor who was familiar with the intense training in the Mediterranean, with regard to the possibility of an air attack and the dangers of an air attack. The practice during those weeks had produced a remarkable change in the view taken by the sailors as to the efficiency of the weapons with which His Majesty's navy were provided. Experience alone could show whether this confidence was well or ill founded. Dealing with the Land Forces he said that if Britain was ever involved in war, whether with others in the maintenance of collective security, or alone, or in an alliance with some other nation, she could never give up until she was safe again. They were looking to-day primarily not to protect our frontier at home but to defend and guard our Imperial commitments - the vital lines of our points of communication, in co-operation with the navy.

There was a small force at home which must be ready to go anywhere. It went recently to the eastern Mediterranean for a very necessary mission. That force was the absolute minimum. The Territorial Army was really the second line of our land forces though in relation to air defence it was in truth our first line. It was reconstituted after the war for Imperial Defence and the officers and men actually signed an agreement to serve outside the country in time of an emergency provided an Act of Parliament was passed authorising the dispatch of the Territorial Army outside the United Kingdom.

Dealing with the Shadow Scheme for aircraft engine production Sir Thomas Inskip said that Lord Nuffield's resources of experience were not going to be lost to the Government and he hoped that in a short time the scope of his services would be enlarged.

A proper survey would be carried out as soon as possible and provisions made so that if war should unhappily break out the whole of the six firms in the shadow scheme would be able to turn over to the manufacture not of a single part but of the whole engine.

Figures were given showing the expansion of industry, and Sir Thomas pointed out that the expansion of the Air Force itself was proceeding. Squadrons were continually being formed and built up to the full establishment. The total number at home in the present circumstances of these Squadrons is 80, including 16 auxiliary squadrons. That figure excludes the Fleet Air Arm and the Squadrons abroad. The Programme included large provisions for the reserves which would make it possible at a later stage, and if desired at mobilisation, to increase the striking force or weight of any initial blow.

ARMISTICE DAY IN BRITAIN

Every town, village, and hamlet throughout Britain celebrated Armistice Day yesterday and the Two Minutes' Silence was as usual universally observed. In London there were vast congregations at the services held in the Cathedrals and Churches, many of which were relayed by loudspeakers to the crowds gathered outside, and at central points of the city the workers left shops, warehouses and offices to join in the silent homage to those who fell in the War. The crowds were most dense in Whitehall where around the Cenotaph the King, supported by the Dukes of York and Kent, the Prime Minister and Members of the Cabinet, Diplomatic High Commissioners, high dignitaries of the State, and representatives of the Services took part in the solemn ceremony.

Queen Mary, with the Duchess of York and the Duchess of Gloucester, from a window in the Home Office witnessed the proceedings, the form of which has become familiar throughout the Empire to which it was broadcast. At the conclusion of the ceremony a pilgrimage began to the Cenotaph, the base of which was banked high with flowers, and the tomb of the unknown warrior in Westminster Abbey, upon which many floral tributes were reverently laid.

Owing to the exceptionally heavy and continuous rain in the late afternoon, the numbers who in this way paid tribute to the fallen were smaller than on some former occasions.

As is usual on Armistice Day the lawns on the north side of Westminster Abbey were set aside as a Field of Remembrance in which miniature Crosses and imitation Flanders poppies were planted in memory of the fallen.

Despite the rain vast crowds visited the Field of Remembrance which, with the facade of the Abbey, was floodlit last night.

In the pouring rain the King paid a visit to the scene last evening and planted a cross.

The King was present last night at the Annual British Legion Festival of Remembrance at the Albert Hall which was crowded with ex-servicemen. Shortly after leaving the Albert Hall His Majesty travelled by rail to Portland. He was to sleep in the Royal Coach in a siding in preparation for his visit to the Fleet which begins to-day and will extend over two days.

After his reception by the Commander-in-Chief of the Home Fleet and the inspection of the Guards of Honour, the King will embark on his Barge. The ships to be inspected to-day are the "Nelson", the "Orion", the "Courageous", "Royal Oak", "Cairo", "Royal Sovereign", "Leander", "Neptune", and "Guardian". The anti-submarine school will also be visited. After a dinner party on the Royal Yacht "Victoria and Albert" the King will visit the "Courageous" for a concert given by the ratings.

THE SERIOUS POSITION OF BRITISH SHIPPING

The serious position of British shipping as a result of foreign subsidised competition was raised in the House of Lords yesterday and Lord Lloyd appealed to the Government to assist Pacific shipping also shipping in the Indian and Far East waters. He said that the Bombay and Japan traffic not many years ago was entirely British and was now 80% Japanese. Lord Essenden, a ship-owner, asserted that if nothing was done the line between Canada, Australia and New Zealand was likely to go to the Japanese companies which are receiving subsidies which enable them to deal with four times the amount of their own trade.

The gale was accompanied by heavy rains and at high tide a huge wave swept over Chesil beach. His Majesty made his drive from the railway station to the dockyard through flooded streets but there was a burst of sunshine when he stepped from his car. It was of brief duration and the wind and rain continued to sweep the harbour in which nearly forty warships awaited inspection. In view of the extremely boisterous conditions it was early decided that the ships should not be dressed all over but should wear only masthead flags. Later it was announced that the crews should not man the ships and another feature of the inspection that was cancelled was the King's sail in the Commander-in-Chief's Barge down the lines of the Fleet. In other respects the full programme was adhered to and the King, in company with the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Samuel Hoare, and the First Sea Lord and Admiral of the Fleet, Sir Ernle Chatfield, carried out a series of inspections on board various ships. The first visited was the Flagship "Nelson" and in the traditional fashion the King, as Admiral,

It is reported from Madrid that the Government forces have recaptured the Government airport at Getafe on the main Toledo road, and the Insurgents have been compelled to evacuate Villa-Verde five miles south of Madrid, while it is also claimed that the public park, Casa del Campo, has been cleared of the invaders. It is understood that General Franco holds a strong position to the north-west of the capital and is contemplating an attack from a new angle in which he will be assisted by the city's food shortage.

CONVERSATIONS WITH THE POLISHMINISTER

During the last few days Monsieur Beck, the Polish Minister for Foreign Affairs, has had a series of conversations with the Foreign Secretary as well as with other members of the Government. These conversations have been on the subject of the general situation in Europe and on questions directly affecting Poland and the United Kingdom.

A Communique states that M. Beck and Mr. Eden were glad to find a conformity of views and desires on the part of the two Governments in matters of common concern to the two countries. They consider it highly desirable that an attempt to promote the settlement of European problems should be pursued.

The opportunity was also taken to discuss certain points connected with the proposed Western Treaty in regard to which Poland has interest, and it was recognised that a means would require to be found to respect Poland's legitimate interests in this matter.

M. Beck and Mr. Eden are of the opinion that International collaboration can best be maintained within the framework of the League and that nothing would be more fatal to the hopes of European appeasement than division, real or apparent, of Europe into blocs.

as soon as sufficient experience had been gained. With regard to the South Atlantic service tenders had been received and were now under consideration.

The commencement of the service depended on the result of this examination.

A SUBSIDY FOR TRAMP SHIPPING

The President of the Board of Trade announced in the House of Commons on Wednesday that the Government proposes to submit proposals providing for the payment of a tramp shipping subsidy not exceeding £2,000,000 in respect of the year 1937 subject to the same general terms and conditions as apply to the present year. These conditions provide for a decrease of, or disappearance of, the subsidy, if the average level of freight rates for the year approaches or passes that of 1929. The Industry will be expected to make its plans on the definite assumption that no subsidy will be paid after the end of 1937.

BRITISH AIR SERVICE IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC

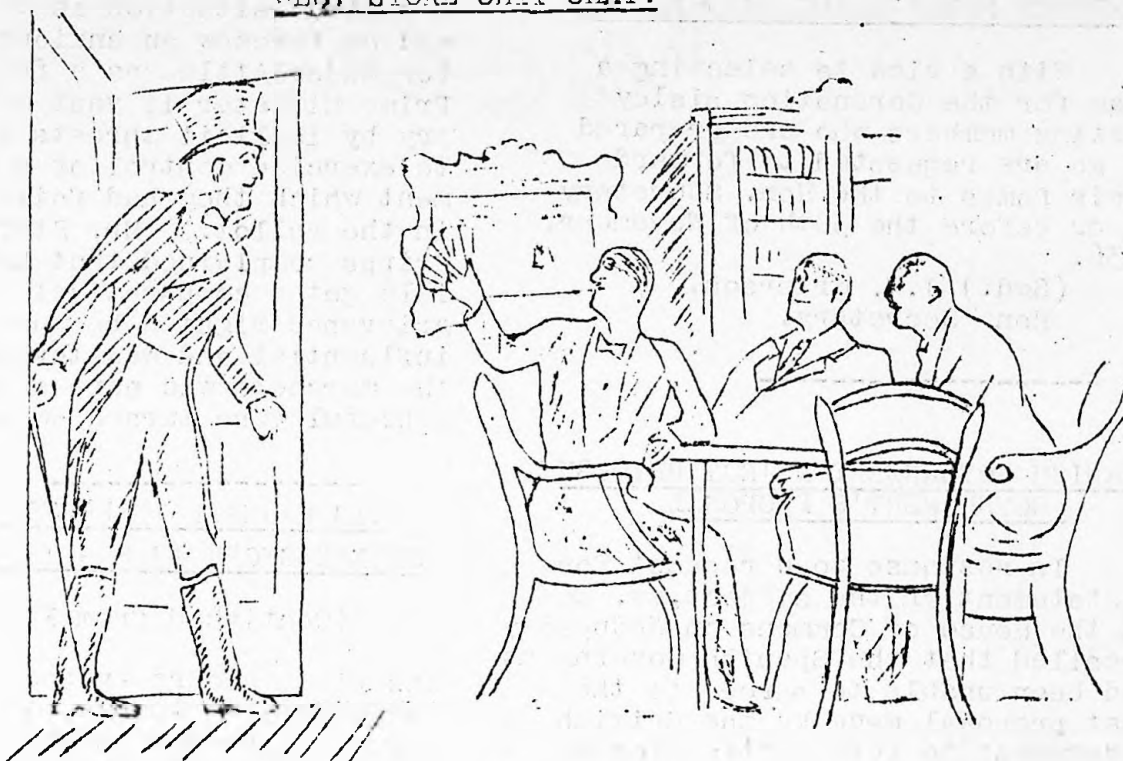

The Under-Secretary for Air, Sir Philip Sassoon, was questioned in the House of Commons on Wednesday regarding the British Air Service over the North Atlantic and the South Atlantic. He said that since the Agreement announced on the 30th of July, negotiations had continued between the Governments of the United Kingdom, Canada, and the Irish Free State, with the United States Government, with regard to the establishment of a North Atlantic service.

The active preparation of air bases fully equipped with the necessary wireless and meteorological facilities were in hand in the Irish Free State and Newfoundland. It was hoped that experimental flights would begin in spring and that the commencement of a regular service would follow

SPANISH GOVERNMENT REJECT BRITISH GOVERNMENT'S PROPOSAL

In response to a request for a statement on the subject, Mr. Eden in the House of Commons on Wednesday recalled that the Spanish Government had been unable to agree to the last proposal made by the British Government to both parties for an exchange of prisoners and their removal to a place of safety. Subsequently the Insurgent authorities also informed His Majesty's Ambassador that they were unable to accept the proposal. They added however that they would have no objection to their prisoners being visited by British officials. The British offer still remains open and they are continuing the efforts which they have throughout exerted wherever possible to prevent indiscriminate loss of life and to alleviate suffering throughout Spain.

PRIME MINISTER REFUSES TO RECEIVE DELEGATIONS

Mr. Baldwin firmly reiterated his refusal to receive the delegation of marchers from the depressed areas which has recently arrived in London. Explaining his reasons in reply to a special intervention by Major Attlee in the House of Commons on Wednesday, the Premier said that all parties in Britain were horrified by the civil strife in many countries in Europe and since the war we had been singularly free from this, but representatives of certain tendencies in Britain were just as anxious to proceed by force as were their fellows abroad, and Mr. Baldwin argued that a departure from traditional lines would alter the basis of our constitutional theories and open the way for a serious situation in the future, and he foresaw an anxious time for Major Attlee as a future Prime Minister if vast mobs try by implicit threats of force to exercise control of a Government which they had failed to get in the Ballot. Mr. Stafford Cripps complained that Lord Nuffield got a comparatively small grievance righted because he was influential and wealthy, whereas the marchers who were orderly and peaceful were turned away.

1,500 MINERS SHOT IN SPAIN

It is reported from Gibraltar that since the Insurgents captured the British-owned Rio Tinto mines they have shot over 1,500 communist miners including 100 women. Many of the executions were carried out publicly in the presence of British mine officials.

Savage fighting continues on the Estepona-Malaga front, the insurgents being reported to have been driven back by the militia-men who are now equipped with field guns and other modern weapons of foreign manufacture, according to wounded nationalists taken to the San Roque hospital. The Insurgent cruiser "Almirante Cervera" continues its shuttlecock service across the straits bringing Moors and hundreds of boxes of ammunition which are rushed by train from Ronda and then taken by lorry to the Madrid front.

Ten thousand troops have arrived from Ceuta within the last six days, declares a military officer from Algeciras. General Franco is said to require a further 20,000 to assure a successful entry of the capital.

MR. CHURCHILL CRITICISES THEGOVERNMENT

During a debate on Defence in the House of Commons on Thursday night Mr. Winston Churchill strongly criticised the Government for the delay in the progress with disarmament and urged that the House should demand a Parliamentary inquiry by six or eight independent, responsible, experienced and discreet members who had some acquaintance with such matters; representative of all parties, to interview the Ministers and find out what were the answers to a series of questions which were disturbing some of the members, and to make a brief report to the House either of reassurance or of suggestions for remedying the situation.

The Prime Minister replying on the whole debate referred to the complicated nature of Empire relations in reference to defence in the post war period but said that the Dominions had throughout shown anxiety about the state of world politics and had discussed with the Government their own defences. The problems to be dealt with, largely because of modern developments in air, were complicated and baffling.

He became more than ever convinced in the course of the debate of two things, firstly that every endeavour which they could use in diplomacy and foreign policy and in every other possible way should be directed to keeping peace in Europe, and secondly that if that peace should be unhappily broken we should be prepared. Those two things were not necessarily contradictory. It was quite impossible to give information as to what was our defensive strategy and what was our plan for meeting an air attack. If there were two things that would be welcomed by foreign countries it would be a clear explanation of those questions. We were, because of our geographical position and our implied interests and communications, so placed with regard to offence and defence that we had to look to more than one service for protection. So long as there was an Empire both the navy and the air force would be required and just as one force would have to protect the heart of the Empire the other would have to preserve her communications.

The completion of the programme itself for meeting the cumulative deficiencies of many years was in itself a tremendous task. The defence programmes were making on the whole good progress.

The question of the food supply of the country in time of war was in the process of solution but was not yet wholly solved. A scheme of rationing had been drawn up which could be used if the emergency arose and the Minister of Agriculture had produced a scheme for increased production in case of war.

The production of aero engines under the 1937 programme was entirely satisfactory. As regarded the completed aeroplanes these were in some cases behind the period originally hoped for but there was nothing alarming in this. The more the Government plan for the construction of aero engines in shadow factories was studied the more general was the conviction that it was right. The Government were determined to press forward the plan already worked out, to modify and expand it if necessary in the light of developments, but they did not feel justified in bringing about the dislocation of trade which must follow any attempt to proceed upon the more lavish scale advocated in some quarters.

The plans for coast defence and anti-aircraft defence of ports of entry had been drawn up. They were constantly under review because of the constantly increasing range of aircraft. The Government's attitude towards the question of the Ministry of Supply about which there was a difference of opinion between the Government and Mr. Churchill was the considered judgment of the Cabinet in the light of all the facts.

Arrest of Germans in Moscow

It is reported from Berlin that the German Government is up in arms regarding the arrest of German citizens in Moscow.

The official Nazi Party organ the "Angriff" declares that the arrested men have to suffer in cellars. The German people hope that the sufferings will be ended as soon as possible even if their relief can be achieved only by still more energetic steps. Diplomatic correspondence expresses the belief that the arrests are Soviet reprisals for "the extermination of Bolshevik poison in Germany" It is also said that Germany is not willing to permit the propagation of pernicious and false doctrines which are being spread everywhere by Moscow and will take all necessary counter measures.

HIS MAJESTY CONCLUDES INSPECTION OF THE HOME FLEET

The King concluded his visit to the Home Fleet at Portland yesterday afternoon with the flashing of two signals from the Royal Yacht "Victoria and Albert". The first was "Splice the main brace" which authorised an extra ration of rum or lime-juice, and the second was a message of congratulation to the Fleet.

It was addressed to all ships of the Home Fleet shore establishments at Portland from His Majesty and read "I wish to express to the Flag Officers and Commanding Officers my satisfaction with all I have seen. The appearance of the ships and men was admirable and I congratulate you all."

The King immediately afterwards left the Royal Yacht in the Admiral's Barge. All ships were manned as the Barge moved slowly through the lines and they fired a Royal Salute of twenty-one guns. The Barge turned near the Flagship and headed for the entrance to the harbour. As the boom of guns ceased it picked up speed and shortly afterwards reached Weymouth Pier where the King landed.

A large crowd of people lined the Esplanade as His Majesty drove to Weymouth Station where he boarded a special coach attached to the London train. The weather was fair yesterday and for most of the day, during which the destroyers and submarines were inspected and visited, the sun was shining.

On Saturday morning His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Major the Hon. M.J. Stewart, the Hon. G. Roberts and the Public Works Staff, turned on the new supply of spring water at the main storage reservoir above Stanley.

The spring water is pumped from Mullet Creek by a windmill 25 feet high with a wheel 18 feet in diameter. It is conveyed to Stanley through a 3" main some 2 miles in length.

BOMB VERSUS BATTLESHIP CONTROVERSY

Referring on Saturday in his broadcast speech on Sea power to the bomb versus battleship controversy, the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Samuel Hoare, said that great progress had been made in the defence of ships. Their armour had been made stronger, their range of operation greater, and their power of attack strengthened by their own use of the new Air Arm. It was these reasons that had made the Cabinet Committee affirm once again the principle of sea power and conclude that while a new problem had undoubtedly been created and finality could never be reached in the struggle between attack and defence, there was no reason to change Britain's historic attitude to the sea or confidence in the Fleet as an arm upon which the country depended for food, raw materials and Imperial solidarity.

They declared that the Capital ships must remain and that no ship was less likely to be destroyed than the heavy battleship and that no air force could replace the navy. But a system of closest co-operation must be worked between our navy and the Air Force for ensuring the greatest practicable measure of security in the essential areas of narrow seas, naval bases, and Civil Harbours. For this purpose it would be necessary for the Fleet to make the fullest possible use of ship-borne aircraft and it would be necessary for the Air Force to be strong enough to give effective assistance with its land based machines. It was sea power that created the British Empire and in doing so established the greatest area of internal peace that the world had ever seen. It was the very foundation of Imperial structure and though details had varied the fundamentals remained the same. The British Commonwealth here and overseas depended on its highways of the ocean.

INCIDENT OF INJURY TO BRITISH SAILORS IN JAPAN

Mr. Eden was asked in the House of Commons yesterday whether the Government had now received full satisfaction from the Japanese Government in respect of the incident in which three British sailors were ill-treated by the Japanese police at Keelung, Formosa.

The report of the naval court of inquiry into the incident, which was held in Hong Kong, was communicated to the Japanese Foreign Minister on the 10th of November with a request that it should be compared with the report of the local authorities in Formosa. VIOLENT ARTILLERY BOMBARDMENTAND SHELLS FALLING EVERY 5 MINUTES

Messages from Madrid indicate that the Insurgents have succeeded in crossing Manzanares despite the dynamiting of the French Bridge on Sunday.

Yesterday's offensive was preceded by a violent artillery bombardment and air raid over the western sector above the north station and the bombardment continued all day with high explosives and shells landing in quartets every five minutes. Great damage was done but there was little loss of life. Firemen extinguished outbreaks. On Sunday night and early yesterday morning the Insurgents shelled the working class quarter and the Government batteries, which are still functioning, replied with vigour. The Government planes were also active and brought down a three-engined enemy Junker machine near the race-course and bombed the Insurgents.

It is reported from Bayonne that the new Government Commander-in-Chief for Bilbao and the whole WORLD WAR INEVITABLE NOW ?

Speaking at the Foreign Press Association luncheon in London yesterday the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Samuel Hoare, said "One of the resounding prophecies that some people are making to-day is that world war is inevitable. I am here to say to you as representatives of most of the newspapers of the world that this is not the view of the British Government. We refuse to accept this prophecy of despair, this dangerous and pathological prophecy. The British Government is determined to take every action in its power to make a prophecy of that kind impossible of fruition. We are determined to throw into the scales of peace all the influences at our disposal."

Proceeding, he said that Britain did not attempt to impose her views upon other countries. She was perfectly ready in the future, as in the past, to make friends with Governments whose systems she might think totally inapplicable to this country and indeed altogether objectionable to British public opinion. Referring to re-armament he said that Britain had been lagging in the field of military defence and

FIRES RAGING THROUGHOUT MADRID

It is reported from Madrid that huge fires are raging throughout the city as fleet after fleet of insurgent planes rain death and destruction by incendiary bombs and aerial torpedoes.

The flaming areas include the Hotel, Embassy, and Hospital regions, while the General Post Office is badly damaged. The Government forces are attempting to stem the insurgents' advance and the civil population, under ceaseless bombardment, with shells falling in the main thoroughfares, have taken refuge in cellars and underground stations. There remains no safe haven from attack in the capital.

One press report estimates that 200 were killed and 500 were injured in yesterday's bombardment.

The telephone office, one of the highest buildings in Europe, appears to be one of the main objectives of the bombardment, together with the Montana Mon Cloa Barracks.

TEMPORARY LULL IN ATTACK ON MADRID

Stanley v. R.R.S. "Discovery II"

It is reported from Madrid that there is a temporary lull in the attack on the capital, but the air raids continued throughout yesterday.

After an absence of over ten months from the football field Stanley turned out yesterday evening in glorious weather to meet a team from R.R.S. "Discovery II" and ran out winners by a margin of three goals.

The Insurgents' leader, General Franco, has declared a blockade of Barcelona to prevent war supplies for Madrid and the powers have been informed that every means of warfare are to be used to check the traffic with a warning to foreign vessels to keep clear and their nationals to leave the city. The fires in Madrid have been subdued but a fresh attack is being made from the North-west with five columns engaged. General Burgos at the Insurgent headquarters has also issued a decree cancelling the validity of Madrid currency.

Winning the toss Stanley chose to defend the West goal with a bright sun behind them and for the greater part of the first half did most of the attacking. After about 25 minutes' play Bound put them 1 up with a goal scored from close range. During the second half the visitors pressed strongly but were given little opportunity to shoot near goal. The home side went further ahead with 2 goals both scored by Fleuret and should have increased their lead still further. "Discovery" were unfortunate in finding our defence in good form and were particularly aggressive on the left wing. For the home side Sullivan and Grierson were outstanding. Final score:-Stanley 3 . "Discovery II" 0. "Throw-in"

NEW USE FOR X-RAYS

Eaters of apples have frequently found that some of the fruit, though beautiful to look at, is rotten and dark at the core when cut open. This fact also applies to other kinds of fruit.

The latest method of examining fruit, to avoid damaged specimens of this kind finding their way to the shops, is to use a portable X-ray outfit. The fruit is passed rapidly in front of the X-ray apparatus, and the image thrown on the screen shows at once whether the inside is sound or damaged.

EXCHANGE OF WILD ANIMALS

An exchange of animals between the London Zoo and the Moscow Park Zoo is being negotiated; and this will be the first time that such an exchange has been effected.

It is hoped that a Siberian tiger will be one of the animals in the collection from Moscow. This beast is said to be worth about £250, and it is more than twenty years since a specimen was exhibited at the London Zoo.

The main body travelling east from London is likely to be composed of one young female chimpanzee - a young and healthy chimpanzee is worth anything between £30 and £50 - a python, 30 rhesus monkeys, six black-footed penguins, and possibly a young African elephant, the value of which would be about equal to the Siberian tiger.

A CORONATION MARK ON SILVER

It may be that King Edward VIII's accession to the throne will be commemorated by a special mark on the silverware manufactured during the year of his Coronation. Jewellers from all parts of Britain have requested that a profile of the King should be punched on silver goods made in 1937, in addition to the statutory hall-mark, as a memento of the occasion.

H O M E   N O T E S

If a strong hook is screwed into each side of a pair of steps near the top you will find that, when cleaning picture rails and paint, many climbs up and down to the water will be saved. You will just hang a small pail on each hook and clean and rinse with ease.

If your hands get into a dreadful state with housework try taking a lump of floor polish and rubbing it into your hands. Then wash in hot water and all the grime will vanish with the polish.

It will save you time if you glue a part of a tape-measure along the front of your sewing machine. This will enable you to measure off small lengths, keep such things as hems the correct width, to keep different seams a uniform length, and will save that exasperating hunt for a tape measure on dozens of occasions.

If your pail has several tiny holes in the bottom, don't throw it away as useless. Turn it upside down and give it a coat of enamel. While it is wet, spread a piece of calico smoothly over it, set aside to dry and then give it a second coat of enamel. When this second coat is dry it can be used again as if it were new.

When making a cake, instead of washing and drying the fruit, which tends to make the cake heavy, put it in a colander together with a little flour and shake well. This thoroughly cleans the fruit and saves the bother of drying it.

BATH GOLDEN WEDDING

Former Residents of the Falkland Is.

The following is a cutting from the Bath and Wilts. Chronicle and Herald dated September 18th, 1936, and we feel sure that it will be of great interest to many of our older readers.

"A happy and hospitable couple are Mr. and Mrs. George Bowles, of "Lafonia", Warminster Road, Bathampton, who celebrate to-day their golden wedding.

They have lived in their present home for 12 years, since their return from the Falkland Islands, where Mr. Bowles was in charge of a large flock of sheep. This flock numbered 4,000 ewes, and the "next door" neighbour of Mr. and Mrs. Bowles lived seven miles away.

Mr. Bowles recalled in an interview with a representative of this paper, some of his memories of the Falkland Islands, which lie in an isolated position in the Atlantic Ocean, off Patagonia, South America. He had charge of a large area of open land, and when he stood at one end of this area there was nothing between himself and the South Pole except the vast ocean.

The capital and only big town is Port Stanley, in which town the limit for motor cars is five miles an hour. Very few cars have found their way to these islands, for much of the land is swampy waste.

Mr. Bowles has written several communications to this paper, and some may well remember these for their absorbing interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowles have many friends in the Falkland Islands. Of their children, four grandchildren, two great-grand-children, in addition to their three children now living, most are at present still in the islands, and therefore will not, unfortunately, be able to join in the celebrations, but many telegrams and cablegrams from them have been received.

Mr. Bowles added that if anyone called they would be welcome, and there would be a glass of wine and a piece of cake for them.

To this couple go hearty wishes that their remaining years, which, judging from their appearance will be many, will also be very happy ones."

WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS FROMPALESTINE

Asked whether the Expeditionary Force, sent to Palestine because of the situation created by the general strike of Arabs, would now be withdrawn seeing that the strike had now been terminated, the Minister for War, Mr. Duff Cooper, said that orders had been issued for the withdrawal of the fifth division. Further withdrawals will depend on the situation in Palestine.

NEW STREAMLINED TRAIN

A new stream-lined train, the first of four to be run experimentally on the London Underground service, was run on Tuesday on the Picadilly line.

Its acceleration is said to be the highest ever achieved on an underground railway - namely two miles per hour per second instead of 1.25 miles per hour per second as formerly. This improvement will permit the introducing of additional trains to meet the traffic demands at peak periods. The train is driven by twelve instead of four motors, the horse-power being increased from 960 to 1656.

RESISTANCE TO COMMUNISM

It is reported from London that a public declaration by Germany and Japan of a common determination to resist Communism is expected shortly, and while secrecy is maintained as to the exact form, diplomatic circles consider that it will have a background of extensive agreements. Meanwhile the British determination to resist all attempts at being drawn into an anti-Soviet bloc is apparently stiffened.

DEVELOPMENT OF NEW HOUSING SITEESTIMATED COST £1,427,000

The London County Council on Tuesday adopted a recommendation for the development of the White City site at Hammersmith for housing purposes at a total estimated cost of £1,427,000. A total of 2,286 dwellings, 14 shops, administrative buildings and a children's playground are proposed.

SHIPPING CASUALTIES YESTERDAY

Several shipping casualties are reported as a result of the 70 miles-an-hour gale which swept the southern part of the North Sea and the English Channel yesterday.

Fishing vessels off the Norfolk coast were forced to return for shelter. The crew of ten of the Glasgow steamer "Yewbank", 621 tons, were rescued by the Winterton lifeboat after the vessel had been driven ashore near Great Yarmouth yesterday afternoon.

The Gorleston lifeboat, which also went to the Yewbank's assistance, was struck by terrific seas and two of its crew were washed overboard but were rescued by ropes. The Lifeboat's steering gear was wrecked but she ultimately returned with a temporary rudder. A small drifter, with all the eight members of her crew, sank off Great Yarmouth. Other small craft were driven ashore but the crews were saved.

Lifeboats were out at several channel and East Coast ports and effected rescues.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT BY GERMANY AND ITALY

Announcements are made from Berlin and Rome that both Germany and Italy have decided to recognise General Franco's Government in Spain.

In London these decisions are regarded as merely formal expressions of sympathies which have never been concealed and the view taken in authoritative circles is that there is no reason to anticipate that these decisions will in any way alter the position in regard to non-intervention as both Germany and Italy are bound by their pledges not to intervene.

HIS MAJESTY'S TOUR OF DISTRESSED AREAS OF SOUTH WALES

The King was accorded tumultuous receptions in every town and village which he visited during his sixty mile tour yesterday of the distressed areas of South Wales, and displayed the keenest interest in the various social service activities and self-help movements which have been set on foot throughout the areas.

It was no perfunctory visit. Formalities were dispensed with and the King walked about among the people and went into their homes and discussed with them their hardships. During the afternoon it became known that Mr. Malcolm Stewart, whose report before the resignation of his post as Chief Commissioner for the distressed areas was the main subject of an all night sitting in the House of Commons on Tuesday night, and his successor in office, Sir George Gillett, had been commanded to dine with the King.

FOOD SUPPLIES PRODUCED IN THE UNITED KINGDOM

In the House of Lords yesterday Lord Halifax mentioned that the total value of the food supplies produced in the United Kingdom during the past four years had been increased by between 16½% and 20% and asked the House whether they judged the situation to be so serious that everything must give way to the military re-conditioning of the defence forces. Such a conclusion appeared to rest upon the premise not only of the inevitability of war but on a degree of certainty regarding the early imminence of war, which he was not prepared to accept.

The Government, putting the matter on the lowest ground of self-interest, did not believe that any country was prepared, much less anxious, to take the responsibility of letting loose a war that might spread through Europe and beyond it.

NO FINANCIAL ADJUSTMENT WITH BRITAIN CONTEMPLATED

FOREIGN SECRETARY DISCUSSES THE LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN SPAIN

The Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, was closely questioned in the House of Commons yesterday in regard to the latest developments of the Spanish situation.

In reference to the decision by the German and Italian Governments to recognise General Franco's Government and to enter into diplomatic relations with them, and recalling the diplomatic missions hitherto accredited to the Spanish Government, he said that the attitude of the British Government remained as previously defined.

Major Attlee said that he took it from this reply that there was no intention of His Majesty's Government recognising General Franco and his belligerents. Mr. Eden pointed out that there was a distinction between the recognition of the belligerents and the recognition of any one side as the Government of Spain. On neither had he anything to add.

In reply to Mr. A.V. Alexander, (Labour), with regard to a statement reported in the press of the proposed blockade and possible bombardment of Barcelona, he said that Britain's position remained governed by the rules followed since the dispute began.

In regard to the protection of British shipping, the rules which normally governed International action in such matters would be pursued by His Majesty's Ships in defence of British interests.

In reply to further questions Mr. Eden said that there was no reason why the German and Italian action should invalidate the work of the non-intervention committee.

Questioned by Mr. Gallacher, (Communist), whether the declaration of these powers was not an open breach of non-intervention, Mr. Eden replied "certainly not". He added that it is quite possible to pursue a policy of non-intervention respecting the supply of arms while recognising a Government on one side or the other. So far as breaches are concerned there are other nations more to blame than either Germany or Italy. He went on to say that his information on the subject was now with the non-intervention Committee. When asked if he would seek a specific assurance that recognition by Germany and Italy did not mean that they held themselves free to supply arms,

Mr. Eden replied "certainly, our whole object is to see that non-intervention works."

It is understood that steps are to be taken to get into contact with representatives of Burgos's authorities regarding their announcement of war measures against Barcelona with particular reference to the provision of safety zones for shipping.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING

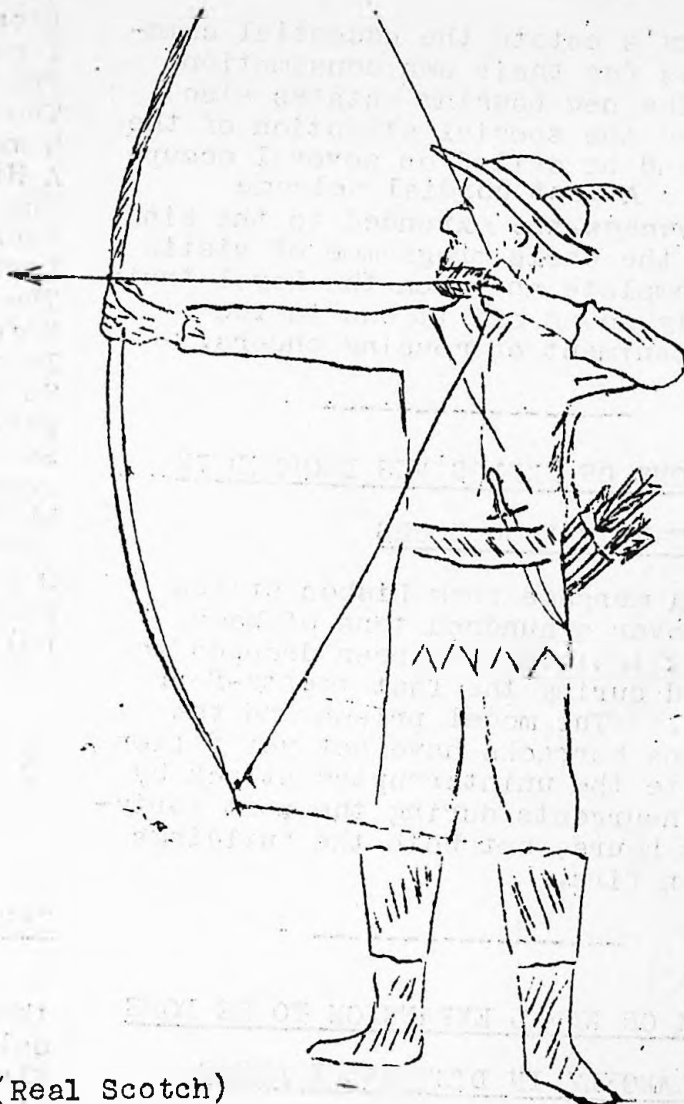

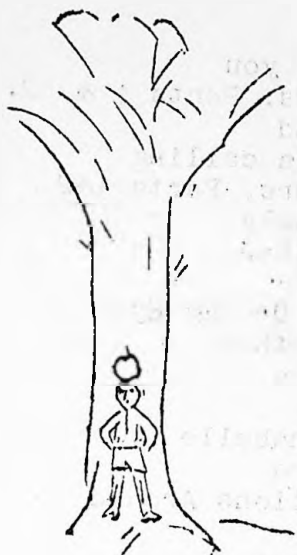

The King returned to London last night from his two days' tour of depressed areas of South Wales.

The scenes of enthusiasm which marked Wednesday's round of visits to small mining villages and large towns, were repeated yesterday. Everywhere vast crowds awaited the arrival of the Royal motor car and surged round the King who chatted freely with them.

During his brief stay at Cwmbran where the unemployment has been particularly severe the King was presented with an address by a group of unemployed men with whom he talked. It solicited support for various work projects in the district.

Later, in conversation with the clerk to the Blaenavon Council, the King said "My Ministers are giving serious consideration to such objects as the introduction of new industries in these once busy areas.", and to the Chairman of the Unemployment Committee in Blaenavon he said "something will be done about unemployment." The King showed a keen interest in the numerous activities at work in the area for finding employment and providing recreation and physical training for those out of work and especially those promoted by the unemployed themselves. He spent some time examining the work of the Eastern Valley Subsistence Production Society whose members, unemployed men, are enabled to produce on the

WORK ON NAVAL EXPANSION TO BE DONE LARGELY IN DISTRESSED AREAS

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Samuel Hoare, announced in a speech in London yesterday that arrangements were being made for the greater part of the work in connection with naval expansion to be done in the depressed areas.

In regard to the general problem he emphasised the difficulties which it presented and added that the main aim of the Government was to conduct the country's affairs so that business would improve, the demand for labour would increase, and gradually the stagnant pools of labour in those unfortunate districts would be emptied by a normal demand for more labour in other districts.

Rome Italy does not intend to leave the non-intervention committee as a result of her recognition of Franco's Government. It is denied that Italy intends to blockade Spanish ports still in the hands of the Spanish Government but she will, if necessary, take drastic measures to defend the rights and interests of her nationals in Spain. Italian warships are standing by at Barcelona and other ports.

THE "GREAT BRITAIN"

By Hugh Boyd.

The following extract is taken from the P.S.N.C. Magazine "Sea Breezes" dated July, 1936.

"There has been no vessel that traded to Australia, which was more popular and had a longer career between England and Australia than the "Great Britain". Her name was a household one, and thousands of Australians are proud that they have had associations with such a wonderful ship.

Most of the writers of shipping history have always referred to the "Great Britain", but her later history - 1852 to 1875 - is generally omitted. She had the distinction of being the first iron steamship of any size, and also to be the first screw vessel to cross the Atlantic. Started in 1839 as a paddler and completed in 1843 as a screw steamship, the "Great Britain" did not impress the Americans when she crossed the Atlantic rigged with six masts. After her long detention on the Irish coast at Dundrum Bay, and later out of commission in the Mersey, she was submitted to auction, but who wanted the vessel? The reserve not being reached, she was withdrawn, only to have a further turn of idleness, until in 1850 she was bought by Messrs. Gibbs, Bright and Co., to be fitted out for the Australian trade. She was altered entirely out of recognition, and when completed she emerged as a four-master, with two funnels abreast of each other.

Her appointments were considered luxurious, and she possessed a grand saloon, state and smoking rooms, lounge with a piano - something unique in those days - and had accommodation for 730 passengers and the ship's company. Before being placed in the Australian trade, she made one trip to New York, and it was regretted that she was not to be permanently employed in the Atlantic trade.

She left Liverpool, under the command of Captain B.R. Mathews, 21st August, 1852, for Melbourne, carrying 630 passengers and a crew of 137, and she carried a full cargo. She also took a consignment of gold and silver specie.

When in latitude 24 degrees 21 S., the engineer reported that coal was running short, and she was then 840 miles from Table Bay and a great gale was running at the time. It was decided to return to St. Helena - 4,036 miles distant - which she did under reduced steam, and her sails, which comprised 13,000 yards of canvas.

After several days' detention she left St. Helena for Capetown, and from thence on 17th of October, and made a smart trip, 25 days Capetown to Melbourne. The entire voyage took 31 days, and she arrived at Port Philip Bay 11th November 1852, and received a great reception. On that trip she proceeded to Sydney, arriving there 20th November, and thousands awaited her arrival in Neutral Bay. The P. & O. pioneer Australian steamer "Chusan", 699 tons, was also at anchor and looked very diminutive when near the "mammoth" "Great Britain", 3,500 tons.

She returned to Melbourne and left for Liverpool in January, 1853, with a big passenger list and a large cargo. On her arrival at Liverpool, she underwent a change in her rig and was altered to ship rig - 3 masts - and had only one funnel, a rig which was characteristic throughout her Australian career.

She arrived at Melbourne 16th October the following year, after a voyage of 66 days, and her third voyage, under the command of Captain John Gray, was, singularly, the same number of days. Another voyage, when she arrived at Melbourne, 19th April, was even better - 62 days; and her sixth voyage, Liverpool to Melbourne, was 55 days. Most of her subsequent passages were from 55 to 64 days, and on 19th September, 1872, she accomplished the journey in 54 days.

When she arrived at Port Philip Bay, she "camped" off Williamstown, instead of berthing at the piers, and the various boatmen did a thriving trade with passengers and the crew. In 1855, the "Great Britain" was diverted from the Australian trade and was engaged in transporting troops to the Crimean War, and again in 1857 - 1859 she made several voyages with troops in connection with the Indian Mutiny.

The "Great Britain" was commanded by Captain Bernard R. Mathews on her first two voyages and then Captain John Gray, R.N.R. became her commander, until his mysterious disappearance on 26th November, 1872. When the vessel was 30 days out from Melbourne, the popular Captain's servant went to call him in his room, but it was empty. Failing to find the Captain, he gave the alarm, and a thorough search was made all over the vessel but no trace of Captain Gray was to be found. His cabin was at the stern, the windows of which were large and square with brass mountings. No satisfactory conclusion of his disappearance was obtained and his loss was deplored by a large circle of friends, and the "Liverpool Mercury", in narrating his death, described him as a "self-made man who never forgot the class from which he sprang and was always kind and generous to those who served under him, the beau ideal of a merchant captain - brave, skilful, manly and resourceful." He had been second officer on the first voyage and had spent 20 years of his life on the one ship. Captain Charles Chapman was appointed his successor, an appointment much desired and expressed by Captain Gray during his lifetime.

Even when more modern vessels - sail and steam - crossed the ocean to Australia, the "Great Britain" continued to be well patronized with passengers and cargo, and she took much gold away. One voyage she had 28,700 ounces and later another consignment of 118,559 ounces. She arrived at Melbourne 26th May, 1873 with 60 saloon and 330 second saloon passengers, after a voyage of 57 days, and in the same year she reached Melbourne 27th December from Liverpool with many saloon passengers and a large number of emigrants for Queensland. After a brief stay in port, she continued her voyage to Brisbane and made a smart trip along the Australian coast, many Australians availing themselves of the opportunity of travelling in the "Celebrated", as she was always designated, "Great Britain".

Altogether the "Great Britain" made 32 voyages to Australia and when she sailed on her last trip in 1875, it was not known she was making a final visit, otherwise she would have received a great farewell. She left Melbourne for Liverpool 27th November and arrived in the Mersey after a passage of 66 days. She was then laid up at Birkenhead for some years, but her career had not ended. In 1882, she was sold and relieved of her engines and converted into a "ship", and had a hull sheathed with wood for preservation, at great expense. Her career as a sailer has been frequently recorded, and her last voyage was started in May, 1806, when she left for San Francisco, but had to put into Port Stanley leaking, and after being surveyed she was detained there and finally became a hulk. She has been one of the sights of that port, and it was hoped that she would have survived the century, but her days have ended, and the executioner has started to dismantle the famous vessel, which in years to come will always be referred to by writers of ships and their stories.

Although as an Atlantic liner she was a "White Elephant", she became the most successful and profitable vessel that has ever traded to Australia and one which had the longest career. In her time she carried thousands of passengers and among them many celebrities, in the days when luxuries of present day travelling were unknown, and did much to cement the ties between England and her Australian Colonies, which will never be forgotten, even by the coming generation.

And the fine old ship - part of her, at least - is still on service far away. For fifty years her hull was used as a floating wool hulk at Port Stanley, and now her owners, the Falkland Islands Company, are sending her to one of their up-country sheep farms, to form part of a bridge across the river."

PROPOSED BLOCKADE AND POSSIBLE BOMBARDMENT OF BARCELONA

Asked by the Leader of the Opposition, Major Attlee, if he had any information "regarding the proposed blockade and possible bombardment of Barcelona", the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Eden, in the House of Commons yesterday said that he had received no communication about the blockade but that the Government did receive last Tuesday a communication from Purgos's administration regarding the possible bombardment of Barcelona. Mr. Eden read the document, which alleged that war material had been transferred to Barcelona in Russian and Spanish ships flying different flags, and declared the intention of preventing this traffic by every possible means of war even to the destruction of the port. All foreign shipping was therefore warned of the desirability of abandoning it in a very short time to avoid being unintentionally damaged on the occasion of military action of which no further warning would be given and foreigners and non-combatants in Barcelona were warned to leave the town and particularly the areas near the port. Mr. Eden stated that on receipt of this communication the British Ambassador at Hendaye was instructed to get into touch with Purgos's authorities and request that they should guarantee security in certain recommended anchorages in respect of Barcelona as they had already done at Tarragona, Valencia, Alicante and other ports. The Ambassador was also to request that before operations were commenced proper time should be allowed for the evacuation of British residents. The Consul General at Barcelona and the British naval authorities in the Mediterranean had been kept informed. Asked by Major Attlee whether as these people are rebels without any status in International Law, action of the kind indicated would not be mere piracy, Mr. Eden pointed out the desirability of distinguishing carefully between the position of British ships on the high seas and the position of such ships in foreign ports which might be the scene of military operations. At the present time, he added, Britain had not accorded belligerent rights to either side.

CORRESPONDENCE

M.V. "GENTOO"

Stanley,
23rd November, 1936.
To The Editor,
"Penguin"

The m.v "Gentoo" left Pebble Island for Port San Carlos this morning taking Mrs. A.G. Barton, Master Michael Barton, and Miss Doris Parker, as passengers.

Sir,
re. The Goal Kick

Under a new rule passed by the Football Association during the past close season, the Goal Kick must be taken direct from the ground, i.e. not passed to the Goalkeeper as before.

THE "PREFECTO GARCIA"

The "Prefecto Garcia" arrived at Pebble Island at 5 a.m and

An important part of the new rule is that if the ball is not kicked beyond the Penalty Area it must be re-taken. Under another rule a player is allowed to stand ten yards from the ball when the kick is taken.

SOUTH GOERGIA NEWS

The "Feder Bogen" arrived at South Georgia from Aruba with fuel oil yesterday morning. The floating factory "Svend Foyn" and seven whale catchers, the whale catcher " H.J. Bull", and the "Sahra" left for the ice yesterday morning.

Referees want to know if a player is allowed to take up this position, and what would happen if he intercepts a goal-kick which would have landed the ball over the Penalty Line.

Here is the answer by Mr. W.
Pickford, Senior Vice-President of the Football Association and an accepted authority on all F.A. law.
"A player may stand in the area as before, not nearer than ten yards from the ball. If the ball hits him and goes on over the Penalty Line the kick must stand. If it is intercepted and does not go over the line it must be re-taken."

Another new rule is "A player must not attempt to kick the ball out of the Goal-keeper's hands when he is fielding it."

I am,
Sir,
Yours truly,
(Sgd.) "Referee"

London Mr. Eden stated in the House of Commons yesterday that the Japanese Government had sent a reply to his representations regarding the ill-treatment of three British naval ratings by Japanese such an unpleasant incident should have occurred, and stated that further inquiries were being made in the light of the Report of the British Naval Court of Inquiry held at Hong Kong. Pending the receipt of a satisfactory final reply from the Japanese Government,

Mr. Eden added, "I am unable to regard the incident as closed."

POLICY OF HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT

The Foreign Secretary, Mr. Eden, in reply to a question in the House of Commons yesterday said that "the policy of His Majesty's Government is to take no part in the Spanish war and to give no assistance to either side in the struggle. In pursuance of this policy the Government have been considering the further importation of arms into Spain by sea and the problems arising therefrom. The Government have not so far accorded belligerent rights at sea to either side and they have no present intention of according such rights. As a consequence His Majesty's ships will, should it prove necessary, protect British merchant ships on the high seas against interference by ships of either party engaged in the conflict in Spain outside the three mile limit. At the same time it is not the intention of the Government that British shipping should carry war material from any foreign port to any port in Spain. In order to make this as effective as possible in the circumstances, the Government intend to introduce legislation, immediately rendering the carriage of arms to Spain by British ships illegal, and I take this opportunity of warning all British shipping accordingly."

In a supplementary question Mr. Eden was asked whether British ships would be handicapped in relation to ships of other countries. Mr. Eden replied "It is not a question of handicap. It is a question of carrying out the policy of the Government."

TO PROHIBIT THE SHIPMENT OFARMS TO SPAIN

With the intention of making Britain's bona fides clear a Bill prohibiting the shipping of Arms to Spain will be drafted ready for introduction on Wednesday.

The Bill will make it a criminal offence for a British vessel to carry arms to any Spanish port from any other port in any part of the world.

At present the British Government has effective powers only to prevent the export of arms from Britain, whereas the Government has on several occasions recently received reports alleging that British ships are being used to carry arms from foreign ports to Spain.

The penalties under this Bill will be monetary and heavy enough to deter owners. The definition of what constitutes munitions of war will be identical with the list drafted by the Non-intervention Committee.

It is understood that there is every likelihood of France imposing a similar regulation.

Mr. Eden's announcement of legislation to make the carriage of arms to Spain illegal has been received with pleasure in Italy, Germany and France. "A sign of good-will" was the description given to the move by Berlin. French authoritative circles described it as "a very wise measure" while Rome approves it as a necessary extension of non-intervention.

The twelfth meeting of the Chairman's sub-Committee for the application of the Agreement regarding non-intervention in Spain was held at the Foreign Office yesterday evening.

The Sub-Committee had under consideration the conclusions submitted by their technical advisers on certain questions which they had referred to them at their last meeting. The members of the Sub-Committee agreed to obtain as soon as possible the views of their respective Governments on these technical questions with a view to their further consideration at the next meeting of the Sub-Committee on Friday.

REGARDING AUSTRIA

In a written reply to a Parliamentary question Mr. Eden says that the undertaking given by the Government on February 3rd, 1935, that they consider themselves to be among the powers which will, as provided in the Rome Agreement of January 1935, consult together if the independence and integrity of Austria is menaced, is still operative. The powers in question are initially France, Italy, the United Kingdom and Austria, with the possibility of extension to other powers as provided in the final sentences of the Rome protocol regarding central Europe and in particular Austria.

INFANT WELFARE CLINIC

On the 1st of November, 1935, an Infant Welfare Clinic was started at the K.E.M. Hospital for the purpose of assisting mothers in the management of their children from birth to five years of age. Every Friday afternoon the mothers and their children foregather at the Hospital quite regardless of the inclemency of the weather. The importance of breast feeding is emphasised, as it is of prime importance with regard to the future health of the child. The value of fresh milk, green vegetables, eggs and cod liver oil is stressed in order to ensure steady growth and good teeth. Mothers are advised to make their children rest at mid-day, and to put them to bed early in order not to use up too much of the vital energy of the developing child.

Up to the 1st of November, 1936, one hundred and eight infants have been entered on the books, there have been five hundred and forty-four repeat visits, making a total of six hundred and fifty-two visits to the Clinic. In addition, the nursing staff have made one hundred and twenty-six visits to the children in their own homes, making the total number of visits both in hospital and in the town to be seven hundred and seventy-eight. These attendances are very satisfactory and more than justify the establishment of such a clinic.

In order to foster further interest in this work, it has been decided to hold a Baby Show on Saturday, the 19th of December at 2.30 p.m. The entrance will be divided into six classes the winners of which will be eligible for the seventh class, the Champion Baby.

- Class 1. Infants up to six months
- Class 2. Six months to twelve months.
- Class 3. Twelve months to two years.
- Class 4. Two years to three years.
- Class 5. Three years to five years.
- Class 6. Premature and delicate babies.
- Class 7. Champion Baby.

Prizes will be given to the winning baby of each class and a special prize for the Champion Baby.

Several ladies in the Town have kindly consented to help the Hospital staff in the judging and the Senior Medical Officer will act as Referee.

It is hoped that it will be possible to obtain the use of the Gymnasium. Tea will be provided free of charge.

Entrance forms may be obtained from the Matron at the Hospital. Final date of entry 11th of December, 1936.

NO SUBMARINES FOR SPANISH WATERS

The departure of the submarine depot ship "Cyclops" from Malta yesterday is described by the Admiralty as merely a routine sailing to relieve H.M.S. "Woolwich" at Alicante. The Admiralty adds that there is no question of any submarines having gone to Spanish waters and the report that they have done so may have arisen from the fact that some submarines accompanied the "Cyclops" from the port with the object of conducting exercises after which they will return to Malta. All naval leave was stopped and the Boxing tournament which it had been planned to hold last night for the entertainment of the British fleet was cancelled at the eleventh hour.

CO-OPERATION WITH BRITAIN ADVISABLE

The Chief Economic Adviser to His Majesty's Government, Sir Frederick Leith Ross, referred to his recent mission to the Far East, in London yesterday afternoon.

Dealing with Japan he said that there was a growing recognition that co-operation with the United Kingdom was desirable and it was much hoped there that some understanding could be arrived at.

In China during the past few years the central Government had initiated and carried out schemes of reform and development on a large scale. Administrative measures had been taken which circumscribed the damage caused by smuggling. The danger of civil war in the south-west had been eliminated by agreement and the National Government was now in full authority over the whole of China. There was much yet to be done. Currency reform required completion by the re-organisation of the Central Bank. The Budget needed to be balanced and the public services reformed and

NO REPLY TO BRITAIN'S INQUIRY

The British Government's request for information regarding safe anchorage at Barcelona, which was addressed to General Burgos's authorities after the receipt of their recent warning of their intention to bombard that port, has not yet been answered.

General Franco's reply repeats what had already been stated with regard to safety zones at Tarragona, Valencia, Alicante and Cartagena.

The British Ambassador at Hendaye, Sir Henry Chilton, has now asked for precise information on the position at Barcelona as early as possible.

The Foreign Secretary's statement in the House of Commons on Monday, foreshadowing legislation to make it illegal for British merchant ships to carry arms to Spanish ports, has been communicated to the Spanish Government and to General Franco.

£2,000,000 FOR OXFORD UNIVERSITY

The congregation at Oxford yesterday afternoon was taken completely by surprise when Lord Nuffield announced that he would add a further £750,000 to his recent gift to the University making a total of £2,000,000. He stated that he had only heard yesterday morning that the money was insufficient for the full development of the University Medical School on the lines he had intended.

AIR FORCE EXPANSION SCHEME

The Under-Secretary for Air, Sir Philip Sassoon, in a speech in London yesterday said that the development of the Air Force expansion scheme coincided with a period of unusual progress in the performance and design of aeroplanes and engines. How good these aircraft were was demonstrated by the fact that so many foreign nations were anxious to secure examples of them though they knew that they would have to wait a very long time for them.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN TREATY OF FRIENDSHIP

The Foreign Secretary, Mr. Eden, in asking the House of Commons to approve the ratification of the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty of Friendship and Alliance signed in London on the 26th of August said that the Treaty is the outcome of many years of history and of many months of arduous negotiations. The difficulties confronted during the negotiations were only overcome by the active desire on both sides to reach an agreement and as a result, happily they believe both for Egypt and for the United Kingdom, the agreement was reached and was embodied in the Treaty.

Mr. Eden reviewed the earlier attempts to negotiate the Treaty and said that on this occasion they decided to begin with those clauses in the Treaty the negotiation of which had created most difficulties before - the military clauses and the clause relating to the Sudan. Further, on this occasion the British Government were able to negotiate with Egyptian negotiators representing the united front in Egypt formed for the purpose of negotiation and of carrying it through - which may be of considerable importance when the time comes to bring the Treaty into operation. Again, the negotiations on this occasion took place in Cairo and the Egyptian negotiators were thus able to keep in close touch with their own advisers and all sections of Egyptian opinion without displacing the administration of the country meanwhile. The Treaty was a practical arrangement of an agreement in which each of the parties, by protecting its own interests and respecting the interests of the other, had jointly striven to promote good.

He paid tribute to the determination and good-will shown by the Egyptian Prime Minister in the negotiations and recalled his speech in the Chamber in Cairo in which he said "from its inception the Wafd have had as their programme an Agreement with Great Britain, realising the complete independence of Egypt and the safeguarding of British interests which are not incompatible with that independence," and later "the United Kingdom has a particular interest in guaranteeing freedom of navigation in the Suez Canal inasmuch as it constitutes an artery of British communication," and again "It is a piece of good fortune for Egypt to conclude an alliance with the United Kingdom, a power strong on land and on the sea and in the air."

A VILLAGE MATCH

(Contributed)

In a small South-coast village there is played annually a "needle" cricket match between Miss Brown's Riding School for Young Ladies and Mrs. Robertson's village team. The male staff of the School, riding-master, grooms and stable-lads, numbers seven, the other four places being filled (by invitation) from the adjacent Town Club for which I was this season playing.

Having once bogged a horse between Darwin and San Carlos I was considered duly qualified to play for the Riding School and so to acquire my first taste of English village cricket.

Being the event of the year in those parts, great arrangements had been made for our entertainment - a really staggering tea, a bathe, a cocktail and a light supper after the game, followed by a Dance in the village hall. This triumph of organization and hospitality was somewhat offset by our hostesses omitting to provide (a) balls, (b) wicket-keeping gloves, (c) score-book. But, after all, one cannot think of everything!

Wickets were pitched in a meadow with a scythed patch 30 yards square, thus allowing the bowler a clear four yards "run-up". If he required more he had a few yards of ankle-high grass to negotiate, and if his run was very long indeed he started off in entanglements reaching to his knees. In the boundary regions the grass grew to unchecked heights in a sort of jungle which lost itself in a swamp on two sides and some builder's excavations on the others.

The rules were that if you hit the ball into the wilderness you could run 6, and no more, after which you joined in the general search. If the ball were not found in 5 minutes you were "out". A singular piece of legislation.

We won the toss and, the start having been fixed for 2 o'clock sharp, our leading batsman from the Town Club and the junior groom opened the innings at 3.30. The latter borrowed my bat, pads and gloves (I was batting number 4), confidently assuring me that he would certainly be out in the first over. But he wasn't, and so at the fall of the second wicket I too went in in borrowed plumes and with a strange weapon in hand.

We made 94, of which the junior groom contributed a cheerful 40, though my own pleasure at his success was qualified by his breaking my bat in the process.

Our Town quartet did not shine - a circumstance partly explained by the vagaries of the wicket (we had been accustomed to playing in pampered ease on a ground selected by the County for two first-class matches during the season), and partly by the curious views of the umpires regarding the L.B.W. rule. I had the further plausible excuse of being handicapped by pads which had apparently been constructed for a Goliath.

94 may be considered a small or a large total, according to the way you looked at it. On the one hand, a moderate 40-yard swipe was as likely as not to result in 6 runs while the frenzied fielders explored the undergrowth with sinking hopes and a good deal of profanity; on the other hand, there was a convenient hoof-mark just where our slow bowler was accustomed to pitching four balls out of ten. (In passing, it may be mentioned that our opponents had scorned to take advantage of this, being stolidly convinced, to a man, of the efficacy of pace, sheer pace, and plenty of it). Further, there was always the chance that the umpires' interpretation of the L.B.W. rule would be as loose for the remainder of the afternoon as it had been before tea.

Things went well for us; we bowled a 'Varsity man off his ear, and ran the blacksmith out by a full 12 yards; 9 wickets down for 66, and the match was as good as over. Then, like the ranks of Tuscany of old, we found ourselves surprisingly held up by a gentleman in Palm-beach trousers and singlet, and the waiter from the nearby road-hotel, complete with dickey, bow-tie and cycle trouser clips. Slowly the score moved into the 80's, and it was again anybody's match.

Then it finished!

A great towering drive from the waiter went sailing in the direction of long-off. I was fielding at long-on and started off across the line of the ball, plunging through the entangling undergrowth in the manner of a champion high-stepping carriage pony and taking a small ditch in my stride. With a last despairing gasp I shut my eyes and threw out my hands - and the ball stuck! We had won by 8 runs.

It was a very glorious moment.

TORPEDO ATTACK ON SPANISHWARSHIP ?

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Samuel Hoare, in reply to a question in the House of Commons yesterday, stated that the reports received from H.M.S. "Glow-worm" indicated that the Spanish Government warship "Miguel de Cervantes" was damaged at the entrance to Carthagena Harbour on November 22nd and that the damage was consistent with a torpedo attack.

Mr. Noel Baker, (Labour), referred to the reports that the Spanish Government had obtained pieces of the torpedo which caused the damage and asked if it was not of vital interest to the powers, including Britain, that the facts of this case should be established? Sir Samuel Hoare replied "It is of vital interest to the British Government that we should not interfere. I have no information to justify my expressing any opinion about the matter."

RATIFICATION OF ANGLO-EGYPTIAN TREATY OF FRIENDSHIP

The motion for the ratification of the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty of Friendship and Alliance, which was passed in the House of Commons on Tuesday night without division, was debated last night in the House of Lords.

Lord Plymouth, in moving the motion for the ratification, said that there had been goodwill and give-and-take on both sides in reaching the agreement, and he honestly believed that if the Treaty was implemented in the spirit in which it was negotiated he foresaw an era of prosperity and fruitful co-operation between Great Britain and the Egyptian people.

In reviewing the principal provision of the Treaty he remarked that the obligations placed on the high contracting parties to assist each other in time of war meant that the British Government must support the Egyptian Government in defending Egypt from invasion. It was, of course, for Egypt to defend her own territory but the British Government would assist in that task under this Treaty, as an ally.

Egypt did not undertake to send Egyptian troops outside Egypt to protect British territory. That was more than could be asked of Egypt at present. For the defence of the canal the forces of the British Empire and of Egypt were to act in co-operation. The canal, Lord Plymouth added, was on Egyptian territory, and the defence of the canal as that of other parts of her territory was an Egyptian responsibility, in which as an ally Great Britain would co-operate. The leaders of the opposition parties warmly supported the motion.

Lord Snell, Labour, said that the Treaty sought to end the old and trying embarrassment and to begin a long, happy, and increasingly advantageous relationship.

After paying tribute to the services of Lord Cromer, Mr. Arthur Henderson, and Lord Lloyd in regard to Egypt, Lord Snell said that it was worthy of note that at a time of repression of liberties throughout the world, England should choose this moment to seal a Treaty of self-Government, and he hoped that their principles of democratic freedom would be justified by the results.

The Marquis of Crewe, (Liberal), expressed his keen satisfaction at the conclusion of the Treaty.

A LUCKY PHILATELIST

Stamp Sold For 120,000 Times Its Cost

At Ascuncion, Paraguay, a philatelist has sold a stamp from his collection for 120,000 times more than he paid for it.

He was revising his stock of duplicates when he found, in a sheet of 5 centavo air mail stamps a rare philatelic error consisting in the omission of the word "Aereo" from the overprint which normally reads "Correro Aereo".

Only nineteen copies of this error exist, of which no more than eleven are known to be in circulation. The remaining eight were used in the mails and probably lost to collectors. The trade catalogue price for this rarity is £50. The copy just found has been sold for £25.

As the original cost of this stamp was one twentieth of a penny, the lucky finder sold it for 120,000 times its first cost.

KING'S LAND AS PLAYGROUND

King Edward has given permission for the Corporation of Dorchester to lease from the Duchy of Cornwall an area of five to six acres of Poundbury, an ancient earthwork west of the town, for use as a children's playground.

The land is to be leased at a small rental, and it is the King's wish that there shall be incorporated in the lease an option to purchase at a price based on that rental. This will enable the town to have a playground in perpetuity. His Majesty's decision, which was reached at a recent meeting of the council of the Duchy, has just been announced.

CONSIDERATION OF BRITISH FILMS

The report of the Committee appointed by the President of the Board of Trade to consider the position of British films, having in mind the approaching expiry of the Cinematograph Films Act, and to advise whether any, and if so what, measures are still required in the public interest to promote production, renting, and exhibition units, with a view to taking such steps as may be practicable to prevent the control from passing into foreign hands.

The Committee suggests that the Government should take such steps as may be practicable to encourage financial interests and to constitute one or more organisations to finance British film production in approved cases on reasonable terms.

On the main question the Committee finds that the requirement of quotas on renting and the exhibition of films should continue for a further period of ten years.

NATIONALIST PROTEST DEMONSTRATIONS

It is reported from Sofia that Nationalist protest demonstrations against the peace treaty of Neuilly marked the seventeenth anniversary of the signing of this Treaty between Bulgaria and allied powers yesterday.

Although the police had forbidden all assemblies and demonstrations, the Nationalist crowds paraded in the streets, while placards reading "Down with France" "Down with Neuilly" were displayed from the houses.

Most of the demonstrations during the day were dispersed easily by the police but the situation became more disorderly towards the evening when thousands of students, members of the Nationalist organisations, assembled on the main boulevard where speeches denouncing the Treaty restrictions were delivered.

A Company of mounted police finally succeeded in dispelling the demonstrators. In the course of the day forty persons were arrested for resisting the police or for distributing revisionist pamphlets.

1ST STANLEY BOY SCOUT TROOP CAMP

It was decided to hold a week-end Camp for the Patrol Leaders and Seconds from Friday night, November 27th, until Sunday, November 29th. The site selected was a small clearing in the rocks between Fairy Cove and the Defence Force Artillery Target. The party consisted of Rover Scout N.A. Gurney, Rover Sea Scout T. Hennah, Sydney Barnes, an old Scout, Patrol leader K. Lellman, Patrol Leader N. Paice, Patrol Leader W. Roberts, Patrol Second B. McAtasney, Patrol Second D. Harris, Patrol Second P. Biggs.

Rover Scout E. Lellman joined the party on Saturday. The Rover Sea Scouts under Rover Scout Leader H. Evans very kindly offered to take the whole party with their gear over to the jetty at Fairy Cove in their boat "Sea Wolf". Owing to the size of the party & the amount of gear required, two journeys were necessary. Sydney Barnes also took a load across in his pram. The passengers and gear were all landed safely and a reconnaissance of the site made.

It was a strenuous job carrying all the gear up the hill to the Camp site and by the time it was finished and the tents pitched, all hands were ready for the food, skilfully prepared by the cooks of the evening.

We turned in feeling that we could quite easily sleep the clock round. After a somewhat chilly night we turned out and having performed our ablutions in a small pond, sat down to a hearty breakfast of porridge and coffee.

The morning's work consisted of making the Camp as comfortable as possible. A small shelter was

GERMAN SUBMARINE DISASTER

It is reported from Berlin that the submarine U 18, which sank off Lubeck a week ago, was towed to Kiel on Saturday where the funeral of the eighteen victims of the disaster will take place to-day.

APPALLING CATASTROPHE FACINGCIVILIAN POPULATION OF MADRID

Six members of the British House of Commons, including two Conservatives, one Liberal and three Labour Members, who have gone to Spain as a party of investigators, have communicated with His Majesty's Government through the British Embassy in Madrid as follows: "After spending some days at Barcelona and at Valencia, the seat of the Spanish Government, and in Madrid, where we have been accorded the fullest facilities that circumstances have permitted, to acquaint ourselves with the situation, we venture to issue an appeal. We doubt if the magnitude of the appalling catastrophe that faces the civilian population of Madrid is generally realised. We make no comment upon the military situation, but the city of a million inhabitants is being subjected to an attack from the ground and from the air. It is so far infested that one road only is, and has been for twenty days past, open to the outside world. The improvised Government machine has its hands full and its resources pledged in the conflict. To the million inhabitants have been added hundreds of thousands of refugees. More than one quarter of the city is partially destroyed and is uninhabitable. The civilian casualties are very heavy. Already starvation is at work and epidemics seem inevitable. We urge the need of immediate and large-scale action by the neutral powers working through the International organization. The evacuation and partial maintenance of women, children, and non-combatants, is urgent in order to mitigate - it cannot prevent - unspeakable horrors."

SHIPBUILDING BOOMING NOW

On the Clyde shipbuilding is experiencing its best year since 1930. With a month still to run 1936 has already exceeded the tonnage output of any year since the boom period of 1927 - 1930. The best year of the past five years, 1934, has already been beaten by nearly 17,000 tons.

Ninety-two vessels of 283,622 tons have been launched.

During November eight ships of 38,640 tons were water borne.

This output was only exceeded in the month of August. The 300,000 ton mark will be exceeded easily this year.

REMARKABLE ADVANCE IN SURGERY ?

The newspapers on Saturday report that an operation has been performed in a Newcastle Hospital in a case of Angina Pectoris which, if finally successful, will constitute a remarkable advance in surgery.

The heart was joined to the vascular tissue through the diaphragm in such a way as to augment the blood supply. The patient, who is over 50 years of age, was operated on three weeks ago and is slowly recovering.

STEADY INCREASE IN POST OFFICEBUSINESS

The activities of the Post Office are linked so closely and at so many points with the complex of business relations that the movement of Post Office business provides a sensitive index of commercial conditions generally. It is noteworthy therefore that the steady growth of recent years has continued during the last Post Office Year for which the figures are now available.

The total value of the transactions with the public during 1935-1936 was of the order of £901,000,000, an increase of about £40,000,000 over the previous year.

The letter mails reached a new high record and parcels also showed a marked increase. Inland telegrams, after years of steady decline, reacted to the reduced tariff introduced in May 1935 and rose to £44,500,000 as compared with £35,500,000 in the year before. Telephone business further accelerated its growth.

It is reported from New York that Ross retained the world welter-weight championship on Saturday, defeating Jannazo, the New Yorker, in a gruelling fifteen rounds contest at the Madison Square Gardens.

The New York State Athletic Commission has ordered Madison Square for the 20th Century Sporting Club within a fortnight of the date of the Braddock-Schmelling title-fight.

London Returning prosperity is indicated by the re-opening of Bryant and May's steelworks at Glamorgan in the new year after being closed for seven years, while two Durham coal mines are re-commencing work this week.

erected round the galley for the cooks, and another to serve as a dining room. The Penola's jack-staff served as our flagstaff and the Union Jack was duly hoisted. Lunch was a great success. The duties of cook were carried out by each member of the party in turn and great talent was exhibited in this department.

After a short siesta, during which time we planned our Camp Fire items, we indulged in semaphore signalling until tea time. The ground was admirably suited for bridge building and after tea a "Monkey Bridge" was thrown across a "yawning chasm". A rough form of football before supper sharpened our appetites and everybody did full justice to the meal.

Having collected driftwood and diddle-dee for a Camp Fire a match applied to this heap of highly flammable material, provided us with ample warmth. Song and verses accompanied the conflagration, which was concluded with the ceremony of renewing our Scout Promise. Sunday morning dawned bright though somewhat chilly and after a liesurely breakfast the main party went out for a walk, whilst the cooks prepared the lunch. Billy Roberts constructed an excellent bridge practically single-handed and this provided endless entertainment for the rest of the party. Their capacity for crossing and re-crossing bridges seemed inexhaustible. After lunch we had a short service and then packed up our gear. Owing to weather conditions the Rovers were

TAX ON TOTALISATOR PROFITS

The income-tax authorities have decided to tax the totalisator profits of the Racecourse Betting Control Board which amounted to £261,099 last year and are anticipated to be larger for the present season.
 The Board deducts 10% of all Totalisator bets, distributing the profits for the benefit of racing and despite the tax it is expected that the grants will continue.

Money orders showed a small increase and the issue of Postal Orders was a new high record at over £311,000,000, with an approximate value of £81,000,000. The Savings Bank balances reached the record figure of £390,000,000. The increased sale of unemployment and health insurance stamps reflected the growth of the number of persons in employment.

PRINCIPAL OF LONDON UNIVERSITY DEAD

The tragic death of Sir Edwin Deller, Principal of London University, occurred yesterday. He was in robust health until Friday last, when, guiding a party of distinguished guests around the new University building, the company had to pass under scaffolding. A workman carrying a hod above, slipped, and fell into the midst of the group of guests, striking Sir Edwin whose spine was seriously injured, several other persons being hurt less seriously. Despite every attention Sir Edwin Deller ultimately succumbed, the injuries proving too severe to admit successful treatment.

CONTINUED EVACUATION OF BRITISH NATIONALS

The Foreign Secretary, in the House of Commons yesterday, stated that British warships would continue to evacuate British subjects from Spain when and where possible though those who remained had been warned that the facilities could not be assured indefinitely, but the British Government had recently given notice that they were no longer able to accept the responsibility for the evacuation of foreign nationals.

In accordance however with their humanitarian aims, they would continue to evacuate such persons as appeared to them to be deserving of their assistance, provided His Majesty's ships were available for the purpose. Moreover, the British diplomatic and consular officers in Spain were keeping in touch with the authorities on both sides in Spain and with the representatives of the International Red Cross Service, with a view to facilitating the evacuation of further members of the civilian Spanish population.

FIERCE BATTLE ON OUTSKIRTS OF MADRID

It is reported from Madrid that there was a fierce battle on the north-west outskirts of the city yesterday, the Insurgents determinedly attacked the Government forces. The attackers claim an advance of two miles.

A French air liner on the Paris to Oran route was mistaken for an insurgent bomber and was fired at with machine guns by a Government plane at Alicante. The pilot landed but was unable to continue, the passengers were unharmed. The service is probably to be abandoned. It is believed that the Government forces are organising a great counter-offensive with their first object Toledo, while both combatants are being largely reinforced by foreign volunteers.

CRYSTAL PALACE DESTROYED BY FIRE

As reported on Page two, fire broke out at the Crystal Palace yesterday. The latest press reports state that the flames were 300 feet high and were visible in eight counties and have destroyed the palace, which was built eighty-two years ago at a cost of £1,500,000. The fire was first noticed at 8 p.m. and within twenty minutes was blazing throughout the building. Despite fifty fire engines the transept collapsed, followed by the roof, the sparks reaching Beckenham two miles distant.

The Crystal Palace Orchestra, which was rehearsing, escaped shortly before the transept collapsed. The sky glare attracted thousands of spectators, the roads being congested, resulting in a wireless appeal to motorists to keep away. The blaze destroyed the great organ and the Baird television apparatus valued at thousands of pounds. Thousands of police were drafted into the area while the residents of Anerly Hill were warned to leave their houses fearing the collapse of the south tower. The possible collapse of the north tower threatened a block of the southern railway whose officials were prepared to stop the trains immediately. A Dutch air pilot reported having seen the flames from Margate.

FIRE STILL RAGES IN RUINS OF

THE CRYSTAL PALACE

The press last night stated that fires are still raging in the Crystal Palace ruins.
 Home Office experts are carrying out investigations to ascertain the cause of the outbreak, which the General Manager, Sir Henry Buckland, ascribes to a gas leakage.

The Palace Trustees will meet at the Guildhall to-morrow, but it is unlikely that any new building will be erected. Only £110,000 insurance was placed on the main buildings and is being paid in full, but the losses are much greater, including £20,000 worth of music.

Several 1937 national events have had to be cancelled, while the Christmas circus to be held there had been fully booked.

BATTLE RAGING IN MADRID

From Madrid it is learned that the greatest battle since the Insurgents attacked the capital, is continuing on a wide front to the north-west of Madrid.
 Aeroplanes and artillery are engaged on both sides, and the Insurgents' initial gains on Sunday apparently enticed the Governmen to open the combat. Both sides claim successes in other areas, while Alicante and Salamanca are being subjected to disastrous bombing raids.

APPEAL FOR NATIONAL UNITY

It is reported from Paris that a deputation from the Congress of the National Confederation of War Service ex-soldiers, representing 3,800,000, have submitted a resolution to President Lebrun urging national unity, and stating that the vast majority of Frenchmen were opposed to Dictatorship and the interference with other Governments' internal affairs. The Confederation has approved the Government's action regarding Spain.

UNVEILING OF TABLETS COMMEMORATINGTHE ABYSSINIAN CONQUEST

A message from Rome states that the Italian Chamber held what was probably the last meeting as now constituted, to unveil the tablets commemorating the Abyssinian conquest and the deputies lost in the campaign, on Monday.

The reorganisation of the Chamber is under consideration by the Fascist Grand Council but the Chamber was not dissolved on Monday as was anticipated.

After the meeting Signor Mussolini led the 400 deputies in an unexpected march through the streets at a running walk. The police hurriedly tried to divert the traffic to the side streets to make way for the panting politicians while camera-men raced ahead to photograph the unprecedented scene.

INCREASED UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFIT

A report from Wellington states that the Government has announced an increase in unemployment benefit by six shillings weekly for married unemployed and three shillings for single persons, while warning the able-bodied men that not accepting work at standard rates was being regarded as voluntary unemployment and therefore ineligibility for benefit. A Christmas bonus of £2 for married men and £1 for single men unemployed has been approved.

HIGHEST TIDES FOR 40 OR 50 YEARS

The highest tides for the past forty or fifty years are reported in the Thames estuary and from the east coast.

The Thames overflowed the embankment at Westminster at high tide yesterday afternoon. The low-lying parts of Southend were flooded and the main road between Ramsgate and Sandwich on the Kent coast was cut. Three recently vacated houses at Pakefield near Lowestoft were washed into the sea while the occupiers of other cottages threatened on the cliff edge hurriedly removed their furniture. The tide also flooded the pickling plots at Lowestoft, interrupting the work there and half submerging thousands of barrels of cured herrings.

The main railway line between Yarmouth and London was completely submerged near Wood Bridge and the expresses were held up until the water receded.

The riverside lawns and roads in the upper Thames valley at Twickenham, Richmond, and Kew, were under water for many miles and residents had to be conveyed from their homes in boats.

TO LOSE FRENCH CITIZENSHIP ?

A message from Paris states that in view of the large number of French nationals serving as volunteers in the ranks of the Spanish red army, the Right Wing Deputy, M. Vollin, has written a letter to the Premier, M. Blum, demanding that the clause of the law of 1927, which decrees that French nationals who enter military service abroad lose their French citizenship rights, should be rigorously applied in the future.

London According to the Daily Telegraph, official quarters admit that 6,000 Germans have landed in Spain and are concentrated at Seville, while unofficial sources state that these consist of Storm Troopers and regulars.

O B I T U A R Y

It is with deep regret that we have to record the death of Mr
M. Anderson who passed away yesterday, aged 85.

WORLD'S LARGEST WINDOW BOX

Nearly a Thousand Feet in Length

The largest window box in the world is being erected in London. It runs round the beautiful new Peter Jones building in Sloane Square and when completed it will be nearly a thousand feet long.

The Jubilee taught people what gaiety flowers can bring to the most work-a-day roads, and it is hoped that the Coronation festivities will see even more streets breaking into blossom. The new window box certainly sets a good example for it will bring a thousand feet of flowers into the heart of London.

At present half of the box is completed. When finished about fifteen hundred feet of copper and sixteen and a half tons of lead will have been used. The box, in the form of a narrow leaden trough, loops right round the building at first storey height. The lead sheets which form it are slightly shaped when the lead is cast, but the greater part of the moulding is done on the site by expert craftsmen. They work with a long, curiously-shaped tool, called a "dresser" and they are real artists at the job, producing the most exquisitely balanced curves and double curves as the box follows the line of the walls.

In a work of such length it is necessary to make provision for expansion and contraction owing to variations of temperature. Accordingly expansion joints were made every eight feet and concealed by square cover plates. These plates are detachable so that some day designs may be modelled on them and thus provide passers-by with a modern lead fresco as well as an unexampled display of flowers.

BRIGHTER BOOKING OFFICES

British Railway Companies have decided that their seventy-one offices in London, dealing with the issue of tickets and goods, shall have a standard design.

To obtain the best possible design the co-operation of the Royal Institute of British Architects is sought, and an open competition, for which all British architects are eligible, will be held. Prizes to the value of £500 are offered.

The companies are anxious to obtain a design which would immediately convey to the minds of the public that it was a joint railway office, and thus make it an easier matter for the public to identify such offices quickly.

THE INVENTOR OF KHAKI

There is no doubt that the inventor of khaki army uniforms was the late Sir Harry Lumsden, who, in 1840, when he was a subaltern, was entrusted with the formation of a Corps of Guides.

Failing to appreciate the virtues of a tight scarlet tunic, plus stock, as a garment in which to wage war in the hot plains of the Punjab, the young officer quickly came to the conclusion that the soldier would be better equipped for service in the field if clothed in a loose, cool uniform, that neither showed the dust nor stood out too conspicuously against the prevailing dun-coloured background.

He procured a supply of white cotton cloth, had it taken down to the river, well soaked, rubbed in the mud, dried and ironed, and cut into a loose blouse and shorts. With certain modifications of detail, this has remained the uniform of the Guides ever since, and the pattern upon which subsequent khaki uniform was founded.

AN EMPIRE OF TEA DRINKERS

No-one else in the world drinks tea on the same scale as the British do. In Great Britain we actually consume something like 53% of the world's annual supply.

In the British Empire we drink about 80% of that supply, leaving a mere 20% for the rest of the world.

ANGLO-ARGENTINE COMMERCIALAGREEMENT

The Anglo-Argentine Commercial Agreement was formally signed at the Foreign Office on Tuesday.

The signatories for the British Government were the Foreign Secretary and the President of the Board of Trade, and on behalf of the Argentine the Ambassador in London and the Argentine Ambassador to Paris.

The text will be published shortly.

DEBATE ON MERCHANT SHIPPING BILL

Intervening in the House of Commons debate on Tuesday on the Merchant Shipping Bill, the Foreign Secretary first turned to the position of Dominions shipping, which he thought had been confused by the Opposition. They had no reason, he stated, to believe that any Dominion ships were engaged in carrying arms to Spain, or in the likelihood of their doing so, but if there were any such likelihood they had no reason to believe that any Dominions Government would not co-operate with them in carrying out the policy of non-intervention. The position therefore, was that Dominion ships would be entitled to the protection of the British navy.

The Foreign Secretary went on to say that the normal practice in cases of civil conflict was to accord belligerent rights to both sides. It might be that at some stage of this conflict that belligerent rights would have to be accorded, but in the meantime the Government had not accorded that right but had announced that they proposed to protect British ships on the high-seas. The British Government had hoped that the non-intervention Agreement would have been well observed. If it had been the position would not have been necessary. Unfortunately all foreign countries were not carrying out the policy of non-intervention. Mr. Eden intimated that the Government thought it wrong that volunteers from any country should go to take part in the fighting in Spain. The British representative on the Non-intervention Committee would raise the matter at the next meeting of the Committee.

H O M E N O T E S

Elastic slotted through curtains and kept in place with a drawing pin at each end serves the same purpose as rods or wires.

When removing a saucepan from the fire run the cold water tap on the lid for a second before attempting to lift it, and so prevent burnt fingers.

When the children have outgrown their cot it can be made into a little garden seat for them. Remove one side, shorten the legs and, if shabby, give it a coat of paint. Cover the mattress with cretonne and make cushions to match.

Put a little sand into a bottle that needs cleaning and then shake it well with water, finishing by rinsing several times. You will find that the bottle will be perfectly spotless as a result.

Instead of using a fork, use a pair of sugar tongs for serving pickled onions. It is so much easier to get them out of the jar this way.

When icing sugar becomes lumpy you will find it much easier to use a grater to fine it down than by rubbing it through a sieve.

When one has to unscrew a tight-fitting top of a bottle the task is simplified if a rubber band is wound round to give a firmer grip.

The back seldom wears out of a wrap-overall, so why not convert it into a 'pinnette', binding it with coloured bias tape? The same tie strings can be used.

Before scalloping a hem first mark out the scallops, then machine right round the outline. In this way you will obtain a nice firmness that renders the task of scalloping much easier and imparts something of a professional touch to the job. It lessens the possibility of any tearing between the scallops, too.

SCHEME FOR SUPERVISION OF ARMSIMPORTED INTO SPAIN

A scheme for the supervision of arms imports into Spain at Spanish points of entry, by land and by sea, is to be submitted to the two sides in the Spanish conflict.

The twelfth meeting of the International Committee for the application of the Agreement regarding non-intervention in Spain was held at the Foreign Office yesterday morning.

Lord Plymouth reminded the Committee that subject to reference to their respective Governments they had already given their approval in principle to the scheme for the supervision by land and sea. For the United Kingdom Government, he was in a position to state that they had agreed to the scheme being sent to the two parties in Spain, and were prepared, provided the other Governments agreed, to co-operate in the scheme for the supervision of aircraft based on the principles of the plan which had been submitted to the Committee. He reminded the Committee that the document which it was proposed should be communicated to the two parties did no more than sketch in a broad outline the basis on which any actual system of supervision would be based. By forwarding it for acceptance by the parties they would in no way be committing their Governments in regard either to the total cost of the scheme or to the method of apportioning the cost or to other matters of detail. All the Committee would in fact be doing would be to affirm the willingness of their Governments to co-operate in the working out and the application of some scheme on the lines indicated provided that replies from both parties were favourable.

After a full exchange of views the Committee agreed to the immediate dispatch to the two parties in Spain of the plan for the supervision of the importation of arms and war materials into Spain at the principal points of entry by land and sea, which they had already approved in principle at the previous meeting.

The Portuguese representative declared that he was instructed to abstain from voting. Various representatives entered reservations in regard to the detail of the scheme and the apportionment of the cost.

The Committee further agreed to ask the United Kingdom Government to transmit the scheme to the two parties in Spain on their behalf.

The Chairman said that the United Kingdom Government were not satisfied with the working of the non-intervention Agreement. They were confident that it was in the interest of Europe and therefore of every country represented on the Committee that the Agreement should be scrupulously observed. He reminded the Committee that the United Kingdom Government was now taking steps to prohibit the carriage of arms and war material to Spain in British ships from foreign ports and suggested that other Governments should consider the question of taking similar action in so far as they had not done so already. Lord Plymouth added that the United Kingdom Government were anxious also regarding the reports of the arrival, in increasing numbers, of foreign volunteers in Spain. As Chairman of the Committee he had therefore asked the Chairman's sub-Committee to consider this question at their meeting on Friday.

CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUE BETWEEN

THE KING AND HIS MINISTERS UNRESOLVED

The King, who on Wednesday night after an audience with the Prime Minister went to Fort Belvedere his country house near Windsor and spent yesterday there, returned to Buckingham Palace shortly after half past eight yesterday evening.

A few minutes before that the Duke of York who earlier yesterday evening was visited by the Duke of Kent, drove to the Palace. Later the Duke went on to Marlborough House.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, arrived at Buckingham Palace at about 9.15 p.m., and was conducted to the King's apartments where he was received by His Majesty. After an audience of an hour Mr. Baldwin left the Palace. According to news reports, after receiving the Premier His Majesty proceeded to Marlborough House, the residence of Queen Mary.

Following this His Excellency said how pleased he was at being able to present the prizes this year, remarking that he had regretted having been unable to do so last year. He then went on to congratulate the children on their performance and said that the fact of their being so word perfect reflected much credit in their teachers. He expressed special pleasure at the strong note of patriotism, so characteristic of the Falkland Islands, which ran through their programme.

Speaking of the prizes he said that he had no doubt that there was some virtue in multiplicity of prizes but he would like to see recognition given to self-sacrifice and service to others which deserves the highest reward of all. It was his wish that each year the child who had been the best example to his or her fellow pupils should receive a prize which His Excellency would present.

The Governor said that the children had the finest example of self-sacrifice in their teachers as in all the teachers in the schools of that great Church to which they belonged. His only regret was that Father Migone was unable to be with them on that day and he prayed that he might be spared for many years to come.

In conclusion His Excellency wished every success for the future to St. Mary's School and all it stood for.

CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUE

Mr. Baldwin visited the House of Commons before returning to No. 10 Downing Street.

The Royal Family cancelled all their social and public engagements for yesterday evening. At Downing Street, where the Foreign Office and the Premier's residence are situated, the area was crowded until a late hour last night with people awaiting the latest news.

Public concern at the news of the constitutional issue which had suddenly arisen and the existence of which was first disclosed in a comment printed in yesterday's newspapers on the Premier's audience on Wednesday night with the King, was manifested yesterday by the large crowds which remained for hours outside Buckingham Palace. There was no meeting of the Cabinet yesterday but among the callers yesterday morning at No. 10 Downing Street were the Lord Privy Seal, The Home Secretary, the Chancellor of the Exchequer and Sir Archibald Sinclair, the Leader of the Liberal Party in the House of Commons.

The newspapers, in accounts of the events, which are being read anxiously by the public to whom the crisis has come as a complete surprise, stress the consultations which have taken place between Mr. Baldwin and the leader of His Majesty's opposition in the House of Commons, Major Attlee, as well as between the British Prime Minister and his Dominions colleagues. When Mr. Baldwin rose in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon to answer questions he was loudly cheered from all parts of the House. Major Attlee had given private notice to ask whether any Constitutional difficulties had arisen and whether the Premier had any statement to make. The following ensued:
Mr. Baldwin: "I have no statement to make to-day but whilst there does not at present exist any constitutional difficulty the situation is of such a nature as to make it inexpedient that I should be questioned about it at present." Major Attlee: "May I ask the Prime Minister whether in view of the anxiety in the minds of many people he can assure the House that he will make a statement at the earliest possible time it can be made?" Mr. Baldwin: "I have all that the Right Honourable gentleman has said very much in mind." Mr. Winston Churchill: "Would the Prime Minister give us an assurance that no irrevocable step will be taken before a formal statement has been made to Parliament?" Mr. Baldwin: "I have nothing to add to the statement I have made at this present moment but I will consider and examine the question my Right Honourable friend has asked."

The Duke and Duchess of York returned to London yesterday morning at the end of their visit to Edinburgh. They called at Marlborough House later and saw Queen Mary.

Messages from the Dominion capitals and from India indicate that consternation and grave anxiety have been created throughout the British Commonwealth by the news of the constitutional issues under discussion in London. A Canberra report states that the Commonwealth Cabinet has been summoned at short notice.

The Governor General of New Zealand, according to an Auckland press telegram, has interrupted his tour of South Island to return to Wellington.

The press received this morning states that the constitutional issue between the King and his Ministers is still unresolved and consultations on the questions involved continued until late last night and were resumed this morning.

The Home Secretary, Sir John Simon, called at No. 10 Downing Street and was for about half an hour engaged with the Prime Minister with whom he proceeded to the House of Commons where a meeting of the Cabinet was held. Both Houses of Parliament met at 11 o'clock this morning.

The King, who returned to Buckingham Palace last night, spent about five hours in London before motoring back to Fort Belvedere at 1.30 a.m.

The Dominions Governments have been in close consultation with the United Kingdom Government throughout the crisis through their representatives in London, and all developments are being fully reported to the Dominions capitals. When the House of Commons met this morning the Labour leader, Major Attlee again asked the Prime Minister whether he was in a position to make a statement on the constitutional position. The Prime Minister said "Major Attlee has been good enough to send me notice in the Cabinet Meeting where I was presiding that he was going to ask that question. I regret to say that at the moment I have nothing to add to what I said yesterday, while being just as alive to what was asked me yesterday as to the urgency of some decision being made known at the earliest possible moment." Mr. Churchill then said "May I repeat the question which I asked yesterday, and ask whether the Prime Minister can give an assurance that no irrevocable step will be taken before a formal statement is made to the House of Commons." Mr. Baldwin replied "I have nothing to add to what I said yesterday."

Sir Killian Davison asked "Can the Prime Minister say whether he hopes to be able to make a statement later in the sitting of the House to-day? It is very desirable that a statement should be made at the earliest possible moment." Mr. Baldwin replied "I am afraid that I cannot add anything to my statement." Mr. Tinker then said "Can the Prime Minister give us an indication as to when there is likely to be a statement as everybody is anxious to have something definite at the earliest possible moment." Mr. Baldwin said "I recognise that anxiety but I regret that I can say nothing more at the moment."

No reference was made to the constitutional issue in the House of Lords whose sitting lasted only a few minutes.

So far there has been no official statement as to the issues which have arisen between the King and his Ministers. The "Times" Parliamentary correspondent says that when matters have been made public it will probably be found that the King has expressed his desire to contract such a marriage as would require a special act of Parliament, and that he has himself taken the initiative in asking whether such a measure can be passed, and that the Ministers after full consideration and consultation have replied that in their opinion it is impossible. The Ministers have been asked a question and have given their answers. The Cabinet, which met at 11 a.m., was still in session at noon to-day.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH THEUNITED STATES

On a motion for the adjournment of the House of Commons on Thursday night a member asked for information as to the attitude of the Government regarding the negotiations with the United States for a Treaty for a mutual reduction of tariffs, and suggested that the impression had been created in interested circles in the States and in England that the Government were not at all anxious for an arrangement of that kind.

In reply, Captain Euan Wallace, the Secretary for Overseas Trade, said that he had not the slightest hesitation in making a reassuring statement for which the member had asked. It is not for one moment to be assumed that the Government are unwilling to enter into negotiations with the United States. On the contrary, they are very anxious to do so if a satisfactory basis for negotiations can be found. We have every reason to believe that the United States Government shares our view that the moment is not ripe for opening formal negotiations.

REDUCED PRICE OF DE HAVILANDHORNET MOTH PLANE

The de Haviland Company have made a cut of £100 in the price of the popular Hornet Moth Light Cabin bi-plane of which over a hundred are already in daily use all over the world.

At £775 the machine's detail and finish is stated to be even superior to the 1936 model. In touring form and with fuel on board for more than 600 miles non-stop in calm air, the Hornet Moth carries two persons and approximately 130 pounds of luggage at 18 miles to the gallon - a better fuel consumption rate than is reached by most medium or high-power automobiles.

It has a Gipsy Major 130 horse-power four-cylinder engine and cruises at about 105 miles an hour.

REGARDING SPANISH BANKNOTES

It is reported from Berlin that the Spanish Nationalist Government has issued a notification there that all Spanish banknotes circulating in Germany must be presented at the Spanish Consulate in the Reich before the 9th of December to be stamped as is being done in all other countries. Notes not stamped by that date are liable to lose their validity altogether.

A report from Paris is that Burgos has stated that the Nationalist Government has extended from December 8th to December 15th the period within which Spanish banknotes circulating in foreign countries must be presented at the Spanish Consulate there.

STATEMENT BY PRIME MINISTER

that the marriage of any other member of the Royal Family is null and void unless the Sovereign's consent, declared under the Great Seal, is first obtained. This Act therefore has nothing to do with the present case. The King himself requires no consent from any other authority to make his marriage legal, but as I have said, the lady whom he marries, by the fact of her marriage to the King, necessarily becomes Queen. She herself therefore enjoys all the status, rights, and privileges, which both by positive law and by custom attach to that position, and with which we are familiar in the cases of her late Majesty Queen Alexandra and Her Majesty Queen Mary, and her children would be in direct line of succession to the throne. The only possible way in which this result could be avoided would be by legislation dealing with a particular case. His Majesty's Government are not prepared to introduce such legislation - cheers - . Moreover the matters to be dealt with are of common concern to the Commonwealth as a whole and such a change could not be effected without the assent of all the Dominions. I am satisfied from enquiries I have made that this assent would not be forthcoming. I have felt it right to make this statement before the House adjourns to-day in order to remove a widespread misunderstanding. At this moment I have no other statement to make."

Major Attlee immediately rose and said "At this stage I think it would, even if time allowed, be undesirable to make any comment or to discuss the Prime Minister's statement - hear hear -. It is one to which we shall have to give our very gravest consideration." The House rose immediately.

The Cabinet was in session for two hours yesterday morning and it is thought likely that another special meeting may be held to-day. The Prime Minister visited Fort Belvedere yesterday evening where he was received by the King. When Mr. Baldwin left the Archbishop of Canterbury called and stayed with the King for half an hour. Mr. Baldwin on his return to London said that he was seeing the Home Secretary at 9.30 p.m.

The position last night was understood to be that no definite decision had been reached. Authoritative circles consider that Mr. Baldwin's statement in the House of Commons reduced the position to a clear-cut issue. It is not yet certain when the King's decision will be made known. It is understood that during last night's audience Mr. Baldwin discussed the views of the Dominions Governments with the King. The Archbishop of Canterbury's statement expresses the earnest hope that during this critical week-end, especially on Sunday, those who have the duty of speaking to the people from the pulpit or otherwise will refrain from speaking directly on the matters which have arisen affecting the King and his subjects "words spoken with an imperfect knowledge on an extremely difficult and delicate situation can give no helpful guidance and may only mislead or confuse public thought and feeling. Silence is fitting until the ultimate decisions are known." The Archbishop also hopes that prayers will be offered in all Churches on Sunday that God may in these momentous hours rule over the decisions of King and Government for the lasting good of the realm and the Empire.

A special meeting of the Cabinet was held this morning. The session was brief, lasting less than three-quarters of an hour. At its conclusion it became known that a further meeting of the Cabinet will be held on Monday morning at 10.30.

It is generally expected that an authoritative statement on the development of the situation in regard to the Constitutional issue will be made by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons on Monday.

Mr. Baldwin's statement yesterday is regarded by the newspapers as diminishing the prospect of a compromise arrangement being reached. The fixing of a Cabinet meeting for Monday morning is taken as an indication that the solution of the crisis during the week-end is unlikely.

FALKLAND ISLANDS BOY'S

SUCCESS

Dick Slaughter, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Slaughter, has won an open scholarship for King's School, Bruton, Somerset. The Scholarship is £50 a year for four years. He won the top scholarship and the Governors of the school extend the period to five years if the scholarship is proving of benefit to the boy's career.

Our readers will remember that Mr. Slaughter was Manager at Darwin for many years. Mrs. Slaughter is a daughter of Mr. G. Bonner O.B.E. and Mrs. Bonner.

B I R T H

News has been received by this mail that a son was born to Mrs. Hugh Thomas on September the 16th.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are well known to our readers - Mrs. Thomas before her marriage being Matron of the King Edward Memorial Hospital and Mr. Thomas was the Editor of the "Penguin".

D E A T H

It is with very deep regret that we have to record the death of Dr. J. Innes Moir.

No particulars are available but we understand that he died in British Honduras.

The connection of the Moir family with the Falklands is of long standing and we are sure that very general regret will be felt at his untimely death.

Dr. Moir is survived by his wife and two daughters.

FIRST FALKLAND ISLAND WOMAN TO BECOME A QUALIFIED AVIATOR

The following is an extract from the "Scotsman" of October 7th dealing with the Edinburgh Flying Club's progress.

"Every month new pilots are qualifying for their A flying licences. Among recent "passes" was Mrs. M.J. Galloway, one of the lady pilot members."

We think that Mrs. Galloway (who was Miss Malvina Pitaluga of Rincon Grande before her marriage) is the first Falkland Island woman to become a qualified aviator.

WOOL PRICES

A letter has been received from Mr. W. A. Harding, Secretary of the Falkland Islands Sheep Owners' Association, saying that the B.B.C. have promised to broadcast to the Falklands after the principal wool sales - March, May, July and September, a short account of the sales and will give the all-round average price. The top price does not mean much so they will accept Mr. Harding's figure of the average gross price which is always sent out in the Sheep Owners' Association circular.

The broadcast will be given at 12.40 a.m. so that the Falkland Islanders will hear it at about 9.0 p.m.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Anderson took place yesterday. The interment at the Cemetery was preceded by a short service at the Cathedral at which the Reverend Lowe officiated.

A large number of beautiful wreaths and flowers were sent by the deceased's many friends and relatives.

With the passing of the late Mrs. Anderson in her 86th year we lose the last of the early pioneers in the Falklands.

Mrs. Anderson, who was born in Dover, arrived in the Colony with her parents at the early age of seven in the year 1858. Her Father, a pensioner attached to the garrison, died six years after arrival and her Mother shortly afterwards.

In 1867 she married James Anderson who was then the Government pilot, and for many years they lived at Fort Stephens, where their children were born. Later they came to Stanley where Mr. Anderson died in 1903.

Mrs. Anderson is survived by four sons and three daughters who wish to thank all friends who have assisted during their sad bereavement and all those who sent wreaths and other expressions of sympathy.

BIRTHDAY OF 1ST FALKLAND ISLANDS
BROWNIE PACK

We were told that this was to be an enrolment of Brownies, but at the commencement of the proceedings no Brownies were visible and it seemed that they had been spirited away by Black Magic. The Acting Brown Owl (Miss H. Felton) seemed concerned about this and decided to try some "Brown Magic".

The Brownie Emblem, which is a large toad-stool, was rapped three times and we all listened attentively. There was a loud roar and the Pack appeared from nowhere. The Song and the Grand Howl of the Brownies were then given and owing to the unavoidable absence of the Commissioner (Mrs. L. Williams), Miss A. Felton, the Assistant Commissioner then proceeded to enrol the following nine members of the Brownie Pack, Inglis Barnes, Marjorie Grant, Phyllis Hennah, Thora Lanning, Thora Stevensen, Iris Barnes, Mally Goss, Laura McKay and Norah Harries.

The Grand Howl was given in honour of the Assistant Commissioner. A short play called "Little Peterkin" delighted us all. We were then entertained by Sixer Harries and Norah Harries in a short sketch entitled "A stray Cat".

There was a short interval for tea which was followed by games, in which everybody joined. These were concluded at 6 p.m. and the Guides who had given their assistance at the party stayed on to clear up the debris.

MIDNIGHT JOURNEY TO THE Late on Friday night the Honourable G. Roberts, the Honourable Dr. R.L. Cheverton and Mr. G.L. Challen made a journey in the Ford car to the Lighthouse to bring Mr. A.W. Sully the Principal Lighthouse Keeper to the Hospital.

This journey two years ago would have been impossible, and even now, in the daylight, it is a hazardous one, calling for expert driving and strong nerves, and it reflects very great credit on those concerned that the return journey, with the sick man in the car, was done in 45 minutes

PRIME MINISTER'S STATEMENT ON MONDAY

The Prime Minister made a further statement on Monday afternoon on the situation arising from the suggestion of the King's marriage to Mrs. Simpson, which was as follows:- "In considering the whole matter it has always been and remains the earnest desire of the Government to afford to His Majesty the fullest opportunity of weighing a decision which involves so directly his own future happiness and the interests of all his subjects. At the same time they cannot but be aware that any considerable prolongation of the present state of suspense and uncertainty would involve the risk of the gravest injury to national and Imperial interests and indeed no-one is more insistent upon this aspect of the situation than His Majesty. In view of certain statements which have been made about the relations between the Government and the King, I should add that with the exception of the question of a morganatic marriage no advice has been tendered by the Government to His Majesty with whom all my conversations have been strictly personal and informal. These matters were not raised first by the Government but by His Majesty himself in conversation with me some weeks ago when he first informed me of his intention to marry Mrs. Simpson whenever she should be free. The subject has, therefore, been for some time in the King's mind and as soon as His Majesty has arrived at a conclusion as to the course he desires to take he will no doubt communicate it to his Governments in this Country and in the Dominions. It will then be for those Governments to decide what advice, if any, they would feel it their duty to tender to him in the light of his conclusion. I cannot conclude this statement without expressing what the whole House feel - our deep and respectful sympathy with His Majesty at this time." (Cheers)

After Mr. Baldwin's statement the leader of the Opposition rose and asked the Premier to bear in mind that the House and country was anxious to receive the fullest information as soon as possible. Mr. Baldwin replied: "I shall be only too glad at a suitable moment to give the House such information as I can. The whole House will agree that at this moment when the situation is so grave and anxious and while the King is considering this matter and has not yet made up his mind, I should have great difficulty in offering information or in answering supplementary questions." There was considerable interruption and the Speaker intervened more than once when Mr. Winston Churchill sought to repeat the question he put last week asking for an assurance that no irrevocable decision would be taken until at least a statement had been made to Parliament of the Constitutional issues involved. Finally the Prime Minister said "It is at the moment impossible for me to give Mr. Churchill a reply. I do not know yet, and cannot know, what the King may decide or how he may decide to act. It is quite impossible for me to enter into any hypothetical considerations." This statement was received with cheers and on his leaving the House a few minutes later Mr. Baldwin was again cheered. A similar statement to that made by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons was read in the House of Lords by Lord Halifax, and Lord Snell, for the Opposition, concurred in the inadvisability of discussion while urging that matters should not be allowed to drift and expressing the hope that as soon as circumstances permitted the Government would give to Parliament any information at their disposal. The Marquess of Crewe, for the Liberals, added a few words. "As one who has had the honour of serving three former sovereigns in a position of confidence I feel sure that your Lordships will be gratified to know that the statements which have appeared in some irresponsible quarters, that the Government has applied some undue pressure to His Majesty to declare his decision in this matter, are altogether without foundation. I feel, on the contrary, that we are all indebted to the Prime Minister and the Government for the attitude which they have adopted in this difficult matter. I should like also to add to what has been said in expression of our profound sympathy

CHILDREN'S FANCY DRESS PARTY

The annual 8th of December Party organised by the Stanley Benefit Club was as great a success yesterday as ever it has been, with 321 children present, many of them in Fancy Dress.

His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Miss Henniker-Heaton and Miss P. Henniker-Heaton, arrived at 3.30 p.m. and took a great interest in the various games and stayed for tea.

The Fancy Dresses were so numerous, and in many cases so original, that it was decided not to give prizes.

The Stanley Benefit Club's Officers and their numerous helpers are to be heartily congratulated on the success of their effort on the children's behalf which we feel sure all the children appreciate.

DEFENCE FORCE DANCE HELD LAST NIGHT

Last night the Town Hall, was the scene of a most enjoyable dance given by the Falkland Islands Defence Force. The room was gaily decorated with flags and with the bright frocks of the ladies and smart uniform of the Force presented a delightful appearance. His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Miss Henniker-Heaton & Miss P. Henniker-Heaton, the Officers of the Defence Force and their wives, Lieutenant Commander Millett, Captain L.C.D. Ryder and Mr. B. Roberts, arrived at 10 p.m.

An unusual note was added by the fact that for the first time for many years programmes were used.

During the evening Major the Honourable M.J. Stewart (Officer Commanding the Falkland Islands Defence Force) said that he had pleasure in asking His Excellency to present the Coutts Cup for the most efficient platoon & the Inter-Platoon Shield for Miniature Rifle Shooting, both of which were won by No. 1 Platoon under Sgt. R. Campbell, and the Cheverton Shield (presented by Captain the Honourable R.L. Cheverton) for the best individual shooting, won by Pte. E.J. Mc. Atasney.

TRIBUTE TO DEVOTED DOCTORFUNERAL IN BRITISH HONDURAS

The following is an extract from the Inverness Courier of the 20th of October, 1936, which a reader has kindly lent us and which we know will interest our readers who knew the late Dr. Innes Moir so well and regret his death so greatly.

"The funeral of the late Dr. John Innes Moir, M.B., Ch.B., Senior Medical Officer in British Honduras, whose death occurred recently at Belize, British Honduras, was attended with all the honours the city of Belize could give. Dr. Moir was well-known in Inverness, and married a daughter of the late Mr. William Frazer, 31 Kenneth Street, Inverness.

The profound and widespread sorrow which the announcement of his passing occasioned was evident at the funeral, which took place from Belize Hospital. Flags were flown at half-mast all over the city, and, as a mark of respect, the leading business places closed their doors at an early hour. Practically the whole city assembled. Many thousands lined the route of the procession, all desirous of paying their last tribute to one whose outstanding integrity and constant devotion to duty had won their respect and their admiration.

The funeral was attended by His Excellency the Governor and Lady Burns, the members of the Executive and Legislative Councils, and other official bodies and notables. The service was held in the Presbyterian Church. The following was the order of procession:- Minister, Cars and wreaths, Gun carriage with Pallbearers (Medical Profession), Matron and Nurses of Belize Hospital and Staff, His Excellency the Governor, Executive Council, Legislative Council, Heads of Departments, other Civil Servants, Foreign Consuls, Justices of the Peace, Members of Belize Town Board, Police, Fire Brigade, Holy Redeemer Boy Scout Troop, General Public, Cars.

The death of Dr. Moir was entirely unexpected. He had slightly crushed his finger, and it is believed he was infected while attending a patient suffering from tetanus. Weakened by malaria from which he was suffering, his condition became rapidly critical and he died four days later. Born in 1897, he was educated at Dufftown and Gordon's College, Aberdeen, where he took his M.B. and Ch.B., degrees. He was a Surgeon Sub-Lieut in the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve during the Great War, serving in mine-layers and mine-sweepers. He was a Lieutenant in the Royal Army Medical Corps in 1921 and Assistant Medical Officer for Aberdeen City Hospital. From 1923 to 1927 he was Medical Officer for the Falkland Islands Company, and became Principal Medical Officer, Falkland Islands Government, in February, 1929. He was commissioned Captain of the Falkland Islands Defence Force in 1929, and in the next year was promoted Major. He was appointed to British Honduras in 1934 as Senior Medical Officer, and served on the Executive and Legislative Councils.

Dr. Moir is survived by his wife and two young children, who are at present living in Inverness, Mrs. Moir having returned from Belize only two months ago."

An important announcement regarding humanitarian assistance for the Spanish population was made by the Foreign Secretary yesterday. His Majesty's Government have accordingly asked for an early meeting of the Executive Committee of the Union for the purpose of formulating a scheme for the immediate relief of the suffering, resulting from military operations in any part of Spain, with the further ultimate objective of endeavouring to organise measures of more permanent relief and reconstruction, as and when the occasion may offer."

PRIME MINISTER'S MOVING SPEECH

In the House of Commons yesterday the Speaker read the following message from the King.

"After long and anxious consideration I have determined to renounce the throne to which I succeeded on the death of my Father and I am now communicating this my final and irrevocable decision. Realising as I do the gravity of this step, I can only hope that I shall have the understanding of my peoples in the decision I have taken and the reasons which have led me to make it. I will not enter now into my private feelings but I should beg that it should be remembered that the burden which constantly rests upon the shoulders of a sovereign is so heavy that it can only be borne in circumstances different from those in which I now find myself. I conceive that I am not overlooking the duty that rests on me to place in the forefront the public interest when I declare that I am conscious that I can no longer discharge this heavy task with efficiency or with satisfaction to myself. I have accordingly this morning executed an instrument of abdication in the terms following:-

'I Edward VIIIth of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British Dominions beyond the seas King, and Emperor of India, do hereby declare my irrevocable determination to renounce the throne for myself and for my descendants, and my desire is that effect should be given to this Instrument of Abdication immediately. In token whereof I have hereunto set my hand this tenth day of December, 1936, in the presence of witnesses whose signatures are subscribed. Signed Edward R.I.'

My execution of this instrument has been witnessed by my three brothers, the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of Kent. I deeply appreciate the spirit which has actuated the appeals made to me to take a different decision and I have, before reaching my final determination, most fully pondered over them. But my mind is made up. Moreover further delay cannot but be injurious to the peoples whom I have tried to serve as Prince of Wales and as King and whose future happiness and prosperity are the constant wish of my heart. I take my leave of them in the confident hope that the course which I have thought it right to follow is that which is best for the stability of the Throne and the Empire and for the happiness of my peoples. I am deeply sensible of the consideration which they have always extended to me both before and after my accession to the Throne and which I know they will extend in full measure to my successor. I am most anxious that there should be no delay of any kind in giving effect to the Instrument I have executed and that all the necessary steps should be taken immediately to secure my lawful successor, my brother, the Duke of York, should ascend the throne."

The House in which the Prime Minister rose after the King's message had been read was packed to its utmost capacity. The Diplomatic Gallery was full. The tension with which the disclosures of the Royal intentions had been awaited was not relaxed. Mr. Baldwin gave a plain recital of what had passed between the King and himself, His Majesty having given him permission to report the pertinent parts of their discussion. Alluding to the disquiet which arose in his mind when he resumed his public duties in October on account of the gossip and criticism appearing in the American press the Premier said that his first interview with the King on the subject took place on October 20th. He communicated to the King his anxieties, and spoke of the respect in which the monarchy was held and of the importance of its integrity which was beyond all question far greater than it had ever been - being not only the last link of the Empire but a guarantee for the country so long as it exists in that integrity against many evils that have affected and afflicted other countries. He begged the King to consider what he had said but did not press for any answer. The next interview was at Buckingham Palace on November the 18th by which time the decree nisi had been pronounced in Mrs. Simpson's divorce suit. Mr. Baldwin explained to the House that he had acted as the Prime Minister and that at this time the matter had not been before the Cabinet. On November the 18th he began by telling the King that he did not think that the particular marriage was one which would receive the approbation of the country. He told him that so far as the English people went he was certain that it would be impracticable. "I pointed out to him that the position of King's wife was different from the position of the wife of any citizen of the country. It was part of the price that the King had to pay. His wife became the Queen of the country and therefore in the choice of the Queen the voice of the people must be heard. Then His Majesty said that he wanted to tell me something he had long wanted to tell me, he said 'I am going to marry Mrs. Simpson and I am prepared to go.' I said 'Sir that is most grievous news. It is impossible for me to make any comment on it to-day.' He told Queen Mary that night. He told the Duke of York the next day."

It was at another interview on November 25th that the King asked the Prime Minister to put it formally before the Cabinet and communicate with the Dominion Prime Ministers regarding the suggestion that the King should marry and that Parliament should pass an Act enabling the lady to be the King's wife without the position of Queen. On December 2nd Mr. Baldwin reported on the result of his enquiries to the effect that neither in the Dominions nor at home would there be any prospect of such legislation being passed. His Majesty said that he was not surprised at that answer. He took it without question and never referred to it again. At the end of this conversation Mr. Baldwin referred to the two possible alternatives - either the complete abandonment of the project on which his heart was set and remaining as King, or doing as he already intimated he was prepared to do. From that date until yesterday (Wednesday) that had been the struggle between two conflicting causes in his heart in which His Majesty had been engaged. Mr. Baldwin had had many talks with him. The King was desirous if he did go to go with as little disturbance as possible to his Ministers and his people and in such circumstances that the succession of his brother would be made with as little difficulty as possible and Mr. Baldwin added "I may say that any idea of what might be called a 'King's Party' was to him abhorrent." He had stayed down at Fort Belvedere to give no excuse for the cheering crowds. Having told this story Mr. Baldwin produced a piece of paper - "I have here a pencilled note sent to me by His Majesty this morning and I have his authority for reading it. It is just simply in pencil and it says that the Duke of York and the King have always been on the best of terms as brothers and the King is confident that the Duke will deserve and will receive the support of the whole Empire."

The attentive silence in which the House had listened to the Premier was broken for the first time by cheers as he finished reading the note.

HIS MAJESTY ABDICATES

Before he concluded the Prime Minister related his own and the Cabinet's efforts to persuade the King to alter his decision. He had left nothing undone that could have been done to move him, "while there is not a soul among us who will not regret this from the bottom of his heart there is not a soul here to-day that wants to judge. We are not judges." Ending with an appeal for restraint and for the remembrance of the revered and beloved figure of Queen Mary, Mr. Baldwin declared amid general and prolonged cheers "we have after all, as guardians of democracy in this little Island, to see that we do our work to maintain the integrity of the Monarchy - that Monarchy which is now the sole link of the whole Empire and the guardian of our freedom. Let us look forward and remember our country and the trust reposed by our country in this the House of Commons and let us rally behind the new King. Let us rally behind him and help him. Whatever the country may have suffered by what we are passing through may soon be repaired and we may take a hand again in trying to make this country a better country for all the people in it."

The House of Commons adjourned at the end of Mr. Baldwin's speech until 6 o'clock. The Prime Minister introduced later yesterday evening a Bill "To give effect to His Majesty's declaration of Abdication" which will be read for a second time in the House of Commons this morning, and passed into law before the Houses of Parliament adjourn to-day. The text of the Bill is published and the second paragraph of the preamble reads "Whereas following communication to his Dominions of His Majesty's said declaration and desire, the Dominion of Canada pursuant to the provisions of Section 4 of the Statute of Westminster 1931 has requested and consented to the enactment of this Act, and the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand and the Union of South Africa have assented thereto."

The Bill makes the Abdication effective on the Royal Assent to the Act being given, and the third clause provides that the Royal Marriage Act shall not apply to His Majesty after his abdication.

In the House of Lords the Lord Privy Seal announced that a message had been received from Mr. De Valera that "the Government of the Irish Free State are summoning Parliament to make provision for the situation which has arisen, in the Irish Free State."

On the House of Commons re-assembling yesterday speeches were delivered by Mr. Attlee, Sir Archibald Sinclair, Mr. Winston Churchill and other members. After a sympathetic tribute to King Edward Mr. Attlee said "The position of anyone who in these days of pressing problems is called upon to succeed to the Throne is obviously one of very great difficulty. It will be the endeavour of all of us to do what we may to lighten that burden. I would like to express our deepest sympathy with Queen Mary and the other members of the Royal Family."

In the course of his remarks Sir Archibald Sinclair said "Let us also gratefully and respectfully acclaim the political wisdom which His Majesty has shown in discountenancing any attempt to divide the country on issues which his proposed marriage involved. It is in a large measure due to His Majesty's wise and strong restraint and to his recognition of the supremacy of Parliament and the Constitutional responsibility of his Ministers that the Crown has not become involved in a political controversy but remains aloof."

Mr. Churchill deprecated any sort of controversy and accepted unreservedly the Premier's account of the recent happenings. The House rose at 6.40 p.m.

It is expected that the Accession Council will be held on Saturday and a proclamation may be made on the same day.

London was a subdued city last night, thousands of men and women eagerly snatched the newspapers from the paper-sellers and read the news with grave faces and quietly went on their way.

It is learned from a reliable source that His Majesty's entourage have been greatly struck, though hardly surprised, by the calmness and courage displayed by the King throughout the crisis. Despite the nervous stress and deepest anxiety of those around him,

His Majesty faced the supreme issue of his life with quiet dignity and perfect coolness. His mind made up he remained as one of his friends said, "like the Rock of Gibraltar".

The King has been working at his desk every night recently until the small hours of the morning, rising early and never showing outwardly by the slightest sign the intense physical and mental strain which he must have been undergoing. He was his usual kindly, gracious, and considerate self to everyone who came into contact with him whether personal friends, officials, staff or servants, all of whom are crushed by the shock of the tragic events which have overtaken one whom they loved and respected both as a man and as King.

The Proclamation of the new King will take place immediately after the Accession meeting of the Privy Council which is being held at St. James' Palace on Saturday morning. Both Houses of Parliament will meet on Saturday afternoon for the swearing-in which will continue on Monday. On Monday Parliament will receive a message from the new King and will move an address in reply. No decision has been reached regarding the title the King will take on abdication and no decision has been reached regarding financial matters. The revenues of the Duchies of Lancaster and Cornwall will not be available to him but will pass to the new King. The Government may ask Parliament to make an annual grant to King Edward on his abdication but he may intimate that he has adequate private resources.

We believe that the only previous cases of abdication of the English Throne are King James II in 1689 and King Richard II in 1399.

TRIBUTE PAID TO LOYAL SERVICEOF THE FORMER KING

In the House of Commons yesterday in a brief speech at the end of a debate the Prime Minister put on record what he described as the feeling of the whole House that "we shall always remember with regard and affection the wholehearted and loyal service which His Majesty has given to the country as the Prince of Wales and during the short time he has been on the throne."

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY ON MONDAY

The new King celebrates his forty-second birthday on Monday and flags will be flown on all Government buildings and a Salute of guns will be fired.

RESIDENCE AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE

Nothing is yet known of the date when their Majesties will take up residence at Buckingham Palace and it is thought likely that the King will for some time follow the example of King Edward in the early months of his reign in visiting the Palace daily to transact State business.

THIS MORNING IN LONDONACCESSION COUNCIL HELD

The Accession Council was held at St. James' Palace at 11 o'clock this morning when the Privy Counsellors with the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, the Lord Mayor and City Aldermen and "Other Principal Gentlemen of Quality", heard from the Lord President of the Council of King Edward's abdication and drew up the Proclamation of King George the VIth which will be read this afternoon by the Kings of Arms with all the pomp of heraldry at various points in London.

The Privy Counsellors then took the Oath of Allegiance to the new King who entered in person and made the declaration required by the Constitution. The parchment inscribed with the Proclamation was signed by the whole council including the King's brothers, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Prime Minister and the Cabinet.

A message from the Queen Mother was issued from Marlborough House early this morning (See Page 1.)

Troops will line the streets along which the procession of heralds will pass this afternoon from St. James' Palace to the Royal Exchange for the purpose of proclaiming with ancient ceremony the Accession of the new King. There was a gathering of the Royal Family at Windsor last night at which the King was present along with Queen Mary and at which, after they had listened to his Broadcast to the peoples of the British Commonwealth, the former King said his final farewells before leaving for Portsmouth where in the early hours of this morning he embarked on a destroyer.

Reports reaching London from all parts of the world indicate that the reception of the broadcast, of which an almost world-wide re-lay had been arranged, were generally good.

While no official decision regarding the Coronation arrangements has yet been made known there is a general understanding that an effort will be made to disturb the existing plans as little as may be found possible.

Satisfaction is expressed in the newspaper comment on the smoothness with which the constitutional procedure of the Commonwealth, as provided by the Statute of Westminster, has worked at its first serious test.

The "Times" says "the result is the more remarkable in view of the admitted complexity of the legal position. Yet the theoretical difficulties have not prevented a simple and practical solution in accordance with the British traditions and practice."

All the Governments gave in advance their assent, which was necessary to make the Abdication Act effective on their territory, and confirmatory legislation will be passed by their Parliaments at the earliest practicable moment.

Each Dominion has made a momentous change in its own way but each has made the same change and all have kept in step with one another.

Referring to a measure presented in the Dail by the Irish Free State Government which is interpreted as recognising the new King in external affairs only as the office of Governor-General is abolished, the "Manchester Guardian" comments: "The Free State remains in the British Commonwealth of its own will. The last link of Empire still binds."

The large crowds which had gathered in the Mall outside Buckingham Palace and around St. James' Palace gave a rousing reception to the King as he drove to the Accession Council this morning. His Majesty wore the full dress uniform of an Admiral.

PROCLAMATION OF NEW KING IN LONDON

The Proclamation of His Majesty King George Vith, signed at Saturday morning's Accession Council, was read at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon from the balcony of Priary Court at St. James' Falace by the Garter King at Arms with whom were other officers at arms all habited in their Tabards, and the Earl Marshal of England and the Duke of Norfolk.

The King, with Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, had joined the Queen Mother in a window of Marlborough House from which they watched the picturesque ceremony. Other members of the Royal Family watched from the grounds of Marlborough House.

The procession was then formed and, accompanied by an escort of Royal Horse Guards, State Trumpeters, Sergeants at Arms, Pursuivants and Heralds, marched in front of the Kings at Arms along the route which was lined with eighteen battalions.

The first halt was at Charing Cross where His Majesty was proclaimed by the Lancaster Herald. At Temple Bar, where the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs were stationed in the City State Coach, a silken cord across the road asserted the inalienable right of the City of London to refuse admission to the Sovereign. The traditional demand was made by a Bluemantle Pursuivant to the city Marshal and the Lord Mayor gave his assent. The Proclamation was read again and the procession reformed. The Proclamation was read for the last time at the Royal Exchange. All along the route vast crowds, even greater than those of last January, cheered, and sang the national anthem.

King George was also proclaimed in Edinburgh on Saturday. On Monday the Proclamation will be made by the Civic authorities throughout the country.

Immediately after the Accession Council which he attended on Saturday morning to make the declaration required by the Constitution, the King received at St. James' Palace the High Commissioners of the Dominions by whom he was presented with messages of homage and through whom he sent his good wishes for the welfare of the peoples of the British Commonwealth.

Coronation Date As Previously Arranged

On Saturday too His Majesty received in an audience the Lord President of the Council and the Home Secretary. To the Lord President he signified his approval of the date for the Coronation remaining unchanged.

The King has addressed messages on his Accession to the three Defence Forces and to the Civil Service. In a message to the navy His Majesty said "It has been my privilege to serve as a naval officer both in peace and in war. At Jutland, the greatest sea battle of modern times, I saw for myself in action the maintenance of those great traditions which are the inheritance of British seamen."

PRINCE EDWARD ABROAD

It is reported from Boulogne that Prince Edward left there at 8.38 on Saturday night on the Swiss Express. Earlier he walked on the quay for a few minutes accompanied by Major Alexander while a strong police cordon kept back the crowd of sightseers.

HIS MAJESTY'S BIRTHDAY TO-DAY

King George VIth to-day celebrates his forty-first birthday but at his express wish there is no official observance of the occasion.

The flags are flying at the mastheads over public and other buildings and at noon the customary salutes were fired in London.

Queen Elizabeth is suffering from a mild attack of influenza and will remain indoors at her home in Picadilly for a few days. She was unable to accompany the King and their children who visited Marlborough House yesterday and attended Divine Service in the Chapel there.

The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, the Princess Royal, Lord Athlone and Princess Alice also attended. Subsequently Queen Mary visited the Queen.

The King announced to the Accession Council on Saturday that his first act would be to confer a Dukedom on his brother the former King who will be known as the Duke of Windsor. The Duke, who left Vienna late last night, motored to Engesfeld, where he is to be the guest for an indefinite period of the Baron de Rothschild.

The long ceremony of taking the Oath of Allegiance to the new King, which began at a special sitting of Parliament on Saturday, is being continued to-day in both Houses. In the House of Commons this evening the Prime Minister will present a message from the King and will move an address in reply. Parliament will resume its normal business to-morrow.

In consequence of the crisis only two days have been dropped from the Government's time table, namely Thursday and to-day, for Friday, which was devoted to the Abdication Bill was a Private Members' Day and there is normally no sitting on Saturday. The crisis therefore will not involve any change in the Christmas recess arrangements.

Parliament will adjourn on Friday and is not likely to be called back before January 26th, the date originally fixed for re-assembling.

The King, who was at Buckingham Palace this morning attending to State business, read messages of congratulation on his birthday which have arrived from all parts of the world.

The s.s. "Lafonia" is expected to reach Montevideo on the 23rd. The s.s. "Fitzroy" was at Fort Stephens yesterday.

SHIPPING AFFECTED BY GALE

Following a day of bright sunshine a gale developed round the British Isles yesterday evening and later increased in force. This morning on the western and southern coasts of England the wind reached a velocity of between 60 and 80 miles an hour. Shipping was heavily affected and some minor casualties occurred. The Hythe Lifeboat saved the lives of the crew of a small motor fishing vessel, the "Josephine" which had had to be abandoned. The cross Channel services were maintained with difficulty.

PLANS FOR MEDIATION IN THE SPANISH CONFLICT

All the Governments invited to take part in the discussion on Anglo-French proposals for mediation in the Spanish conflict, have now replied.

The German and Italian replies were delivered on Saturday. The text of the matter has not yet been published. The German reply states that the German Government shares the desire of the British Government and the French Government to see order restored in Spain and in particular to prevent the conflagration from spreading to the rest of Europe, and is prepared to support all measures really calculated to serve that end. It recalls the German Government's expressed views on indirect intervention and although now somewhat doubtful whether a general prohibition of all direct or indirect intervention would lead to the desired result in the present conditions, it states that the German Government is nevertheless prepared to participate as before in all arrangements which the London Committee may decide on for altering this situation and bringing about the effective control over the execution of such decisions as may be taken.

HIS MAJESTY'S MESSAGE TO PARLIAMENT

A message from the King was received in both Houses of Parliament yesterday afternoon. His Majesty stated "I have succeeded to the Throne in circumstances which are without precedent and at a moment of great personal distress, but I am resolved to do my duty and I am sustained by the knowledge that I am supported by the wide-spread goodwill and sympathy of all my subjects here and throughout the world. It will be my constant endeavour, with God's help and supported by my dear wife, to uphold the honour, and to promote the happiness, of my peoples."

Both in the House of Lords and the House of Commons loyal addresses in reply to the King's gracious message were voted. Lord Halifax, Lord Snell, the Marquess of Crewe and the Archbishop of Canterbury spoke in the Upper House. The Prime Minister moving the address in the House of Commons spoke of the new King's strong resemblance, in character and disposition of mind, to his Father, and said that he would bring to his great task the same devotion to duty. The leader of the Opposition referred to His Majesty's wide acquaintance with the Dominions and other parts of the Empire and his close knowledge of social questions. Sir Archibald Sinclair also spoke.

APPEAL TO THE WORLD MADE BY MR. EDEN LAST NIGHT

An appeal to the world to turn from the armaments competition to economic co-operation was made by Mr. Eden in a speech at Bradford last night. He said that Britain was anxious to pursue the economic possibilities opened up by the recent three-power monetary agreement and to help to create conditions wherein economically all nations can have greater opportunities. If a lasting settlement of world difficulties can be reached including an arms agreement British help would be given wholeheartedly but with a fundamental proviso that any economic financial help should not be used for a further piling up of armaments.

Mr. Eden expressed anxiety over the breaches of the Spanish non-intervention Agreement and (Continued on Page 4.)

LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY BILL

A financial resolution, which is the prelude to the Government's Livestock Industry Bill which will be one of the first measures to be considered by Parliament after the Christmas recess, was discussed in the House of Commons yesterday evening. The purpose of the Bill is described as "to provide for the development and better organisation of the industry and connected industries, for paying a subsidy to producers of fat cattle, for regulating the imports of livestock and meat, for the holding of markets and the slaughtering of livestock."

The resolution imposes from to-day an import duty of three farthings per pound on chilled meat, of two-thirds of a penny on other beef and veal and 20% ad valorem on boned and boneless beef and edible offals excluding sweetbreads and canned goods. Empire products are exempted. A Duty of 20% is also imposed on canned goods and of 10% on extracts and essences wholly derived from beef or veal and certain other classes.

APPEAL TO GERMANY, ITALY,
PORTUGAL AND RUSSIA

In a Parliamentary answer yesterday the Foreign Secretary recalled the approach made by the British and French Governments to Germany, Italy, Portugal and Russia in favour of a strict renunciation of foreign intervention in the Spanish civil war and a joint offer of mediation, and said, "the replies of the four Governments have now been received. The Government of the Union of the Soviet Socialist Republics have given their support to the proposals, and the German and Italian Governments, whilst doubtful of the successful outcome of the proposals for mediation, have expressed their readiness to examine any proposals which other Governments may formulate and to participate in their eventual realisation.

The reply of the Portuguese Government, whilst indicating the difficulties foreseen by that Government, states that if both the parties in Spain desire mediation they will be glad to study the form it should take."

INCREASE OF GOLD IN BANK OF ENGLAND

As a temporary measure it has been decided to increase the amount of gold held in the issue department of the Bank of England by £65,000,000.

This announcement was made at the House of Commons at question time yesterday by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. He then said "Such a step by itself would mean a very sharp expansion of the credit base for which there is no justification at the present time. I have, therefore, at the request of the Bank, directed a reduction of the fiduciary issue by £60,000,000 under the powers conferred by the Currency and Bank Notes Act of 1928, thus limiting the expansion to small dimensions. I would add that there is no greater permanence in these arrangements than may seem desirable, since the fiduciary issue may be increased or diminished at any time in the future in accordance with the provisions of the Act named."

TRADE RESTRICTIONS

"His Majesty's Government have constantly in mind the desirability of securing the removal of restrictions on foreign trade and upon the movements of capital, which interferes with foreign trade" declared the Chancellor of the Exchequer in the House of Commons yesterday.

He added that the figures of United Kingdom imports showed that there were fewer restrictions on trade with this country than elsewhere.

Answering a supplementary question suggesting that the terms of reference of foreign transactions of the Advisory Committee recently set up to give guidance on foreign lending should be made more flexible, Mr. Chamberlain said that he thought the terms were very flexible. The embargo on lending to foreign countries did not apply where the loans had a direct influence on increasing the British export trade.

No. 87 GOVERNMENT NOTICE

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Stanley, Falkland Islands.
15th December, 1936.

His Excellency the Governor directs the publication of the following telegram received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies:-

Circular. 12th December. The following messages have been addressed by His Majesty to

(a) the Royal Navy. On my accession to the Throne I recall with pride that, as my dear Father did before me, I received my early training in the Royal Navy.

It has been my privilege to serve as a Naval Officer both in peace and in war; at Jutland the greatest sea battle of modern times I saw for myself in action the maintenance of those great traditions which are the inheritance of British seamen.

It is my intention always to keep the closest touch with all ranks and ratings of the Naval forces throughout the Empire and with all matters affecting them. I shall do so in the sure knowledge that they will be worthy of the implicit trust placed in them by their fellow countrymen and that in their hands the honour of British Navies will be upheld.

GEORGE R.I.

(b) the Army. On my accession to the Throne I wish to assure all ranks of the Army that their welfare will be one of my chief concerns. It was a notable event in my life 4 years ago when my Father appointed me a Major General in the Army and that association has only served to enhance my admiration for the courage and efficient manner in which their duties however onerous they may prove are undertaken.

The task that lies before me is fraught with difficulties but I know full well that the heavy burden of my responsibility will be lightened by the faithful allegiance of all ranks of Military forces of the Crown throughout the Empire.

GEORGE R.I.

(c) the Royal Air Force. On my accession to the Throne, I hasten to assure the Air Forces at Home and Overseas that I look forward to the maintenance of my close connection with them, which has been such a happy feature of my life ever since I became a Junior Officer in the Service in 1918, and served with the independent Air Forces in France.

As Air Chief Marshal, I have watched with keen appreciation the way in which the Service has proved more than equal to the many tasks which a rapid expansion has imposed upon it.

I know full well the Air Forces of the Empire will maintain to the full the great traditions that they have already established, combining with the highest efficiency and zeal a fine chivalry of service and a deep and steadfast loyalty.

GEORGE R.I.

(d) the Civil Service. I desire on my accession to the Throne to express to all grades of the Civil Service my appreciation of the ability and devotion with which they have always discharged their varied duties, whether at Home or overseas.

The record of the British Civil Service is indeed unique and I recognise with satisfaction the great position which its members have won for themselves in the life of the community. Its great traditions and those of the Dominions service, of the Indian and Colonial Service, are well-known to me, and I am sure I can depend on that spirit of steadfast devotion to duty which has at all times animated them.

Whatever difficulties may lie ahead I know I can rely upon their lasting loyalty.

GEORGE R.I.

By Command,

(Sgd.) M.C. Craigie-Halkett,

Colonial Secretary.

London. It is officially stated that the influenza from which Her Majesty the Queen is suffering is taking its usual course. Her Majesty is making good progress.

BRITISH REPRESENTATION IN OCCUPIEDABYSSINIA

The question of British representation in occupied Abyssinia has been under consideration for some time by His Majesty's Government with special reference to the problems arising from the retention of a Diplomatic Mission accredited to a Government which no longer exercises any local authority.

In making this statement in the House of Commons at question time yesterday the Foreign Secretary added "In any case it is not the intention of His Majesty's Government to accord a de jure recognition of the annexation of Abyssinia."

In reply to another member who sought an assurance that the British Government's attitude regarding Abyssinia would be in conformity with the principle of non-recognition of the changes brought about in disregard of the League Covenant embodied in the declaration of the 16th of February, 1932, Mr. Eden said, "His Majesty's Government adhere to the principle enunciated in that declaration which was made in connection with the particular case of the Sino-Japanese dispute. But in its application to any case His Majesty's Government must be entitled to take account of the facts of the situation and of necessity - where the protection of British interests is involved - of dealing with the actual authorities on the spot. Any such action on their part does not imply approval of the methods by which the situation was brought about."

STORMY WEATHER ON BRITISH COAST

The stormy weather continues along the east coast of Britain. Two men were drowned yesterday when the drifter "Margaret and Francis" was driven ashore in a gale off Belhelvie, Aberdeenshire.

The remaining member of the crew reached the shore with the aid of a lifebelt and was picked up unconscious. The Aberdeen trawler "David Buchan and Buckie" and the drifter "Heathery Knowe" were driven ashore in the gale but their crews got ashore safely.

NEW MACHINERY FOR WARSHIPS

The First Lord of the Admiralty informed the House of Commons yesterday that orders are about to be placed for new machinery for H.M.S. "Elizabeth" and H.M.S. "Valiant" with the Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Company of Govan, Glasgow, and with the Parsons Marine Steam and Turbine Company of Wallsend-on-Tyne respectively.

Sir Samuel Hoare also stated that he would shortly invite tenders for capital ships to be laid down in 1937.

THE DUKE OF WINDSOR

It is reported from Vienna that all appeals from film and press photographers to the Duke of Windsor were fruitless until yesterday when a joint request was sent to the Duke to pose so as to enable the cameramen to join their families for Christmas. The Duke responded promptly and promised to pose in the near future. The Duke of Windsor's health has improved and he played golf yesterday afternoon with his hostess the Baroness Kitty Rothschild.

Mrs. Simpson is still at the Villa Louvili near Cannes.

REGARDING THE BALEARIC IS.

Asked in the House of Commons the precise terms of the guarantee given by the Italian Government regarding the Balearic Islands, the Foreign Secretary said that these assurances were verbal. "His Majesty's Charge D'Affaires in Rome informed the Italian Foreign Minister on September the 12th, on my instructions, that any alteration of the Status Quo in the western Mediterranean would be a matter of closest concern to His Majesty's Government. In taking note of this communication Count Ciano assured Mr. Ingram that the Italian Government had not, either before or since the revolution in Spain, engaged in any negotiations with General Franco whereby the status quo in the Western Mediterranean would be altered, nor would they engage in any such negotiations in the future. This assurance was subsequently re-affirmed spontaneously to the British naval attache in Rome by the Italian Ministry of Marines, and the Italian Ambassador in London has on several occasions given me similar verbal assurances."

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS

In the House of Commons yesterday the Foreign Secretary referred to the negotiations in train for the complete exchange of all prisoners and hostages between Baecue and the neighbouring territories in Spain, and stated that at the request of both sides British ships had undertaken to give their fullest co-operation in carrying out the exchange.

He also said that the question of approaching the opposing forces in Spain to persuade them to apply the provisions of the Convention in relation to the protection of Red Cross Units was under consideration.

LESS MILLIONAIRES IN THE U.S.A.

LONDON A scheme for a communal white settlement in the Tanganyika Highlands has been launched under the direction of Lord Chesham, and the first settlers are leaving for Africa early in the New Year.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

In making an important announcement in the House of Commons yesterday on the retention in service of five over-age cruisers, the First Lord of the Admiralty said "For some time the Government has been giving serious consideration to the question of scrapping five over-age cruisers to conform with the provisions of the London Naval Treaty of 1930. In view of the deterioration of the general international situation this is obviously not the moment at which any power would wish to scrap serviceable vessels and His Majesty's Government has therefore been exchanging views on the subject with the other parties to Part Three of the Treaty. The United States Government have intimated that if His Majesty's Government decide to have recourse to Article 21 of the London Naval Treaty to retain these vessels on the grounds of the Nation's security necessitating this action, no objection will be raised by them.

No final answer has been received yet from the Japanese Government but we have reason to believe that their reply will also be favourable. I am glad therefore to be able to inform the House that we expect in the course of the next few days to convey to the Governments of the United States and of Japan official intimation of our intention to have recourse to Article 21 of the London Naval Treaty to retain these cruisers on the ground stated.

I should like to take this opportunity to give public expression to our appreciation of the sympathetic and helpful attitude adopted by the Governments of the United States and Japan in this matter."

NEW FLYING BOATS UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Two of the flying boats of the Empire Fleet, which are being built by Short and Company for Imperial Airways, are intended for long-range experiments. The first of these craft is now at Southampton being prepared for long-distance trials. It is equipped with a fuel tank of 2,320 gallons capacity and at a cruising speed of 160 miles an hour its attainable range in still air is 3,300 miles. The crew numbers three and its commercial load consists of 1,000 pounds avoirdupois of mails. There is no passenger accommodation in this craft which differs from the standard boats in the new fleet by being laden to an all-up weight of 45,000 lbs. as against the 40,500 lbs of the standard craft.

THE SPANISH SITUATION

The Foreign Secretary in the House of Commons yesterday spoke on the Spanish situation. He said that the Government had been asked what form of Government they would like to see in Spain. He would like to see a Government in Spain that Spain itself wanted. That was the motive behind the support of the policy of non-intervention. "We think it is the duty of all nations to keep out of the Spanish quarrel and to allow the Spanish people to settle their sufficiently tragic difficulties themselves. If anyone thinks that the fact that we support non-intervention is due to sympathy for this or that side they are mistaken. We support the policy which we believe to be the best for Europe at this time. I want to be frank with the House. Non-intervention has not realised our expectations neither in the speed with which the Agreement was negotiated nor in the manner in which it has since been observed."

He went on to say that dissatisfaction with the working of the non-intervention agreement was not a sufficient reason to denounce the Agreement, to do which would bring nearer the risk of European war and would not even profit the Spanish Government. Obviously the best method would be to establish an effective control. If the principal nations of Europe really wished to make the non-intervention Agreement effective the control would be quite simple, but if they did not wish to make non-intervention effective then it was beyond the wit of man to devise any system of control which would operate successfully. Referring to the recent Anglo-French initiative which had arisen out of dissatisfaction with the present situation Mr. Eden said that it had a dual objective - first to reinforce the effectiveness of the non-intervention Agreement and secondly to make an effort towards mediation.

He said "Neither we nor the French Government have any intention of desisting in our attempts to secure mediation in this conflict. We did not anticipate that at the first attempt we were going to receive support from all immediately, but we intend to persist - perhaps using slightly different methods of approach - because we believe that the time will come when these efforts will ultimately be rewarded."

The Foreign Secretary spoke of the importance of the humanitarian work in which His Majesty's diplomatic and consular officers had taken an active part and to which the navy had rendered great assistance. This work, besides saving life, served to reduce the bitterness between the contending forces. He also commended the work of the Scottish Ambulance. He said that as a result of these activities as many as 200 persons had been evacuated weekly from one port alone. He could not give the total figure but it would not surprise him if in the final reckoning it were found that the total number of prisoners exchanged reached five figures. They hoped that the exchange of a further four thousand prisoners between the Basque and Burgos authorities would be effected in the near future.

Mr. Eden favoured the League's giving technical assistance to the Spanish Government in co-ordination of transport to ensure the food supplies of Madrid. The Government would be willing to do anything to facilitate the efforts of private organisations to make good the deficiencies of medical supplies. Moreover, though he believed that fortunately there had been no use of gas, there was nothing to prevent the dispatch of gas masks to Madrid. In this matter the Government had been approached by the Madrid Government and had itself sold a small consignment to them.

RATIONING IN GERMANY

It is reported from Berlin that in view of a shortage of butter, fat, lard and bacon, in Germany, a system of rationing is to be introduced. As a preliminary 15,000,000 German families yesterday received forms wherein the number of persons belonging to each household must be filled.

PREPARATIONS FOR ROYAL WEDDING

It is reported from the Hague that enormous stands are being erected at every corner to accommodate the crowds assembling for Princess Juliana's wedding on the 7th of January.

High prices are being paid for seats and the proceeds will go to the Hague relief committee of which Princess Juliana is the Honorary President. Hotel accommodation is at a premium, whole floors in the chief hotels being reserved by the Court for distinguished foreign visitors.

The wedding ceremonies will be broadcast by Dutch Stations.

CHILD'S HAND CUT OFF FOR STEALING APPLES

A message from Rio de Janeiro states that a swift and thorough vengeance was wrought by a Brazilian labourer in the Monte Aprazivel district yesterday against the Japanese colonists, one of whom cut off the hand of the Brazilian's ten-year-old son because the latter stole apples from a Japanese official's orchard.

The boy died when he reached home and the demented father seized his rifle and took a vantage point on the high road, determined to kill every Japanese passer-by, and he killed 16 including the mutilator of his son before the police arrived.

LONDON The King held his first Privy Council at Buckingham Palace yesterday morning. His Majesty approved the Proclamation of his Coronation which is to be read in London to-day.

THIS YEAR'S SPORTS

The Stanley Sports Association has spared neither effort nor expense in the arrangements for the twenty-eighth annual meeting and it is hoped that with the gracious co-operation of the Clerk of the Weather and the enthusiastic support of the general public, the twenty-seven previous occasions will be totally eclipsed by the success of the 1936 "SPORTS".

The programme has been amended considerably, especially for the first day's events, in order to make the races as attractive as possible both to the competitors and to the spectators. The principal alterations (which were published in detail last June) affect the status of horses which may compete in the various races and an attempt has been made to so balance the programme that all classes of horses may be entered in some of the day's events with a reasonable chance of success. Horses which have raced on the 'Coast' may only compete in the following races, No. 3 The S.S.A. 900 yards Open, No. 7, The West Falkland Plate (800 yards), No. 12, The Governor's Cup (800 yards), No. 18, Roy Felton Plate (one mile), and the Andreas Pit-aluga Prize, No. 20. In addition to the usual Champion Race (formerly the "Salvañor" Cup and now "The Andreas Pit-aluga Prize") a special "Champion" race has been added to the programme for Falkland Island Bred horses and this race should prove one of the most exciting events of the day. A restriction has been placed on Race No. 3 - The S.S.A. Prize of £10 - that it cannot be won by the same horse two years in succession.

The chief innovation is the introduction of all cash prizes - with the exception of two or three races where first prizes "in kind" are very kindly presented by patrons of the Association - the first, second and third prizes are to be distributed in cash. The values of the various prizes have been considerably increased so that provided sufficient entries are received nearly £150 will be paid out for the "Mounted" events alone.

The Ladies' Trotting Race has been transferred to the Second Day and several minor amendments have been made in the programme for the Foot Events. The "Slow" Bicycle Competition" (No. 16) promises to be a popular and amusing event.

A special enclosure has been made on the North side for spectators, and horses will not be allowed inside this enclosure under any circumstances. Other improvements include the construction of a ladies' cloak room, the provision of windows in the west ends of the grand stands and the transfer of the corral previously erected north of the Sports House to a position south of the common fence.

The usual two-shilling "TOTE" will be run by the Association to the joy of those who receive tips "straight from the horse's mouth" and to the sorrow of those whose source of information is less reliable. Both huts will be on the north side of the course, the larger of the two will be used exclusively for "Paying-in" and the other (outside the enclosure) as a "Paying out" office for the successful punters.

His Excellency congratulated the winners of the races and said that the Sports would always be a success here as long as such keen sportsmanship was shown and that he had not enjoyed two days' racing so much for many years.
He added that racing was called the "Sport of Kings" but that he thought it could be rightly called the "King of Sports". He concluded by asking everyone to join him in showing their appreciation of the fine work and high achievement of the Committee of the Sports Association by acclamation. (Loud applause)

The Honourable N.K. Cameron (Chairman) replied: "I have to thank His Excellency for coming here to-night to present the Prizes and for the great interest he always shows in the welfare of the Association.

The successful Meeting that we have had reflects great credit on those members of the Association who have undertaken the organisation of it, the amount of work involved is perhaps not fully appreciated by the public but on behalf of the campers at least I would like to say 'thank you' to them and to the donors of the prizes.

Our thanks are also due to those Westers who so sportingly sent in their horses to run in the races and we are glad that it must have proved a not unprofitable journey. . Finally I would add how very welcome on the course were the Captain, Officers and Crew of the "Penola" and we wish them every good fortune when they leave us to-morrow. And now Ladies and Gentlemen I would ask you to join me in giving three rousing cheers for His Excellency the Governor."

Three really rousing cheers were given, after which the dancing recommenced and continued until 2 a.m.

At the dance which is being held in the Town Hall to-night the prizes won on the second day of the Sports will be distributed with the exception of the prize for the "Penola" race which was presented last night as the ship is expected to leave to-day.

This race, for which there were seven entries from the R.Y. "Penola", was won by Mr. J.H. Martin.

SURVEY OF MOTOR VEHICLE TRADE

A survey of the trade in motor vehicles prepared by the Imperial Economic Committee shows that while there are fifteen times as many motor cars in the United States as in the United Kingdom the latter has more cars per square mile of its area - namely twenty-two - than any other country; the next country being Belgium with 13.5.

Ninety-four per cent of the motor vehicles sold in the United Kingdom are of home manufacture while the British share in the total world export of motor vehicles is approximately one sixth.

ABATEMENT OF OVER-CROWDING

Another stage in the development of part of the Government's housing programme which aims at the abatement of over-crowding has been reached with the issue of an order by the Minister of Health fixing July 1st next as the appointed day for bringing the relevant provision of the 1935 Housing Act into operation in a further 159 areas which were exempted from the first order issued in June last, and a subsequent order owing to the extent of over-crowding in those areas revealed in a recent survey and the need for extra time to cope with the problem.

Several Metropolitan boroughs and large provincial towns are included among the areas affected by the new order.

Out of a total of 1,477 areas in the country as a whole, only 59 remain where the Act will not be in operation by next July.

WILL OF BRITAIN'S RICHEST WOMAN

A perplexing situation over the death of Lady Houston - reputed to be Britain's richest woman - has arisen, with the representatives of the family aided by lawyers and servants failing to discover the will.

The death occurred in circumstances and with a degree of unexpectedness which made enquiries impossible, a semi-conscious state prevailing for several hours.

Her solicitors are apparently unaware of a document being prepared and the belief is strengthening that the deceased may be intestate. The estate at her husband's death was estimated at above £7,000,000.

RAPID GROWTH OF ARMED FORCESRe-Armament Programme A Necessity

The Prime Minister has sent a New Year message to the Primrose League in which he refers to the disturbed condition of Europe. He asserts that the Government's Foreign Policy is the only possible policy if Britain is to be secure from attack and to retain its influence on the side of peace. Mr. Baldwin adds that in the face of the world situation and the rapid growth of the armed forces in Europe a re-armament programme is a necessity no British Government dare ignore.

Britain's armed forces will never be used for a purpose inconsistent with the Covenant of the League of Nations, and no foreign country need fear that Britain has aggressive intention, he concluded.
